Many Lives Lost When Hanover Fire Plant is Destroyed -- Steamship Company Offers Services for a Subsidy Lower Than Peterson's--Capital Levy Introduced in French Chamber.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN HANOVER.

HANOVER, April 7. One man is known to be dead and several other employees of the National Fireworks Company's plant here are believed to have lost their lives when a series of explosions, followed by fire, destroyed a large part of the plant this afternoon. The fire began at seven o'clock and was spreading rapidly to the magazines and surrounding buildings. At two o'clock it was estimated that one hundred of the three hundred buildings had been destroyed. The number of dead will not be determined until a check up has been made of the workers, most of whom are of Portuguese and Lithuanian origin.

FRANCE INTRODUCES CAPITAL LEVY.

PARIS, April 7. The Government's new financial bill, embodying provision for the proposed capital levy or forced loan, was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon by Finance Minister De Monzie. The mechanism of the system as explained by the Minister after adjournment of this morning's cabinet meeting, is intended to afford the property owners and capitalists of France a chance to come forward and contribute proportionately of their wealth to the renovation of France's finances. It contains provisions obliging them to do so, if they refrain from voluntary subscription. The Minister gave it to be understood that pressure would be resorted to only in flagrant cases of "dogging" by a capitalist of his obligations.

COMPETITORS OF PETERSON CONTRACT.

OTTAWA, April 7. An offer to establish a steamship service under Government subsidy has, it is understood, been received by the Hon. Thomas A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce. The offer is said to come from an Anglo-Canadian company, headed by Donald MacLeod, and to propose a line of ten steamers at a subsidy considerably less than that accepted by Sir William Peterson.

INVESTIGATING PETERSON CONTRACT.

OTTAWA, April 7. For an hour the special committee of the House which is to investigate the contract with Sir Wm. Peterson and the control of ocean freight rates, resumed its procedure and adjourned until Friday of next week, when witnesses for shipping men would first be heard. At the outset, Andrew Mc-here to-day, by the inventor, C. Francis Jenkins, of Washington. He also promises that stay-at-homes may see football, polo or baseball games, regattas or baby parades, while these things are actually happening.

NO CHANGE IN STRIKE SITUATION.

HALIFAX, April 7. Advice from Cape Breton this morning were to the effect that the British Empire Steel Corporation had declared no change was in sight in the dispute between the company and its twelve thousand odd coal miners in Cape Breton; and from the District President of the United Mine Workers came the same statement with the additional information that he could not say when international headquarters begin paying district financial assistance from the international treasury to relieve distress among the families of the idle men.

GIANT AIRPLANE CARRIER LAUNCHED.

CAMDEN, N.J., April 7. The giant airplane carrier Saratoga, which is the largest and fastest craft of her kind in the world, was launched here to-day amidst full naval honors. Referred to as a veritable aviation field, the Saratoga has a flying deck reaching from stem to stern and is capable of carrying 72 planes. She was constructed at a cost of $25,000,000. She will be driven by a 170,000

BRITISH COLLIERIES CLOSE DOWN.

LONDON, April 7. No fewer than 120 collieries in England and Scotland have closed down since the beginning of the year, involving the acceptance of the unemployment dole by twenty thousand workers. The latest to cease operation is the great Wrenly colliery in Staffordshire, employing seven hundred men.

OLDEST FREE CHURCH BURNED.

SYDNEY, April 8. The Presbyterian Church at Little Bras D'Or, reputed to be the oldest Free Church in the world was destroyed by fire of unknown origin early this morning. The loss which will be over $150,000, is partly covered by insurance. The Church recently voted for Union.

VOTES FOR WOMEN.

PARIS, April 7. The Chamber of Deputies this evening passed a bill giving women the right to vote in Municipal Elections, and also making them eligible for Municipal Offices if elected. The vote was carried by a show of hands. A similar bill was passed by the Chamber in 1919, but was defeated in the Senate.

WANT PELAGIC SEALING RESTORED.

VICTORIA, B.C., April 7. Following action by the Chamber of Commerce the City Council has gone on record in favor of the restoration of the pelagic sealing industry. It will join with the Chamber in urging the Dominion Government to take the necessary action to end the Treaty which put an end to the industry in 1911.

"Way Down East"

GRIFFITH PICTURE THE HIT OF THE YEAR.

D. W. Griffith's wonder spectacle "Way Down East" will open at the Star Theatre, where it is booked for an engagement of 2 days, beginning to-day.

"Way Down East" is the outstanding hit of the current season on the American stage. Over a quarter of a million theatre goers in the different cities of the country are weekly witnessing its presentations. This is a good average attendance for a season.

HIT BY A MOTOR CAR

Yesterday afternoon, Miss Oakley, whilst crossing New Gower Street, near her home, was hit by a motor car, driven by Mr. John Parsons, and knocked to the ground. Mr. Parsons picked her up and conveyed her to Dr. Carnell's surgery, where on examination it was found she had sustained no injuries beyond a slight shaking up.

THAT SO?

YES! THE TEACHER ASKED IKY IF HE KNEW THE DEFINITION OF "STOIC" AND "CYNIC" AND IKY SAID HE DID! SHE TOLD HIM TO SHOOT!

SO IKY GOT UP AND CLEARED HIS THROAT AND PROCEEDED: HE SAID: "THE STOIC IS THE BOID WHAT BRINGS DER BABIES"

AND THE CYNIC IS VARE MY MAMMA WASHES DER DISHES.

More Attention to Things That Matter

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—Your editorial in Monday's issue recalls the fact that we have read much in the English and Canadian papers of the wonders of Wembley. Talented visitors thereto have outlined before several of our Associations brilliant oral pictures of its entrancing interest and educational value.

We have been told of the marvellous display of processes and appliances in all the arts and industries that the Exhibition daily unfolded to the eyes of the world. We know that the most modern and efficient types of motor engines and other fishery appliances, of attractive and effective containers for fish products, of ropes, lines and nets, types of craft, etc., that could probably be advantageously adapted to our fishery operations were there in prodigious display.

The most up-to-date tractors and appliances in logging and lumbering operations and of mining machinery were there for inspection. The most efficient and economical stamping machines and explosives—or literature descriptive of the latter—used in land clearing for agricultural purposes were there, and skilled demonstrators to explain their workings. Economical cold storage plants of limited capacity, that in the near future will likely enter largely into certain features of our fishery operations, were inviting inspection. Yet all this colossal aggregation, of plant and appliances, many of which might be of great value in our industries, escaped the eyes of not alone visitors, but of the paid custodians of the country's interests to whom we looked for reports and data along those lines.

It is difficult to place the responsibility for this. The Government of the time, who should have seen to it that we got the best possible return for the expenditure the country was incurring, failed to grasp the situation. Their effort was centred in picturing the value of the water-powers that we no longer owned as the Humber, the Exploits, the Gander, Fortune Bay and the very few other sources of power of any magnitude which had passed, and, fortunately for us, judiciously passed to private ownership long before any idea of the Exhibition was conceived.

Other equally ridiculous features were stressed as being ones that would result advantageously but with equally barren results. This is written in no fault-finding spirit, but simply to direct attention to the sins of omission on the part of the country's representatives in the past year, so that such may, in a measure at least, be atoned for by their watchfulness for things of greater interest to us the present year than mere word picturing of the artistic effects.

Yours truly,
MATERIALIST.

Our London Letter

(By SYLVIA MAYFAIR.)

LONDON, Eng., March 30—(Canadian Press)—The Throne Room at Buckingham Palace, where the Prince of Wales held his first Levee—his father, King George not being well enough to appear—is flanked on one side by some small windows, hardly noticeable by those in the Throne Room itself.

Nobody, indeed, seems to have noticed that when Wales, looking very resplendent though rather shy in his uniform of a Colonel of the Welsh Guards, was receiving 900 diplomats, officers and Ministers, his mother, Queen Mary, was watching him through one of the windows. No women are ever present at a Levee, and her actual presence, therefore, was not possible. Wales evidently fulfilled his first monarchical duties to perfection for his mother beamed approvingly throughout.

By the way, on the eve of leaving England for the Mediterranean in the sumptuous Royal Yacht, the King and Queen suddenly realized that if they went ashore at any of the small Italian ports that they hope to call at, neither of them would be able to speak French or Italian very fluently. The Queen used to be the linguist of the family but has not practised for years. So Lady Joan Verney, a lady-in-waiting, is going with them to pilot them through any expedition they may venture on.

VISITORS SET PACE FOR PRINCE-LY PARTIES.

Entertaining is going to be on a princely and extravagant scale this summer. Lady Granard, who entertained at dinner for the great Ancester Ball on Wednesday night, had ordered a kind of a aquarium dinner table decoration. Rare and beautiful species of fish loaned from the London Zoological Society, swam about in crystal tanks and bowls which had been sunk into the table and illuminated. Real seaweed and fungi grew in the bowls.

Lord and Lady Granard are back at their lovely house in Halkin Street, Mayfair. The Earl's famous Napoleon dinner service, in which every fork and spoon bears a rare jewel, will be in constant use and the Granard menage is one of those where all the servants wear silk knee breeches and powder their hair.

TETRAZZINI GIVES SAVOY DINERS THRILL.

Tetrazzini is the most unconventional of divas, and when she was dining in the Savoy Restaurant the night after she had broadcast by radio to the world, about 1,500 diners were suddenly thrilled to hear somebody singing.

Signor Mochetto, who used to play at Monte Carlo, thought he would play the Prima Donna a compliment by playing her favorite aria, Donizetti's "O luce di quest"; but it was too much for Tetrazzini, who, accompanied as usual with the famous orchestra, surely the biggest ever—began singing. This is not the first time she has sung in the Savoy Restaurant. She sang one Christmas night three years ago, but this last event was quite unexpected and unconventional.

THEATRE BOX PASSES.

The new London Theatres that are now being built have no boxes. Managers say that the day of the box is over, and are surprised that it has taken the public so long to see what uncomfortable parts of the theatre they are. The young Princes hardly ever use a box but much prefer being in the front row of the stalls. It has been noticed that the Prince of Wales whenever he visits the theatre is almost invariably to be found in the front row of the stalls right at the left hand side, and he generally slips in just after the curtain has risen.

AND THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Big hats are returning to favour so rapidly that the London General Omnibus Company are trying to re-arrange the seating of their buses. It is no longer possible for two women wearing the new cart-wheel headgear, to sit side by side in comfort on the seats at their present size.

A Saville Row tailor gave show for men two mornings ago, but men mannequins are not quite used to this sort of thing. Cocktails, of course.

The Duchess of York is going to publish her diary of her African tour on her return.

London women are re-stringing their ropes of pearls and wearing them as bracelets. A contrast is provided by the wearing of cubes of jade strung tightly around the wrist between the row of pearls.

Household Notes.

Try spicing lemonade and serving it hot.

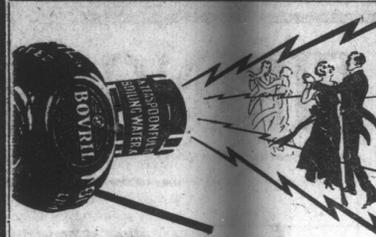

On a pork pie, a sweet potato crust is excellent.

With the lamb course frozen mint punch is delightful.

For cakes and quick breads a pastry flour is best.

Add raisins and slices of tart apple to rice pudding.

About forty people can be served with a pound of coffee.

A WATCH.

He wants a watch! And I who should, For such a youthful lad deny it, Have promised, if he will be good, To gratify his whim and buy it.

When I was twelve years old, as he, My granddad's watch I often played with; It's great size fascinated me, I loved the silver it was made with.

That watch was marvelously thick, A bag of charmois soft encased it; But when I begged to hear it tick, Naked, against my ear he placed it.

When'er I sat upon his knee No peace I gave until he'd shown it; That watch ne'er lost its charm for me And secretly I longed to own it.

Came my first watch one Christmas Day; A time of joy I'll always treasure; Never have hours which slipped away Left in their passing so much pleasure!

A real watch belonged to me! I wanted all the world to know it! None wondered what the time might be, But I pulled out my watch to show it!

So, knowing there's no keener joy Through all the years which lie before him Than that his first watch gives a boy, I'm on my way to buy one for him.

Motor Car Collides With Hydrant

Whilst Dr. Brehm was proceeding up Long's Hill yesterday afternoon in his motor car, he met a stubborn horse coming down the hill, and in attempting to avoid the animal, he was forced to turn his car sharply to the side, with the result that he hit a hydrant near the Methodist College. The car was slightly damaged and the hydrant was knocked out of position.

Night Prowler About

On Tuesday night, a domestic, in the home of Mr. F. H. Steer, Military Road, noticed a man in the back yard of their house, and saw him endeavoring to raise the window, evidently with the intention of gaining an entrance. He was, however, scared away before he could carry out his intentions.

Critical Times in Woman's Life

Mrs. James Muir, Anten Mills, Ont., writes:—

"I suffered from nervousness and despondency, and at 65 lost all control of my limbs, so that for two years I was unable to walk. The doctors thought I would never get better at my age, but I read of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and bought and used a dozen boxes. In a short time I was able to walk again. I am now 75 years old and have enjoyed good health for the past fourteen years, thanks to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food!"

In woman's life there are periods of excessive nervous strain. If she can safely pass these times the chances are good for happiness and long life.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is woman's best friend from childhood to old age because it comes to her aid during these critical periods.

Headaches, sleeplessness, indigestion, irritability, tendency to worry are the symptoms which tell of a failing nervous system.

Rest and the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most rational and most effective treatment for the building up of the nervous system. Many thousands of women willingly verify this statement.

Fishery Matters

Yesterday a meeting was called to enable the Fisheries Board and the merchants of St. John's to confer on matters pertaining to the industry.

While the country is stirring into new life in other directions, there does not seem to be much inclination on the part of the public to do any more than to let the fisheries take their course.

But in addition to the knowledge of the scientist, the experiences of the promoters of industries and the producers are also necessary, and it is the co-operation of all three that makes success attainable by the shortest road.

It is not in the cod fishery alone that improvements are overdue. Last summer some cases of lobsters from the South Coast were found to contain other things besides the flesh of the crustacean.

In the Newfoundland Gazette are published Regulations relating to the curing and packing of split herrings.

to apply to the cod fishery? Surely the need for such is even greater in this branch of the industry!

For the better control of the lobster and salmon pack, we understand, a die is to be used by canners, instead of the paper stamp which was formerly attached to tins.

Juvenile Delinquency

In view of the marked decrease in the number of cases of juvenile delinquency in the City, the Rotary Club have forwarded the following communication to Judge Morris.

Hon. F. J. Morris, City. Dear Judge Morris.—It gives me great pleasure to enclose herewith copy of resolutions passed at the annual meeting of the Rotary Club, on Thursday last, in consideration of the evidence of human interest and system displayed in the treatment of juvenile delinquents.

With very best wishes and personal congratulations upon the good work you are doing.

Yours sincerely, J. W. MORRIS, President.

COPIES OF RESOLUTIONS PASSED AT THE ST. JOHN'S ROTARY CLUB. APRIL 5, 1925.

"That this Rotary Club in annual meeting having heard from report of Boy's Work Committee of the successful work being accomplished by the Juvenile Court in lessening delinquency and having a keen interest in the welfare of the Boy Life of this community desires to express its gratification to His Honor Judge Morris and the Officers of the Court upon the successful work which is recorded."

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

The "Mixed Grill" which is being performed at the Majestic Theatre on 16th, 17th and 18th, in aid of the Girl Guides and Boy Scouts Association, bids fair to surpass anything seen in St. John's in many a long day.

It is to be hoped that bumper houses will greet the talented performers. The cut shown above depicts what we all should like to see our boys and girls, namely, happy, and we regret we have not a similar cut showing a Girl Guide. However the Guides are so well known and appreciated, they need no "cut" to bring them to the notice of the public.

World's Strangest People

BEINGS WHO ARE VERY RARELY SEEN.

A queer story was told by the explorers of Mount Everest. They reported that they had found prints of human feet in the snow at a height of 20,000 feet. Their coolies, too, asserted that similar tracks are frequently seen in the little-known heights of the Himalayas.
Still more recently we have a detailed account from British Columbia of a party of prospectors who ventured into the unknown hills near Spirit Lake, being bombarded with spears by ape men seven to eight feet high.

These are the Saahiks, a tribe of unknown origin who have lived for centuries in the heart of the Olympic Mass.

The popular belief that every corner of earth has been explored and every inch of man described and tabulated, is no foundation in fact.
Even in much-explored Africa there are still vast regions of which next to nothing is known.

For years there was a story that a tribe of giants lived beyond Lake Rudolf. Then Captain Welby, exploring the country, fell in with the remains of whom nearly all the men are over six feet in height, while some are fully seven feet tall.
These people are able to jump a height of seven to eight feet, which is beyond the compass of any white being.

To go to the other extreme, we have the Negritos of the Philippines, the smallest race on earth. Of these people little is known even to-day, but they certainly come near to the long-necked Missing Link. They are as agile as monkeys and are able to use their feet like hands. A Negrito can pick up a needle with his toes.

Borneo has many strange races, among them the Likits, who neither dig nor till the ground. They follow the trails of the wild pigs, and live in the roots which these animals dig out of the ground.

In South America there are still immense tracts of country utterly unknown to white men, and inhabited by tribes some of whom have never been described.

There is a well authenticated story of a tribe of Brazilian Indians who live in underground dwellings by day, and venture out only at night. The sun is painful to their eyes but, at night, they can see in the dark. These people have powers of smell equal to those of the dog or wolf, and they can follow the trail of any animal purely by scent.

"WARNING."

When people attend a dance they always expect to get a good programme, so hire the Prince's orchestra, the only one which can give you good music with all the best hits. Phone 1890—W. J. ARCY, House Phone 2082M.

Shake-up in Montreal Force

The Captain and Two Constables dismissed—Detective and Sergeant Resigns.

MONTREAL, April 1.—Roch Saucier, former police captain in charge of No. 10 Station, and at one time head of the morality squad, was today dismissed, following his refusal to resign.

This was the statement of Alderman Brodeur, Chairman of the Executive Committee, who also announced the dismissal of Constables Conrad and Achille Payette, both of whom have been denounced by Mr. Justice Codrington in his recent report on the conditions. No reason however for the dismissals were given out to the public.

In addition the resignations of Detective Captain Nazaire Forget and Sergeant J. H. Bond were accepted by the committee.

Tax Burdens and Public Expenditures

Unlike most axioms—"the power to tax is the power to destroy," is one that seems to contain more truth than fiction, especially in view of a recent decision of the N.S. Legislature to abolish the income tax law. In laying before your readers my views on this subject I desire it to be firmly understood that in no sense am I prejudiced against any political party, but that the views expressed herein have emanated from the state or ruler in the various kinds of taxation which I have made taxes unnecessary. Plans of confiscation of property, compensation for crime, and payments of exemption from military service constituted important sources of revenue. The earlier taxes were most severe where religious worship was supported through forced contributions. Revenue from the various kinds of taxation will find in the time of theocracy among the Hebrews a capitation tax on every male, a tribute of their first fruits and the first-born of their domestic animals, a redemption tax on first-borns of families, and tithes for the upkeep of the tabernacle and for the benefit of the poor.

Greece levied no direct taxes, but secured revenue from lands, fines, confiscations, royalties based on a percentage of the products of the mines, capitation taxes, customs dues on imports, and excise duties and licenses on markets. In Rome, the spoils of conquered nations and the annual tributes received from them accounted for a large part of the revenue; other sources were tolls, taxes on corn leases and hereditary duties, and sums exacted for the privilege of being a Roman citizen.

During the Middle Ages, under feudal institutions, there was no system of taxation. The king maintained himself by the products of his lands; in case of war, their vassals, the barons and knights, were under obligations to furnish their quota of men-at-arms equipped and provisioned without expense to the monarch, and, in return, this military service was performed by tenants by way of rental for their lands they cultivated.

In modern times we find: Capitation taxes, land taxes, property taxes, house taxes, stamp taxes, estate taxes, license fees, succession taxes, customs taxes, export taxes, income taxes, capital taxes.

In England, the first income tax law was passed in 1542, and since that time no fewer than twenty-one laws have been enacted and amended. This is the reservoir of enactments consisting of numerous acts, large and small, dating from 1842 onwards. In 1913 all these Acts were consolidated in the Income Tax Act, 1913, which repeals the previous Acts as from the 1st April, 1913.

The Federal Government of Canada passed on August 17th, 1917 what was known as the New Income Tax Bill, which was a new departure in Canadian methods of raising money for Federal purposes. In affects all incorporated companies, associations, partnerships, trustees and persons, whether male or female, having an income of fifty hundred dollars in the case of unmarried persons and widows or widowers without dependent children, and three thousand dollars in the case of all other persons. There is a normal tax of 4% on the net income in excess of three thousand dollars.

Income taxes in the United States date back to the colonial period. In 1794 a law was passed by the Court of Assistants of the Mass. Bay Company whereby the produce of estates was taxed. In 1873 the assembly of Rhode Island passed a similar bill to tax the net income of merchants and tradesmen in an almost identical bill was passed in New Jersey in 1854. These taxes were fundamentally not on income, but they deserve mention because they show the trend toward income taxation as opposed to a land or property tax.

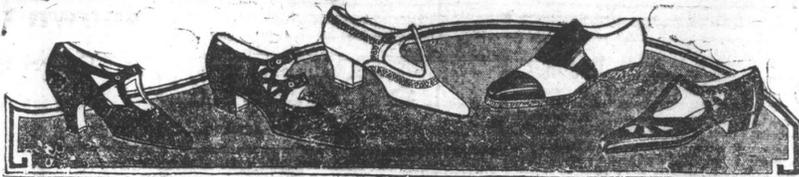

Further impetus was given to income taxation in the second quarter of the nineteenth century. The year 1836 saw the disappearance of government from the field of general improvement, and the financial depression of 1837 left the states writhing under heavy debts. The result was the imposition in several of the three main sources of revenue in the U. S. A. are:

Internal revenue such as that derived from income tax of net profit of individuals and organized companies, luxury tax and others too numerous to mention.

Customers—which is based on the advantage of the dollar, and the Panama Canal tolls which are derived from a stated fee per tonnage on foreign ships passing through the Panama Canal zone which amounted to $123,000,000 for the year 1924. The former leading the others by hundreds of millions.

The present time income tax laws are operative in sixteen out of the forty-eight states, most of them patterned after the Federal law. The latter rates are as follows:

laws are operative in sixteen out of the forty-eight states, most of them patterned after the Federal law. The latter rates are as follows:

Income	Normal Tax	Surplus Credit	Total Tax
$ 1,000	none	none	none
2,000	"	"	"
3,000	2%	"	$ 60
20,000	6%	4%	1,017.50
30,000	6%	3%	2,317.50

and so on up in a graduating scale until $100,000 is reached when the rates are as follows:

Income	Normal Tax	Surplus Credit	Total Tax
100,000	6%	38%	$ 22,617.50
200,000	6%	37%	65,617.50
500,000	6%	39%	199,617.50
1,000,000	6%	40%	429,617.50

Coming nearer home to your readers, the income tax law of 1917 passed under the regime of Sir. (Now Lord) Morley.

That law under the normal tax heading, prescribed that unmarried persons, and widows and widowers without dependent children and persons who are not supporting dependent brothers and sisters under 18 years or dependent parents or grandparents, was assessed on that part of their income above $1,000 to $5,000-5% above $5,000-3%. In the case of all other persons on that part of the income above $2,000 up to $6,000-5%, above $6,000-8%; plus a Supertax or Surtax payable in addition to normal tax above $6,000 up to $8,000-2%, and so on up in a steady graduating scale until $100,000 net profits netted an income to the government of 25%, which is $12,825.50 in excess of that levied by the Federal Government of U. S. A.

Profits levied on the net incomes (by net income I mean, that portion of the gross income which remains after all proper deductions have been taken into account) of individual and companies ought to continue, because it is fundamentally different from other established forms of taxation, such as excise, property and inheritance taxes (the latter also known on taxes on decedents estates), in that underlying theory of the tax is based on the assumption that the taxpayer shall contribute to the cost of government in proportion to the gain or profit he has realized either through a return or yield on wealth or because of productive effort.

The income tax is assumed to meet one of the principle canons of taxation in that there can be no tax, due without a corresponding ability to pay.

Not many decades ago, expansion in governmental disbursements was almost universally deplored—and in some instances was considered an omen of impending disaster and national decadence.

As the prevailing economic theories of any given period are in a sense the product of, or, are largely influenced by contemporary economic environment, the explanation for this rather narrow conception of public finance is not difficult to trace. In those days the economic horizon was limited, resourcefulness grew slowly. But as the democratic spirit develops and as control over society begins to be vested in the masses of a larger scale, a change is manifested in the Nature, composition and, totality of the public outgo. As the industrial revolution extends its influence and commerce increases, population grows and becomes more and more concentrated in larger urban centers.

Increase in governmental functions and growing population are not, however, the sole causes for the growth in public expenditures. Better quality as well as larger quantity in public services is demanded. It is not only necessary to provide good roads but it is required that they furnish smooth riding surfaces. Paved streets and roads, piped water, extensive sewerage system, street sprinkling and lighting, snow removal, police and fire protection, care of the homeless and sick, general health and sanitation measures, the demand for public school education in well ventilated, well-lighted structures that make an appeal to the artistic sense of the community, and for adequate equipment and a well-trained staff of instructors, becomes more and more customary adjuncts of an industrialized society.

As wealth and income of nations rise on the great scale witnessed in a decade before and during the World War, individuals begin to translate into their conceptions of public services the grade and quality of services received in their private capacities. Extreme prosperity breeds recklessness, extravagance and wastefulness in private economy. These influences readily infect the public economy, and once they take hold they are difficult to dislodge. The political system that has grown up in Newfoundland during the last two decades does not readily countenance violent changes in public functions and does not easily yield to such pressure as operates in a private business enterprise; where the condition of the ledger immediately determines expenditure policies, and profit is a dominating consideration.

Still another important factor, although less obvious and persistent, which explains the rising level of public outgo over a long period of time, is the falling purchasing power of the dollar. The increase in supply of gold and credit media has operated to reduce the value of gold and hence to raise all prices in terms of the common standard. Since the Government has purchased materials and services, human and otherwise, it is inevitable that the decline in the purchasing power of money be reflected in the fiscal accounts, although the effect shows a considerable lag.

Now I come to the second phase of this Article, namely with reference to the recent loan floated in London. According to the Daily News, of Feb. 25th, the lowest bid received was that from a New York firm. Why the Executive powers accepted a bid in London which was 2 1/2 points over the New York tender cannot be intelligently questioned by one who is separated from the scene of action by nearly two thousand miles of ocean span. It may be that certain purchases have to be made and that they can be secured in the London market at a cheaper rate than in New York market. If so, is justifiable.

Many are probably wondering where all this wandering will eventually carry the ship of state. Contemporary writers have predicted universal bankruptcy and a return to a Crown Colony.

Incurrence of indebtedness on the part of governmental authority should not of itself become an object of condemnation. This method of financing the needs of a community or country and defensible as in the case of private economy. It would appear, for example, preferable to finance by bond issues a project of improvement the benefits from which are continuous over a long period of time than to place the entire burden on the present generation of taxpayers and raise the funds by ad valorem taxation.

In fact, the existing burden of taxation may be so high that the only alternative is the utilization of the borrowing power of the country if a necessary improvement is to be installed.

In either case, the cost must be defrayed out of taxes in the long run, but the distribution of the expenditure assumes a more equitable form if all those who enjoy the facilities afforded by the outlay share equally in its cost, other things being equal. The natural corollary to this proposition is that it would be wholly unwise to extend the term of a bond issue beyond the potential life of the improvement; otherwise the annual benefit derived from it by a future generation of taxpayers will involve a double cost. If the improvement is replaced.

In the last analysis, therefore, the growth of public indebtedness in and by itself should neither be deplored nor inspire fear and anxiety as to the outcome. The only matters to be considered are, whether the object of the expenditure itself is a wise one in serving a distinct public need, whether the project is well-conceived and economically and socially sound, whether it is undertaken at a propitious time, all things considered, and whether the country is not overextending itself in incurring the indebtedness. There are periods when a country, just as an individual, may be so heavily loaded down with its usual recurring charges that it ought not to undertake fresh burdens, no matter how laudable or desirable may be the purpose of the contemplated expenditure. In private economy it is not considered desirable to borrow for consumption needs, but only for capital purposes. (Continued on page 11.)

Secrets of Unlucky Numbers

ARE THESE SUPERSTITIONS JUSTIFIED?

Would you live in a house numbered thirteen? Some people refuse to do so, as a borough council recently discovered through insisting on the substitution of 13 for 12a in the numbering of houses in its area.

Many a stiff fight has taken place over the odd number, the baleful influence of which even Parliament has recognized. When Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule Bill was introduced, it was originally put down for March 13. There was so much discontent that for the first time in a century the date of the assembling of Parliament was changed, with the result that the House met on February 14th.

A Landlady's Fears.
The Paddington Borough Council once agreed to the proposal that a No. 13 in Bayswater should become No. 14; but usually local authorities do not lend themselves to this sort of thing.

In Kensington, too, there was a stern controversy on the same point. Postmen, messengers, tradesmen, and others complained that in Colville Square No. 13 called itself 12a, and that in Colville Gardens, just across the way, No. 12 did likewise. Hence, it was said, much confusion arose, four varieties of No. 12 standing within a few yards of each other.

Certainly there are many strange happenings in connection with unlucky numbers. A man refused the only vacant room at a certain London hotel because its number was a multiple of five, which, he thought, had been disastrous to him and went elsewhere.

In the morning he called at the hotel, and enquired whether anything unusual had happened during the night in the room he had declined.

The occupant of the room had been robbed, and his question was overheard by the manager and a detective. So he was detained, and asked for an explanation, because it was suspected that he was in league with the thief. He was, however, perfectly innocent. He had merely been obsessed with the idea that "something had happened."

Among the residents at another hotel was a woman the management wanted to get rid of without resorting to the extreme measure of eviction. As it was known that she would not consistently sit at table No. 13, the tables were renumbered in such a way that, if she took her favorite seat, she would be at No. 13. Ultimately, it was thought, she would discover the sinister number and then go to another hotel. The trick was successful. But three days later she was killed in a motor accident.

A well-known business man, again, had a strange horror of any number which was a multiple of seven. One day he visited three London hotels in succession without being able to obtain a room which was not objectionable to him on this ground. Finally, filled with dread forebodings, he went back to his home in Manchester to spend the night, returning to London the following morning. Not long afterwards he died—on October 21st.

Many famous men have had an equal dread of some particular number, and in numerous instances this has actually played a remarkable part in their lives. Wagner was dogged by 13. So was Rissini. The antipathy to the odd number was mainly owing to the fact that he composed the "Father of Revolutions"—which was hissed on its production in 1816—in thirteen days. The date of his death was November 13th, 1868.

ON "CRUSHES": ARE THEY HARMFUL?

A Letter-Friend wants to know what I think about crushes—are they harmful or not? Should one try to discourage them?

It seems her daughter has a crush on a new teacher and it is the first time the mother ever had anything like that to deal with and she doesn't know what to do about it.

One doesn't know just what to say for two reasons.

The first is that one doesn't know the girl. And the second is that one doesn't know the teacher.

Depends On The Crush.

I don't think one can say as a general proposition that all crushes are harmful, or that all crushes are good. A crush is an outlet for emotions. It may be a harmless outlet and it may not.

If the object of it is the right kind of person, a crush may be an education and an inspiration, as well as an outlet for pent up emotions.

Tennyson speaks somewhere of "all the sweet and sudden passion of youth for greatness in its elders."

It seems to me not to have felt that passion for someone is to have missed one of the beautiful things in life.

A Crush That Educates.

If the little girl's feeling for her teacher is something like that, and if the teacher really is a tenth as wise and wonderful and charming as the little girl thinks her, the girl will be educated and inspired by her feeling.

Little Jack Rabbit
by David Cory

Gracious me, boys and girls, I should have mentioned at the end of yesterday's story that there were two surprises in the Big Brown Bear's Cosey Cave for the little rabbit. So listen to me now, and you shall hear what they are.

"Well, I'm glad to see you," cried the Big Brown Bear, hanging the little bunny's cap up on the wooden peg behind the door. "Come with me to the next room."

Goodness me, the next minute there never was such a surprised little rabbit as our bunny boy. In one corner on a bed of leaves lay Mrs. Bear with two of the cunningest little cubs you ever saw.

"When, when did they come?" gasped Little Jack Rabbit.

"In the middle of the winter," answered the Big Brown Bear, proudly. "When they were born they were no larger than kittens, their eyes closed and their pink skin as bare as little mice."

"Oh, won't Mother be surprised when I tell her," cried the bunny boy, only very sady, you know, so as not to wake up the cubs. "Do they like Lollypops?"

"Ha, ha," laughed the Big Brown Bear, under his breath, "there will be few Lollypops to sell this year, I I guess. With you and my two small cubs to feed the Lollypop Tree will have its hands full—I mean its branches full," added the kind old animal, correcting himself.

Then, beckoning to the little rabbit he ambled back into the front room, where he sat down in his big easy chair and lighted one of Uncle Lucky's Cabbage Leaf Cigars.

"Now that the warm weather is here," he went on, "Mother and the two cubs will go out. She must teach them to catch fish and look for food. I remember when I was a youngster, I used to lie across a fallen log over a brook and hold my paw in the water. The little fish would think my toenails were hooks. When I felt a fish, I'd close my paw on it. Sometimes I'd catch a frog. Oh, yes, I was quite a fisherman," and with these final words, the Big Brown Bear lay back in his chair and blew a ring of smoke as big as a cartwheel into the air.

"Mrs. Bear looks very thin," said the little fish, "but after a while, during which the nice old bear had smoked away to his heart's content."

"Why not?" he asked, turning his head to wink at his little bunny visitor. "She has been indoors all winter, with nothing to eat. She has simply lived on the fat stored up under her skin during the late summer and fall. But she'll soon be fat again. A week or so out of doors. There'll soon be plenty of wild turnips, tender leaves and twigs, berries of all kinds, honey and other nice things."

world in which the industrial revolution has made headway quickly recover from the terrible shock to their economic structure caused by the recent world conflagration, their burden of taxation will be correspondingly mitigated; but whether or not this improvement will be nullified by another conflict, time alone will tell.

The diversity of modern business and of wealth-getting activities, makes the determination and computation of the amount of income tax due in most cases, a matter of considerable legal and administrative difficulty, to say nothing of the machinery required to collect it, yet I cannot say that I hold the view as expressed by a member of the Government and also of the opposition, who took occasion to rise from their benches in the legislative chamber to say "they were glad that the income tax law was rescinded because it could not be enforced and collected."

Whilst reading these words, I had to rub my eyes to see if I were reading correctly or incoherently. It is rather difficult for one who was raised from your soil, Mr. Editor, to believe that the law-abiding citizens of Britain's oldest colony are ever wont to evade the income tax or any other law of this nature once they are placed in the Statutes.

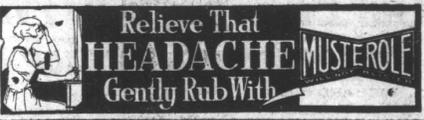

Where will the legislators turn to make up for the deficiency caused by the removal of the income tax law? I am very reluctantly led to believe that they will resort to a further increase of the ad valorem duty, which will be creating a burden on those who are least able to bear it. With a national debt of over sixty millions of dollars, and rapidly rising, that requires an annual payment of interest of two and a quarter millions of dollars out of a fluctuating revenue of nine millions in round figures, is a problem no less renowned that the means resorted to to provide for it.

Whether the new and old faces that now grow the legislative halls of Newfoundland, in passing their judgment upon legislation coming before them in the future, will always bear in mind that "they derived their just powers from the consent of the governed," or will they be prepared to study carefully a few paragraphs from a speech delivered by the late President Harding before a mass meeting of the Associated Press Correspondents here in New York, in 1923, who said in part:—

"If there is to be responsible party government, the party liable must be something more than a mere device for securing office. Unless those who are elected under the same party designation are willing to assume sufficient responsibility and exhibit sufficient loyalty and coherence, so that they can co-operate with each other in support of the broad general principles of the party platform, the election is merely a mockery, no decision is made at the polls, and there is no representation of the popular will." Is a question that can only be answered by the effluxion of time.

Burdens and Public Expenditures

in public economy, it is equally true for the collective authority operating deficits by bond issues, although this principle is not generally violated, despite statutory prohibitions prohibiting this course. Therefore, has the popular opinion so adverse to public indebtedness? What are the factors that made the average man view with the continuous use of the power by governmental authority? First is the fact that a considerable portion of public indebtedness of the government during the decade has been incurred for the benefit of which have some-thing been difficult to realize on the part of the generation that suffers immediately from them. Second, in so far as debts have been incurred by governments for railway equipment and repairs, lighthouses, waterworks, harbours, roads and a myriad of other beneficial objects, the average man is inclined to feel either that the expenditure has not always been a wise one or else that the country does not usually receive a full equivalent in return.

Third, it is felt that public bodies do not always exhibit the proper degree of business foresight and wisdom in disbursing public funds at the propitious time. This situation is particularly true of public construction in recent years. Students of the unemployment problem everywhere are agreed that one of the means of alleviating distress in the depression periods of the business cycle, when factories are shut down and employment is severely curtailed, is public construction. They have repeatedly urged that governmental bodies arrange their improvement programmes in such a way as to take up the slack in private industry whenever it manifests itself. In this way, two notable objects would be achieved. First, this procedure would obviate the necessity of the government bidding for labor and materials against private industry in a period of intense business activity in general or in construction lines in particular, thus tending to increase wages and prices and enhancing the cost of the improvement to the country at large. Second, public construction work at such times would relieve acute conditions of unemployment which ordinarily follow in the wake of industrial depression.

In summarizing this discussion, let me further point out, that I am not blindly disposed to the idea of killing the goose that laid the golden egg; by that I mean, the effect of high taxation is to reduce annual savings, to restrict enterprise, to drive both domestic and foreign capital out of the country, to raise domestic prices, to reduce consumption and to discourage thrift. It is a sound principle that taxation should be limited to such a proportion of the National Savings as will permit the accumulation of absolutely necessary supplies of additional capital, as well as a steady reduction of the national debt. The rate of repayment of debt (both funded and floating) should be regulated by the excess of income over expenditure, that is by the net savings of the country. But allowances must be made for accumulation of a surplus, to provide for deficits, to provide for new undertakings, and to permit improvements in the standard of living. Whether or not past experience is always a reliable guide for what may be expected in the future, is an open question. The powers of men are so impossible to measure and yet so prodigious as to defy any attempts at prophecy. It suffices that the burden of taxation is on a much higher level than before the war, in Newfoundland, as well as practically all over the world, and that it will take a generation before any hope of material reductions in these burdens can reasonably be entertained.
Current observation and analysis would not appear to support such a sanguine view of the probable trend of national income and prosperity in the near future as was possible in the decade immediately preceding the World War.

House of Assembly
Proceedings

TUESDAY, April 7.
The House opened at 3 p.m.
MR. HALFYARD presented a petition from residents of English Harbor, Trinity District asking for $3,000 to complete a canal begun two years ago. Mr. Hickman gave the petition his support.
HON. M. S. SULLIVAN presented a petition from the people of Balne Harbor and Boat Harbor on the subject of courier service. His colleagues supported the petition.
THE PREMIER presented a petition on behalf of the Newfoundland Light and Power Co. in reference to legislation which he wished enacted.
THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE presented a petition on behalf of the Power and Paper Co. and the Utilities Co. in reference to legislation confirming their titles to certain lands at Corner Brook.
SIR JOHN CROSBIE gave notice that he would on to-morrow move the House into Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.
In answer to Mr. Hickman the Minister of Marine and Fisheries stated that the lighthouse was placed at Ballyhack, C.B., at the request of the men returning to and from Bell Island and that land was purchased on which to build same for $20.00.
THE MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS in reply to Mr. Hickman stated that no contracts for sand had been given to any person in Harbour Grace District by his department. The Minister also stated that no moneys had been allocated to Harbour Grace District by his Department since January 1st, 1925.

MR. HICKMAN asked the Hon. the Prime Minister to lay upon the Table of the House all correspondence between the Government and other parties, including the High Commissioner's Office in London, in reference to the four million dollar loan raised in England. To explain why the tenders were asked for in dollars instead of pounds sterling and why it was afterwards accepted in sterling. To explain why the highest offer was not accepted. To explain why Messrs. Glyn Mills & Co. Financial Agents were not consulted as in the past.

In reply the Prime Minister tabled the following reply.—The only correspondence of which I am aware was between the Minister of Finance and the Bank of Montreal, copy of which is herewith tabled. There was no correspondence on the subject of the loan with the High Commissioner in London. Tenders were asked for in dollars because the Government did not wish to take on sterling exchange. This decision was only altered when the Imperial Trades Facilities Board agreed to assist the purchase of steel rails. The best possible results were obtained. The Government have no connection preferred dealing through their local with Messrs. Glyn Mills & Co. and Bankers (Bank of Montreal). The House went into Committee of the Whole on Supply taking up the vote for the customs.

MR. HICKMAN questioned what where the duties of the Harbor master and suggested the appointment of a Harbor Commission.
THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE pointed out that under Sec. 181 Con. Stat. it will be found that the harbor masters powers are not as extensive as necessary and he is desirous of being given more powers. The matter of appointing a Harbor Commission on lines such as are suitable for ports like Montreal was under consideration of the Government and the legislation is now being drafted. Before the vote passed Major Casella made a plea on behalf of those working in the Penitentiary Department for an increase of pay.

THE COLONIAL SECRETARY read a letter received from the Board of Pensions giving their views on the matter. He submitted that the Minister might give the matter his consideration before going out of supply.

MR. W. J. BROWNE endorsed the appeal of Major Cashin and hoped that the increase would be given.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE said it was his pleasure, subject to the Government's consent, to grant the request.

MR. HALFYARD suggested that the same consideration should be given to every returned soldier in the service.

After the final votes were passed, Sir John Crosbie expressed his thanks to the House.

THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE in moving the second reading of the Bill to amend Chapter 4 of the Consolidated Statutes entitled "Of Legislative Disabilities and the Vacation of Seats in the House of Assembly," said the act was to remedy a condition which in the past has arisen and which might arise again. The amendment is an additional exception to Section 2 and reads as follows:—

"Any person who shall accept the office, place or appointment of a Director of the Newfoundland Power and Paper Company, Limited, as a result of his nomination by the Governor-in-Council as provided by Paragraph F of Section 9 of the Schedule to the Act 14 George V."

MR. HALFYARD thought it was a innocent looking bill, but he felt more time should be given to consider it. He believed Mr. Foote was giving the attention to the position and as anyone whom the Government appoint.

THE COLONIAL SECRETARY pointed out that the representation was on the board to look out for the interests of the country and that the Director should be in sympathy with the Government of day. The present representation communicated very little of what was transpiring.

MR. GODDEN did not say there was anything wrong with the bill but agreed that time for its consideration should be given before the reading of a bill.

MR. BROWNE suggested that salary is not paid by the Government and therefore should a Government member be appointed he would be amenable to the Disabling Bill. He urged that consideration be given to the bill so that the House might be humiliated by those in its place as had before occurred. The order was deferred.

THE MINISTER OF FINANCE introduced the second reading of a Bill respecting a tax on certain comes. The order stands until to-morrow.

The Bill entitled "Of Old Age Pensions" was introduced to second reading by the Prime Minister. The Bill which is self explanatory is as follows:—

"If any person in receipt of an Age Pension under this Chapter die leaving him surviving a widow and such widow shall at the time of his death have reached the age of seventy years the payment of pension which the said person deceased had received up to the time of his death shall be continued to the widow of the deceased."

THE PRIME MINISTER stated that nobody would object to the provisions of the bill. He wished the position to know if it were possible to extend the scheme to the widowed women.

MR. HICKMAN complimented the Prime Minister on bringing the bill and gave it his hearty support.

MR. WARREN joined with the Leader of the Opposition in his congratulations to the Prime Minister and in passing referred to the widows of the West Coast who in many cases would be in a very precarious position except for the given by the Permanent Marine Asters Fund. The Bill was second reading and goes to committee to-morrow.

The Bill "An Act Respecting Records of Pure Bred Animals" moved to second reading by the Minister of Agriculture. He said that the farmers who were interested in the purchase of pure bred animals were desirous of having them registered. He thought that the present expense was not a heavy one and that the Government should set up the machinery necessary to do so. The Bill was given second reading and goes to committee to-morrow.

The House adjourned at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

The Festival of Freedom

Wednesday evening usher in the Festival of Freedom, which will be observed by the Jewish people of the world. According to the ordinance of the Bible the festival is to last seven days, only the first and the seventh being kept "holy" by total abstinence from labor. Orthodox Jews, however, observe the festival for eight days, the first two days and the last two days being considered "holy."

The festival is to be observed in the most ancient times, when the Israelites in Palestine engaged primarily in agriculture. Passover possessed an agricultural significance, marking the beginning of the harvest season. Since the festival days, however, the festival has largely lost its agricultural meaning, and it is observed primarily in commemoration of that great event in Jewish history when it was freed from the shackles of Egyptian bondage and emerged as a free people, taking its place among the builders of human civilization. If Jewish history is to be compared with American history, Passover may well be designated as the Jewish Independence Day.

All other important occasions in Jewish life, Passover will be observed with special evening and morning services at the Synagogue. Passover is distinguished from other similar functions in that it is primarily a family festival. During the whole week ahead is to be seen in Jewish homes and unleavened bread, or Matzah, which contains no ingredients other than flour and water, is used instead. The main observance of the festival will center around a reunion of families Wednesday eve (and in orthodox homes also, Thursday eve) at a special home ceremony, called the Seder.

The word "Seder" means in Hebrew "order" or "ritual," and the Passover supper is so styled because of its rich symbolism in which the contrast between the ancient serfdom of Jew in Egypt and his subsequent freedom is brought out in striking contrast. The ritual used for this occasion is known as "Haggadah." It relates the story of Israel's liberation from Egypt and it reviews the principal episodes in Israel's career as a religious community.

A very significant role in the Seder is assigned to the child. At the beginning of this home service the youngest son in the family is expected to ask four questions pertaining to the various ceremonies of the evening, and the rest of the ritual is largely an answer to these questions. In order to keep the interest of the youngsters alive in the service, a good deal of Jewish folklore is introduced, consisting of quaint arguments, tales and puzzles.

The Jew has always been very scrupulous about the observance of the Seder ceremony. Every community supplies the poorest of the poor with the best of everything for Passover. It is the great day on which the Jew recalls God's providential care of him throughout history, and he expresses the prophetic hope that better days of peace and brotherhood are in store for the Jews living in benighted lands and for humanity in general. The Passover festival brought a ray of sunshine especially to the Jews of the Middle Ages who were subjected to a great deal of hatred and persecution. It reminded the Jew that just as he had been redeemed from the hands of the Pharaohs, he would be redeemed also from all other oppressors. To-day the Jews of the United States and of all other Western lands enjoy the same rights and liberties as the rest of their fellow-citizens, yet Passover continues to be observed faithfully even by modern Jews.

A survival of the agricultural phase of the festival is to be seen in the ceremony of "Counting the Omer." An Omer (an ancient dry measure) of barley was brought to the Temple in ancient times as a thanksgiving offering to God on the second eve of Passover. Thereafter the Israelites "counted the Omer" for forty-nine days, until they reached the fiftieth day when they observed the Festival of Weeks (or Pentecost, which means the fiftieth day). While no Omer of

Are Women 100 Per Cent Efficient

How many women do you know who are one hundred per cent efficient? That means every nerve and sinew of the body pulsating with life and health as nature intended. Do you not know more who are half dead and half alive with aches, pains, nervous, irritable and despondent, making themselves miserable and every one around them? Women in this condition should let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rebuild and restore them to a normal healthy condition which will make them one hundred per cent efficient and life worth living. There are women in every section of this country who testify to its merits.

The Problems and Policy of the League of Nations

BLACKLEDGE CLUB, PORT REX-TON, T.B., DEBATE.

Since the New Year this Club has, on four occasions, given its attention to the important problem of the League of Nations and its work. It proves at least that there is a growing interest in world problems among our more thoughtful men. The intention of all this educational propaganda was to supply the facts which would enable the Club to decide as to whether it would support the League of Nations by joining, as a corporate member, the League of Nations Union, which has a branch in all the Dominions, except England's "most loyal Colony." The Club met on Saturday last, and Rev. F. P. Law moved the following resolution:—"That the League of Nations is of such importance for the protection of peace and justice between nations that it deserves the 'whole hearty support of the people of this country and that therefore this Club pledges itself to support the L. of N. Union and to become a corporate member of that Union."

The right of private judgment and that convictions honestly held could not be regarded as moral offences had revolutionized the western world. Such a revolution was needed now in men's mind and attitude toward war. The Christian was forced by his faith, to believe that "it is the will of God that war should cease." By supporting the L. of Nations and joining the Union, they would help to bring about this revolution, by organizing and strengthening public opinion. Again, by supporting the L. of N. they would be supporting a "practical" measure, which, whilst, only recently formed, and inadequately supported, had stopped wars, saved Austria, created machinery for carrying out a scientific campaign against disease, secured a juster treatment of native races in mandated territory and dare much to better labour conditions in many parts of the world. Besides this, the L. of N. was the only practical measure that was before the world. If there was another way, let the critics produce it. If not, let them support the only political machinery existing to achieve international peace.

This resolution was seconded by Mr. V. L. Randall, who said that the policy of the L. of N. was such that deserved whole-hearted support. He outlined the agreements and objects, covered by the covenant, and especially stressed the fact that 54 nations had agreed to make no treaties or alliances in secret, that they would endeavour to end disputes by agreement; that they would protect small nations; that they would stand together so that no nation dare break its word; that they would co-operate together to solve the great problems of health, labour, and the moral scourges of the world. It was only in its early stages yet, but if supported by each and all—for everyone counted—the League would be strengthened to undertake greater and graver tasks.

Mr. James Butler, while in sympathy with the ideal of world peace, and the principles of the League of Nations, thought that the Club should go slowly in the matter. They wanted to know more before they could commit the Club to any such action as the motion called for.
Dr. Fitzgerald expressed agreement with the principles underlying the League of Nations, but gave voice to grave doubts as to whether the present machinery could give effect to them. In spite of the existence of the League, England had sanctioned, recently an outlay of seventy million dollars on armaments; it had done nothing of such importance that it could be regarded as a practical scheme to carry out its principles; and when statesmen like Lloyd George, Viscount Cecil and Austen Chamberlain (extracts from whose articles on problems of peace were read) disagreed among themselves as to the best methods to save the world, how could the Club be expected to know what to do, and to arrive at any satisfactory decision on such a subject. What was needed most of all was a revolution in men's minds on the whole subject. When men thought differently, they might act differently.
Mr. John Guppy, referring to the chaos in Europe to-day, with its wars and rumours of wars, was very doubtful whether the League of Nations could do the work it was intended to do, or whether it was ever possible to end war, as war had ever been with us since Cain killed Abel.

Rev. F. P. Law in replying to Dr. Fitzgerald, agreed that the fact that England had sanctioned the spending of seventy million dollars on her Air Force, was an ominous sign, yet it really constituted an added argument for increased support of the only bit of machinery which existed to solve the problems of arms and disarmament. As to its practicability, Mr. Law maintained that the Doctor's argument could hardly be of any value in face of what the League had already accomplished during its short and half starved existence. It had, as a matter of fact, stopped or prevented five wars; raised 26 million pounds sterling and rescued Austria from bankruptcy and disruption, when the Governments of Europe had failed; rescued half a million prisoners; done much good work in checking the spread of disease and in improving health and labour conditions in many parts of the world. This argument could not be held of any value, in face of the words of A. J. Balfour, who wrote "during the five years of the League's existence the variety and importance of its undertakings have been most remarkable." As to the face of what the League had already accomplished during its short and half starved existence, it had, as a matter of fact, stopped or prevented five wars; raised 26 million pounds sterling and rescued Austria from bankruptcy and disruption, when the Governments of Europe had failed; rescued half a million prisoners; done much good work in checking the spread of disease and in improving health and labour conditions in many parts of the world. No More Kitchen Crashes

It is one of the tragedies of invention that unbreakable glass was once discovered and lost again! Nevertheless, although glass may still be brittle and breakable, it will be welcome news to the housewife that unbreakable porcelain has been produced at last.

The woman who trips over a baking-tray or rug, and smashes the best saucer, will still have the task of retrieving the scattered "pots," but they will be whole and not in a hundred fragments.
Washing-up will now be shorn of one of its main terrors, and the teapot, the handle or spout of which flies off in one's hand, will no longer be any unsolvable problem of the kitchen.

It is announced that a firm of porcelain manufacturers in Copenhagen have succeeded in producing "crocks" which are almost unbreakable.

UNITED STATES STEEL.
Tonnage Receipts Increased.

N.Y.—Despite the fact that steel prices in 1924 were considerably lower than in 1923 (the Dow-Jones average of eight leading steel products was $54.72 a ton in 1924 against $57.79 in 1923), the annual report of the United States Steel Corporation indicates that, based on tonnage products alone gross receipts per ton of sales and net operating earnings a ton were both higher last year than in 1923.

Total tonnage shipments of United States Steel last year were 12,224,780 tons. This figure included 11,526,890 tons of finished steel, 276,507 tons of ingots, iron, scrap, etc.; and 523,383 tons of ore, coal and miscellaneous products. Gross sales—exclusive of intercompany business, transportation earnings, etc.—were $842,969,442, an average of $68.07 a ton, and operating profits were $161,153,468 an average of $13.97 a ton.
Tonnage shipments in 1923 were 15,350,877 tons and gross sales $992,
916,162, an average of $64.68 a ton.
Operating earnings were $187,953,668,
an average of $12.27 a ton.

Principal cause of the gain in average ton receipts for 1924 was the fact that the corporation went into the year with a considerable piled up tonnage taken late in 1923 at prices above the average of that year. Judge Gory says average price last year was $2.17 a ton over that of similar tonnage in 1923. He also says, however, that average price of exported steel, based on similar tonnages declined in 1924, while the report shows an average price for the 1,152,018 tons shipped abroad last year of $69.20 against an average of $67.78 a ton on the 1-286,284 tons exported in 1923. This indicates plainly that 1924 exports consisted of more highly finished products, commanding higher prices.
Gain in average receipts a ton is also due to some extent to sales of non-iron products, which cannot be separated.

This gain in average prices and profits in a year of declining prices is another proof of the stabilization of United States Steel's earning power.
Its policy of maintaining what is considered a reasonable price level—as nearly as possible—of taking large forward tonnages, prevents it from taking advantage of sudden sharp rises in prices, but at the same time enables it to make a fair showing in declining markets. It is probable that not another steel company succeeded in getting higher, or as high, average prices last year as in 1923.

While average tonnage receipts last year were $3.39 in excess of 1923, average operating profits were only 80 cents higher. This was due principally to reduced sale of operations, which added $2 a ton or more to costs.
With present high rate of operations costs should be materially lower than they were in 1924, offsetting to a large extent the lower prices now prevailing.

GENERAL ELECTRIC.

BOSTON, March 31.—The announcement that General Electric stockholders their annual meeting May 12 will vote on an increase of $20,000, 000 in the authorized amount of the 9 per cent. special stock removes the doubt, if any existed, regarding the company's intention to continue the dividend of 5 per cent. per annum payable in special stock. The question came up in connection with the Electric Bond & Share distribution, combined with the fact that the authorized but unissued balance of special stock is somewhat less than enough to pay another 5 per cent. annual dividend.

The $26,000,000 Electric Bond &
Share common stock which General Electric disposed of is paying $8 a share dividends and earning around $35. The $20,000,000 a year in cash dividends which General Electric formerly received is equal to but $1.10 a share on the $180,000,000 General Electric common. Obviously, therefore, the absence of this income need not endanger the established dividend policy of $8 per share cash and 5 per cent. special stock. General Electric is expected to show around $20 a share for its common in 1924, or say $19 a share excluding the dividends received from Electric Bond & Share.
The next 5 per cent. dividend in special stock is due to be declared in August, payable October 15. There is $26,700,000 of this issue outstanding, and after the increase is authorized amount to $55,000,000, there will be enough unissued stock to pay 5 per cent. annual dividends on the present $180,000,000 common stock for three years. It is not of course out of the question that General Electric will decide some day upon a form of split-up of its common stock.

At the End of the Earth

Capetown, South Africa.—(By Canadian Press).—A strange tale of exile on the lonely island of Tristan da Cunha, which lies almost directly in the middle of the Atlantic, between South Africa and South America, was told by Rev. Martyn Rogers, when he arrived here recently on his return to England.

In 1921 Mr. Rogers took his young wife out to the lonely Tristan da Cunha for his three years' mission, and how, after working as doctor, missionary and school teacher in the world's most isolated community—Tristan da Cunha is almost two thousand miles from the nearest steamer lane, and almost as much from Cape Town—he is going back with his wife and a two year old son, Edward, who is the first white child ever to be born on the island.

For two years there had been no mail boats at Tristan, when the Ramon de Larranga steamed up to the island recently. It was thus the merest chance that Mr. Rogers was able to leave.

"To be back in the city is a queer business," said Mr. Rogers. "I feel almost as though I had been on a trip to the moon. Towards the end of our stay on the island there was such food shortage that my health suffered, and my wife and child were beginning to feel the hardship. The island potato crop failed. Cattle died. We drank tea only a few times a week."

"But I do not regret one moment of the time we spent there," he said.
"There was so much to do. My wife and I were busy in school—our pupils aged ranged from 4 to 40—every day.
There were four services to hold on Sunday. Often we had to attend services, and the medicine chest was always open. I had my troop of Boy Scouts to train, and my wife taught domestic and religious subjects to the women and girls of the island."

"The greatest hardship of life on Tristan is the length of time which passes between visits from the outside world. Weeks are spent in vain longing for ships which never come. The islanders ask for but one mail a year.

It was just after daybreak on Feb.
4, when someone shouted "Sail ho!" Instantly there was movement everywhere. Women left their kitchens and ran to catch fowls, geese, and other livestock for bartering purposes. The men dashed down to the beach and launched their canvas boats.

Captain Jones, the master of the Larranga, offered us a passage.
We visited a few sick people, held our farewell church service, and married two couples. At the service the sounds of sobbing could be heard about the joyous strains of the wedding hymns, I shall never forget that scene.

"On the beach some of the women clung to my wife as though they could not bear to part with her; but the steamer's siren awoke us and we went aboard the islanders gave hearty cheers for the missionary, and three thore for Captain Jones."

The inhabitants of Tristan da Cunha are petitioning the British government to send a warship to the island annually. Mr. Rogers said.

A Bridge Story

Not only is Lord Leverhulme one of the ablest of the world's captains of industry; he is also a raconteur of no mean order, as witness his latest story of a new-ricb professor who was playing bridge in a charity tournament.

His partner, a bishop's wife, left the call to him, and he made it diamonds.
But when he laid his hand down it contained only two diamonds, both low cards.

"Why in the world," said the bishop's wife, "did you go diamonds on such a hand as that?"
"I thought I seen you twiddle your diamond ring, ma'am," explained the professor.

Where is really Rains

We often complain about our rainy weather, but really we do not know what rain means! One has to go to the Khasi Hills, in Assam, to see rain at its heaviest, for there it comes down in Niagara's. This spot, for it is not of large extent, rejoices in the name of Cherrapunji, and it deserves all the other had names one can give it. Its annual rainfall averages 468 inches, or just eighteen times the rainfall of London.

In 1861 Cherrapunji nearly doubled its average, for in that year 905 inches fell, of which 366 were recorded in the month of July. On the 14th day of that month 40 inches of rain fell in twenty-four hours, and in the five days, June 12th to 16th, the total reached upwards of 114 inches, or more than four times the average annual rainfall of London.

The heaviest recorded rainfall in Great Britain occurred at Bratton, in Somerset, on June 29th, 1917, when 9 1/2 inches fell.

Spreading Out the Secondary Tuning

EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.
 The smaller the secondary tuning condenser the more open will be the tuning scale. If a small variable condenser is used to tune the secondary stations will come in at widely separated parts of the tuning scale. This greatly facilitates tuning. With a 48 plate condenser across the secondary two stations may come in with maximum intensity at, say for example, 50 and 52 degrees on the tuning dial of the condenser. Reduce this condenser to a 23-plate one, add on enough wire on the secondary so that the station which came in at 50 with the 23 plate and you will find that now the station which came in at 52 will come in at 54. And so on—gradually reducing the capacity and increasing the number of turns and you get ideal tuning as far as ease of handling a set is concerned.
 About the lowest capacity we can use across a secondary is 100 MMF. (.0001 MFD.) This capacity is that Copyright, 1925, by The American Radio Relay League, Inc.

Tales of Great Snakes
THRILLING FIGHTS WITH MONSTER REPTILES.

The largest of serpents is the African box constrictor. The average length of a full grown box is usually not much over twenty feet, but occasionally very much larger specimens occur. The record box is without doubt the one which caught a famous explorer in its coils.
 Speke had shot a young buffalo cow when, without his knowing it, the snake had been in the act of attacking, and his left fore-arm was caught between the buffalo's body and a single fold of the constrictor. The explorer was forced to stand perfectly still until the serpent had crushed the buffalo and relaxed its coils.
 Then he sprang away, and almost at the same instant his friend shot the box through the head. In his death struggles the monster levelled the grass, bush and saplings for yards round. It was over fifty feet in length and its greatest girth was nearly three feet.
 There is only one other authentic instance of a larger snake being killed by man. That was the anaconda shot in Brazil by Lt. Colonel Fawcett, another well-known explorer, and it was mentioned by him in a lecture given before the Royal Geographical Society. This immense reptile exceeded sixty feet in length, but could not be accurately measured because a part of its tail remained under water, and the Colonel who had only two terrified Indians with him was utterly unable to move the giant bulk.
 The muscular strength of a constrictor is almost appalling. Some years ago a professional snake charmer named Karolyi was giving an exhibition in Madrid with an eighteen feet python. In some way he managed to get it, whereupon the creature lightened its coils, and with a snap he fell flat on the stage. When his body was examined it was found that there were no fewer than eighty-seven fractures of various bones.

TARVIA
 PRESERVES ROADS AND PREVENTS DUST.

For each and every road building problem there is a Tarvia solution. Tarvia is recommended for use as a road preservative and dust preventive on highways and byways.
 The famous Riverside Drive, New York, is a tribute to the excellence of Tarvia. In New York City 500 miles of streets have been Tarvialized. The West Michigan Pike, the New York State Highway, the Ohio Experimental Road, the Park Boulevard, the Maine State Highway, the National Pike and hundreds of other paths of perfection, bear witness to the merits of Tarvia.

Since 1911 Tarvia has been used on streets in St. John's to the satisfaction of everybody. It costs less to keep a street or road in good condition with Tarvia, than to rebuild it after its deterioration.
 In Canada, Tarvia holds the premier position as a surface saver. Tarvia was used on the Ontario Provincial Highway, the Sherbrooke-Darby Highway, the Lady Gray Road, the Toronto West Main Road, the Galt-Preston Roadway, etc. In Ontario alone, over 400 miles of roads were Tarvialized last year.

Tarvia is favourably known in England. It was an Englishman gifted with a happy knack of expression who said "Tarvia is Topping". When all our streets shall have been Tarvialized, we shall have a dustless, clean and healthy city.—mar25,wtf

How the Salmon Get Over the Waterfall

Robert F. Griggs, in his book, "The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes," explains how salmon get over waterfalls. He says that at Brook Falls, in the outlet from the lake of the same name, at the proper season one may watch the salmon as they jump clear of the water and ascend the falls. An endless procession of fish keeps leaping high in the air, up and over the falls. Never does a second elapse between jumps. Sometimes as many as six fish are in the air at once. The jump appears to require their full power; none make the attempt at the lowest notch in the falls, and none jump clear over in a way to suggest that they could go much higher if necessary. Many of the leaps are so wide of the mark as to give the impression that they are not serious attempts, but rather in the nature of reconnaissance—efforts to learn the best place for the ascent.

 The mysterious sense by which they choose their way among waters apparently indistinguishable is quite incomprehensible, says Dr. Griggs. It is like the bird migrations. It were a journey, undertaken every year during the life of a fish. It would not be so remarkable, for the old fish could teach

Lloyd George Comes Back at the Labor Organs

OFFENSIVE ATTACK ON HER HUSBAND'S SPIRIT—EDLY RESENTED.

LONDON, April 2.—A spirited letter from the signature of Dame Margaret Lloyd George has been sent to the Labor organ, with a request to that newspaper's columns to her recent loss of a pearl necklace, originally reported worth $100,000, but since stated to be worth less. Dame Margaret objects to an alleged offensive attack on her husband's spirit, on the ground that she declares that the real value of the lost necklace is not one penny and probably not one-fiftieth the value made to Ramsey MacDonald when he was premier, by one of the Labor organs.

The reference is to the motor car which was given to Mr. MacDonald by Dame Margaret, and she does not object to the Daily Herald's account of the transaction and her husband's class and the abandonment of the simple tastes of his life. She says that the most of the loss was given to her from time to time by her husband out of his earnings as a journalist since he left of-

The Forbidden Book

Strange Legends of New Testament Days—The Buried in This Century-old Volume.

There is a rare book entitled "The Forbidden Book" in the library of the British Museum. As may be imagined, this causes it to be one of the most sought-after books of the millennial. A translation published about 1800, it is the original dates from the first times of the Christian Era. The author, William Hone, was a radical bookeller, who was sent to prison more than one occasion for selling volumes, which, in the eyes of the authorities, he had no business to sell at all.

"The Forbidden Book" is not "forbidden" volume. It is simply a book containing all those portions of the New Testament which the pious members of the Church rejected as heretical. This happened at the time the famous Council of Nicea, which gave us the Nicene Creed.

Pages Few Have Seen.

Remarkable old legends concerning the burial of Our Lord are told in "The Forbidden Book." It is stated, for example, how He used to play hide-and-seek with his disciples and how they were so afraid of him that they were afraid to look at him. There is also a Gospel of St. Matthew, which is very interesting. In short, the book is to the New Testament what the Apocrypha is to the Old Testament. But very few people amongst the clergy, have heard of its existence. Still fewer have perused its interesting contents.

For many years the volume has been out of print, and the only place where it is in such great libraries as the British Museum, the Bodleian at Oxford, the London Library, and similar institutions.

BUY for your of the famous unless nited. St. John's.

Our Own WHY OH WHY?

Not a Cross Word Puzzle, neither is it an April Fool Question.

What we want to know is—Why do some of the Housekeepers in St. John's buy high priced imported cake when they can get a very good Raisin or Ginger Cake, weighing ¼ lb. each for the small sum of 5c.

Practically all the grocery stores in St. John's are supplied daily by us with these cakes. We would suggest that you give them a trial and be convinced of their most excellent quality.

Why, of Course

If you want GOOD Clothes go to a GOOD Tailor. There is where you get good material, good fit and Clothes that look as if they were made for YOU, and not for the other fellow.

The Ready-to-Wear! Yes, of course. They were made for the one who buys them, very seldom for the one who fits them.

But be careful and go to a good tailor. It's cheaper and better. SPURRELL'S are good, reliable tailors, and you make no mistake in going there.
