CHAPTER IX.

"Yes," he said, "I am coming to stay at Leafmore."

"Lord Gaunt!" exclaimed the devoted steward, almost breathlessly. "You—you are coming to live here, to stay?"

"Yes," said Gaunt, glancing at Decima. "I am going to live here. The place has been neglected too long; it is time I settled down and looked after things; the tenants and the people on the estate, and all that. We'll see if we can't carry out some of these improvements you have been worrying me to see about."

Bright looked as if he were inclined to cry with joy and satisfaction, and there was surprise in his face also.

"I heard from Belford & Lang, the lawyers, that your lordship had booked a passage for Africa," he said. "So I had; the vessel sails the day after to-morrow. But I've changed my mind, and she'll sail without me."

"That is good news, my lord," said Bright. "There'll be rejoicing in the village when they hear you are going to settle down."

"Really?" said Gaunt, with a grim smile. "That sounds strange."

He drew nearer to Decima. "Have I proved the sincerity of my remorse, of my desire for reformation, Miss Deane?" he said in a low voice.

Decima turned her eyes to his. She was still a little pale, but there was the light of pleasure shining in her eyes, and her lips were rather tremulous.

"Are you really going to stay—to live here?" she said, with all a young girl's readiness to forget and forgive, and a woman's delight at having her own way. "Really and truly, on your honor? You won't run away again and disappoint Mr. Bright and all the poor people who will be so glad, as he says, to hear that you have come back?"

"Really and truly, on my honor," he said, with a faint smile.

She laughed up at him slyly. Then a puzzled look came into her eyes.

"Why did you—what made you change your mind so suddenly?" she asked, with a child's frank and innocent curiosity.

He shook his head, and smiled at her grimly.

"Upon my word, I don't know," he said. "Let us say that a whisper from my good angel reached my ear. There ture was shrouded gave the place a ghostly appearance.

Decima stood in the center of the room and gazed about her, and Gaunt stood near her, and looked not at the room, but at her. Suddenly she shivered slightly. He went to one of the windows, and with a hasty, almost angry, gesture tore aside the long heavy curtains which screened it. Instantly a flood of sunlight poured into the room, lighting up the gold of the decorations and picture-frames, and falling in a golden torrent over Decima.

Gaunt turned and saw—not the suddenly brightened room, but the girl's face and form glorified by the sunlight. He started slightly, and something—he knew not what—sent the blood rushing to his face. It resumed its ordinary pallor almost instantly, and he was grave and self-possessed, as usual, as Decima turned to him with a smile.

"That is what I want—the sunlight!" she said, nodding brightly. "Only the sunlight."

"And human voices and faces," said Mr. Bright, nodding also. "I'm sorry you should find the place shut, my lord, but—"

Gaunt made a gesture of repudiation.

"All my fault, Bright," he said. "But I shall have the sunlight and the rest. Will you come up to the picture-gallery, Miss Deane?"

He led the way up the broad stairs, and they reached the long corridor which ran round the hall. It was lined, crammed, with pictures, forming a collection which Bobby had rightly described as priceless. One of the Gaunts had taken the "picture mania," and the Leafmore gallery was the result. It is not by any means the worst form of madness.

"We've taken care of the pictures, at any rate," said Mr. Bright. "I have to thank Mr. Deane for some hints in regard to their preservation. It was at his suggestion that these—he nodded at several—"were glassed in."

"I am very grateful," said Gaunt, quietly. "I hope your kindly interest won't cease, Deane."

Bobby flushed with pleasure at the words, the tone, and, most of all, at the friendly "Deane."

"Oh, it was like my cheek," he said; "and I expect you know more about them than I do."

"No," said Gaunt. "I like them, but I'm afraid I've been indifferent." His eyes followed Decima as she moved along the long line. "Are you fond of art, Miss Deane?" he asked, going up to her.

"Oh, yes; who is not?" said Decima. "I love pictures. But I don't know very much about them, though Aunt Pauline had me taught to draw and paint, and I have read Cunningham and Rukin. Aunt Pauline has a small collection at Walfield—that is her house in the country—and I went to the National Gallery. I know some of these pictures, because I have read of them. How proud you must be of them!"

"Yes; I suppose I ought to be," he said. "I wonder whether you will come with your brother and see them—often, whenever you care to do so, I mean?" he added.

"I shall be very glad," said Decima, frankly, "and I am sure Bobby will."

"There ought to be a catalogue," he said. "I don't know where it is. We will find it. I shall have my hands full, I can see," he went on, with a smile, half listless, half amused. "There are a good deal to do. These are the tenants and the people on the estate; they will want looking after. Mr. Bright has—I can see it in his eyes—all sorts of schemes and plans for new schools and cottages and village hospitals." He paused a moment. "If wonder—"

He stopped again. "Miss Deane, does it occur to you that you ought to bear some of the responsibility?"

"I?" said Decima, with open-eyed surprise.

"Yes," he said, gravely, but with a touch of banter in his eyes. "It was your censure of the absent and heartless owner which led me to decide on staying here. You ought to bear some of the burden which will fall upon me in consequence. That's only fair."

The color rose to Decima's face. "How can I? I could not help you," she said.

"Indeed, but you can," he said. "I shall want no end of advice upon all the benevolent schemes Mr. Bright is hatching. I know nothing of the people's wants."

"And I?"

"Being a woman, will know all—by a woman's instinct," he said. "I count upon you, Miss Deane. In fact, I shall consider that I am entitled to come to you for advice and assistance—and protection—the moment Mr. Bright begins his assault. Shall I count in vain?"

Sinn Fein so Regards Speech of Lloyd George--Many Miners Against British Strike--Serbian Regent's Train Bombed--General Wrangel Begins New Offensive--King George Sends Thanks to Dominions.

MINERS AGAINST A STRIKE.

LONDON, Oct. 12. Though very few results of the miners ballot have yet been disclosed, it is quite probable a larger adverse vote to accepting the last Government proposal will appear on Thursday. Nevertheless opinion in many coal fields reveals a feeling against a strike. There is hope that the strike notice which expires on Saturday, will be further suspended and negotiations continued.

QUEENSLAND'S ELECTION RESULTS.

LONDON, Oct. 12. The Melbourne correspondent of the Times cables that in the Queensland State elections which took place Saturday, thirty-nine Ministerialists have been returned as against thirty-three Opposition, which will give the Government a good working majority. The Labor party's support goes to the Government. The Times correspondent cables, however, that the closeness of polls with reduced labor majorities will probably have a sobering effect on Premier Theodore's policy, which lately caused British capitalists to refuse to lend the Government money to develop a State steel plant.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF ALEXANDER OF SERBIA.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 12. An attempt was made to assassinate Prince Regent Alexander of Serbia, according to the Montenegrin Press Bureau to-day. The Bureau adds, the bomb was thrown under the train in which the Prince was returning from Sarajevo. Two coaches were wrecked, but the Prince was unhurt. An inquiry into the accident brought no results. The Mayor and Municipal Council of Sarajevo have resigned.

WRANGEL LAUNCHES NEW OFFENSIVE.

SEBASTOPOL, Oct. 12. General Wrangel, anti-Bolshevik leader, has launched his expected offensive against the new sixth army of the Soviet forces sheltered behind the Dnieper. General Wrangel is carrying out a pinching movement converging on the town of Kakhovka, northeast of Kherson. Fine weather is favouring the operations. General Wrangel's permanent north front extends from Mariupol to Ekaterinograd along the railway. His control of the sea of Azov has been assured by the capture of six thousand sailors at Mariupol, who were preparing to desert. The remainder of the fleet fled to Taganrog. Wrangel has now defeated the Soviet forces, which have been operating along the network of railways in the Donetz basin.

AMERICAN POLITICS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. The statement of Senator Harding, Republican Presidential candidate, that if elected he would not take official cognizance of conditions in Ireland, is responsible for "renewal of the war of extermination now being waged under orders of Lloyd George." W. Bourke Cockran, of New York, declared in a telegram from Cleveland received at the Democratic National headquarters here to-day.

THE KING SENDS THANKS.

LONDON, Oct. 12. The King has sent a telegram to the Governors of the Dominions and States visited by the Prince of Wales on the recent Australian tour, expressing appreciation of the universal and loyal enthusiasm evinced here towards the Prince. The King says, "This and the previous tour has given him special opportunities to gain knowledge of our overseas Dominions and to become personally acquainted with their peoples. May such interviews create fresh ties of confidence and devotion between the throne and the generations present and future of these great lands thus promote the unity, strength and prosperity of the empire."

SINN FEIN VIEW OF LLOYD GEORGE SPEECH.

LONDON, Oct. 12. Leaders of Sinn Fein say with regard to the speech made by Lloyd George on Saturday, "At most it is a declaration of war on Ireland." The Premier virtually condoned the acts of reprisals against the persons who attacked the police force in Ireland. "There are many signs," says the Dublin correspondent of the London Times, "that the Executive Department of that city intends, to bring matters to a head as quickly as possible by consent to a campaign against disorder, which by inflicting general hardships on the country, may make for crime and lawlessness."

MILITARY LORRY ATTACKED; DRIVER KILLED.

CORK, Oct. 12. An attack on a military lorry in Mallow District yesterday resulted in the death of the driver and the wounding of three soldiers. Soldiers who arrived to the scene and the attacking party which numbered one hundred and fifty armed with machine guns and bombs, engaged in a fight. The scene of the ambush was near the town Kanturk, the residents of which fled into the country fearing reprisals.

MAN-O-WAR WINS.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 12. Man-o-War, owned by Samuel Riddle, of Philadelphia, and ridden by Jockey Clarence Krumer, this afternoon won the Kenelworth Racing Association five thousand Gold Cup and purse of seventy-five thousand dollars, (American money), when he defeated Sir Barton, owned by J. K. L. Ross, of Montreal, and ridden by Jockey Keogh. Man-o-War won by seven lengths.

CLEVELAND WINS PENNANT.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12. The Cleveland American League Club won the supreme baseball title here this afternoon when the Indians defeated the Brooklyn Nationals in the seventh and deciding game of the world's series by a score of three to nil. To-night Cleveland is celebrating in a manner in keeping with the honor. The shut out victory was chiefly engineered by Stanley Coveleskie, Spitalball pitcher of the local team, who has proved his skill and endurance during the series.

NUCLEUS OF CANADIAN NAVY.

OTTAWA, Oct. 12. "I am much pleased with the vessels which the British government has given to Canada and consider that they should prove an efficient nucleus for the Canadian Navy," said Capt. Hose, acting director of Naval Service, to the Canadian Press. Captain Hose said the cruiser Aurora and the two destroyers Patrol and Patrician, all oilburners, gave a very satisfactory account of themselves in the war. The majority of their officers will be Canadians who served in the war.

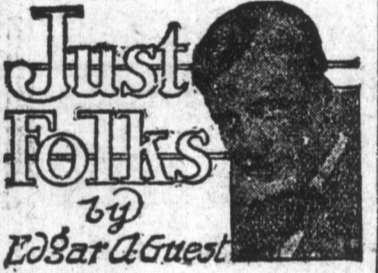

WHY MACSWEENEY LIVES.

LONDON, Oct. 12. The Evening News to-day says it "understands" that Mayor MacSweeney's "remarkable condition" is due to his partaking of Grape Juice and juices of other fruits and frequently of spirits and wine. Prison doctors say MacSweeney may live for another month.

THE RULES OF LIFE.

The rules of life are simple, and the code is writ for all. And as we break or keep it, each one shall rise or fall; We may go far for pleasure, we may do much for fame, But he who bars his honor shall wear the badge of shame. Each one is free to labor wherever he may choose. But he must labor fairly, though he may win or lose; And rich or poor no matter, the judgment is the same, Who sells the truth for profit shall wear the stamp of shame. A pledge must not be broken, the tongue must tell no lie. With honest strength and courage as a man his joys must buy; No blow must pass unfairly, no trick must mar the game, For he who steals advantage shall pay the price of shame. We may do much in honor, grow skillful, rich or great, Or reach the highest office commanded by the state; In honor we may venture for all we wish to claim, But who plays false for conquest shall wear the badge of shame.

Mainly About People.

Sanchez Mejias, who will leave Madrid to give six bull fights in Mexico, will receive 6,000 Spanish duros ($5,700) for each fight. Ernesto Pastor, also noted in the same line $9,500 for each appearance in the enclosure. These are the largest salaries ever paid a bull fighter.

Petro Rosegger, who is Austria's most noted fiction writer of these days, was born in the forest of Apel, where his father and mother were charcoal burners. His mother was a woman of talent, nevertheless. At 17 he was a tailor's apprentice, and he worked in 60 families to thoroughly learn the life of a peasant.

Colonel William A. McIntyre, new head of the Salvation Army in New England, is father of the Misses Irene and Gladys McIntyre, famous "dug-out girls" of the American Expeditionary Forces, who were so popular during the war. Miss Irene will be private secretary to her father. Gladys is now Mrs. McIntyre Harmon.

Henry Ford is among the most remarkable mechanics and commercial business men of all times. He has coal mines, a railroad, blast furnaces and countless other units. "This paper," says the introductory article, "is of for and by those who serve the Hudson's Bay Company." It is well written, well printed, profusely illustrated and of a convenient size for carrying in the pocket. Wake Up! Commissioners.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—I would like to say a few words in connection with the South Side Road, east of Long Bridge. This part of the road is in a disgraceful condition and needs a little attention, as it is hardly fit for cattle to walk over, not talking of human beings. Some kind friend was over there clearing the drain and after taking the rubbish up placed it along the supposed-to-be sidewalk in heaps. If this is the Municipal Council's idea of clearing the roads they ought to do it once more and then give it up. If there were a few lights in this section so that people could see where they would be walking it would not be so bad, but sorry to say that all that is there is a few gas lights, and they are never lighted, and when they are you would really want another light to look for them. It is now about time for the Municipal Council to wake up and do something in the way of putting a half decent sidewalk along the roadside in this part of the city in order that the people could go back and forth to their residences without being covered with mud from head to foot.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain,
Respectfully yours,
SOUTH SIDER.

"Iolanthe."

Gilbert and Sullivan's Opera to be Repeated Next Week.

By request Gilbert and Sullivan's masterpiece "Iolanthe," under the direction of Professor Moncrief Mawer, will be repeated next week at the Casino Theatre for four nights, viz: Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, 19th, 20th, 21st and 22nd Oct. Many who witnessed the production when it was given in June last were unanimous in their praise of the performance, and it is safe to assert that those who were not privileged to attend the production when last given will avail themselves of the opportunity of doing so next week. The personnel of the cast and chorus will be practically the same with the exception of the parts of "Iolanthe" and the three principal fairies. Much has been written and said about this charming opera; its humorous dialogue, pretty solos, duets, etc., also the magnificent choral work, that it must really be heard to be appreciated. It has been decided to devote part of the proceeds of next week's performances in aid of the city orphanages. Particulars as to booking, etc., will be published in the press at an early date.

To-Day's Messages.

AN UNPOPULAR PEACE.

RIGA, Oct. 12.

A preliminary peace treaty and armistice was signed by Polish and Russian Soviet delegates here to-night and the armistice actually becomes effective at midnight to-night. M. Joffe, head of the Soviet delegation, described the Riga peace "as a peace without victory and without vanquished," in a brief address before the signing of the treaty. That describes the Riga agreement accurately, as it appeared to disinterested on-lookers. It was a peace of give and take, which those, who have followed the course of events, fear will not be very popular either with Bolsheviks or Poles.

CARPENTIER WORLD'S CHAMPION JERSEY CITY, N.J., Oct. 12.

Great Stock Raising Plan

OF HON. DR. CAMPBELL, MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE.

Hon. Dr. Campbell, Minister of Agriculture and Mines, arrived by the Sablem this morning after an extensive vacation in Canada where he has been incidentally purchasing prize stock for the new Model Farm, some four carloads of which arrived here a while ago. Dr. Campbell attended exhibitions and fairs in Charlottetown, Toronto, Guelph and in Quebec, where he purchased four carloads of pure-bred stock for the new farm, including cows, horses, poultry and pigs, and a carload of thoroughbred Cotswolds and Dorset-horned sheep. The latter breed twice a year, and are not afraid of dogs. Among the pigs are prize-winning Yorkshires, Berkshires and Tamworths. One Jersey bull was purchased from Ball & Sons, of Brampton, famous breeders of Jerseys. From Gordon Gooram, Ont., 10 registered cows and one registered Holstein bull were purchased. In Quebec Dr. Campbell purchased five Ayrshire cows and one bull from Ness & Co., amongst the number being a first prize 2-year-old winner at the Toronto Exhibition, and the 5th and 7th prize milch cows. A second and third prize, Pol Angus bulls, were purchased from Larkin Farm. These are beef animals. Three cows and 1 bull of milking Shorthorn breed were bought from Grove Farm, Ontario; two calves to these have been born since arrival here. In horse flesh the Minister has selected standard bred "Bert Axworthy," 1200 lbs., with a trotting record of 2:34. A pure bred stallion, Dapple Bay, weighing about 1700 lbs., and a pair of 1st prize Percheron farm horses were also amongst the lot. It is Dr. Campbell's intention to follow the stock farm methods of the Dominion of Canada, and when he has sufficient young stock, will establish other centres around the Island. All the animals will be kept as the property of the department.

THE STORY OF NEWFOUNDLAND

By the Right Hon. the LORD BIRKENHEAD (Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain)

This popular and brilliant history of the Dominion has recently been rewritten and brought up-to-date by Lord Birkenhead, at the request of many friends in Newfoundland and elsewhere.

The Canadian Gazette: It is a fascinating tale that Lord Birkenhead unfolds.

The Daily Telegraph: A model of what such a book should be . . . invaluable to students of colonial history, and has also enough vivacity to attract the general reader as well. Its success in its new form is assured.

Canada: Probably the most handy reference book on the Dominion.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

LETTING THE GUEST ALONE.

RUTH CAMERON

A letter friend wants me to recommend to the host who really wants to please his guests consider the let-alone policy.

"There is nothing I hate more," says this woman, who has evidently had much experience in visiting, "than going to a place where they have a very planned, where I've got to see everything that is to be seen and do everything that is to be done, in the name of pleasure, whether I feel like it or not."

"There is one place I sometimes go for week-ends," she went on, "where the table is covered with all the magazines I'd like best to read, and the shelves are full of interesting new books, and there are wonderful music records and a lovely porch and garden—and I think what a wonderful time I could have if I could only just wander about and amuse myself and rest. But they are so bent on amusing me that when I go I hardly more than glanced at a magazine, and as for rest—well, you know the way you feel after that sort of a visit."

We Try Too Hard.

I think we all know. And we all wonder why people do it, and then most of us go and do something a little like it ourselves, when we have guests to whom we want to do special honor.

We want them to see all the points of interest in the home town, and we want to give them any social pleasures within our reach—and all the time what they might like best would be to visit and to rest.

We had some guests arrive not long ago on a showery afternoon. We sat and chatted about all the things that had happened to the four of us in the months since we had met, while the thunder thundered and the rain rained. "Isn't it a shame!" I said when a promised hearing failed to materialize. "Here we have gotten you down here in the country and you can't get outside the house."

"I liked to see His Host and Hostess."

"Shame nothing!" said the masculine half of our company. "If it hadn't rained we would probably have been chasing off seeing the countryside, and here we are sitting and resting and having a grand old chin. I like being able to see the old people I visit for a change, instead of the country they live in."

There isn't anything original about that, and yet it is a point of view we seem often to miss—that one's guests, especially if they are real friends, may come to see oneself as well as to cram in as many pleasures and sports and motor trips as possible.

Let Your Guests Choose.

It seems to me that the best way to entertain is not to make too many plans beforehand—just wait until your guests come, see what mood they are in, let them know what pleasures you have to offer, and then let them naturally gravitate toward what appeals to them.

Of course to let a guest have what he wants, you must first have the kind of guest that is willing to indicate his feelings to a reasonable degree. But I am taking it for granted that the imbecile variety of guest who steadfastly refuses to make any choice, is going out of style.

"Daily Mail" Paper.

TORRENT OF SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR NEWFOUNDLAND ISSUE.

Although the definite total of subscriptions for the £200,000 8 per cent. guaranteed fifteen-year second mortgage debentures of the Daily Mail and Daily Mirror paper mills at Grand Falls, Newfoundland, cannot yet now be given, owing to the immense work entailed, it is clear that our estimate of £5,000,000 will probably be exceeded.

"Our estimate is that the applications by the public will cover the amount available for allotment fully ten times over," said an official of Lloyd's Bank recently.

The special staff of the issuing house, the British, Foreign, and Colonial Corporation, Ltd., 57, Bishopsgate, E.C. 2, worked all night checking the applications, and the staff at Lloyd's Bank, 72, Lombard-street, E.C. 2, did the same until nearly midnight. The listing of the name and amount went on all day yesterday, but about a third remained to be done when business closed. All concerned said they had never had to face so colossal a response to a public issue. If the work can be completed in time, allotment will be posted on Tuesday.

"Such a result," said a City man, "is a real antidote to the prevailing depression." Orders have already reached London brokers to buy debentures directly they are dealt in.—Daily Mail.

CLIMATE.

For balmy airs I've always wished, and now I have my heart's desire; the finest climate ever dished surrounds me as I crank my lyre. The summer brings no sizzling heat, but from the sea cool breezes blow; the winter has no snow or sleet to fill rheumatic legs with woe. But when I lay me down to sleep I dream of Kansas every night; of Kansas, where wild billiards sweep, and summer heat is just a fright. Some day, no doubt, I will depart for Eden, where all things are fine, where scalding teardrops never start, and grief and woe take in their sign. There with the saints I hope to roam along the crystal river's shore, exulting in that final home where sorrow soaks us nevermore. But still my thoughts will wander thence at times, when choruses are stilled; I'll lean against the Jasper fence, and with strange longings I'll be filled. Strange longings for the old elm trees beneath whose boughs I used to stray; strange longings for the Kansas breeze, that blew our county seat away. New glories rise at every turn, yet my old heart must ever yearn for those dear scenes I left behind.

Household Notes.

Narrow loaf pans insure thorough baking.

The red-hot stove is a needless waste of fuel.

A well-ventilated house is the easiest to heat.

Oysters and mushrooms are excellent together.

Do not allow silver to stand unwashed overnight.

A yeast cake will keep quite fresh a while if buried in salt.

If soap is allowed time to harden it will last twice as long.

To fry fish properly, they should be put into boiling hot fat.

Fine blankets and shawls are best dried on curtain stretchers.

Have all the bottles in the medicine chest carefully marked.

Serve cream cheese in small balls and place alongside the salad.

A rice pudding, baked with honey, is delicious served with dates.

Chicken fat is excellent for cake baking and shortening generally.

Young carrot tops may be used for a garnish, if everything else fails.

When making vegetable salad, be sure that the foods are crisp and cold.

Left-over syrup from pickled peaches is excellent for pickling whole figs.

Pickled nasturtium seeds are an excellent substitute for capers in sauces, etc.

Porcelain may be cleaned by rubbing the stains with crushed paper and kerosene.

A thin hair pillow is best for the baby, as feather pillows make the head perspire.

Left-over, unsweetened suet pudding is delicious toasted and served with molasses.

Never leave milk standing in a tin can, but empty at once into a crockery vessel.

The button variety of mushroom is best for pickling. They should be freshly gathered.

Fill cream puffs just before serving. Fill with preserves, whipped cream or custard.

For variety's sake flavor baked custards with one-fourth teaspoon of powdered cinnamon.

If tired of plain mayonnaise dressing, try adding chopped celery or a chopped pimento.

A non-poisonous fly paper is made by painting oiled paper with equal parts of molasses and varnish.

Save pound tin cans which have held baking powder and use them to steam brown bread and puddings.

If you prick your finger when doing fine needlework and cause a stain, remove it with a little ammonia.

To test pastry flour, hold firmly in your hand, and if the flour retains the imprint of your fingers it is good.

Save The Babies.

How much is the life of one baby worth? That is the question which citizens of St. John's, both male and female will be asked to-night at the great mass meeting on behalf of Child Welfare to be held in the Methodist College Hall, under the chairmanship of His Excellency the Governor. The main purpose of this meeting was outlined in the preliminary notices published in yesterday's newspapers. It is a fair and square discussion of business matters in connection with the taking over of Waterford Hall, by the Women's Patriotic Association, to be converted into and run as a Children's Hospital. When considering such, any discussion that ensues, and it is hoped that opinions will be frankly, broadly and generally expressed, will have to be based upon the value of such an institution, as a place where the safety of the young child may be conserved, and its physical and mental development fostered, that is during the period it remains under the care of professional nurses trained in this particular branch of child nurture and welfare, as also of the application of the science of orthopedics to such infants as may need treatment in this direction. Infant mortality as furnished by statistics, is very often staggering, and though emphasis has been repeatedly laid upon the desirability of prevention and the diminution of deaths in children under one year, no great concerted effort has been made by the community to assist in the necessary reduction of fatalities. In making this statement, we are not unmindful of the very valuable work performed by the community nurses, but this unhappily was not extensive in its scope, or at least not so extensive as it should have been, had popular support rallied to it.

The care of the infant is fast engaging the attention of professional men and women, who by their advocacy of this most important subject, has aroused the sympathy and aid of thousands of others, and to such good purpose that "Save the Babies" has become at once a slogan and a rallying cry. Let us ask each father and mother, not alone in St. John's, but all over the dominion, how much money would you take for your baby? What answer is there to that question? Why are we positive that every father and mother, no matter what their rank or station in life, would instantly reply, There is not enough money in the world to purchase my baby. Well, then, were your baby ill of some dreadful disease what considerations would you allow to weigh into the scale against the chance of saving its young life, committed to your care? Are there any whatever that would weigh for a single instant? We hear you say again, NOT ONE! Money cannot count against the life of a baby. Children are jewels beyond price. No sum could buy a baby from the most poverty-afflicted mother in Newfoundland. Its weight in fine gold could not purchase an infant from its parent. Their little lives, their health, their training, their development, are in the parental care, but yet there are times when the most devoted mother finds herself unable to diagnose their ailments or administer relief. Professional services are required, but in many instances are solicited too late. This is where a Children's Hospital comes in, a hospital with a highly trained staff of competent, capable and comprehending nurses, who have been specially educated to minister to the ills of the child. That is what St. John's needs to-day. To-night the opinion of everybody will be sought, and arguments and objections heard, but should the meeting decide that St. John's can and will undertake to equip and maintain a Children's Hospital, more good will have been accomplished for the sake of the babies than anything that was ever previously undertaken.

Notes and Comments.

$5 offered for Labrador Fish. No wonder fishermen are storing it rather than sell at such a price.

The cost of running the Office of the Board of Pension Commissioners is set in the Estimates at $19,106. There are thirteen officials, with salaries ranging from $4,000 down to $465.

Here are their titles: Chairman of Board; Commissioner, Secretary and Medical Advisor (3 jobs in one); Assistant Secretary; First, Second, Third and Fourth Accountant; Filing Clerk; Assistant Filing Clerk and Messenger; Senior Stenographer and Typist; First and Second Junior Stenographers and Typists. Not bad is it?

Election Day is just 20 days off in the United States, and, according to custom, both sides are heading straight ahead for victory.

A year in prison awaits apartment landlords who fail to give their tenants heat of 68 degrees from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., when the temperature outside is 50 degrees or lower, the New York Health Commissioner announced recently.

He lit a cigarette in the choir. When the sexton, Michael Maghour, remarked as he ran
To bounce the young man,
Wherever there's smoke there's fire.

The following advertisement appeared in the "Help Wanted" column of a newspaper at Providence, R.I.—"Housemaid, with good appetite, food mostly rich fruit, steaks and chicken; perfumed bath and all toilet articles provided; every night off; limousine and amusement tickets provided; wages $35 weekly."

A recent despatch from New York advises that a new low record was made in the sugar market last week, when the Federal Sugar Refining Co. reduced the price of refined sugar one cent per pound, thus bringing it down to eleven cents. And yet Newfoundlanders are compelled to pay nearly three times that sum, because of the unwise heavy purchases of our local Sugar Commissioners.

The new baby had proved itself the possessor of extraordinary lung power. One day the baby's brother, little Johnny, said to his mother:

"Ma, baby came from Heaven, didn't he?"
"Yes, dear," answered the mother. Johnny was silent for a minute, and then he went on: "I say, ma!"
"What is it, Johnny?"
"I don't blame the angels for slinging him out, do you?"

After the glory of the setting sun it was dark. The man felt afraid as he stumbled on after his companion, who, womanlike went straight ahead regardless of all obstacles.

Angry murmurs from the unseen people whose toes they trampled on followed them like the wash of a steamer. But she paid no heed; to him fell the duty of muttering apologies.

Just as despair was seizing him he saw her straight ahead. She had obtained a seat. And investigation showed that the one next to hers was empty. Into it he sank thankfully. The picture was one of love and bravery, with the usual fair heroine and handsome hero and beetle-browed villain. As they watched he slipped an arm around her slender waist and drew her to him.

She struggled for a moment, much to his surprise. Then she yielded and he felt her nestle close to his manly chest.

Five minutes later the picture ended and the lights went up. Then he understood—he was embracing the wrong girl.

Sagona Arrives From Labrador.

The S.S. Sagona arrived from Labrador ports at 3.30 yesterday afternoon, via Conception Bay ports. The steamer brought along about two-thirds freight and some 300 passengers mostly all of whom were landed at ports of call in Conception Bay. The weather along the Labrador for the last two weeks has been fairly favorable and a good deal of fish has been made ready for market and shipped off the coast. Only a few of the "boats" are now on the coast and most of the crews have left for home. Fishing is practically over, though cod is still fairly plentiful and those remaining behind until the return of the Seal and Sagona will likely keep at fishing for another week or so.

Commotion in Factory.

Foreman Chastises Refractory Boy. Yesterday evening about dusk quite a commotion was created in an uptown factory. The cause of the trouble was that a boy who was monkeying around the machinery being reprimanded by the foreman gave him sance with the consequence that the former used his boot on the impudent youngster and chased him to the street where catching him again he was taken by the ear and brought back to his work. The trouble did not end there however, as a carman, who had witnessed the proceedings, took umbrage and started in to put the factory management in order. The police then came on the scene and their presence ended the disturbances.

C. C. C. Boat Club.

To Have Big Sports Event. Last night in the T. A. Armoury the C.C.C. Boat Club held a meeting at which much business of an important nature was discussed. It was decided that the Club would hold their big sports night in the Princes Rink on November 22nd next. The various athletic events will be as follows:—1-4 mile, 1-2 mile, 1 mile, 2 miles, 3 miles, high jump, for colleges, schools and general public; also a ten mile marathon race for the championship of the Dominion. This will be an open event and athletes from any part of the country can compete. The colleges and different schools are already taking great interest in the matter. His Excellency the Governor and other prominent men in our sporting community are taking a great interest in the sports, especially in the college items and it is proposed by the Boat Club to make this an annual affair. Already the Committee in charge are making great preparations and the medals, cups, etc., have been ordered and will be on exhibition in the city on or about the 10th, of November. They are very pretty prizes and will be well worth winning. The full programme will be published next week so that all competitors will be in a position to start practice. The Boat Club has been noted for their interest in everything appertaining to sport and this move on their part will no doubt receive the support of the public.

Jewish Wedding.

At Smithville, on Sunday next, at 7.30 o'clock p.m., there will be solemnized with full Jewish Ritual, the wedding of Miss Mae Frehlich to Mr. Phillip Wylan, of Wylan Brothers, Water Street. The bride-to-be is but recently from London, England, which city was her birthplace, and is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isador Frehlich, niece of Mr. S. Frehlich, proprietor of the Semi-Ready Clothing Co., and of Mr. Joseph Frehlich, with whom she has resided since coming to Newfoundland.

The ceremony will be performed by a specially deputised rabbi, in the absence of Rev. Jacobsen, who for some time ministered to the spiritual needs of the Jewish Community in St. John's.

Invitations have been issued to many relatives and friends and a large gathering will attend the reception which will be held at Smithville immediately following the ceremony.

Columbus Day Celebrated.

Yesterday was Columbus Day and in the city the local branch of the Knights of Columbus fittingly celebrated the day. In the morning the Society attended 8.30 Mass and Communion at the R.C. Cathedral, when quite a number of members were present. Last night the members and their lady friends held a dance in their rooms, Columbus Hall, which was a big success. Refreshments were served during the evening and the music was supplied by Mr. N. J. Murphy's orchestra.

Mystery Cleared Up.

Missing Man Returns For Team. Yesterday evening Inspector General Hutchings dispatched Constable King, to the home of Mr. Skeans at Windsor Lake to bring in the pony and trap left there Friday last by a man for whose whereabouts Skeans could not account. However, when the Constable arrived he found there was no cause for anxiety as the missing one had called for his pony and cart on Saturday evening. It seems that the man who gave his name as O'Kelly lost his way in the woods and finally managed to reach Portugal Cove, from whence he came back, got his trap and drove to town and was evidently unaware of the "noise" that was being kicked up.

Business Dull.

Business along Water Street yesterday was exceptionally dull for this season. A number of fishermen who are unable to dispose of their catches could be seen going back and forth with 'flaties' of cod under their arm, hoping to find purchasers.

Laid to Rest.

The funeral of the late John L. Slatery took place from his home, Prescott Street, yesterday afternoon. A large concourse of people representative of church and state, attended. At the Cathedral prayers for the dead were recited by Rev. Fr. Leamy, the Dead March in Saul being rendered by the organist, Professor Hutten. Interment took place at Belvedere.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL.

You are reminded of the meeting to be held in the Methodist College Hall on Wednesday, Oct. 13th, at 8.30 p.m., for the purpose of discussing the establishing of a Children's Hospital at Waterford Hall.—oct13,20

Collection for Refugee Orphans.

Rev. Mother Mary Gebars, who has been sent out from Beirut, Syria, to solicit aid for 6000 orphan children who have been rescued from the Turks, left for Bell Island this morning to appeal to the Syrian community and the charitable disposed at that place. Sister Gebars, who has credentials from the R.C. Bishop, the Bishop of the Greek Church and the American Consul at Beirut, has already presented herself to His Grace the Archbishop and His Excellency the Governor, and visited a number of our prominent business men, all of whom have contributed towards the Relief Fund.

Labrador Fish Unsold.

There are four cargoes of genuine Labrador fish in the stream for the past week, and up to last night the owners could get no offer for any of it. The merchants are not buying as the restrictions on exports are such that they don't care to take the risk.

Flourishing Grocery Business.

One of the most flourishing grocery businesses in the city is that carried on by Messrs. Ryan and Mokeler. These young men, who recently entered into partnership, have now three stores in operation, one at Holdsworth the other on Pleasant, and the third, which was opened Saturday night on John Street. Messrs. Ryan and Mokeler are keen business men and that they are expanding their business shows that they have the necessary acumen for success. With a large output they are in a position to make favorable purchases in the market, which usually does not come to the smaller dealer, and naturally their patrons receive the benefits of their buying.

Brief Sketches.

THE LIVES OF GREAT MUSICIANS.
at Enrico Caruso, the world's tenor, met with the usual arrangement which is the essence of the average young singer recorded in the following sketch of his early career: Caruso was born in Naples in 1874. His father was a mechanic, the tenor himself worked for some years at his father's trade for the equivalent of about forty cents a day, and he is said to have been an industrious apprentice.

"Until I was eighteen," Caruso once related, "I was in doubt as to whether I had a tenor or a baritone voice. I started to sing in Italian churches when I was ten years old. At eighteen I began taking lessons, but I left my first teacher because he could not tell me anything about the quality of my voice. Another teacher found that my voice was too thin, so thin, in fact, that my classmates called it a glass voice perhaps because it broke too easily. While I was doing my first military service at Miel, I used to sing when shining my uniform buttons. Major Mogliati heard me, and he made me spend my leisure hours for many months with a teacher he kindly procured for me. My first teacher predicted a brilliant future for me. "You will earn two and three hundred francs a month," he said, "when you have grown a little."

Verdi had less confidence in Caruso's future, it seems. Of their meeting Caruso says: "When I created 'Fedora' in Milan, Verdi asked the name of the artists participating, and when he heard mine, he interrupted with, 'Ah Caruso? They tell me he has a fine voice, but it seems to me that his head is not in its place.'"
It is characteristic of Caruso that he should enjoy telling this joke on himself, for Caruso is a genuine humorist. This sense of humor finds lavish expression in his remarkable gift for caricature. On this art he prides himself, almost as much as he does on his wonderful voice. He has sketched a whole album full of his favorite operatic colleagues and other notables. This collection has found its way into print already, and has been accorded a wide circulation.

An Extinct Monster.

The Curators of the Launceston and Tasmanian Museums have presented to the Royal Society of Tasmania the preliminary account of a nearly complete skeleton of a gigantic extinct monster, recently discovered in the Pleistocene beds of Tasmania. The animal was as large as the largest existing rhinoceros. The new discovery shows clearly that it was a rhinoceros-like animal, with a skull built for aggressive warfare, and at least one powerful horn on the snout. Evidence of the gigantic battles in which this animal engaged is to be found in the complete smashing and partial mending of the collar-bone, and in the crushing and subsequent repair of the bones of the nose and snout.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.

WM. WEIGEL, of Seattle, who says he had no idea anything on earth could do for him what Tanlac has done. Declares he has gained 80 pounds and that his health has been completely restored.

"I had no idea that anything on earth could do for me what Tanlac has done, and I just feel like telling everybody I see about this wonderful medicine," said Wm. Weigel, 2692 Third Ave., Seattle, Wash., with the widely-known New Washington Hotel.

"When I began taking Tanlac," continued Mr. Weigel, "my condition was so rundown that I could not work. I was never hungry, and my stomach was so disordered that the little I forced myself to eat disagreed with me. My kidneys bothered me, and the pains across my back were so severe that when I tried to bend over and straighten up again it would nearly kill me. I had splitting headaches and such dizzy spells at times I would almost topple over. Then to make matters worse, I began to suffer with rheumatism in my legs. I was nervous, weak and listless, was gradually losing weight and strength and seemed to be going down hill every day."

"I began to improve after the first few doses of Tanlac. I seemed to feel better each day as I continued the treatment. In a few weeks I was like a brand-new man. Now, I have a good appetite, eat anything I want, enjoy every mouthful and I don't suffer the least afterwards. I sleep like a child every night and feel just fine on rising in the morning. I haven't a pain about me, my strength has so wonderfully increased and I have nearly gained thirty pounds."

"If anybody doubts this statement, then tell them to see me and I will give them the names of some of my friends who will verify every word I have said."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Paradise, by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne, in Upper Gullies by Heber Andrews, in Portland by H. C. Haines, in St. Joseph, Salmonier, by Mrs. J. Gushie, in Milltown by Exploits Valley Royal Stores, Ltd., in Flat Island by William Samson, in Jamestown by Christopher Haines, and in Lewisporte by Uriah Freake.—adv.

On the walls of Admiral Benson's office at the Shipping Board there hangs framed this inspiring bit of old English taken from a British pamphlet dated 1681: "As concerning ships, it is that which every one knoweth and can say they are our weapons. They are our ornaments. They are our strength. They are our pleasures. They are our defence. They are our profit. The subject through them is made rich, the kingdom through them strong. The prince in them is mighty. In a word, by them, in a manner, we live, the kingdom is, the king reigneth."

Casual Impressions of St. John's, Nfld.

(Visitor in "The Wesleyan.")

The impressions that follow are written down in the order of their suggestion. The first glimpse of the city of St. John's, coming from the sea, is the immense Roman Catholic Cathedral. It seems to fill the entire background beyond the cliffs that frame the narrow entrance, only a couple of hundreds yards wide, between ranges as high as at the familiar Digby Gut. A novice entering the harbor would be tempted to steer for the cross between its twin towers. It is interesting to learn later that the range lights for a true course are the one on the King's Wharf and the other in the tower of Queen's Road Congregational Church, which things might be interpreted as a parable.

The traffic of this busy city has a character of its own, due to seemingly countless cabs (victorias), two wheel trucks with immense beam shafts, and many varieties of jaunty cars drawn by all the ponies that ever came from Sable Island and many fine English blood horses. Over King's Bridge and up the hill past Government House comes a continuous procession of these wagons loaded with dried fish, piled like corkwood, and so arriving from all distance to twenty miles. The juxtaposition of this line of traffic and the seat of authority is based in the foundations of this colony of Britain.

The foot of each street reaching water front is called a "Cove." At each the city maintains a shelter of corrugated iron and citizens may buy a fresh fish at from two to three cents a pound, which is fortunate where milk is 24 cents a quart and potatoes $8 a barrel, with N. S. apples, poor ones, at 36 cents a dozen, though these last prices will fall.

There is a spirit of its own in this city toward religious life and forms. All children seem to salute all clergy respectfully until one becomes embarrassed as a recent civilian officer in a city crowded with soldiers. In traffic stops for a funeral. The Sunday evening services at 6.30 seem to be wonderfully well attended. Churches are beautifully kept. At George Street Methodist every pew has a book shelf (not a rack) running the whole length of the pew, and the books are there stacked in rows that are in line from front to rear of the beautiful auditorium. It is an almost startling lesson in neatness. At Queen's Road Congregational there is on the end of every pew a rack with metal receiver beneath. This for muddy canes and dripping umbrellas. At all churches the Baptismal Font is in constant evidence and in the larger churches a service seldom passes without the baptism of some little child.

Perhaps this is a good place to say that we find here some book stores equal to any we have found anywhere in Eastern or Western Canada. The George Street Methodist Church, of which Rev. D. B. Hemmeon, B.A. is the able minister, has a new $17,000 parsonage adjoining Wesley Church three quarters of a mile away from George Street.

The growing unity of all churches is indicated by the fact that in Queen's Road Congregational Church (with a history going back to 1597 and a first pastorate in 1645, George Downing the first graduate of Harvard) onward, our Sunday school paper for Senior Scholars, is distributed every Sunday. There is a stir being made in the

Eats Candy but Loses Her Fat

Here's joyful news for every fleshy person who loves good things to eat, especially those who are denying themselves the things they like most because of their desire to keep down their weight or to reduce the fat with which they are already burdened.

There is no further necessity to diet in order to keep your weight down or reduce the fat you have already acquired.

The famous Marmola Prescription has been put up in tablet form, and is now sold by all druggists at one dollar for a good size box. To get rid of fat at the rate of two to three pounds a week, just take one of these little tablets after each meal and at bedtime until you have reduced your weight to where you want it. No wrinkles or flabbiness will remain. Use Marmola Prescription Tablets according to directions a few weeks and get results without going through long sieges of strenuous exercise and starvation diet. Get them at any drug store or send the price to the Marmola Co., 93 Garfield Building, Detroit, Mich., and receive them by mail, prepaid, in plain, sealed cover.

city over educational matters and a fine series of articles is appearing in the papers touching the findings of the Educational Commission. It is discovered that many children, from 5 to 15 years, are not attending school, and that the accommodation for those who should attend is not at all adequate. Progressive measures are being generally discussed by the citizens.

Wishing to inspect the halls of Parliament building, we fortunately fell into the genial hands of Dr. Burke, Deputy Minister of Education. He is a business like man with a pleasant brogue. He favors a public school system. He has a flavor of good literature about him, attended by a most entertaining colloquialism.

Years ago, when the House of Assembly was built the whole land was in the era of fire places. The seat of warmth for various reasons had to be on the Speaker's left. The leader of the first government chose the practical side rather than the traditional honor of Mr. Speaker's right. In all other British legislatures, and so it remains to-day. Of late years the opposition share a steam heat system on equal terms.

Western Notes.

Work on the new warehouse at the Reid Company terminal at Port aux Basques is proceeding apace, present labor being mostly at excavation work. The whole building when completed will be lit by electricity and steam heated. Some fifty men, belonging to the neighborhood are employed and judging by results accomplished it will take about six months to finish.

But little fishing is being done by Channel and Port aux Basques men, only one skiff and half a dozen smaller boats being engaged, where other years everything that could float was being utilized. The whole of the skiff fleet is moored, with sails unbenet and ballast out, something hitherto unknown. Though there is a good sign of fish and bait plentiful but few are prosecuting the voyage, as there are no present purchasers offering.

The tern schooner Faustina is taking fish at the wharf of Emanuel Pike, Ltd., for Europe. After loading all to be shipped by that firm, the vessel will sail for Ramea to fish.

Some of the smaller merchants at Channel have quantities of dry fish on hand, bought earlier in the season, for which they are unable to realise the price paid by them, consequently they anatomise the Fish Regulations which they claim are responsible for any loss they may incur.

Passengers to Port aux Basques from coastwise are unanimous in stating that a serious condition of affairs exists on the South Coast, and the outlook is exceedingly gloomy. Supplies for the winter fishery have been cut off, and no provision of any kind was being made for fitting out.

The sugar muddle has resulted in many places on the coast being short on stocks. Merchants are indifferent whether or not they carry any. They will not buy at St. John's, and on the other hand are prohibited from importing. Molasses too is so dear that many people will drink "raw tea," rather than pay the prices asked.

Standing by Our Contracts.

The President is taking an extraordinary step in refusing to be bound by certain provisions of the Merchant Marine Act which he signed on June 5th, but he finds a precedent for his course in the action of a Republican predecessor, Rutherford B. Hayes, who declined to obey a mandate from Congress to abrogate sections of a treaty made with China. He is well aware that his defiance of Congress will be employed to the utmost against the Democratic party in this campaign, but he rests his case upon the plain provisions of the Constitution and upon the obligation which every treaty-making power is under to respect the contracts into which it enters.—Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

MINARD'S LINTMENT FOR BURNS, ETC.

Scotland's Yard's Black Museum.

Exhibits That Make One Shudder.

A place of weird and compelling fascination. A place which holds material for hundreds of volumes more sensational than any fiction.

Such is Scotland Yard's collection of a century and more of criminal relics, known as the "Black Museum."

It was to Superintendent Garforth that the museum owed its birth a good many years ago. "Why not put the things together and keep them?" said Mr. Garforth one day to one of his officers, as he looked at a number of curious implements connected with recent crimes. "They would be of use in training our youngsters, many of whom don't know a jemmy from a cold chisel."

"I took Mr. Garforth's hint," said the officer, Mr. Neame. "I began with a set of housebreaking implements, and then added life-preservers and any odds and ends I could lay hands on." Thus was cradled one of the most remarkable criminal museums in Europe.

What tales of horror the hundreds of exhibits could tell if they had tongues! One recalls the murder of a Mrs. Elmsley, in Stepney, by a man called Mullins; and consists of a number of keys, a few yards of tape, and two magnifying glasses, the property of the murdered woman.

Here are the earrings worn by Harriet Lane, and the chopper with which Wainwright cut up her body. And over there is the pistol with which the Rev. Selby Watson battered his wife in retaliation for the nagging which "disturbed his studies."

These are the very tools which Charles Peace used in his burglary exploits—his skeleton keys, his jemmy, his crucible for melting down his spoil; the collapsible ladder, so small that a handbag would hold it, with which he climbed to an upper window of his victim's house; and the blue spectacles and artificial arm which were his favourite disguises.

This sharp-pointed knife recalls "Jack the Ripper," though it was the property of a man wrongly arrested as the "Whitechapel murderer;" and here is the very pistol from which Edward Oxford once fired three shots at Queen Victoria.

The Great Coram Street murder is recalled by a partly-eaten apple which was found in the murdered woman's room; and the tiny pistol, with its five barrels and beautifully-carved handle, is the weapon with which Patrick O'Donnell shot Carey for turning informer in the Phoenix Park assassination case.

Over here you will see the rope used by Marguerite Didiplane to strangle her mistress Madame Riel, in Park Lane; and the boots worn by Marie Clausen, together with the hammer which killed her at Kidbrook Lane, Eltham.

Grim Reminders of Sudden Death. Of pistols there are hundreds, from the old-time flint and steel to the tiny revolver of our own day; including a couple of double-barrelled duelling pistols, the property of two Frenchmen whose arrest prevented them killing each other on Wimbledon Common fifty years ago.

But perhaps the most gruesome feature of this museum is the collection of plaster casts taken from the heads of convicts after their execution—the monster Greenacre, of the narrow, pointed head and ugly square jaws; Daniel Good, of the massive head, lowering brows, and goggle eyes; Muller, murderer of Mr. Briggs in a railway carriage, low-browed and villainous; Fauntleroy, the forger, and so on—a gallery as grim as the mind could conceive.

And little less gruesome are the relics of executions—from the leg-ropes worn by Jerry Abershaw, the notorious highwayman, when he went to his merited death on Wimbledon Common in 1795, to the rope which hanged Mrs. Pearcey, who murdered Mrs. Hogg and her child at Hampstead a century later.—Tit Bits.

Ghost of Marie Antoinette Appears.

Coincident with the Presidential crisis, the ghost of Marie Antoinette, which has not been seen since 1911, when France was in danger of war with Germany, due to the Agadir crisis, is said to be stalking in Versailles Park, scattering the villagers, many of whom have reported meeting the veiled lady in black on lonely walks after night-fall. Several tourists, who have been visiting the park in the vicinity of Petit Triangu, distinctly saw a figure clad in the costume of Marie Antoinette's days, gambolling under the ancient trees. Those who have attempted to approach Marie's form, where she would rest and live the simple life, felt invisible hands pushing them away. The reports are all the more sensational than usual because they come from several independent sources.

Romance of a Shirt.

War Parcel Which Led to Wedding Bells.

Like countless others, during the war, Miss Florence Lillian Smith, living in the old fenland town of Crowland, near Peterborough, made some shirts for soldiers, and, for a joke, put her name and address on each of them. One went to Mesopotamia, and when belated Christmas parcels were being served out in May, 1917, Sapper Edgar Bishop became its possessor. The name of the fair maker attracted him amid the torturing spells of mosquito bites and torrid heat. Soon he felt he was in love with the donor, without knowing her. A letter brought her photo and a missive. Correspondence became accelerated, and after being detained during a native rising in Afghanistan, the sapper arrived in England, and it was not long before he was at Crowland to claim his bride. The culmination of the romance took place recently, when the couple were married to the sound of a peal from the famous eighth century Abbey of Crowland, although the wedding took place in the Primitive Methodist Church.

PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN

An Attempt to Corrupt the Press.

A person named G. M. Murray, operating in Eastern Canada, has achieved notoriety of late by his barefaced attempts to corrupt the Canadian press. Mr. Murray's bright idea is that advertisers should dictate editorial policy; when the editor refuses to come to heel, the advertising contracts are to be withheld until such time as he is prepared to "write to order." The plan is simplicity itself; Mr. Murray spent considerable effort propagating it some months ago (with no success, it is to be noted), and he is now back on the job. The Toronto Globe gives part of a circular he has recently issued, and it is worth while reproducing the extract here. Mr. Murray says:

"In the words of the old song, 'Ain't it funny what a difference just a few hours make?' Now price control is lifted and newsprint has already jumped from $80 to $120 per ton. The Post Office Department refuses to be the goat any longer, and the rates on newspapers have been boosted away up. The typographical union has forced the negotiation of new wage agreements at a big advance. Everything is going up and nothing is coming down, except the one thing that publishers don't want to come down, namely, the revenue from advertising. Just when they are beginning to figure how much higher they can jack up their advertising rates to meet their increased cost of production, and to calculate how much more space they can sell at the higher rates, along comes a business depression that leads to the wholesale slashing of advertising appropriations. To the manufacturer in a similar position the sympathetic editor would no doubt say 'Draw on your reserve.' But it makes a wonderful difference whose ox is being gored!

"Advertisers can talk policy to that editor to-day and they will be attentively listened to. The editor knows that advertisers form the one class who can save his enterprise from financial disaster, and anything those advertisers say in reason they are going to get. The fact that already have disappeared from the field such papers as the Toronto 'Times,' the Peterborough 'Phoenix' and Regina 'Post' is warning to all and sundry that in the midst of journalistic life we are in death and that he who would survive must henceforth pay less attention to the editorial sanctum and more to the office of the business manager. When the publisher's summer of prosperity has faded into his winter of adversity, when the robes of editorial arrogance are being laid aside to make way for the garments of humility—then is the time for advertisers to drive a hard-time bargain. They'll lose a wonderful opportunity if they don't.

The above sentiments are blatant and offensive, but they indicate the workings of a remarkably ignorant mind. Assuming, as this pleasant party assumes, that the newspapers of the country have the morals of unfortunate women and that they could be bribed or bought, the "good bargain" seen by Mr. Murray would be so plain to the hard-headed advertiser. Let the advertisers dictate policy! But which advertiser or which class of advertiser? Canadian newspapers carry advertisements from rival concerns, from competitive industrial enterprises, from manufacturers in the United States. Which of these is to get the ear of the editor willing to "listen to reason." Mr. Murray is a protectionist; would he approve of United States advertising syndicates dictating a line of policy by which Canadian newspapers must advocate taking off all duties on the goods they advertise? If two merchants favored opposing candidates at an election and both advertised in a newspaper, which should dictate the editorial policy? The one with the biggest purse, Mr. Murray would probably answer. Such a policy carried into practice would simply mean that the press would sell itself into bankruptcy, and that would be its fitting reward, and it would be a good riddance. It is because the press is uncontrolled and free that it renders service of value to the merchants and others who make use of its advertising possibilities. It is a fair field and no favor for all its customers in their efforts to advertise their goods. The preposterous advice which Mr. Murray gives the advertiser would tend to a condition which would kill the advertising value of news sheets. Why should a "powerful" advertiser stop at dictating "political" policy? Would he not go on and dictate "advertising" policy, and seek to squelch his business rivals through control of the advertising columns, as he would seek to squelch his political rivals in the editorial columns? Of course he would, and advertisers themselves would be the first class—are the first class—to seize this fact, because Mr. Murray's delightful plan has received so little support that, as may be seen from his language, he is strenuously goading at advertisers in an attempt to make them view his plan with favor.

Murray's circular makes it pretty clear that the press of this country is not taking orders from special interests. If it were doing so, he would not be working to introduce a condition which already was operative, and in this light his circulars have considerable value for a class of people who spend much time in denouncing the "purchased" press. It is his grief that the press is not "purchased," and he has given a blow to the theory that it is. This, however, was not his intention; his intention is an insult not only to the press, but to the public as well; if things were as he imagines they could be, it would be unfortunate for the future of the country.—Winnipeg Free Press.

The Soviet Bribe.

The attempt to bribe the Daily Herald, the British Labor Organ, with £75,000 of Bolshevik gold is as discreditable to the Herald as it is to the Soviet autocrats. Last month when charges were made that the Russian Soviet was subsidizing newspapers in other countries for the purpose of carrying on revolutionary propaganda and the Herald was named as one journal in Britain which had received money from the Bolsheviks, the editor of the Herald denied the charge and declared that the British authorities were "lying." There is every reason to believe that the editor of the Herald deliberately tried to deceive the public when in his statement published in the paper on August 20 he declared:

"Neither directly nor indirectly, roundabout nor square, nor in any way has the Herald had a single penny or a single ounce of paper from anyone directly or indirectly connected with the Bolshevik or any other Government."

Now the Herald has been forced to admit that it has in its possession £75,000 of Bolshevik gold—about $400,000. If the British authorities had not made the discovery and the exposure, would the Herald ever have made the admission?

The discreditable feature is that the Herald states that "the money is being held, pending a decision by the shareholders as to whether it should be used," and the opinion of its readers as to the acceptance of the money is asked. The Herald refers to the Soviet funds as "a magnificent demonstration of real working class solidarity and of what Russians mean by internationalism." "To accept it," says the Herald, "will be to complete a notable episode in international socialism. The increasing cost of production and the political shyness of advertisers makes it necessary for us at once to double the price of this paper if this money is not accepted."

The Bolshevik plot to bribe and subsidize one of the leading socialist-labor organs in the British Empire was exposed by the British authorities, and the Herald admits that the charge is true. Still the Herald hesitates as to whether or not it should retain the bribe! This reveals both a peculiar standard of morals and a strange sense of patriotism. The Bolsheviks has declared war on the British system of representative government and the Soviet dictators have appealed to the British workers to revolt and upset the government by "political strikes" or force of arms. That is the object Lenin and Trotsky have in view and that is the mission which they expect the newspapers which they bribe to help them to accomplish. The Herald knew this—and still it hesitated!

There is a report that a meeting of the Herald Board of Directors has been held and that they have decided not to accept the bribe, but it is maintained that the government has information that the money has been received and spent. The money was received from the sale of stolen Russian diamonds and Edgar Lansbury, a son of the editor of the Daily Herald, was mixed up in the crooked and disloyal transaction. Now matter whether the Red bribe is now retained or not, the Herald and all the revolutionists connected with it have placed themselves in a most discreditable position from which they will find it difficult to recover.—The Sentinel.

The Soul of the Anzacs.

As all the world knows, the soldiers from Australia and New Zealand, and especially those who fought so bravely in the ill-fated Gallipoli campaign, were commonly called the Anzacs. Their commander, who was said to have been the "soul" of the expedition, was Gen. Sir William Birdwood, who has just been appointed to the command of Northern India, and will thus be chief lieutenant to Lord Rawlinson, the new Commander-in-Chief in India, one of the army commanders who broke the power of Germany in the decisive operations in France and Belgium during the late summer and autumn of 1918.

The appointment of General Sir William Birdwood is an excellent one. In many ways and in widely separated fields he has proved his ability as a soldier—brave, clever and resourceful. And he knows India well, for he served there for almost a quarter of a century before the world war came on. In 1886 he was with the Bengal Lancers, and from that time on he rose in the Indian military service, going from post to post, and filling each with perfect satisfaction.

The South African war made a break in his Indian career. During the closing year of that war, when Lord Kitchener was in command, he was military secretary to the Commander-in-Chief. The war ended; he returned to India, and was again with Kitchener, who had taken over the Indian command, and was again his military secretary, becoming Quarter-master-General for India in 1912. He saw much active service on the northern Indian frontier, and in Gallipoli he led his force with great skill. The peninsula was not captured, but that such was the case was not the fault of General Birdwood or of his brave Anzacs.

The northern frontier of India needs always to be firmly held, and never more so than at the present time with danger looming up from the Bolsheviks beyond the buffer states. General Sir William Birdwood is just the man to hold that frontier.

Concerning General Obregon.

General Obregon has won the Mexican Presidential election in a light vote. That saved a lot of white paper, and white paper is worth saving these days. How long General Obregon will last as constitutional President we shall not prophesy, but his present ascendancy reminds us that he was the man who advised invading Texas. We do not know what the extent of his power is or is to be.

Ex-King Constantine, who was banished from the throne of Greece by the Allies, is likely to become again the ruler through the royal indiscretions of his son, Alexander, appointed to serve in his stead. This young man first married outside royal circles, and of late has taken the bit in his teeth and has gone to Paris to visit his plebeian wife. He doesn't take kindly to kingly duties and doesn't care for a people who refuses to recognize his wife, and so may abdicate for his father any day.

ments considerably or is dominated by wiser men, we see little chance of improvement in our relations with Mexico. It will be a Washington administration will soon be in Washington with sufficient grasp of the Mexican Government to do its duty to our people and our country.—Chicago Daily Tribune.

An Army of Peace.

(From the Nomad in The Boston Transcript.)

Oddfellowship is a thing that abundantly justifies itself merely in the view of itself which it has afforded to Boston this week. These immense numbers of hearty and splendid humans, assembling from all parts of the world, and particularly from these American States—all chatting so friendly with one another, all marching shoulder to shoulder, all delighting so much in their mutually helpful, big society—give one a most engaging idea of what people can do when they get together.

Beholding their martial array founded on love and upbuilding instead of upon hate, one feels that the peace of the world could be safely entrusted to them. The Nomad particularly likes the name that they give to their chief—the name of "grand sire;" it suggests a sort of universal grandfather, who finds his grandchildren the nicest beings in the world and who find him the nicest being; no spankings or shufflings in the closet in that relation; just a good benevolent time all round. The Nomad, following the nature of nomads, as never, to be sure, been a "finer" of anything himself. He belongs to no society or fraternity. Yet undoubtedly he, with everybody else, feels the impulse of the tribal instinct. Birds of a feather flock together. Besides the nations, we have to have our tribes—and that is the reason why there are so many fraternal and benevolent societies. The more of them that there are the better, it is for everybody—especially when they are so useful and so comfortable as the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

Embroidery.

The art of embroidery has been practiced from time immemorial—it is said to be as old as the art of dressing. The mummy clothes of ancient Egypt show the earliest extant embroidery, and the "pomegranates" of blue and purple and scarlet" of the book of Exodus were of embroidery.

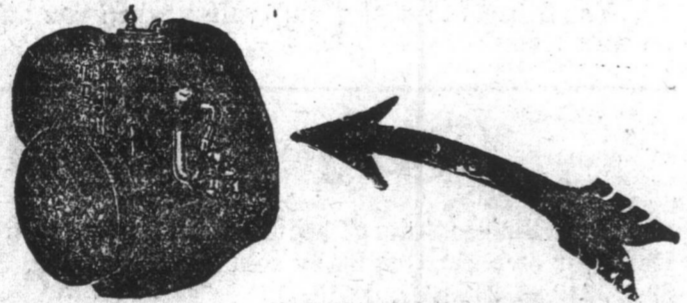

The art reached its height in the early Middle Ages. In Greece and Rome, laws were made to moderate its use, but without success. The most distinguished artists did not count it condescension to make the designs from which the highest ladies in the land executed their embroideries. No workers were more skilled in the art than the English.

Historical Reminiscences.

For Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Perhaps my old and esteemed friend Canon Lockyer may be interested in hearing that I have already written, and am about to post to the Rev. E. Hunt, for publication in his Xmas Number, an article giving a brief sketch of the history, both sacred and secular, especially the church's history of the olden time in the whole of Notre Dame City. I have done this at the special request of the Rev. Edward Hunt, Rector of Twillingate, who is a Trinity man by birth and upbringing, and also, as I am a member of the Trinity College, Mr. Hunt asked me to write this article when he was in town attending the session of the Synod, and for the occasion just given, although my health was far from good, I could not find my heart to refuse his request.

Canon Lockyer is quite right in what he says about the difference existing between the names of Rider's Harbor and Gun Hill. In proof of this I give the following, which I some time ago copied from the archives of the Supreme Court, and it is certainly the oldest deed of sale registered in the said court.

October 23, 1749. This day Jacob Berner, boatkeeper and livier at Gun Hill, sold Rider's Hill to Mr. Benjamin Lester, merchant and factor, business, Jonah Nuell, Justice of the Peace at Trinity, and a Justice of the Peace at Trinity, and that owned the boat in which he and therefore was not a member of the company of any fishing vessel. He was a "livier" because he was a permanent resident at Trinity, and not a mere sojourner there during the fishing season. Lester was a merchant because he carried on a business on his own account, and a factor because he was also the agent of the firm of Garland & Co. of Pools.

In the presence of the old powder magazine, which was built on the top of the ridge at the back of Lester and Garland's office and shop, and support to Canon Lockyer's attention in re Rider's Hill, because it was probably built there shortly after Lester bought the hill from Berner.

I remember that about 1860, when the firm of Lester & Co. rented from the Garlands and occupied their premises at Trinity, I say, I remember that the hill of Brookling, when living at Trinity, wanted to fence in the whole of Gun Hill, saying that it was Garland's property. But that fine old Magistrate, the late Benjamin Sweetland, Esq., put his foot down there. He said to the applicant "You shall not do that, you have already, without permission, fenced in the southern slope of Gun Hill, but you shall not fence in either the top or the front side of that hill; the hill has always been the property of the Imperial Government since the time they first mounted a cannon on the Fort Point." (That was not later than 30 years before 1762. W.R.S.) The Garlands sold Rider's Hill, but neither they nor any business firm, or any private individual, has ever had any legal claim to the possession of Gun Hill, because of the strategic position of the hill in reference to the defense of Trinity, the English Government has always jealously guarded their right of possession in Gun Hill, and have also guarded their right of possession in a road leading up to the Hill, from the town of Trinity.

Even in clear weather it has been found that the buoys and leading marks being ignored at the entrance of a cabled channel, the centre of the passage can more easily be picked up by merely steering the ship according to the sound of the wireless signal on the cable, than by the customary methods of going by the ordinary aids to navigation. The coil and receivers can be reduced to a size that can be carried in a case by the pilot, who can quickly set up the equipment on board the vessel, and thus pick up the cable signal, and take the ship into port without delay or danger as easily as though the weather were clear and unbroken.

time, and in looking forward to more of such writings coming from his pen. I think it quite probable that the man who gave his name to Rider's Hill, gave also his name to Rider's Harbor, in Smith's Sound. Rider's Harbor is certainly an old settlement in Trinity Bay, for it had winter residents long, long years in succession, before it had a permanently resident population. Garland & Co. were great shipbuilders. By the middle of the 18th century they, by their agent, Benjamin Lester, had a large and exceptionally well equipped dockyard at Trinity; and at a somewhat later date, there were equally large and well equipped dockyards at New Harbor. During the latter years of the 18th and for nearly the first half of the last century, it was the custom of the Garlands to send every fall, men from Trinity with orders to live in tilts at Rider's Harbor, and spend the winter in cutting timber and spars for shipbuilding, and in hunting and trapping fur-bearing animals on the whole of the mainland of Smith's Sound.

I am, Mr. Editor,
Yours faithfully,
WALTER R. SMITH.

Aids to Safe Navigation.

Soon those marine perils, fog and storm, will be very much lessened.

More inventors than Marconi are perfecting a wireless system for rendering aid to vessels in fogs and when coming into port from sea. As soon as the United States Navy can get the personnel to man the stations, now in course of erection, its development of the wireless compass station will come into extensive use on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. The aid to be thus given to vessels at sea is almost inestimable. It will make the steamer as safe as the railway train.

The compass stations are being placed at all points along the U. S. coast, at the entrances of important harbours, and elsewhere. The stations will pick up by wireless the signals from ships desirous of knowing their bearings, and by comparing notes on the strength, direction and characteristics of the call, they will quickly be able to send back the exact direction and distance of the ship from the station. The direction on being charted shows the precise location of the vessel, and she can pick up the location of her port or correct her reckonings.

Greater in importance is the U. S. Navy's system for guiding ships safely through foggy, stormy, or whaling channels. The invention of it works along lines rather after those devised by the British Admiralty in the last years of the war.

The guiding of a ship in fog or dirty weather can be effected by means of a cable, a coil of wire and a pair of telephone receivers. The cable lies approximately down the centre of the channel or passage concerned. On board the vessel the coil of wire is placed enclosed in a light box frame, so set that it can be revolved horizontally and vertically. Attached to the coil are the telephone receivers. The pilot or navigating officer camps the receivers over his ears. The coil picks up the signal sent on the cable, and the ship being directed to the point where the sound is strongest when the coil stands in a vertical position is then in line directly over the cable, and able to proceed without varying right into port.

Even in clear weather it has been found that the buoys and leading marks being ignored at the entrance of a cabled channel, the centre of the passage can more easily be picked up by merely steering the ship according to the sound of the wireless signal on the cable, than by the customary methods of going by the ordinary aids to navigation. The coil and receivers can be reduced to a size that can be carried in a case by the pilot, who can quickly set up the equipment on board the vessel, and thus pick up the cable signal, and take the ship into port without delay or danger as easily as though the weather were clear and unbroken.

KIRK'S JAP ROSE SOAP
Golden Transparent

It is well known that most women dislike to shampoo their own hair. With ordinary soaps it is such a task to work up a lather, while it is even harder to rinse the sticky, greasy, undissolved soap from the hair. And the free caustics in many cheap soaps and shampoo powders bite into the scalp and injure the hair.

But a shampoo with JAP ROSE—the golden transparent soap—is ease and luxury itself. Just moisten the hair and scalp and dip the pure, golden transparent cake in

Oh, how sweet and clean is the hair—what a delicate fragrance lingers—how invigorated is the scalp, all the dullness and fatigue gone—and what a sense of comfort and restfulness throughout—for there is no soap so satisfying for a shampoo as the pure, hygienic the water. Then just a very little rubbing, and almost instantly, thousands of pure, pearly bubbles cleanse hygienically every strand of the hair—every pore of the skin. The oil and dust and dirt are cut out and removed as by magic, without the slightest injury to the hair or scalp. After that, a dash or two of water, and the hair is left perfectly clean, and healthy and fluffy.

For, even in cold, hard water JAP ROSE is quickly and absolutely soluble. There being no sediment, the bubbles are easily and completely washed away.

All Italy Horrified.

MANY TOWNS WIPED OUT BY EARTHQUAKE.

All Italy is horrified at the terrible extent of the disastrous earthquake. The first rumours led people to believe that the shock was but a slight one but new and terrible details have been received.

The earthquake was of extraordinary violence and caused immense damage in a score of provinces. Vast numbers were killed and injured, and extreme panic reigns in the zones affected.

Fivizzano and Vignola, wonderful ancient mountain towns full of memories and relics of Dante and Carducci have been razed to the ground; the village of Barga, the birthplace of the poet Pascoli, has been wiped out; the town of Poggibonsi, Volterra, and Pelage have been partially destroyed.

Churches in Ruins.

The shock was extremely violent in Pistoja, where the magnificent church of the Madonna dell' Umiltà is in ruins. The dome of this church was a masterpiece of Giorgio Vasari. Other towns of lesser importance have also been destroyed.

At Pisa and the surrounding district the shock was generally violent, causing great damage and considerable loss of life. At Leghorn the shock was also violent, but the damage done was small. Lucca and San Rossore, where the Queen and Court are at present, are in a panic.

At Viareggio, a health resort full of elegant holiday-makers, including many deputies and senators, there was indescribable panic in the church. The building collapsed during a service. Carrara Cathedral also collapsed during Mass.

Shocks of extreme violence were experienced in the marble quarries, immense blocks of marble falling and killing and injuring many workmen.

Loss of Life.

News from the province of Reggio nell' Emilia announces violent shocks, damage and loss of life.

During the night the shocks extended northwards affecting the regions of Modena the holiday resort of Salsomaggiore, Pontremoli. Considerable damage was done at Genoa, and panic was caused. Many small towns and villages in the Spezia district were entirely destroyed, and the shocks created panic in Milan.

Rescue work has already begun in the devastated areas, where the people are camping in the open. Government and military authorities are now on the scenes of disaster arranging for the care of the injured and homeless. The Pope officiated at a special requiem Mass for the victims of the disaster, which occurred on the sixth anniversary of his Coronation. The King has headed a relief fund with a large donation.—Liverpool Post.

HORSE BITTEN BY DOG.—A number of vicious dogs are wandering around the city just now and are not particular whom they attack. Yesterday evening Mr. John Butler, truckman, was passing the Royal Stores, one of these vicious brutes jumped at his horse's head and bit it severely. Mr. Butler reported the matter to the police and is taking action against the owner of the dog.

Further Decline in Sugar Prices.

Boston, Oct. 7.—The Revere Sugar Refinery yesterday announced a price of 11 1/2 cents a pound for refined sugar. This price will be reduced 2 per cent for payment within a week of purchase. Two weeks ago the company quoted a nominal price of 22 1/2 cents a pound with the statement that it was out of the market, but since that time it has made several reductions. The quotation of yesterday represents a cut of six cents a pound from the previous price.

WHOLESALE DROP.

Salt Lake City, Oct. 7.—Reduction of the wholesale price of beet sugar 50 cents per hundred pounds effective to-day, was announced yesterday by the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company, this city. This will bring the Utah price to $12.82 and the San Francisco seaboard price to $13.02.

SUGAR CANE DECLINE.

San Francisco, Oct. 7.—Local sugar refineries announced yesterday another drop in the local price of refined cane sugar to the jobber of fifty cents a hundred pounds, following a fall of $1.50 yesterday. Beet sugar was reduced in proportion, making yesterday's prices $12 for cane and $11.80 for beet.

Haunted Mountain.

The matterhorn, in the Swiss Alps, enjoys a sinister reputation—although its fascination has lured many first-class climbers and guides to their death. Its conquest by climbers in 1858—just over 60 years ago—recalls the thrilling story of how—on their exultant return from the summit the rope which tied the party together snapped, and four men were dashed over a 1,000 feet precipice. Lord Francis Douglas, the Rev. Charles Hudson, Mr. D. Hadow, and a guide were killed instantly, the bodies of the last three now resting side by side with many other mountaineers in the little churchyard at Zermatt. The body of Lord Francis Douglas has never been found.
