ROTH'S BODY IN BASKET FOUND OFF PT. STANLEY; NULL'S OFF POINT PEELE

Lieut. Roth Identified by Initials on Clothing—Body and Balloon Basket Held in Port Stanley Awaiting Orders From U. S. Navy Department—Inquest at Port This Afternoon.

LT. NULL'S BODY FOUND NEAR LEAMINGTON

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter. Port Stanley, July 9.—The body of Telford B. Null, aide to Lieutenant L. J. Roth, U.S. navy flier who was lost in Lake Erie, was brought ashore near Leamington this morning, according to a despatch received here. No details as to the finding of the body were received.

Lakehurst, N.J., July 9.—Description of the body found off Point Pelee, in Lake Erie, today and believed to be that of Lieut. T. B. Null, missing navy balloonist, tallies closely with the description of Lieut. Null, officers at the naval station here said today. Mrs. Null, wife of the missing airman, was prostrated by the news.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Port Stanley, July 9.—Badly discolored and with the head hanging in the water, the body of Lieutenant L. J. Roth, together with the basket of the ill-fated U.S. navy balloon A6698, was picked up twelve miles southwest of here at 10 o'clock this morning by Captain George Wilson of the fishing schooner Onajag.

The body was hanging over the side of the basket with the right leg tangled in the ropes and the upper part under water. Two suits of underwear were on it, bearing the initials L. J. R., establishing the identity of the corpse. On the right foot was a sock. The body was badly sunburned and blistered, as well as discolored from the effects of exposure. Roth appeared to be a man of about 25 or 30, with a full, clean shaven face. To judge from the posture in which the body was found it would seem that Roth had hung as long as possible and that, when exhausted, he had been tossed out, his leg catching in the ropes. Two empty ballast bags were found in the basket, which was rectangular in shape, six by four feet and five feet deep, with a life buoy bottom. The basket was equipped with having been storm-tossed and knocked against other objects. It was painted a pea green.

An inquest will be held this afternoon at the fish dock under the direction of the crown attorney for Elgin County.

Abandon Hope For Null.

With the recovery of Roth's body, hope for his companion, T. B. Null, was abandoned. The two men have been missing since last Thursday. Their balloon was found floating in the lake on Saturday. The basket had been cut away, but it was hoped the balloonists might have been picked up by some passing boat.

The body and basket were brought into Port Stanley by the Onajag, and they will be held here until instructions from the United States navy department can be secured. The basket was floating lightly in the water when it was picked up. It had evidently floated with the current ever since falling into the waters of Lake Erie, 25 miles off shore, early Saturday morning. Immediately after the Onajag returned here with its grim cargo, speed boats and cutters were rushed to the vicinity, where the basket was found, in hope of finding the body of Lieut. Null, aide of Roth.

Hope To Find Other Body.

From Lieut. Roth's body being found with the life preserver, authorities believe they will find the body of Null floating somewhere in the vicinity of where the basket was picked up.

There was a possibility that Lieut. Null will be found alive if he was able to withstand hunger and exposure, authorities said. Although Lieut. Roth's body had not been examined by physicians, it was believed death came as a result of exposure and hunger.

The men had not eaten since they left Indianapolis July 4, it was indicated by untouched tubes of food found in the rigging of the balloon when it was picked up 25 miles off shore Saturday night by the tug Frank H. Stanley.

Crowds of anxious watchers lined the beach and pier as the tug "Onajag" steamed in, as the tragedy which all believed to have followed in the wake of balloon flight has been almost the sole cause of concern in the village over the week-end.

The American aeroplanes were not seen at Port Stanley this morning and the government tug, "Elsie Doris" has been obliged to leave on its course, but the search is still to be continued for the body of Telford Null, Lieut. Roth's pilot.

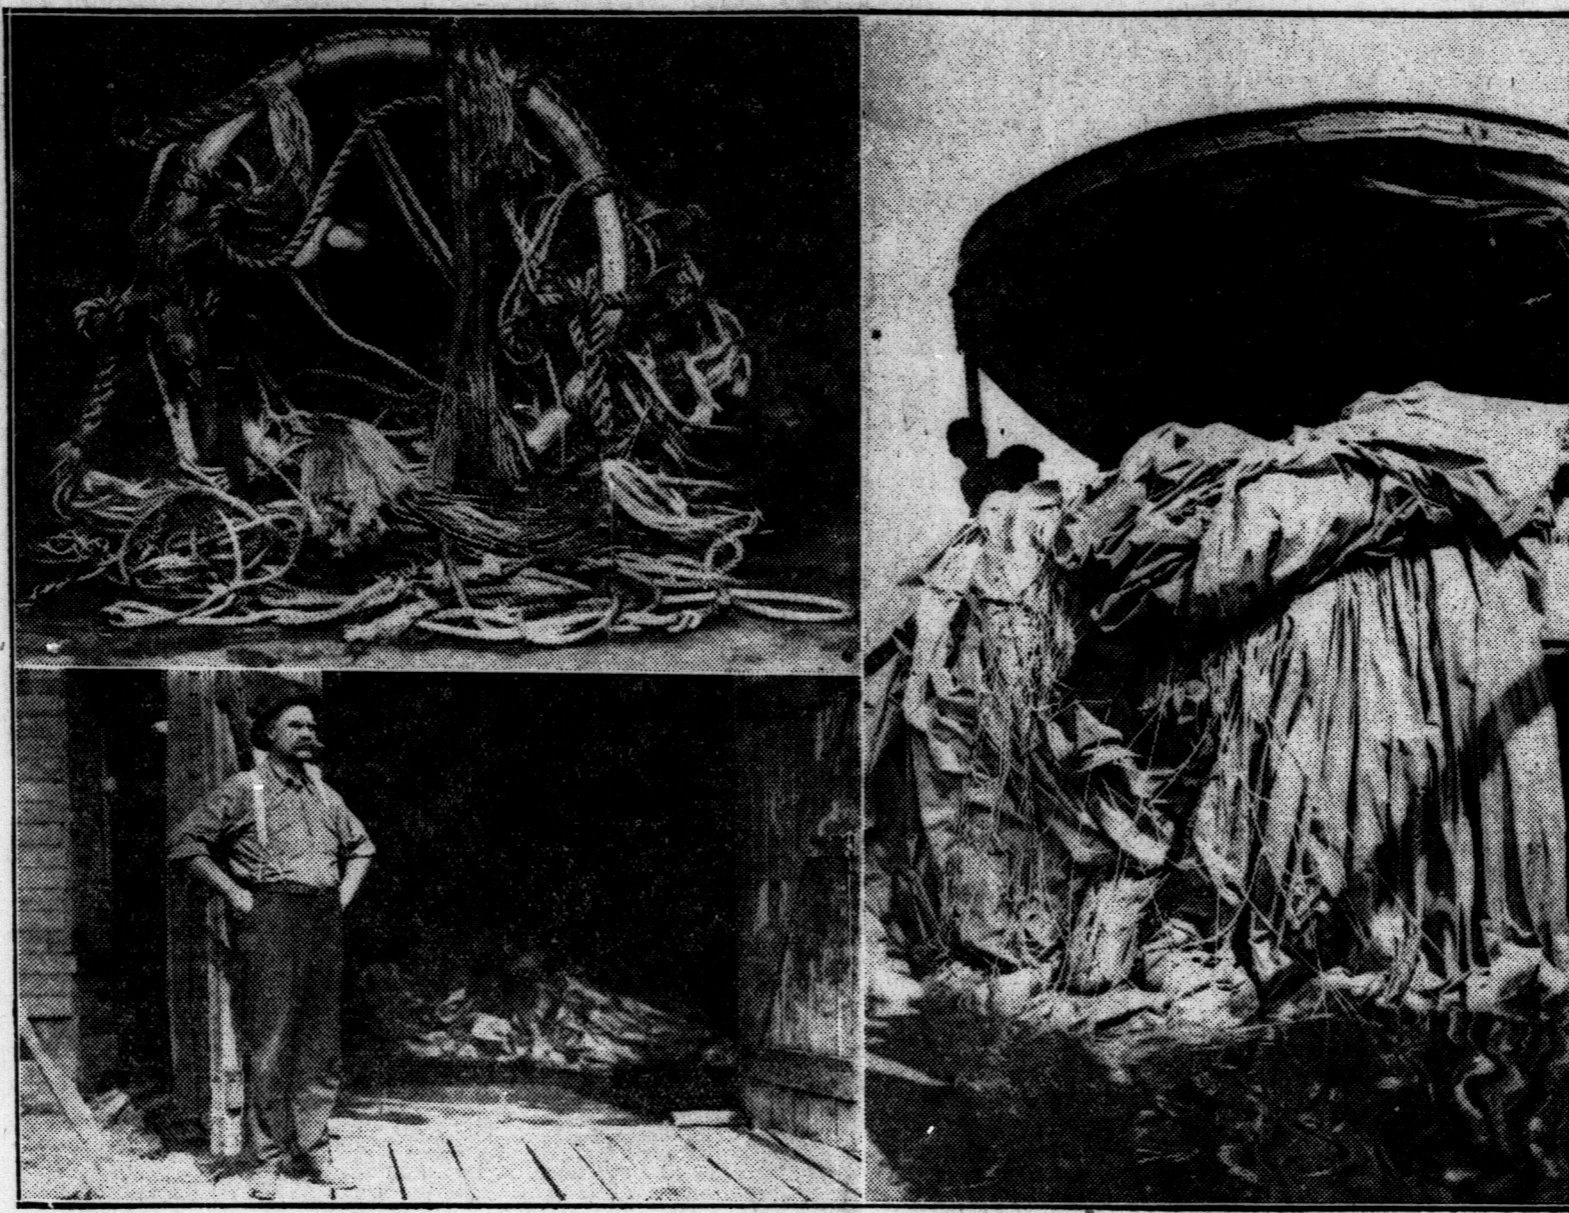

The Onajag, after landing the body of Lieut. Roth, left port again to search for the other body.

Many Theories.

There are several possible conjectures as to the cause and behavior of the balloon after it was last seen by the other entrants in the race. It is understood that the balloon was last seen to the westward of Lake St. Clair and was then drifting in a northwesterly direction.

A statement is current in Detroit that a woman had seen the balloon pass over the waterfront at dusk on Friday night. If this latter statement is correct, it is almost certain that the balloon was overtaken by a fierce electrical storm which broke

LONDON FORGETS SERVICES GIVEN BY WAR VETERANS

G. W. V. A. Have No Place To Meet or Enjoy Themselves.

COL. COLES TALKS

Mayor Wenige Expresses Sympathy and Thinks Council May Do Something.

London is practically the only place in Canada where the G. W. V. A. have had to get rooms of their own, and where they have had no help either from the city or from the people. This is the claim of many members of the local veterans of the war. When the war came to an end and the men came home the association was formed and the veterans had no place where they could meet together, either for a game of billiards or a cup of coffee.

Today they are without a home. Their late rooms in the majestic building have been let to the London Business Institute and they are more or less orphans of the war storm, homeless and without a place where they can meet together, either for a game of billiards or a cup of coffee.

Col. Coles Talks.

Colonel W. G. Coles, president of the G. W. V. A. seen this morning by The Advertiser said: "The people of London seem to have forgotten the war entirely. If they would go out to Westminster and see for themselves the hundreds of returned men who work in our factories and walks our streets, they would be able to appreciate the horrors of war better. It is this indifference which is the great cause of Bolshevism and the reason for the 'red' element in the country. I have no sympathy of course with the 'reds' but I do believe that the people by their lack of interest are the real sponsors of the red thought and activities in any country."

This is a great opportunity he said for Londoners to show their gratitude to the boys by raising a fund for the rooms or a home. They could place the funds in the hands of some well-known business man and the men would have a real home in the city.

Mayor Sympathetic.

Mayor Wenige, though in the fullest sympathy with the returnees, sees very little hope of the city being able to do much to help them. "But the estimates are being struck in November this year, and if the boys will come to us and ask for help, the council will assuredly do all it can to give it."

One member of the association who has had a great deal to do with the work of the club said this morning: "Some years ago in London there used to be a sign in the park on the 'Soldiers' and dogs keep off the grass. It seems as if that attitude still prevails in the hearts of Londoners. The boys went over there and gave their lives and their health for the people who stayed at home, but they don't seem to care much for that. I know plenty of them in the city, and I know they are well. We are trying to get another little club room was the only haven they had in the whole town to come to in the evening and have a yarn and a smoke. We are trying to get another place, but the rents are all high, and we have no money. None of us ever did have much." He added pathetically.

PROHIBIT SUNDAY BATHING IN POOLS AS ALLIANCE ACTS

Mayor Objects as Children Are Barred From Swimming in Parks.

BLAMES MINISTERS

Officials of Ministerial Organization, Interviewed, Refuse To Make Statements.

The civic swimming pools were not opened yesterday and The Advertiser was informed today that this follows the official protest from the London Ministerial Alliance.

The civic playground and bathing pools have been operated to date without anything transpiring of the controversial nature, state public utilities officials, who add that this is why the commissioners declined to close the pools Sunday.

This stand does not meet with the approval of Mayor Wenige and one member of the commission, who was evidently not approached by the Ministerial Alliance. In fact, the wardship did not know that the pools were not available yesterday until informed at this morning's session of the Port Stanley Railway Commission.

The officials are going to bar children or adults from the pools on Sundays, why then should we not halt Sunday bathing at Port Stanley," he questioned. "If it is wrong in one instance, it must be wrong in another. The civic swimming pools should be accessible to those who may not be in a position to afford the expenditure to the lakeside and other items of expense in connection with the trip."

Ald. Peter J. Watt, who was a visitor at this morning's session of the commission, also aired his views with a few carefully-selected words: "The height of hypocrisy," he declared, "is to prohibit bathing in the lakeside and other items of expense in connection with the trip."

Arriving on the scene, Sir Adam Beck was aroused in a jocular manner by his colleagues of being in the league with the restriction of the bathing in order that everybody who desired bathing on Sunday would have to patronize the L. & P. S. R.

"Let them with as often as where they like except in that portion of the river near the sewer pumping stations," was the brief but decisive and vigorous comment from the member-elect for London.

Mayor Wenige intimates that more will be heard about this question before it is finally established that the civic pools shall not be available Sundays. "What difference morally is there from bathing there or at Port Stanley," he asked.

The Rev. A. E. M. Thompson, president of the Ministerial Alliance, is out of the city today and could not be reached by telephone, and the Rev. John Garbutt is also out of the city. The Rev. H. B. Storey, secretary of the alliance, had nothing to say about any action taken on Sunday bathing in the Thames Park pool on Sundays. "I know nothing at all about it," he said. "You had better ask Mr. Thompson."

The Rev. Matthew Kelly, a well-known member of the alliance, when seen this morning, said: "I know nothing about any action taken on Sunday bathing in the Thames Park pool on Sundays. If you want any information you should ask Mr. Thompson."

It is understood that a petition has been drawn up asking the public utilities commission to open the pools on Sundays and that the names of five hundred names are on the list. Both the children and the parents feel the restrictions keenly and have taken this means of showing their attitude.

FROM AN EFFORT TO FORCE SURVEY ON CITY RAILROAD

Sir Adam and Colleagues Do Not Relish Efforts of Council.

BRITAIN WOULD ACT

Sir Adam Beck and his colleagues on the Port Stanley Railway commission, exclusive of Mayor Wenig, do not wax enthusiastic concerning the city council's suggested survey of that road.

A communication from Dr. Brittain, head of the citizens' research bureau, directed by Mayor Wenig and associated to the commission, was laid over until August, at the regular meeting of the commission this morning.

In the first instance, as Sir Adam Beck pointed out, there was no official notification at hand from the city councilors that it was their desire that the task should be done.

Who would share the financial burden was another point of contact. Sir Adam declaring that the commission had no funds for that purpose, but if the council desired to spend the money it should be all right.

Commissioner Percy Moore wanted more detail. Were the "experts" sufficiently versed in railroad affairs to conduct a proper survey of the L. and P. S. R. asked Commissioner Frank Harley desired similar information.

Sir Adam Beck asked the origin of the several municipal surveys, and Ald. P. J. Watt, an interested spectator from the council, explained that he understood that the Chamber of Commerce was interested in the move.

Sift the Chamber. "Are they going to investigate the management of the chamber of commerce?" Commissioner Moore inquired from Ald. Watt.

"Might be a good idea," concurred Ald. Watt. Commissioner Donald Wright brought the question to a "show-down," moving that the communication be filed for future reference.

Mayor Wenig said that he had no objection to the survey, but that he was not prepared to pay for it. He was present at 11 o'clock when the meeting was called to order and the mayor had left in the meanwhile, declaring that he had a more important meeting to attend than the L. & P. S. commission session.

"The commission is agreeable if the council pays," volunteered Commissioner Harley.

"Yes, we have no funds for that," concurred Sir Adam.

City Will Bear Cost. "But you don't have to pay a cent," corrected Ald. Watt. "The city council and the C. & W. will share the cost."

"This is a remarkable thing," commented Sir Adam. "The city council has never had a real audit, and we now going to have one through the efforts of Mayor Wenig. It is on the top of that, we find that the council wants to spend another $4,000 or $5,000 for a re-audit. I suppose it will be all right if they want to spend it."

"I think that we have a first-class audit system, but there can be no more having a survey done by other persons. I think I know what they are trying to do, but I think that our affairs are in first-class shape."

"Yes, we are satisfied," asserted Commissioner Harley.

Sir Adam added that he had no official notification that the council desired the survey, and that a letter from the research bureau stating that the undertaking would cost from $3,000 to $5,000 for the L. and P. S. R. alone. The question will be further "considered" at the July session.

Patrons of the L. and P. S. R. have every right to use the conveniences of the G. T. R. depot. A sign to that effect will be posted in a prominent place at the L. and P. S. depot.

The commission received notice from the London Board of Health that sanitary arrangements must be provided within 14 days or legal action would follow.

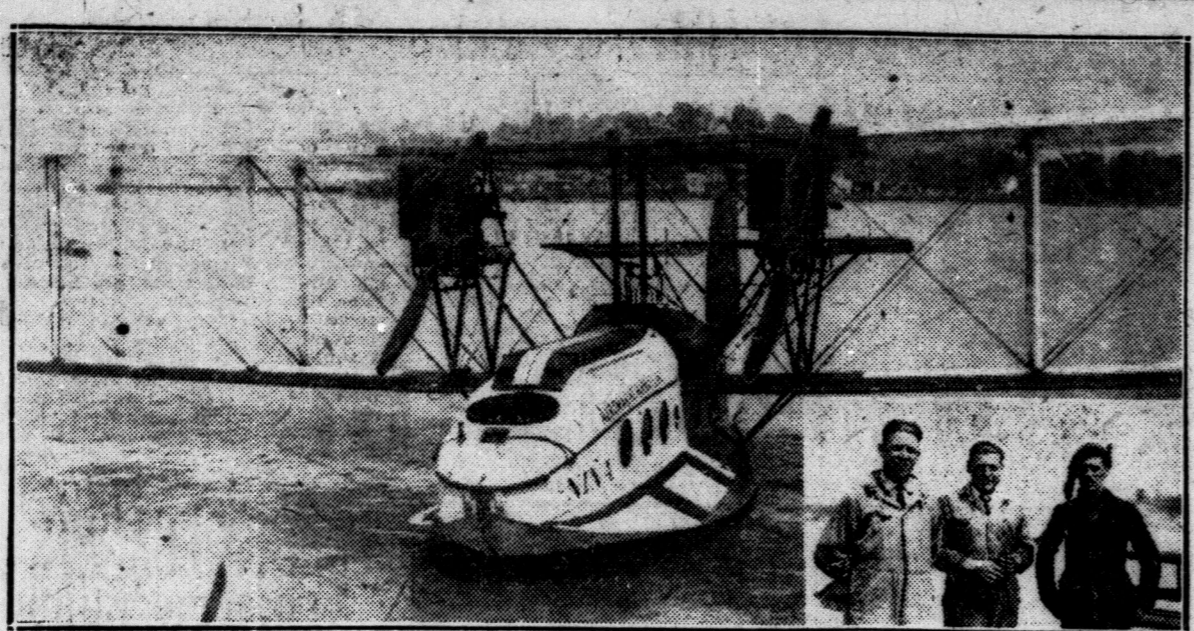

Sir Adam reviewed the history of the road since electrification, reminding that the city has rights for another 50 years to the use of the G. T. R. for this and other purposes.

He acknowledged that the question had been left in abeyance for several years in the hope that a new G. T. R. station would be possible when by agreement with the G. T. R. station would receive all rights. This has halted any proposal to construct a London terminal for the L. and P. S. R.

In view of the fact that we may have a new C. N. R. depot sooner than we expect I do not think that we should act now, he said. "We have no right where we are. We have always tried to safeguard the city's interests in our agreement with the G. T. R. and we should sacrifice 50 years rights and privileges which will yet be available and still are. Our patrons can use the G. T. R. accommodation and have the backing of the dominion railway board to do so, in accordance with our agreement."

ATTAIN SETTLEMENT OF TURKISH QUESTION

Allies and Ottomans Reach Accord in Near East Conference.

Associated Press Despatch. Lausanne, July 8.—An accord has been reached between the Turks and the Allies and peace probably will be signed within a week.

Thus the Near East conference, which has been in continuous session for more than three months, has had a successful ending. For a considerable period the settlement hung in the balance on the question of the Ottoman debt, concessions and the evacuation of Constantinople and other Turkish territory by foreign troops. Both sides were forced to give way in a measure at the end, and it was apparent today that a termination of the discussions was close at hand.

Blowout Causes Smash ON ROAD IN ENNISKILLEN. Special to The Advertiser.

Petrolia, July 8.—An automobile owned by James Jardin of the eighth line, Enniskillen, turned turtle in a large ditch about three miles west of here late Friday night when Mr. Jardin was returning from a lawn social. The top of the car was completely demolished and the windshield broken into splinters. The front fenders and radiators were so smashed. A front tire blew out, causing the driver to lose control of the car.

LITTLE CHATHAM BOY IS KNOCKED DOWN BY CAR. Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, July 8.—Little Bobbie Mitchell, son of a local plumber, was knocked down by a heavy touring car on King street yesterday morning. Carried to a nearby physician's office the little boy was found to be more frightened than hurt. He had attempted to cross King street at a regular intersection in front of the Standard Bank when the accident occurred.

M'CONNEL CLUB HOLDS STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL. Special to The Advertiser.

St. Mary's, July 8.—Friday night the M'Connell Club, a foremost St. Mary's ladies' organization, held a strawberry festival at the home of Mrs. Douglas Baines, South Ward. Between the wine-tasting and games the evening was spent very enjoyably by all present. The board of trade gave a hearty invitation to attend, and a heavy turnout was substituted for the word "kiss" appearing in the copy filed at Sydney.

Wingham, July 8.—At the regular meeting of Wingham Lodge 286, A. F. & A. M., the following officers were installed for the ensuing year: W. M., W. Bro. J. L. Stewart, I. P. M., W. Bro. T. C. King, E. W. Bro. O. Thompson; J. W. Bro. J. D. Beecroft; chaplain, Bro. H. F. McKibbin; secretary, W. Bro. R. A. Coutts; D. of C., W. Bro. E. J. Nash; S. D., Bro. W. A. Galbraith; J. D., Bro. J. J. McGee; I. G., Bro. G. L. Brackenbury; S. S., Bro. Dr. J. A. Fox; J. S., Bro. H. J. Walker; Tyler, Bro. W. J. Elliott; auditors, A. G. Smith and Dr. George H. Ross.

SUPPOSED STOLEN CAR IS FOUND ON HIGHWAY. Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, July 8.—County police were yesterday notified of the presence of an abandoned automobile on Dyke road near Erieau. Inquiries which were conducted by residents of the neighborhood have failed to elicit information as to ownership. According to report the car has stood on the roadside for several days. No attention was paid to the machine at first, but after the lapse of several days there is a belief that the car might have been stolen. The license number of the machine was given as 122,595.

over the western end of Lake Erie at midnight on Friday.

The wind which blew during the storm is thought to have sprung up in the west and carried that direction through the night, backing "south about" until it settled in the south-east, from where it was blowing when the balloon was first sighted as a wreck by the steamer Colonial.

With these probabilities as a basis for conjecture, it becomes likely that the balloonists were blown over Point Pelee when the storm was at its height. Picture the plight of the unfortunate men as they were hurled over the water by the force of a tornado, their giant gas bag tugging at the ropes of the basket, and the basket swaying deliciously as the balloon soared and pitched about in the gale.

Crossed Point Pelee. That they crossed land, and most probably Point Pelee, is borne out by the fact that forced landing was attempted, for in a desperate effort to deflate the balloon before they were again swept seawards over the lake they had severed the nozzle end of the gas bag with a sharp knife, thinking, no doubt, to land faster than they could by the slower release of gas through the gas valve.

Point Pelee at the place where the balloon swept across it, is a narrow neck of land, and the gas not escaping fast enough, it is probable that the balloon struck the water after crossing the neck of land, the gas remaining in the envelope not being sufficient to allow them to regail their aerial buoyancy even after the last sand ballast had been thrown overboard.

The fact that the shore clothing and personal effects of the men were still in the rigging of the balloon proves that their descent was a hasty one in which they had not even time to discard their heavy aviation togs and don light clothing which might have given them a fighting chance for their lives after the basket of the balloon struck the lake.

Tragic Story. The position of the gas bag when salvaged and the course of the winds during the twelve hours preceding the finding of the balloon make it practically certain that the aviators struck the lake off shore and to the eastward of Point Pelee.

The severed suspension ropes which held the basket to the safety ring of the envelope tell their own tragic story of the last minute struggles of the aviators to free their basket from the jerking wind and wind-lost envelope, which from their means of support, and safety would have turned into a destructive demon as it dragged the nearly exhausted aviators through the waters of Lake Erie.

When the basket had been disconnected from the balloon, the men, who had been putting up a gallant struggle against the wind and the runaway balloon, would have to rely on their own strength in an effort to keep the basket afloat on the raging waters.

PROTEST FROM WEST

Minister of Labor Tells of Efforts To Withdraw Soldiers.

Canadian Press Despatch. Calgary, Alta., July 8.—Every effort is being made by Hon. James Murdock, minister of labor, to have the troops at present in the Cape Breton strike withdrawn as soon as possible, according to a telegram from the minister to Wm. E. Sherman, president of District No. 18, United Mine Workers of America, made public here late last night.

Replying to a telegram from Mr. Sherman, the minister of labor said he was advised that the troops from Winnipeg and the west for Cape Breton had been stopped short and were not being sent there.

My hope is that soldiers now there may be withdrawn at once, and I am making all effort possible to insure that result, the telegram said. "Will you continue to advise your membership to be patient and to continue to carry on in order that we may have further time in our efforts to relieve the unfavorable situation at present existing in Sydney and vicinity."

The following wire was sent to Mr. Murdock by Mr. Sherman this morning: "Critical situation has developed in coal fields of Western Canada as a result of the developments in Nova Scotia dispute between Empire Steel Corporation and its employees. Present indications here are that membership will not be controlled by district officials of this organization unless steps taken to improve serious situation now existing in Nova Scotia. Practically all labor organizations in the west are interesting themselves in situation."

RETURN TO WORK. Canadian Press Despatch. Sydney, N. S., July 9.—Twelve hundred men were at work in the coal mines at Sydney this morning, it was announced at E. & E. headquarters.

The company has sufficient stock on hand to continue the operation of the mill indefinitely, and no difficulty is anticipated in getting coal for the coke ovens.

Water and gas is gaining slightly in the coal mines of the district, as the pumps and fans are largely stopped.

Men going to work at the steel plant this morning were not interfered with, and there were no disturbances during the night in the coal fields.

In a word the situation remains absolutely unchanged. Further detachments of troops from the west were expected to arrive at 12:30 p.m.

BRIGHT'S GROVE IS SCENE OF M'MAHEN GATHERING

Special to The Advertiser. Forest, July 8.—More than 60 representatives of the McMahen family gathered at Bright's Grove, near Sarnia, on Wednesday for the family picnic. A bountiful repast was served at noon, and the afternoon was devoted to sports and a social time.

After which supper was served. Guests were present from Parkhill, Sarnia, Bridgen, Wyoming, Petrolia, Oil City, Camanche and Osborne.

The oldest and youngest members present were Thomas McMahen, Petrolia, and John Hunter, Wyoming. It was decided to make the outing an annual affair. The committee appointed for next year is: President, Mrs. Fred Gallie; vice-president, Mrs. Robt. Simpson; secretary, Mrs. D. Richardson; treasurer, Mrs. J. McKenzie.

Hops Off To Try Flight Coast-to-Coast In One Day

Lieut. R. L. Maughan, U. S. A., Leaves Mitchell Field, N. Y., in Curtiss Pursuit Plane For San Francisco in Attempt To Establish Record.

Associated Press Despatch. Dayton, Ohio, July 9.—Lieut. R. T. Maughan, U. S. A., plotting a Curtiss pursuit plane, hopped off at 2:56 a.m. eastern standard time, today, on the first leg of his dawn-to-dusk flight across the continent.

The attempt to reach the coast by the light of a single day was begun in the flood of a dawn of high visibility, which held promise of excellent flying weather on the first leg of the flight to Dayton, Ohio.

Lieut. Maughan expects to reach San Francisco in 16 1/2 hours of daylight flying. The distance is estimated at 2,640 miles, and an average speed of 160 miles an hour will be maintained.

Four stops will be made: McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio; Municipal Field, St. Joseph, Mo.; Air Mail Field, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Saldou, Utah.

CANADIAN TEAM IN GREAT FETTER FOR BISLEY MEET

Historic Shoot Opens Saturday With Larger Entry List Than Usual.

Associated Press Despatch. London, July 9.—There is an increasing impression today that the present British cabinet cannot much longer delay a declaration of its policy in the reparations question. This belief was made at Birmingham on Saturday by Mr. Amery, first lord of the admiralty, minister of health.

These ministers, although saying nothing of consequence that had not been said before, stressed the imperative necessity that Great Britain should make her position clear without delay.

It is understood that Prime Minister Baldwin devoted much of his time at Chequers Court yesterday to consideration of Lord Curzon's latest report of his interviews with the Belgians, Belgian and Italian ambassadors, and it was assumed that Mr. Baldwin would be likely to lay the results of his deliberation before the cabinet today.

The political writers in the morning newspapers reiterate the insistence of members of the government on the opposition and industrial organizations, that the country's interests are suffering because of absence of a public statement of British policy. The opinion that such an exposition must be forthcoming at an early date is expressed by the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, the political expert of the Daily Mail and other experienced writers.

GIVE COCHRANE OFFICIAL THREE YEARS IN PRISON

Special to The Advertiser. North Bay, July 9.—J. Bruce Redden, assistant postmaster at Cochrane was found guilty Saturday by Magistrate Tucker at Cochrane, and sentenced to three years at Portmouth. He had stolen bank notes belonging to the Imperial Bank amounting to $5,300 and was placed under arrest by federal authorities.

The accused bought a ticket from Cochrane to North Bay and checked an old suitcase containing his clothes, and in which the police found the missing $5,300.

Redden is a former resident of North Bay, his father being former fire chief J. O. Redden. His parents are now residing in the United States.

INGERSOLL FAIR WILL HAVE NEW FEATURES

Prizes In Some of the Cattle Classes Will Be Increased This Year.

Special to The Advertiser. Ingersoll, July 9.—Many matters pertaining to the success of the Ingersoll fair, which will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 25 and 26, were considered at a meeting of the Ingersoll North and West Oxford Agricultural Society Saturday night. There was almost a full attendance of the directors, and the meeting was marked by a very earnest spirit.

For several years the fair has been making rapid advancement, and greater success is anticipated this year. Full recognition of the importance of the Oxford fair interests has been manifested by the society. Prizes in some of the cattle classes will again be increased, a fact which should prove very advantageous to many exhibitors of the district. Other sections of the prize-list will also be improved, and on the whole the society is anticipating a greater degree of success than formerly. There will be a splendid card of races, and as Ingersoll now has one of the finest tracks in Western Ontario, the country list, as was the case last year, is expected.

The Fate of the Balloonists.

Unless something of the nature of a miracle has happened, U. S. N. Lieutenants Louis J. Roth and Teiford B. Null have paid the price for winning a balloon race with their own lives.

Wreckage of a great gas bag, floating on Lake Erie about 30 miles from Port Stanley on Saturday morning was sufficient evidence to tell the whole story. The slashed ropes, the absence of the basket, all told exactly what had happened as the balloonists made their last struggle to cut free from the gas bag that threatened to smother them.

Such was the end of a race which started in Indianapolis on July 4. This particular contestant was seen drifting over Detroit on Friday night during a thunderstorm.

One cannot help wonder at the advisability of continuing such events. The idea is to see which one can go farthest before coming down. The balloon is such a helpless thing once it gets up in the air. It is more or less at the mercy of the elements, and the elements are particularly fickle, especially at this time of the year, when electrical storms and sudden, violent gales are common.

It is estimated, too, that to outfit and send this ill-fated balloon up cost about $150,000, and the chances are that all others in the race would be equally expensive. That tremendous cost, added to the still greater value of human lives, makes a stake too high for the object to be attained.

The aeroplane is here, and it is vastly superior to the balloon because it can be managed and controlled. There would have to be some highly-prized reason to continue the hazards of balloon usage in this age.

The Cabinet Has Been Named.

Hon. Howard Ferguson has named his cabinet, and taken in a general way his selection looks workable and fairly representative. Mr. W. F. Nickle is his choice as attorney-general, and he is undoubtedly the best man in the Conservative group for that position. His record at Ottawa and Toronto has been clean; he has done things that many party politicians would be afraid to do, and should be able to deal fairly with all questions of administration that will come before his department.

The selection of Mr. John S. Martin as minister of agriculture gives that post to a practical and successful agriculturist. He has made his Wyandotte farm famous all over the continent.

Naming Dr. Forbes Godfrey of West York, as minister of labor and health will be regarded as something in the nature of an experiment. Dr. Godfrey has never been known in the legislature as a man of administrative qualities. He may know the problems of the working people of Ontario, but it is doubtful. Most people regard him as the straight out-and-out politician type. However, he will have his opportunity, and his record will show what he is capable of doing.

It was to be expected that Sir Adam Beck would be on the hydro commission. That is the one department in which he is above all else interested. Although not definitely named at this writing, it is intimated that Mr. Lincoln Goldie of South Wellington is to be provincial secretary. He is a man of wide experience and genuine sympathies, and while not exactly of the temperament of the late W. J. Hanna, the best provincial secretary the Conservatives ever had in Ontario, Mr. Goldie is probably the nearest approach to a man of his calibre that is available.

The province is willing to give the new cabinet and government every opportunity to go ahead and carry on the affairs of business at the Toronto chamber. They have a very serious responsibility, and their chief danger lies at present in the too large majority they possess in the legislature.

It Depends What Is Wanted.

There was enough money brushed up in Toole County, Montana, to build an arena to hold the tens of thousands who were expected for the prize fight there.

There are thousands of families all over United States who can never get far enough ahead to buy enough lumber to put a very humble dwelling over their heads.

Yet cheerfully and with a smile hundreds of thousands were poured into a place where two men were to punch each other for an hour.

The 1923 sense of comparative values and the sane use of surplus money presents some unanswerable situations.

Stealing From the Farmer.

A London motorist when about four miles north of the city on Saturday had tire trouble. A farmer, in front of whose lane he pulled up, came out with his son to see if there was anything he could do.

This farmer's opinion of tourists and drivers in general was interesting. His property is on both sides of the road, and there is an orchard on both places. Last summer, he claims, both orchards were continually raided by parties in passing cars. They would climb the fence, shake the trees and knock down three or four times as many apples as they wanted to take away, leaving a lot of bruised fruit on the ground. Even when the apple packers had been at the place the tourists came over the fence and took the apples out of the barrels that were waiting to be headed in and shipped. On one occasion the farmer's wife went out and asked if the marauders would leave the barrelled fruit alone; she was told to go back to the house and forget it. This year there is a wire fence in front of both orchards, and there will probably be a barbed wire on top.

"They never come in with a basket and ask if we have fruit for sale, and I imagine they have just as much right to buy from me as they have to go into the stores of their own towns and buy. A few of these rowdy cars are doing a lot of harm to the rest of the city people who drive out in the country and mind their own business."

This man's experience is much the same as others. Another complaint is about parties that picnic along the roads and leave the place covered with banana skins, pieces of paper, crusts of bread and very often broken bottles.

There are many drivers in London and elsewhere who are doing much to correct this nuisance. They go out with the idea of making friends, and as usual they succeed. They find the farmers glad to supply them with produce at a fair price, and they also find in many cases that they can buy to advantage this way.

The smart-aleck driver and his party is the one force keeping the car from being a good agency for building up a good feeling between city and country.

Encourage Good Dairy Farmers.

It is not to be wondered at that dairy farmers in this district object to paying a tax for a license to sell milk in London. It may be a city ordinance and it may have the backing of the provincial board of health, but that does not hinder the dairymen having good grounds for objection.

London wants the best dairy farmers in this district to come to this city with their produce; it wants to make conditions such that they will regard this as their best market; it does not want to create a feeling among the worth-while milk producers that they had better make contracts to send their milk elsewhere.

In recent months these dairy farms have had their herds tested and inspected. The tuberculin test has taken a large number of cattle from their producing milkers, and it costs more than the government allowance for a rejected animal to get a good one to take its place.

London wants a plentiful milk supply from the best herds around here, and no aggravating by-laws, that will not net a large amount at any rate, should be placed in the road.

Now We Know Prince Edward Island.

Exceptionally fine and creditable in every way was the Dominion Day issue of the Summerside (P. E. I.) Journal. A front page with the Canadian flag in three colors, 36 pages in all, tell the story of Canada's smallest province in a way that makes it a new country and a place of no small importance.

Rich in agricultural and dairy production, with a bountiful share of nature's beauty spots to call the people out-of-doors, the province of Prince Edward Island adds her full quota to the wealth and enterprise of the Dominion.

The Summerside Journal did a real day's work for its province when it placed its possibilities so voluminously before the people of the Dominion.

Kincardine and Other Towns.

The Kincardine Reporter has had printed the names and addresses of some thousands of Kincardine old boys and girls who intend coming back for the reunion. A glance over some of the names and the locations shows that they have been scattered all over the continent.

Kincardine raised them, nursed them along until they were ready for their life's work, and then let them go because, like many other centers, it had nothing for them to do at home.

Kincardine's story is the story of every other village and town in the province. These places have provided the men and the women to build the Dominion. They are in positive reality a hundred times bigger than the assessor will admit.

We'd be glad to bring the old spade down any time and turn the first sod for the new city hall.

The suggestion that the world's next great prize fight be pulled off in London should not be taken too seriously. Remember we have quite a lot of good jokers in this place.

Canada should calmly consider the question of whether the elected Commons or the patronage Senate is governing this country. In England the Commons put the House of Lords in its proper place. Some such operation is overdue in Canada.

The "safe and sane fourth of July" shows a casualty list of 75 killed and 690 injured. This is paying too great a price for celebrating independence. The men who first signed the declaration of independence had nothing of that sort in view for posterity.

The Chesley Enterprise counts noses in the new legislature and finds 36 farmers, 16 merchants, 15 lawyers, 6 manufacturers, 6 doctors, 3 insurance agents, 2 druggists, 2 contractors, 1 dentist, 1 lecturer, 1 civil engineer, 1 secretary, 1 stock broker, 1 locomotive engineer, 1 school inspector, and 47 unaccounted for. Perhaps these 47 are statesmen.

NEWS THAT WAS SUPPRESSED.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)

A horrible story of the war has just been revealed by the announcement that M. Maginot, war minister, will unveil a monument to 350 French soldiers who were killed in a railway accident in Savoy on the night of December 11, 1917. Until now no word has been published of this affair.

It appears that 500 soldiers returning from the Italian front were hung up at Modena. They were going on leave after the battle on the Piave. The driver of the train which was to take them to France protested to the authorities that his engine was too weak for the load and for the high mountain gradients in front. His objection was overruled by a superior.

The train was passing through the Valley of Arc where the track runs zig-zag alongside rocky walls, when the brakes failed to act and the carriages caught fire from the effect of the friction of the brakes. Many of the soldiers threw themselves out and were killed on the spot, flung against the rocks that walled in the track. The train gathered speed and was finally derailed near the station of Saint Michel de Maurienne in a curve which crosses a stone bridge. The carriages shot over the parapet, piling themselves on top of each other in a blazing mass. There were only 150 survivors, most of them seriously injured.

ODE TO METHUSELAH. Methuselah, the poor old scout. We pity him and bet If he'd had his appendix out He might be living yet. We hate to call the Scriptures wrong. When the cave man had words with his wife he beat her, which doesn't seem so cruel when you consider that the modern husband under similar conditions, usually makes for his club.

IN THE SAME BOAT. When I lost all my pay on the prize-fighting day, I felt quite a lot below par; And I said with a moan, "All my savings have flown!" How futile these pugilists are!" But a crop isn't lost by the blight of one frost; And the world was all right, I decided.

When I heard a man say as I met him next day, That he'd suffered a heap more than I did, I am free to admit I was ready to quit.

When my shots flew all over the course; When my mashies were weak and the heel of my cleek; Tore the turf like a galloping horse, I said that the game had no object or aim.

But was merely a time-wasting fad; But I'm still playing round, for I've recently found; That others are equally bad.

For as soon as we find that the rest of our kind; Now and then take a rib-racking fall.

We think with a grin that the world we are in; Isn't such a bad place after all.

Scientists say mosquitos cough to express joy. We hope their bark is not as bad as their bite.

A lot of men may develop horns trying to butt into other people's business. But they never develop round shoulders trying to carry other people's responsibilities.

HERESY TRIALS. Foolish and ignorant questionings refuse, knowing that they gender strife.—II, Timothy ii, 23. I hate heresy trials. Most of them originate in envy, malice and uncharitableness. Some of them beget new heresies. None of them lend any new strength to the truth or give any new impulse to the practice of religion. So far as I know, there is no trial for heresy recorded in the New Testament. But there were trials for dishonesty and unchristian conduct and bad behavior. These are the real heresies. Even the apostles differed in their opinions and in their ways of stating them. St. Paul might have called St. James heretical. But he never did—because they both loved and followed Christ. HERE'S THE WAY TO GIVE REAL FIRST AID IN DROWNING.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

New that the warm weather that is upon us, every pool of water, from the "swimming hole" to the ocean, has its harm for children and grown-ups.

But the sad stories we hear about the dreadful accidents which are of almost daily occurrence.

Any Monday morning pick up the paper and read the number of casualties at the seashore, around the lakes and along rivers and ponds. Many of the fatalities might have been averted if some one with a knowledge of first aid to the drowning were at hand.

At the first news of a drowning, send for a doctor and a pulmonologist. You must not trust to your own efforts, and should make use of them only until a more experienced person arrives on the scene.

As soon as the body is removed from the water, proceed as follows:

"The Ten Books I Have Most Enjoyed"

By ROBERT C. BENCHLEY. Humorist, editor, dramatic critic, author of "Of All Things," etc.

I think it is a crazy idea to make up a list of books, but here are ten that I think of at present: "Three Men in a Boat" (Jerome). "Great Expectations" (Dickens). "Emerson's Essays." "Tom Sawyer" (Mark Twain). "Psychology" (William James). "Alice in Wonderland" (Carroll). "Through the Looking Glass" (Carroll). "Fables in Slang" (George Ade). "The Friends" (Stacy Aumonier). "Tono Bungay" (Wells). These books are in no particular order and I am against the whole idea.

"MIDNIGHT"

A Mystery Story By OCTAVIUS ROY COHEN.

Carroll Calls On Naomi Who Denies That She Killed Warren—the Mystery Deepens

"That," said Carroll simply, "is what I hope to find out." "From where?" "From the lips of Mrs. Lawrence. I'm going to have a talk with her." Carroll was far from happy during his drive to the Lawrence home. The Warren mystery seemed to be verging on a solution, but in Carroll's breast there was none of the pardonable surge of elation which normally was his under these circumstances.

It had been a peculiar case from the first. The dramatic personae had all been of the better type, with the single exception of Mrs. Lawrence, who had been persons against whom the detective was loath to believe ill. And, most eagerly, he had shied from the belief that Mrs. Lawrence was connected in a sinister way with the death of Roland Warren.

Yet he found himself en route to her home, facing the ordeal of an interview with her—an ordeal for her as well as for him—and one through which he feared she could not safely come. For, frankly as Carroll had admitted to his friend that he hoped to find Naomi innocent—he was yet honest and fearless, and failure of the woman to clear herself meant her arrest. Carroll was determined upon that—yet he dreaded it as a child dreads the dentist—as something painful beyond belief.

He rang the bell—then groaned as Evelyn Rogers greeted him effusively. She ushered him ostentatiously into the parlor and drew up a chair close to him. "Mr. Carroll—it's just simply scrumptious of you to call on me informally like this. I can't tell you how tickled I am. I was sitting upstairs, simply bored to extinction. She has been a terrible drag on me recently—really you'd have thought there had been a doctor in the house or something! It's been simply ghastly! And now you come in—like a darling angel—and save me from the willies. You're a dear, and—"

"But—but—I really came to see you sister." "Oh! pit! That's what poor dear Roland used to say all the time. But I always knew I was the one he wanted to see. Goodness, he was simply crazy about me—but of course she never understood that. She hasn't yet realized that I'm grown up."

"Familiar how blind some folks are. But this time, Miss Rogers—I really do want to chat with your sister. Not that I wouldn't prefer a talk with you. So if you'll tell her I'm here—and would like to see her privately."

Evelyn rose and started reluctantly toward the door. "I suppose it's up to me to make myself very scarce. But I'd rather talk to me. Poor Roland used to say that—but he always said it as though he was kidding. I believe you."

"I assure you I'm serious." "I know it. And anyway, I was thinking of running out for a minute—suppose there is a good chance. Of course, I'd stay and see you if you wanted—but I suppose you've got something terrible dry to discuss with me."

She left the room and Carroll heaved a sigh of infinite relief. A few minutes later the hall door swung back and Naomi entered. She was immensely relieved to see that the youngster was cloaked for the street and murmured a few idle words to her before she went in. And until the front door banged behind her he remained standing before the fireplace, his eyes focussed on the tragic figure of Naomi.

"Everything?" "Everything—or nothing. A portion of the story will not help either of you. Of course you don't have to. Impulsively she leaned forward. "There is something about you, Mr. Carroll, which makes me trust you. I feel that you are a friend rather than an enemy."

Peter Rabbit Goes To Call On Danny Meadow Mouse, But Finds the House Deserted

By C. L. Funnell.

Peter Rabbit was scampering, lip-perty-lip-perty-lip, across the Green Meadows on his way home to the dear Old Briar Patch. Happening to look down he saw just in front of him a little path through the grass. It was a very thin path, but it was a path just the same. Peter knew at once who had made that little path. He had seen little paths like that many, many times. Danny Meadow Mouse had made them, and he had made this one. Now, Peter wouldn't have given it a second thought had it not been that the state of that little path reminded him of Danny.

"I declare!" exclaimed Peter. "I haven't seen Danny Meadow Mouse for a long, long time. There have been so many friends to call on and so much to see that I haven't thought of Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse. I wonder what has become of them! I suppose they are around here somewhere. Probably, like everybody else, they have been busy bringing up a family. I guess I'll look around for them and see how they are getting along."

So Peter began looking around in places where he had been in the habit of meeting Danny Meadow Mouse, but he didn't find Danny. In fact, he didn't find any signs of Danny excepting many little paths through the grass, and all these paths were old. There was no sign that Danny or Nanny Meadow Mouse had used them lately.

Confidence That Accepts Whatever a Child May Do As Right, Because He Did It, Is Not Healthy

By ANGELO PATRI.

"I see you are a little troubled about my son," said the mother on whom the anxious teacher was calling. "Now, I can assure you that you needn't be. I have every confidence in him." "But I feel that he needs a tighter hand on him," began the teacher. "No, I think not," answered the placid parent, rocking gently as she smoothed her visitor. "I have brought him up to tell the truth. I demand strict obedience. I teach him to have every confidence in him, and that makes him feel under obligation to play fair. Don't you think so?" "I hope so," returned the teacher. "But you know adolescent boys and girls are not so easily won over. Honor. It isn't fair to just expect them to have and not follow them up a little." "Now how, for instance?" asked the mother. "Did you know that Henry cut his gym periods last Thursday and went to the movies with one of the girls?" "Why, no. He didn't tell me that. But I suppose he didn't think it was very important. After all, the gymnasium lesson is not a ranking subject, and he may have thought I wouldn't object. Still he should have asked me about it. Who was the girl?" "A very nice girl. But she had no permission to go either, and I thought it was rather serious. Well, I'll speak to Henry about it, of course. Still I assure you that you have no call to be worried about it. I have every confidence in him. Which, as the teacher suggested,

THE DAILY SHORT STORY

THE TITLE HUNTER.

By H. IRVING KING. "So you are going abroad again, I hear," said Clive Henderson, as he found himself alone with Agnes Duncan in a corner of one of Mrs. Fairbanks' great rooms at the dinner-table. "Oh, yes," replied Agnes. "The usual thing, I suppose, to do a round of English country houses, Paris—a little of it for shopping—and the Riviera."

She lay back in her chair fanning herself languidly with her white-plumed fan as she spoke—beautiful, indolently regal, and a trifle of the poor. "And a marriage and a title at the end of the rainbow journey," said Clive with bitterness in his tones. "Who can tell?" replied Agnes with a little laugh. "Aunt Clara, you know, is my stage manager, and so far, as she acknowledges herself, I have been a credit to her. Does that sound like boasting? Well, it isn't. The praise is all due to auntie—dear old ambitious auntie. She has been a providence to me ever since I was sixteen. I was left a penniless orphan instead of the heiress everybody thought me. Oh, yes, Aunt Clara has a great deal to do for me, or the workshop, and is going to leave me a big fortune. So you see she has a right to command."

"You seem very content over the prospect," frowned Clive. "What prospect?" "That of marrying a foreigner with a title." "Me?" cried Agnes. "Oh, I don't mind so much a title and an English country house. Now why should one get peevish over a prospect of that kind? If you must scold somebody, go and scold auntie—don't scold me. I am in the best temper in the world tonight."

"Agnes Duncan," cried Clive in exasperation. "I never thought the world would be so full of such a heartless and ungrateful creature. You, the little girl who was my playmate at East Hampton when our families used to spend the summer there—you whom I have known so long and well and whom I have so loved—"

He hesitated, and Agnes broke in with, "For heaven's sake, Clive, don't say 'loved.' Be original. Every agreeable man I have met seems to think it incumbent on him to make his love believe that he is in love with me. Some of them really are in love—with Aunt Clara's money, but not with Agnes Duncan."

"You know very well," replied Clive, "that I don't want your aunt's money; I want you. This is the first time since we were children together that I have dared to ask you to be my wife—the first time, in fact, that I have been in a position to do so. But now I have accumulated enough for us to begin life on; I have been taken into partnership by my firm and my prospective father-in-law are such that I dare ask you to share that future with me. Come, Agnes, shake off this worldliness which you have been cultivating; be your true self—and say 'yes.'"

He spoke bravely, pleadingly, his eyes fixed upon those of the beautiful woman near him. "The great blue eyes of Agnes met those of her suitor for a moment, and then, by a seemingly careless movement, she interposed her fan between them and the ardent gaze of the earnest man as he answered: "Oh, indeed, Mr. Lawyer! All you rising young barristers are so modest. No, no, my dear Clive, you are a good boy, always were, and I think a lot of you. This trip I ought to catch an earl at last. Now don't you think I am worthy of one?"

As he escorted her into the room Agnes, "He is coming to see me, you dear," laughed Agnes, and, going around the table, she kissed the frowns from the old woman's brow. "I'll forgive you," said the mollified aunt, "if you will say 'yes' to Clive the first time he asks you." "Oh, he has asked me," returned Agnes. "Yes, but I won't do so any more, you dear," laughed Agnes, and, going around the table, she kissed the frowns from the old woman's brow. "I'll forgive you," said the mollified aunt, "if you will say 'yes' to Clive the first time he asks you."

"Well, I'm glad that's settled," said Aunt Clara, "and I'm glad to see me all his life; he is a rising young man and will make you a good husband." "Yes, I think he will," mused Agnes, "somehow, do you know, I have always had an idea that I should eventually marry Clive." (Copyright, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

FEAR TWO BALLOONISTS DROWNED IN LAKE ERIE, NO TRACE OF MEN FOUND

Aeroplanes and Speed Boats Scour Waters In Search of Missing Aviators—Basket Missing—Saturday Tragedy Brings National Race To Close—Tug Tows Remains of Wreck Into Port.

GOOD LUCK TELEGRAM IS FOUND IN KIT BAG. By good fortune in securing a gasoline yacht at Port Stanley, Advertiser staff reporter and photographer were the first staff newspapermen to reach the wrecked balloon 30 miles out in Lake Erie.

BULLETIN. Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter. Port Stanley, July 9.—At 1:30 this morning (Monday) no trace had been found here of the two missing balloonists.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter. Port Stanley, July 9.—The National Balloon Race of America drew to a tragic close with the finding of United States Navy Balloon No. A6698 floating in Lake Erie, 30 miles S.W. of Port Stanley, with her pilot and her observer evidently drowned in the basket of the balloon which had been cut clear of the envelope.

The balloon race started from Indianapolis on July 4, and of the 22 entries, the ill-fated A6698 was the only balloon not accounted for until Saturday, when it was reported drifting a total wreck in Lake Erie.

Start Search. The Colonial, after circling around the wreckage, discovered that it could do nothing, and made for Port Stanley to obtain assistance. The government patrol boat Elsie Doris, and the tug Frank H. Stanley immediately went out in search.

Word reached London shortly before 11 and Advertiser reporters with a staff photographer left for Port Stanley by motor. On arrival here the Advertiser secured the gasoline yacht Meriles, and by noon had headed out into the lake on a course indicated by officers of the Colonial.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the tug and the yacht Meriles, and coming alongside found the tug Frank H. Stanley trying to tow the wreckage ashore.

Two-thirds of the envelope was still inflated and the cordage and remainder of the balloon had spread out parachute-fashion below water, made towing impossible.

Shortly after The Advertiser reached the wreck the Fishery Patrol boat Elsie Doris came alongside and offered to help the tug, but his offer, which entailed a share in the salvage, was declined, and he set his course for Erieau, leaving the wreck in the possession of the fishing tug.

Considerable of the effects of the aviators had been taken from the suspension cordage and safety ring of the balloon, and these articles were laid out carefully on the deck of the tug. The articles found included the official log book of the flight, a tabulated control sheet indicating gas pressure, and the relative altitudes at which they would occur, a dozen or more balloon tags or messages with a red streamer attached to each.

Parachutes Intact. The wrecked balloon gives some hint as to what occurred. When first seen by The Advertiser, the suspension cordage of the balloon, which had and boarded it. It was flown by Henry A. Bruno, vice-president of the Aeromarine Airways, Limited, and had come from Cleveland with a party of American newspapermen. It also took the American flag and a rubber coat belonging to one of the men.

Highest Altitude. According to the altitude meter carried by the balloon, the highest point reached was 11,400 feet, this being the mark registered. The number on the meter was 4,307. The balloon was attached to the back of the men, and the latter were seen to be struggling to hold on to the ropes.

Seen at his home shortly after having docked his boat, Captain Moore, who was sitting in a hammock, described how he had found the balloon. He stated that when he heard the news of its being in the lake he immediately started out on the general direction of where it was sighted.

At six o'clock a flying boat landed beside the tug and several men came aboard. They were from Cleveland, and included several newspapermen. After the flying boat left the tug steamed straight to port, reaching there about 11 hours after having left.

At present it looks as if both the officers and crew were killed. The accident increases this fate seems more than likely. The contents of the log book and the bag were so damaged by water and the ink which formed from the pencils that it was impossible to decipher anything but the telegram of the tug and the inventory of the contents of the kit bag.

When The Advertiser boat was ready to leave for shore, Skipper Moore of the Frank H. Stanley, asked to have the envelope of the balloon opened to allow the remainder of the gas to escape and haul it aboard. This was accomplished with a carving knife and a bathhook as the Meriles pulled away from the wreckage.

When the tug had dropped nearly out of sight on the horizon a large hydro-aeroplane was seen to alight near the wrecked balloon and the tug. This was one of the searching planes sent out by Major Carl Spatz, U. S. flying corps, commandant of the Selfridge aviation field at Detroit.

MURRELL MADE NO FIGHT AGAINST EXTRADITION

SIDNEY MURRELL WILL BE BROUGHT HOME BY JULY 21

No Further Delay in Returning Man Wanted Here For Murder.

MADE NO APPEAL

Crown Attorney Has No Word of Fight Against Extradition.

Sidney Murrell, being held at San Francisco for extradition to this city, will be returned without further delay, according to Crown Attorney J. C. Elliott, who told The Advertiser this morning that he had received no word as to Murrell's having entered an appeal.

Saturday was the final day allowed the imprisoned man in which to enter an appeal against the extradition order issued by Immigration Commissioner Krull of the California city on June 23.

Asked concerning the approximate date of Murrell's return to London, Mr. Elliott stated that it would no doubt be kept a secret when the officers would leave to bring him back and the route they would travel on the return journey. It was more than likely the man would be lodged in the county jail by July 21, the date, announced by The Advertiser some days ago.

SCORES ENJOY PICNIC OF HAY STATIONERY

Employees of Company Enjoy Big Day at Port Talbot.

Returning late Saturday night after an eventful day, members of the Hay Stationery Company voted their annual picnic, held at Port Talbot, one of the best of the year. In point of size it was successful at the outset, ten motor cars being requisitioned to carry the picnic party.

Continuing to augur success for the rest of the day was the softball game, with which the sports commenced, the team refusing to announce a victor with the claim that an adding machine was necessary to keep track of the score.

The big event of the day was the game between the factory and warehouse teams, with M. G. Hay, vice-president of the company, as umpire. The warehouse team gained the victory by the scant margin of two runs.

During the sports the girls, headed by Miss Louise Bowles and Miss Vera Blood, organized into a refreshment committee and prepared the picnic supper.

Among the sports of the day bathing was not neglected and the greater number of the picnicers enjoyed a swim in Lake Erie. In the land sports the following won prizes: Kiddies' race—Ruthie Griffin, Lucille Thum, and Nellie Warner, winning the prize by driving an eight-inch spike in nine seconds; Mrs. Mahoney second. Peanut race—Eyre Davis, Ed. Smith, Bill Davis, Ladies' blindfold race—Mrs. Craig, Mrs. Warner, Mrs. Wheeler, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Frank Warner, Wheelbarrow race—Dave Price and Leona Mot-tashed. Balloon blowing contest—Miss Florence Carter and Miss Blood. A tug-of-war, which formed the grand climax, was won by the store staff.

UNITED STATES TARIFF HITS CATTLE INDUSTRY

American Farm Federation Declares Canadian Cattle Are Diverted to Great Britain.

Washington, July 9.—The Canadian surplus of about 200,000 head of cattle a year is being diverted from the United States to Great Britain because of the American tariff of two cents a pound, it was said in a statement issued yesterday by the American Farm Bureau Federation, whose economics department reported that there is practically no benefit to the cattle industry of the United States from the new tariff and a distinct injury to United States cattle feeders. The federation declared that in co-operation with other organizations it has appealed to the tariff commission for relief, but that no action had been taken.

HOW THE MISSING BALLOON WAS FOUND.

The above photos by an Advertiser staff photographer shows a "close up" of the closing incidents in the salvaging of the wrecked United States navy balloon No. A6698, in the wrecking of which Lieutenants Louis J. Roth and Teiford B. Null are believed to have lost their lives. The photos were taken on Lake Erie, 30 miles southwest of Port Stanley, at the position in which the wreck was first sighted by the steamer Colonial. The large picture in the upper right-hand corner gives an excellent idea of the size of the immense gas bag, and also the United States aircraft insignia. In the upper left-hand corner can be seen the stern of the fish tug Frank M. Stanley, with the crew making fast the suspension ropes of the balloon, with which they towed the derelict balloon to Port Stanley. The inset in the upper picture shows the damage bag of the lost officers, their uniform broderick caps, and the large American ensign which was flying from the cordage of the balloon. In the kitbag the charts, road maps, altitude records, logbook and blank balloon messages were found, as well as a telegram to Lieut. Roth, which read, "Good luck. We hope you win," signed "Ruth," which had evidently been delivered to him at Indianapolis just prior to the ascension which terminated so tragically for the daring aviators. The lower picture shows the tug "lying-to" prior to her return trip to Port Stanley, and also the yacht Merlees, in which The Advertiser reporters reached the scene of the wreck.

Corsan Teaches Children Water Need Not Be Evil

Finds Many Who Believe It Is of Dangerous Origin and Should Always Be Avoided.

Entering upon the second week of the great "Corsan" swimming campaign in London finds literally thousands of citizens deeply concerned about swimming and becoming at home in the water.

One of the features of the campaign is the constant visitation to the Thames Park swimming pool of parents. Almost a blockade of motor cars occurred in the park on Friday, due to the interest that citizens are taking in this wonderful campaign which the playgrounds association of the city has undertaken.

Expectations are being realized beyond the remotest conception that anyone of the committee had. Married women with children are coming. Timid children who regard the water as something foreign and of dangerous origin are making Thames Park a familiar resort and are plunging in and out of the pool with as little concern as they would manifest going to the lunch or dinner.

Produces Results. Corsan, by his quick methods of teaching and the way in which he inspired confidence, is producing results far more rapidly than it was ever anticipated he could, and on Wednesday afternoon next, Mr. Corsan will follow up his campaign work by giving a demonstration with pupils who have learned to swim, and in addition those who have developed new strokes and perfected the old ones. The exhibition will be held at 3 o'clock, and the public is cordially invited.

Saturday's work included the introduction of water wings to the course, and the wading end of the pool represented a duck pond in miniature, for at times some 50 tots were to be seen battling around on wings to the words of command of the instructor, "Look right," "Look left," "breathe in," "breathe out," etc., and so on throughout the whole day. Mr. Corsan is busy inspiring onlookers and users of the pool in becoming at home in the water.

Saturday Mr. Corsan visited Birkett's Flats and gave a demonstration in the river of the porpoise, dolphin, congo style of swimming, sculling and many other strokes, and then made a line-up of 150 children and gave them explicit instruction as to how to proceed.

Mr. Corsan will return to Birkett's on Tuesday at 2 o'clock and continue another series of explanations in the course of teaching to swim.

Trained Speed Champion. It is not generally known that a pupil of Mr. Corsan's developed Johnny Weismuller, the famous world champion representing the Illinois Athletic Club of Chicago, which goes to show that the fundamental principles of Corsan's teaching will develop speed swimmers.

Mr. Corsan has been instructor of swimming at the following places: Ontario Teachers' Training College, Toronto; Normal Physical Education, Battle Creek; University of Toronto; Margaret Eaton School, Toronto; Cincinnati Public Schools; Life Guards, Chicago; and St. Louis; United States government at the war training camps in California; Tidal Basin Bathing Beach, Washington, D. C., and for years has been on the staff of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Corsan will be here six days more.

MAUGHAN BEHIND TIME IN COAST-TO-COAST TRIP

Special to The Advertiser. Dayton, Ohio, July 9.—Lieut. Russell Maughan completed the first leg of his "daylight to sunset" flight from New York to San Francisco in his little Curtiss pursuit plane here at 9:12 today. The airman was 2 hours and 27 minutes behind his schedule, which called for a landing here at 6:45 a.m.

FORMER JUDGE DIES

BRITISH CABINET DRAWS UP POLICY ON REPARATIONS

Premier Baldwin Expected To Make Announcement in House This Week.

Special Cable to The Advertiser. London, July 9.—The finishing touches on a policy towards reparations and the Ruhr to be adopted by Britain and urged upon France and Belgium—were effected today at a meeting of the British cabinet.

Premier Baldwin and Foreign Minister Curzon will make public the policy in parliament this week, each in the house to which he belongs—Baldwin in commons and Curzon in lords.

The foreign secretary reported today to the cabinet on conversations he had had with French, Belgian and Italian ambassadors recently. It is believed that as a result of these, Britain has decided to go on alone, if necessary, and settle the reparations problem in their own way.

France, according to announcement by President Millerand, declines definitely to abandon her present policy of coercion.

Belgium is understood to be equally for pursuit of the Ruhr sanctions. Ambassadors of these two countries were withdrawn from Berlin. Britain has indicated, through speeches of various ministers, disapproval of this proposal, which was urged by England after the Duisberg outrage, in which twenty Belgian soldiers lost their lives. Italy is aligned with neither France and Belgium, nor England. Mussolini has a plan of his own, involving discussion of war debts simultaneously with reparations.

The British policy upon which the cabinet worked today is likely to signalize a definite, possibly a permanent break in the entente that won the war.

SHADOWS OF WAR NO LONGER HANG OVER NEAR EAST

Success at Lausanne Brings Long Delayed Peace to Nations.

Associated Press Despatch. Lausanne, July 9.—Ismet Pasha has proved himself perhaps a greater diplomat than general, for by the Near Eastern peace which was arranged in principle between the allied and Turkish representatives in the early hours of this morning, he achieved signal victories for his country, extinguishing him to high honors from the Angora Grand Assembly.

Ismet never relinquished his grasp on the delicate situations that often confronted the conference. He kept all the skilled diplomats guessing from the start. He smiled always, but seldom if ever did he yield.

The Angora government must still be consulted on several points concerning allied concessions in Turkey, but everybody at Lausanne believes that peace will surely be signed within ten days. Should Bolsheviki Russia accept the invitation to come here to sign the straits convention, the final ceremony will possess great significance.

The great result of the Lausanne peace, as seen by the diplomats here, is that one of the most serious dangers to the peace of the continent has been removed by the liquidation of the state of war in the Near East and by the agreement of Turkey and Greece to lay down their arms at last. European troops will evacuate Turkish soil.

"Peace! Peace! Tell it to the whole world!" These were the words of the Turkish leader to the correspondents as he emerged jubilant from the conference hall after a session that extended well into the night. Champagne was drunk later at the delegation hotels to celebrate the success of the negotiations which began last November.

Turkey won a succession of vic-

Six Policemen Disperse Furious Mob of Lynchers

Reports From East Declare Russian Refugees To Seek New Homes.

Special to The Advertiser. London, Pa., July 9.—Six policemen armed only with blackjacks, late last night dispersed a mob of 2,000 infuriated men and women who surrounded the jail and threatened to lynch Horace Brown, who had been arrested for shooting up the town.

Brown was arrested after he had terrorized the town by running up and down the main street, shooting off a heavy revolver. A crowd followed the prisoner to the jail.

The police force of three was swept aside and the jail stormed, a rope was produced, and the men and women beat down the jail door.

Six Lower Merion policemen were rushed to the scene and scattered the mob, while the prisoner was spirited to the Norristown jail.

THOUSANDS TO LEAVE SIBERIA FOR CANADA

Reports From East Declare Russian Refugees To Seek New Homes.

Canadian Press Despatch. Victoria, B.C., July 9.—Three thousand selected Russians, recruited from among the thousands of refugees from Siberia and now congregated in the most populous centers of the Far East, will cross the Pacific Ocean to enter Canada as settlers, it is stated by The Times.

The newspaper says it received this information from an authoritative source when the liner President Jackson docked here Friday from the Orient. As far as is known by the local department of Dominion immigration service, no provision has been made to permit the entry of such a large contingent of Russians into this country.

CANADIAN INDUSTRIES BUY COAL FROM MEXICO

Interests Contract For 10,000,000 Tons at Price Below United States.

Associated Press Despatch. New York, July 9.—Large industrial interests in Canada have contracted with the Compadia Carbonera Consolidada de Coahuila, a subsidiary of the National Railways of Mexico for the purchase of 10,000,000 tons of Mexican coal, shipments to the Dominion to be at the rate of 200,000 tons a week, according to a dispatch from Sabinas, Mexico, published by the Wall Street Journal today.

The price the Canadian purchasers will pay for the coal, the dispatch adds, is not publicly known, but it is understood to be much below the cost in the United States.

FRENCH CHAMBER ADOPTS CANADIAN TREATY ON TRADE

Bill Dealing With the Tariff Agreement Passes House Without Debate.

RATIFY NAVAL PACT

Take Action On Washington Pact After Many Months' Delay.

Associated Press Despatch. Paris, July 9.—The bill approving the commercial convention between France and Canada, signed December 15, 1922, was adopted without debate by the chamber of deputies today.

The new Franco-Canadian commercial treaty signed by Hon. W. S. Fielding, minister of finance for Canada, and Hon. Ernest LaRoche, Canadian minister of marine and fisheries, in Paris on December 15 last, and announced in a cable received by the government at Ottawa on that date, provides that France will grant to Canada the benefit of the minimum tariff on 128 tariff items and 14 chemical sub-items, and the lower rate of duties granted to any foreign country on 23 tariff items and 19 chemical sub-items, to which the minimum tariff will not apply.

With regard to the Canadian products which come under the French general tariff, the treaty provides that Canada shall receive as favorable treatment as the United States. Concessions made to the United States will also apply to the Dominion.

Canada grants to France the Canadian intermediate tariff and favored nation treatment generally. Assurance is given to France that no tariff changes that may be made by Canada the proportionate difference between the intermediate and general tariff shall be maintained.

The treaty was adopted in the early part of this year by the house of commons at Ottawa after a long and warmly opposed by the Conservative opposition led by Hon. Arthur Meighen.

RATIFY NAVAL TREATY. Paris, July 9.—Today's action by the chamber is in continuation of the ratification process inaugurated Saturday when the Washington naval treaty was ratified in the lower house by a vote of 460 to 108. The senate has yet to act upon the various articles.

When the question of ratification of the conventions relating to the Pacific came before the senate, Archibald, Socialist-Radical, said he and his friends would vote for the bill because France would obtain a great advantage after the war. The treaties constituted a perceptible effort by four great nations toward peace, and would strengthen the chances of a permanent peace.

He congratulated Albert Harraux, minister for the colonies, French delegate to the Washington conference for the efforts he had made to transfer from the Pacific pact, which originally was to have been signed by the United States, Great Britain and Japan, into a four-power treaty.

PLAN REGISTRATION FOR OLD BOYS' REUNION

The Harriet Boomer Chapter, I. O. E., Will Be in Charge of Bureau.

Through the courtesy of the directors of the Lloyd George Hotel Company, the old Merchants Bank at the corner of Richmond street and Queen's avenue, on the site where London's new hotel is to be erected, will be the visitors' registration bureau during Old Boys' Week.

General Secretary Edwin Smith announced this morning that the Harriet A. Boomer Chapter, I. O. E., had promised a number of its members to be in charge during the week and to be on hand to give all information possible to visitors.

It is now expected that the hotel accommodation in the city will be sufficient for the great number who are anticipated as visitors. Many citizens have already made arrangements to receive guests. Between now and the reunion week, it is expected that many others will open their homes and numbers of houses extra "roomer" during the week. Any who can promise to do this are asked to communicate with Mr. Smith, the secretary, at his office, 207 Dundas street.

The support of the citizens is asked in this matter, as old boys are expected to be here in unprecedented numbers, and the success of their week in the "old home town" depends to a very great extent upon the sleeping accommodation they are able to secure.

It is believed that local hotels will give all the co-operation possible, but the secretary said this morning that other assistance from citizens themselves is practically an essential.

MAN DIES AT BRANTFORD FROM BEING GORED BY BULL

Canadian Press Despatch. Brantford, Ont., July 9.—Arthur Williams, 28, single, residing on the Burford road, died in the Brantford General Hospital last night from the effects of being gored by a bull. He was driving out cows when the bull attacked him, throwing him down and goring him in the neck. He managed to escape, but a hemorrhage set in and death followed.

THE GUMPS—NO RELIEF IN SIGHT

PEER ANNOUNCES ONTARIO'S NEW CABINET

ANNUAL ORANGE CHURCH PARADE ATTRACTS MANY

Members of City and District March To Hyatt Avenue Church.

OVER 500 ATTEND

Through two miles of London streets over 500 Orangemen of the district marched yesterday to their annual church parade. The perfect weather, the bright sunshine, and the gay tunes of the various bands all helped to make this, the 23rd anniversary, memorable in London by the large number of members who turned out for the parade and the enthusiastic way in which the service itself was carried out.

At 2:30 Orangemen hailing from some twenty lodges in the city and district, and including members of the order from St. Thomas, Lucan, Pottersburg, Komoka, Belmont, and several of the nearby towns, formed into line in the Market lane, and at 2:45 led by the London Orange brass band, and with the Forest City five band and the Hackett band, started on their long trek to the Hyatt Avenue Methodist Church, where Rev. R. J. McCormick, the pastor, preached a wonderful and inspiring commemorative sermon on "Liberty."

Forming up for the return parade and in the same order with the bands shrilling and the drums always the heart of an Orange lodge on the march, throbbing and beating as if they were indeed the living heart of the order whose progress they cheered. Back to the foot of Market lane they went, old men past 70, young men hardy out of their teens, gaily uniformed bandsmen and the more soberly clad masters of the various lodges in frock coats and silk hats.

Dispersing, the Orangemen wended their different ways home to a more memory of a well-organized parade, and to rest and prepare for the great twelfth, which they will spend in Chatham this year, and where a wonderful program has been arranged. Veteran members who attended yesterday's parade, and the four miles with light and jaunty air were Emanuel T. Essery, past grand master of Ontario West; Joseph Murray, treasurer of Hackett 805; A. Niven, another member of 805, and several other well-known Orangemen in the district.

The parade was in charge of John Morrison, district master of cere-monies, assisted by Ernest Langford, assistant district master of cere-monies. The church committee who looked after the arrangement of the service consisted of Joseph Murray, chairman; H. Clements, Harold Watson, Frank Neely and Ivan H. Thatcher. Stanley Lee, chairman of the official board of the Hyatt Avenue Methodist Church, welcomed the members of the order to the church at the beginning of the service. The church was filled, and some 200 who had walked in the parade were forced to wait outside. The two ladies lodges, Edith Cavell and Langemack O. R. A., joined the procession near the church. They greeted the church with their summer dresses and lent an air of gaiety to the ceremony. Mrs. Cross, worshipful mistress, came in charge of Edith Cavell Lodge, and Mrs. Thomas Owens brought the members of Langemack.

No Casualties. There were no casualties and the vitality of the older members who treated the heat with contempt, and the long, long trail with the light-hearted joyousness of youth, was surely a credit to the type of men who join this vigorous order. On the platform of the church were E. T. Essery, W. J. Whitby, district master, and H. Clements, who read the lesson for the day.

Give Short Addresses. Both Brother Essery and Brother Whitby gave short addresses preceding the service. Mr. Whitby thanking the pastor and the church board for the use of the church, and reminding the assembled members of the solemn events that this service was to commemorate, Mr. Essery pointing to the Union Jack which lay on the pulpit before him, showed how the three crosses of St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick had all their place, and how with an emblem of this kind red for its constancy, white for its purity, and blue for its faith, a country could hardly fall in any test presented.

Preaching on "Liberty" the Rev. R. J. McCormick, spoke of a trip to London and Belfast which he had made a witness then of a great Orange parade in which some 8,000 members had marched. Their fine martial bearing together with their earnestness in their generally fine appearance had attracted him and reminded him of the history that lay behind the 12th of July and the reason for the formation of the Orange Order. In those days, he said, there was a belief in the so-called divine right of kings. Pym and Hampden had fought against it and were eventually completely successful in destroying it, and all the terrible tyrannical attitude that had been the history of that time all through Europe.

Fought Oppression. All through the days when William of Orange was fighting in his own country against this oppression, the fight for religious and political liberty had been waged, and had culminated, as it always would, wherever men were free to stand for freedom. Freedom of thought and understanding of the purposes of God was never confined to men of great intelligence or superior worldly wisdom. "I have known many men and women," he said, "without education and many of them unable to read, yet they had the surest and most wonderful realization of God, and knew to the uttermost real liberty of the spirit. Canada has a wonderful form of democracy, like as all the other dominions of the empire, and very much superior to it to the form of government existing today in the great republic to the south."

"As far as spiritual freedom was concerned," he continued, "this is the most important of all liberty, and William of Orange laid the foundation at the cost of many lives and much suffering, of a freedom that is firmly established today in all the far-flung countries of the empire."

Horse Seeks Haven of Rest

Special to The Advertiser. Strathroy, July 8.—Today the Middlesex County House of Refuge, situated on the western outskirts of the town, which is always so well supplied with inmates and all who inspect it, received another recommendation, this time from a horse. This horse has been taking the rosy cure at Dr. Brandreth's stables for a few days, but despite the doctor's pampering care and good feeding slipped its halter, this morning and stole away. It was taken for granted the ungrateful patient would wander to its home near Kerwood, but a search disclosed the fact he had proceeded straight to the House of Refuge, whose open gates made him welcome.

Christ is the absolute spirit of freedom.

Possess Freedom. "There are many of us here today who are in possession of this freedom but who are yet the veriest slaves of sin, for if any man sins he is the servant of sin. Let us follow the example of Pitt and Wilberforce, who wrenched the shackles from the feet of the slaves and in the same way free ourselves from the shackles that bind us to the chariot of Satan. In Palestine on the little hill called Golgotha is a real status of liberty. There is the shadow of Christ on His cross, the ever-living symbol of the liberty and freedom that he gave to us at the cross. This is the 'Liberty' of the political body, has been given to us at the cost of his own happiness. Let us never underestimate the great courage and wonderful bravery of those who sacrificed themselves for the freedom of the world."

"As they suffered for their principles, so must we suffer if we are to attain the kingdom of Heaven, for the kingdom is not of this world, for as many of the worldly men would wish. Out of great tribulation, from out the thrashing floor and the kingdom is made. In this time, we must emerge, and as we prove to be grain fit for the miller, the best and the finest of grains, shall we be able to enter the kingdom of our Father."

EMPLOYEES OF SIGNRY HOLD ANNUAL OUTING

Picnic At Springbank Saturday Afternoon Has Splendid Program.

The Signry Limited, held their annual outing at Springbank Saturday afternoon when a large crowd of Signry employees and their friends participated in a splendid sports program and picnic. The picnic was held on the ground to the west of the car loop. Besides the usual races and amusements common at picnics of this kind, a few novelty races and a fast football game were put on and thoroughly enjoyed. The sports the picnicers enjoyed a splendid supper. Everyone present agreed that this had been the most enjoyable outing ever put on by the Signry.

ROBBINS FAMILY HOLD THEIR ANNUAL REUNION

One Hundred and Twenty Gather From Various Parts and Enjoy Good Time.

The sixth annual Robbins' reunion was held last Wednesday at Springbank Park, over 100 members and friends of the family from London, Watford, Belmont, Toronto, Dorchester, Embro, Thornedale, Detroit, Forest, Petrolia, Bathwell, Thamesford, and the late Peter Robbins old homestead.

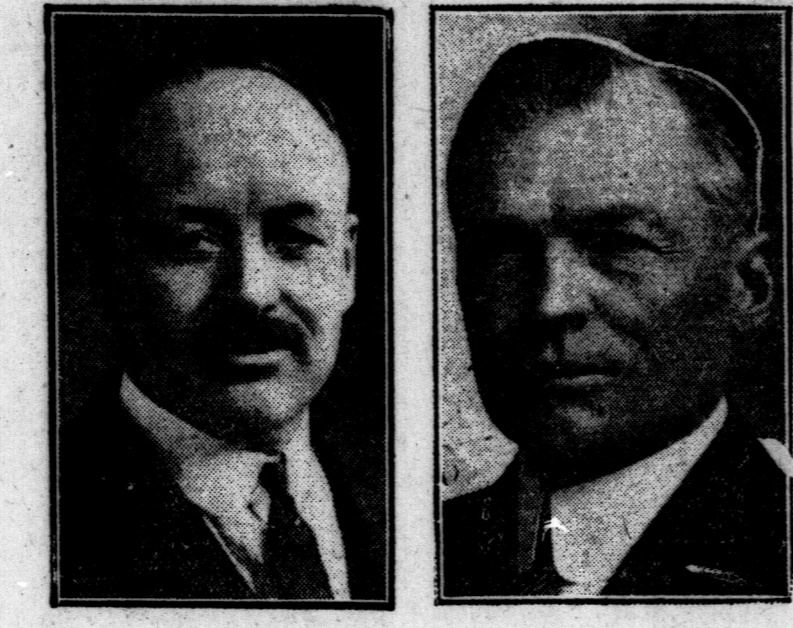

The following were elected to office: Honorary president, Mrs. S. J. Dundas; secretary, Mrs. C. K. McLeod; treasurer, Mrs. C. K. McLeod; managing committee, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Dundas, Dorchester; Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Stinson, Thornedale; and Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Robbins, Dorchester.

COLLISION ON BEACH SLIDE FRACTURES BOY'S ARM

Melvin Gough, aged 10, of Melbourne, is in Victoria Hospital with a fractured arm, sustained on the beach at Port Stanley last evening, when another lad collided with him in sliding down the children's slide. The injured boy was brought to London by Dr. W. S. Stinson, who attended him, and reported today that he was doing well.

GALT TAX COLLECTION MAKES GOOD SHOWING

Special to The Advertiser. Galt, July 8.—Tax collector Jesse Welland reports that less than 10 per cent of the first installment of taxes had been left unpaid by the required date, which is considered a remarkable showing in view of conditions. Of a total of $270,347.53 to be raised on the first installment, $249,041.15 has been paid.

Ontario's New Ministry Goes Into Power in Week

Draft of Portfolios Completed Late Saturday Night Is Given Approval By Lieutenant-Governor of Province.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, July 9.—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, premier designate, last night announced personnel of the new Conservative cabinet in Ontario. The ministry has received the approval of his honor the lieutenant-governor of Ontario, and according to arrangements the government of Hon. E. C. Drury will retire from office one week from today, when the new cabinet will be sworn in and formally take over the affairs of the province.

The draft of portfolios was not completed until late Saturday, when it was taken to Government House and received the approval of the lieutenant-governor. This brings into being the only Conservative government in Canada at the present time. The Ferguson ministry follows: Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, K.C., Grenville.

Attorney-general, Hon. W. F. Nickle, K.C., Kingston. Public works and highways, Hon. George S. Henry, East York. Provincial treasurer, Hon. W. H. Price, K.C., Parkdale.

Minister of mines, Charles McCrea, K.C., Sudbury. Public health and labor, Dr. Forbes Godfrey, West York. Minister of agriculture, John S. Martin, South Norfolk.

Provincial secretary, Lincoln Goldie, South Wellington. Lands and forests, James W. Lyons, Sault Ste. Marie.

Without portfolio, Sir Adam Beck, London; Hon. Thomas Crawford, Northwest Toronto; Dr. Leeming Carr, East Hamilton; J. R. Cooke, North Hastings.

Speaker, Captain Joe Thompson. Gives Statement. In announcing the personnel of his government Mr. Ferguson accompanied it with the following statement:

"The people of the province of Ontario have given the Conservative party a mandate to administer their affairs for the next four years. The lieutenant-governor called upon the leader of that party to form a government. As leader, I accepted the invitation, realizing the great responsibility which the electors had placed in my hands. Probably never before has a province spoken so decisively; never before have any members of the legislature as members of one party such a number of outstanding men from all spheres of public and private activity. This has enabled me to choose a strong cabinet, but that very fact made the task difficult. With patience and care I have canvassed the whole situation, taking into consideration all factors necessary in forming a representative cabinet. There still remains a number of strong, capable members who are none the less worthy than those who will form the cabinet. They will assist the new government in bringing to its attention their particular views on important questions. The incoming legislature presents indeed a great opportunity for public service."

Represents People. "The new government earnestly desires to be representative of all the people and consistent with the principles of party government, which are based on British parliamentary custom, and will endeavor to translate into action statutes that will command the support of all classes. I ask for the co-operation of the press and the people in order that the new government may, without fear or favor, undertake its task."

"From the electors, whose voice I have heard, I humbly accept all the responsibilities involved in the premiership, and am grateful for the confidence they have thus expressed in me."

Geographically it is hoped the cabinet will meet with public approval. The eastern portion of the province, in addition to the premier, will have as representatives the attorney-general and a member on the hydro-electric power commission. The central district, including Toronto and the York ridings, have the minister of public works, provincial treasurer and the minister of health and labor, in addition to the Hon. Thomas Crawford, the dean of the house, who is minister without portfolio. As before, Northern Ontario will be represented by the two portfolios in which they are most interested, namely, of lands and forests and of mines. The southwestern section will find representation in the ministry through the portfolios of agriculture, provincial secretary and the member for East Hamilton as well as Sir Adam Beck. Well Balanced. From a vocational standpoint it is a well-balanced cabinet. There are three farmers and one cattle merchant. The new minister of agriculture himself works a 200-acre farm in Norfolk county and has many other related activities. In addition to the premier there are three experienced lawyers. The business interests will likewise have representation in Sir Adam Beck, Lincoln Goldie and James Lyons, while matters of health and social betterment will be presided over by Dr. Forbes Godfrey. With Dr. Leeming Carr of Hamilton, as his colleague, these two present a strong combination, and Dr. Carr places Hamilton in the same position now as it enjoyed in the Whitney administration. It is pointed out that while Colonel W. H. Price and the Hon. Thomas Crawford are the only titular representatives from Toronto, yet East York comprises about 75,000 electors who reside in the city of Toronto, and West York has upwards of 50,000 Toronto electors. After the new cabinet is installed in office, the department of education, in the absence of Dr. Pyne, former minister, in England. In that time Mr. Ferguson not a complete grasp of educational affairs and found the work of the department so much to his liking that he was loathe to relinquish it when Dr. Pyne returned.

Reports Chinese Bandits; Soldiers Waiting For Pay

Frank Harmon, Missionary, Now in London, Was Near Scenes of Lawlessness—Blames Outbreak on Indifferent Government.

"Foreigners should be as lenient as possible in criticisms of the Chinese people and as severe as they like regarding the Chinese Government," declared Mr. Frank Harmon, missionary from China, who arrived in this city last night after five years spent in the Province of Shantung. Mr. Harmon made the above statement to The Advertiser when talking about the outbreak of banditry which has brought on China much adverse criticism in recent months. Mr. Harmon was stationed at Tsingtau, about four hours' train ride from the section where the bandits carried on their operations.

"China must not be judged by these little outbreaks," said Mr. Harmon. "Foreign countries should not let the affair of the bandits give them a wrong opinion of a coming country. The reason for the outbreak of banditry in China was an inefficient government. Most of the bandits were soldiers who had not drawn any pay for months, some of them for a year and a half, and it was with the intention of bringing this state of affairs before the foreign countries that they took this step. It has been highly successful. The Chinese are anxious for their foreign friends not to misconstrue these occurrences. The whole blame lies with the government and not with the people."

"Regarding the treatment of the foreign prisoners, I do not know anything about the natives, these were treated as well as was possible under the existing conditions, and just as well as, say, the Mexican bandits would treat prisoners under similar circumstances." Mr. Harmon stated that things had settled considerably in China, although all trains now carry a military guard to prevent any possible raids. With Mr. Harmon are Mrs. Harmon and two children. They are staying at the home of Mrs. Hyston, 23 Peter street, who is Mrs. Harmon's mother. They expect to be here two months, at the end of which they will proceed to England, where they will remain for a year before returning to China.

ONTARIO'S NEW CABINET. In the new Ontario cabinet which has been announced by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, the premier designate, will hold the portfolio of Minister of Education. Others in the cabinet who are shown above are: Top row, left to right, Hon. W. H. Price, provincial treasurer; Hon. Geo. S. Henry, public works and highways; Hon. W. F. Nickle, attorney general; Hon. Charles McCrea, mines; second row, Hon. J. W. Lyons, lands and forests; Hon. Forbes Godfrey, public health and labor; Hon. John S. Martin, agriculture; Hon. Lincoln Goldie, provincial secretary; Hon. Sir Adam Beck, without portfolio. Bottom row, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, premier and minister of education. Members of the cabinet not shown are: Hon. Thomas Crawford, Hon. J. R. Cooke and Hon. Dr. Leeming Carr, all without portfolio.

John S. Martin. John S. Martin, minister of agriculture. He is known as the "Wyandotte King." He has consistently swept the poultry competitions in all classes of Wyandottes. He is a graduate of the University of Toronto, and for seven years was a high school teacher. He was elected to the legislature for South Norfolk in 1917. He was re-elected to the legislature for riding of West York in June, 1921.

James W. Lyons. James W. Lyons, Sault Ste. Marie, minister of lands and forests. Born in Virginia in 1875. In 1900 he went to Sault Ste. Marie, and in addition to building up an extensive business as head of the Lyons Fuel & Supply Company, he was active in many other lines. Mr. Lyons was an alderman for two years, and was mayor of Sault Ste. Marie from 1909 to 1912.

Hon. Thomas Crawford. Hon. Thomas Crawford, minister without portfolio. Born in County Fermanagh, Ireland, August 14, 1847. He was three years a member of the Toronto city council. He was elected to the legislature at the general election in 1918, and has been re-elected at every general election since that. He was elected Speaker in 1907. He represents Seat A, Northwest Toronto.

J. E. Thompson. J. E. Thompson, Speaker. Born July 19, 1867. He received his early education at Parliament and Dufferin street public schools, Toronto, later attended Jarvis Collegiate. He was controller of the city of Toronto, 1914-1916. He was with the Canadian expeditionary forces in France and England in 1916-17-18. He was first elected to the Ontario Legislature in 1919.

Lincoln Goldie. Lincoln Goldie, provincial secretary, is a son of the late James Goldie of Guelph, and was associated with his father in the management and building up of the Goldie Milling Company of that center. He was also selected by the Dominion Government to represent Ontario at the general election in 1919.

MADE ASSISTANT RECTOR AT ALL SAINTS, WINDSOR. Special to The Advertiser. Windsor, July 8.—Rev. Thomas Wright, rector at Marlin, has been appointed as assistant rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church here, and will assume his new duties in a short time. Rev. Mr. Wright is a son of Professor T. L. Wright, formerly of Huron College staff. He was ordained recently in London. He has a fine war record, having served with the Canadian forces. He gave up his ministerial studies at the outbreak of hostilities.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH CORNERSTONE IS LAID

Impressive Ceremony Takes Place At Wortley Road Edifice.

The laying of the cornerstone of Knox Presbyterian Church, Wortley road, was held on Saturday afternoon before 200 people, who thronged the streets to witness the impressive ceremony. A short introductory service was given by Rev. A. T. Symington, the pastor of the church. Col. W. M. Gartshore put the cornerstones in place and gave the dedication in the name of Knox Presbyterian Church for the worship of God.

In the absence of Dr. R. Ferguson, clerk of session, John Macpherson read the historical sketch, written on parchment and signed by Dr. R. Ferguson, from 1883 to the present time. The sketch, containing the names of the officers of the church and an imaginative story setting forth the idea that as the cornerstone was the foundation of the church building, so was servitude the foundation of life. Mr. Symington gave illustrations of the satisfaction that can be derived from a life of service.

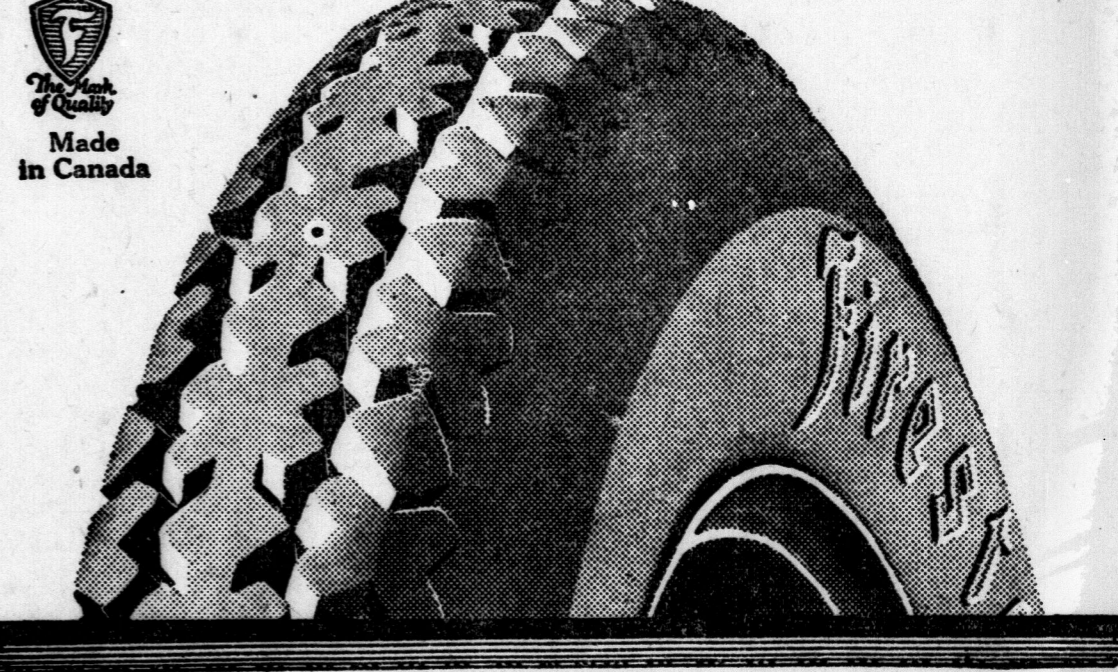

Many London South churches, including St. James' Anglican, Wortley Road Baptist and Ridout Street Methodist, had several representatives participating in the ceremony. Rev. A. T. Symington, in his two Sunday sermons, told the congregation an imaginative story setting forth the idea that as the cornerstone was the foundation of the church building, so was servitude the foundation of life. Mr. Symington gave illustrations of the satisfaction that can be derived from a life of service.

Does a Quality Tire Pay the Light Car Owner?

A tire, built the Firestone way, is one of the best investments the owner of a light car can make. Such a tire gives the greatest mileage for the least cost, protects your car, cuts gasoline consumption and gives you the easy riding qualities of a heavier vehicle.

Firestone Cords are noted for a resilience that cushions driver and mechanism from road shocks and roughness. This cushion effect is noticeable at the end of a few thousand miles of driving; your motor performs better—there are fewer annoying squeaks or rattles.

The powerful gripping angles of the Firestone tread take a sure certain hold on any road surface. They give maximum safety. There is no slipping and wastage of power—Firestone Cords save gas.

The blending and tempering of rubber, air bag curing and other special Firestone methods followed in Canada's most modern tire plant multiply mileage to a degree that make Firestone Cords the final word in tire economy.

The ever-increasing number of Firestone Cords on the road, the ever-increasing number of cars coming from the manufacturer Firestone equipped is evidence how Firestone quality has impressed the car owner who demands the ultimate in mileage, safety and comfort.

Firestone Tubes give the same reliable, economical service. They are steam-welded, a Firestone process that prevents air leakage and flat tires because even extreme heat won't break down the splice. Ask your dealer.

STATES MANITOBA WAS MADE "WET" BY NEUTRAL VOTE

Rev. W. C. Brown Declares Many Disgusted With the Method of Enforcement. ATTACKS BREWERS

The influence of the vote of the previously neutral group which had become dissatisfied with the manner of enforcing the temperance act in Manitoba was one of the prime factors in bringing about a victory for the wets in that province, according to Rev. W. C. Brown, D.D., of Saskatoon, who spoke in the First Methodist Church last night on "Why Manitoba Went Wet."

"There was a certain element which would vote dry in any case and another group which would oppose prohibition in any form, but the people who brought about the present state of affairs were those who had remained 'on the fence,' so to speak, but who became disgusted with the manner of enforcing the dry law and therefore put their strength in with the wets."

Well Financed. Among the other reasons given by Rev. Mr. Brown for the result of the recent vote were the well-organized and amply financed campaign conducted by the foes of prohibition, the argument presented saying that the province would benefit by revenue derived from government sale of liquor, the promise of the Moderation League to the effect that the bootlegger would disappear with the legal sale of drink, and the fact that there were still many people having appetites which they desire to gratify easily. "It seems entirely probable," said Rev. Mr. Brown, "that the campaign to abrogate prohibition was financed by the distillers and brewers who saw nothing. It seems improbable that the funds could have come from the Moderation League, as this organization is known to be not affluent."

Presents Figures. "The electorate was told that the public might as well benefit by the sale of liquor as allow the bootleggers to become rich from its illegal sale. It was claimed that the taxes were oppressive, and that this could be obviated with the governmental sale of liquor which would bring more revenue to the province."

Rev. Mr. Brown presented figures showing that in both Quebec and British Columbia, where this system now prevails, the financial conditions are far from satisfactory. The latter province he characterized as the most lawless district in the Dominion, in refutation of the claim of the wets in Manitoba that a resumption of the public sale of liquor would eliminate much prevalent law-breaking.

He quoted an advertisement which had been printed in Winnipeg and which said: "Once the facts are placed fairly and squarely before the people there is no doubt that the bootlegger will be relegated to the order which will be re-established and that our reputation as a sane and moral community will again be known. This province will become a happy and prosperous land in which to raise families free from the formerly unheard-of vices that have come upon us like a plague. We will be freed of the moonshiners, bootleggers and peddlers of dope who have become strong opponents of law and order."

People Misled. "It is really surprising," said Rev. Mr. Brown, "how people can allow themselves to be misled by such buncombe. It is commonly recognized that Montreal and Vancouver are the centers of the dope traffic in Canada, and that the amount of liquor handled by bootleggers in British Columbia equals the amount sold by the government. The average, honest patriotic citizen of the Dominion today feels no small degree of shame when he sees the boldness with which the rum-runners are violating the laws, not only of this country, but also of the friendly nation to the south of us."

"It is apparent from the vote cast in Manitoba that the sentiment calling for protection of life as the supreme practical purpose of the state is not highly developed in the people who voted for a repeal of the dry law."

GIRL HAS MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Fails To Heed Warning Bell of Springbank Motor-man.

What might have developed into a tragedy was averted by the promptness of the motorman of a Springbank car yesterday afternoon, when he stopped his car within one foot of a girl who was walking along the track.

Car No. 21 had just left Springbank about 5:30 p.m. on the return trip to the city, when rounding a curve the motorman saw directly in front of him a girl walking along with bowed head. He sounded the bell, but no attention was paid to the alarm. The girl did not move. With a jerk that brought all the passengers on the car to their feet, the motorman applied the brakes and brought the car to a standstill about 12 inches away from the girl.

"That was either a deliberate attempt at suicide," declared the motorman, "or else the girl is crazy."

A good advertiser fixes his attention upon one spot in the universe and tells his story right out loud.

Men who make and sell things they know you want and will appreciate use advertising in your newspaper to attract you to their products.

At this period of the summer special offerings are made that should appeal greatly to your sense of duty and economy. The pick of the markets, the choicest selections, the best prices and the most thoroughly satisfied taste belong to those who read the advertisements every day as a habit.

Merchants cannot talk to your personally, but they can come very near to it in their printed messages.

READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS Then You Know Where and When to Buy Properly.

WANT AD TIPS

How Much Shall I Spend

"How much," an inquirer asks me, "shall I put into Want advertising? I have this thing I wish to sell. How much of a Want Ad can I afford to run? How many insertions should I order?"

Though individual circumstances necessarily govern, there are certain principles which, borne in mind, will help you to decide these questions.

First, what are you selling? Want advertising is selling cost, and what you can economically spend to make a sale depends on your article. Selling a farm or other real estate, running into several thousands of dollars, the advertiser easily can afford to use long copy and a lengthy series of insertions. Even though he does not sell until his Want Ad campaign, as projected, is nearly complete, his selling expense will still be very low indeed. Most real estate advertisers can afford, with profit, longer copy, more insertions, than they commonly use.

On the other hand, the advertiser of an article of small value can afford only brief copy, few insertions, because his sale will amount to only a few dollars at most.

A family advertising for roomers can afford to spend more for Want Ads than might seem the case at first glance. A proportion of guests secured will stay for fairly long periods. The sale made when an average roomer is secured runs to a sizeable amount.

This is one side of the problem. The other side is the amount of advertising required to get results. Happily, the latter nearly always is in proportion to the size of the sale. The man with a small flock of chickens cannot afford an extensive Want Ad campaign—but none is needed, limited advertising getting results. On the other hand, the house for sale is sold satisfactorily usually only with heavier pressure—afforded, because the sum involved is large.

Getting ready to advertise, this is a good process to go through. Beside this: Your article considered, what can you afford to spend? Then, within this limit, write the advertising you deem required to make your sale. And if you err, let it be on the side of perhaps unneeded strength in your Want Ad rather than maybe fatal weakness.

No trace has yet been found of the patient who wandered away from Westminster Hospital yesterday afternoon, although the police of the city and surrounding municipalities were notified of his disappearance; and are looking for him. It is presumed that he wandered away from the grounds while enjoying the fresh air and sunshine.

Well, Pa's annual birthday party is over. And it sure was a success this year. Everybody was there—including old Uncle Ephraim, with his new car trumpet, and Pa's cousin Ed, with his usual stock of funny stories. Ma had cooked up all Pa's favorite dishes, and they were just simply delicious. Better than ever before. Funny, you know, not half those men knew that we cook on a Moffat Electric, yet they mentioned that everything was unusually good—better cooked than Ma had ever cooked them before. And Uncle Jerry (who thinks apple pie the only dessert worth while), wanted to know how Ma cooked the apples that they kept so much of their natural flavor.
