NUTE AND COMMENT

From the outbreak of the war to January 8th, the recruits raised by Ireland numbered 86,277, according to the report of Baron Wimborne, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland. He estimates that the present time there are about 400,000 unattested single men of military age in Ireland, but deducting those indispensible for agriculture, commerce and the production of munitions and those medically unfit, concludes that the single men actually available would hardly exceed 100,00.

Calgary Herald: As a city we are in hard luck. Here we have been practising the utmost economy as a municipality, if we are to accept the statements of the city fathers, for over a year, and now comes Jack Frost with a spell of cold weather that will cost $50,000 in thawing operations, and the storm king with snow, for whose removal we must pay $20,000. In Alberta the frost and snow are guarantees of moisture next summer, and with plenty of moisture big crops are also guaranteed. So let us postpone our worry

Last year eighty-five passengers in the United States lost their lives, while more then 5,000 trespassers on railroad property were killed. Trespassers, not passengers, make up the death list. The sacrifice is the more regrettable because so fully avoidable. It is a situation worth serious thought on the part of the public and public authorities. The temptations for pedestrians to invade railroad property are many. It may save time for workingmen and women to cross some yard or right of way in going to and from their duties, but the time saved is purchased often at tremendous cost and always at grave risk. Lawmakers have been slow to recognize the evil. It is time there was a better understanding on the subject all around. Safety first!

Every time you sneeze while you have the grippe, or a cold, several million cold or grippe microbes are sent flying out into the air which other people must breathe. Remember, then, to "cover up" the cough and sneezes, thus preventing the spread of discomfort, disease, and possible death, for grippe and colds are at this season a deadly plague. Some medical authorities tell us that the reason why so many sudden deaths occur of late years from heart failure is because of the prevalence of la grippe. A weakened heart and shattered nervous system are the legacy it leaves after being entertained in these bodies of ours. North America is just now in the throes of an epidemic of influenza, call it by what other name you will. Keep the feet dry and bowels open, avoid overheated rooms observe all rules of health, especially moderate diet and absolute abstinence from every kind of alcoholic drink. Avoid all worry, as a case of "nerves" is very likely to invite it. Then keep your sleeping-room well aired, your head cool feet warm and dry, and go about your regular duties as cheerfully as you can.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incur-able. Germans Do Not Understand

British Freedom

There is a cause for bitter chargin n Germany over the appointment of General Smuts to the command of the British forces in East Africa in succession to General Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien. There is no doubt that the unexpected disturbances in Ireland and the anticipation of rebellion in South Africa were among the things on which the kaiser counted to assist him in his attempt at worldconquest.

He did not understand freedom because he never was free himself, and never allowed his subjects to be The Boers were passionately free. attached to freedom, and they fought for it against Britain, because they did not at first understand that the British type of freedom was a higher type than their own. Now that they have learned what British freedom is they rejoice in their larger opportunities and yield it that allegiance which

When the Germans understand these things they may take the same have to take the same path to learn their lesson, a path of defeat and humiliation. We do not think the British or the allies desire merely to humiliate-the Germans, but it is part of the process of conquest, and it must be carried out to its ultimate.

General Smuts is a living example to the German people that they have utterly miscalculated and misjudged the British nation. It is possible that the German's will have to be made over again and made different, as Mrs. Poyser said, before they correct their views.

Germans Want Canada

James Lougheed, Government Leader in the Senate, declared in a speech in the Upper House of Parliament that Germany was known to desire possession of Canada as a prize of war should she be victorious in the present conflict. Some Canadians, he said could not yet realize that Canada was in as great jeopardy as Great Britain or any of her allies.

Senator Lougheed asserted that German spies had compiled and filed in the archieves of their government more complete information on the natural and devoloped rescurces of Canada than was possessed even by the Dominion Government. He expressed the belief that Germans living in the United States would be glad to aid in the capture of Canada.

If the allies' lines were broken and an avenue opened up on the seas, the speaker prophesied, German troops would be landed upon the shores of Canada and the Dominion's southern boundary would be crossed by reservists living in the United States. To prevent such a contingency, he said, Canadians should exert themselves to the utmost to aid Great Britain.

On a Government Claim

(Published by request)
I'll write a few lines if only I can, and tell you about my excellent plan. You'll find me out here on a west river plain, starving to death on a government claim. Hurrah for this country, the land of the free! Home of the grasshopper, chinch-bug and the flea. Oh; I tell of its joys and sing of its fame while starving to death on my government claim. My mansion is built of the natural soil. The walls not creeted according to Hoyle. The roof has no pitch, but is level and plain, and I'll on canned goods, crackers, old bacon and cheese. Then come to this country, there's a home for you all, where the winds never cease and the rains never fall, where the sun never sets but sweetly remains till it burns up the crops on our government claims. Oh, how happy I feel on my government claim! There is nothing will make a man so hard and profance. Eve nothing to eat and nothing to wear; the mosquitos possess both our water and air. It's here I am settled and here I must stay; my money's all gone and I can't get away. There's nothing to gain, while lose and there's nothing to gain, while starving to death on a government claim. Hurrah for this country where blizzards arise, where the sun never sets and the flea of the fame, of the "Honyock" who's stuck on a government claim.—O. S.

SQUATTING AT THE TABLE.

It Tried the Patience and the Muscles of the Stranger In a Strange Land, but From an Epicurean Standpoint the Worst Was Yet to Come.

Describing an amusing experience in Japan, Homer Croy in Leslie's Weekly tells how, after arriving by train in an interior town, in his efforts to find a hotel, he tried to break into a bank. Realizing his mistake, he finally, by use of the sign language, was directed to a real hotel, where, after removing his shoes, he entered. Then:

What interested me most was something to eat, and opening my mouth to its fullest I pointed in. They motioned me to follow upstairs, but I held back, showing that I wanted the dining room, not the bedroom. Seeing a which I thought must be the dining News..... 3 00 pushed back the sliding doors my heart crawled down another step, for there was only one piece of furniture in the room, a seat that looked like a two legged milk stool covered with carpet. There wasn't a single chair in the room and no place to hang my hat or coat, nothing except a bare room one of my toes brazenly peeping

I started to sit down on the milk stool, but it squirted out from under me, while the servant girl made no effort to hide her laughter. Dropping down on the floor, she showed me how to use the milk stool by sitting on the floor and leaning one arm on it, like a picture before Pompeil.

She took my hat and coat, and I wondered where she was going to hang them, for there wasn't a single nail or hook in the room. Carrying them over o the wall, she pushed back a small sliding door and placed them on a shelf and brought me back a kimono. She motioned for me to get into it and started down the hall. I got out of my clothes and was just slipping into the kimono when I heard her coming. I called to her to stop, but she did not understand, so I wrapped the kimono around me the best way I could and tried to keep it together, for there were no buttons on it.

could not find a place for my knees. They wouldn't let me get near enough the table to carry out my designs on the fish. Seeing my trouble, the girl dropped down to show me how. She turned her feet back, with her toes pointing straight behind her, and sat down, her face in one direction and her toes in another. It looked easy, but it brought me up with a short breath. No

European can sit in such an attitude.
Putting one leg under the table, with one bare knee glistening on the side, I bent over the table to proceed with the eating, but here I ran up against a snag. All I had to eat with was chopsticks. Weaving them through my fingers, I tried to break off a piece from the slab of fish, but it wouldn't break. I turned it over, hoping to spring it, but with my wabbling sticks I could only grease the plate. Openly the girl laughed. It was better than a picture show to her. She showed me how it should be done-by lifting the whole fish with the sticks and taking bites as if it were a piece of bread.

The next dish was something that puzzled me. In a round wooden dish about the size of the bowl that used to me in a package of oatmeal were white squares of meat in hot water. I worked out a piece and ate it and asked her through signs what it was. She threw out enough for a paragraph. but that did not bring me light. I asked her again, and away she went and came back with a book and, coming up close, pointed to the picture ofa horse! I had been eating horse meat. Something in me began to sink, leaving me weak and limp. Although she brought me two or three more things to eat, I waved them aside. My appetite for the time had been appeased.

BECOMING COLORS

Some Clever Hints About Choosing Materials

HOW EFFECTS WILL YARY.

By Experimenting With Tissue Papers Women Can Try Out the Becomingness of Modish Shades Before the Fatal Buying of Them.

The becomingness of new colors is one of the chief worries of women who prefer to buy materials rather than ready to wear frocks and suits. It makes no difference how becoming the style—if the color is unbecoming the wearer usually finds it impossible to feel thoroughly comfortable in the

One of the easiest and most satisfacfory ways of settling this question of becomingness is by using tissue paper. This paper can be had at a very slight cost and in practically every shade in any stationery shop or any shop where supplies for fancy work are sold. A single sheet of each shade is ample. Stand in a strong light before a truth telling mirror and with your shoulders bare crush the paper up around your neck. Try each shade, one at a time. Then try them together. It will be found that some colors, though unbe-coming when alone, are quite the reverse when used in certain combinations.

Some colors intensify the color of your eyes and enhance the gloss of your hair, while others will make your eyes look washed out and your hair rusty. Sometimes this effect may be lessened, to become almost unnoticeable, by the use of white next to the face. Make this test before discarding a favored color by crushing a sheet of white paper about your neck and draping the desired color about your shoul-

Again, some colors can be worn over the face when under the face they are decidedly unbecoming. This is often true of various shades of rose, the browns and the more delicate shades of green. A woman who would look ghastly with unrelieved green about her throat can often wear a green hat with a black facing or a black or white hat with green trimmings with the best results. Several shades of rose worn under the face bring out all the telltale wrinkles and lines, while if placed over the face they give a becoming glow.

When using tissue paper for finding becoming colors be sure to match the color when buying dress materials. If buying personally take a scrap of the paper with you. If ordering inclose a piece large enough so that the person who fills your order cannot make a mistake. In both cases keep a part of the paper, not only to make sure of the match, but for future reference.

What is becoming one season is not always so the next. One of the commonest mistakes made by women is fancying that a color once becoming is always so. Age, illness, the addition of a half score or more pounds of flesh, as well as the loss of it, all tend to change our appearance; hence the becoming colors. The woman who aims to be and the becomingness of colors.

EYES OF THE DEER.

An Incident That Spoiled a Hunter's Pleasure In the Chase.

A Canadian hunter tells this incident of how he once came face to face with his quarry and hadn't the heart to fire: "It wasn't a case of 'buck fever,' such as a novice might experience, for I had been a hunter for many years and had killed a good many deer.
"This was a particularly fine buck that I had followed for three days. A strong man can run any deer to earth in time, and at last I had my prey tired out. From the top of a hill I sighted him a few miles away. He had given up the fight and had stretched himself out on the snow. As I stalked him he changed his position and took shelter behind a bowlder, and, using the same bowlder for a shelter, I came suddenly, face to face with him. He didn't attempt to run away, but stood there looking at me with the most piteous pair of eyes I ever saw.

"Shoot? I could have no more shot him that I could have shot a child. Had the chance come from a distance of a hundred yards I would have shot him down and carried his antlers home in triumph, but once having looked into those eyes it would have been nothing less than murder. I have hunted deer since then, but I find the sport affords Whenever I draw as bead the picture of those mute, appealing eyes comes before me, and though 't has not prevented me from pulling the trigger, I have always felt glad somehow when my bullet failed to find its mark."

Cleanliness In Persia.

The Persian spends hours in the "hammams" (Turkish baths), which are very handsome buildings decorated with tiles and embellished with numerous exhortations as to the value of cleanliness. The smallest village in Persia has its hammam, and bathing is almost a religious function. When the hot room and massage are finished the Persian is shaved, and the whole top of his head is likewise shaved. though the hair over the ears is left and allowed to grow down to the neck."
This strange coiffure has a religious meaning, for the two locks are meant for the angel of death to held when he carries the believer to paradise.

How Scott Bore Adversity. Once when I was staying with Mr. Ruskin he took delight in showing me his Scott manuscripts. He took down "Woodstock" from the shelf, and, turning the leaves over slowly and lovingly, he said: "I think this is the most precious of them all. Scott was writing this book when the news of his ruin came upon him. He was about here where I have opened it. Do you see the beautiful handwriting? Now, look as I turn over the pages toward the end. Is the writing one jot less beautiful? Are there more erasures than before? That assuredly shows how a man can and should bear adersity."-London Graphic,

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home or Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eastabrooke on Friday, March 3, when the members of the Cheer-U Euchre Club and a number of invited guests gathered there. Dancing was indulged in until 12 o'clock when a dainty lunch was served by the members of the club. Then all being refreshed, they took part in the dancing again until the wee small hours of the morning. The music which was furnished by the Clothier and Freer orchestra was greatly appreciated by all.

Wrist Watches Presented

A very pleasant time was spent by the people of the sixth line at Mr. E. Hume's on Friday evening, when he opened his house in honor of three boys of the 149 battalion, Messrs. George Gibbs, Sam McLung and Jim McLung, when they were presented with a wrist watch each and the following address:

and the following address:

Watford, Feb. 25, 1916.

TO MR. GEO. GIBBS, MR. JIM MC-LUNG, MR SAM MCLUNG.—It is to show our gratitude to you that we your friends and neighbors have assembled to spend a accial evening with you before your departure from our midst. You have nobly responded to your country's call to enlist to assist in crushing the German despot and his murderous system of militarism. The patriotic spirit which prompted your actions is to be highly commended, and we realize that by enlisting you are going to protect us and our homes, and sa a token of our appreciation we ask you to accept these wrist watches, trusting to accept these wrist watches, trusting they may be useful to you and also serve as a remembrance. We look forward to your safe return and may our Heavenly Pat'er guide and protect you till tha Signed on behalf of the neighbors and

CROSS FRETFUL BABIES

The cross fretful baby is a sickly baby—the well child is always happy and smiling. Mothers if your baby is cross and cries a great deal something is wrong. His little stomach and bowels may be out of order; his teeth troubling him, or he may be bothered with worms. The mother should immediately give him Baby? Own Tablets. They never fail to relieve the baby. Concerning them Mrs. relieve the baby. Concerning them Mrs. Roland Hurley, Gilks, N.B., writes:—'I know of nothing so good for cross, fretful babies as Baby's Own Tablets and I am pleased to recommend them to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by medi-cine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co.,

the Right Stuff

The following letter was received by Lt.-Col. Bradley. If more of our young men were imbued with the same spirit the duration of the war would be considerably shortened. The writer of the letter arrived in Watford on Monday and is now installed as a buglar of C. Company.

Toronto, Ont. Wednesday, Feb. 23, 1916. Dear Sir:—I see in the Evening Telegram your Ad for Bandsmen in the 149th Battalion for Overseas and would be pleased to know if you take boys as Buglers, if so I would be very glad to join. I am sixteen years of age and my father will let me go as he was over with the 3rd Battalion but when in England was sent back unfit for service. I also have a brother in the same Battalion now in France in the trenches, and another brother in England wounded, and other brother in England wounded, and still another one in Toronto with the 127th Battalion training for overseas, and a brother making munitions in Toronto. This makes them all doing their bit but me. Kindly write and let me know soon, if I can join your Battalion.

Mr. Bramhill Named for Important Position

SARNIA, March 7 .- Mr. G. G. Bramhill, district reepresentative of the Ont-ario department of agriculture, has been appointed by the Dominion Government as flax expert for the whole of the Dom-

He will have full charge of the flax op-erations from coast to coast, carrying on experiments in different centers for the purpose of finding out what localities are best suited for flax growing and in the different qualities that are produced. He will also inspect the various kinds of methods in use as well as note the types of machinery used throughout the country.

His appointment to this position speaks highly of his abilities and also brings to the attention of the people at large that Lambton count; is one of the leading counties for fibre industries. Some of the best flax in the Dominion is rown here.

Mr. Bramhill comes from Petrolea, and although he is a comparatively young man, his knowledge of agricultural work is without limit He will also work in conjunction with the Soldiers' Aid Com-mission to get work for returned oldiers. His ground will be unlimited and he expects to furnish some excellent results while looking after the flax industries of

The Girl Who Drove the Cows to Pasture

A Story For St. Valentine's Day

By SARAH BAXTER ******

"Grandpa, won't you tell us a valentine story?" said a miss of fourteen. 'You told us a story for Christmas, and I think you might do the same now that St. Valentine's day has come

The old gentleman cleared his throat, the children gathered about him, and he acceded to their reques

"St. Valentine's day has changed from what it was when I was a youngster. It is now a day for little children to send and receive valentines.

"I see no reason whythe sending of valentines when they are in good taste should not be observed today among those of the mating age. The only objection is the abuse of the custom. but I admit that it is a serious objec-There are special cases where a valentine may bring two persons together in a happy marriage. For instance, suppose a young man admires a girl he does not know and has no neans of knowing."

"Never mind all that, grandpa. We want the story." "I would not consider 'all that' essential had it not been for the change that has come over the custom of sending valentines, warping it from its original purity. However, I have no more to say by way of preface and "There was once upon a time a young fellow-we'll call him Jimwho lived in the country. He had never had anything to do with girls and knew nothing about them. He was red headed and freckled, and when he looked in the glass it seemed to him he was so homely that he would have to live all his life without a wife or children to love him, for no girl would have him. So he said to himself. "I'll always keep away from girls, because I might fall in love with one of them, and in that case I might die of a broken heart.' It seemed hardly necessary to make such a resolution, for Jim was never thrown in with girls, and if he had been he was too bashful to become at all companionable with any of them.

"What was Jim's surprise one day to receive a valentine. It came in an envelope—the same as you children use now-covered with Cupids and arrows piercing hearts and was addressed to him in a girl's handwriting. He stared at the outside, for a time not realizing that it was for him and wondering if there was not some mistake about it. Since he did not know a girl how could a girl send him a valentine? But there was his name written out in full, with his usual address at the village, a mile away from the farm. Still doubting, he opened the envelope and took out the prettiest valentine you ever saw. In its center was a colored picture of a young man and a girl sitting in a bower, and the very sight of it made Jim's finger tips tingle. In each of the four corners was a Cupid with a bow and arrow, and every arrow was nimed at the couple in the bower. Jim has seen many a valentine since, but they have no such effect as this first and only valentine he ever received when he was young and was conscious that with all his red hair and freckles and ungainly farm walk there was a girl in the world who thought enough of him to send him a valentine. Today valentines are to him nothing more than cheap stamped pieces of paper with colored pictures."

"How do you know how he feels about the valentines, grandpa?" asked a little girl. "How do I know it? Because-you care to hear the end of the story you mustn't interrupt me."

The old gentleman chuckled and proceeded with his narrative:

"Jim, who had made a resolution that he would have nothing to do with any girl for fear he might fall in love and die of a broken heart, found himself all of a sudden dwelling continually on a girl he had never seen. He form-ed a great many mental pictures of her, which gradually settled down to one that remained always the same-a girl with golden hair, blue eyes, rosy cheeks, a dimple in each, and a sweet smile. If he was following the plow. this girl walked beside him. If he was milking she was milking another cow wherever he was, whatever he was doing, she was with him.

"One thing Jim coulded" "One thing Jim couldn't understand.

If there was a girl in the world who fancied him, with all his red hair and freckles, why didn't she put something on the valentine to give him a clew to near him. When he ate his meals she sat opposite him at table. Indeed, whom she was? Not knowing anything about girls, he was ignorant of the fact that a girl's great delight is to bother any young fellow she happens to fancy, and the more she fancies him the more she likes to tease him.

"Of course there were girls in that part of the country, though Jim didn't know any of them, else how could he have received a valentine? After its receipt every girl he met he looked at to see if she showed any preference for him. He was too unused to them to understand their tricks and their manners and did not know that the girl who fancied him would be sure to try to make him think she didn't or if she showed a preference one day would probably show indifference th next.

"There was a girl who lived half mile up the road from Jim who drov her father's cows to pasture ever morning and back to the barn ever evening. One evening Jim was up tha way and passed her on the road whil she was driving the cows. She was about fifteen years old, straight as ar arrow and wore her dress to the tops of her boots. Her hair and eyes were black. There was something about the way she carried herself that took Jim's fancy, and he hoped that when she came near him she would take enough interest in him at least to look at him What was his disappointment to see her while he was passing her look up at the sky. 'Well,' said Jim to himself, 'she can't be the girl who sent me the valentine, sure. She didn't take enough interest in me to see what kind of a feller I am.'

"But somehow Jim after that frequently found it convenient to be up that way in the morning, sometimes in the evening, but always about the hour that the girl was driving the cows to or from pasture. Every time he passed her she looked up at the sky. Gradually Jim from meeting her so ofter came to cease to be afraid of her, and one morning while passing he said:
"'Mornin', Miss Look-in-the-Air."

"The girl turned her big black eyes full upon him and made a face at him After that for awhile when Jim pass ed her he looked up at the sky himself but one day, suddenly dropping his eye, he caught the girl looking straight at him. She at once switched her eyes

"This was the first time in his life Jim got on to the fact that you can't always tell how a girl feels by what she does. From that time forward he became brave when he saw a gir coming and ceased to feel a sire to climb a fence to get out of the way. He took pains to meet the girl who drove the cows, and one evening when one of the animals broke away and galloped up a side road Jim ran after her and brought her back. This kindly act seemed to placate the girl and she unbent so far as to thank him. The ice was broken, and quaintance was formed.

"Jim hadn't forgotten his valentine, but the imaginary girl with golden hair and blue eyes gradually faded away, her place being taken by the brunette who drove the cows to pasture. He was seized with a desire to do something for her. When idle he dreamed day dreams of finding her chased by a furious bull and his re-ceiving the animal's charge with a pitchfork. Another scene attractive to him was the girl swirling around in the river while he was swimming for her and finally carrying her to shore.

"Well, Jim gradually forgot his red hair and his freckles and his other deficiencies and sidled up to his new found friend. A year passed, and when another St. Valentine's day came around he wondered if the girl who had sent him a valentine before would send him another, but he didn't care much whether she did or not, for by this time he was engrossed with a girl he knew, and she was much preferable to one he didn't know. But with all the courage Jim had gained he hadn't enough to say to his cow driver what he wished to say-that 'his heart was just bustin' for her.' "Happily St. Valentine's day let him out of that, at least he took it for granted it would, and he sent his real flame a valentine. Unfortunately Jim hadn't one handy and was too busy to go to the village to buy one, so he sent her the one he had received the year before.

"The next day he met his flame on the road, and to his chagrin she looked straight ahead without taking the slightest notice of him. Jim supposed that she had in some way learned that he had sent her a valentine, and this was her answer. He took his medi-cine bravely at first, but his courage didn't last. When he was not at work he used to go into the barn and up in the hayloft and sit down and mope. It seemed to him that the bottom had dropped out of the universe. He didn't go up the road where he had been used to meeting the girl. Instead wishing an explanation he was afraid to receive one. If her cutting him dead was so terrible to bear what would he suffer if she told him in plain words that he had offended her by offering her his love? And yet why should she know that the valentine he had sent her was from him?

"However, he suffered so that at Mast he mustered up courage to face the music and find out what he didn't un derstand. So he walked up the road in the evening at the exact time she was driving in the cows. He met her and said:

'I'm sorry you didn't like my send in' you a valentine.' *
"'It wasn't your sending me a valen tine I didn't like; it was the valentine I sent you last year.'

"You could have knocked him down with a feather. He was the most as tonished fellow you ever saw. "'Did you send me that valentine?"

"'Didn't you know I sent it?"

"She blushed, and Jim went right up o her and said: " 'Hazel' "-"Hazel!" exclaimed several of the children at once "Yes. Didn't I say her name was Hazel?

"No. Why, that's grandma's name." "So it is. That's funny, isn't it?"

"Are you sure Hazel wasn't grand-"Well, to tell the truth, I don't know but that she was."

Off ran the children to find grandma to tell her all about the story of the girl who drove the cows to pasture.

LUXURY IN THE BASTILLE.

The Famous French Prison During the Reign of Louis XIII.

was during the reign of Louis XIII, that the Bastille became recognized as a prison, especially for notable persons suspected of treachery against the French government. Richelieu used it for the secure lodgment of troublesome opponents, and during his time the celebrated fortress became the luxurious prison of a powerful aristocracy.

Apart from the necessary restrictions, a stay in the famous prison of l'aris was little more than an agreeable diversion. It seemed indeed as though the king was determined to show his kindness. He expressed great anxiety for the comfort of his prisoners. Money could buy in the Bastille all the luxury that could be obtained outside, and should a poor man stray within the impenetrable walls the king was so eager to prove his hospitality that he at once allowed him a reasonable pension. The rooms in which the prisoners were confined were lofty and well aired; the furniture was arranged according to the taste of the occupant,

Mme. de Stael, for instance, hung her walls with rich tapestries, and many a distinguished culprit carried with him to the Faubourg St. Antoine his family portraits or a valuable library.

Nor is it in the least significant that the prison barber visited his patrons every morning with a silver basin, perfumed soap and embroidered towels. The best viands, well cooked, were furnished to the better class of prisoners, and at the close of the meals they exchanged visits, played cards and made the walls of the gloomy looking prison ring with their merriment.

One of Falb's Predictions. In 1874 Professor Rudolph Falb predicted an eruption of Etna on Aug. 27. He offered a Vienna editor to write an account of it if the editor would send him to Sicily. Falb was commissioned. When he reached Etna there was not the slightest sign of disturbance. As the 27th approached Falb was tortured with anxiety and spent sleepless nights watching the volcano. Nothing hap-pened on the 27th and 28th. The following morning the servant rushed into the professor's room shouting, "An eruption, a terrible eruption!" Falb saw the spectacle and sent off his dis-

"One" as a Pronoun.

I have never been smitten with the use of the word "one" as a pronoun. It takes a word juggler to attempt it and get away with it. Unless one feels that one has won one's spurs in this respect and can extricate oneself from the mess one gets oneself and one's readers into one should avoid the use of the word one in referring to oneself as one would a plague.-Westminster Gazette.

The Frenchwoman and Hats. It is said to take much less money to start a millinery shop in France than in England, because it is not necessary to the French milliner to carry a stock of trimmed hats. The Englishwoman, it seems, cannot buy a hat or anything else without seeing it completely finished. The Frenchwoman has imagi-nation enough to picture the completed article to herself and knows just how she will look in it.

A Beautiful Bas-relief of a Suffrage Pioneer.

The historical department of the Smithsonian institution at Washington has just accepted and placed on view a bronze bas-relief of the late Susan B. Anthony by Michael Jacobs, a painter and sculptor of note residing in that

The bas-relief, which is in the "modern style," being of the school of Rodin, is a noteworthy example of the present tendency in sculpture, which is to keep the relief as low as possible The relief on the medallion of Miss Anthony is only one-fourth of an inch high. The picture is that of a thoughtful idealist, with just a suggestion of the unconquerable fire which shone out through the bold personality of the great suffrage leader.

As a compliment to the National American Woman Suffrage association. of which Miss Anthony was president from 1892 until her death in 1900, Mr. Jacobs has had cast a second copy of the bas-relief, which was formally presented to the national association during its forty-seventh annual convention in Washington Dec. 14 to 19. Mr. Jacobs is well known as a portrait painter, having executed many commissions for titled Europeans during his stay abroad.

"The Trades of the Dumb." Any number of children can play this game, and it is amusing and interesting. Let one player repair to the hall or to another room and decide what trade he will represent. When ready he knocks on the door and enters. Without a word or a smile he begins by motions to show what his chosen trade is. Perhaps he is a carpenter. Then he pretends to hammer nalls, to saw or plane a board. Perhaps he is a coachman. In that case he makes believe to drive a herse, to turn a carriage or make the steed go. A tailor sews and cuts imaginary cloth and tries on garments. A painter goes through the motions of painting, dipping an unseen brush into a pretended Second and Fourth Mcndays of each man that 8 o'clock month at 8 o'clock Court Room over Stapleford's store, Main street, Watford.

Chestnut Dressing. Boil a quart of shelled chestnuts in salted water until tender. While warm mash to a paste, adding a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of paprika and half the quantity of breadcrumbs, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and a tea-spoonful of poultry dressing. Blend the ingredients thoroughly, and if a moist dressing is required add a cup-ful of boiling milk.

FIRST AID ESSENTIALS.

What Mothers Should Keep In the Bathroom Medicine Closet. Accidents will happen as long as we are human, and particularly so while we are children. But the irritating part about accidents is that we do not expect them and that they all have one thing in common-they happen at the wrong time. When you have no peroxide you cut your finger. When Charlie burned his hand at the bonfire you were without olive oil or ointment to soothe the pain. So, the wisest thing to do is to be prepared for war in fime of peace, to talk in the language of the day. A good many serious results have been avoided by having a wound dressed properly in the nick of time. Every household, and that means every mother, ought to have a little box, cabinet or other safe place always filled with a few essentials which will prevent unfortunate consequences. Antiseptics for small wounds should be the first essential.

A small bottle of linseed oil and lime water oil comes next. And you know that it is the open blister which sometimes causes tetanus.

Boracic acid to wash out sores before putting the dressing on is not to be dispensed with. Turpentine is also a splendid thing against infection of sores from rusty nails,

Do not let us forget the almost inevitable bottle of castor oil or milk of magnesia in case of fever and indigestion. A small quantity of essence of peppermint and spirits of ammonia should also be added, because sick stomach is a frequent occurrence with the little ones. A box of bicarbonate of soda and one filled with epsom salts are indispensable.

French Coffee,

One quart of water to one cupful of very finely ground coffee. Put coffee grounds in bowl, pour over about half a pint of cold water and let stand for fifteen minutes. Bring remaining water to a boil, take coffee in bowl and strain through a fine sieve; then take French coffee pot, put coffee grounds in strainer at top of French pot, leaving, water in bowl; then take boiling water and pour over coffee very slow-ly; then set coffeepot on stove for five minutes; must not boil; take off and pour in cold water from bowl that coffee was first cooled in to settle. Serve in another pot. The who have the reputation of making the best coffee, use three parts Java to

For Contagions. It is important that the mother or nurse who is attending a child ill with a contagious disease should take a walk in the fresh air every day. The best way to arrange this is for her to keep a change of clothing in the next room. She should also bathe before leaving the quarantined room. If a bathroom has been set aside for quarantine she can use this; if not, a screen and a basin in the sickroom will have to answer. Then she can slip into the next room and put on fresh clothing. The Cooky Cat. Grandmamma made a cooky cat.
Brown and spicy and round and fat.
She set it up on the pantry shelf,
Safe and sound, and said to herself,
"Tomorrow morning when Bobby comes I'll give him that cat and some sugar plums." And grandmamma smiled and felt very glad, For Bobby was such a dear little lad. But, alas, when the house was dark and

The cooky cat felt a sudden thrill,
For she heard the patter of tiny mice.
Nearer and nearer they slyly came.
The cooky cat trembled through all her frame.

They climbed to the shelf on which she sat.

Alas, alas, for the cooky cat!
She pleaded for mercy. The mice said:
"Nay,
For 'turn'about' is, you see, fair play.
A cat will always eat mice, and that Makes it fair for the mice to eat the cat!"

Lenten Pastoral

The Rev. S. P. Irwin, Rector of Wat-ford and Brooke, has issued the following Lenten pastoral:

DEAR PARISHIONERS:— There can be no question of the value of the sacred season of Lent. The Master went into the wilderness for 40 days and 40 nights. He did this to equip Himself for life's course. Preparation for the future life is no small task. To bring Christian principles to Preparation for the future life is no small task. To bring Christian principles to bear on trivial matters, to build up a Christian character is a life's work.

Among the many opportunities of Lent, none compares with the opportunity to know Christ better and love Him more. If we wish to know our friend well, we must be with him in times of trouble and affliction and learn the deeper sorrows. must be with him in times of trouble and affliction and learn the deeper sorrows of his heart and if we wish to know our Saviour well, we must go with him into the wilderness of temptation, into the garden of agony, into the judgment hall of injustice and to the cross of Calvary. In this year of war we need especially to be men and women of prayer. We must not neglect the Spiritual forces in this conflict, we need to be much with God in public and private prayer.

conflict, we need to be much with God in public and private prayer.

Let our Lent be also a preparation for the great feast of Easter. May we rejoice together in the Risen Life for it is our 'i'duty' and ''privilege'' to come to the Lord's Table. I hope that the weekday and Sunday services will be largely attended.

Your friend and rector, S. P. IRWIN. The Rectory, Lent 1916.

Wrist Watch Presented to Ward Zavitz

A very enjoyable time was spent at the the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Zavitz, on F11day evening last, when about eighty of the friends and neighbors assembled to show their appreciation of the loyalty and service of their son, Ward, who has enlisted with the 149 Battalion. The house was beautifully decorated with flags and bunting. During the course of the evening Ward was called upon and made the recipient of a wrist watch, fountain pen and unbreakable mirror as Mr. C. Dolbear read the following address:

It is with hearts full of sincere gratitude that we, your friends and neighbors, have assembled to spend a social evening with you before your departure from our

with you before your departure from our midst

You have nobly responded to your country's call to fight under the proud folds of the Union Jack to assist in crushing the German despot and his murder-ous system of militarism. The spirit of patriotism which prompted your action is patriotism which prompted your action is to be highly commended and we realize that by enlisting you offered to help protect us and our homes. As a slight token of appreciation we ask you to accept these articles, trusting that they will be of use, and will serve as a remembrance of the people of Walnut.

We hope that you may never see active service and that the flag of peace will soon be triumphantly unfurled conserving our cherished ideas of justice and liberty.

We look hopefully forward to the time when we may welcome you safely home and may our Heavenly Father guide and protect you till that time arrives. May the light of His countenance be shed upon you to light the path which duty calls you to follow.

Signed on behalf of the friends and neighbors.

RHEUMATISM

A MYSTERY

Unless Rooted Out of the System it-Grows Worse and Worse

Some diseases give immunity from another attack, but rheumatism works just the other way. Every attack of rheumatism nuties another. Worse than that it reduces the body's power so that each attack is worse than the one before. If any disease needs curing early it is rheumatism, but there are few diseases physicians find more difficult to treat successfully. Wet weather does not cause rheumatism. tism, but there are few diseases physicians find more difficult to treat successfully. Wet weather does not cause rheumatism as was once thought, though weather conditions may start the aches and pains. Rheumatism is now known to be dependent upon the blood condition and medical authorities agree that the blood becomes thin with alarming rapidity as rheumatism develops. Maintaining the quality of the blood is, therefore, a reasonable way of preventing and curing rheumatism. That it works out in fact is shown by the beneficial results which tollow a fair use of Dr. Williams Piuk Pills. These pills actually make new, rich blood which drives out the rheumatic poison, and while the blood is kept in this condition there is no danger of the trouble returning. Mr. W. T. Pell, Palermo, Ont., says:—'I was attacked with a trouble which was ultimately pronounced rheumatism. Often I was barely able to crawl into bed, and seldom able to do a full days work. In this condition I doctored for a year, absolutely getting nobetter. Then I consulted another doctor whose chief consolation was that unless I could get rid of the trouble I would be a cripple for life. He prescribed dieting, and I doctored with him for at least six months, but instead of getting relief I became weaker and less able to get around. Then I decided to try a doctor in Toronto, and was under his treatment for about four months with no better results. I gave up the doctors and tried other remedies which were equally untile. Then one day our store keeper sent me a box of Dr. Williams Pink Pills, saying, that if they did not help me I need not pay for them. I took them and then got some more and found they were helping me. I probably used $10.00 worth before I felt fully cured, but they did cure me and were cheap as compared with the other treatments which did not help me. The cure was made several years ago, and I have not had a twings of rheumatism since. To-day I am well and strong Wet weather does not cause rheumatism The cure was made several years ago, and I have not had a twings of rheumatism since.
