CONFERENCE CONSIDERS THE ONE-MAN-CAR

At a conference held yesterday afternoon in the office of Mayor Schofield, city hall, arguments for the operation of a one-man type of car were put forward by Thomas H. McCauley, manager of the New Brunswick Power Company, while negative claims were maintained by members of the motormen and conductors' union, represented by Ira D. Farris, the president. Some points of dispute were cleared away, but not all and it is expected that a demonstration of the one-man style of car will be made early next week, to Mayor Schofield and other officials, to determine how far the objections of the operators are justified.

SIR EZEKIEL MLEOD.

The career of a distinguished citizen terminated at Hampton yesterday, when the former chief justice, Sir Ezekiel McLeod, passed away. He was one of a group of very able lawyers the county of Kings has given to St. John, and like some of the others he became active, prominent and successful in political affairs. It was on the bench, however, that he achieved his highest honors. Made an attorney in the year of confederation he devoted himself to his profession for many years and won a high reputation. When later in life he was appointed to the bench the profession at large agreed that it was a reward of merit as well as a recognition of high confidence of the people, and the profound respect of the members of the legal profession. A somewhat reserved man, Sir Ezekiel was never active in general affairs apart from the line of his duties; but he took a very deep interest in educational affairs, especially in connection with the University of New Brunswick. Rather averse to social gaiety, he had always a circle of close friends, by the survivors of whom his passing will be deeply mourned. He had attained the age of four-score years, and despite ill-health, enjoyed life to the last, with the zest of a man whose years had been filled with purposeful activity and honorably devoted to the service and welfare of his country. Sir Ezekiel McLeod was a young man when he lived to it grow to its present position. He helped in his own province, and for a term in the parliament at Ottawa, to shape its destiny. He has gone to his rest at the close of a long, high and an honorable career, such as may well prove an inspiration to young men in the legal profession in his native province.

NOVA SCOTIA POLITICS.

An interesting political convention is called for today at Sydney, its avowed purpose being to "bring about a political fusion of the Labor Union, the Farmers and the War Veterans in Cape Breton county." At a preliminary meeting held at Glace Bay a few days ago, Mr. John Watson, president of the Independent Labor party, said it was their intention "to have a ticket placed in the provincial field comprised of two labor representatives, one farmer and one veteran."

The Halifax Chronicle falls upon this movement with clubs. It says:—

"Of all the incongruous political combinations ever imagined, much less seriously proposed, this of a fusion of Laborites, Farmers and Veterans is the most grotesque. There is practically nothing in common among them or between any two of them. In the first place, the farmers of Nova Scotia are ordinary good citizens, devoted to the common interests of the country. At least they have always proved themselves so, and have not yet shown any signs of a change of heart or disposition. They have heretofore been content to co-operate with their fellow-countrymen of every occupation for the advancement of the general welfare."

The Chronicle charges that a sudden sell for the establishment of class distinctions in politics has seized organized labor, due to the activity of certain leaders who are not paid for political work and should confine themselves to that for which they are paid. It further asserts that there is no room in Nova Scotia for more than two parties. This, however, is obviously not the view of the farmers, who have just adopted a platform and decided on a province-wide propaganda in favor of a farmers' party. They have decided not to nominate candidates until their organization was completed, and this may spool the convention at Sydney, so far as they are concerned. It is quite clear in any case that there are to be three instead of two political parties in Nova Scotia. The farmers' movement appears to have definitely spread to include that province, although in some sections it is not received as yet with any enthusiasm.

AN ENGLISH ILLUSTRATION

While in this city and province we are only at the beginning of an effort to introduce vocational training it is interesting to note what is being done in England. In the city of Leicester an up-to-date history and textile school is to be established to train young people for those leading industries of the city. The Leicester Mail says:—

MOVEMENT TO MAKE GALLIEO'S HOME A NATIONAL MONUMENT

Rome, May 23.—(Associated Press Correspondence)—A movement has been started to make the home at Arcetri, called "Jewel," where Galileo lived from 1631 to 1642 a national monument and to collect there all Galileo relics. While Galileo lived at Arcetri he was called to Rome to answer a charge of heresy before the Inquisition.

On his return he witnessed the death of his daughter, who was a nun. In this particular house he dictated "dialogues" of new sciences, which he considered was his masterpiece. It was there also that he received the post Milton and was presented by Holland with a golden chain in acknowledgement of his services to science.

PLACING THE BLAME

Of all wild times these are the worst; our divers goats we lose, and sages with an aching thirst blame things to lack of booze. The honest toiler can't get stowed when his day's work is o'er, and so he strikes, in bitter mood, and jumps the useful chore. If he continues at his task, though angry, sad and dry, oh, what, the thirsty sages ask, will that man's wages buy? He cannot buy a crate of gin nor purchase beer or ale; travel the river. About five miles below Prescott the head of the first—the Gallop—is reached; to look so violent as others are encountered farther. Just below the ship enters the swirling waters of the Du Plat rapids and soon afterwards one reaches the nine miles of tumbling water of the turbulent Long Sault. After this is reached and entered the ship races through at a speed of twenty miles an hour with all the power that it can muster. The force of the current alone and with a perceptible going down hill feeling on the deck.

Just below the ship enters the swirling waters of the Du Plat rapids and soon afterwards one reaches the nine miles of tumbling water of the turbulent Long Sault. FORMER CHIEF JUSTICE DEAD

Sir Ezekiel McLeod, retired chief justice of the supreme court of New Brunswick, died of pneumonia at 7:15 o'clock last evening at his home in Hampton. He had been seriously ill only a few days, although for a week previous to the pneumonia attack he had not been in the best of health. The news from his bedside during the last day or two had not been favorable and his passing was no surprise to close friends who were aware of the serious nature of his illness.

Sir Ezekiel became well known in the dominion when he represented St. John in the house of commons, and his name came into greater national prominence when he played an important part in the investigation of the sinking of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Ireland, which was in collision with the Norwegian coal carrying steamer Storstad in the St. Lawrence River, a tragedy which cost many hundreds of lives among the passengers of the Empress. He was appointed by the dominion government to sit on a board of enquiry soon after the accident. He also was a member of a commission inquiring into political charges involving former Conservative cabinet ministers.

Sir Ezekiel, M.C., K.C., M. G. L.L.D., was born at Penobscot, Kings county, October 29, 1840, the son of John and Mary (McCreedy) McLeod. He was educated at King's school, Sussex. He studied law and in October, 1867, was admitted as an attorney. He took a course at the Harvard law school in Boston in 1867, where he won the degree of bachelor of laws. In 1900 the University of New Brunswick conferred on him the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

In October, 1868, he was called to the bar, and in 1882 was made a Queen's counsel. Upon his admission to the bar he opened a law office in this city and practiced here up to the time of his appointment to the bench. He was an authority on shipping matters and was considered to be one of the ablest admiralty court judges in Canada.

In May, 1888, he was appointed attorney-general in the government of New Brunswick, led by the late Daniel L. Hanington, afterwards a judge of the supreme court, and the late Sir P. A. Landry, also later a judge of the supreme court. In the same month he was elected as a member of the legislature for the city of St. John. He remained a member of the government until March, 1889, when, consequent on his defeat by Hon. Andrew G. Blair, he resigned with his colleagues, although he continued to be a member of the legislature in opposition to the new government until the legislature was dissolved and a general election ordered. In 1886 he was again a candidate for the legislature, but met with defeat.

In 1887 he was a candidate on the Conservative ticket for the dominion parliament at the general elections, standing for the city and county of St. John, but again he sustained defeat. In 1891, however, he was elected a member of parliament for the city of St. John. In May, 1896, he was appointed justice of the supreme court of New Brunswick and local judge in admiralty.

WANT LABOR MAN ON HOSPITAL BOARD

At a special meeting of the Trades and Labor Council held last evening in their hall, with the vice-president, Felix S. A. McMullin, in the chair, the report of the president, F. A. Campbell, delegate to the convention of the A. F. of L., was read and unanimously adopted. He reported that as hotel accommodation could not be secured and as no important business would be before the convention until next week, he decided to come home as he would thus save money for the council. He would return to the convention for the coming week and remain until the close. He leaves today for the convention city.

The council decided to send a delegation to the common council advocating the appointment of J. L. Sugrue to the vacancy on the hospital commission. The committee will be prepared with facts, which they will submit in case of a hospital investigation, to prove the justice of labor's demand for a voice in the management.

George R. Melvin was called upon with reference to the work of the committee in charge of the inter-union employment in the city. Mr. Melvin reported progress.

We Told You So!

(Friday Evening's Globe.)

John A. Barry appeared for the storekeepers, and in the cross-examination Inspector Saunders stated that he considered it illegal for grocers to sell lemon or vanilla extracts, that it was his duty to report all who had such for sale, and that it was not right to keep it for domestic purposes.

(Evening Times.)

On cross-examination by J. A. Barry, counsel for the accused, the witness said that handling lemon extract was an offence against the prohibition act, but he did not have time to visit the wholesalers and retailers and report them. He told the counsel that he would say that lemon and vanilla extract was not to be sold by wholesale or retail grocers even for domestic purposes.

Prohibition Benefits Plainly Visible

Alcohol is Never a Blessing—Its Banishment Will Not Reduce the Sum of Human Happiness—Duty of Citizens to Obey the Law.

(Charles W. Eliot in N. Y. Evening Post.)

The conversion of the majority of the people of the United States within three years to national prohibition as the only effective means of overcoming the horrible evil of alcoholism is a very remarkable, probably unprecedented, phenomenon in political, industrial and social history. It is distinctly an effect of the war, of the experiment on war prohibition in the camps of the improvised American army and in the circumstances that surrounded them. The prohibitory amendment to the constitution was the wonderful result. Resistance to the enforcement of the amendment, however, is still so common and so strong that it is important to study the effective means of overcoming this resistance.

Politically, the effective means is to bring women's suffrage into force all over the country. Only one state is lacking to the adoption of the amendment. There is no doubt in anybody's mind that the women voters of the country will be on the side of prohibition by an immense majority, and that universal assent is in itself persuasive in favor of prohibition legislation in the several states.

Industrially, a strong effect on public opinion will be produced by the collection and publication of the results already obtained by many employers of labor, large and small, as to the effect of prohibition on the efficiency and productivity of their several establishments. Already many employers are convinced that prohibition increases efficiency among their employees, because it diminishes causes of absence and tardiness, and also renders the individual workman more effective at his daily task. Such testimony from employers, collected and published by agencies which command public confidence, works naturally and properly have a strong effect on public opinion concerning the industrial effects on prohibition.

Increase in the industrial productivity of the country will be welcomed and properly maintained, especially if it is accompanied by an improvement in the public health.

The good social and family effects of prohibition can be seen and reported by physicians who are largely employed in city, school and corporation work, by nurses, whether school, district, maternity or out-patient, and by social workers employed by charitable churches or charitable organizations. All these classes of observers are in position to see the good effects of prohibition on men, women and children of all classes, and their observations and comments would be readily accepted by the most intelligent persons who are interested in the comfort, moral welfare and happiness of the whole people.

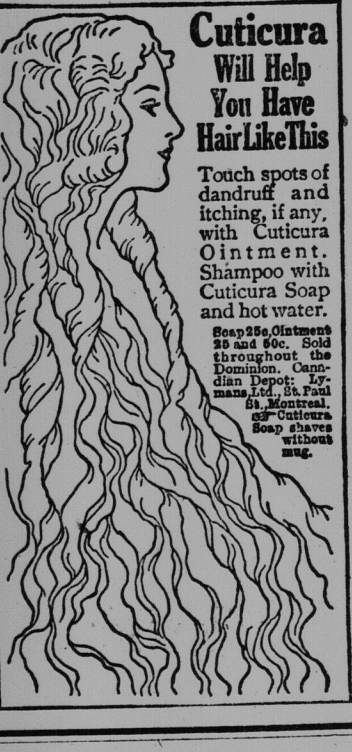

Alcohol Always Harmful. The change in the attitude of the medical profession within twenty years toward the use of alcohol by themselves and for their patients is noteworthy. Many physicians used to think that alcohol was a good thing to take when a man was exposed to cold, rough weather or prolonged fatigue. They have learned, largely from mariners, mountain climbers and athletes who enter vere competitions, that alcohol is harmful, not helpful, under conditions of exposure and strain. They no longer prescribe alcohol for sick, infirm or old people, as they used to. The greatly reduced expenditures for alcoholic drinks in all well conducted hospitals testify unanswerably to the changed habits of physicians in respect to prescribing alcohol.

The calling of nurse has greatly increased in importance within the last thirty years, and is now embraced by women of many sorts; but all exhibit a full vigor who ought to be at the height of their working power. The school nurses and the district nurse get into contact with all sorts of families and become intimately acquainted with the past and present conditions of the families who come into the service of manufacturing and mining corporations also come into intimate contact with the families of the working class, and learn much about the family conditions of both the permanent and the temporary employees. They soon become competent to testify to the improvement in family life which prohibition has already brought about and to the increased stability and efficiency of the body of employees they serve.

The nurses that attend the mothers of families before, at and after confinement are especially competent to testify on this subject, because they are sure to receive the confidences of the mothers they attend. If they remain long in the employ of the same corporation they will gradually acquire a multitude of facts with regard to the health and stamina of the children born before and after prohibition. Through the cooperation of the physicians and nurses in corporation employ, who keep an accurate record of the accidents among employees, the diminution in the number of accidents will soon be made to appear. Indeed, it is already appearing.

Since the adoption of war-time prohibition churches have had good reason to reconsider their duty with regard to bad example to the rest of the community, all the worse because it is set by persons who belong in large part to the better educated and wealthier class, which ought by rights to possess and illustrate the better manners. The responsibility for curing these bad practices in good society must rest chiefly on the matrons and the young women. The matrons can exclude from the dances and balls they direct men who offend in this respect, and the girls can resist effectively the use of liquor by young men with whom they are expected to dance, and particularly the bringing of intoxicating drinks by male dinner parties, supper parties and dances. This is a subject which deserves the careful attention of all ladies and gentlemen in order to secure appropriate action. The effective punishment for such offences is exclusion from polite society.

Since the adoption of war-time prohibition churches have had good reason to reconsider their duty with regard to effective reduction of the evils which attend the use of intoxicating drinks. Some denominations have maintained for many years a steady policy of promoting total abstinence; but most denominations have taken no decided action on the subject. The war having demonstrated that the alcoholic evil can be greatly reduced by vigorous action on the part of the national government, the several religious denominations may well consider whether the demonstrated effectiveness of prohibition in war times cannot be carried over into peace times, with a general recognition on the part of the public that widespread good results from prohibition legislation, and that its great contribution to the common welfare justifies the necessary restriction of individual liberty. It is by no means to be wished that total abstinence should be erected into a church dogma; but it is desirable that the dutiful and patriotic citizen should not oppose the civil methods of containing against the demonstrated evils which accompany the use of alcohol.

The well-recognized fact that life insurance can be sold to total abstainers in preference to other people needs to be brought to the attention of all reflective and wise citizens, no matter what of what descent or present status. It speaks volumes for prohibition. It ties prohibition up in one bundle with thrift, fragility, regard for community well-being and thoughtfulness for descendants and posterity.

What About Beer? The contest against pure or thoroughgoing prohibition in this country takes the form of advocating the public sale of light wines and beer. To get rid of distilled liquors would be in itself a wonderful promotion of public health and happiness, as Russia proved in her short-lived suppression of vodka; but American experience goes to show that it is difficult to prevent the illicit sale of spirits in seasons authorized to sell only wines and beer of specified low alcoholic contents, and all experience teaches that the habit of depending on alcoholic stimulation can be passed down an indefinite series of generations on light wines and beer only or chiefly. Since physiology and biological chemistry now teach that each man will be better off with no alcohol than with any under all circumstances, it follows that the prohibition amendment of other nations existing conditions both capital and labor transfer themselves without loss of either time or money from a noxious industry to some harmless one, the Bonus and both buildings and labor being at present sharp. How precious a privilege is that cheap!

It is a moving thought that if the United States succeeds in enforcing the prohibition amendment, other nations will emulate her example, and the human race may throw off a crushing burden of waste, disease and suffering.

SAYS LINEN WILL BE HIGHER. Because Flax Supply Is Limited, According to Irish Expert.

The prices of linen which have been soaring steadily since the outbreak of the war, according to Thomas J. Clark, an important linen manufacturer of Tipperary, Ireland, who is visiting this country to look over the linen situation here. Mr. Clark maintains that there is little chance that collars and shirts will be any cheaper for a long time, and the household articles which women covet, such as table cloths and other household linens, will be even more expensive during the next few months.

"There seems no present prospect that there will be any break in price for a number of years," said Mr. Clark at the Hotel Pennsylvania. "The reason for this is the scarcity of flax owing to the fact that Russia, which has heretofore provided the world with about 80 per cent of its supply, has for such long time been unable to contribute any. Ireland, while regarded as the world's linen centre, grows only a comparatively small quantity, and although the acreage devoted to flax has been greatly increased in the past few seasons, Ireland's supply of flax is relatively only a small percentage of what is needed. It is rather odd that flax is grown in such limited areas, but at the same time it requires certain climatic conditions to raise it successfully, and the grower must know exactly how to handle the crop. We tried to raise a crop ourselves, just a small crop, for experimental purposes. We left it out in the dew to become wet and lost the whole crop. So you can see it is not an easy undertaking."

"Apparently, we've got to look to Russia for our supply, although I know that linen manufacturers generally would be very glad to see an attempt to raise flax in this country. And as for Russia—well, we've made some investigations there recently and they convince us that it will be years before Russia can take her place in the flax market again."

And flax is the whole question. While labor prices have advanced, they are responsible for only a small part of the increased cost of linens. Our labor market is pretty good, although we've had some fluctuations just about the usual difficulties as you are having here."

PHONE HEARING IS CO-OPERATED

Morning and afternoon sessions of the Public Utilities were held yesterday in connection with the application of the New Brunswick Telephone Company for permission to increase their rates.

At the afternoon session Mr. Milgram was asked numerous questions by Mr. Teed and Mr. Weyman. To Mr. Teed he said the revenue from each producing station would average $43.98 against $40.79 estimated in his previous report.

Mr. Milgram told Mr. Teed that in St. John the average increase would be forty-two per cent. for every business man, while the increase on residential telephones would be twenty per cent. Mr. Teed thought the proposed increases were out of proportion.

Mr. Milgram said that it was a very decided advantage to business men to have a large residence development and a large number of residential telephones. He felt that no business telephone in St. John was going to be charged more than $4.00 a month.

Mr. Milgram said that the company is not acting on this as a fixed thing, the company get more revenue than necessary it would not have to come back to ask for a reduction.

Mr. Milgram told Mr. Weyman that he recommended a system of recording bills by means of slips of paper on a card. There would be slight additional expense in billing.

Mr. Milgram pointed out that it was a benefit to business men to be able to call up farmers on the telephone. Councillor Gaskin of Coverdale spoke of conditions in Coverdale and Elgin, where one line had twenty-eight subscribers.

Mr. Milgram thought that the board could adjust any difficulties there. The amount of revenue outside of St. John would be increased forty-five per cent. and forty-eight per cent. from St. John.

MEETING OF CHEESE AND BUTTER BOARD

Good Attendance of Salesmen, But Few Buyers in Evidence — Largest Sales Made on the Curb.

(Sussex Record). The first meeting of the N. B. Cheese and Butter Board was held on Friday afternoon, June 4th, at three o'clock, in the Agricultural School building. There was a good attendance of salesmen but the buyers, like at the previous meeting were few in number.

The bidding opened at twenty-seven and after much persuasive power on the part of Auctioneer Keith, reached twenty-nine cents, at which figure a small lot was sold to Mr. Gardiner for Armour's Ltd. Two small lots were also sold at the twenty-nine cents, by phone order, to Harbours & Co. and Puddington, Wetmore & Morrison.

The cheese boarded was as follows: Factory No. Havlock..... 60 Lower Ridge..... 60 Corn Hill Corner..... 60 Corn Hill C. B. C..... 130 Newtown..... 17 Killam's Mill..... 23 Lewis Mountain..... 28 Caronville..... 15

With the exception of the small lots as stated above, which sold for twenty-nine cents, the balance of the cheese was practically all disposed of "on the curb" for 28 1/2 cents.

The next meeting of the N. B. Cheese and Butter Board will be held on Thursday, June 22nd, at three o'clock, when every factory will probably have cheese boarded, and a big representation of salesmen and buyers are expected to be present.

BARRY SEEKS TO REGAIN HIS LOST SCULLING TITLE. Former Champion on Way to Australia Where He Will Meet Felton in August.

London, June 11—Ernest Barry, who lost his sculling title to Alfred Felton of Australia on the Thames river last year, is determined to establish every effort to regain the championship. Accompanied by Robert McAlpine, a Newcastle sculler who assists in training the scullers on the Parramatta River, he is on his way to Australia where he expects to meet Felton in another race for the world's sculling crown.

Barry has made arrangements to establish permanent headquarters during his training at the residence of George Town, which is situated close to the banks of the Australian river course.

13475 SAIL FOR OVERSEAS. Eight liners left New York for European ports in one day yesterday with 187 passengers, a remarkable number even for this time of the year.

The coroner took over $200, the Mauritanian more than $200, the storage being changed to second class to help handle the overflow. Every berth was secured as taken and disappointed would-be passengers who had stationed themselves at piers to see upon any accommodations that might be cancelled, waited in vain.

Steamship officers report a deluge of inquiries from all parts of the country regarding transatlantic accommodations, but steamers booked well into the summer. One prominent steamship official said:

If we had a dozen steamers as big as the Levantian we could have filled them easily this week. There must be at least half a million American tourists and business men anxious to get to Europe, who are debarred on account of the lack of ships to carry them over.

A Home Your Friends Will Love To Visit

After the wedding bells have chimed and the house warming is over, will she be happy or sad, delighted or disappointed? It all depends upon the good taste you and she have exhibited in feathering your nest. If your guests were complimentary, you and she will be very happy. If they failed to show their appreciation of your home, she will never be satisfied and therefore you will not enjoy the home which you had pictured so often in your dreams.

Furnish your home so that your friends will like it and then both you and she will enjoy having them come. A home is a dismal place without visitors to live up an evening. And they won't come unless your home is equally as pleasant as their own. They may enjoy your company but they would prefer to have you visit them. Good furniture may be had here at a moderate price.

SOUND BODIES CAN DEFY ANY SHOCK

Interesting Experiments on Soldiers During the War.

(Mail and Empire, Toronto.)

The great attention that is being paid to psychology in explaining the brain troubles called psychoneuroses, which are grouped under the heads of hysteria, psychasthenia (compulsions, obsessions, fears), neurasthenia and anxiety states, runs the risks according to Dr. Charles I. Dana, professor of nervous diseases, Cornell University Medical College, of making us lose sight of the purely physical causes of these. In an address before the New York Neurological Society, reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association, he remarked on the tremendous grip that the psyche has taken on the unthinking but reading world. "I like the soul," he continued, "and follow its aspirations, but I feel as if the psyche was overworking her job and becoming psychopathic."

Dr. Dana went on to point out that while all the psychologists say about these troubles may be true, it is equally true that they do not occur in bodies that are automatically and physiologically sound. To say that a disorder is due to emotion, to some prompting of the subconscious or to a suggestion is only a partial explanation. If the body had been perfectly sound this emotion would not have upset the mind.

And he cited some interesting experiments made by Dr. Alfred Carver and Dr. A. Dinsley on soldiers during the war. War neuroses were familiar to all military surgeons. These experimenters state that a large group of them were commotional and not emotional. Of this group, some were the effect of direct concussion of a missile on the head or neck, but no damage to the brain, spinal cord or membranes; others were caused by violent variations of air pressure due to nearby explosions and yet others to extremely rapid vibrations which are one of the least known products of the detonation of high explosives. Such vibrations are capable of agitating the nervous system in a way that closely resembles the effects of emotion.

Their experiments led them to the conclusion that while some war neuroses might be brought on by purely emotional shocks, most of them had a physical cause. There are many theories as to how a shock affects the brain, but all come to the same point—namely, that the paths of free communication in the brain may be blocked or made free by physical and mental agencies. The brain and other parts of the nervous system are made up of nerve cells, with extensions reaching to all parts of the body, and impulses are produced by the orderly connection of these nerve cells one with another, just as connections are made on a telephone switchboard. A severe shock appears to give such a jolt to the mechanism that connections are no longer properly made, just as an earthquake might let a switchboard so that connections could not be made upon it. The highest functions of mind, such as deliberate thought, judgment and self-control, call into play a multitude of nerve-cells, and the connections between these are extremely delicate. Therefore, it is readily understood how easily a shock, mental or physical, may put the mechanism out of order.

The practical bearing of all this is that such mental disorders can generally be cured by a neurologist, if taken at the outset, and there is a risk of their not being cured if they are left to a psychologist, who will fail to recognize their purely physical cause.

WOOD-WASTE EXCHANGE HELPFUL ALL AROUND

To enable lumbermen and woodworkers to utilize one another's waste to their common advantage, and incidentally to diminish the ravages in our forest, the forest service of the United States some time ago instituted a wood-waste exchange. At regular intervals it issues two circulars, one entitled "Opportunities to Buy Waste," in which it gives the names and the addresses of sales with full information as to species, factories that have waste wood for sale, forms and quantities; the other, entitled "Opportunities to Sell Waste," in which it lists the various needs of wood-workers who wish to buy waste material. The circulars proved useful immediately. A furniture maker in Michigan asked the advantage of the waste sugar maple blocks and sticks that he had been selling merely for fuel. The forest service asked for samples, and then found a manufacturer of scrubbing brushes who used small maple blocks for brush backs. The result was that the furniture maker was enabled to sell his waste at a much higher price than it had brought as firewood, and that the brushmaker was enabled to buy wood in suitable sizes for his brush backs for much less than it had cost him to buy maple lumber and have it cut up.

It Pays to Feed Empire Feeds!

Cattlemen, farmers and dairymen have learned that it is profitable to buy stock feeds by proteins and that the feed containing the proper amount of proteins is the feed that brings results.

Another consideration steps in, however, and that is, that beyond a certain point, protein ingredients may be present in too great quantity for the animal to use, and there is waste.

EMPIRE FEEDS are rightly balanced

Empire Dairy and Hog Feeds contain not less than 16% proteins (guaranteed), which will be used for the nourishment of the animal, without waste.

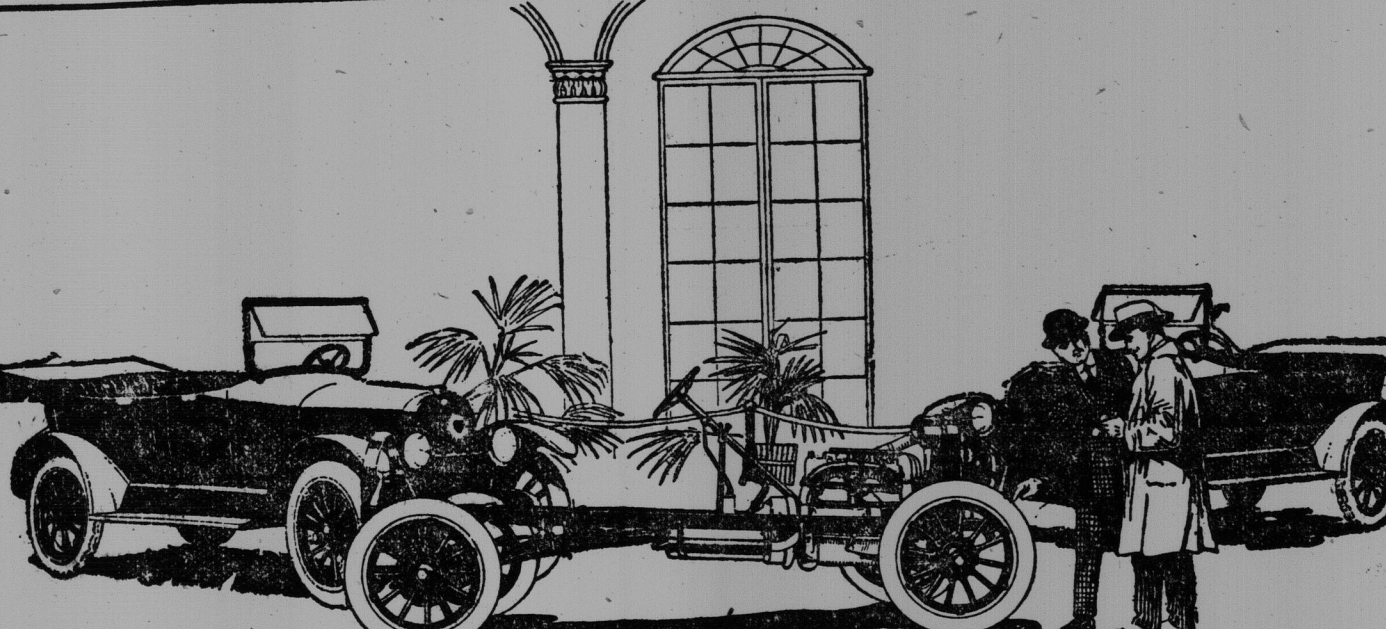

We aim to put up feeds that will pay the user. Only good sound grains and other ingredients are used, and certainly no filler or other useless stuff will ever enter into EMPIRE FEEDS. Try a quantity for a fair testing time. We will abide by the resulting improvement in your stock. Ask your dealer for the honest feeds—EMPIRE BRANDS.

Some Features of The London "Season" Which Now Is At Its Height

Lord Curzon in the Limelight—President Wilson's Criticism of the Admiralty—General Rawlinson May Get Command in India—South Pacific Island Bought for a Home.

(From Our Own Correspondent.) London, May 20.—The "season" is now in full blast and those who take it seriously are having a strenuous time. You spend the morning riding in the park or watching other people ride, or in bond street buying things and lamenting the rising prices. You look in at the Royal Academy or the divorce court. You lunch at the club, go to a fashionable wedding in the afternoon, look into a concert afterwards, dine, go to the opera, and then dance till you are ready to go to bed. The next morning you ride again and so on and so on till Sunday morning, when you take the Pullman to Brighton and see precisely the same people as you have seen all the week, lunched on similar food at a similar place, only with the sea outside the window instead of the green park. These daily rushes are to be varied as the season goes on by the royal tournament (our old friend the naval and military, under a shortened name), the International Horse Show, on which occasion, out of compliment for what Lord Londale has done for the British horse, the whole of Olympia is to be covered with scenery representing his grounds; lawn tennis at Wimbledon, the various cricket matches and quantities of other attractions.

Dignity and Homeliness.

In the meantime, this week has been of the most brilliant. You could see King Albert, nicely dressed by an English tailor and completely incongruous, sitting on a chair in the park, watching the photographers stalking less eminent celebrities. Then, last week, there was the occasion of his coming to the great Curzon-Mosley wedding, with its great reception in Carlton House Terrace, which is once more, with the Curzon and Cunard salons (both in full blaze this week) the social centre of London. Park Lane being suburban compared to it. Lord Curzon is a remarkable personality, at one moment vigorous in his magnificence and at another employing all the arts of a social adviser to an extreme degree. None but he would have thought of having two kings at the wedding. Equally no one of his type could have been expected to issue the daily bulletins as to the preparations and the warnings to aspiring wedding guests that, owing to strictly limited space, he would be obliged to disappoint them.

This contrast between extreme dignity and homeliness runs through all his proceedings. He is, so far as I know, the only cabinet minister who not only does his own talking on the telephone, but likes doing it. Like Mr. Asquith, he nearly always writes his own letters, and he must spend an appreciable portion of each day in so doing. On the other hand, in the foreign office and the House of Lords, his manner is that of blasting the unlucky colleague or subordinate who dares utter an unseasonable word of criticism or advice. Into the foreign office, too, he has brought a pleasantly oriental atmosphere by decorating his room with objects of art brought from the East.

Wilson and the Admiralty.

Naval circles are extremely interested in the disclosure of President Wilson's criticisms of the admiralty in 1917, with its very direct censure or lack of enterprise shown at the time, which was at the height, of course, of the submarine campaign. I do not think there is any particular inclination to quarrel with what the president said—exactly similar criticisms were being made here at the same time and by the younger and more enterprising flag officers—captains of the fleet itself. It was, in fact, those submarine measures and partly regarding the Dover patrol, that brought about the change a few weeks after the president's memorandum, by which Lord Jellicoe left the admiralty and full scope was found for the offensive spirit and driving ability of Lord Beatty and Sir Roger Keyes.

The question at issue between the Americans and the admiralty was the former's dislike of the weakness and lack of enterprise of our mining policy. We were very badly off for mines when the war began, and those who had damaged, without sinking enemy ships. Towards the end of 1917 all that was changed and with American assistance and according to President Wilson, on America's advice, we constructed the great barrage from Norway to the Shetlands, which practically closed the Atlantic to enemy submarines. Both services really worked in perfect harmony, whatever American papers may say to the contrary, and that applied not only to Admiral Sims but to Admiral Mayo, who, though less seen by the public, was, as I know from friends who accompanied him both respected, and well liked by the officers of the fleet, when he came over to make the suggestions which President Wilson has now published to the world.

The Indian C-I-C.

According to the service clubs, it is now tolerably certain that the next commander-in-chief in India will be General Lord Rawlinson, famous as the commander of the Seventh Division at Antwerp, and of the Fourth Army at the second battle of the Marne and after. There has been a very warm controversy over this appointment between the War Office and the India Office. The one wanted Rawlinson and the other Birdwood. Strictly speaking, the latter is qualified as an officer of the Indian army, as against Rawlinson as a British general, since hitherto the appointment has been disposed alternately between the two services, and the present holder is a British army man. Birdwood is a British general, and can well afford to wait his turn next time. As to Rawlinson's great qualifications, none will dispute. He was consistently the successful general on the western front, and his leadership during the final strokes that brought collapse to the German armies was beyond all praise. He was the man called in to re-organise the Fifth Army after its great debacle, and he is regarded as one of our ablest of planning brains, as well as a fine fighting soldier.

A Wonderful Parade.

Immense crowds assembled all round the Abbey for the installation of the banners of the new Knights of the Bath. Even with a lively recollection of the superb ritual of the coronation, I have seen nothing in London to surpass it for stately beauty and ravishing color. The king drove up in an open carriage with outriders. He wore admiral's uniform, and the western front, and the glowing scarlet robes of the Order of the Bath. After assuming his own splendid robes in the dean's quarters, and with two medieval pages bearing his long scarlet train, the king followed in procession behind the Duke of Connaught, grand master of the order, with the long procession of knights and commanders following His Majesty. The music of the military band, the singing of the Abbey choir, the grey beauty of the Abbey's architectural setting, the resplendent robes and glittering orders, and the most distinguished company made a wonderful impression. The procession included the most famous and illustrious men of the realm and the times. No more stately figure was here than Earl Beatty, erect and grace in his bearing, and quite different from the smiling, debonair soldier who led his blue-jacket legionaries through London on the victory triumph. Just behind him came Earl Haig, also an arresting figure of fame, talking eagerly with his neighbors. I met among the distinguished company Lord Horne and Sir Ian Hamilton, besides most of the great figures of the war-epic.

The King and Derby Day.

Another indication of the king's renewed interest in racing is that His Majesty will this year resume his Derby Day banquet at Buckingham Palace. Before the war the king gave a banquet at the palace on Derby Day, at which the members of the Jockey Club were the principal guests, but the owner of the Derby winner was, without exception, the guest of honor, and always sat on the right hand of His Majesty. These Derby Day banquets were started by King Edward, and when the king came to the throne he followed his father's precedent. The last Derby banquet was held in 1914.

The announcement of the resumption has given the keenest satisfaction to the sporting fraternity, who welcome as a refutation of a rumor that the king's interest in racing is on the wane. As a fact, His Majesty's engagements for the rest of the season are quite contradictory to this suggestion. I am informed that, in addition to the Epsom meeting, His Majesty has decided to be at Goodwood immediately before going along to Cowes for the yachting season.

Indian Labor Leader.

The Indian laboring and agricultural classes are being represented in this country at the present time by V. M. Wadia, a splendid gentleman, in a black frock-coat and magnificent blue-and-gold sash. He tells me that he is the accredited representative of the "Backward Communities" of India, and that he has a trade expert interest primarily in the political and social future of the Indian people and his country. He is also a member of the Indo-British Association, and has paid one visit already to the House of Commons, which he tells me he found "very nice." He has arrived in London after visiting Italy, Switzerland and Paris, and after staying here about a month, is going over to America. He is discussing the conditions of Indian labor with George Lansbury, and is visiting the politicians at Westminster.

Prince Albert and the Signs.

I am told that Prince Albert is amazed and just a little tickled by the furore caused in art circles by his perfectly innocent and really very admirable suggestion at the Royal Academy banquet the other day. His royal highness was thinking of Merry England vogue, and the return of the old coaching days in the form of the modern touring car. It seemed to him that it would be a fine practical form of applied art if our distinguished painters would give their inspiration and encouragement to a revival of artistic signposts and sign-boards throughout rural England and even in the urban areas. He never dreamt that his modest thought would cause such a flutter in the dovecotes as it has, and very far from his mind was any notion of reflecting on the artistic ability of the famous R. A.'s. As a matter of fact the young prince is no advanced critic of painting, and like the Royal Academy show very much. All the same he is, perhaps, just a little pleased to find that his obituary dicta aroused so much attention. The idea is no new one. It found admirable expression at the time of the coronation in the revival of the old city sign down Lombard street way.

New Glasses Fashion.

Only the other day I was writing about the invasion of American horn-rim glasses in this country, and the popularity this fashion was attaining as an adjunct of the strong silent man outfit. But already the fashion is being varied in London. At first the main idea apparently was to secure the thickest possible rims, so that the wearer looked extremely like one of those Canadian owls so popular with school children at the Zoo account of their preternaturally wise and solemn expression. Now the tendency is to reduce the thickness of the horn-rims round the eye-pieces to the thinnest possible limit and to wear gold side-pieces. These glasses are very light in weight but very heavy in expense. They are becoming de rigueur, however, among those good people who follow fashion religiously in all things. Incidentally I note that Queen Mary is now using glasses for reading. At the recent service at the Chapel Royal in memory of the crown princess her majesty used pince-nez to follow the words of the service. The king is still free from any such necessity, although one eye is slightly astigmatic. This would fully justify the wearing of a monocle, but the king refuses to be seen with one.

A Practical Idealist.

One of the most extraordinary examples of practical idealism in real life has just been narrated to me by a city gentleman who is a close friend of the family concerned. The hero is a middle-aged Londoner, a great idealist, a well-known speaker and writer on psychological subjects in London, who had a most delightful house at Surbiton, with a beautiful garden and a miniature lake and all the social amenities that a literary man could wish in the ordinary way. He has just packed up all his belongings and, with his wife and two daughters, has sailed for the South Pacific. He has acquired the lease of an island (Continued on page 14, fifth column)

A New Character

When, four years ago, KING COLE ORANGE PEKOE TEA first appeared, something more than a new tea had been produced—a new character in tea had been created. Only after most searching experiments in flavor-blending were we at last able to develop that peculiarly mellow richness of flavor so delightful to the taste, which has won for KING COLE ORANGE PEKOE the high place it holds. The total annual sale of KING COLE ORANGE PEKOE has doubled twice in the last two years.

We are confident that you will say that it is different to any tea you ever tasted.

ENGLISH HUMORIST PRAISES AMERICA

New York Streets Better Lighted Than London's

Surprised at Art and Literature Collections - Some Humorous Contrasts of the Two Countries.

(Toronto Mail and Empire). E. V. Lucas, English critic and humorist, and one of the editors of Punch, but perhaps most highly regarded as an authority upon the life and works of Charles Lamb, has spent the last few weeks in the United States, and has shown no un-English bias, without about passing his opinion on it. Interviewed by Russell B. Porter, for the New York World, he had first to declare himself on the prohibition issue before the American and English people. It is only fair to say that any one who has a knock for prohibition can be sure of a sympathetic and respectful hearing in the New York World. Lucas calls the burning question are only slightly less judicial than those of the Wine and Spirit Gazette. It makes no secret of its belief that prohibition is the greatest outrage ever perpetrated on the American people. Mr. Lucas is less passionate, but observed that he had no trouble in getting a drink in Chicago, a policeman, an utter stranger, directed him to a hotel where he could get a "whisky." He did not believe that England or Scotland ever would go dry, and remarked that when Sir Walter Raleigh, professor of English literature at Oxford, was asked to sign a round robin presented by certain clerics, asking that during the war and after it, students should be forbidden to attend what are called "wines," he refused on the ground that young men were not sent to Oxford to be protected, but to make a choice, which is the most important part of education.

Art Treasures in United States. Mr. Lucas naturally was struck by the great White Way, and said that in England such a display of light would be considered an act of national or social treachery. He thought there were fewer night prowlers in New York than in London, partly because the latter streets were so much better lighted. He continued, "In traveling in America, it is a pleasure to see the people and understand the language. I do not say Americans are the kindest and most generously hospitable people, but I can't imagine any that are more so." One thing that deeply impressed him was the treasures of culture that are preserved in the United States and which are being added to daily. He saw collections of pictures, books and manuscripts that bewildered him by their range and richness. "It has come to me," he said, "that no exhaustive critical monograph could be written by an Englishman or Frenchman about any of this country's greatest authors or painters without crossing the Atlantic."

He continued—"What do they know of England that only England knows?" has been continually in my mind as I have wandered through your cities. I thought, for example, that Dr. Johnson was a typically English hero. I find both the finest collection of Johnsonians in St. Buffalo; and Philadelphia contains a Johnson "fan" who leaves the devotees of the Cheshire Cheese in Fleet street miles behind, both in zeal and knowledge. I ought to do the work all over again, gradually all the original letters and manuscripts and first editions of Charles Lamb are coming to America. I spent some years of my life in studying Lamb and writing his life, but I now know—after visiting certain collections and hearing of others in this country—that I ought to do the work all over again. I used to think that to see the work of Claude Monet at its best it was necessary to go to France. Not a bit of it! The most exquisite Monets are here. The world has no such Rembrandt as Mr. Widener's landscape, "The Mill," at Philadelphia. And so on. I should not like to say that either in literature or in art America is doing better work today than England and Europe. I think it probable that, some day soon, when she can forget Wall Street a little, she will be able to do the work of England and Europe and in giving it honorable and fitting house-room."

Whimsically Contrasted. Mr. Lucas said that living expenses were much higher in the United States than in England. He said that the American fourth rate coffee was better than the English first rate, not an original observation, but he refrained from observing that the exact opposite might as truthfully have been said of the tea provided in the two countries. Just to prove that his reputation as a humorist was not wholly unfounded, he made some other observations, as per samples enclosed. "In England the Day of rest we are still able to see some of the furniture of our sitting rooms. In America it is covered by the Sunday editions of the papers." "In England they say 'yes,' and in America they gulp." "In England the railway cars are divided up for first, second and third class passengers. In America only the first class people travel."

"In England if you ask a man how he is, he gives you an account of his more recent maladies and this morning's temperature. In America he says 'Fine.'" "In England a series of comic pictures in a newspaper would have to culminate in a point." He failed to note that in America they must end in a pair of feet sticking up in the air. No Class Distinctions. He noted, too, that in England a waiter would bring a dinner something to go on with, but in the United States it all comes at once just as the guest is about to swoon with hunger. He also observed the lack of class distinctions in the United States, and said it was nice to be called "Mr. Lucas" immediately by everyone, which rather puzzles us to know what else he would be called in England. If he remained much longer in the United States it is probable that he might find himself publicly referred to as "Old Doc Lucas." On the whole Mr. Lucas's observations seem to have been of the sort that can be worked up into a couple of light books of travel; they will not tend further to estrange the two countries.

SOME FEATURES OF THE LONDON "SEASON" WHICH NOW IS AT ITS HEIGHT

Continued from page 13) about a mile square out there, and there the family is going to settle down, living on the natural products of the island, fruit and fish, supplemented by supplies brought by occasional coasting steamers. It is a remarkable adventure in the circumstances, implied, I understand, by no such health reasons as drove R. L. S. to Samoa. But one can not help wondering how the two daughters, aged respectively twenty-one and sixteen, will like it. The complete absence of the sort they have been accustomed to must surely prove somewhat trying after a while.

Reforming the Stage. The Actors' Association is determined to fight with every weapon it can bring into the fray the admission into the profession of unqualified men and women. Within the next ten days a statement of an entirely new policy may be expected, making some kind of education and examination compulsory for all stage aspirants. Alfred Lugg, active and enthusiastic secretary of the A. A., tells me that it is proposed to make attendance at one of the schools of dramatic art for at least three terms compulsory. At the end of this period an examination would take place and diplomas be granted to persons who would be admitted to membership of the association. By the time 15,000 members of the A. A. had been enrolled, which was hoped would be done by the end of this year, it would be possible to exclude from the stage everyone who was not a member. Mr. Lugg declared that the profession was generally overcrowded by persons who had no right to the name of artists, and the remedy was. As things are at present, the stage is the only profession into which a man or a woman can enter without training, merely by "influence." This influence is too often an entirely perilous character. Behind it lurks a very ugly scandal.

An English Custom Becoming Quite Common in Canada Every country has its national customs and habits. For instance, England has the custom of serving afternoon tea. English homes, stores, offices, factories, work shops, hotels and tea rooms serve afternoon tea. It is part of the national life of England. Our soldiers poked fun at it, but were not long in acquiring the habit. And they are not giving it up now that they are back home. They are influencing a more general adoption of afternoon tea in Canada. To-day this English custom is quite common in Canadian homes. It is spreading. New tea rooms are opening all over Canada. Hotels are making a specialty of afternoon tea. The habit is invading offices, stores and work shops. A few minutes rest in the afternoon with a cup of good tea is a wonderful reviver, giving new zest to the busy business man, stenographer, clerk and worker. Afternoon tea is a good business proposition. Easily and quickly made. Very inexpensive. T. H. English Sidelights Writing about the city of London, the secretary of the Royal Institute of British Architects says: "Nowhere did Wren prove his versatility and resource so well as in our city churches. He built about fifty of them without repeating himself once, although in many instances the problems presented were practically identical. In all cases the variety in plan, composition, proportion and detail is quite extraordinary. But the interest of these churches lies not alone, or mainly, in the skill they display, but in their beauty. St. Mary-at-Hill, one of the threatened churches has one of the most beautiful interiors in this country. St. Anne and Agnes, in a homelier fashion, is very beautiful; St. Magnus is a really fine Gothic church. All Hollows, London Wall, is one of the few remaining examples of Dance's work, and quite a masterpiece. There is not one that can be spared. Every one would scout the suggestion to sell our ancient manuscripts or pictures, the Domesday Book, the Fabric Rolls of Westminster Abbey, for instance, but quite seriously the loss would be less than in the case of the churches, because these things would merely change hands—they would not be destroyed. The suggestion to leave the towers standing shows how utterly the commissioners fail to grasp the real value of these arches in their relation to the life and growth of London.

Talking of an intensive gardening experiment near Tonbridge, in Kent, an English horticultural reporter says: "The beds cover two acres and a half, and carefully kept records show that the use of the crops produced has been £1,000 to the acre. The garden is not run on the usual French methods, in cloches and chassa, but on a system which experience has proved to be better suited to English climate. The large, light, light-colored, and excellently spotted glass houses—120 feet long and 30 feet high—are fitted with electricity and pie hot water piping, and tomatoes, French turnips, spinach etc., are raised. Thousands of cauliflower, cabbages, artichokes and other plants are raised in beds. On well-chosen walls are peaches and apricots, while there are large mushroom houses with ridge and furrow, the little saucer-shaped ones. As one crop is taken up the ground is at once prepared for another, and is used again and again without any rest.

A special correspondent of a London paper who has been investigating the manufacturers of Bradford writes: "The man who must, or thinks he must, wear clothes of the finest worsted relief can be expected during the coming year. At the great Saltaire Mills was told by a director of the company that the dearest cloth had not yet come on the market. I looked at a piece of steel gray bolony worsted and received the startling information that no material next year for less than 10s. a yard. As the output of all the mills is contracted for until the spring of 1921 and buyers are offering still higher prices to get the cloth they want, the prospect for the public is anything but bright. There is no need, however, to resort to overalls. Manufacturers in fact want it to be known that the woolen and worsted districts of Yorkshire can produce immense quantities of hard-wearing, artistic and elegant goods at reasonable prices if the public will buy them. Our diffido twice as much work as before and the fluctuations of wages do not concern them.

The House of Lords has dismissed unanimously the appeal by the Crown from a majority decision of the Court of Appeal in favor of a great London hotel. This house had been requisitioned by the War Office for use as the headquarters of the air force, and had been known as Admiralty House. The representatives of the owners refused to accept an amount which might be awarded for compensation by the defence of the Requisitions Commission, and proceeded against the Crown by way of petition of right, contending that the State had no power, either by the royal prerogative or by statute, to use and occupy the property of a subject in defence of the realm without payment of compensation. The law lords took the view that, although the requisition of the hotel for the public safety was warranted under the defence acts there was no necessity that for the public safety no payment should be given.

At a corporation dinner, given to him in England, Admiral Lord Beatty said that the British Fleet today represented the minimum compatible with security and the prestige of the greatest sea-power of the world. It provided the nucleus for expansion should that be required, and in the meantime their efforts were being devoted to utilizing all the information in their possession and all the experience that has been gained. Economy was absolutely essential to reinstate the prosperity of the empire. They could not afford to be wasteful. There were critics who told them that the capital ship was dead, but the Admiralty considered that the capital ship was still a unit upon which the sea power of any empire was built up.

The Drawback.
Time was in those dear days of old One dream I cherished, which was If I had what now I have I surely should be rich.

And now I have what once appeared To me to be a lot, But with the prices charged today I find that it is not.

Oh, what a happy world 'twould be Each minute of the time. If wages kept on going up And prices couldn't climb.

IRON, STEEL, METAL AND MACHINERY.

In its summary of the iron, steel, metal and machinery markets for the week ending June 10, Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News, Toronto, makes the following comment:

The manner in which Canadian plants can produce a better service by the extent to which they can get their shipments of raw material through from United States points. An improvement in transportation should be looked for soon, but it will be gradual, and it will take some time for it to be felt fully. Some of the machine tool dealers in United States are inclined to be critical of the equipment used by their rivals to keep up their physical condition, claiming that much of the requirement is fifty years old, and is not fit to do repair work quickly or well.

Some few lines report a better service this week, especially in the importation of steel, but the amount coming through is very small in comparison with the bookings that are piled up against it. Tubes are much needed just now. Plants at this season want to make their repairs, especially in view of the shortage of Hydro power. Very ordinary orders for tubes have been sent all over the country in an effort to have them filled, but with indifferent success. Sizes such as two inch, three inch, three and a half inch and four inch are much wanted.

So far, products of the merchant mills have been the one bright spot as far as keeping up the steady supplies is concerned. It is doubtful if the season can be said for bars any longer. Mills that were making good shipments to the Canadian West find their operations seriously interfered with by reason of the shortage of coal or coke, as well as other shipping facilities, and the right to be filled, but with indifferent success. Sizes such as two inch, three inch, three and a half inch and four inch are much wanted.

Prices May Change But Clothes Quality--NEVER!

Since 1914 prices have changed. So have values. It's the poorest economy in the world to buy cheap clothes. They are costly at any price for several reasons:

1. They don't wear.
2. They never look right.
3. People notice you less or more sometimes.
4. But always to your disadvantage.
5. And you never get your money's worth.

Today we are more particular in our standard of custom tailored and ready tailored clothes than ever. You can't go wrong because everything that goes out is guaranteed to please you. At $35, $40, $45, $55 to $80 You buy ready tailored clothes here that will wear, look right and conform to a but one standard. Quality is quality, the world over.

7 MILLBANK, LONDON, ENGLAND

Why Have "Millbanks" Become So Popular?

Because every introduction leads to lasting friendship. It is a case of "love at first smoking."

One smoker offers "MILLBANKS" to a friend. The friend is delighted with these mild, fragrant Virginia Cigarettes and buys a package for himself. This is happening many times a day in every section of Canada. The reason is easy to find.

have the delightful, distinctive flavour of ripe, mellow, sun-cured Virginia tobacco—coupled with the richness and satisfying qualities found only in the highest grade leaf at its best.

The fact that the price is 15c for 10 is simply an additional reason for preferring "MILLBANKS."

every part of the cave. To one to whom a bat is a repulsive and diabolical creature such an intimacy would be highly distasteful, but it is a most interesting experience. Such a meeting affords an opportunity for an intimate insight into the animal's home life. While the flight of the bat under normal circumstances is perfectly noiseless, in such chambers in which thousands of individuals are flying wildly about the noise of their wings sounds like a great wind storm.

In the caves are great piles of guano deposited by the bats. These deposits sometimes are fifteen or twenty feet thick and are valuable as fertilizer. It is used by natives on fields. In a good cave many tons may be taken out without exhausting the supply. There are species of bats, such as the fruit eating, which are not so useful to man. Some of the larger bats belong to this group. They come out of their homes an hour before dark and fly about fruit trees, searching for ripe fruit. They eat a great variety of fruits, depending on the season and locality. They eat bananas, raspberries, sweetpot, rope cactus berries, rose-apples and many other varieties.

If the fruit is small they cut it loose and fly away with it, but if it is large they cling to it and eat it on the tree. Some of the smaller fruit eating bats are very highly developed for the purpose of living off fruits, and some have very long tongues; one such variety with a body not larger than two and a half or three inches has a tongue which may be protruded an inch and a half beyond the nose. A peculiar specimen is the so-called fish eating bat, which has been observed at dusk flying low over the water and swooping from the surface minute crustaceans and marine forms.

Enemies of bats are owls which catch fruit eating bats and the large snake boa of the West Indies. Bats are social in habit and not solitary, and they have peculiar social characteristics. In four different varieties of bats are found in a cave, each kind keeps to its own group and does not fraternize with others. The same is true of sex. Clusters of males are in one group and clusters of females in another. Bats are nervous creatures, highly strung, and acute of bearing. They are among the oldest living animals. Bats, those who have studied them say, do not get tangled in one's hair, and they will not attack one, yet if grabbed they will bite, and the larger bats have sharp teeth.

There are more than 2,000 different varieties of bats in the world. The two major groups are divided into insect-eaters and the large fruit eating bats.

MONTREAL

A CITY OF TERMINALS.

What has been termed a "new city" in San Francisco Bay" has been planned in detail to provide a marine terminal for future commerce, and the completeness with which the plans have been worked out shows the belief of the projectors that what now stands on paper will eventually be translated into docks, warehouses, tracks and all the miscellaneous equipment that nowadays facilitates the passage of merchandise between trains and steamships. The Pacific Port Terminal, as it is named by a writer in the Pacific Marine Review, would extend about two miles seaward from Berkeley, on the east shore of the harbor, and its piers would look directly out at the Pacific through the Golden Gate. Harbor works, warehouses, factory developments, and machinery have been provided for in a way that would require many years before the terminal could be finished, but the immensity of the scheme is easily visible in that part of it which would be first undertaken. Here is specified "two long wharfage faces of upward of two miles on each side of the first unit, with a distance of 3000 feet between them, flanked by 3000 feet of waterway on each side of the wharfage face." When one tries to picture a marine terminal equipped with special facilities and places for handling every conceivable commodity from a package of tacks to a train load of lumber or grain, and proposing to make its beginning by constructing four miles of wharfage, one sees to the finished project might fairly exclaim "a new city."

The Green and White will probably line up as follows: Dever, Hansen, P., McGovern, I.; Mooney, S.; Gibbons, S.; Lenhan, S.; Doherty, J.; and McMillan, having withdrawn. The game at this period will give the fans a relative line on the different leagues. It is said that the Marysville team has a very fast outfield and are a heavy hitting aggregation.

Final arrangements were completed last night for the launching of the St. John Industrial Baseball League.
It was decided that the 1920 season should consist of four teams, namely: The Nashwaak Pulp and Paper Company; The I. McAvity and Sons Company, Limited; The T. S. Yankees Make Record.
Boston Post: The New York Yankees continue to hold the centre of the big league stage. Huggins' team at last is doing the tremendous hitting it has been known to have in its system all along—but recently the team has been making a record that is truly remarkable.
Since winning seven of the ten games played in the series against the western clubs the Yankees have rushed through to eighteen victories in twenty starts against the eastern clubs and the Tigers on the beginning of their western tour. And the reason for the fine going is the hitting.
Since May 27, when the Yankees started on their rampage here in Boston, Huggins' team has batted for 365, with 197 hits in 554 times at bat. In the last twelve games the club has touched the 370 mark, with 183 hits in 419 times at bat. After hitting for 281 against Boston, the Yanks waded into the Washingtons at a 376 clip, duplicating this against Philadelphia and hitting for .397 in the two games against the "Pirates". Over the stretch of forty-two games the hits, in order, have been as follows: Washington, 14, 15, 17, 12, 13; Philadelphia, 6, 26, 15, 12, 11; Detroit, 15, 16. The story speaks for itself.

CRICKET.
English Matches.
London, June 11.—(By Canadian Associated Press)—Sussex today put up an overwhelming score of 389 against Worcestershire and won by an innings and 221 runs. Three Sussex men each contributed 100 runs or over, namely Higginson, 101; Stannard, 114; Roberts, 124. Worcestershire made 175 and eighty-five. Six of their wickets in the second innings fell to Jupp for forty-one. Gloucestershire scores were 315 and 144 against Warwickshire 277 and 108. Warwick was weak in the second innings in which the bowling of Harker and Mills was remarkable, the former taking six wickets for forty-eight runs, five going in ten balls for no runs and Mills for seven-eight runs.
Lancashire beat Northamptonshire by an innings and thirty-five runs, the scores being Lancashire 415; Northamptonshire, 250 and 160.
Surrey 309, beat Leicestershire, 117 and eighty-seven, by an innings and 105 runs. Hobbs led Surrey with 105 runs. Leicestershire's first innings had seven wickets for thirty-two and Reay in the second four for forty-four. Leicestershire had three men absent, hurt in the second innings.
Kent beat Essex drew. Harding scored 113 in Kent's first innings the total of which was 326. Toone, a new Essex batsman, scored 116 for six wickets, but to get to win. They easily played out the time.
The Big League.
In the American League, yesterday, Chicago defeated Boston in the final game of the series. In a see-saw game, St. Louis defeated Washington, 6 to 1, and lost its seventh straight game when New York won again. Cleveland made it four straight from Philadelphia.

their Monsieur Georges has stumbled in America, immediately stamped for passports. We are indebted to the seasonableness of the Rochambeaus for the arrival here of the latest of these, Andre Biss and Marcelle Clerc, lightweights.
Prizees Recorder: Johnny Wilson, the new middleweight champion, in an interview was asked what was the toughest fight he ever had, said: "That was a fight where it took a crack on the chin that knocked me as Roddie was the first to wake me up. After it I fought fourteen rounds to a draw. It happened July 28, 1917, in Halifax, when I fought Roddie McDonald—a big, strong fellow."
The bout was not a draw—but Roddie had the decision awarded him by Frank Murray, the referee, and everybody agreed with him, as Roddie was the better fighter. Roddie landed the blow referred to after he had crowded Wilson to the ropes and sent him to his knees. As he was about to rise McDonald struck him again, but as the blow was accidental and no harm done the four was not awarded. Wilson's defensive work then puzzled Roddie, and he was unable to land his effective blow.

EUROPEAN ACT
MAKES BIG HIT
AT OPERA HOUSE
Spanish Goldinis Have a Clever and Novel Production—Musical Mimic Gives Numerous Imitations—Athletic Feats Also Enjoyed.
The Spanish Goldinis scored a hit in the Opera House last evening in their novel presentation. They have an act entirely different from any ever appearing here, and made a marked impression on the large and appreciative audience. After giving a clever demonstration of spinning, the youngest member gave an exhibition of acrobatic feats, which were astounding, and which evoked hearty and well merited applause. She then danced on an electric contrivance which shot volumes of sparks around her body. This was both novel and pretty and made a most favorable impression. Another act which was greatly enjoyed was that of Chas. Gibbs, a musical mimic. He gave clever imitations of various instruments and at times those present thought that he was really playing them. He was accorded liberal applause.
The Pit Boy and his partner were well received in a singing and whistling act. Both members are pleasing singers and the male member a talented whistler. His imitation of various birds, in addition to a popular march, won hearty applause. His partner scored a hit in the popular song hit, "The Bell of St. Mary's".
Ernesto won a good share of the plaudits in an athletic offering of merit. He is a good entertainer and his feats caused many in the audience to marvel. He was able to tear a pack of cards and perform other feats of strength with apparent ease.
Ford and Ford, in a comedy singing and eccentric dancing skit, also did well. The male member has novel eccentric steps which evoked considerable merriment.
In addition to the vaudeville programme there was another interesting episode of "Lightning Bryce," a popular motion picture serial. This performance will be repeated this afternoon and evening and again on Monday.
