The following is the report of the Titanias captain: We left Glasgow on April 25. On the 25th and 29th we encountered strong southwest to northwest gales and a high sea. On May 2 and 3 a dense fog; on the 4th clear weather.
At 10 a. m. we passed Cape Race and reported. The following is the official report of the third officer of the State of Florida: They left New York on April 12 with about 167 passengers and crew and a full general cargo. All went well until the night of the 18th, and at 11.30 p.m. they collided with the bark Ponema of Chatham, N.B., Capt. Hetburn. Both ships went down almost instantly, and out of the steamer's passengers and crew only forty-four, including the stewardess, managed to escape in boats; and out of the bark's crew of fifteen only the captain and two seamen were saved. The next morning the bark was observed bottom up. The survivors, after being thirty five hours in the boats without food or water, were rescued by the Norwegian bark Theresa of Christiana, from that port bound for Quebec. On April 22 twenty-four of them were transferred on board the ship Louisa, of and from Cardiff for Quebec, where they remained until May 5, when they were taken on board the

Ald. Millichamp (chairman), Adamson, Barton, Jones, Harvie, Sheppard, Hunter and Hastings were present at the waterworks committee meeting yesterday. On the engineer's recommendation the aldermen agreed to put down new mains on parts of Harbord, Major, Herrick, Chapel and St. Charles streets and Davenport place. The purchase of a new diving dress to cost $150 was ordered. The sum of $1250 was appropriated to extend the waterworks wharf. The engineer will consider the advisability of placing fire hydrants in the house of providence yard and on Division street. Mr. Blakely asked compensation for injuries sustained by his turn-out owing to an open waterworks trench in Elm avenue. As the avenue is in Rosedale, Mr. Blakely will have to look to the owners of the private main for compensation. Supply tenders were then opened. As the avenue is in Rosedale, Mr. Blakely will have to look to the owners of the private main for compensation. Supply tenders were then opened. John Perkins and the Lauder & Thornton manufacturing company each offered five hydrants at $34.50 each. Perkins secured the contract. The special castings went to H. Metcalfe at $2 per hundred. The St. Lawrence foundry will supply iron pipe at $42 per ton for three inch, $35.50 for six inch, $35.50 for twelve inch mains. The Canada locomotive works tendered for three inch pipe at $42 per ton, but as the quantity of this class required is small, the committee decided not to divide the contract. Wilson & Cousins' tender for three and six-inch valves, at $18.50 and $22 each respectively was accepted. Lauder & Thornton will forward twelveninch valves, at $49 apiece. Ald. Hastings called attention to the enormous cost of pipe-laying under the present system. The cost of putting down to Henry street main had been $1.83 per yard, when the Yorkville council in 1879 had the same class of work done by contract for 49 cents per yard. Chairman Millichamp believed a change in the system would be advantageous to the city, and on motion of Ald. Hunter it was decided to advertise for tenders for pipe laying, the city to supply pipe, special castings and tools. Ald. Hunter directed attention to the expense for cartage last year. He thought waterworks employes were not sufficiently careful about cartage expenses and often had the services of a horse and wagon when such were not needed. Ald. Hastings concurred, and made a sweeping charge against all waterworks employes who he held were too extravagant. The chairman held public accusations should not be made hose flew out.

Another length was taken, and after hard pumping the indicator showed 400 pounds pressure. So did a third length.

A fourth length was put in; the pressure was run up to 400 pounds; Chief Ashfield was satisfied; but Ald. Piper asked Mr. McIroy to increase the pressure, so that they might see what the hose would stand. He consented, and the indicator began to rise. It crossed 550 and was getting on the 600 pounds when the hose gave way, the split being two or three inches long and in two directions. Everyone was surprised at the strength of the hose.

What made it hard to get up the pressure, but what displayed a good feature in the hose, was its elongation under pressure, each length extending two feet or more. The Maltese Cross is superior in this direction to all others.

Other lengths were put in and they stood the test of 400 pounds and over to the complete satisfaction of aldermen, officers and men. Several of the men said this brand was the best they had ever used.

The ordinary pressure of the city water, system is 80 to 100 pounds, and behind a first class fire steamer 160 to 200 pounds.

The Maltese Cross hose can stand four pressures of the city water and two or three of a fire steamer.

James Warin was buried from his late home Though it rained heavily there was a large attendance of his friends, of the rowing clubs, of the gun clubs, etc. Rev. Dyson Hague conducted religious service at the house. The pall bearers were Ald. Maughan, David Ward, T. P. Galt, R. Mason, W. Burney, T. G. Bright. Mr. Warin was born at Yarm in Yorkshire, England, but was brought to Toronto an infant. He was raised here, and it was on Toronto bay that he acquired his taste for boats and gunning. At one time he was a fine rown and the bay. He learned the trade of boat builder with Robert Rennardson, who who was considered a good workman, in his day was considered a good workman, and his brother set up as boat builders on their own account, and their oxided reputation begins with the first boats they built for Edward Hanlan when he first rowed Wallace Ross. Hanlan's boat, Canada, in which he won the championship of the world from Trickett, was built by the Warins and theo cars made by Jim. He patented to shoot ing punt and an oarlock for skiffs thay is now a called for from all over. He also patented a seat for slides, also much in demand. His roller new hollow-faced oar was patented a seat for slides, also much in demand. His roller new hollow-faced oar was patented in 32, and has Hanlan's recommendation. About nine months ago an ulcer formed in Mr. Warin's throat, which, despite the best skill, carriel him off. He liked to shoot, and often took a trip to the St. Clair flats.

trip to the St. Clair flats.

From London to Sydney the name is familiar to all who take any note of sculling aquatics. G. and J. Warin have had few rivals in the construction of one of the gems of modem handicraft—the shell. To their workmanship is due the remarkable concidence of Canadian victories in Canadian built boats. Their mechanical skill has kept pace with and supplemented the muscular progress of Hanlan and Ross. Their patents in swivel rowlocks, rolling seats and sculls show a versatile range of inventiveness. The small frame house from which has been launched many a coquettish and winning craft is a contrast to the extended factories at New York and Boston. London and Newcastle. Nevertheless the modest workshop on the Esplanade has surpassed them all in originality and fluish. The fastest races on record have been rowed with the oars and won in the boats manufactured by G. and J. Warin. The latter was the oarmaker and every oar he made was an instance of how uncertain is the line demartating the artist and the genuine cating the artist and the genuine handicraftsman. He contrived the latest improvement in the scull. This last improvement in the handicraftsman in the virtue of such a movement lies in bringing together the handicraftsman and the artist who have so long been separated with disastrous results to both. The virtue of a workman is not his industry but his power to design, In James Warin design was no product of kille fancy; it was the result of accumulated habit and of delightful observation. To sum up, he came nearest, so far as

The test was conducted by James Ashfield, chief of the department, Thomas Graham, deputy hief of the brigade, and the firemen at the hall. Ald. Piper was present on behalf of the fire and gas committee. The hose had been delivered at the Bay street hall in lengths of 100 feet each and filled up half a room. The test was made with care: the guage is a reliable one, the property of the guage is a reliable one, the property of the pressure; and the lengths tested were selected promiscuously from the pile.

The first length that was tried stood the pressure up to 300 pounds to the square inch, when the plug at the other end of the hose flew out.

Another length was taken, and after hard pumping the indicator showed 400 pounds pressure. So did a third length.

Bland and Garry stood on the rear platform watching him through the window and speaking of him as 'the victim.'

first thing the innocent Mr. Wiston knew he was engaged in a warm discussion with two young men (strangers to the rest of the audience) on the N.P. They did not talk spelling reform at all. The principal glared at Mr. Wiston for his controversial eccentricity and was now sure that he had imbibed freely when at the tavern. But the discussion grew hotter and the meeting, once that it had taken sides on the tariff issue, refused to hear anything more of spelling reform. Mr. Bland and Mr. Garry had caused the rumpus; they had done the questioning and let Mr. Wis on into polities. Of course they chuckled. The principal barely tolerated Mr. Wiston for the rest of the night, and allowed him to walk to the station in the morning. But Bland and Garry were there before him. They beckoned the stationmaster aside; they asked him if he had seen such a man—and they proceeded to accurately describe Mr. Wiston—there lately. "He was on the platform here last night," said the station-master. "We have tracked him at last," said Garry, "Who knows, but he may try to board this train and throw us off the try to board this train and throw us off the track." Bland and Garry seized him. He protested, asked his young friends what they meant; they merely advised him to keep quiet: it would pay him not to offer resistance. The village station was a scene of profound excitement, and when Mr. Wiston was hustled into the train for Toronto and it became poised among the passengers that it became noised among the passengers that one of the dynamitards had been caught there was a lively rush to see the wretch. Poor Mr. was a lively rush to see the wretch. Poor Mr. Wiston submitted; it was useless any longer to protest. At Scarboro Junction his two worthy disciples released him and began to laugh at the fun they had, but Mr. Wiston did not see the point: but as the prank had been so well executed he forgave them, notwithstanding that they had taken his side, brought him into discounts, broke up his meeting, and him into disrepute, broke up his meeting, and caused his arrest.

W. F. MACLEAN.

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 8, 1884.

Grant's Fortunes and Misfortunes No more unromantic figure than that Ulysses S. Grant could well be imagined. yet no contemporary that we know of ha had a more romantic career. The Galena tanner, whose wife could not get credit for a barrel of flour, became the hero of the most tremendous internecine struggle that the earth has ever witnessed. Partly through good management and partly through good luck he rose to the first place in the affections of his countrymen, and had showered upon him every benefaction in their gift, from the chief magistracy to the prize pup at the latest dog show. His success as a civil ruler fell far short of his good fortune as a military captain. During his eight years of supremacy Washing. ton reeked with a corruption not often paralleled in the courts of kings, and partyism and nepotism held high carnival in the places sacred to the memories of Washington and Jefferson. The suspicion that imperial ambitions found lodgings in the ousy brain of the hero of the war for the Union was not altogether unfounded, nor was the republican revolt against his candidature for a third term organized moment to soon. Like Ulysses of old, Grant sought diversion in foreign travel, and returned to be made the recipient of a too liberal bonus from the capitalists and office-seekers who had not yet lost hope of his return to the White House, with all that such a return implied.

Here came a turn in the affairs of the spoiled child of fortune that is character istically American. The deadlock between himself and Blaine resulted in the nomina tion of Garfield, and the money power which had found him so useful as presi dent borrowed his name for speculative purposes. The firm of Grant & Ward was launched upon the troubled sea of New York speculation. The collapse of the Marine bank has left the firm "short," and the name of the great warrior figures to-day among those of the debts. But there is no fear that Grant will have to go begging for bread. The publics may be ungrateful, but the repubicans of the United States are not. The interesting question just now is what the effect may be upon his pretensions at the forthcoming Chicago convention. Will his fairweather friends desert to Arthur or to Blaine, or will the wire pullers succeed in making the old man's business misfortune a pretext for giving him a chance to rehabilitate himself? More likely than not the latter policy will be adopted. The sympathetic role may be made to take the place of the once great, but now discredited, bloody shirt act.

The Twenty-Fourth on Monday. A number of merchants in the city, and nearly all the storekeepers in the country, would prefer to see Queen's Birthday, which falls this year on Saturday, observed on Monday. The rule ought to be established once for all that when a holiday falls upon Saturday, Sunday or Monday it ought to be celebrated on the Monday. This is not only better for business, but it least. The city council ought to vote on it on Monday night.

Unkind Cuts.

The thoroughbred horse Tubman is advertised in the Globe with a cut of Dexter the trotter going a 2.18 clip. The May number of the Farmers' Advocate has a portrait(?) of the carriage horse Albion, owned near London, Ont., which is said to be drawn and engraved for the Farmers' Advocate. But unfortunately the words "Breeders' Gazette" are clumsily erased and mixed with grass stalks under the noble animal's belly, showing conclusively that the cut emanates from Chicago, and has done service there for other equine celebrities. This is contemptible. In an other part of the same paper is the unkindest cut of all, a shorthorn cow appears There is no doubt that the "art idea" over the advertisement of Grand's sale of

The Hamilton Spectator wants an at tractive school of cookery established "in the interests of temperance." Can't a man cease to be a bibulist without becoming a glutton? The Thames washes London, but what will wash the Thames

It is significant that the Morrison tariff bill was defeated at Washington by a coalition of democratic and republican votes, upon the motion of a democrat, although it was in no sense a free trade measure, nor even a proposition to enact a tariff for revenue only. It was simply a proposal to trim and pare a very high tariff. When so moderate a movement is defeated under the leadership of members of what is supposed to be the free trade party, it is time for Canadian Cobdenites to wake up and come out of the fool's paradise in which come out of the fool's paradise in which they have been seeing visions of a free trade United States. No one who has studied intelligently the political situation will deny that Mr. Morrison's defeat will have a tendency to improve any chance that the democrats may have of a victory that the democrats may have of a victory alone in the storm brought her into Kingston, on Friday duration out into the lake. The Minneapolis Canadian-American deounces the Canadian landlord and tenant aw as "a disgrace to the nation." Our international contemporary's language is rather strong, but there is no denying that the law in question needs liberalizing Our conservative politicians refuse to re form it, and a great many of our reformers are landlords themselves. The tenants are too busily engaged in fighting the battles f conservatives and reformers to pay any ttention to the matter.

Louis of Hesse, whose marriage with his late wife's sister, the Princess Beatrice, as been very generally regarded as fixed for an early date, is reported to have proken his plighted troth to the queen's aughter, and to be about to contract a organatic marriage with a prominent but intitled Russian lady. If this prove true it will cause great annoyance to everybody oncerned except the British taxpayer, who is now burdened with all the German incelings that he cares to support in nified idleness. One of the effects will sister's bill.

Fitzgerald's cash receipts from the gree walking match are estimated at $12,500, Rowell's $5000, Panchot's $2750, Noremac's $1750, Herty's $1250. Vint's $1000, Elson's $750. Out of the fourteen who started these alone reaped any profit. The others would have been better engaged in any other employment save office-seeking.

Talmage thinks that Shakespeare's plays are purer than Goldsmith's or :Sheridan's. If Talmage would read Shakespeare he might change his mind. As the ondon Advertiser sarcastically remarks, "there are plays free from any indecency or indelicate suggestion, but Shakespeare did not write them."

The undignified squabble among the police commissioners over the political aspect of the recent promotions recalls the following story told by a United States contemporary: "Mayor Grummond not long ago remarked to a friend that Henry Starkey, secretary of the water board, was until 2 a.m. or later. Night operators receive the same pay as those working through the day, but it is calculated that they work at least an hour less. Thirty words a minute is considered a good average for an operator, which is about equal to one column of the Globe per hour. The despatches are written out on what is technically known as "filmsy," a very light hard paper. From one to ten sheets of filmsy, according to the lateness of the hour or the importance of the messages, are thrust into the solid Open-Face Nickel Silver Watches.

Artists and the Academy,

To the Editor of The World. SIR: You may have read in the papers certain envious letters attacking our esteemed president of the Royal Canadian academy. Would you kindly permit me your valuable columns to say that the members of the academy faithfully adhere to their president; and, moreover, we think it shameful that there should be a dissenting voice from his praise, for who in our backward state in this country could adequately undertake his arduous and responsible duties as presineeds every encouragement in this new country. I cannot see how it would injure any of our artists to have our respected president prosper. Indeed I think I can see in the course of loyalty toward him more change of a glorious career for the more chance of a glorious career for the academy, and more chance for the elevation academy, and more chance for the elevation of art among us than by any other means. Has he not been the honorable recipient of a commission from her most gracious majesty the queen to paint a picture of Quebec? and has he not been an honor to our colony by his masterly treatment of her majesty's command? Have not his our colony by his masterly treatment of her majesty's command? Have not his relations with the late governor-general been exceedingly helpful and gratifying to that nobleman? and has not our president given evidence before the assembled artists and public generally of his unspeakable gratitude which would naturally inspire a capacity and aspiration for still greater honors, and who can doubt that his lord-ship will intercede with his august

TOILERS OF THE NIGHT.

HOW MEN MAKE THEIR LIVING UNDER THE GAS JETS.

Toronto's Industries From Sunset to Sun rise—A Vast Host of Silent Workers— Who They Are And What They do.

Anybody who has had occasion to be or the streets of Toronto about midnight or shortly after must have been struck by the almost sepulchral quiet which then reigns on the streets. Except the measured footsteps of the policeman as he treads his beat, a sound often audible at a distance of two or three blocks, or an occasional attempt at vocalism from some stray inebri ate who is painting the town red by the light of the stars, there is scarcely a sign f human life or human activity throughout the city. An occasional reporter may pass now and again, generally bound for police headquarters, where he will probably get the last local item that reache his paper before it goes to press; or a little telegraph boy, carrying in his dilapidated pocket the latest despatches from Hong Kong or Kharteum, may be seen scurrying along the sidewalks, intent on accomplishrobably he to withdraw the support of ing his errand and getting home to bed the English court from the deceased wife's with all the despatch that he can. But that is all the ordinary midnight observer is likely to see; and unless he makes it his ousiness to inquire more particularly into what amount of business is really transacted under the gas jets, he will find it difficult to believe that over 1500 men nightly earn their living in Toronto by ways that are usually dark, if not altoether vain.

To attempt to deal sensationally with To attempt to deal sensationally with Toronto's midnight toilers would be to write down the writer an ass. With the exception of a few chronic drunkards and criminals, there is no class in this city whose conduct during such hours is such as to furnish even the most enterprising reporter with a single lurid item. A man cannot write a dime novel in which the heroes are merely telegraph operators, or journalists, or bakers, or policemen, and when incessant pen-scratching or dreary, endless marches on the sidewalk have to do duty for incident. But though Toronto's midnight "sensations" are wholly imaginary, there is yet enough of interest attaching to the various industries in full blast at that hour to warrant some description of the workers and the nature of their labor.

As you pass the corner of Wellington and other church meetings should have conferred upon them the degree of "K. K.

—Kronic Kickers," "Ma conscience!" as the good old dominie used to remark. It is no wonder that flippancy increases apace. We are as much shocked as Sidney Smith was when he heard a fellow speak disrespectfally of the equator.

The ignorance that is bliss is no poetical figment in the forest city, where a Goderic doctor has been committed to the assizes for assisting a recognized smallpox patient on his way to the London hospital, while a Clinton doctor was discharged because he made a blunder in his diagnosis, and didn't know smallpox from prickly heat or the iim-jams. It is nevertheless.

As you pass the corner of Wellington and Schedal salmost any hour from midning to daybreak, you may notice a bright light in the third story windows of the C. N. W. telegraph company's building. That is the operators' room. Were you to enter it by day you could scarcely hear your own voice over the perpetual click, click which arises on every side of you. At night time things are not so noisy, for the staff is diminished by considerably more than one-half. On ordinary nights, when nothing special is expected in the press despatches, a corps of a dozen men or so is sufficient. But if news is expected regarding some important battle or some great disaster, this force is considerably augmented. Last night, for instance, when long despatches were expected regarding the lost State of Florida, three or four members of the day staff were put into requisition. As you as the contact and substance of the state of the next corbinates as a substance of the state of the next corbinates.

Altogether, the night staff employed at this office numbers from 25 to 30 men and boys. From the telegraph to the newspaper office is but a short step. There are probably about 130 hands employed around the Globe building at night, and nearly the same number on the Mail. The other morning newspapers have between them a morning newspapers have between them a total staff of about 120 hands, making an aggregate of nearly 500 men and boys employed on local daily journals. Of this number about 120 are compositors; the rest includes editors, reporters, proof-readers, stereotypers, engravers, press-men, route boys and wagon drivers. The time for going to press varies, the latest hour fixed being about 4 o'clock. From food for the mind to food for the body is a natural enough transition.

Although all those employed in nightwork on a morning journal are supposed to work hard, and although the nature of their labor is naturally trying to the strongest constitution. trying to the strongest constitution, it is not strictly speaking, a physical task. It tells rather on the nerves than on the muscles. People who take up the morning paper, clean and grisp as it lies on their breakfast table, would find it difficult to realise how much varied labor and thought had gone to make up the trim columns they see before them, and which look as orderly and symmetrical as if every word had been evelved and set in position by means of machinery. Yet the newspaper is not the only article on the breakfast table which is the readvect of love there there are the readvect of love the readvect of th machinery. Yetthe newspaper is not the only article on the breakfast table which is the product of long labor through sleepless nights. That crisp new loaf, which yields so coyly to the knife, is another result of toil by night. For in this city there are over three hundred journeym newspaper in their work at an hour when the ordinary citizen is slumbering peacefully beneath his blankets. Yearsago, Toroato bakers had a much harder time of it than now; when their custom was to enter the bake-house at 9 o'clock of an evening, and not quit until 2 or 3 in the afternoon. A few winks on a pile of old flour sacks sufficed them for sleep; and what little they ate was almost invariably taken at the scene of their work. Under such conditions, it is little wonder that the business soon got the reputation of being an unhealthy one. Now, however, all this is changed. The men, as a rule, do not go to work before 3 or 4 a.m., and are not in the bake-house for over eleven hours at a stretch. Still, the wear and tear on the physical system for over eleven hours at a stretch. Still, the wear and tear on the physical system is very great, owing to the immense amount of muscular exertion required in the process of bread-making According to a prominent baker of this city, and average hand in the business actually lifts in the course of his work three or four tens of dough. Toronto to-day presents more advantages to this class of workmen than any other city on the continent.

Catarrh-A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of 2000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination; this accomplished, the catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh.
The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on catarrh.—Montreal

Then it was used in early chemistry to denote any fine impalpable powder, specially that produced by sublimation, as "alcohol of sulphur," the first quotation in this sense in English being in 1543. About 150 years later, by the extension of the idea is sublimation to fluids, we meet with "alcohol of wine." floating bogs, or marsh-land that is nnstable in its position, lie to the east of the main outlet of the river. It is hard to define just where the shore line ends and these marsh lands begin. But Ashbridge's bay, which is east of the Don, and the various additional little bays and ponds are made up of clear spaces of water, enclosed by these marshy reed-growing bogs.

The cattle byres are just over the Don,
and on the lowest piece of the dry land on the left hand bank of the river. On the what is the origin of it. It comes from many causes. In the first place the Don of the city. Next the country thereabout is very flat with dead water lying here and there. Third, at the mouth of the Don, on the right bank and near to the cattle byres, there are a number of industries and yards that emit unpleasant odors.

The World reporter in looking the thing over observed the following:

1. The Grand Trunk cattle yard. Here cattle are loaded, and others from the west right hand side of the river are a number of factories and industries, of which more particular mention will be made further on The distillery is about a quarter of a mile this side of the river, and the grain slop therefrom is forced to the byres through an underground pipe.

The distillery of Gooderham & Worts is the largest in the world. It has a paid up capital of $1,600,000, it is the largest concern in the city, pays into the inland revenue of the dominion $2,000,000 a year, and is one of the best managed businesses in America. It is intimately connected with several leading concerns and institutions in the city, notably the bank of Towith several reading contents and histories tions in the city, notably the bank of To-ronto. The wonderful success of the busi-ness lies in its being well and economically managed: though alcohol or whisky is the main product, there are other things that are turned out, and the income from these have had as much to do with their success as has that derived from the spirits. For instance, among the other products of the distillery may be mentioned the slops or

Now it is in disposal of these slops that the alleged nuisance arises. Some years ago Messrs. Gooderham and Worts found out that their business would be greatly interfered with if they could not turn the interfered with it they could not turn these slops to profitable account. They saw that the distilleries in the States derived large incomes from their slops by disposing of it as cattle feed. In some places the cat tle were fed in small stables scattered all over, in other places in large byres. The Toronto firm learned that the most cleanly as well as the most economical method was to erect and own the byres of land on the left side of the Don at its mouth, and put up byres that are the most complete of their kind in America. They are seven in number and accommodate four thousand head of cattle. Especial care was taken to provide ventilation and drainage, to secure fire protection, and to ensure a regular supply of feed. The largest of these byres accommodates 672 head of cattle, and is 200x150 feet in dimension. The space allowed to each animal is 3 foot The space allowed to each animal is 3 foot 6 inches by 14 feet. The cattle stand in long double rows head to head with two feeding troughs between. At the rear end of the cattle of every two rows is a clear space with a drain down the centre. Each stall slopes to this drain, and each drain has a fall to the far end of the stable where there is a main drain connecting with the grand drain. There are numerous windows through which air is admitted and besides through which air is admitted and besides these there is in the smallest byre ten ventilating shafts running from the stable floor to the roof, each 3 feet by 8 feet, carrying off the impure air of the stable. Above the stables are roomy, well-ventilated lofts where the hay is stored, some factor of which is consumed every win. 6000 tons of which is consumed every win-

Before explaining how the manure is disposed of it is necessary to understand the relation of the several parties to one another. The byres are owned by Gooderham & Worts, the cattle by the drovers The firm contract to furnish the byres and to supply all the distillery slop that the cattle can eat run into the troughs, for $20 a head for the season. The cattle owners contract to clean the stables twice a day and to keep their cattle clean. The contract runs from November 1, when the cattle go in, until June 15 following, when they must all be out. They begin to remove them about May 1, when they are shipped from time to time as the demands of the Eng-lish markets and the ruling of ocean freight rates advise.

The cattle owners employ a large number of men whose duty it is to keep the stables scrupulously clean. This to their own interest to do this for the health, weight and appearance of the animal all depend on it. Every few days the cattle are curried down. These cattle are weight and appearance of the animal all depend on it. Every few days the cattle are curried down. These cattle are in splendid condition and as contented looking as the thoroughbred pets of a cattle fancier. There never has been an outbreak of disease, and a beast seldom or never dies in the stalls. An occasional one is kicked to death when they are being taken out in the spring. Twice or three times a day the droppings of the cattle are shovelled into the drain and shoved down into the main drain at the end of the stables. This is done by means of rubber scrapers, which leave the boards clean and dry. At the end of the stables the manure lies in a long wide shallow trough out of which all the solid stuff is shovelled into a dry trough alongside. When the main portion of the solid manure is removed the liquid is allowed to stand for a time longer in order that more of the solid stuff may settle. It is then run off into a sub box-drain and then into the grand drain, which every here and there has an arrangement for catching what solid stuff may still be in suspension.

Is nothing then to be done to abate any nuisance that may exist? Certainly there is room for improvement. But it wants to be carried out systematically. The city-council must take hold of it. Improve the olid stuff may settle. It is then run off stuff may still be in suspension.

The solid manure is taken away by tar-

The solid manure is taken away by tarmers and market gardeners, who contract to remove it from so many rows. They to remove it from so many rows. They sign a paper agreeing to forfeit $10 if they do not remove it daily in spring and fall, and in winter it must be taken away as fast as the weather permits. On every occasion when the writer has inspected the byres there was never more than the collection of one day's manure in the dry troughs. As for the liquid manure it is run out into the bay in an open box drain. This box drain is laid on top of one of the floating bogs already mentioned, and dispensers down a hole twelve feet deep in it up in the millions be harassed by the floating bogs already mentioned, and disappears down a hole twelve feet deep in the centre of the bog. To understand the question it is necessary to know the topography of the place and the location of the various interests involved. If we do a straight blow is struck at the prosperity of the city. We want all these industries and more of them. We want to encourage then to come and settle among us. Ask the people about the Don and they will tell you that these industries are their means of support. The storekeepers down there will tell you that they do their business with those who work in them. Those who own the houses get their rents from the employes of these places. The discovery of the companion of Sirius was made by the Chicago instrument; not, however, by any of our local astronomers. Mr. Clark, the maker of the telescope, mounted it temporarily for trial at Cambridge, and turning it upon Sirius, was amazed and delighted to find a little star of the tenth magnitude, which it had been suspected must be near the great luminary. According to Mr. Burnham, who for several years has kept watch of this pair, the companion moves in position angle becompanion moves in position angle be-tween three and five degrees a year, and approaches the luminary about three or four-tenths of a second for that period.
