

Charles Tupper Announces That Arrangements Have Been Satisfactorily Made.

Committee to Sit on Thursday—Inconsequent Talk at Washington.

Feb. 9.—During a debate on Columbia at the Royal Colonial Institute, to-day, Sir Chas. Tupper, High Commissioner for Canada, said that the relating to the arbitration of the Behring Sea question had been arranged on eminently satisfactory to Great Britain and Canada.

Manchester Examiner recalls the original Commission was one that only Sir George Baden-Powell and Dr. Dawson were appointed. All information possible in reference to his habits, and more general, was obtained by Sir George Baden-Powell, a serious discussion of the seals, and how and when they should be taken for commercial purposes.

The British Commissioners returned to Ottawa in October, and arranged and worked out the summer's work in the Northern Hemisphere, and in the latter part of the whole question of the Behring Sea, consultation with the Foreign Office and the authorities of Ottawa, it is desirable that a further commission should be issued.

Mr. Dawson to meet and the Commissioners similarly appointed by the United States Government, who that a report might be made on a purely technical basis, which would prove satisfactory to both governments, and which might thus be necessary for any more formal agreement, such as was suggested and agreed to by the agreement made by Lord Blaine in June last.

Mr. Healy then withdrew his amendment and took his seat, such action on the part of the police should be treated as a breach of privilege. Sir William Harcourt supported the original motion, saying that Mr. Deobain was a fugitive from justice and must take his chances of arrest.

British Cattle Importation.

The Felling in the Northern Country Intensity Against Existing System.

MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—The Star prints the following special London cable: "The agitation against live cattle imports is gaining dangerous strength." Following the Times the Morning Post, which hitherto has been most friendly to Canada, says that "in presence of the grave danger of a spread of disease to British herds the most obvious dictates of common sense are to close the ports of England. We are open to the importation of live animals, yet by an inexorable fatality we leave our doors open to the ports. The closure of our ports to live animals would make no difference to the imports of dead meat nor raise the price."

Bel's Weekly Messenger, another general issue of Canada, indicates the seriousness of the present outbreak and urges the public to support Mr. Chaplin, if necessary, to stop all imports of live cattle. The situation is one of grave peril to the Canadian trade, and the Canadian Government may perhaps strengthen the position by promptly announcing a rigid quarantine against Great Britain, cattle entering Canada from this continent and free state of British Columbia, as well as the rest of Canada.

Port Simpson Lands.

Some time since a proposition was broached to the trustees of the Port Simpson syndicate of water front property owners to place a limited amount of their holdings on the market, and the matter was finally accomplished by Mr. George E. Baldwin, with whom the trustees consented to make arrangements to sell some of the choicest property on the waterfront, and before the line of the survey made by the Canadian government for the Canadian Pacific, direct to the water front of that beautiful harbor. Mr. Baldwin was successful in his negotiations, and the best property owned by others under contract. The communication of a general sale of land will be held for Port Simpson, and bring it prominently and intelligently before the eyes of eastern capitalists. Matters are now in such a state that proper attention will be held for the new transcontinental line, which ought, in the near future, to make its terminus at that auspicious point.

A SPLENDID GAME.

Defeat Turned into a Well Gained Victory by the Victoria Boys Yesterday. A large and enthusiastic gathering witnessed the game of association football between the Victoria boys and the Victoria Athletic Club, yesterday afternoon. Except for a strong wind, which at times interfered with good combinations, the day was all that could be desired. The Victoria boys, in motion at 3:15, Westminister having won the toss and choosing to play with the wind. The victors early assumed the aggressive, and after some good passing secured their first goal from a well placed corner kick. Though the Victoria lads were doing well, they found it difficult to get the ball down to the Westminister goal owing to the high wind, and after some good bye-play Westminister secured another goal from the foot of Speelsbury, who was playing a strong game at that forward. Shortly after this, half time was called, the score standing two to nothing in favor of Westminister. The home team now had the wind in their favor, and before long Spring broke the ice. This seemed to rouse the energies of the Victoria boys, who now played with vigor, and Allen soon secured goal No. 2, thus bringing the score even. Westminister did not relax, and after some good passing secured their second goal, though at no time during the second half was the ball dangerously near the Victoria goal. The home team was not so successful, and the game ended in a draw, the score being two to two. A special dispatch from Ottawa says that the official announcement has been made that the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. has received positive assurances from the Imperial Government that a subsidy will be forthcoming to assist in the construction of a cable line from Victoria to Yokohama...

Reorganization of the James' Bay Athletic Association. Limited.

The New Trustees Will Endeavor to Carry Out the Original Object of the Club. A great many people residing in Victoria are probably not aware that there is in this city the best equipped and largest athletic club buildings north of San Francisco and west of Toronto. It is now about two years since some of the athletic young men of James Bay held a meeting to discuss the advisability of erecting a suitable club house, and to encourage all amateur athletic sports. The outcome of the meeting was the formation of a joint stock company, which was incorporated under the name of the James' Bay Athletic Association, Limited, with a capital stock of $10,000 in 2,000 shares of $5 each, for the erection of suitable club buildings. About half of the capital stock was subscribed, and in view of the encouragement given to the scheme, it was decided at once to proceed with the building. A well adapted site was secured at the foot of Main street, and the building, under the supervision of the architect, Mr. John Teague was called upon to furnish plans. The contract was let to A. J. Smith for the sum of $7,000, and within a short time a fine and commodious building was erected, and the club house was completed. The committee of management at once proceeded to furnish the rooms, equip the gymnasium and procure the boats, which was done at a cost of about $3000. This expenditure was incurred with the expectation that the balance of the stock, $5000, would be at once raised, and the club would be in a position to take up the matter, and the early management of the Association was entrusted to young and inexperienced hands, and no effort was put forth at the time to dispose of the stock, and clear the indebtedness. At a meeting of the shareholders called in the latter part of December, 1891, a financial statement was presented which was a sad revelation of the situation, and it was decided to close the club buildings until the affairs of the Association could be placed in a proper financial condition. At the annual meeting held on February 2nd, the matter was discussed, and the following gentlemen, viz: Trustees—H. D. Heimeken, Dr. J. D. Heimeken, Geo. Byrnes, J. Holland and R. Jones, with H. D. Heimeken as chairman, and R. Jones as Secretary-Treasurer. Committee—J. S. Yates, Skene Lowe, A. L. Belyas, V. Mitchell, Ross Munro, E. C. Sullivan, E. O. Finlason. At this and subsequent meetings a number of gentlemen agreed to subscribe for the balance of the stock, and it was decided that the balance of about $3,000 should be taken up. With this object in view the management have decided to make an earnest effort to dispose of this stock, and place the club in a position to take up the matter, and the early management of the Association was entrusted to young and inexperienced hands, and no effort was put forth at the time to dispose of the stock, and clear the indebtedness. At a meeting of the shareholders called in the latter part of December, 1891, a financial statement was presented which was a sad revelation of the situation, and it was decided to close the club buildings until the affairs of the Association could be placed in a proper financial condition. At the annual meeting held on February 2nd, the matter was discussed, and the following gentlemen, viz: Trustees—H. D. Heimeken, Dr. J. D. Heimeken, Geo. Byrnes, J. Holland and R. Jones, with H. D. At this and subsequent meetings a number of gentlemen agreed to subscribe for the balance of the stock, and it was decided that the balance of about $3,000 should be taken up. With this object in view the management have decided to make an earnest effort to dispose of this stock, and place the club in a position to take up the matter, and the early management of the Association was entrusted to young and inexperienced hands, and no effort was put forth at the time to dispose of the stock, and clear the indebtedness. THE CITY.

From THE DAILY COLONIST, Feb. 12.

Mount Baker Smoking. Grand old Mount Baker was crowned with a smoke cloud for several days past, and the stories of a possible eruption are revived.

In the Hundreds. Although the exact figures cannot be known until tomorrow, it is learned that the results of the recent young ladies' drill, directed by Mrs. W. Marvin, will be presented to the Jubilee Hospital and the British Columbia Benevolent Society of about $100 each.

Presman's Coming. Meyer Raven has sent an invitation to the members of the Quebec Press Association to visit Montreal, and to attend during their contemplated Western trip, and it is more than likely the newsmen will come.

Out at Saanich. Fully fifty Victoria drove out to Saanich last evening to enjoy the annual ball and supper given by the Agricultural Association. They have not returned up to the hour of going to press, but it is to be safely presumed that they had a good time.

In Other Hands. The well known Douglas House, at the corner of Currier and Queen streets, has been purchased by Mr. Richardson to Mr. P. H. March, formerly of St. Catharines, Ontario, who will have it thoroughly refitted and ready for opening in a few weeks.

Mr. Larch's Best Who Laughs Last. A few days ago the opinion mongers were clanking over the fact of their having voted the Seattle police, and landed a quantity of dope in that city; now their nemesis is turned into mourning—the staff was as a d. Tacoma, and it is the police who laugh last.

A Return Party. The Leap Year social, given by the young ladies of the Hebrew church, recently, was such a big success that the gentlemen of the congregation intended to try to give another in the way of a return treat. They are arranging for a social, to be held at an early date, when the ladies will be made their guests.

Ministers' Dinner. The first ministers' dinner of the present session was given last evening at Hotel Dallas, where a sumptuous spread was provided. The gentlemen sitting down at table were: Hon. Messrs. Tolmie, Keele, Anderson, Baker, Booth, Croft, Eberts, Fletcher, Hall, Hunter, Martin, Nason, Rogers, Smith, Stoddart and Pugh.

The 28th of March. The annual meeting of the C. P. N. C. was held, Wednesday night, in the parish hall, Cedar Hill, was, as usual, quite a success. The attendance was not quite so large as expected, in consequence of the visitation of a gripple, which has been prevailing in the city since the house in the district. The rector occupied the chair and Ven. Archdeacon Scriven advocated the claims of the missions.

The George Road Social. A very pleasant "Welcome Social" was given in the school room of the George Road Methodist Church, last night, which was attended by a very large number of people. Several hours were spent in pleasant intercourse, and the refreshment table was well patronized. It was one of the most successful affairs of the kind that has ever been held in connection with this church.

Considered Bored. Mr. Fred J. Roper, inspector of contagious diseases, returned yesterday, from a trip to Salt Springs, where he observed the destruction of two horses belonging to Mr. E. J. Rosman, of Victoria, which were sent to him by the doctor. Mr. Roper states that the disease is only animals that he noticed in this neighborhood as being affected with disease.

Nelson Towner. A writer has asked why further information was not given about the real estate of Nelson Towner, who he held at Davis' auction rooms, at noon on Tuesday next. The advertisements in the several papers state that the sale will be in subdivisions 58 A and B2, group I. Comprehensive maps of the township showing the several subdivisions have been issued, and have been generally distributed, so that everyone has been fully informed on the matter.

Kidnapped. The household of Police Officer D. Driscoll was in a state of great excitement last evening, over the kidnapping of Mr. Driscoll's little adopted son, Alfred Moore, by one of his own men, who is known as Moore, was killed by the Indians. The boy was playing about the house, when a stranger caught him up in his arms, carried him to a street car, and disappeared. The youngster was found, about nine o'clock, on Campbell's corner, crying bitterly, by Mr. Driscoll's daughter, Mrs. Folger. It is supposed that the boy was mistaken for another about the same age.

An Indian Chief Dead. Early yesterday morning, James, the son of the Indian Chief Jim, of the Songish tribe, died, after a lingering illness of some months. James was a promising young man, about 25 years of age, and was usually intelligent. Last summer, while breaking a horse, he was thrown from an animal's back, and received a severe laceration in the chest. His life was despaired of for some weeks, but his hardy constitution proved death until yesterday morning, when he passed away. He will be interred, today, at the Indian cemetery, and a large attendance of Indians is looked for.

Mistress of Their Own Movements. Among the passengers by the City of Kingston, last evening, were four young ladies of London, the Misses Bidley, who are now en route from San Francisco to Europe, via the C.P.R. The train-continuing party is but part of an all-round-the-world journey which the little family party has made, untrammelled by escort or chaperon. They intend to spend some time in England, Italy, France, Spain and Portugal—in fact, do the Continent thoroughly; going and coming as they please; and directing all their eight-seating like train, free and independent American girls.

E. C. Fisheries. Mr. Samuel Wilmet, one of the Fishery Commissioners appointed to enquire into certain matters connected with the Fraser River fisheries, is in this city. He arrived last night, and is expected to be in conference with Messrs. Higgins and Armstrong, the other two members of the Commission, and arranging a programme. The Commission hope to start for the scene of operations at an early date, awaiting which certain preliminaries will be gone through. It is their desire to have all reliable information as to the present state of the fisheries, and to receive any suggestions as may be made for the improvement of this great industry. No time will be lost in the matter, and should it be necessary to

A FEW SUGGESTIONS.

From One of the Largest Property Holders in Victoria, on Municipal Affairs.

Mr. W. H. Oliver, who leaves here on Sunday for his home in San Francisco, was again visited by a COLONIST reporter, yesterday, and questioned further as to his ideas on the assessment and taxation of this city.

An Application to Discharge. An application was made before Mr. Justice Crease in Chambers yesterday, morning in the case of Jones vs. Jones, for leave to withdraw the petition, and to have the order which directed that the parties make a court order. The application was heard in part, and proceedings were then adjourned until this morning at 10:30.

Opening the New Church. The new Baptist Mission Church, at Victoria West, was formally opened on Sunday, Feb. 14. The services were held in the morning, and Rev. Mr. Morden, Methodist, also taking part in the services. On Wednesday evening, the opening social was held, the children's treat prior, and takes his money with him. He reaches San Francisco, and, after seeing the city, enquires what he can purchase at a certain price, and then he returns to tell him, $50,000. And the assessment?—$12,500, or just 25 per cent. of its selling price. Don't you see how that fact catches you?

E. C. Deposit and Loan Company. A special meeting of the shareholders of the E. C. Deposit and Loan Co., was held in the office of the company, Douglas street, last night. Sir Joseph Trutch, president of the company, presided, and a large attendance and a number of letters were read from the old country as to the advantages of British Columbia as a field for profitable investments of capital. The correspondence was discussed at length, and several suggestions made as to the most favorable areas of investment. The meeting closed at 10 o'clock.

Preparing to Hunt Ore. The Spokane Chronicle says: Mr. F. S. Barnard, M.P. of Victoria, B. C., a large stockholder in the Kootenay and Kootenay Navigation company, and who is interested in other pioneer business enterprises, arrived in Spokane, Saturday evening. Along with him was Mr. H. G. Kootenay, a large investor in the proposed Nelson and Fort Shepherd railroad. They will confer with him with D. C. Corbin, president of the Spokane & Northern railroad, with reference to the proposed mining camps during the coming season. It is expected by these gentlemen that the magnitude of business will be very great, and they are prepared to meet the demands for rapid transportation.

German Lutheran Church. The German population of Victoria and vicinity, are notified that a collection will be taken on Sunday, Feb. 21, at the German Lutheran Church in this city. Rev. Mr. Hanson, who has held service in Port Townsend, and also here for several months past, will visit his daughter, Miss Ella Hanson, with her mother, Mrs. Hanson, and the other English families who may be inclined to assist in this deserving enterprise. Rev. Mr. Hanson is desiring to receive any communication in favor of his undertaking. The German Imperial Consul, C. L. Lewenberg, has kindly certified the list by his name and seal.

Looking Out for Himself. Police Officer Smith was trudging all over the city, Wednesday, in search of two young women named Burns, and accompanied by their 17-year-old brother Harry, who wanted to go to the States. The boy was found several nights ago by J. Miller, in a piece of bush, on Spring Ridge, where he had built a peculiarly constructed hut out of logs and other branches. In this he was preparing to spend the night; he doubtless would have done so, had not the kind-hearted officer taken him to his mother, and he had to go to Seattle and left him, and he didn't know where his sisters were. The boy's parents came from Newcastle-on-Tyne, to Seattle, where the mother, who is a widow, had a small house connected herself with a Protestant church, and where one of her daughters, a child of 10, is now held by the Sisters. Mrs. Burns has gone to live over the road, and her little girl, and it is the suit which took her to Seattle. Harry was left in the house, with his sisters Anna and Ella, who are both in the hands of the police.

A Million Among Eight. A gentleman named Dupont, who came to the American Consulate about a year ago, and requested the consul to see "if he had not some money coming to him" in Pennsylvania, can get particulars that will very probably enable him to share in a fortune of over a million dollars by calling at the U. S. Consulate. The story in connection with Mr. Dupont is not long, but is interesting.

A Point of Law. A case of more than usual interest before the city police magistrate yesterday was that of Wm. Hill, representative of the clothing firm of Saunders & Co., Toronto, who was charged with having violated the Revenue Law by soliciting orders, not having paid to the city the required license fee of $50. Mr. G. M. Bonta presented the case, and the magistrate, after consulting with the city treasurer's office, who deposed that Mr. Hill had not paid his license fee; Mr. Hill, however, deposed that he had been solicited by clothing by the defendant. The magistrate found in favor of the defendant, and Mr. Hill had leased two rooms for a year from Messrs. Tolmie & Stuart, and therefore had a permanent place of business. This is the contention of Mr. E. M. Phillips, who appears for the defence, and who intends to show that having tendered $5 to the proper officer for a retail license, his client has complied with the law, and that the defendant is liable for the amount of the license fee. The case was adjourned for the purpose of allowing the prosecution to obtain further evidence.

The Body of a Chinaman Discovered Yesterday Morning, on Store Street.

At about 11 o'clock yesterday morning a laborer was working among the rubbish heaps on the corner of Johnson and Store streets where the new building for Mr. Simon Leiser is soon to be erected, and he discovered the body of a Chinaman underneath the cellar flooring of a shack next to Marks' clothing store. In several portions of the limbs the flesh had disappeared, leaving the bones only, and the corpse had evidently been in its position for a year or more. Immediately the discovery was made known several persons crowded to the spot, and the police telephoned for Dr. Miles. On the doctor's arrival he pronounced the bones to be those of an elderly Chinaman, and said that they had evidently been lying there many months. There was no appearance of any fracture on the skull, and as far as could be perceived no suspicion of foul play. In the coat pocket was found a receipt for a pair of trousers in Chinese. The following is a translation of a receipt which I saw in the Chin Sim wing company a debt, details of which are given in the paper for yesterday.

A COLONIST reporter made enquiries in Chinatown, yesterday, and saw three of the witnesses undertaking the case, namely, I. O. U. to the leading Loan society of the Chinese here. The following was the result of his investigation: King Due, or as we were more commonly known, was a leper, who used to beg on the corner of Store and Johnson streets, and who served several terms in the city jail for various offences. He was known by residents of that part of the city. Many people on Johnson street will no doubt call to mind the stolid figure almost invariably seen in the afternoon, sitting on the curb, smoking a long pipe, in front of the California hotel. When the order was made, about three years ago, that in future no lepers should be tolerated in the city, King Due was ordered to leave the city, and nothing has been heard of him since. It was his body that turned up yesterday, lying on an old bed, no doubt just as he had died, his "sleeping quarters" underneath the bottom flooring of the shack. It is known that he and two other lepers used to sleep in that spot. The body was taken to the Victoria Hospital, and will probably be interred today, at the expense of the M.H.O. Benevolent society.

At the regular meeting of the M.H.O. Benevolent Society, on Thursday evening, the following officers for the next quarter were installed: President, Wm. Dyer, L.D.; Bro. H. Anderson; Vice-President, P. C. T. Clifton; Secretary, Wm. Dyer, L.D.; Treasurer, D. M. Bro. Turner; Bro. Merriman. The reports of officers were read, and proved the lodge to be in good standing financially and otherwise.

FOUND IN THE RUBBISH.

The Body of a Chinaman Discovered Yesterday Morning, on Store Street.

At about 11 o'clock yesterday morning a laborer was working among the rubbish heaps on the corner of Johnson and Store streets where the new building for Mr. Simon Leiser is soon to be erected, and he discovered the body of a Chinaman underneath the cellar flooring of a shack next to Marks' clothing store. In several portions of the limbs the flesh had disappeared, leaving the bones only, and the corpse had evidently been in its position for a year or more. Immediately the discovery was made known several persons crowded to the spot, and the police telephoned for Dr. Miles. On the doctor's arrival he pronounced the bones to be those of an elderly Chinaman, and said that they had evidently been lying there many months. There was no appearance of any fracture on the skull, and as far as could be perceived no suspicion of foul play. In the coat pocket was found a receipt for a pair of trousers in Chinese. The following is a translation of a receipt which I saw in the Chin Sim wing company a debt, details of which are given in the paper for yesterday.

A COLONIST reporter made enquiries in Chinatown, yesterday, and saw three of the witnesses undertaking the case, namely, I. O. U. to the leading Loan society of the Chinese here. The following was the result of his investigation: King Due, or as we were more commonly known, was a leper, who used to beg on the corner of Store and Johnson streets, and who served several terms in the city jail for various offences. He was known by residents of that part of the city. Many people on Johnson street will no doubt call to mind the stolid figure almost invariably seen in the afternoon, sitting on the curb, smoking a long pipe, in front of the California hotel. When the order was made, about three years ago, that in future no lepers should be tolerated in the city, King Due was ordered to leave the city, and nothing has been heard of him since. It was his body that turned up yesterday, lying on an old bed, no doubt just as he had died, his "sleeping quarters" underneath the bottom flooring of the shack. It is known that he and two other lepers used to sleep in that spot. The body was taken to the Victoria Hospital, and will probably be interred today, at the expense of the M.H.O. Benevolent society.

A RAMBLE IN PARIS.

An Old Victorian's Impressions While Strolling Through the World's Gayest City.

The Magnificent Thoroughfares of Paris—A Visit to the Goblin Tapestry Works.

[By an Old Victorian.] On arrival in this beautiful city from London one realizes at once that he is in a foreign country. The language, dress, innumerable cafes and wine shops, and the long rows of small tables and chairs, outside the wine shops, with their various occupants sipping such beverages as different tastes suggest, all remind that you are not in England or in British Columbia. Servants and shop-keepers, male and female, dress more plainly and sensibly than the same class do in England or America, with neat dresses, as a rule, winter or summer, which make one feel that there is an improvement; at all events, there is an absence of gay bonnets and ribbons. All classes are more old-fashioned in their dress than in London, notwithstanding that Paris is supposed to be the parent and originator of fashion. Men do work here which western people would consider heavy enough for horses; such as carrying heavy loads of merchandise on a wooden frame adjusted to the back, and pulling large hand carts, to which they are regularly harnessed. In this toilsome work they are sometimes assisted by a strong dog, harnessed to the axle under the cart; and this is to be seen where the motto on every public building is, "Liberty, equality, fraternity."

THE BOULEVARDS AND AVENUES are the pride of the city, nearly all 300 feet wide, with side paths 30 to 40 feet wide, planted with trees of a uniform height of 30 feet—such as the boulevards Italian, Montmartre, St. Germain, Kleber and the Avenue de l'Opera. The side streets off these beautiful thoroughfares are on an average 50 feet wide. The wooden plank pavement is being adopted, and the old noisy stone system disappearing as in London. The water is so arranged at the outer edge of the sidewalk so as to be easily turned on to wash the side gutters, which are shallow, in this water is constantly running along the edge of the streets in a clear stream. An army of scavengers keep the streets in splendid order. All holes and gratings to carry off surface water are under the sidewalk—a great improvement. The houses in nearly all streets are built in a uniform style, and five stories high, with iron balconies to every story. All corner buildings are rounded off. All of ornamental architecture, producing a very grand effect. I considered London a city of shops, although there are several streets of private houses, without shops, but here every street has its shops, with dwelling houses in flats over them. Many of the private houses are built in court yards in the rear of the shops and approached by a narrow passage, to the front side; and many of the wholesale warehouses are built in the same fashion. The omnibus and tram-car system is very good—six cents inside, three outside, to any part of the city; three horses to each omnibus; no electric cars in any street. The theatres are very numerous and suited.

TO ALL GRADES OF MORALS—the Opera—the finest in the world—is a national institution, generously maintained out of the public purse for the promotion of music and art of the highest class. Everything is done for the people, and by the people, and the old palaces, not necessary to a Republican president, notably the Louvre and Luxembourg, are turned into national art galleries—free to the world—where the best collection of ancient Assyria, Greece and Egypt, together with the best painting and sculpture of the Middle Ages, as well as modern art, are to be seen. Here you will see what you do not see in London: a hundred of working women going through those galleries, and manifesting an intelligent appreciation. The Goblin tapestry works are now the property of the nation, where a large staff of artists are always at work, producing the finest tapestry. One may wonder where the production goes, until it is realized that it takes several men nearly a generation to finish one piece of nearly 20 feet square. The writer asked two men at work on a tapestry carpet,

ABOUT TWELVE FEET SQUARE, how long it would take to finish; they said seven years. This is all hand work, most delicate and intricate, requiring much patience and skill. One may say that no city could compare with London in such things, but the Paris outstrips it. This traffic is so enormous and incessant that it is unsafe and difficult to cross a street. I account for this from there being a very large upper middle class of rich people, who do not keep carriages, therefore use cabs. Goods of all kinds are dearer than in London. Meat, wine and spirits are cheaper. Servants' wages, the same as in London—$8 to $10 per month.

The park "Bois de Boulogne" is very fine, but the drives are not so well kept, nor are the trees so well grown as in Hyde Park. This is a city of magnificent churches, occupying the most prominent sites. The clergy are not happy, having lost their influence over the people. Unfortunates, indeed, prevail. Tradesmen are to be seen pursuing their calling on Sundays, the same as in any other day, and generally take a holiday on Mondays. The writer had the honor to attend a reception given by M. Carnot, the President of the French Republic, at the Elysee Palace. The gorgeous suite of salons and palm houses, thrown open, the ladies' dresses and diamonds, the uniforms and decorations of foreign ambassadors, and of naval and military officers, the band of one hundred performers, in an Oriental room, off the large palm house, together with the magnificent supper room on the other side of the palm houses with its silver and crystal appointments and delicate refreshments, presented one of the most elegant and brilliant spectacles conceivable. The President resembles Lord Lansdowne. He was dressed in plain evening dress, with some decorations, and was most agreeable and unpretentious. I am glad to have found a point of common interest with my own city—in the climate—white heat that of Victoria—a little snow, rain and frost alternately—the degree of cold being the same, and both being free from such fog as we have in London.

ALCOHOLIC INSANITY.

The Terrible Curse of a Drinking Father on His Children.

A writer in the Fortnightly on "Phases of Crime" in Paris says that alcoholic insanity is twice as prevalent in that city as it was 15 years ago. Nearly one-third of the cases of lunacy are from this cause. He says drinking has so increased that during the last 10 years a new type of criminal has appeared—the children who have inherited homicidal instincts from their drinking parents. One of these instances as an illustration of hundreds which have come within his knowledge, he gives as follows:

A few months ago I was present in Dr. Garnier's consulting-room watching the prisoners from the depot filing past. We were informed that a child had been brought in by its parents to be examined. These people were shown in. They belonged to the respectable working class and were quiet and well-mannered. The man was a driver of a dray belonging to one of the railway stations and had all the appearance of a stalwart working man. The boy was barely 6 years old. He had an intelligent, rather pretty face, and was neatly dressed.

"See here, Monsieur le Docteur," said the father, "we have brought you our boy; he alarms us. He is no fool; he begins to read; they are satisfied with him at his school, but we cannot help thinking he is insane, for he wants to murder his little brother, a child 2 years old. These days he has nearly succeeded in doing so. I arrived just in time to snatch my razor from his hands."

The boy stood listening with indifference and without hanging his head. The doctor drew the child kindly toward him and inquired, "Is it true that you wish to hurt your little brother?"

With perfect composure the little one replied: "I will kill him; yes, yes, I will kill him!"

The doctor glanced at the father and asked in a low voice, "Do you drink?" The father replied indignantly: "He, sir! Why, he never enters a public house and has never come home drunk!" They were quite sincere. Nevertheless the doctor said: "Stretch out your arm."

The man obeyed; his hand trembled. He had the people told him, then, in stating that the man had never come home the worse for drink? No; but all through the day, wherever he had called to leave a package, the people of the house had given him a drink for his trouble. He had become a drunkard without knowing it, and the poison that had entered his blood was at this moment filling the head of his little child with the dreams of an assassin.

MISS MITCHELL'S WEDDING.

The Residence of the Duke and Duchess—Some Facts about the Ducal Pair.

Paris, Feb. 12.—The following, in regard to the marriage of the Duc de Rochefoucauld to Miss Maggie Mitchell, will be of interest to readers on the other side of the Atlantic. Miss Mitchell, who is 26 years old, has for some years been one of the acknowledged belles of Washington, and according to some of her admirers, she is the most beautiful woman her country has ever sent abroad. Her beauty is undeniable. A woman above the average height of her sex, with a figure perfect in its rounded curves, and especially proportionately well-proportioned, with golden hair that falls naturally; light brown eyes expressive of tenderness and yet firmness, and a complexion so softly blended in its pink and white shades that it has been the envy of most of the society women of Washington. The Duc de la Rochefoucauld is a captain in the 16th Regiment of French chasseurs. Francis Alfred, Duc de la Rochefoucauld, is the head of one of the most distinguished families of Europe, and when his name is mentioned a procession of venerable historical images is conjured up. The duke's principal seat is Chateau Montravel, five hours' journey from the capital. The chateau is situated on a magnificent estate, with large parks and fine shooting forests, the whole constituting one of the most superb places in France. In addition, the duke owns two other chateaux, both charming, although not equal to Montravel. In anticipation of his marriage he has now secured a beautiful house at Beaune, in the famous "Cote d'Or," five hours from Paris, on the road to Marseilles, Nice and Genoa. The residence is a residence. There he has furnished in sumptuous fashion and provided with well-filled stables. There he will probably take his American Duchess for the honeymoon. People so well provided with dwelling places have some difficulty in deciding whether they have a home, and if so, where it is; but it is the intention of the duke and duchess to spend at least three months of every year at Montravel. Captain de Rochefoucauld would not be considered very rich on Fifth Avenue, but he has an income sufficient to keep up his estates and enable him to live in elegance, and it takes considerable money to do that. The present match affords at least one instance of an international marriage in which the dollars are not required to rigidly show European coronets or redeem them from pawn. The coronet of the Rochefoucaulds is still in good order, with no powder showing through the gilding.

The bridal dress was rich and plain, of ivory satin and edged with the traditional orange blossoms around the skirt. Narrow plaits with an ample ruffle of white orange blossoms composed the corsage, sleeves close-fitting to the elbow. The neck was covered with old Point d'Alencon lace, which was held in place by a Ruechou family, and which falls over the corsage to the waist. A long fall veil covered the entire dress, being fastened at the top of the head by a Henry IV. bouquet of orange blossoms.

Not Quite Clear. In regard to the Duke of Fife article, Mr. James Bland, Jr., writes: "I beg to state that I am not the grandson of Mrs. Porter, the actress, my father being the grandson of the late Rev. James Bland, of Derrigun Castle, Co. Kerry, Ireland, and great-grandson of Nathaniel Bland, LL.D., of the famous 'Theobald's Well' in Dublin, and Vicar-General of the Diocese of Ardret and Aghadoe."

MAXIMS FOR HOUSEKEEPING.

The housewife should be content to spread their bread. Many a good dinner is spoiled by an ill sauce. He that is at ease seeks dainties. In a good house all is quickly ready. When the stomach chimes the dinner hour don't wait for the clock.—Table Talk.

For dish-towels some people use crash, which would be of the very best quality, though old drilling or a poor quality of ticking make better ones; and many ladies prefer light weight unbleached muslin, as a cotton cloth does not leave the lint that linen does when a little worn. For dish-rags buy white mosquito netting—a quarter of a yard is sufficient for one—should be used for bed and table, as many times as the width will allow and as a comfort. Some make them of a ball of candle-wick, knit on two wooden needles the size of a lead pencil. Set up to one of the railway stations and had all the appearance of a stalwart working man. The boy was barely 6 years old. He had an intelligent, rather pretty face, and was neatly dressed.

Soft holders to use in taking up hot dishes should be made six inches by eight, eight inches long and four inches wide. One corner to hang upon a nail close to the stove. Old stockings are good for this, or two thicknesses of pants cloth. Every housewife should have a good brush with little conveniences for doing her work. A short-handled, broad paint brush to wash the outside of window sills, and an old tooth brush for washing around the glass.

It is best to keep to one dealer, after you have decided which is best. To have your butcher, your poultryer and your vegetable and fruit man. They will all take greater interest in supplying a regular customer at reasonable prices. Buy your beef from one occasionally—especially if you always pay ready money. In buying beef there are a few rules to remember. Bullock beef is the best to buy. It should be fine grained, the lean with streaks of clean white-looking fat running through it, and of a bright red color. Unless there is enough fat the meat will be tough. Cow beef is paler than ox beef, and is not so nutritious; but if the meat is of a very dark red it is too old. To test beef, press it down with the thumb; if it rises quickly the meat is good. For beef, wash the shin-bone and a few pounds of the round. Soup meat should have as little fat as possible. The best beef for beef tea is from the round. Calf steak should be dark colored and have plenty of fat. In choosing poultry see that they have smooth legs and short spurs; the male birds are best. The feet should always be easily.

THE BLACK POPE.

Sketch of the Late General of the Order of St. Sava.

Father Anderledy, the general of the order of the Jesuits, whose death has recently been reported, was a very remarkable man, and in every way merited the title of "The Black Pope," which was given to him at the Vatican, says the Illustrated London News. He was born in the New York Recorder. He was the son of a Swiss peasant and was born on the slopes of the Simplon. During the revolution of the Sonderbund in Switzerland, when the Jesuits were driven out of the country, he came near losing his life at the hands of a fanatical and infuriated mob, and only escaped by being thrown in prison. He was at the time of the war known in the United States; for it was there that he was ordained priest, and for a couple of years he devoted himself to Catholic missions work at Green Bay, Wis. At one time he was at the residence of the late General of the Order of St. Sava, and the silvery tones of his musical voice were heard in almost every city of importance from the Atlantic ocean to the Russian coast. He was a man of great energy and gave way altogether. He fell dangerously ill, and for a time was entirely deprived of the power of speech. On his recovery his physician insisted that he should give up teaching entirely.

The late general was one of the cleverest and most ardent of the twenty-three aspirants for the order, but had since its formation been elected as Epistolary, and he spoke and wrote perfectly English, German, French, Italian, and Spanish. It is difficult to say who will be elected as Epistolary, but Anderledy's successor. The election will be awaited with great interest throughout the world, for the Jesuit society is the most powerful body of its kind in existence. Its organization is perfect, its wealth enormous, and the obedience of its members to their chief is absolutely wonderful. The remark uttered by Pope Sixtus IV. 100 years ago holds good to-day. "Imagine," he exclaimed, "the incalculable power of a fraternity at the mere mention of whose name, that of Jesus, every heart is forced to bow."

THE GRIP CURED.

Cured of a gripe, but hairless and skinless, William Spangler, of Dilworth, Ind., believes the remedy worse than the disease, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. The old man was seized with the epidemic and took to his bed. He was attended by a good-hearted neighbor, called to see the sick man, his sympathy prompted him to suggest a sure cure for the prevailing disease, and Mr. Spangler consented to try the remedy at once under the personal supervision of his kind neighbor. Eggleston then procured a large bath tub, filled it with hot water, put in the water a peck of wood ashes and then assisted his patient into the tub. After an hour of soaking and rubbing in the lye water, Spangler was bathed from the top of the head to the soles of his feet with turpentine, wrapped up in a warm blanket, and put back to bed. A few hours afterward he was a sight to behold. Blistered from head to foot he shed his skin like a snake in the spring time, nor was that all. The departing skin took with it every particle of hair and beard, leaving the old man, who before this course of treatment resembled a patriarch, bald as a billiard ball, and with a head and beard as smooth and hairless as a skinned calf. But the gripe was completely cured, and Eggleston says he will never be troubled with the disease again. The old man is improving, and physicians say he will get well of the effects of his peculiar treatment, but he is bald as a billiard ball. Eggleston is not likely to get in any other patients and is liable to be prosecuted for practicing medicine without a license.

WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

Irish fairs has reappeared for street gowns, and is as serviceable as ever for general and travelling wear. Home spun and chevots are kin to friezes, but are offered in a greater variety of colors and designs. To the development of wraps, which are never more essential than during the uncertain weather of early spring, are devoted the most elaborate dresses, of plush, tulle, and the materials being chosen either to match or contrast with the costumes with which the top garments are to be worn. A new making of dresses is peas-de-moyne, a very fine satin-like cloth, in soft shades such as sea weed, russet, pigeon blue, mouse gray, terra cotta, and seves blue. It is admirably adapted for making up the glove-fitting bodice, moulding the bust, so fashionably just now, and also for the elegant dresses, which are gradually taking the place of the narrow and straight four-course dress, in vogue at the commencement of the winter.

A very pretty dinner dress is of pale electric-blue flannel made en princess, and trimmed with draperies and cascades of cream lace; chemise of white crepe-de-Chine; and a pair of the elbows, are formed of rows of cream lace.

A handsome evening dress is of dark green velvet, cut in narrow panels embroidered with steel, and showing deep pleatings of apple-green faille; the bodice is cut in a V and embroidered with steel to match the skirt; light sleeves of velvet to the wrist, with short over sleeves of faille, embroidered with steel.

Trimmings in handsome Venetian guipure are among the pretty things of the day, as well for dresses as for mantles and bonnets. They are laid on plain, over colored velvet or silk.

Opera cloaks are made in the shape of a full circular, with a Watteau pleat in the center, and showing deep pleatings of apple-green faille; the bodice is cut in a V and embroidered with steel to match the skirt; light sleeves of velvet to the wrist, with short over sleeves of faille, embroidered with steel.

Large hats are seldom worn now-a-days, save with driving and carriage toilettes, having yielded precedence to small and elegant shapes for every occasion. For the promenade nearly all chapeaux of moderate size are fashionable; the toque is favored for theatre and general wear.

All hosiery is to be judged by the fineness of the thread and the closeness of texture, which, in the case of stockings especially, may be partly appreciated by weighing, as it were, the articles in the hand. In richly stocked stockings a certain amount of resistance against which it is necessary to guard. The spaces between the ribs, which ought to be formed by an inversion of the stitch, should be driven over by the weather and utterly destitute of durability. As ribs of stockings exposed to sale are necessarily made to order, the purchaser should be tested without introducing the hand and opening the tissue, when it will be instantly apparent, and indeed will exactly resemble the flaw caused by a dropped stitch in a stocking in wear.

SIGNIFICANT FIGURES.

Those who really believe that unrestricted reciprocity with the United States would be a boon of incalculable value to the farmers of the Dominion, should try to find out how it is that the farmers of the United States, to which the market of the sixty-five millions is open, are not better off in the Eastern States it is well known that farming does not pay, and, consequently, farmers are, by thousands, deserting their farms, and farming land is a drug in the market. In the western and south-western States, where the climate is good and the soil fertile, the farmers are far from being contented. According to the report of the United States census office they are very deeply in debt, and the amount they have to raise every year to pay the interest on the mortgages their farms is really appalling. Here are the official figures: "During the ten years 1880 to 1890 the mortgage business transacted to encumber the real estate in the five States of Alabama, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and Tennessee, is represented by 1,574,050 mortgages to secure a debt of $2,000,002,077 on 137,393,161 acres and 1,550,857 lots. An existing real estate mortgage debt of $906,669,526 has been found bearing interest rates varying from an average State rate of 6 per cent. in Tennessee to 8 1/2 per cent. in Kansas, and subject to an interest charge for one year amounting to $97,935,629. It is hardly a wonder that in their struggle to get out of this load of debt, the farmers of these States called upon the Government to help them and formed an Alliance to protect themselves from the banks and the money-lenders. A farmer does not mortgage his farm for the fun of the thing, and when he mortgages it to make improvements and to increase his possessions because he is prosperous, he pays the interest honestly and punctually, and does not listen to the wild schemes invented by cranks and demagogues, the object of which is either to force the State to shoulder his obligations or to enable him to repudiate them altogether with impunity. These figures show that what some supposed to be the best agricultural States in the Union, are very far indeed from being a farmer's paradise. Farmers in either the east or west of the Dominion would hardly change places with them.

THE TORONTO GLOBE'S CHARGES.

The Toronto Globe's attack on Sir Adolphe Caron will not lose its force when it is known that its informant and its investigator does not give his name, and that he is an apologist for Thomas McCrewey and the Connollys. The gravamen of Sir Adolphe's offense is that he drew upon Mr. Thomas McCrewey for considerable sums during an election campaign. When it is known that Sir Adolphe was a large contributor to the fund administered by Mr. McCrewey, as treasurer, it will be concluded that his drawing on it was not, in any way, blame-worthy. There is not a word in the statement of the gentleman described by the Globe as "a director of one of the leading monetary institutions of this country" to show that Sir Adolphe Caron had any reason to know that the whole of the money placed in Mr. McCrewey's hands for election purposes was not fairly and legitimately obtained. This is Sir Adolphe Caron's explanation of the matter, as contained in the letter of the gentleman correspondent of the Globe, of the 8th inst.

"I have read in the Globe the letter from Montreal with copies of orders given by me on Mr. McCrewey during the election contest of 1887. These orders were signed by me, and I take the responsibility of the giving of these amounts to the gentleman named. As stated in the orders, they were for legal or rather for legitimate expenses. They were given under the following circumstances: Friends of mine and myself contributed towards the election fund to defray expenses of candidates running in the interest of the Conservative party. These funds I placed in Mr. McCrewey's hands, as I was often away addressing meetings and conducting the campaign throughout the district, and I have in my possession Mr. McCrewey's receipts for sums larger than the amounts of the orders I gave upon him, so that these orders were not for any money given by Mr. McCrewey from any other source except through me. Several of the candidates were young men who could not be expected to bear the legitimate and necessary expenses incidental to an election contest, and we found what other funds Mr. McCrewey had not the sources from which they came. I had charge of the elections in the District of Quebec. If an examination is made it will be found that the amount of the orders I gave to pay money to the several candidates was only fair and reasonable. No amount was given unless previously agreed to by the committee who had charge of the campaign. So far as I know, this is the plain and unvarnished truth relating to the matter."

Every reader who is at all candid will admit that the circumstance a man drawing upon a political fund to which he has contributed, is no evidence that he had a knowledge of the source from which every contribution came. If it could be shown that Sir Adolphe Caron was, ever so indirectly, a party to the funds perpetrated on the Department of Public Works, by Murphy and others, then no lover of honest Government should have any consideration for him. He should not be allowed to hold his portfolio in peace for a single day. But there is nothing in the alleged revelations to show that he had at the time any greater knowledge of those funds than had the Hon. Whitford Laurier. The Montreal Gazette commenting upon the Globe's charge against Sir A. Caron, says:—"Now, the only point in the whole narrative worth a moment's consideration is the attempt to directly connect Sir Adolphe Caron with the corrupt use of money improperly obtained, and we frankly admit that if the evidence on this head were clear and direct, the Minister's usefulness would be gone, to use an historical phrase. If, instance, it were proved that Sir Adolphe had drawn upon McCrewey for large sums of money to be corruptly spent in procuring the candidature of political friends in the Quebec District, knowing at the same time that the money in question was obtained by a levy upon contractors under the Government, who were in due course to be repaid out of the public treasury, his conduct would merit the severest censure. But the Globe's informant does not wish to say anything of the kind."

Our Montreal contemporary, which is in position to speak almost authoritatively on the subject, goes on to say:

"We speak only for ourselves, but we believe we voice the sentiment of the Dominion Government and of all honest Conservatives, when we say that if the Globe, or anyone else, has any evidence to produce of wrong-doing on the part of Ministers of the Crown, of malfeasance in office, of spoliation of the public funds, opportunity ought to be and will be given for their investigation, and that wherever guilt is found, adequate punishment will follow. The Conservative party has neither the desire nor the intention of shielding anyone who betrays a public trust; the place for such men is in the stocks. For Ministers, Legislators and other leaders of the Liberal party."

This is the proper stand to take. If any one knows, and can prove, that Sir Adolphe Caron, or any other Minister of the Crown or representative of the people, was in league with contractors to rob the Treasury of the Dominion to advance his political fortunes, it is his bounden duty to speak out and let the people know who have been unfaithful and dishonest. But those who know nothing about the matter, and who only suspect public men of wrong-doing, should hold their tongues. The informant of the Toronto Globe did not say enough. If he honestly desired to advance the cause of honest Government in the Dominion, he should have made against the Postmaster-General some specific charge of wrong-doing, which he was prepared to prove. If he was not in a position to prefer any such charge and to substantiate it, if his only object was to throw dirt in the hope that some of it would stick, then the course which he has taken, though unmanly and unscrupulous, is likely to prove for a time, at any rate, successful.

THE AMERICAN VIEW.

How intelligent and influential Americans regard the question of reciprocity with Canada, may be seen from the following extract from the New York Sun:

"Aware that the Canadian farmers are smarting under the restrictive effects of the McKinley Act, the Premier (Abbott) writes to Washington to try to regain for their products access to the markets of the United States; and that he would take the wind out of the sails of his Liberal opponents, who have long advocated a similar union. So, according to a telegram from Ottawa, he means to send Sir John Thompson and Finance Minister Foster to Washington for the ostensible purpose of arranging for a reciprocity treaty between this country and the Canadian Dominion. Let us say frankly that, great as our sympathies are for the Canadian Liberals restored to power at Ottawa, it is doubtful whether they would meet with a favorable reception from our people. Not that any one would dispute the sincerity and comprehensiveness of the proposal. The Canadian Liberals are our friends, and the large proportion of them, who are distinguished by a hearty belief that free commercial intercourse would form the shortest road to annexation. The kind of reciprocity, however, which they desire is not designedly one-sided, but essentially unrestricted, aiming to make the Dominion a consumer of American manufactures in return for the field opened to the surplus produce of Great Britain, thus giving our factors a practical monopoly of the Canadian market. That is the utmost they could offer short of annexation, and we should be well wadded if we supposed that the slightest distrust of their good faith when we say that their concession is no equivalent for the boon we are requested to confer."

THE RECIPROcity MISSION.

The return of the three Cabinet Ministers after a short stay in Washington shows that they have not been able to accomplish much towards preparing the way for a reciprocity treaty between the two countries. It was hardly to be expected that they would. The party in power in the States is intensely protectionist. We really believe that the Republicans are more conservative and jealous of foreigners, with respect to matters of trade, than the Chinese themselves. The Republican politician cannot be made to understand how a trade can be carried on by two nations which is profitable to both. They believe that what the one gains the other loses. Five-sixths of their arguments in favor of their system of trade exclusion is based upon this assumption. Reciprocity with Canada, a country which produces the same things which the States produce, cannot, they argue, be beneficial to them. Although they will find, if they enquire, that the twelve years during which there was a partial reciprocity between the two countries it was advantageous to both, they do not believe that like causes will produce like effects in the present day.

What the ruling party in the States wants now, more than anything else, is a question must be considered with reference to the coming presidential election. If more votes will be lost than gained by entering into reciprocal trade relations with Canada, then the consideration of the reciprocity question must be postponed, no matter what its merits may be. There is no doubt, judging by the tone of many Republican newspapers, that reciprocity with Canada is unpopular with the rank and file of that party, and it is the first object of Mr. Harrison and his supporters to keep the rank and file in good humor. They cannot afford to dispense those from whom they expect support.

Then, again, there are quite a number of influential and influential politicians in the States who hate Great Britain and who make their hatred of everything British, part of their political capital. As Canada is a British colony, and as any treaty of reciprocity in which it is interested must be made by Great Britain, the self-interest of the British lion would raise a tremendous uproar if the Government of the United States agreed to favor Canada, at the expense of the tollers and taxpayers of the United States. This would not be true, but this would be how the anti-British bosses would put the matter, and they would find among those whose support the Republican party calculates upon many hearers whose votes would be influenced by their oratory. As long, therefore, as the ultra-protectionists are in power, and as long as the anti-British vote is powerful in the United States, it will be vain to hope for closer commercial relations with our neighbors across the line.

The Government did right in doing what it could to obtain a reasonable reciprocity treaty, and it is not to blame that, owing to influences which are too powerful for enlightened Americans to control, failure was a foregone conclusion.

A CANARD.

A report comes from Albany, New York, that the Prince of Wales will visit America in the course of a few weeks. If His Royal Highness had any intention of crossing the Atlantic, the first intimation of his voyage would not be contained in a telegram to a private gentleman residing in an American city. The Governor-General of Canada would receive official notice of what had been decided upon, and of the Canadian cities which the Prince proposed to visit. Ample time would be given Her Majesty's subjects in the Dominion to make preparations to welcome the Prince of Wales in a manner suitable to his rank and their loyalty. The story of the Albany telegram is, therefore, most improbable. It can hardly be doubted that it is one of those fabrications of the American newspapers which have nothing to recommend them but their unpeppery impudence and the boundless confidence of their inventors in the credulity of the public.

THE SALMON FISHERY COMMISSION.

It is greatly to be regretted that there should be any difficulty in the way of the Salmon Fishery Commission pursuing its enquiries. The subject is one of very great importance to this province, and one which should not be hastily or imperfectly investigated and deliberated upon. It is difficult to understand why Mr. Wilmot was sent here while the Legislature is in session. It is surely known in Ottawa that the Hon. Mr. Higgins is Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, and it is also known that during the session the Speaker's time is fully occupied, and that he cannot, without great inconvenience to himself, then give his attention to the work of the Commission. There is some talk of Mr. Higgins resigning. A sincerely good man that there is no foundation for it, but that he will keep his place on the Commission. His appointment gave great satisfaction to all concerned, and it will, we are convinced, be a public misfortune if the salmon fishing and salmon packing industry is, at this important crisis, deprived of his ability and his experience. Surely some arrangement can be made by which the full Commission will be able to perform.

THE ONLY PRICE.

The organ of the Opposition in this city is delighted because it is convinced that the Cabinet Ministers were unable to do anything towards preparing the way for a reciprocity treaty when they were in Washington. It was not to be expected that unless they were prepared to sell Canada to the United States they could do anything. The Canadians have been told time and again. Our contemporary says that "apparently there can be no prospect of securing reciprocity until there is a change of Government." Are we to understand from this that the Liberals are prepared to give the Americans what they regard as the equivalent of the only kind of reciprocity which they think it worth their while to talk about? It is not to be supposed for a moment that the Americans care three straws for our politics. They would as soon deal with the Conservatives, as with the Liberals, provided they get what they ask—and that is Canada, body and bones.

FREE SILVER.

It is pretty certain that the free coinage bill will be carried in the House of Representatives and it is quite possible that a majority of the Senate will vote for it. It is certain however that the President will veto the measure. The indications at this moment are that the free silver will be the great issue at the next Presidential election. The Democrats are divided on the question but the Republicans are nearly all in favor of a sound currency. The attempt to give money a fictitious value is not by any means a new one. Kings in the golden time debased the coin and tried to make their subjects take it as if it were composed of pure metal; and later, governments endeavored to give the paper money which they circulated a value which was not warranted by their financial standing. Both attempts were failures. No Government under the sun can, for any length of time, compel a people to give more for an article than it is really worth. There is no magic about money; it is subject to the same laws as any other commodity. When it is plenty it is cheap, and when it is scarce it is dear. It is known to be good metal take it readily, but when it is suspected to be bad they instantly reject it. The Government's paper, too, is like that of an individual. When the maker is known to be solvent and able and willing to meet all liabilities, it passes from hand to hand readily; but when the maker's credit is bad, when it is believed that he is either unable or unwilling to meet his obligations, his paper is worthless, or, if taken at all, is taken at a discount, heavy or light, according to the supposed risk. Middle-aged men have seen the paper of the United States Government greatly depreciated, and that of the Southern Confederation not worth more than the proverbial "Confederate." All this was according to a law which is universal in its operation,

THE WRONG CAUSE.

The despatch from Washington, D.C., in our yesterday morning's issue assumes that the United States Secretary of State was ignorant of the precise status of the Canadian Cabinet Ministers when he invited them to Washington to have an informal talk with him about reciprocity. But this is doing Mr. Blaine a great injustice. Whatever else he is, he is not an ignorant man. He knows that members of the Canadian Government or Commissioners sent by that Government have no authority to negotiate a treaty. He knows perfectly well that the men who can negotiate with him authoritatively must be accredited by the Imperial Government. But he also knows that any terms which met with the approval of the Canadian Commissioners would be the basis on which a treaty would be drawn up by British plenipotentiaries. Neither Mr. Harrison nor Mr. Blaine need to be told that it is the policy of Great Britain to give to Canada the widest possible scope of self-government consistent with maintaining its connection with the mother country. They know that in all treaties made of late years in which the interests of Canada were involved, the wishes of Canadians have been consulted and, as far as possible, carried out. They require no one to tell them that the provisions of treaties which related to Canada have been to all intents and purposes Canadian. The manufacturer of the Washington telegram very likely did not know this for the ignorance of many American newspaper correspondents respecting Canada is phenomenal. But Mr. Blaine must have been perfectly well convinced that any scheme of reciprocity which would meet with the approval of Sir John Thompson and the Hon. Messrs. Foster and Currier would be sanctioned by the Government of Great Britain. The only difficulty which the Secretary of State might have in accepting the views of the three Cabinet Ministers would be an uncertainty whether they were in agreement with the wishes of the Dominion Parliament. Let it be granted that they are in accord with the majority of the representatives of the Canadian people, their want of authorization from the Imperial Government would give Mr. Blaine no trouble. Whatever may have been the cause of the mission to Washington being premature of no practical result, it was not because those composing it had not power to agree to any basic reciprocal trade that might be decided upon. If matters had advanced so far that proper accredited negotiators were required, no treaty would be lost in sending men to Washington. The probability is that the Canadian Commissioners soon found that the only terms that the American Government would listen to were such as no patriotic Canadian and no loyal British subject would think of entertaining. There is evidence to sustain this conclusion from a hundred quarters. It is, therefore, much more than a mere surmise.

conveyed by rail across the continent will be apparent. There is no trade in cattle between British Columbia and the Atlantic ports, and it is impossible to imagine circumstances under which such a trade could be established. The objection that has been made, more strongly, never came across the Atlantic. It was raised, called, made nearer home for the express purpose of giving a few ranchers in the North-West a monopoly of the British Columbia cattle market. The device is a rather clever one, but the authorities in Great Britain are surely too intelligent to be deceived by it for a single moment. The general impression in Ottawa about which our correspondent speaks was, we venture to say, made by ranchers from the West, and not by ignorant alarmists in the East.

There has been a quarrel between the Bank of England authorities and Sir Thomas Milwraith, treasurer of Queensland, which has ended disastrously for that colony. This is how it came about: Queensland, like the other Australian colonies, has been borrowing very freely in the English market for the purpose of constructing what are supposed to be productive works, some of which are not productive yet, and are not likely to be for some time to come. Debts coming due on the last of July last, Sir Thomas Milwraith had to look about him for money. He tried to float a new loan in London, but the time being unfavorable and the gliding-edge of Australian securities having become somewhat tarnished, the loan was a dead failure. While the attempt to raise the money by loan was going on, Sir James Garrick, Agent-General for Queensland, had a talk with the Governor of the Bank of England, who, to encourage him and the Queensland Government, said that if Government, acted on the Bank's advice "the bank would not see it in difficult." This promise was repeated more than once. Sir James Garrick appears to have understood the Governor of the Bank to mean that if the money needed could not be raised by loan at once the Bank would advance the amount, which was £1,170,000, or nearly $5,800,000. Sir Thomas being given to understand that the Bank of England was ready to stand between him and all harm, made him self easy. He believed that when July came he would be ready to pay the bonds as they had matured, and that all he needed was to look out for some means to pay the Bank of England for his advances. But after a time, when the four per cent. loan had failed miserably, the Governor of the Bank of England became more explicit and told Sir James Garrick that the Bank was prepared to do to help Queensland out of its difficulties. He offered to lend the colony £500,000 to meet its most pressing engagements. When the proposal was telegraphed to Queensland, the Treasurer called back that he did not understand the reference to the £500,000. He was an angry and disappointed man, and he, afterwards, said in the Legislature that "the Bank had not acted in the way an honest bank ought to have done," and that "if anybody trusted them, he would be lost." When brought to book for the language he had used with regard to the Bank of England, Sir Thomas Milwraith said that he did not wish to impute dishonesty to the Bank, and that the words which he had used had been taken from a speech of a Socialist Englishman. The Bank, however, is far from being appeased, and the London Times takes the Treasurer of Queensland severely to task. It says that "the charge was as foolish as it was unmanly," and that "it is a misfortune for Queensland that she should have been saddled at such a critical time with a Treasurer whose temper is not under proper control, and who, in the impropriety of his language is pointed out to him, adheres to, and emphasizes it, although he is quite unable to justify what he said."

A TRUE PHILANTHROPIST.

We see that thousands met in London a few days ago to do honor to General Booth. We are not at all surprised at this, for General Booth is a remarkable man, and he has undertaken to do a wonderful work. He is emphatically the friend of the friendless. The work of his life now is to feed the hungry, to clothe the naked, to give shelter to the shelterless, to raise the fallen and to preach the Gospel to the poor. He has organized a system, the object of which is to bring under the influence of religion those who had been given up by almost all religious organizations as beyond hope. What his success has been, we are not in a position to say, but the conception was a most beneficent one, and the means he has taken to carry it out are extraordinary in their extent and completeness. The Salvation Army will be regarded by the historians of the future as one of the most remarkable of the social phenomena of the age. But it is Booth as a philanthropist, rather than as a teacher of religion, to whom we wish to direct attention just now. In his book "In Darkest England and the Way Out," General Booth propounded a scheme by which the hundreds of thousands who are sunk in poverty and vice in the British Islands can be made self-supporting and useful members of society. The sum he required to carry out his great philanthropic scheme was one million pounds sterling. The book made a deep impression, and soon one hundred thousand copies were published to enable him to make a beginning. There were many who shook their heads at the folly of trusting an enthusiast with such an amount of money, and many others, trusting the General, predicted that the money would not be expended in the cause to promote which it was subscribed. But the result has shown that those who had no faith in the prudence or the honesty of the General were mistaken. He has proved an excellent man of business of the strictest integrity. He has given a good account of his stewardship. He has shown that every shilling of the money he received has been judiciously expended, and that the fund is larger now than it was a year ago. General Booth's scheme included a City Colony, a Farm Colony and an Oversea Colony. The City Colony is now well under way, the foundation of the Farm Colony has been laid, and it is believed that the Oversea Colony is to be established in New Zealand. So the General's work of abolishing the London slum has been commenced, and some of his helpers and admirers say that "the thing will be accomplished within twenty-five years." He has established in London eight important Shelters, with a capacity of from 250 to 600 each. These are lodging houses in which the homeless, poor, and destitute, who are often rejected, can get shelter. There are also in operation under his three Poor Men's Metropoles, in which decent and comfortable lodging can be had for from eight cents to twelve cents a night. They are described "as spotlessly clean, having reading rooms and laundry facilities." These lodging houses are always full. Seven food depots are in full blast, where the outcast can get more and better nutriment for a few coppers than can be had elsewhere for anything. The Bank of England becomes more explicit and told Sir James Garrick that the Bank was prepared to do to help Queensland out of its difficulties. He offered to lend the colony £500,000 to meet its most pressing engagements. When the proposal was telegraphed to Queensland, the Treasurer called back that he did not understand the reference to the £500,000. He was an angry and disappointed man, and he, afterwards, said in the Legislature that "the Bank had not acted in the way an honest bank ought to have done," and that "if anybody trusted them, he would be lost." THE VILLAGE OF THE FUTURE.

Opinions of Sir Walter Foster, M.P., on Cotter Life in England. Speaking to his constituents at Ockbrook, Derbyshire, recently, Sir Walter Foster said that in the next Parliament, one great feature of his program would be the interest and care taken for the wants of localities such as that in which they met. They were, in that corner of the division that he had the honor to represent, a place removed from the great town population, and a place of a more or less rural character. Localities like that had hitherto been outside the current of local government. The affairs of the district had been managed in a way that had been going on for many generations, and people had become or less used to the current of local government. It would not be so much longer. When this state of things was altered every man would feel that he had a right to have a voice in the management of his own affairs. The village life of the future would be made better than it was. This alteration of rural life had received much impetus of late. They had had a great conference in London. Why did those delegates from the various agricultural districts meet together in London? They met together to discuss the current of local government. It would not be so much longer. HARBOUT AT WHITECHAPEL. LONDON, Feb. 17.—Sir Vernon Harcourt's speech, at Whitechapel, has attracted much attention, partly from its subject matter, and partly because the orator did not deny his right to the title granted him by the chairman of the evening, Samuel Montague, M.P., who, in introducing Sir Vernon, spoke of him as the leader of the Liberal party in the House of Commons. By some, this incident is taken as indicating that Mr. Gladstone decided not to take any active part in Parliamentary proceedings again, unless the Liberals come into power once more during his life, in which case he will be the active leader as the nominal leader of the party. In the course of his address, Sir Vernon alluded to the recent division in the House, during the debate on the Speech from the Throne, when the Government narrowly escaped defeat, as a sign similar to that afforded by the election in Rosendale. It was another token that the power of the Government was near its end. It was one of the inevitable symptoms of approaching dissolution. He predicted that the Irish Local Government Bill proposed by the Government would be found to contain provisions intended to act as checks and safeguards, but which would in fact render the measure impracticable and unworkable. He was confident that the differences existing among the Irish Nationalists were only superficial, and that they would not hinder the giving of a united Irish support to the Liberals in Parliament.

THE ROMAN-DORTVILLE combination came to grief at East Portland, Oregon, last week. The reports concerning the cause are conflicting. Mr. Brown and his wife are now here.

FIVE LIVES ARE LOST.

The Victoria Sealing Schooner Oscar and Hattie Towed into Yaquina Bay.

Captain Ganit and Four of His Crew are Drowned—Very Meagre Particulars.

The Victoria sealing schooner Oscar and Hattie, the property of the Pacific Sealing Co., was towed into Yaquina Bay, Oregon, yesterday, and now lies there awaiting the instructions of Mr. John L. Penney, the managing owner, for which First Mate Peters wired yesterday afternoon.

With Captain Ganit commanding, the Oscar and Hattie sailed from this port on the 23rd of January last, with a picked crew of twenty-three men, for a hunting and fishing cruise along the Coast. Nothing was heard of the schooner and those on board until yesterday, when a telegram came to Mr. Penney as stated above, but giving no details of the catastrophe. All that it said in telegrams was, "a picked crew of twenty-three men, for a hunting and fishing cruise along the Coast. Nothing was heard of the schooner and those on board until yesterday, when a telegram came to Mr. Penney as stated above, but giving no details of the catastrophe. paired before the end of April, it will certainly give way, and immense damage be done to the ranches along Mill creek.

According to a competent engineer, it would cost $300 to fix the dam permanently.

Capt. T. D. Short, of the Penitentiary, recently returned, on Friday, from Tacoma, where he had taken 15 tons of ore to the smelter, from his mine, on Okanagan lake.

The object was to test if it would pay to ship the ore so far, and he has come to the conclusion that there would be no profit in it, owing to the frequent transportation of freight, duty and general expenses.

No returns have yet been received of the Siwash creek quartz, which he took down with him.

Mr. G. Macleod, of Slocan, has been successful in his claim for land at Eagle Pass Landing, the Dominion Government granting him the whole 483 acres for which he has been contending.

He is an old Carboniferous and still wishes to revisit Lightning Creek, where he thinks he has a fortune; he has been deterred hitherto by the dispute over his property.

For many years he has been prospecting gold seams of old extent in the White Valley and Cherry Creek country, outcroppings being frequent in Cleighton valley and the mountains of the Slocan.

The probable extension of the Nicola Valley R.R. through Cherry Creek Valley has added stimulus to the excitement and activity of prospectors.

They are waiting for the decision of the court in the case of the late Mr. C. J. Shupav.

A snowdrift occurred at Glenwilliam, on Tuesday, at the same place where Thomas Loftus was killed, last week, where 13 Chinamen were working.

Two were injured, and taken into Kamloops the same evening.

William Boyd, a half breed, who was released from confinement at the B.C. penitentiary, was drowned about 2 a.m. on Friday.

He was on his way home with two companions, from whom he separated, taking a course back into the river.

They heard him shout for help, but before they could reach him it was too late for his rescue.

On Monday night Gaele Sinclair was called to the reservation to quell a drunken riot.

After some courageous and vigorous work, he secured one of the Indians, and the next day another, Felix Tomah, one of the best of the Indians, was taken into the penitentiary.

Phillip Tomah, his brother, is on remand.

A petition has been circulated and numbered, asking the Legislature to make an appropriation for a bridge across the Thompson on the Hudson Bay Crossing, near Kamloops.

This is the third year that a petition has been forwarded to the Legislature asking for an appropriation for a bridge at this place.

Capt. Sanderson is having his steamer—the Marlin—thoroughly overhauled from stem to stern, and expects to have her ready to start for the coast in a few days.

She is being repaired by the firm of Messrs. Kellogg and Robson early next month.

A gentleman from Quebec, who passed through Revelstoke on his way to the coast, has been given one month's imprisonment.

THE "BEAVER'S" BOATSWAIN.

Facts Photographed from the Memory of the Sole Survivor of the First Crew.

On a lone living representative of the crew which brought Columbia's pioneer steamer round the Horn in the early thirties remains to tell the story of her venturesome voyage, and it was through the enterprise of a member of The Colonist's staff this sole survivor was discovered.

As we passed the scene of the mysterious Shea murder, which happened last fall I instinctively turned and looked at my guide. He was struggling like an aged bull in the throes of a rapid. My suspicion turned to sympathy and I actively pulled and paddled, and was soon in muddier water again.

The canoe swirled around, and we made for shore, as I suppose, Johnson is found. No such luck! My abbreviated "Shoe Shop" hobbies along the beach for a few yards, and I suddenly picks up a deerskin gull, which, judging from appearances, died some two weeks previous from some wasting disease, superinduced by the Grippe.

Our bird was carefully stowed in the forecastle, and we continued our journey in silence. Soe-Sop does not speak the English tongue; the only sounds breaking sharply upon the great stillness were the swish swish of the paddle, the occasional howl of a wild bird, and the muffled splatter-splatter-whirr of the timid mallard or teal as it squawked out of range. Now and then we heard the report of a rifle reverberating along the cascades, the noise being sustained from thirty to forty seconds until away off in the distance the rippling water sounds beat against the hills, like a photographic representation of a volley of musketry fired over the grave of a departed soldier.

Mountains—mountains everywhere, rising majestically above and behind us, supporting the spectacularly dramatic awe-inspiring. At eleven o'clock, a haze which had clothed the distant mountains since early morning, slowly lifted, rendering the view dream-like and soft.

At high noon the sun throws a flood of light over the astrolabe of the river. The angry peaks are turned to beds of silver, the nearer hills take on a deep green, and the turbulent river assumes a bright blue tint. Still the depressing solitude, still we journey on, and on—journeying sometimes but half a dozen yards in as many minutes.

At ten o'clock the boat was again headed for the shore by my devout director. "Johnson at last!" I cried exulting. My reply was a guttural grunt and a sign to pull the dug-out higher up on the beach. Alas! white man proposes and Indian disposes. I was led to a cabin close by, where Soe-Sop waved me an introduction to a young woman with amiable manners and handsome features, who I afterwards learned was Mr. Johnson's daughter, and informed me by gestures that I would have to walk the rest of the way, around two more mountains; that Mr. Johnson did not live there in that cabin. I held a council of war with myself, for I expected I was getting rather the worst of it, I decided to go back to the cottage and ask Miss Johnson and the elderly lady, the two occupants, to arbitrate on the question, with the result that Mr. Soe-Sop was severely censured by them and sent back with me to the early days at Victoria, where I was getting rather the worst of it, I decided to go back to
