Christmas Parcels

The Christmas rush is great in normal times. With millions of men under arms it is a tremendous strain on all Postal Staffs, and delays are unavoidable.

In the Old Country 75 per cent. of trained Postal Officials are with the Army, and their work is being done by untrained men and women.

For the Home parcels to reach England before Christmas, the sooner they are posted the surer will their timely delivery be.

To reach our gallant lads in France, parcels should be despatched as early this month as possible.

Please pack securely. Do not use sharp edged boxes. Square boxes should always have their edges padded.

The Lost Will; OR, LOVE TRIUMPHS AT LAST!

CHAPTER XVII.
"Oh, that's nothing," she said, with a kind of simple confidence. "It was only a small part; but I feel I can do so much better if I get a chance. I'm dying to see the artist's work to-morrow; perhaps there'll be a line or two for me. I shall be so proud if there is. Oh, dear me, my heart's beating so; it's the excitement. I think I'll take a taxi home, for I feel as if I couldn't walk so far."

Jack—not for the first time in his life—did a foolish thing.
"Of course you can't. I suppose you haven't had anything to eat since—how long?" he said.

"Oh, I had a kind of meat tea at five o'clock," she replied, laughingly.
"And it's now past eleven," said Jack; "you've been without food for more than six hours. Look here, come and have a bit of supper with me; I'm fearfully hungry."

She did not hesitate for a moment, but shot a warm, grateful glance of assent. Jack called a taxi, and told the man to drive to the Carlton. She deserved a good supper, and should have it. She hurried to the cloak-room and came back to him almost in a minute. The supper-room was as crowded as usual, and Jack found some difficulty in getting a table. As they passed to it, curious and not unadmiring glances were directed towards them; for he was a noticeable figure in his evening dress, and Maud, with her reddish-bronze hair, pretty face, and graceful, girlish form, was sure to attract an attention of which, though she showed no signs of consciousness, she was not ignorant. Jack ordered a bottle of champagne, and found a certain kind of pleasure in the girl's evident enjoyment of the good things placed before her.

And, it must be admitted, he himself was sharing the enjoyment; for Maud's prattle was half that of a child, half that of a woman of the world; it was difficult to realize that she was the same girl whom he had first seen stitching away at driving-gloves for dear life. He lit a cigar and leant forward, listening to her with a smile on his face; but presently his attention was diverted by the rising of some persons who had been seated at a table behind them, and were now leaving. As they passed, Jack happened to glance at them and saw that one of the men was Lord Ferndale. He was so astonished at Ferndale's presence in London and at the Carlton, which, so it seemed to Jack, was about the last place in which to expect that grave and sombre nobleman, that he stared for a moment, without any sign of greeting; but Ferndale nodded courteously, though unsmilingly, and Jack returned the nod in exactly the same manner.

The sight of Ferndale acted as a cold douche on Jack; for it recalled Chertson Hall and Nora. What the denance was he doing here, supping alone, hobnobbing with this precocious young actress?
"It's getting late; they're closing," he said. "I'm afraid we'll have to go."
"Oh, so soon?" she responded, with upraised brows and a little sigh of regret. "Oh, how happy I've been! Well, I suppose we must; but it's delicious here, isn't it? The music and the gaiety—" She looked about her and drew a long breath.

"A wfully jolly place," assented Jack mechanically; "but we've got to clear out."
She tripped beside him through the crowded room, got her hat and jacket, and Jack called a taxi.
"Good-bye, and good luck," he said, as he put her in. She held his hand with a gentle, clinging pressure, and bent towards him as he stood by the window.
"Good-bye," she murmured, reproachfully. "That sounds as if you were never going to see me again! Oh, well, I suppose it would be too much to ask you to come to the theatre again, or—to see me?—I've had a delicious time to-night. I owe everything to you. No; I mustn't thank you. Good-night, not good-bye—oh, not good-bye, please, Mr. Chalfonte!"

Her voice was low and sad, and her hand trembled in his; her eyes—and how terribly, dangerously eloquent a young girl's eyes can be!—dwelt on his lingeringly. Jack drove off with her, he bit at his lip, frowned, and drew a long breath of relief.
"What on earth had taken Ferndale to the Carlton that night, of all nights? Oh, well, it didn't matter! Why shouldn't he, Jack, take a friend to the Carlton? Where was the harm?"

CHAPTER XVIII.
THE following morning Jack went down to the Law Courts to fight his first case. It was a dispute between an old gentleman, Mr. Horton's client, and a builder. The old gentleman, disdaining plans and contracts, had himself drawn up a design for his new house; and, as is always the case, he had, during the course of the building, made sundry alterations; and, as is also usually the case, the builder had taken advantage of the old gentleman's wandering fancies and sent in a bill which was so exorbitant that his customer refused to pay it. The issue depended not so much upon figures and prices as upon the statements and instructions which the old gentleman had, or had not, given.
Efficiently coached by Jiggles, who assured him that he had a very good case, and that he ought to win, Jack went down to the court quite well up in his subject and hoping for the best.
Now, it is a recognized axiom with the novelist—and his readers—that your hero always should win; you may drag him through all sorts of difficulties, you may postpone the result until your last chapter, but he should always come out on top in the end. Alas! for Jack's character as here, he lost his case; and when it was over he walked into Jiggles' chambers with a gloomy countenance appropriate to the vanquished.

"I see you've lost it," said Jiggles, in a matter-of-fact way, which somewhat exasperated the unfortunate Jack.
"Oh, yes, I've lost it," he said, dropping into a chair and gazing moodily at the floor.
"How did it happen?" asked Jiggles, blinking at him with what Jack regarded as a lack of sympathy, forgetting that, if a lawyer broke his heart every time he lost a case, there would be no sound hearts in the profession.
"Oh, the builder chap lied like a trooper—as I told him," replied Jack, growing red.
"Ah, that's just what you shouldn't have done," said Jiggles. "What you have to do is to let your witnesses prove that he lies. My dear Chalfonte, they always lie; and you've got to bowl them out gently. You may safely assert that, when a counsel loses his temper, he loses his case. I can see quite plainly what happened. But there's no reason to be cut up; most men lose their first cases, and most of them get down in the mouth about it; but you'll have better luck next time, and when you're a K.C. you'll look back upon this little accident this morning as something to laugh at; you'll make an anecdote of it when they're giving you a dinner at your Inn."

"I think not," said Jack, quietly, but with decision. "While I have been walking from the Courts here I've come to the conclusion that the Law is not my game. Fact is, although I've always had an idea that I was not a bad-tempered chap, I lose my hair when a man stands up in a witness-box and tells lies, and gets other people to believe him. If you say that's the usual difficulty one has to contend with, your doubtless true, but remarkable, statement makes me more decided than ever that the life of the merry barrister is not one for me. Wild as I was, I couldn't help admiring the coolness of the other man; he never turned a hair while his client was playing the part of Ananias for all it was worth; and, more than that, he succeeded in making my client as mad as a hatter; the poor old gentleman got confused and bewildered."
"And, as you'd lost your temper, you couldn't help him," remarked Jiggles, dryly. "Well, I'm not sure that your decision to cut the Law is not a right one, Jack; the fact is, you won't, or you can't, understand that, when a lawyer goes into court, it's sometimes necessary for him to remember to forget that he's a gentleman; you've got to fight the other side with their own weapons; you've got to send your low cunning against theirs; and I'm afraid I must concede your point that that's just what you can't do. And now remains the question—What can you do?"

Jack got up and paced up and down the room.
"Rather a difficult one, isn't it, Jiggles?" he replied gravely. "Just at present I'm acting as agent and steward for Miss Norton." He had reached the window, and he turned his back on Jiggles and frowned down at the pretty little square below. "But that's not much of a berth, and—and it mayn't last. I mean that—that Miss Norton will probably marry—sure to do so."

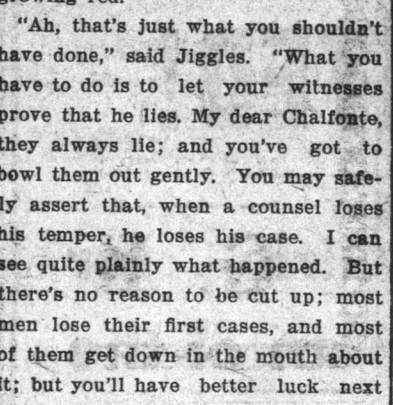

"Well, she'll want a steward all the same," observed Jiggles.
"I dare say," muttered Jack; "but I'm afraid that I couldn't carry on in those circumstances."
Jiggles stared at him reflectively, and barked a short laugh.
"Why don't you marry her yourself, Chalfonte?"

Jack crimsoned to the roots of his hair, and turned furiously upon his adviser.
"Why don't I—! Look here, Jiggles, you're a decent sort of chap and a good friend; but sometimes, when you're not talking about the beauty Law, you express yourself like a double-breasted lunatic. You ask me why I don't marry Miss Norton, the millionairess, as if I wore a kind of Sultan, who had only to throw his handkerchief. As if she'd pick it up if I did! You blithering idiot—oh, well, what's the use of getting angry with you? You don't know her, you've never seen her, or you'd recognise the blatant insanity of your suggestion."
"Not so sure of that," retorted Jiggles, with a grin, and quite unrumpled. "You're a 'decent' fellow, as you call it, and a great deal better-looking than is good for you; you've behaved very well to her, and she must be grateful."

Do you Believe in going straight to the weak spot in treating disease? If so, you will never use anything but Peps for coughs, colds, bronchitis, and throat and lung troubles. Listen why!
It is an acknowledged fact that only a remedy that is breathable can reach the lungs and breathing passages direct. Hence the superiority of the Peps treatment over the old-fashioned custom of dosing oneself with liquid medicines, which, as you know, can only go to the stomach.
Peps is a breathable medicine in tablet form. To take the treatment you simply dissolve Peps in your mouth and the medicinal fumes, which are then given off, bathe the throat and are carried by the breath to all parts of the nasal passages, breathing tubes and lungs. On their way they destroy all harmful germs and soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, thus removing at once the cause of the trouble.
It is surprising how Peps end coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchitis, as the mucus, "clergyman's throat" and laryngitis. Contains no harmful drugs and are, therefore, best for children.

FREE TRIAL Cut out this card, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail it with 10 cents to pay return postage to the Peps Co., Toronto. A trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and grocery stores sell Peps, 10c. box.

British Have German Army From

Fresh Success in Pa Abdication Credited Serbian Property.

WAR REVIEW.
Hostilities are proceeding without cessation, and as in days past the forces of the Allies are everywhere defeating the enemy. In Belgian Flanders the British, Belgians and French troops, under King Albert, are sweeping forward for further material gains in the process of driving the invaders from Belgium. On the front in France the British, French and Americans are hard after the Germans, and are making progress, although slowly, notwithstanding the strenuous defence that is being offered. In Albania the Entente troops are well to the north of Durazzo on the Adriatic Sea, and in Serbia a considerable distance beyond Nish, with the enemy falling back toward the frontier of Austria-Hungary. In the Palestine theatre the British cavalry has driven far to the north and northeast of Damascus, having reached Tripoli near the Mediterranean coast, forty-five miles north of Beirut, and Homs 35 miles north of Damascus. In Flanders, Thourout, at the head of the railway leading to Bruges, and numerous villages to the south have been taken, while Courtrai, the junction point of the railway to Ghent, is almost entirely surrounded. Large numbers of prisoners and many additional gains have been captured by the British, Belgian and French troops, who are carrying out the operations. To the south of this region the Germans are continuing to withdraw, closely followed by the British, who are within two and a half miles and three and three-quarter miles of Lille, respectively, southwest and west of the city. In the Champagne region, where the French and Americans are driving their way northward, Reims, the important junction point for the railways running to Mezieres and other points inside the enemy-held territory are all captured by the French. Eastward the Americans also have again pressed slightly forward.

German Armies Retreating From Belgium.

Fresh Success in Palestine---Rumours of Kaiser's Abdication Credited in London---Bulgarians Raid Serbian Property.

WAR REVIEW.

Hostilities are proceeding without cessation, and as in days past the forces of the Allies are everywhere defeating the enemy. In Belgian Flanders the British, Belgians and French troops, under King Albert, are sweeping forward for further material gains in the process of driving the invaders from Belgium. On the front in France the British, French and Americans are hard after the Germans, and are making progress, although slowly, notwithstanding the strenuous defence that is being offered. In Albania the Entente troops are well to the north of Durazzo on the Adriatic Sea, and in Serbia a considerable distance beyond Nish, with the enemy falling back toward the frontier of Austria-Hungary. In the Palestine theatre the British cavalry has driven far to the north and northeast of Damascus, having reached Tripoli near the Mediterranean coast, forty-five miles north of Beirut, and some 25 miles north of Damascus. In Flanders, Thourout, at the head of the railway leading to Bruges, and numerous villages to the south have been taken, while Courtrai, the junction point of the railway to Ghent, is almost entirely surrounded. Large numbers of prisoners and many additional guns have been captured by the British, Belgian and French troops, who are carrying out the operations. To the south of this region the Germans are continuing to withdraw, closely followed by the British, who are within two and a half miles and three and three-quarter miles of Lille, respectively, southwest and west of the city. In the Champagne region, where the French and Americans are driving their way northward, Reims, the important junction point for the railways running to Meuse and other points inside the enemy-held territory are all but captured by the French. Eastward the Americans also have again pressed slightly forward.

GETTING OUT OF BELGIUM.

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN BELGIUM, Oct. 16.—The Germans have started a retreat on a tremendous scale from Northern Belgium. French cavalry is approaching Thiel, seven miles from the banks of the Ghent-Bruges canal. So fast is the enemy retreating that the French, British and Belgian infantry, at least in the centre of the battlefield, have lost touch with the enemy.

IN THE SUBURBS OF LILLE.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—British patrols entered the southern suburbs of Lille this morning.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The British forces in the sector between Douai and Lille have made further gains all along the front, and have driven their line to within about two and a half miles southwest and three and three-quarter miles west of Lille, according to Field Marshal Haig's communication, issued to-night.

GERMAN RIGHT WING THREAT ENDED.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—The German extreme right wing is being threatened more and more as the Allied wedge in Flanders is driven deeper. The enemy resistance seems to be slackening in Flanders, and it is believed here that important results may be seen within a few days. Already the advance of the Allies is from two and one-half to five miles on a thirty-mile front. On the right the British hold Menin and Weruic, and have Courtrai almost within their grasp. The evacuation of the great industrial centre of Lille, Roubaix and Tourcoing seems inevitable. As the result of this gain on the left the Belgians are approaching Thourout, only 12 miles from Bruges, and within 20 miles of the Dutch frontier. There are signs that the Germans realize the days of their occupation of Belgium are numbered. They already have begun the work of destruction in western Belgium. According to information reaching Paris the Germans are preparing to get out of Bruges and Ghent and even Brussels.

SUCCESSES REPORTED.

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN BELGIUM, Oct. 16.—There are many signs that the Germans are planning a further withdrawal in the face of the steady pressure of the Allies. Great streams of enemy traffic began moving last night and continued today on the roads around Courtrai and Harlebeke and on the railways, running northeast. Trench mortars and direct machine gun fire are seriously hampering the enemy transport in its attempt to get the material away through the mud. The German withdrawal continues in the Lille sector but slowly. In the southern battle area there has been fighting of a minor character. More civilians have been rescued from towns especially from Hussy. The Allied armies resumed their attack in Flanders this morning and made further notable advances. The clearing weather aided in the offensive. The cavalry operating well in advance is now half way to Thiel and Pithem. The Belgians stormed and took the town of Bousbecque east of Weruic, and are now fighting in the streets of Hatuin south of Menin. They have reached the outskirts of Harlebeke and have captured Lichtervelde. There was heavy resistance at Licht-Ervelde, but this was overcome and the Allies are now beyond the town.

THE GERMAN ADMISSION.

BERLIN, via London, Oct. 16.—The German forces in northern France have withdrawn their lines somewhat in the district west and south west of Lille, army headquarters announced to-day.

AUSTRIA'S TROUBLES.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Despatches report that the Government has spread to Moravia, and that there has been fighting at Brun, the capital of Olmutz and Skoda, the latter the seat of the big Austrian gun plant, where work is said to have been suspended. Machine guns, it is added, have been posted in the principal streets of Prague, and artillery has been put into position likewise. The population, it is declared, is in no wise intimidated, however, and there is reason to believe that the people have arms. It is even reported that fighting is now going on in Prague.

TRIPOLI AND HOMS OCCUPIED.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—British cavalry has occupied Tripoli 45 miles north of Beirut and Homs about 85 miles north of Damascus according to an official statement on operations in Palestine issued to-night.

ADVANCING IN ALBANIA.

ROME, Oct. 16.—Italian troops advancing in Albania on Monday occupied Tirana, seventeen miles northwest of Elbacan, the Italian War Office announced to-day.

BULGARS VIOLATING ARMISTICE.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Advancing northward from Nish, Serbian troops on a wide front have captured the heights dominating both banks of the Southern Moravia, taking 44 field guns, a Serbian official statement reaching here to-day says. In the capture of Nish a large amount of war material was seized. Serbian detachments operating in the Kriva Palanka region report, the statement says, that contrary to the stipulations of the armistice, the fourth Bulgarian division carried off into Bulgaria approximately 3,700 sheep, 4,000 horses, 1,300 oxen, 1,020 mules and 1,500 wagons, and says a Bulgarian captain ordered the storehouse of grain at Straitain to be burned and the cattle belonging to the population taken to Bulgaria. The Serbian cavalry in an advance in the direction of Kurshamilla and Prokupliza have taken numerous prisoners from three new German divisions and four 15-centimetre howitzers and two field guns.

CIVILIANS LIBERATED.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Twelve hundred civilians were found in the city of Roulers when the British and French reached the place on Monday, according to the M.A.'s correspondent at British headquarters. They have been living a more or less normal life there during the German occupation of the city. The correspondent says that it was noticeable that the Germans had put signs and notices in the Flemish language which may be an indication of the announced German intention to set up a separate Flemish kingdom.

POLISH ARMY REORGANIZED.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The British government has reorganized the Polish national army as autonomous allied and co-belligerent according to an official announcement to-night.

NOT DISPOSED TO REJECT THE RUMOURS.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The British Foreign Office stated this evening that it had no official confirmation of the rumours that the German Emperor had abdicated, but that opinion in well informed circles was not disposed to reject these rumours.

TIMES BULLETIN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The New York Times has posted on its bulletin board the following bulletin: The Hague, Oct. 16.—The New York Times correspondent can state authoritatively that Germany's answer, which is expected this afternoon will be that Germany accepts President Wilson's terms, but on the condition that Germany's interests and those of the German people are guaranteed.

THE GAZETTE'S OPINION.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 16.—The semi-official North German Gazette of Berlin says President Wilson's reply has partly carried the discussion farther and partly extended it. A fresh counter utterance by the German government therefore is necessary so that the bringing about of an armistice and the inauguration of peace negotiations are not yet immediately attainable.

NO LOOPHOLE TO ESCAPE.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Ex-premier Asquith in a speech to-day referred to President Wilson's note in reply to the peace proposals of Germany saying the reply which President Wilson has given to Germany is exactly what was required. It is terse, dignified and outspoken and goes to the root of the matter, it leaves no loop hole to escape.

GAINS BY BRITISH.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Gains of ground by British patrols during last night in the Douai-Lille sector are reported by Field Marshal Haig, in his official statement to-day.

AMERICANS ADVANCING.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Substantial gains on both sides of the Meuse against stubborn resistance by a reinforced enemy, was reported to-day by General Pershing in his communication for Tuesday.

WILSON'S REPLY CREATES PANIC.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—President Wilson's reply to the German peace note produced a most unfavorable impression in Berlin says a Central News despatch from Amsterdam to-day. The publication of the reply, it adds, was followed by a panic in Berlin banking circles and on the Stock Exchange. The German Supreme Command, the advices state, will come to Berlin at the end of the present week to deliberate on mobilization and concentration of the national strength and the raising of the military age.

HSH SHI CHANG INAUGURATED.

PEKING, Oct. 16.—(By the A. P.)—Hsu Shi Chang was inaugurated President to-day in the presence of members of the cabinet and of the Parliament. A reception followed, at which members of the diplomatic corps tendered their congratulations. The press was not represented at the reception.

TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE.

MOOSE LAKE, Minn., Oct. 16.—The total number of victims of the most fearful forest fire in the history of the northwest may be more than 1,000. Already rescuers have found at least 800 bodies. Because of relief suspended temporarily their work of checking the death list. The fires of the past 18 hours have seemingly claimed very few if any victims.

MR. ASQUITH SPEAKS.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—We cannot imperil the ascendancy we have gained on sea and land or give breathing time to an enemy who could not be trusted to observe either the rules of honor or humanity said Hon. Mr. Asquith and the main objective of the Allies was to destroy Prussian militarism. There is no one in the civilized world who does not feel that the doom of war is sealed he added. Mr. Asquith declared that the overtures of the enemy came from people who know in their heart of hearts that they would have to give up the game. The reply must come from the German people themselves. He said there was no one better qualified than President Wilson to be the spokesman for the common cause.

TROUBLE IN PRAGUE.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—A despatch to the Central News from Amsterdam says that in Prague the streets from the suburbs to city proper are occupied by troops armed with hand grenades and machine guns in consequence of a threat of the Czechs to call a general strike. Throughout Bohemia the despatch adds that pamphlets have been circulated bearing that a Czech republic will be proclaimed shortly.

"FIRST CLASS MAIL."

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Douglas Fairbanks came over from Washington to-day in an airplane, as "first class mail," to sell $1,000,000 worth of Liberty Bonds to match a subscription for the same amount by Bernard Baruch, Chairman of the War Industries Board. He got the million from Pink Fish, of the firm of Harvey, Fish and Sons. It was Mr. Fish's

Judicial Inquiry in Railway Accident.

The inquiry into the recent railway accident was resumed yesterday afternoon before Judge Morris, when the evidence of Conductor Noseworthy was continued as follows:

This accident happened three miles west of Curling and after leaving Mt. Moriah going west. It occurred on a curve to the right. It was a pretty sharp curve. We crossed a train at Curling that day about 3.45 or 4 o'clock. That train was coming east. That train passed over the curve all right as far as I know. I could not say if any other train passed over that curve that day. It was No. 2 express that left Port aux Basques that morning that we crossed at Curling. The hour the train tipped over was 4.20 p.m. the 24th, September last. No. 2 express coming east crossed over that curve about half an hour before the accident occurred. Nebucett was conductor on No. 2 express. I think Tipple was the driver. Neither the conductor nor the driver reported anything to me about the condition of the track over that curve, nor any part of the line. They gave me no report at all. After the accident I wired the message to H. J. Russell, Superintendent, the original of which is now put in marked "G.N. 2." That message does not state the cause of the accident. I examined the track after the accident. I did not find anything wrong except the mark in the ties where the wheels came off the rail. That would be the leading wheels on the second class car. They came off on the high side which is the left side. The marks of the wheels were shown on the sleepers outside the high rail and between the two rails. I could find nothing whatever to indicate the cause of the accident. There was nothing that I could see to indicate the rails had spread. I examined the track, the rails and the spikes carefully. The engineer and the brakeman were with me at the time. If the rails had spread the spikes would be pressed out and the rails would be spread. If the rails did spread they might come back to their original position and they might not. If they had spread and had come back to their original position, I could have told that from my examination of the rails. I did not find it so that they had spread and had come back to their original position. I examined the track and rails from the rear end of the rear sleeper west to where the baggage car was standing on the rails, which was opposite to the embankment. No accidents to my knowledge occurred on this curve this year. I never heard of any occurring. To my knowledge I did not hear this part of the track required any repairing this year so far as I know. The section men were working about one hundred and fifty yards east of where the accident occurred. After the accident I examined the truck of the second class car and also the wheels. All I found was the centre casting of the truck was broken. I examined the surface of the wheels and they were perfectly good. It was practically a new truck. I did not see the king bolt there when I examined the truck. I did not look for it. It might have been down with the car. I can give no explanation of the cause of the accident. I have no theory of the cause of the car leaving the track under the conditions I found there. I don't know what would cause a run-off under the conditions I found there that day. No repairs were done to this particular part of the track while I was there, and I cannot say what was done after I left. I made a written report to the Superintendent, Mr. H. J. Russell on the Monday following the accident. In that report I stated I did not know what caused the accident. The cause of the wheel going off the track was undiscovered, that is so far as I know. Opposite one of the sleepers, the inside or low rail was turned partly over. It was tipped a little. It was partly secured by the spikes. One rail was in that condition to my knowledge. I did not report that to headquarters or Mr. Russell. I think I made on my written report "very little damage to track." I found nothing else the matter with any of the rails. I never noticed any roughness or anything to indicate roughness in this part of the road any previous time during the year. I cannot say if the section men on the track were working east or west on the track. They were east of the run-off at the time. The foreman of that section is Joshua Sheppard. A section varies from 7 to 8 miles. The roadmaster of that section is Joseph Keeffe. It was a kind of a steep grade going west. I cannot say if any other lady passenger was with Miss O'Neill on the platform of the rear end of the leading sleeper at the time of the accident. I cannot say now which platform Miss O'Neill was standing on. The sleeping cars must have been stopped before they struck the ground on their side.

Cross-examined by Mr. Higgins, K.C.—From my examination of the track after the accident and from the marks of the wheels which I noticed on the ties, I can say now that the rails had not spread, and that therefore the run-off was not caused by the spreading of the rails.

The inquiry will be continued this afternoon at 3.30.

Stop It!

Dear Sir,—I am constrained to ask through the columns of your popular paper, why some people are allowed greater latitude than others in certain local matters, and why under the present health regulations dances are permitted to be held in semi-public places, while schools, theatres, picture shows and other places of public resort are closed up, and the people are doing their best to co-operate with the authorities in keeping down the spread of the epidemic in our midst. There was quite a big dance given by some young ladies (whom I presume imagine themselves above the law) at Bally Haley last night, at which a goodly number of couples were present. There is no public gathering more calculated to spread contagion than a dance, and the health authorities should take immediate steps to prohibit a recurrence of aristocratic (?) functions of this nature, and more especially when others are putting off their amusements in the interest of the public health. There is too much of the we-are-above-the-law swagger in this town.

Yours truly,
NO HUMBURG.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Pia H. Keats, of St. John's, is in town on a visit to Mrs. Harold Wells. Miss Gertrude Gooby, of St. John's, is also visiting the home of Mrs. Wells.

The authorities thought it advisable to-day to order the schools and picture shows closed as a safeguard against the spread of the prevailing sickness. So far as we are concerned we have not heard of a single case here, but possibly there might be some. However, the present precautionary measure is a wise one.

The Agricultural Society received from St. John's on Friday last, a beautiful Arabian bull, which will be kept at the farm of Mr. John E. Walker.

A sad death occurred here on Monday morning that cast a gloom over our town. A young and well known man named Wilfred Bradbury, passed away at that time. Mr. Bradbury had for years been in the employ of Mr. J. L. Pumphrey as a clerk in his provision and grocery store. He was taken sick on Saturday last of pleurisy and pneumonia, and although everything

The 'Flu' Abroad

Hamilton, Ont., reports 2,500 cases and at Brantford all places of Assembly have been closed. Kitchener reports a large number of serious cases, with six deaths. At Buffalo, New York, there are no street cars running, no theatres, saloons or schools open. An increase of 600 cases was reported in 24 hours, the deaths in the same time being 42. There are 150 cases of Lockport, N. S., with a small proportion of deaths. All churches, schools and public places have been closed since last week. At Pictou the epidemic is spreading and the usual precautions are being taken. The Health Officer of the town, Dr. J. J. MacKenzie, was one of the first to succumb, at the age of 45 years. Toronto reported 80 deaths on Friday last and hundreds of new cases. Eleven soldiers died of the disease. Ottawa's death list in twenty-four hours was eight and Montreal announces fifty deaths, the military deaths totalling nine. Two hundred and two additional cases have been added to the already large list.

More Nurses Needed

Owing to the rapidly increasing spread of the prevailing malady, the Public Health Department officials are making an appeal for more nursing help—volunteers or otherwise—which appeal if not responded to will have the effect of limiting the number of patients who can be treated at the Emergency Hospital, Seamen's Institute. Yesterday several ladies offered their services, but there is room and work for many more.

The Fishery

Between Riverhead, Bay Roberts, and Jugglers Cove, the catch is reported to be 2,100 quintals; for last week 510 qts. Owing to the scarcity of bait and bad weather, the fishery between these points is considerably hampered. From Boxey Point to St. Jacques the catch to date is estimated at 6,530 qts. last week being very small, only 60 qts being reported. Some 35 dorries are engaged but little is being now done, bait being very scarce.

Train Notes.

Tuesday's west bound arrived at Port aux Basques on time yesterday. Yesterday's west bound left Howley at 8.15 a.m. Yesterday's east bound left Arnold's Cove at 9 a.m. to-day. To-day's east bound left Port aux Basques at 8.35 a.m. to-day.

The Fogota left Placentia to-day for the westward.

Epidemic Influenza.

The Emergency Hospital in the Seamen's Institute is proving its usefulness, having now thirty-two patients, and several more applicants for admission. NO MORE CAN BE ADMITTED UNTIL MORE HELPERS CAN BE OBTAINED. At present the staff consists of Miss Benedict, Miss Mary Morris, Miss Jones, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Martin and Mrs. King—the last two mentioned being the wives of soldiers, who received their training in Scotland. MORE HELP IS URGENTLY NEEDED. The cases so far provided for are, in the first place seamen, and from the city, the most destitute and helpless. One whole family, from Tessler Place, was removed. Two or three are servant girls, but up to the present there are no children.

Reports come to the Health Department from all parts of the Dominion of fresh cases occurring, and requests for instructions as to quarantine. It has already been stated that the regulations are not applicable to an epidemic of influenza; and, the attempt to enforce them, simply results in causing a panic among the people, which is greatly to be deplored. Unless the first cases could be isolated, nothing would be gained by the attempt to isolate the sick. After the infection has spread among the population, the only precaution reasonable is to prevent the coming together of numbers of persons in close quarters. In this connection it is regrettable that private dances and parties are still being held, although the Health Department has made an effort to prevent the assembling of numbers of persons in close quarters.

Spanish "Flu."

Several hundred cases of this disease, in addition to those reported yesterday, are now in the city, and every doctor has a large number on his visiting list. At Grenfell Hall Hospital there are 32 and at the other hospitals all available cots are occupied. At Placentia there are about 200 cases, an average of about one per family, and three deaths have already occurred. Two deaths are reported from Cupids and the Goulds near Brigus. At the Fever Hospital here a Naval Reservist, Walter Morey, of Torbay, aged 26 years, died yesterday. Notwithstanding the numerous cases everywhere there is a minimum death list and the doctors take a very optimistic view of the general situation.

All Gone.

The whole Hindenburg system has now gone by the board. The first giving way was in the Cambral-St. Quentin sector, which could not stand the battering of the Allied guns, and the repeated onslaughts of the Allied forces. To the north from Cambral to Lille and on to Dixmude all the chief places of defence are in the hands of the British and Belgians, while south of St. Quentin, the French and Americans have hammered the Huns out of La Fere and Laon and are advancing toward Rheims on the line of which is inviolable and impregnable Verdun, where the flower of the German army dashed itself in vain against the indomitable defenders.

The Hindenburg line was an amazing network of trenches, roads, railways, wire entanglements, concrete foundations and gun emplacements, but before the furious and deadly fire of the Allied guns, all these have been levelled, and the German forces holding it, strongly reinforced as they were, could not stand before the avalanche of steel ever directed against them, but they were forced to retreat in more or less confusion over open country, closely pursued by British cavalry. As a test of the strength of the opposing forces the battle fought between Cambral and St. Quentin was a fine demonstration of the superiority of the Allies in all arms. It was as well a display of strategy on the part of Marshal Foch, which completely outgeneralized the enemy, as it is quite clear that the German staff was well aware of the Allied Commander-in-Chief's intentions. Notwithstanding the heavy reinforcements and an enormous number of machine guns massed in front of the Allies' advance, and the stubborn determination of the enemy's troops, a determination unsurpassed by them at any previous crisis of the war, the Allies would not be denied, and swept away all opposition, inflicting tremendous losses on the Germans. The outcome of the total collapse of the Hindenburg line leaves nothing for the German command but to withdraw to the Meuse, and ultimately to their own frontier, as military critics point out that the line of the Meuse does not afford the protection which will permit a lengthy holding out. The Americans have met with considerable success in their drive from the south, along the east bank of the river, and adding all these gains together it is possible to arrive at a conclusion that before December the German invaders will have been driven entirely out of France and Belgium. At the same time it is not wise to attach too much importance to predictions of this nature, even when based upon the opinions of military observers. One of these, in a recent review utters the warning of the unwisdom of assuming that the Germans will make an immediate retreat from the west, and says that while we can believe that the Hindenburg line is gone, the enemy system of defence is practically continuous, and that the portions of France and Belgium remaining in their possession may be described as a patchwork of trenches. The process will, he believes, be to destroy as much of the German army as possible before it gets back to its own territory, rather than force a general retreat. Such a process will, of course, involve the destruction, or partial destruction of many other French towns, but it is pointed out that the loss to France of her other towns and cities, would be nothing in comparison with the loss to Germany if a destroyed army, which "piece by piece, regiment by regiment, division by division, destruction is proceeding, and its accomplishment from which the armies of the Allies will not be turned back by any tricks or devices whatever, will be a more bitter blow to the German military and political power than the laying in ruins of a hundred cathedrals would be."

But no one knows the mind of Foch. Yet whatever it is, he is carrying out his plans with a success much greater than anything he could have hoped for a month ago. In the meantime a prominent naval writer warns that the Allies must be on their guard against a possible sortie by the German grand fleet, with a view to smashing things up on the American and Canadian coasts, and adds that

This is probably the reason why the First Lord of the Admiralty has been in Washington. While all this may be true, there is little reason to fear that the combined Allied fleets will be caught napping, and should the enemy ships come from out their mined harbours and join battle the issue will be no longer in doubt.

Police Transfer

Head Constable J. B. Peet, who has been transferred to Curling, Bay of Islands, will be leaving for his new station by express going out on Sunday next. While his many friends in the city congratulate him on his promotion, they nevertheless regret his departure, but at the same time express the hope that every success will follow him, and that his duties on the West Coast will always be discharged without fear, favour or affection, which have ever characterized his performance of the same during his tenure of office in the city.

McMurdo's Store News.

THURSDAY, Oct. 17, '18.
To strengthen the system against attacks of influenza, Cold and Throat and Lung Troubles generally we know of nothing so good as McMurdo's Nutritive Hypophosphites, which has stood the test of several seasons' use in this country; and in convalescence from these and similar troubles its great value is well known. This preparation is easy to take, as it does not upset the stomach; it helps the appetite, strengthens the nerves and is indeed valuable in all cases where a general tonic is needed. Price 50c. and $1 a bottle.

French Government SENDS ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I have just received the following message from H. E. Monseigneur Pichon, Minister of Foreign Affairs in Paris:
"Vivement touché du genereux élan de charité par lequel les habitants de Terre-Neuve ont répondu de nouveau à votre appel, je vous prie de transmettre à S. E. le Gouverneur et à Mlle. A. Harris, ainsi qu'à toutes les personnes qui ont assuré le succès du Fonds Français, les chaleureux remerciements du Gouvernement de la République."
(Signed) S. PICHON.
(Translation of above):—"Deeply touched by the generous expression of charity with which the inhabitants of Newfoundland have again responded to our appeal, I beg you to transmit to Miss A. Harris, as well as to all other persons who contributed to the success of the French Fund, the warmest thanks of the Government of the Republic."
I am deeply gratified to see that my expectation has been fulfilled, and that my Government has seen fit to call to the people of Newfoundland a message of appreciation for the success of the French Fund this year.
I may add that I have reason to believe that the French Red Cross will soon enable me to suitably recognize the devoted help given in this connection by several ladies of this capital. Even if this first recognition cannot possibly include all who deserve it, I hope that at least the "Workers of the First Hour" will receive on New Year's Day some token of appreciation for the generosity of Newfoundland towards our wounded.
Yours sincerely,
P. SUZOR, French Consul.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES. 11.30 A.M.

AUSTRALIANS MUST CONTRIBUTE.
MELBOURNE, Aus., Oct. 16th. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—Hon. Wm. Alexander Watt, Acting Prime Minister and Federal Treasurer, explaining to the representatives in the Federal Parliament, the bill for providing for compulsory subscriptions to the Commonwealth's War Loan, said the Government could not risk any failure which would mean leaving still further upon Imperial aid, which had already been asked to do too much; therefore all persons, whose income exceeded 500 pounds, would be compelled to subscribe an amount equal to their yearly income tax. The Government was well aware that many, who were able to lend, had not yet subscribed, and that the bill, if passed, would be liable to substantial penalties.

FRANC GAMBLE.
LONDON, Oct. 16. (Via Reuter's Agency)—Lloyds today charged forty guineas per cent for payment of total loss in the event of peace being declared on or before December 31, and sixty guineas per cent if declared on or before March 31, 1919.

WAR MUST GO ON.
LONDON, Oct. 15. (Via Reuter's Agency)—Speaking at Manchester, Hon. Winston Churchill said there must be no relaxation of war efforts. (Cheers). President Wilson's firm and formidable reply to Germany would be wholeheartedly endorsed by the Allies. He emphasized the necessity of adequate guarantees before the Allies consented to release the pressure of their victorious armies.

COMMONS PRAISES TROOPS.
LONDON, Oct. 16. (Via Reuter's)—In the House of Commons, replying to suggestions that the House should pass a resolution congratulating the forces on their recent victory, Rt. Hon. Andrew Bonar Law said that no formal resolution was necessary to express the admiration and gratitude of the House and the country to the men who were so nobly fighting our battles on land and sea. (Cheers). He was sure, however, that it would be satisfactory to the House to pass such a resolution, but as the battle was still raging this was not the most suitable occasion.

No New Disease

One of the greatest epidemics of influenza recorded in history visited the south of Europe in 1849. From this epidemic we have inherited two habits of saying, "God Bless Me" or "God Bless You" when sneezing. There were no health boards in those days and of course little public instruction in the prevention and curing of disease, but sneezing was recognised as a method of spreading disease, so a person, when he sneezed, invoked Divine aid by saying "God Bless Me," or, if he was more thoughtful of others than himself, "God Bless You."

On The Southside

A scene of brisk activity prevails along the Southside waterfront today. Many outport schooners are landing fish at the various piers as they take the greatest advantage of the few hours of fine weather. Those landing fish are: The Alma Nelson and Ida Clark, at Job Bros.; Marine and Sunward at Gordon Pev; Co.; Stella S. Norwood and Willie at Monroes & Co. Loading oil: The motor launch Gaspé Trader at Baithe Johnson's and the fine three-masted schooner Gwendolen Warren is landing "soug" sarrajaog at the job wrights and carpenters are also in a busy way. The well known Village Boat, which was broken up for repairs, has been put together and is ready for use. The flakes of the east Southside planters, Messrs. Guest, Ryan and the King Bros., are spread with hundreds of quintals of our staple, which must represent thousands of dollars that this fine day will materially increase.

A Gallant Act

For great gallantry under circumstances of extreme peril the King has awarded the Albert Medal to 14st. Leonard Harper, Cheshire Regiment. On August 5th, 1917, a melting-pot, used for refining iron explosives at an explosive factory, was being freed from a deposit of sediment. A foreman tried to break away the sediment, which was about six feet in thickness, with an iron bar. The mixture fused, giving off fierce flames. On his arrival Lieutenant Harper crawled under the burning mass, and with his hands raised about three feet from the ground and directed water at the flames immediately above him. It was his duty to do this, for six horses had been brought to beat on the pot for some time that the burning mixture was cooled down. Meanwhile there was imminent danger of an explosion, which would certainly have killed Lieutenant Harper and must have involved buildings where twenty-five tons of explosives were stored.

Naturalized Hun

Hans Carl Pauner, managing director of Messrs. Pauner, Ltd., wine merchants, Piccadilly, Hanley, G.B., was summoned before the stipendiary magistrate on Tuesday last, charged with the crime of naturalizing a Hun. He pleaded guilty, but stated that he was a native of Hanover, was naturalized seven years before that. He simply mentioned, in a conversation in the train with some acquaintances of long standing, something he had heard of an unknown person. Defendant was fined £100 and ordered to be imprisoned for six months without hard labor. Name of appeal was given, and pending the appeal, bail was allowed, himself in £500 and one security of a like amount, or two securities of £250 each.

Captured 26 Mile Gun

Details of the 15-in naval gun which was intended to pound Amiens to dust may be of interest. It was captured near Chantonnay, 26 miles west of Amiens. It is of the 1914 Krupp pattern, such as is mounted in the latest Hun Dreadnoughts. It is 56 ft. 3 in. long, the exterior diameter of the breech is 3 ft. 10 1/2 in. Highly rifled with 100 grooves, it has an extreme range of 28 miles.
The projectiles are very short, but with long false caps. The high-explosive shell weighs 7 cwt. The shrapnel shell contains hundreds of bullets of 1 1/2 in. each. Two great hydraulic buffers reduce the recoil to about 4 ft.
The gun is mounted on a bridge astride a quadrilateral pit 10 ft. deep. Its crew numbered 3 officers and 70 others. A working party of about 100 men was attached to the emplacement to keep it in repair. The gun was fired by electricity.—Reuter's Special.

Fatal Time

A woman looking at a clock, was the cause of an accident to three persons in the East India Dock-road, Eng. One of them, Robert Parsons White, of Bromley, being killed. At the inquest it was stated that a woman, crossing the road, stood a few seconds and looked at a clock. A vehicle came along and knocked her down. White, the driver, jumped out and was also knocked down. The wheel going over his head. Another man riding with him jumped from the other side and tried to stop the horse. He was run over and severely injured. The woman said that in looking at the clock she did not notice the vehicle coming. A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned.

Jules Verne foresaw not only the aerial arm, the submarine, big Bertina, but also the tank. A forerunner of this weapon may be discovered in the steam-driven elephant which figures in one of his lesser known books, "Nana Sahib." Three British officers makes their escape from the Seapoy mutineers in the steel monster, which can do 10 miles an hour and carries in its back an armoured and loop-holed turret. In one sense Verne's tank beats its present successor, for thanks to its long stilt the steam elephant could ford streams. He would be very useful just now in the flooded areas covering Douai and La Fere.

The Kaiser Creed

"Ruthlessness," says the Chicago Tribune, "has been the creed of the Kaiser. The German war philosophy proposed to instil fear and horror in the heart of the enemy. Women and children must be violated and slaughtered. Men must be crippled and enslaved. Cities must be sacked, churches demolished, and homes destroyed. The name of Germany must be so dread that men will quail at the sound of it. Germany has frightened no one. Even Belgium, helpless victim of rape and massacre, has never uttered a plea for mercy. France has seen her treasures of art and ore stolen year after year and her women and men killed. And her soldiers have fought steadily on."

Police Court.

The tendency of the war-time female to engage in mortal combat, was exemplified in the court this morning, when one good lady prosecuted another for assault, which by the way has become very frequent of late amongst the feminine gender. The verdict of the Judge was that the aggressor came across with a V. or par-take of the hospitality of His Majesty at the Government hotel for 10 days. Constable Pittman had four youths up charged with loose and disorderly conduct. Their tender years however aroused the compassion of the general judge and they were let off with a caution.

You Never Can Tell.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Of the many common forms of unjust judgments, none I think is more common than the habit of judging from the outside of the relations of one member of a family to another. Do you know what I mean? Perhaps I can define better by an illustration. I have a friend who never calls on me without having something to say about a certain family that live near her. The mother, according to her, is almost cruel in the strictness with which she deals with her sixteen year old daughter. "It positively makes my blood boil the way she keeps that girl always under her eye and never lets her go about herself like other girls," said my friend, "and she's such a sweet looking little girl."

My Blood Boiled Unnecessarily. She said so much about the matter and adduced so many examples of this apparently unnecessary strictness, that she almost had my blood boiling, too, and whenever I saw the mother (I am not acquainted with her) I thought "There goes that disagreeable woman." Recently however, I met someone who really knows that family from the inside and learnt from her that the mother has good reason to guard the daughter, since the latter has shown that she sorely needs it. You May Know the Present But Not the Past. Even when you happen to be witness to a family disagreement and think you have heard both sides of the matter and can judge fairly, you deceive yourself. You heard the present disagreement, you do not know how many old disagreements and unkindnesses and bitter words are behind that. I have in mind a father and daughter. The father to the casual outsider is the soul of amiability and graciousness, and yet in his family he is one of the most difficult and irritable of men and no one who has ever lived or worked with him has been able to keep on peaceful terms with him. Someone heard the daughter make a rather sharp answer to what seemed a simple remark of his the other day and commented to me on her quick temper. I did not know anything about the particular issue, but I did not know this, that in all likelihood the way she lashed out at him was the result of a touch on some place rubbed raw by his cantankerous ways.

She Hadn't Lived With the Man.

Of course the outsider thought her needless harsh. She hadn't lived with the man and she didn't know what it was to have him fret and fuss and make life miserable for all about him over the simplest things. As it happened I have lived closely enough to that situation to understand it. But doubtless there are other cases in which my instinct is to criticize because I don't know the inwardness of the matter. I am hoping these two will be a lesson to me. (I always was an optimist.)

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Dear Sirs,—I can recommend MINARD'S LINIMENT for Rheumatism and Sprains, as I have used it for both with excellent results. Yours truly, T. E. LAVERS, St. John's.

WAR'S LESSONS. It's teaching us that life is real. That service must be manhood's seal; That high above each far-flung goal There shines the beauty of the soul. And more than cheers and more than fame, And all the pleasures man may claim, We've come to learn, in days of strife, Is using well the gift of life.

It's teaching us, as nothing could, That we're one mighty brotherhood; That kings are only kindly when They stand to serve their fellowmen. And he has failed who draws apart. And, over proud and cold of heart, Views life from self's restricted zone And counts each loss or gain his own.

It's teaching us in bitter ways That gold is not the thing to praise; That what we take unto ourselves, Like dusty books upon our shelves, That strangers' hands may never touch, Is lost to life, though valued much. We're learning from the world's distress The lesson of unselfishness. We're reaping from war's crimsoned sod Few reverence for Almighty God; By what he does, shall man be known, Not by the riches he may own. Out of the chaos and the strife Shall come a high ideal of life. He shall best serve the Master's plan Who best has served his fellow man.

Milady's Boudoir TO ACQUIRE BEAUTY OF BODY.

For the stout woman who suffers as warm weather approaches, let me express the cheering thought that it is better to be plump and uncomfortable than thin and unhealthy. Isn't it easy to understand that a remedy strong enough to take off flesh quickly will also tear down muscles and tissues? The only absolutely safe and sure way to acquire a beautiful, lithe body is to adopt diet and a well planned system of exercise. Success depends entirely upon perseverance. No matter how carefully the diet is planned it will amount to nothing unless it is religiously followed. First of all a taboo should be placed upon all fats. That means pork in all forms, fat meat of mutton, lamb, beef, poultry or game. Eat roast beef or steak but have it lean, and be sure that it is well cooked. Do not eat meat oftener than once a day. Eat plenty of eggs but drink no milk. Cut out all tea and coffee and substitute water or lemonade.

Eat all the vegetables you wish providing they are not prepared with a cream or butter sauce. Acid fruits are flesh reducers. Eat all the oranges or grapefruit you wish, but do not contract the effect of the acid with sugar. Absolutely all sweetened dishes must be banned for sugar is one of the greatest single fattening agents known. Take at least half an hour's walk every day and don't walk half heartedly. Start out briskly and maintain the pace until you reach your destination. It possible do your walking at the same time every day. Sleep is fattening, but of course you should get a sufficient amount of sleep. Seven hours out of the twenty-four is enough for the healthy person but if very tired eight hours will do no harm.

"The Romans ran their road up to Westminster across those marshes, and here they moved along it as it ran through the forested lands that are now the park. Here was their camp on the higher land, and here on this wooded knoll was a Roman tavern. Here a legion that faced Boadicea camped, if we may judge by a coin found lying in the tavern grounds, a denarius of the XIV. Legion, which marched to London from Menai in A.D. 60.

"Thicker grows the throng of the immortals. Elizabeth was born in the palace there. Is she walking with Shakespeare towards her bower where the Roman tavern was, he telling her the story of 'Twelfth Night'? Not least among the many gliding figures passing among the quiet August trees is that of a young man whose ashes lie down yonder in St. Aelfege Church, James Wolfe, who gave to England an Empire and died content. To-day he comes and goes with a new pride, treading these quiet paths of glory with no uncertain pace.

"And now the night has nearly come and the quiet deer are faintly treading the glades in silence as undisturbed as when the Roman centurions watched here, veritably here, eighteen centuries ago."

One of the Noblest Buildings in Europe.

"Who does not know Greenwich Park does not know England, for it is in virtue of its memories, the heart of England; and in the greenness and gladness of its little uplands and lowlands, is its England at its prime."

"Below it, stately, too, with her noble ships and brown-sailed barges drawing in and out from the commerce of the seas, glides the eventful Thames, watched by Wren's incomparable masterpiece, the doomed hospital which commemorates the Battle of the Hogue and so long sheltered the veterans who created the naval supremacy of Britain.

"Not untingly Wren's earlier work, domed too, whence men record the story of the stars, watches from the park the little historic town which has never resigned itself to be a suburb, and has never cleansed itself of the dust of the Middle Ages, the naval schools, where still lingers a fragment of the Palace of Placentia, the white and grey hospital, and the grey and white gleaming river.

"Wren bargained, when he designed the hospital, that a little space should ever be kept open on the north side of the Thames whence could be seen his work as a whole, and his wish has not been thrust aside. There in pleasant gardens this August one can stand beside the lapping tide and enjoy the spectacle of one of the noblest buildings in Europe framed against the wooded heights of Greenwich Park, that haunted spot where ghosts have designed to linger and watch the waking of the nation that they made.

"All the long sunny day the park echoes with human voices and loitering children ceaselessly ask, in this timeless time-recording place, 'innocent strangers for the right time. But even children grow tired and even park-keepers find that the long, long day is reaching towards evening. It is then that a new company fills the darling avenues. Here the Bronze Age buried its dead around this ancient British grassy road bending downwards to the flowing river. From this point of old, as now, the keen eye could see the long marshlands stretching up to the ford at Westminster, to-day a wilderness of houses, but once the great farm and grazing lands of the abbots of Bermondsey.

"The Romans ran their road up to Westminster across those marshes, and here they moved along it as it ran through the forested lands that are now the park. Here was their camp on the higher land, and here on this wooded knoll was a Roman tavern. Here a legion that faced Boadicea camped, if we may judge by a coin found lying in the tavern grounds, a denarius of the XIV. Legion, which marched to London from Menai in A.D. 60.

Ceremony After Court-Martial. is a matter of common knowledge that the soldier is tried by a court-martial, and on the day appointed the ceremony of promulgating sentence takes place before the eyes of the evil-doer's comrades.

BAD SCALD

Such relief I felt when I applied Zam-Buk to a badly scalded hand" writes Mrs. A. Risley, of Timothy St., Montreal. "I was standing near the stove when the kettle boiled over on my face. I applied some ointment which I had in the house, but it did not ease the burning. The skin peeled off and the pain was so bad that I got no sleep for two nights. Then I commenced using Zam-Buk, and the first application gave me wonderful relief. It seemed to sleep, and from then the scald ran to heal. Zam-Buk grew new skin over the sore place and before my hand was quite all right again."

Zam-Buk should always be kept in the house for cuts, burns and sores, and for eczema, ringworm, pimples, blood-poisoning, rashes and piles. It cannot be overpraised. All dealers sell it. Toronto, 50c box, 2 for $1.25.

The Lusitania in Germany.

The prize for magnificent mendacity for all time should surely be given to the Stockholm Aftonbladet, which on Aug. 17, according to transcripts published in German papers, printed a full though false account of the suit brought here against the Cunard Co. by heirs of passengers lost in the Lusitania, winding up with the statement that the Cunard Line lost the case. And so, observes the Aftonbladet, "the decision has been given in the Lusitania tragedy. The responsibility for the loss of so many human lives rests on the shoulders of those who turned the passenger steamer into a munitions ship."

Now the fact is, of course, that the decision in this case expressly freed the Cunard Company from liability for damages, holding that "the cause of the sinking of the Lusitania was the illegal act of the Imperial German Government." Judge Mayer further observed that the Lusitania was not and never had been armed, and that she did not carry any explosives—that is, any munitions which could be set off by fire or contact. Yet the Aftonbladet repeats the old German story of the cargo of explosives, of the American law forbidding the carrying of explosives and passengers on the same ship, and of the criminal lightheartedness of passengers who refused to listen to Bernstorff's advertisement warning them off. The torpedo, declares this not very worthy specimen of Swedish journalism, would have sunk the ship, but so slowly that all the passengers could have been saved. It was the explosion of the munitions that did the damage.

Not the least noteworthy fact about this amazing story is that it was published, and republished in Germany, several days before the actual decision was given. But if you have made up your mind to tell a good-sized lie, you might as well tell it at once and get it off your mind. Now eventually English and American papers with true reports of the trial will reach Germany. Publication of this story, and still more the publication of comment on it, leads one to surmise either that the German Government knows that these papers will come only to an inner circle which already knows the truth about the Lusitania and does not care, or else that the popular German idea on the subject is so firmly fixed that nothing can shake it. At any rate, the Swedish fiction brought forth an entertaining series of further inventions from the celebrated Dr. George Barthelme of the Kolnische Zeitung. Dr. Barthelme is a great man for inside information. He has some about the Lusitania. The Swedish story about the munitions fills him with satisfaction, but it is not enough. The Lusitania was armed; he knows it, and some day the truth will out. "In America," he says, "the conviction that the Lusitania was armed could not be suppressed, and no doubt the guns were put under cover as she came into port and uncovered when she steamed out to sea once more. But this is not all the learned doctor knows. "Well-informed persons in Washington"—knows his barber—told him long after America declared war that our Government knew that the Lusitania had been "doctored" so as to sink rapidly. The watertight doors were not closed (the court found that they were), and a still worse "sea crime" had been committed: "the so-called port holes were open, which was against all maritime law; their very name indicates that they may be opened only in port." But the court found that on the day before the sinking—that is, when the liner entered the danger zone—"adequate orders were given to close all ports."

It is a wonder he stopped short of saying that the submarine was British.—N.Y. Times.

Fights on Old Battlegrounds.

CONFLICTS IN THE COCKPIT OF EUROPE.

It is fitting that the war for the world's freedom should be fought in the "Cockpit of Europe," which for more than a thousand years has been the scene of epoch-making battles. There is scarcely a foot on all the long battlefield in Flanders and France that has not echoed to the tramp of armed hosts. Lille and Lens, St. Quentin, Leon, and Rheims, around which the tide of battle is raging to-day, are all old-time battlegrounds. Lille was captured by Louis XIV, and was stoutly defended in 1792 against the Austrians. In 1648 Lens was the scene of a great battle in which the French routed the Spaniards. At St. Quentin, on August 10th, 1557, the army of Philip II. gained a victory over the French, and the Germans, under Von Goeben, defeated the French in 1871. Leon was the centre of fighting in the religious and League wars against England, and at Leon Blucher defeated the French in the year 1814. Near Rheims, in whose cathedral French kings have received their crowns, Napoleon thrashed the Russians in 1814. At Courtrai the Flemings put to flight a French army twice their strength on July 11th, 1302. And at Roulers, near Ypres, the French, under Pichegru and Macdonald, defeated the Austrians in 1794.

At Amiens, the Germans, under Manteuffel, defeated the French forty-eight years ago; and at Nancy Charles the Bold was defeated by the Swiss in 1477. From Lens and Arras you can see Agincourt, the scene of the historic battle of 1415; also Fontenoy, where the French routed the allied English, Dutch, Hanoverians, and Austrians in 1745; and Sedan, the scene of the battle in 1870 which led to the downfall of the French Empire. Near Brussels there are many famous battlefields of other days, among them Waterloo; Quatre Bras, where Wellington defeated Marshal Ney; Ramillies, where Marlborough defeated the French and Bavarians; Liège, where Napoleon punished the Prussians in 1815; Trierfont, where Dumouriez thrashed the Austrians in 1793; and Stenkerke, where the French beat the Allies in 1692.—Answers.

In Old Age

Health and comfort in old age depends largely on keeping the liver and kidneys in healthful action. Pains and aches, stiffness of the joints, lumbago and rheumatism tell of poisons left in the blood by sluggishness of the liver and kidneys. People in advanced years hold Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in high esteem because of the promptness and certainty with which they awaken the action of kidneys, liver and bowels. ## Instructions to Outport Magistrates.

Requests are constantly being sent to the Board of Health by Outport Magistrates for instructions in dealing with the influenza epidemic. The following points are to be noted:—

1. The disease is highly contagious.
2. It is spread very largely by contact one with another.
3. It is advisable to prohibit any unnecessary gathering of people about stores, street corners, etc.
4. Close schools, churches, theatres, etc., if there is any indication of spread of disease.
5. Avoid a panic, but take this thing seriously and co-operate with the doctors, following strictly the advice given.
6. Good ventilation is very important—therefore admit sunlight and fresh air as much as possible.
7. Do not allow the patient to spit, and when coughing cover the mouth.
8. Never neglect the precaution of washing the hands before eating or after contact with a sick person.

Quarantine is difficult to establish with any degree of success and the presence of the police in an attempt to enforce quarantine would create more panic.

Is England Decadent.

Another Mistake The Huns Made. The Huns believed that we were a decadent nation. They said as much in 1914. They were not so sure of it after the Marne, and they have been learning better ever since.

The best way to judge a nation is by its old men. If a race be really decadent it is only natural that the old men will be physically useless. Had the Germans taken the trouble to note the feats of older Britons in sports and athletics of every description, they would have known better than to fancy that we, as a race, were going down hill.

It was only just before the war that C. A. Palmer, at the age of fifty-six, made his amazing record at golf. And look at the 1914 cricket feats of George Hirst, of Hulah of Kent, of A. E. Reif, of J. T. Hearne and a host of others, all over forty!

In 1913 Mr. J. Parkhurst, aged fifty-seven, won a 120 yards sprint at Stamford Bridge, beating a man of forty-five. He had won the mile and half mile race there in the year 1868.

On his eighty-fourth birthday Dr. Furnival pulled thirteen miles in a four-oar skiff, while a few years earlier Mr. Peter Adair, aged sixty-one, walked from Land's End to John o' Groats and back, giving club swimming performances on the way.

Any number of men were and are hunting on horse or afoot up to far beyond the three score and ten. Mr. W. Jackson, a fine old sportsman of eighty-five was still out twice a week in 1914, while Mr. Danks, a Welsh cobbler, ninety years of age, was following the Liangbybby bounds afoot for his seventy-seventh consecutive season.

It was only the other day that Mr. Hardy, a chaplain with the forces in France, won the Victoria Cross by a feat of combined pluck and muscular strength, which would have been sheerly impossible to any scion of decadent stock. This gentleman is fifty-two years of age.

Barber's Itch

Annoying, isn't it? But you can soon get rid of this form of eczema by applying Dr. Chase's Ointment after shaving.

This soothing ointment heals the irritated skin and keeps it soft and pliable. By its antiseptic influence it prevents the spreading of skin trouble.

You will not suffer from tenderness of the skin if you apply Dr. Chase's Ointment after shaving. It acts as a food for the skin, keeping it smooth and velvety.

Fish Eat Each Other.

Cannibals of the Sea. In the Dublin Museum a stuffed angler fish, commonly known as a fishing frog, may be seen. Its stomach still swollen. In the stomach of this cod were found two large herrings. In each herring were several sprats, while each sprat, in turn, contained a number of tiny crustaceans, or shell fish.

In the salt seas, it is eat or be eaten. The fishing frog, a fish shaped like a gigantic legless frog, and provided with a luminous bait which it dangles from a long feeler over its wide mouth, has the most prodigious appetite. As many as twenty founders have been found inside one fishing frog; another contained sixty herrings.

Each fish has its special prey. Pollock, or lythe, assemble in shoals, and pursue the close formations of young cod. They surround the cod, drive them to the surface, and devour them. Whiting, in similar fashion, pursue and devour the herring shoals, while hake feed upon sardines.

Mackerel will eat any small fish. They devour enormous quantities of fry, being especially fond of young mackerels. The John Dory's favorite food is sprats, while rays are not particular; they will devour any fish that come their way.

The diet of that delicious fish, the sole, is most interesting. When just out of the egg, it eats tiny infusoria (microscopic life); when grown a little, it takes to the fry of sprats; in the third stage it eats young pout, founders or plaice, and sometimes turns cannibal, feeding upon the young of its kind. In later life, when full grown, it gives up these bad habits and subsists solely on worms. It no longer hunts its prey.

Many fresh water fish copy the sole and turn cannibal. Pike are the worst in this respect, but trout have similar habits. Almost every pool in a brook has its cannibal which accounts daily for half a dozen of its younger brethren.—(P. W.)

Giant Waves.

It is not only during winter weather that gales are experienced at sea. Some of the most terrible storms occur during the heat of summer, and high seas that run ashore after the event are the delight of holiday-sight-seers.

Waves at the seaside are, however, totally different and very puny compared with those in mid-ocean. A Queenstown steamer reports waves of 100 feet in height during a recent Atlantic gale. Waves of 50 feet to 75 feet high are common to the Atlantic; but it is to the Indian Ocean that we look for those of really gigantic stature. Cold regions also experience immense seas. Wasberg, Norway, can claim a wave of 400 feet in height. Even at home a monster of approximately 300 feet once bombarded the Cornish coast.

Chebucto Head, Nova Scotia, has an ingenious device by which the velocity, length, and height of waves is tested. This apparatus extends some distance along the sea-bed, and earthquakes in far-off regions can be judged by this means.

Ferry Across the Channel.

For the first time in the history of railroading a train ferry has crossed the English Channel from Newhaven, England, to Dieppe, carrying about fifty cars, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Since early in the war thousands of British railway cars have been employed in France transporting troops and supplies, but they have all been transferred to the continent by freighters. The inauguration of ferry service indicates that the difficulties created by very pronounced tides have been overcome at last to the mutual advantage of these two allies. At Dieppe the water level varies as much as 31 feet. To overcome this short bridge, attached at one end to the dock and resting on large floats, are employed. During loading and unloading the ferry is chained to the boat and dock pier as well. The two smokestacks are located one at either side of the craft, leaving space for tracks down the centre of the deck.

Peace Signed at Potsdam.

Sir Conan Doyle, writing in the Evening Standard on "Peace must be signed in Potsdam," says:

"There are three absolutely essential conditions in a satisfactory peace. The first is that Germany shall be invaded. Too long she has been led to suppose that she is inviolate, and that while her hordes may flood over into Denmark, Austria, France, or Belgium, there is some strange shield which can protect her and keep her frontier line. This delusion must once and forever be shattered.

"The second condition, which naturally follows from the first, is the occupation of Berlin and the signing of peace in Potsdam. It is there, and only there, that the war can end. The very hall in which the plot was hatched should be that in which its final result is registered.

"The third condition is the most important of all. Germany must pay the last penny of the expenses which her own outrageous conduct has cost the Allies. Policy and justice both point to the one conclusion."

Sale of Liquor Suggested.

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—A temporary relaxation of the prohibition regulations to allow liquor to be purchased in small quantities without the production of a doctor's prescription has been suggested to the government as an emergency requirement of the Spanish influenza epidemic now raging throughout Canada. The proposal is being seriously advocated in some quarters but as yet has not been either approved or turned down by the cabinet.
The reason used for a temporary and restricted lifting of the present barriers against the distribution of liquor in Canada is that the seriousness of the influenza epidemic demands it. It is claimed that hot liquor taken in small quantities is beneficial either as a preventative or as a stimulant to prevent heat collapse through the sudden onslaught and rapid progress of the disease. In Ottawa, doctors are said to be prescribing liquor to victims of the disease, in the pneumonia stage. Today there were hundreds of people with doctor's prescriptions for liquor crowding the local dispensary in Sparkes street. So great was the crush this afternoon that traffic along the sidewalk was blocked by the crowd waiting a chance to get into the store to be served.
Ottawa has some four thousand cases of influenza at present and the call for liquor by doctors and patients has suddenly assumed proportions which can't be handled by the present circumscribed sources of supply. It is further pointed out that the poorer classes who need or think they need an emergency supply of liquor to meet the "plague" situation are now compelled to pay an extra two dollars for a doctor's prescription, and that under present conditions of stress for the medical men a search for a doctor sometimes takes hours.
It is not proposed, of course, to allow the sale of liquor indiscriminately but merely to allow the qualified local dispensaries to sell a small quantity of five or six ounces only to the applicant with each sale duly registered so as to prevent "repeaters." The proposed relaxation is, of course, only intended for a week or so pending the hoped for control and stamping out of the epidemic. It is claimed that under the War Measures act the federal government would have the right to override the provincial prohibition regulations in a case where the national safety is concerned.
