RECOGNITION.

The care of the teeth is now recognized as a necessity. In fact the large hospitals all over the world examine the patients' teeth and where it is possible put them in good condition before attempting a surgical operation. Experience has shown that the patient has a better chance for recovery with a clean healthy mouth than without it. This ought to convince the most skeptical that care of the teeth is requisite to health.

Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER XXV

"You know people always say that the first year of married life is difficult—and it is, Peter! Everything's strange—and, after all, we didn't know one another very well when we were married, did we? And so..." she floundered helplessly.

"You don't believe me," she finished at last faintly.

Peter heaved.

"You don't know how sad you look," he temporized. "Bonnie, you used to be all smiles before you were married! What did we give you your nickname for, I should like to know—but to see you now!—why even Kitty says..."

"Kitty!" She drew her arm from his; so he had been discussing her with Kitty. She stood still.

"Shall we wait for the others?" she said.

"Now you're wild with me—!" he tried to take her hand. "Don't be wild, Bonnie..."

"I'm not; of course, I'm not. I couldn't ever be with you..."

She squeezed his fingers and let them go as Philip and Kitty joined them.

"We'll leave you to go the rest of the way alone," she said, lightly.

"Having chaperoned you so far..."

They exchanged good-nights, and presently Eva and Philip were walking back alone.

The soft warm darkness was all about them. It was an ideal night for lovers, but Eva and her husband walked a pace apart, and neither of them knew how the other's pulses were racing, or how much each of them longed to break down the barrier between them.

Eva stole a glance at Philip. He was walking rather fast, and with his head held high. She could see the outline of his big figure, and the red glow of the cigarette at which he was puffing with unnecessary violence.

She longed to slip a hand through his arm and try and drive the moodiness from his face; to see him once again, lighthearted and inconsequent as she had first known him, but she was afraid of repulsion or what would be worse—dutiful acceptance of her timid overture.

CHAPTER XXVI

The Winterdicks moved up to town at the end of September. "I shall be down every week-end," so Philip told his mother when she shed a few tears about it. "It's only natural that Eva should want her own home..."

"She could be absolute mistress here," Mrs. Winterdick protested. "I am quite willing to give up the reins to her, if it's only to keep you with me, Phil. You can't realize how lonely I shall be..."

He did realize it quite well, and his heart ached for her.

"Perhaps if you spoke to Eva yourself," he suggested. But Mrs. Winterdick would not do that; she was a little afraid of her son's wife; the memory of her own share in this luckless marriage was a constant source of remorse to her.

She thought that Philip had aged years; it tore her heart to see the hard unhappiness of his eyes.

The evening before they were to leave the Highway House Philip wandered round the garden alone.

Now it had come to the point, he hated going. It had been a particularly fine September, and as yet there were only a few signs of autumn in the garden, only the faintest tinge of yellow and gold in the trees.

Philip was essentially a country man. He loved an outdoor life, and the thought of a flat—expensive and luxurious though it might be—stifled him.

He went down to the stables where he had found his wife that night talking to the groom, and stroked the soft nose of the brown horse which she had been fondling then. He felt somehow as if he were saying goodbye to everything for ever. It was like shutting up a book which one has enjoyed reading, and which has unexpectedly ended in tragedy.

He went out into the gardens and out into the fields beyond. Every step of the way he was reminded of his father. Almost every tree and gateway had some vivid memory of the many times they had gone this way together.

He lingered out in the sunset so long that he was late for dinner. Eva and Mrs. Winterdick had already begun when he got in. It was rather a silent meal.

After the first quick glance at her husband Eva knew instinctively what he was feeling. Though he had said no word to her, she knew that he hated leaving his home, and that this last night was one of great sadness for him.

His face to-night was a constant reproach to her. She avoided looking at him as much as possible. The little pleasure which she had found in arranging and furnishing the flat faded into the background. She was conscious of a sort of home-sick feeling herself as she realized that this was their last night in the Highway House.

She had not been happy here, and yet... well, it was Philip's home, and she loved it for his sake.

When dinner was ended she followed Mrs. Winterdick to the drawing-room. Conversation was difficult. Eva knew that the elder woman was blaming her for taking Philip away. She rose eagerly when Mrs. Winterdick asked her to play something. She sat down at the piano, glad of an opportunity to put an end to the forced conversation.

The song she had been trying the night when Philip tried to kiss her still stood on the rack. She turned a sheet absently and looked at the words:—

Though all the skies are clouded,
Though all the portents lour,
Somewhere—to someone
This is the potent hour.

The hour that comes softly
To women and men,
Who only know thereafter
That they were happy—then!

The music was soft and dreamy, and seemed to be very much one with the words. She played it over with the soft pedal down, the words ringing in her head:—

The hour that comes softly
To women and men,
Who only know thereafter
That they were happy—then!
(To be continued.)

Somehow upstairs a door banged, and Philip moved quickly.

Eva saw her opportunity and seized it; she dodged under his arm and ran across the hall and up the stairs.

He lingered out in the sunset so long that he was late for dinner. Eva and Mrs. Winterdick had already begun when he got in. It was rather a silent meal.

After the first quick glance at her husband Eva knew instinctively what he was feeling. Though he had said no word to her, she knew that he hated leaving his home, and that this last night was one of great sadness for him.

His face to-night was a constant reproach to her. She avoided looking at him as much as possible. The little pleasure which she had found in arranging and furnishing the flat faded into the background. She was conscious of a sort of home-sick feeling herself as she realized that this was their last night in the Highway House.

She had not been happy here, and yet... well, it was Philip's home, and she loved it for his sake.

When dinner was ended she followed Mrs. Winterdick to the drawing-room. Conversation was difficult. Eva knew that the elder woman was blaming her for taking Philip away. She rose eagerly when Mrs. Winterdick asked her to play something. She sat down at the piano, glad of an opportunity to put an end to the forced conversation.

The song she had been trying the night when Philip tried to kiss her still stood on the rack. She turned a sheet absently and looked at the words:—

Though all the skies are clouded,
Though all the portents lour,
Somewhere—to someone
This is the potent hour.

The hour that comes softly
To women and men,
Who only know thereafter
That they were happy—then!

The music was soft and dreamy, and seemed to be very much one with the words. She played it over with the soft pedal down, the words ringing in her head:—

The hour that comes softly
To women and men,
Who only know thereafter
That they were happy—then!

Somehow upstairs a door banged, and Philip moved quickly.

Eva saw her opportunity and seized it; she dodged under his arm and ran across the hall and up the stairs.

CHAPTER XXIX

The Winterdicks moved up to town at the end of September. "I shall be down every week-end," so Philip told his mother when she shed a few tears about it. "It's only natural that Eva should want her own home..."

"She could be absolute mistress here," Mrs. Winterdick protested. "I am quite willing to give up the reins to her, if it's only to keep you with me, Phil. You can't realize how lonely I shall be..."

He did realize it quite well, and his heart ached for her.

"Perhaps if you spoke to Eva yourself," he suggested. But Mrs. Winterdick would not do that; she was a little afraid of her son's wife; the memory of her own share in this luckless marriage was a constant source of remorse to her.

She thought that Philip had aged years; it tore her heart to see the hard unhappiness of his eyes.

The evening before they were to leave the Highway House Philip wandered round the garden alone.

Now it had come to the point, he hated going. It had been a particularly fine September, and as yet there were only a few signs of autumn in the garden, only the faintest tinge of yellow and gold in the trees.

Philip was essentially a country man. He loved an outdoor life, and the thought of a flat—expensive and luxurious though it might be—stifled him.

He went down to the stables where he had found his wife that night talking to the groom, and stroked the soft nose of the brown horse which she had been fondling then. He felt somehow as if he were saying goodbye to everything for ever. It was like shutting up a book which one has enjoyed reading, and which has unexpectedly ended in tragedy.

He went out into the gardens and out into the fields beyond. Every step of the way he was reminded of his father. Almost every tree and gateway had some vivid memory of the many times they had gone this way together.

He lingered out in the sunset so long that he was late for dinner. Eva and Mrs. Winterdick had already begun when he got in. It was rather a silent meal.

at Bell Island.

MR. "JOHN ARCHIE" McLEAN TOASTED.

At Wabana East during the past week the Officials of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. Representatives of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co. and Merchants; as well as Superintendents Archibald and McDonald were the guests of Mr. John Archibald McLean who tendered a "Farewell" dinner prior to his embarking on the matrimonial sea. Mr. McLean familiarly known as John Archie is one of the most popular Officials of the Companies of the Iron Isle; one whose appearance in the crowd always brought a ray of sunshine, and consequently over twenty-five Guests attended at the "Farewell" and enthusiastically toasted the health of the Bride-groom to be. Mr. McLean holds the responsible position of Chief of Police and Property Agent with the British Empire Steel Co. at Wabana. The chair was occupied by Mr. George A. Harvey, who made an ideal Toastmaster and conducted the proceedings in such an ideal manner that the affair was voted one of the most enjoyable ever held at Wabana. After an appetizing menu had been disposed of the following Toast List was gone through, the Toasts being proposed in each case by the Toastmaster, Mr. Harvey, and heartily responded to:—
The King.—Resp. God Save the King.

Mr. John Archibald McLean.—His Newfoundland Friends.—Resp. Mr. C. F. Taylor, Mr. F. F. Jardine.
His Cape Breton Friends.—Resp. Mr. A. McDonald, Mr. M. J. McNeil.
His Nova Scotia Friends.—Resp. Mr. C. B. Archibald, Mr. C. Maine.
His Medical Friends.—Resp. Dr. J. B. Lynch, Dr. W. L. Carnocha.
His Bachelor Friends.—Resp. Mr. J. M. Green, Mr. R. Burnham.
His Married Friends.—Resp. Mr. Jos. Hookey, Mr. A. W. Rees.
His Lady Friends.—Resp. Mr. W. N. Butler, Mr. J. C. Colbourne.
Solos were rendered during the evening by Messrs. J. B. Murphy, J. Hookey, John K. Butler, R. Costigan, R. Burnham and F. F. Jardine. A recitation being fluently given also by Mr. R. R. Costigan; while a special choir arranged by Mr. G. Harvey and conducted by Mr. R. Burnham and comprising Messrs. Costigan, Jardine, J. K. Butler, W. N. Butler, R. Oakley, Joseph Morley, C. F. Taylor, Chas. Peddie, J. B. Murphy, Joseph Hookey and J. M. Green gave several selections which enlivened the evening considerably. At the conclusion Mr. McLean in an appropriate address thanked "The Boys" for their courtesies shown to him in the past and for the good fellowship that prevailed; and assured them that despite his matrimonial responsibilities he would always be "One of the Boys." The finale consisted of the Toast in silence. "Everybody drink to John Archie" followed by Auld Land Syne. "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and "God Save the King."

Wants Trepassey Branch Kept Open.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—As the Government mail boat Portia has not yet reached her destination, and may not reach here for many days to come, I would suggest that something be done immediately to relieve the situation now existing. I refer to the closing of the Trepassey Branch, and the inconvenience and distress caused thereby. The mail instead of three times a week will be once in three weeks, but that is not the worst feature. There are several orders for goods that are badly needed (not fur coats or motor cars either, but the essential necessities of life). I think, Mr. Editor, it is a great injustice to close the line just now, as the latest report says the coast is blocked with heavy slobice that will hinder traffic by water. Then why not let us have the means at our disposal. The Government can

The Retail Grocers' Association.

(By the Secretary.)

As the Association is now about to settle down to business there is much to be said concerning its intentions. Some people are working overtime to give it a "black eye" by misrepresenting its aims. Men who have tried to get together in the past, whether they represented capital or labour, found themselves up against an opposition that sometimes stabbed in the dark. It is not always the clean sort of an opposition, it is often conducted by the disreputable class of stool-pigeon whose interests are not in danger, but who carries on with his detestable tactics in keeping with the erratic condition of his nature. The St. John's Retail Grocers' Association was organized last December to protect the interests of the Retail Grocery trade. It was not organized with intent to injure the manufacturers or wholesalers, it was organized to cooperate with them, and it must cooperate with them. The men who have so far attended the meetings of the organization, have given their promise to support the new union, and I judge they would not have promised this support if any taint of radicalism prevailed within its ranks. The subjects already discussed at the meetings do not savour of aggression, nor will any such discussion be tolerated. On Thursday night the fundamental principle of a man's business will be debated on, and a pretty good attendance is expected. The future discussions and the future activities of the Association will all lead to better and brighter business incentive, that will, without doubt, meet the approval of manufacturer and wholesaler. Antagonism in the bigger interests is farthest from the Association's mind, in fact it has been hinted that in all probability a committee will be appointed at the next meeting to confer with the principal wholesalers on matters of importance to the whole trade. I have no doubt myself that many of the abuses existing in the business world can be eliminated by co-operation of the larger and smaller interests.

OUR LACK OF KNOWLEDGE IN EXTENDING CREDIT.

One of the chief reasons for so many failures in the grocery business of the United States is the deplorable lack of knowledge in extending credit. This has been brought about by their refusal to join organizations that are existing for their benefit. The people of the United States spend billions of dollars each year in groceries, yet the number of failures are pitifully great. In Newfoundland we are by no means free from similar conditions. Mr. Smith will stand in his store door and watch the unsuspecting Mr. Jones supplying some dishonest customer with an armful of groceries; and Mr. Smith chuckles, he is delighted because she put the same one over on his competitor. I got it in the neck he soliloquises, and why shouldn't Jones. Now if Smith and Jones were good friends they would be both money in pocket, because some day Smith will get it in the neck from one of Jones' acquaintances. We have in St. John's many well-meaning men who are making every effort to improve conditions by talking day and night; I have never yet seen them do anything to make good what they talk about. In this category we have a few grocers, bubbling over with intelligence, under whose tongues university professors would pale into insignificance; yet they are not members of an organization that was established to accomplish the things they talk about. We have another class of grocer who has been in business for twenty years or more. He sold flour when it was four shillars a barrel and he sold it when it was eighteen, and he contends that he is a veritable encyclopaedia in so far as the grocery business is concerned, and that the young man who has only been in business for three or four years is a dud. He belongs to that class of men who refuses to join the Association because he may be asked to impart some of his "valuable information" which I might say, he does not possess. I can count several men on my finger tips at the present moment who were in business when I was cutting my first teeth, and I venture to bet they haven't a sou today, they can honestly call their own, yet some of the same men would not impart any of their "valuable information." I am boosting this organization, not because I want to make a large fortune, but because after twenty or thirty years of effort, I want to be in a position to take things a little easier. The man who is compelled to go out of business after twenty years of work, and boasts not a dollar to comfort him in his senility has indeed led a mis-spent life. The little things that might have been his salvation during the days that he felt energetic, were always within his reach, but he perhaps shunned the company of his competitors, and he hated the thought of taking advice from men who were in the same business as himself, because it might be misleading. He would not in any case mix with grocers, and so he lost many valuable bits of information that were necessary to him for the successful prosecution of his business.

During the few meetings of the Association has held to date, I have heard many old members of the trade say that they learned more at a meeting in one night than they did behind the counter in many years. This in itself is sufficient justification for the existence of an organization. On Thursday night the regular weekly meeting will be held in the office of the Association at Cowan and Company's building, and if the weather holds good it promises to be the star meeting for the year; to those who are not acquainted with the organization and its work I recommend a visit to the office on Thursday night. You will hear some fair-minded and level-headed men speak in favour of the Association and it's aims; you will not hear discussions on every scrap of twaddle that irreconcilables may accumulate for the amusement of the members. I think every member of the trade should be present. Every aim of the Association tends in the direction of improving general business conditions, and the elimination of abuses, at the same time securing the co-operation and good will of the bigger interests so that the sun may go down each day on a better, brighter and more prosperous business community. Unless this is accomplished the winds of discontent will blow from many points.

A Famous Caricaturist.

George Cruikshank, who died on February 1, 1878, was a famous English caricaturist, and contributed largely to the "Comic Almanack," the predecessor of "Punch." As an illustrator of books he became widely known by his "Points of Humour," illustrative of comic literary passages, anecdotes and legends; etching for "Grimm's Popular Stories," considered by many his masterpiece; plates for "Bentley's Miscellany" in which appeared his illustrations of "Jack Sheppard," by Atsworth, with whom he maintained a long connection; and of "Oliver Twist," the author of which, Charles Dickens, he had already assisted in "Sketches by Boz." It is, however, as in most of his later work, but especially in his "Bank Restriction Note," 1818, in which he satirised so successfully the utterers of forged banknotes as to prevent their repetition, and in his onslaughts on intemperance, which was drawn with tragic intensity, among the chief being "The Bottle," and "The Drunkard's Children," and which were sold by tens of thousands—and even converted the artist himself to teetotalism!

The Government and Unemployment.

Whatever may be said about the Government in other matters affecting affairs of state, it must at least be recognised that the Prime Minister has not been weary in well doing in his efforts both at home and abroad to discover temporary employment for those out of work, during a season particularly strenuous and depressed. In Newfoundland for the period from January to April it is not easy to find that class of labor in forest or mine, which can employ all in need. Other years there was ample work along the waterfront of the city, fish packing stores were running almost night and day, coopers, shipwrights and other tradesmen had all the contracts they could carry, and generally the hum and bustle of industry was heard and seen everywhere. Conditions have changed during the past year. Demand has fallen down. Ships lie at their anchors in port, swinging idly with each change of wind. Fish cargoes are being shipped by steam. Local labor therefore is not required to any extent. As in the fish business, so with others. The mines on Bell Island were practically idle. So much ore had been taken out and banked that the Companies soon discovered that they could not get it away or use it themselves. Foreign conditions were against profitable or any shipment. There was no demand. Up country the great industries of Grand and Bishop's Falls were obliged to curtail production, and necessarily employed fewer men in their logging camps and plant than formerly. And so it went on. Unemployment prevailed, and it was a case of needs must. Something had to be found to relieve the prevailing stringency, and naturally the burden fell upon the Government, whose members essayed a task which might have dismayed men of heavier and sterner calibre. The original methods adopted may have been open to debate as to their subsequent utility, yet all were agreed that the Government only could devise a way out, even at the cost of extravagant and in many cases useless expenditure. Natheless, it was for relief, and therein lay the excuse. It had to be one thing or the other. A dollar could be found in the Treasury, the first duty of the Government was to lay it out in the interest and for the advantage of the unemployed. It was a big problem for a small Administration. With a falling revenue, no production and expenses mounting higher day by day, it required a certain amount of courage to face and overcome such a seeming impasse. For the present it has been done. The reopening of the Bell Island mines to-day and the employment of sixteen hundred men, even though on half time will do much to bridge over the chasm of unemployment. True the arrangement but makes provision for men on the island and points in Conception Bay, but the main point is that the Prime Minister and a portion of his Executive have urged upon the British Steel Corporation to give this much needed employment. Though there is no mention of the nature of the concessions made, beyond the removal of the Royalty tax on all ore mined under agreement, we offer the opinion that in such a case more liberal concessions than those usually made would be justifiable under the circumstances. Three of the hardest months of the year are ahead, but if throughout the ninety days between today and April 1st, inclusive, such employment as has been found can be maintained, with a looking up in the city, the coming year will not appear so formidable as it did when the threshold was crossed on January 1.

Twenty Years Ago To-Day.

(Evening Telegram, Feb. 1st, 1902.)
W. B. Grieva, Esq., received a message from Pernambuco intimating that Capt. Thomas of the Barque Lavinia had died there of fever.
S.S. Bruce from Port aux Basques berthed at the dock premises with her deck house badly battered and hull coated with ice. The Bruce had a hard time crossing the Gulf and the passage occupied 36 hours. Four saloon windows were broken by the seas and the saloon was flooded with water.
Passengers who arrived by the Ethie reported seeing two seals on the ice in Green Bay and one near Cape Frills.
The "No Rent" campaign in Roscommon, Dublin, assumed alarming proportions and a reign of terror was threatened. Garrison reinforcements were demanded.
Capt. Gooble deserves great credit for having gone to Englee this time of the year, and bringing back the little steamer Ethie safe and sound. Leaving Coachman's Cove on Monday last, the Ethie steamed across in a stiff N.W.W. gale and through heavy ice. The ship anchored at Englee at 8 p.m. in a heavy snow storm. The boat was sent ashore with the mails, and just as she returned and was hoisted on board, the Ethie drove from her anchors and

Went out to Sea
Capt. Gooble lay too all night in Canada Bay. Towards morning he ran South, and at 1 p.m. on Wednesday made Cape John. The Ethie ran to the Cape and on to Nipper's Harbor in a storm of wind. The steering gear gave out and the Captain was obliged to pass by Tilt Cove. The ship lay in Nipper's Harbor all Wednesday night clearing off the ice. Next day a call was made back to Tilt Cove. Here the mails were Taken on Board and the course shaped for Twillingate, as the Bay ports could not be touched at owing to the ice running in. From Twillingate she got to Seldom-Come Bay, at 4 a.m. On Friday, the Ethie got stuck for a while at Cooper Island and remained till daylight, then, with a full head of steam, she crossed Bonaville Bay, making from four to seven miles an hour through the heavy ice, the last of which was passed at Bird Island Cove. There was a clear water run to Catalina and Trinity and thence on to St. John's, where she arrived at 9 o'clock this morning. Mr. Earle and Mr. Peyton, from Twillingate, were the only passengers.

Our Local Peppys.

HIS DIARY.
January 31st.—This morning did give my wife fifty dollars to lay out in clothes for herself, which she takes, and does not say so much as thank you. To wait upon Sir R. Squires, and hear news of the destitute on Bell Island, and how they will be given part time work. So to Water Street, where meeting Mr. R. Joans, he says "Mr. Peppys, why is it that we do not see you at the Llewellyn Club?" I, therefore, to make my apologies for my neglect, and promise to visit the club, when first I may. To lunch with the Rotary Club, and hear Major Cotton tell of flights by air in this country, and how the place will benefit from an air service. Sitting by Capt. Bennett, we to hold discourse on divers matters. To my bookseller's and Mr. Seymour gives me the new book which E. P. Opperhelm writes, and which is named the Great Prince Shan. I hope to read a little in it, and a mighty fine tale it is. At night, a great wind, and like to be stormy.

Our Book Review.

"THE GREAT PRINCE SHAN" (Dick's & Co.)—None there are, who can equal E. Phillips Opperhelm as a versatile and imaginative writer, and while all his stories are of absorbing interest, he is always at his best when dealing with international politics. In his new novel, "The Great Prince Shan," which Little, Brown and Company will publish in March, and an advance copy of which has been sent me by Dick's and Co., Mr. Opperhelm is in prophetic mood, and looks forward to the year 1934 when, lured by a false trust in the League of Nations, England has abolished every sign of militarism, and is interested only in the pursuit of commerce. German enmity to Britain results in a plot, whose object is the destruction of the British Empire. The story deals chiefly with the attempts to influence the attitude of Prince Shan, Emperor of the East. Mr. Opperhelm has already earned a reputation as a prophet in his pre-war writings, but it is to be hoped that he has erred in his forecast of England in 1934. The story is one of Opperhelm's best, and none of his thousands of devoted followers the world over, should fail to secure a copy of "The Great Prince Shan" when published.

Special Attractions at the Nickel To-Day.

The Nickel presents for the holiday attraction to-day an exceptionally good bill comprising of a high-class programme of opera selections by Mr. Geo. Dale and Miss Ruth Chase, who have already made numerous friends and admirers by their excellent renditions. Miss Chase sings to-day "Carmena," and "I dream that I dwell," whilst Mr. Dale's selections are "Thy Name" and "Mother of Pearls." The picture is A. H. Wood's famous story, "A Voice in the Dark."

Wedding Bells.

PETERS-HENDERSON.
The marriage of Margaret Dorothy, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Peters, and Charles U. Henderson, Assistant Comptroller of the Reid N.B. Co., took place yesterday at the residence of the bride's parents, Governor St. John's, where she arrived at 9 o'clock this morning. Mr. Earle and Mr. Peyton, from Twillingate, were the only passengers.
The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. W. Forbes, M.A., pastor of Gower Street Methodist Church, assisted by Rev. R. J. Power, M.A., minister at the Kirk. The bride was gowned in pearl chamoisee satin and carried a bouquet of pink carnations, and was attended by her sister, Miss Norah Peters. Mr. F. E. Pittman was best man. Following the ceremony a reception was held and the customary toasts were proposed. As the bride entered the room the Wedding March was rendered by Miss Helen Oates, A.T.C.M., and following the ceremony Miss Marjorie Hutchings delighted the gathering with a beautifully appropriate solo. The bride and groom left by the express and intend touring in Canada and United States before their return, and the expression of their popularity as evidenced by the numerous presents received previous to the wedding attest in a very substantial way the well wishes of their very many friends. The Telegram extends its congratulations.

Inter-Club Billiards.

MASONS INCREASE LEAD—LAST NIGHT'S PLAY SLOW.
When play in the Inter-Club Billiard Tournament closed last night, the Masons had added 89 points to their lead, which is now 112. Three games were played and of these, one only was won by the City Club. Play was slow all the evening. The first game was won by E. R. Watson (City) who defeated H. Foster (Masonic) by 38 points. The players tied at 127 and from then Watson forged ahead. The final score was Watson 250; Foster 212. The breaks were:— Foster—11, 15, 11, 10, 11, 21, 13.
Watson—10, 13, 14, 13, 11, 12, 11, 27.
J. S. Currie (Masonic) won the next game from W. Campbell (City) whom he led practically throughout. The final scores were Currie 250; Campbell 153, and the breaks were:—
Currie—13, 11, 13, 13, 11, 15, 14.
Campbell—14, 15, 20.
In the third game L. J. Harman (Masonic) turned the tables on J. F. Blackwood (City), who had defeated him in the first round by winning with a majority of 20 points. Play was very close. It was not until the 200 mark had been reached that Harman began to get an appreciable lead, making 250 to Blackwood's 220. The breaks were:—
Harman—11, 12, 11, 11, 17, 12, 13, 11.
Blackwood—11, 12, 26, 12, 11.

In order to keep up with the schedule it is hoped to play five games to-day. In the afternoon Walter Joyce (Masonic) and L. P. Chaplin (City) will get through their game, while at night the players will be:—
MASONIC CITY
G. Rabbits D. McLoughlin
Wm. Joyce J. A. Strong
E. Fox F. Bradshaw
Gus Sellers J. J. McKay
The first of the night game will commence at 7 sharp, and as some of the best players will be handling the cues some spectacular play might be expected.

College Hockey.

The first Inter-Collegiate hockey game will be played on Tuesday next at 7.30 p.m. This is the result of the school league's decision to play their games in the night. The schedule is as follows:—
B. F. C. vs. M. C.
S. B. C. vs. B. F. C.
S. B. C. vs. M. C.
Every team has been able to get plenty of practice this season and the games should be very interesting. Six man hockey was played for the first time last year, by the colleges.

Charity Concert.

An excellent concert was held in the lecture rooms of Gower Street Church last night. The proceeds were in aid of Church Charities. A capacity audience attended the concert and apparently enjoyed themselves to the utmost. The performers were Misses Tait, Oates, Mitchell, Hutchings, Johnston, Moore, Messdames Outerbridge and Samson, and Messrs. Lee, Guehue, and A. Williams. Some well arranged tableaux vivants formed the last part of a splendid programme.

Installing New Switchboards.

The Avalon Telephone Company is now installing extra switchboards to meet the increased demand for telephones. The work is being done under the supervision of Mr. J. Parnan, who recently arrived from New York. Some fifteen hundred phones are at present in operation and it is expected that the number will be increased to 2600 before long.

Matinee This Afternoon.

"UNDER THE GASLIGHT."
"Under the Gaslight" is a play that will delight the children. It is full of thrilling scenes and even Eddie Polo is outdone when Capt. O'Grady assumes the hero's part. McCarthy, from a watery grave. The railroad scene is particularly exciting and one that is sure to thrill the little ones. Every arrangement has been made by Mr. Arthur Knight and his band of efficient workers to ensure the safety and comfort of the tiny tots, and parents can rest assured that they will be very carefully looked after during the performance. The general admission is 10 and 20 cents, with a few reserved at 30c.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

RINGLEADERS ARRESTED.
SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 31.
Five alleged ringleaders of riots at New Aberdeen a week ago, Sunday, were arrested to-day, and warrants for others have been issued.

BRITAIN AND FRANCE.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.
Preparations to present publicly the Five Power Naval and Submarine Treaties, at to-morrow's open session of the Arms Conference, were completed in committee to-day, after British and foreign delegates had gone in a sharp exchange over the submarine issue. The Naval Committee, however, approved in short order two treaties to limit capital ships, and impose restrictions on the use of submarines. A tilt between the British and French arose, when Ambassador Jusserand of France said Lord Lee in quoting some time ago an article by a French Naval Captain, which seemed to indicate the French policy of unrestricted submarine warfare, had neglected to add that the French captain concluded his article by saying "the Germans argue in this way," and therefore, Jusserand contended, the article had been cited in a manner not quite fair to France. Moreover, he added, the article "character of German submarine warfare" had been omitted. Lord Lee said he did not want to enter into a new discussion, but still thought his original view of the French Captain's article could be supported, and moreover the British effort to abolish submarines had been opposed by France. Furthermore Britain had shown her good offices by offering France a treaty to guarantee her situation in the event Lord Lee presented further controversy, and said the Allies should go forward as friends in the reconstruction of the world. Ambassador Jusserand said he was pleased by the words of Lord Lee, but insisted France was not imposing a submarine burden on the world, and asked that France be not misjudged.

AN ULTIMATUM.
DUBLIN, Jan. 31.
One resolution for discussion at the general Conference of Sinn Fein Associations, beginning on February 7, provides that in the event of a majority of delegates supporting Dall Ebrann's ratification of the Treaty, all delegates opposing the Treaty shall either fall in with the views of the majority, or stand aside and allow the wishes of the majority to prevail. The resolutions add "we consider this course of action the only one calculated to save the country from the disaster of a split, which would be ruinous to the best interests of all sections of the people." Already 500 delegates have been nominated to attend this meeting, but it is probable there will be no less than 1,400.

Final Performance To-Morrow Night.
The final presentation of "Under the Gaslight" will be given to-morrow night at the Casino, and as tickets are being rapidly booked up those desiring to secure this splendid spectacular production should make immediate reservations at the Royal Stationery. Seats are 50 and 75 cents.

OUR SPORTING COLUMN.—This column will be continued on Saturday when an interesting article by M. A. H. Thomas will appear. Pressure of time has been the cause of the long delay since this column last appeared.

And the night shall be filled with music at the C. L. B. Old Comrades' Card Party Supper and Dance, Wednesday, Feb. 1st, Jan. 31.

Princess's Gown of Indian Cloth.
Princess Mary's wedding gown is to be of cloth of silver, of magnificent design. The material was brought by the Queen from India some years ago, and is described as a triumph of native manufacture. It is officially announced that Princess Mary's bridesmaids will be Princess Mand, younger daughter of the Princess Royal; Lady Rachel Cavendish, fourth daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire; Lady Mary Thynne, youngest daughter of the Marquis of Bath; Lady Victoria Mary Cambridge, elder daughter of the Marquis of Cambridge; Lady Doris Gordon Lennox, younger daughter of the Earl of March; Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, youngest daughter of the Earl of Strathmore; Lady Diana Bridgeman, eldest daughter of the Earl of Bradford, and Lady May Cambridge, only daughter of the Earl of Athlone.

Terras vs. Saints.
INTERESTING HOCKEY TO-NIGHT.
The Terra Novas and Saints will be the opposing teams in to-night's League game. The teams are very well matched and an interesting game should result. The Terras will probably play a fierce open game than they did against the Pelicans, when they played a four man defence. Both Saints and Terras have shown very little in the way of team work, and it is hoped that to-night's game will not alone be interesting, but also productive of good hockey.

Passing the Legions of Centuries.
The "death-watch" beetle is being fought with poison gas in the ancient Westminster Hall, the scene of many memorable events in British history. The famous beamed roof of carved oak, dating from the year 1299, was discovered some time ago to be seriously menaced by the borings of wood beetles which had been breeding there for centuries. The first gas tried on the beetles nearly proved fatal to the cleaners.

Then another chemical was used, and this, it is claimed, was the historic edifice safe for six or seven centuries.

Will Not Attend Genoa Conference-- Western States Experience Earthquake Shocks--Roof of B. and O. Station Falls in.

ONLY EXCEPTION.
LONDON, Jan. 31. All countries invited to the Genoa conference have definitely accepted except the United States. Reuters says.

EXPLORER FAILS TO REACH OBJECTIVE.
WISCONSASSET, Maine, Jan. 31. That Donald MacMillan and his expedition on the schooner Albatross failed to reach Fury and Hecla straits, the passage of which would be necessary to circumnavigate the North Pole, was indicated by indirect advice received here today. The advice contained word that MacMillan might return next summer. The Carnegie Institute at Washington reported a message had been received at Ottawa through Canadian customs officials, under date November 15 last, that MacMillan was spending winter at Nauyasutt, 80 miles east of Cape Dorset, and 300 miles west of Fury and Hecla straits. This has never been navigated.

CONFERENCE POSTPONED.
LONDON, Jan. 31. The Conference of British, French, and Italian Foreign Ministers, scheduled to be held in Paris tomorrow, is likely to be postponed one month because of the French memorandum regarding the Near-Eastern questions indicates a wider divergence from the proposed formula of settlement than was expected. The purpose of the proposed conference was to agree on a programme which the three powers would insist that Turkey and Greece should carry out with Allied support.

WILL HAVE THEIR POUND OF FLESH.

BOOMING MONTREAL.
MONTREAL, Jan. 31. With ten large liners, eight of them oil burners, coming to Montreal next summer, the challenge of this port to New York will be the severest ever issued.

IMPORT OF CATTLE PROHIBITED.
OTTAWA, Jan. 31. Owing to the outbreak of foot and mouth disease in Great Britain, the Canadian Department of Agriculture today prohibited the importation of all cattle, ruminant and swine from Great Britain and Ireland.

PNEUMONIA VACCINE IMPROVED.
ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 31. Medical science cannot yet claim to have conquered pneumonia by vaccine. This was made plain in a report based on a study of tests which extended over a year in which 19,000 patients in State institutions were vaccinated against pneumonia. A report submitted to the State authorities says, "the results were indeterminate. Pneumonia is developed in vaccinated and unvaccinated groups. There were no harmful effects, nor were there any satisfactory or definite conclusions." Health Department officials today declared the peak of the pneumonia and influenza epidemic has passed.

ANOTHER ROOF FALLS.
WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 31. The roof of the Baltimore and Ohio railway freight depot crashed today, but nobody was injured. The snow had been swept from the roof, but it was believed the supporting brick pillars had been weakened by accumulations of snow from recent storms.

Record House Last Night
AT "UNDER THE GASLIGHT."
An even larger audience than the night before witnessed the second performance "Under the Gaslight," by the B.L.S. players at the Casino last evening. All the first night defects were absent and the various performers seemed much more at ease in their roles, and from the moment of the overture to the playing of the National Anthem, there was not a dull moment in the whole performance. The huge audience was thrilled at the various climaxes as was testified by the thunderous applause, particularly in the wharf and railway scenes which were indeed quite realistic. It would be invidious to select any particular members of the cast for distinction, but we feel that the emotional scenes between Miss Mary McCarthy and Captain J. J. O'Grady deserve very special mention, their dialogue and action being well high professional. The junior members of the players acted splendidly, and Masters Bradshaw, Hutton, Kennedy and Hand fully earned the encomiums bestowed upon them. To Miss Eileen both Dublin who at short notice was obliged to fill the breach made vacant owing to the illness of Miss Anna Murphy, as Mrs. Van Dam, great credit is due for a very successful portrayal of the part.

Specialties were rendered by Misses McCarthy, McGrath and little Eileen Killy; Master Jimmy Bradshaw and Mr. Pearcey Jardine; while Mr. Phil Moore's jig on the head of the pier to the unusual strains of Bermuda's accordion literally brought down the house.

"Under the Gaslight" will be repeated this afternoon and to-night, and the general excellence of the whole performance merits very generous patronage particularly in view of the worthy object of the efforts of the performers.

A Big Fish Story.
SWORDS SLAUGHTER HUNDREDS OF WHALES.

LONDON, (Canadian Press)—This is not the season for fish stories, but a whale story may be allowed to pass. It is the story of an ocean battlefield strewn with dead and dying monsters of the deep, supposedly the result of a fierce encounter between swordfish and whales, the latter being the defeated army—or navy. Captain G. Evered Poole, M.B.E., a Commissioner in the Gold Coast Colony, is the author of the story, which is contained in a letter received from him by his brother, C. E. Poole, Southampton.

Here is the story as related by Captain Poole:
"On the voyage out the most extraordinary phenomenon was witnessed by us all. Between Sierra Leone and Sekondi we steamed through, for over an hour, a blood-red sea, and saw some hundreds of whales dead or dying on the surface of the water. Some were just able to move slowly along; few, if any, could move quickly. There must have been a sanguinary battle, supposed to have been put up by swordfish. It was a most appalling sight, and the extent of the bloody expense must have represented the death of many more whales than were visible. No one on our ship had ever seen or even heard of anything approaching such a spectacle before."

NEW PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT TAKES OVER DUBLIN CASTLE.
DUBLIN, Jan. 16.—Michael Collins and the Irish Provisional Government took over Dublin Castle today and invested themselves with all the powers of Government.

A large crowd gathered in the precincts of the castle and loudly cheered Collins and his colleagues. The dramatic and historic nature of the event was recognized by the spectators, who freely commented on the fact that the taking over of the stronghold fell to Collins, who until a few months ago was a fugitive sought by Dublin Castle, Collins, with a happy smile, seemed to enter upon the task with much good will and good humor.

He and the other Ministers, who received a salute from the military and police guards, went to the Chief Secretary's office and then to the Council Chamber, where the formal transfer was carried out. Viscount Fitzalan, Lord Lieutenant, and the chief officials were present. An official report of the proceedings was issued as follows:—
"Mr. Collins handed to the Lord Lieutenant a copy of the treaty in which acceptance of its provisions by himself and his colleagues had been endorsed. The other members of the Provisional Government were then introduced.

"The Lord Lieutenant congratulated Mr. Collins and his colleagues and informed them that they were now duly installed as a Provisional Government, and that in conformity with Article 17 of the treaty he would at once communicate with the British Government in order that the necessary steps might be taken for the transfer to the Provisional Government of the powers and machinery requisite for discharge of its duties. He wished them every success in the task they had undertaken and expressed the earnest hope that under their auspices the ideal of a happy, free and prosperous Ireland would be attained.

Fitzalan is cheered.

When Lord Fitzalan drove from the castle he was cheered.

Meanwhile the removal of stores, bedding and documents went on continually, and the crowds who had lined up in Dame Street and Palace Street indulged in good-humored banter with the Black and Tans and the auxiliaries, while the military were frequently cheered.

A statement signed by Collins was issued to-night as follows:—
"The members of the Provisional Government received the surrender of Dublin Castle at 1.45 o'clock this afternoon, and it is now in the hands of the Irish nation. For the next few days the functions of the existing departments of the institution will be continued without in any way prejudicial future action.

Members of the Provisional Government will proceed to London tomorrow to meet the British Cabinet Committee to arrange for the various details of the handing over.

"A statement will be issued by the Provisional Government to-morrow in regard to its intentions and policy."

The delegation to London will consist of Damon Duggan and Kevin O'Higgins.

The evacuation of Ireland by the British Army, consisting of 60,000 men, will begin immediately. Ten battalions have already been ordered to embark in the next few days.

THE LITTLE RIVER COAL MINING CO., LTD.
ST. GEORGE'S NEWFOUNDLAND.
Incorporated 1921.
Authorized Capital, $5,000,000.
Registered Office at St. George's Field.
Branch Office at Sydney, C.B.

This Company has been organized and capitalized for the purpose of developing a mining property already acquired. The property is situated at Little-Cody River eighteen miles north of Port aux Basques in St. George's Coal Fields District. The location is one of the best in Newfoundland for a coal field near the Grand River, where the tourists from all over the world in summer spend their vacation fishing Grand and Little Rivers. No shaft has to be expended on buying the property, for where shaft will be sunk it is one of a stretch of land for a mile about a rock or tree and especially adapted for construction work. It contains over three miles and extends from railroad to the seashore. Shipping piers are completed and water is sixty feet deep and shipping can be done all the year round. Distance from sixty feet of shaft to where the shaft will be sunk is in the vicinity of one hundred feet. Steamers now save over 200 miles by sailing at our piers and the saving trade amounts to a heavy sum. Coal is to-day one of the most important of minerals without which all industry would be at a standstill. Newfoundland imports annually over 400,000 tons of coal, most of which comes from Cape Breton. Now the Newfoundland market can be better met and more cheaply supplied by the Little River Coal Mining Co., Ltd., as soon as it starts operations. Arrangements are now being made to purchase machinery and operations will begin as soon as possible; the necessary tests are now being arranged for.

Mining experts such as H. Norman M.B.E., of Toronto, and Mr. McQuarrie Geologist, who worked on the property report seems from three to seven ft.

The possibilities of this company in developing this coal property are unusually great. The strong and increasing demands for the product, and especially in Newfoundland where coal is selling to-day at such a high figure, is good evidence of very large returns to the investor. An investment in this Company should have the consideration of every man and woman who has the welfare of Newfoundland at heart and is interested in keeping our men at home, should fill in the application below and forward it to the address given on this page.

It is bituminous coal and the assay shows a better quality than either Cape Breton or Crows Nest. The assay was made by Thomas Hays & Sons of Toronto and is as follows:—

Early History of Newfoundland.

Some Extracts From Ancient Volumes.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—Mr. George Bartlett of Burrin, recently sent me four volumes of an ancient work entitled "The Great Historical, Genealogical and Poetical Dictionary, being a curious miscellany of sacred and profane History containing in short the lives and most remarkable actions of the Patriarchs, Judges, and Kings of the Jews; of the Apostles, Fathers and Doctors of the Church, etc. The description of Empires, Commonwealths, Provinces, etc. collected from the best historians, chronologers, lexicographers; as Calvinus, Helvicus, Isaacson, Marsham, Boudrand, Hoffman, Lloyd, Cheverau and others, but more especially out of Lewis Morery, D.D. his eighth edition corrected and enlarged by Monsieur Le Clerc, corrected, revised and enlarged to the year 1688 by Jer. Collier, A.M., printed at London 1701."

From this ancient and curious Encyclopaedia I have extracted the following article on Newfoundland, which makes most interesting reading as it is much fuller, and of greater length than articles on this country published in more modern ones.
The first part of the article is extracted from Deny's histoire naturelle de l'Amérique Septentrionale, which was published in or about 1650. Note the way in which New-Found-Land is written. I can remember it so inscribed when I was a boy. The reference to the Norman and Basques, being the first inhabitants of the Island, bears out the Channel Islands tradition that the fishermen of the Norman Isles (Channel Islands) were the first discoverers of Newfoundland. (See my Article on "The Early relations between Newfoundland and the Channel Islands," the New York Geographical Review Vol. II, December 1916 No. 6).

THE LAURENTIAN ISLANDS.

The Isles referred to as lying in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and comprehended under the name of Newfoundland are the Magdalene Islands, which with Anticosti were attached to Newfoundland until 1774 when they were transferred to Canada. These Islands were, in very early times, and before the official discoverers found them, known to the Norman and Basque fishers, as records in Channel Islands and Norman towns show. The description of the extent of the country, of the methods of fishing and curing cod are partly accurate although the account of the quantity of Cod found on the Grand Bank, "where they often swarm to that degree, that the vessels have much to do to pass for them" is rather exaggerated. In the second part of the article a late author is quoted whose name is not given. This is to be regretted as one might then be able to judge from whence his information came. He evidently writes from first hand knowledge, gathered, no doubt, from those who frequented Newfoundland. Judging from Whitbourne's account of the Red Indians, written in 1622, the description that I am writing about is fairly authentic, but it gives more information about the belief and Customs of the Indians than I have ever seen published. Samuel Chaplain is quoted as giving an account of a feast made in 1603 by one of the Indian Chiefs in his Cabin or Wigwam. Samuel Chaplain was probably the Captain of one of the fishing ships which frequented Newfoundland.

EARLY SETTLERS.

Mention is made of 54 Englishmen, 6 women and two children wintering here in 1613. This could not have been Guy's settlement nor yet that of Baltimore and most likely refers to a settlement further North. That there were settlers in Newfoundland long before Guy's settlement, is well known. In his journal, dated 1696-1697, Sicut Boudoin, Missioner, states that in H. Grace he was told of a man who had been born there about 1610 or 1611, and among some of our official records there are title papers extant of property held by the Dawes prior to 1610. Tradition in Guernsey and Jersey also pointed to the wintering here of men from those Isles and their subsequent settlement to protect their fishing property. But I am taking up rather too much space in introducing my matter and must crave your pardon for so doing.

Yours sincerely,

H. W. LEMESSURIER.

30th January, 1922.

NEW-FOUND-LAND.

New-Found-Land, an island of the North America, in Canada or New-France. This Isle is of a great extent, the chief town in it is called Plaisance, from its pleasant situation. Some Normans and Basques were the first inhabitants of this Island, but the English have since settled themselves here also. It is the most famous place of fishery for cod in the known world, which the English and French exchange with the natives for Beaver Skins, and other furs, with which the country aboundeth. Under the name of New-Found-Land are also comprehended the Isles which lie on the West side of it, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the River of Canada; they lie in the North Sea, which they have on the East and South of them, and Canada or New-France to the North and West. They were discovered by some fishers of Normandy in 1494; but John Veraxan, who discovered them more particularly, and gave them the name of Terre-Neuve, or New-Found-Land, was the first who took possession of them in the name of Francis I. of France: This Veraxan was afterwards eaten by the savages, as he was going to discover Cape Breton. These Isles are about fifteen or sixteen in number, the most considerable whereof are the Isles of the Sand or Bank of Cape Breton, of St. John, and that of the Assumption. The Isle of Cape Breton is on the South of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and is almost out in two parts by the Gulf of Labrador. (1) The Chief port is that of St. Peter (2) which is defended by a fort. The Isle of St. John (3) is on the west of the Island of Cape Breton, and is properly nothing else but a great forest of fir trees, and the shore surrounded by steep rocks. The Isle of Assumption is also called Anticosti, and lies at the mouth of the River of St. Lawrence. (1) Probably Bras D'Or. (2) Sydney. (3) Prince Edward's Island.

DESCRIPTION OF CODFISHING.

The Bears Port is the most considerable of its havens. Between this and the Flat Island, so called, is the chief place of fishing for cod. On the East and South East of the Isle of New-Found-Land is the great Bank, where cod are also taken in vast quantities. This great Bank is a sand, which in some parts is fifteen fathom from the top of the water, but in others much less, yet so that vessels may pass over it without danger. This Bank is 150 leagues long, and 50 broad. All its extremities are perpendicular, so that at the ends of it bottom can be found. The fishermen distinguish two sorts of cod, whereof they call the one white or green cod, the other dry; they call those dry cod, which are proper to be dried, and kept a long while; and those they fish for between the Isles of Assumption and Cape Breton, but the white or green cod they fish for on the Great Bank, where they often swarm to that degree, that the vessels have much to do to pass for them. The great times for fishing is in the months of September and October (?) and is performed with a line about the thickness of a quill, furnished with a hook, and baited with the livers of cod, or a bit of herring, the skin whereof by its glittering, doth allure them. A good fisher can take 3 or 400 of them in a day, but the fishing proves very troublesome when Cod keep close to the bank, and not come to the top of the water—Denny's Meleiro Natural de l'Amérique Septentrionale.

OTHER DISCOVERIES AFTER CABOT.

A late author in his description of New-Found-Land, adds, that the vessels have much to do to pass for them. The equal extent with England, whence it is above 600 leagues, halfway betwixt Ireland and Virginia, betwixt 46 and 53 degrees North latitude. It is separated from the Continent of America by a narrow sea like our Channel. The North part is best inhabited, though the South be the better soil. It has many excellent large Bays and harbours, and abounds with springs of delicious water. It has plenty of fish, land and water fowl, and hath sufficient stock of deer, hares, otters, foxes, squirrels, and other beasts which yield good furs; they have a store of cod, herrings, salmon, thorn-back, oysters and mussels; wood enough for fuel, and trees fit for masts and building of ships. The soil is fruitful, and the climate wholesome, though excessive hot in the summer, and cold in the winter. It was first discovered by Sebastian Cabot. Three of the natives were taken and brought to Henry the Seventh, and Mr. Thorn and Mr. Elliot discovered it further in 1530. Mr. Hore attempted a new discovery, but was reduced to such straits, that many of his company were killed and eaten by their fellows, and those who survived, were so changed, that Sir William Butts, a Norfolk Knight, could not know his son Thomas, at his return, but by a wart that grew upon his knee. After this the English did not trade thither in many years, but the Portuguese and French resorted to it, and changed the names of Bays, etc., which the English had given them. In 1683 Sir Humphrey Gilbert took possession for Queen Elizabeth, forbade other nations to fish there, and designed to have settled an English Colony, but was shipwrecked in his return. In 1608, John Guy, a Merchant of Bristol, undertook it, and after three and twenty days sail landed in Conception Bay. In 1611 they had very little frost in the winter, and the whole was warmer and drier than in England, they had fisheris, fish, mackarel and foxes in the winter, and white partridges in the summer. In 1612 they found some of the natives habitations, being nothing but poles set round and meeting on the top about ten foot broad covered with deer skin, and the fire in the midst. The people are of a middling stature, beardless, broad-face, and delicate to paint with oaker. Some of them went naked, having only their privities covered with a skin. They believed in one God, who created all things, and alleged that God took a number of arrows and stuck in the ground, from whence men and women first sprung up. One of their Sagamores, or Governors being asked concerning the Trinity, answered, there was one God, one Son, one mother, and the Sun, which were four, yet God was above all. And being questioned whether they or their ancestors had heard, that God was come into the World, they said, they had not seen him. Some of them conversed visibly with the Devil, who tells them what they must do in war and other matters.

FESTAL CEREMONIES.

Samuel Chaplain gives an account of a feast made by one of their great lords in his cabin in 1603, eight or ten kettles of meat being set on several fires some yards asunder; the men sat on both sides of the room with dishes of bread before the meat was boiled, one took his dog and danced about the kettles, and when he came before the Sagamore, threw the dog down, a second did the like, and after the feast they danced with the heads of their enemies in their hands, singing all their while. They have many fires in their cabins, ten families lying together, lying upon skins one by another, and their dogs, which resemble our foxes, with them. At another feast the women and maids sat in the ranks, the men standing behind singing, and of a sudden the women strip themselves stark naked, without any shame, and their song being ended, cried with one voice, ho! ho! they then covered themselves with their mantles of skin. At 14 or 15 years old, their maids have many lovers, and live in impurity with as many of them as they please, for five or six years, and then takes one of them, whom she likes best, for her husband, provided he be a good hunter, and lives chastely with him, except he forsake her on account of barrenness. They put their devil in a pit with all their goods, setting many pieces of wood and a red stake over it; they believe in the immortality of the soul, and that the dead go into a far country to make merry with their friends. When sick, they send to one Sagamore Memberton, a Conjurer, who prays to the devils, blows upon the party, cuts him and sucks the blood; he heals wounds in the same manner, applying a round slice of beaver stones, for which they present him with venison or skins. They consult the devil for news, who always answers doubtfully, and sometimes false. He also directs them where to find game when hungry, and if they miss, he excuses it by saying, that the beast changed place, but most times they succeed, which makes them believe the devil to be God. The Conjurers, when they consult, fix a staff in a pit, to which they tie a cord, put their head into the pit, and invoke Satan in an unknown language, with so much pain till they sweat again; then the Wizard persuades the people, that he holds the devil fast with his cord, forcing him to answer, then he sings to his praise for his discovery, which is answered by the savages dancing and singing in a strange tongue; after which they leap over a fire, put a pole out of the top of the cabin, with something on it which the devil carries away. Memberton were a triangular purse about his neck, with something in it like a nut that he called his spirit. This office is hereditary.

SOME CODSCHOOL.

About seventy miles East of New-Found-Land, over against Cape Ray, lies a bank 500 miles long, and about 70 broad, it is covered when the sea is high and dry at ebb; on all sides of it the sea is 300 fathoms deep, and about it lie several small isles called Los Buchalcos, or the Isles of Codfish, which abound so there, that they are said to have obstructed the first discoverers passage. Three or four hundred ships trade yearly hither for fishing, and never fail of their loading of cod and poorjohn (haddock), one man catching 100 per hour, another cuts off their heads, a third guls, and a fourth salts and barrels them, and so transport them; they fish only in the day, the cod not biting at night. The fishing season is from the spring to September, this they call the green-fish, and then they fish for dry-cod fish, they retire into a harbour, and send out their sholops which return laden about noon and ordering them as before, dry them in the wind. At this fishing they also take fowls by baiting their hooks with the cod-livers, which the fowls fight for, and so are caught.

TURNIPS CURED SCURVY.

In 1613, fifty-four Englishmen, six women and two children wintered there. They killed bears, otters, sables; sowed wheat, rye, turnip; and coleworts, their winter was moderate. Some of them had the scurvy, which their turnips cured.
Near the coasts are Musk Cats and rats, and abundance of Mares or Saxoxen (Walrus), so that one ship in a little time slew 1500 of them; they live both by water and land, are bigger than an ox, and their hides thicker than bulls, their teeth are like elephants' tusks, but a foot longer, and go downwards from the upper jaw, it's dearer than ivory, and as great an antidote as the Unicorn's horn. The young ones eat like veal and are defended by the old to the utmost. Out of the bellies of five of these animals, they commonly rake a hoghead of train oil. They sleep in great companies, and have one sentinel to wake the rest upon occasion; they are short haired like seals; and resemble lions in their faces.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

EVERYTHING NEEDS A REST SOMETIMES.

What wonders a little change will do in making one see the familiar thing with a new eye! Here is a queer example of that familiar truth. I have just started again to carry a small travelling bag. I had carried the bag ten years and it had reached that stage in which it seemed to me too shabby to carry a new bag—a new bag, but beautiful to me then it was new.

I had worn out that bag, and when a new one I looked over which I had placed on the shelf had decided that it really didn't look any better. So I had it up and had it made over. And I really feel that when I put it away and see the new one, it seemed to me that I would rather stay at home than on a journey with that old thing.

Washington Conference.

IT HAS DONE GREAT WORK. It is not only a small travelling bag, but a small travelling bag which France, disdaining the Washington Conference, has done great work. First of all, it has drawn a strict line as to what is to be done in the future. It has outlawed as destroyers of peace, that France has been in respect to her demands. It is greatly to be regretted that the restricted use of vessels is quite likely that contemplated will never be.

Conference the French one can hardly call them. They have done their country of harm. There was at the Washington session, especially on the part of both Great Britain and Great Britain, but owing to the high spirits of that country's case it has disappeared. To the French cock walks alone, and the other hand the general determination to join with Britain and the United States has driven Japanese to many points.

The Bitterness of France.

The action of France in refusing to consent to a reduction in submarine's puzzling everybody, writes Temple Bar in the Glasgow Weekly Herald. Whether it would be possible to keep "nation like Germany to any abolition or limitation of submarines is another matter, but what on earth France wants to keep up the quota for nobody can understand. It rather looks at present as if it were a case of amour-propre, and that France—having had to give up her mind to assert herself on this point. Germany—once again we are "perlede Albion." Many in France are already discussing the next war, in which France expects to be fighting against an allied Britain and Germany. It is said that the end of the friendship has some so soon, but all things considered, it is hardly to be wondered at. The French are horribly sensitive and touchy. They paid the indemnity Germany demanded in 1870, and it is only natural for them to think that Germany must now pay in her turn. I have always thought that our cardinal point in the Peace Treaty should have been the return of that indemnity before any other point was even contemplated.

MOTHER!

Move Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful, to-day, may prevent a sick child to-morrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on the bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

Largest Power Plant in World Started.

A crowd of men and women variously estimated at from three to five thousand at Queenston, Ont., witnessed the ceremony of turning on the power of the greatest electrical plant in the world, the Chippawa-Queenston Hydro-Power Canal development. Premier E. C. Drury, of Ontario turned a brass hand controller, letting the water into one of the huge penstocks, and away went the machinery with a whirl as soft and rhythmic and scarcely more loud than that of a smooth sewing machine. Sir Adam Beck, head of Ontario's Hydro-Electric enterprise, and men of eminence in the electrical world from different parts of the continent stood by, as the Premier's little act completed an achievement which has taken the industry of thousands of men and some of the best brains in the electrical world to build in three years at an expenditure of eighty million dollars. Premier Drury spoke briefly in a congratulatory way to Sir Adam Beck and his engineers; and Sir Adam made a brief reply in which he referred to the difficulties connected with the completing of the great enterprise which will be a splendid asset to the province for all time.

A great barrier was stretched across the wall of the power house bearing the words, "Queenston-Chippawa Hydro-Electric plant largest in the world." Its ultimate capacity is six hundred and fifty thousand horsepower. Immediately the water was released into the penstocks, locomotive and shovel sirens outside set up a scream of triumph that must have been heard above the roar of the cataract miles away. It kept up several minutes mingling with the cheers of the thousands of spectators in the great power house, and the hum of the turbines.

The power house is among the largest in the world, being 600 by 300 feet in size and 135 feet high. Even then its roof is a long way from the top of the cliff. After the ceremony of turning on the power the guests were allowed to roam about the vast building inspecting the machinery.

Has Kept Her in Fine Condition Says Ont. Girl.

Miss McCuen Says Tanlac Restored Her Health and Brought Back Strength.

"I certainly am glad I found Tanlac, for it restored my health and keeps me feeling good all the time," said Miss Jennie McCuen, 149 Westworth St., North, Hamilton, Ont. "Four years ago I found myself in a run-down and weakened condition. I got so weak that I had to stop every few minutes to rest while doing some little light housework, and many days I couldn't even prepare the meals. My stomach was so out of order that I was afraid to eat because of the suffering I knew it would cause. I got to where I couldn't eat anything but bread and a little milk. "Well, Tanlac certainly is an excellent medicine. Three bottles of it built me up to where I felt fine, and since then I've made it a habit to take a bottle occasionally to keep me feeling right. It keeps me eating and digesting most anything I want, and gives me plenty of strength to do my housework. I am glad to praise Tanlac for the wonderful good it has done me."

Young men employed by the Hydro acted as guides and gave information and later refreshments were served on perhaps, the most momentous event to top floor and thousands were fed. It was a long climb on slender stairs. I had hair so dark and wavy, had ways to get there but it worked up an appetite. Each guest was given a souvenir booklet with Hydro photos and information regarding what is, perhaps, the most momentous event in the history of Ontario province.

Out of the Promotion Stage.

THE FINANCIAL POST ARGUES AGAINST PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

Water has been turned on at Chippawa and a small amount of power has been developed to impress the people with the fact that they are going to get something for the millions of their money which Sir Adam Beck and his commission have been spending. Immediately we are informed by the chorus of public ownership newspapers, led by the Toronto Globe, that the great scheme has been proven a triumph. For the first time it is admitted that there has been engineering doubt, but at once, by merely the turning of a valve, all these have been dissipated.

Anyone who knows anything whatever of big undertakings appreciates that it is one thing to bring a project to completion—and Chippawa is by no means complete—and entirely another thing to make it a success. With a blank cheque signed by the people of Ontario at his command, Sir Adam Beck has gone ahead spending with alarming recklessness. What was to involve a total of about $10,000,000 or so has become a public white elephant which promises to cut up ten times that amount before its appetite is satisfied. Success can only come when the project is showing an income which will justify every dollar invested and Sir Adam is not yet through spending money, let alone getting into a position to show a satisfactory profit and loss account.

So long as Chippawa continues to finance itself out of capital account there can be no claim made for its success. Success can only be argued when sufficient power is sold on a satisfactory basis to cover all costs. Further this cannot be accomplished by the kind of bookkeeping jugglery such is usually employed to cover up public ownership deficits. Already there has been talk of wiping part of the cost. This should never be considered. Chippawa should be made to carry every dollar of cost; Chippawa should pay to Ontario a reasonable rental for the use of water for the benefit of the power consumers; Chippawa should pay to the province taxes in addition to all interest charges with full allowance for sinking fund and other overhead costs—then and not until then can Sir Adam Beck and the other public ownership promoters claim that their works are a success. The Financial Post, like the government, has good reason to fear that Chippawa can never justify its cost. It is a serious matter, this project which involves an estimated sum already approaching $90,000,000. The Financial Post believes that there should be a thorough inquiry to find out how these many millions have been spent, to decide at what price power is to be expected and, in brief, to let the people know where they stand in regard to this great undertaking—an undertaking which to-day stands as an experiment, the success of which is a matter for very grave doubt.

THIN, FADED HAIR NEEDS "DANDERINE" TO THICKEN IT

35 cents buys a bottle of "Danderine." Within ten minutes after the first application you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, helping your hair to grow long, thick and luxuriant. "Girls! Girls! Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, thin, scraggy. A single application of delightful Danderine will double the beauty and radiance of your hair and make it look twice as abundant.

RAVEN TRESSSES.

I had all kinds of glossy ringlets, until five years ago; they might have been admired by knights, so richly did they grow. Think not it vain if one confesses to glories passed away! I was proud of those dark tresses without a thread of gray. Oh, others had patrician faces, and some had princely frames, and some had all the airs and graces that captivate the dames. But I had hair so dark and wavy, had ways to get there but it worked up an appetite. Each guest was given a souvenir booklet with Hydro photos and information regarding what is, perhaps, the most momentous event in the history of Ontario province.

Joyous Welcome for Prince at Rangoon.

When the Prince of Wales arrived at Rangoon, India, he was accorded an enthusiastic reception by all classes and creeds in that cosmopolitan city. In Rangoon he received a welcome that 95 per cent of Indians everywhere have been longing to give him and would have given if they had not been coerced by the dark organization of sedition. From steamer to government house, whether in the crowded business streets, or in the square centred by the gilded spire of the Sule Pagoda, among its fresh dark foliage, or along the roads and avenues that lead to the governor's residence, the favor of the Prince's reception was unmistakable and sincere.

Chinamen and Armenians and Jews joined with the public bodies in setting up these gay symbols, many of which served also as stands for children, or soldiers' families, or students, or Buddhist disciples and novices. Everywhere the same delightful curiosity marked the groups of brightly decked sightseers, and in Burma color is everything. The real riot of silk is found not there, but Mandalay, so large is the Hindoo population in Rangoon with its sadder, vestments and its sadder mien, but the gaily joyous welcome.

Will You Cripple Your Ford

OR RENEW ITS LEASE OF LIFE!

When the Ford Car leaves the plant at Ford, Canada, it represents standardized production reduced to a science.

There is no lost motion anywhere in its construction, and each part is of the material and temper best calculated to fulfill the function it has to perform. The result is not only a car at a phenomenally low price, but a car so sound in all its component parts that it will serve you satisfactorily for many years.

Parts here and there will require to be replaced in time, and it rests with you at this stage whether you cripple your Ford or renew its lease of life.

The use of spurious parts will accomplish the former. Genuine Ford Parts will assure the latter. Spurious parts allow a greater profit to the seller and will be palmed off on you whenever opportunity offers. Take no chances. Demand Genuine Ford Parts and extend the life and usefulness of your car.
