Special Features of St. John Exhibition

The St. John Exhibition, which opens on Saturday, September 12th, will be the greatest fair ever held in that city. The plans that have been under way for months to make this year's show the biggest and best are now complete.

As a special feature the Wonderful Diving Horses, King and Queen, have been secured, and they will give two performances daily in front of the Grand Stand. This act is costing a great deal of money, but the management are determined that no expense would be spared to make the St. John show far superior to all others.

Another feature that will be looked forward to with great interest is the appearance of Adgie and her performing lions. Those who witnessed her performance four years ago can readily believe she has the greatest wild animal act in the world.

Other attractions will be the Imperial Japanese Troupe of Acrobats, Torelli's Pony and Dog Circus, Mrs. General Tom Thumb and her Lilliputian Company, and a most magnificent display of fireworks, comprising 55 pieces, showing the eruption of Mount Vesuvius, the railway disaster, the walking elephant and many others.

The Pike will be most amusing this year than ever before, as many more features will be introduced, including the Mystic Maze, etc.

The entries for cattle, horses and poultry have never been so large, nor has there been such a fine class of stock as will be seen this year.

The exhibits in the Industrial Building, Agricultural Hall and Carriage Hall will all be new, and there will not be a dull moment for the visitors from the time they enter until the time they leave.

Excursion rates are offered on all railways and steamboats, and every one should plan to be in St. John during the week of September 12 to 19.

East Versus West

(Lunenburg Progress.)

Hon. Frank Oliver, minister of the interior, has just issued a splendid book on Nova Scotia, for distribution among possible settlers. By far too much stress has been placed on the West in past years in literature of this kind. Every line of this book is of interest. The following is clipped from its pages. The ordinary Nova Scotian farmer, having left the pioneer stage behind long ago, does not live in a log house. Nor is his dwelling one of those box-like shacks that trouble the aesthetic eye in the West. As a rule it is by no means unpleasant to look on; and often it is a thing of beauty. Within, it is comfortably furnished and well kept; though the degree of tidiness and comfort varies greatly, as it does in the old country, with the housing capacity of the farmer's wife. In winter, by a stove, burning either wood or coal, or by a furnace in the cellar, it is kept warmer than any ordinary farm-house, or town house for that matter, in England; too warm, sometimes, for the old country-man's taste. The Nova Scotian, however, as he has not nearly so cold a winter as his fellow-Canadian in the West, does not go to such extremes in the matter of heating. Nor does he take such precautions, such unhealthy precautions as they often prove, to keep out the fresh air because it also happens to be cold air. He does not consider double windows a necessity of existence. He has some thing to learn yet of the science of ventilation; but so has the Englishman, if the truth must be told.

A third ship, D. A. R. S. S. Yarmouth, has been put in commission sailing from Yarmouth Saturday, Aug. 29th, Wednesday, 2nd, Saturday 5th, Wednesday, 9th, Saturday 12th, Wednesday, 16th September. Two ships will consequently depart on these days after arrival of Bluenose and Express trains. On return sailings from Long Wharf, Boston, Tuesday, 1st, Friday, 4th, Tuesday, 8th, Friday, 11th, Tuesday, 15th, Friday 18th September, at 12 o'clock noon.

Nova Scotia Horticultural Exhibition at Kentville

(Acadian Orchardist.)

The time is approaching for the greatest show of fruit ever held in Canada and the requests for prize lists and special information is becoming more general. Annapolis and Hants, in particular, are waking up and exhibitors from those counties will be to the front. Now is the time for the Orchardists of our County to procure prize lists from Mr. Rand and make arrangements for sending in their exhibits. September will soon be here and the entries close on the 26th of that month.

The fruit season is now advanced far enough for us to proclaim that this valley will produce this year such fruit as has never before been seen. The apples are large and not spotted.

The prize list of our October exhibition as we have before indicated, is larger than any exhibition ever held in Canada. For example, $50 for five barrels of apples, and there are many such prizes in the special list, or at least almost as large an amount is offered. One special prize is offered of $5 for one peck of apples; just think of that, won't there be a large number after such a prize? Then think, eight prizes for the leading commercial varieties ranging from $2.50 to 75 cents for only five apples.

Thus we could go through the whole list and indicate equally heavy prizes but we would ask our readers to at once procure a prize list. Then the other classes—grains and field seeds, roots and vegetables, dairy products, poultry, the Domestic department offer large prizes.

Fruit Crop Conditions

Weather conditions have been favorable for the fruit crop during the month of August. All fruit is earlier than usual.

APPLES—Duchess apples have been moving freely from Southern Ontario in good condition. Gravenstein, Colverts and Alexanders have been shipped in small quantities and are yielding a full crop. Indications show a full crop for fall apples and below a medium crop for winter apples. Quality good.

PEARS—Clappa and Bartlett's have been exported in small quantities. The prospects in Southern Ontario are for a medium to full crop of pears. Everywhere else a light crop is expected, except in British Columbia where the prospects show a medium crop.

PEACHES—Early peaches have proved a medium crop. Yellow St. Johns are now being harvested. Late peaches are reported a light crop. PLUMS are light generally, except in British Columbia and small portions of Ontario.

GRAPES are reported a full crop. Moore's Early and Champions are now on the market.

TOMATOES are proving a medium crop. INSECT and FUNGUS DISEASES are not so prevalent as usual.

The United States crop reports show winter apples about the same as last year.

PEACHES a full crop, and other fruits good.

Great Britain—The prospects for tree fruits offer less than a medium crop and not as good as last month.

A. McNEILL,
Chief, Fruit Division,
Ottawa, Aug. 31st, 1903.

Progressive Farming

Instances of the capacities of Nova Scotia soil for responding to cultivation and intelligent farming are frequently reported in the columns of the Monitor. The Carter farm is another object lesson to interest progressive farmers, or prospective buyers of farms. The first summer seven tons of hay were cropped, the second year twelve tons, the third fifteen tons, and this year, the fifth, it is expected the crop will be about twenty-five tons. The farm now raises 500 barrels of apples from trees which gave 40 the year of 1892.

The West Will Cease to Draw From the Province by the Sea

(Montreal Witness.)

The people of the Maritime Provinces are beginning more fully to appreciate the position they occupy from a financial and industrial point of view. The plaint in this point of Canada is 'more capital to develop the tremendous resources of the forest and mine.'

In discussing the immediate requirements of the provinces, and more particularly Cape Breton, Mr. J. S. McLennan, who for many years was a resident of Montreal, stated to the 'Witness' that 'what Cape Breton requires to promote and hasten the development of its great natural resources, is an increase in population, skilled in some of the industries which depend on these natural sources of wealth.'

'The time is not far distant,' said Mr. McLennan, 'when the possibilities of the West, seen with the glamor of distance, will cease to call so strongly to the youth of the Maritime Provinces.'

'Half a century ago the sea called them from the farm and the forest, and, more recently, the Eastern States found some of its best workers among the "Provincials." It still draws the strength of its fishing fleets from Nova Scotia and Cape Breton, and now, our own West is competing with local employments for home born labor and brains.'

'The local industries have more to offer now than they had a score of years ago. The large works of the Coal and Steel Companies offer scope for all, and employ many young men whose earnings and prospects are most satisfactory.'

'The coal companies are producing coal by the most up-to-date methods, the steel companies are making good material at a satisfactory cost, and if this can be done, it follows that with an assured supply of fuel, there is an opening for all the industries in which steel is an essential or important factor. The wholesome development of such industries will be through men of skill and ability seeking an opening and taking advantage of local conditions. This has been the case throughout Nova Scotia in the past. Its manufacturing centres, New Glasgow, Truro, Amherst, and others owe their flourishing condition to men like the Frasers, Robbs, Curries, Stanfords, Rhodes, and others, who understood business and have made these places.'

'Their like will appear again. When they do, they are the right man for the capitalists to follow.'

'The wealth of Cape Breton will be enormously increased by an improvement in agricultural methods. Something like nine or ten million dollars a year is spent within a radius of fifteen miles of Sydney by people who want the best and can pay lavishly for it. Market gardening and farming will yield great returns to the men who know the way to success in these occupations, the proximity to these markets more than making up for severe climatic conditions.'

'What is true of Cape Breton is also true of the Maritime Provinces. Twenty years ago the present condition of this country would have seemed beyond the dreams of its most optimistic well-wisher, and another score of years will show an equal advance, for what has been achieved gives confidence, and the large share that the native-born are taking in this work that is now being done, shows that the men will be forthcoming.'

'What we want,' concluded Mr. McLennan, 'is capital and a little patience, and then the attention not only of Canada, but also of the United States and England, will be turned towards this section of the Dominion.'

September Weddings

(WILSON-ROBBINS.)

At nine o'clock, Tuesday morning, September 8th, the home of J. Albert Robbins, Bear River, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, the contracting parties being his daughter, Nellie May, and Avard J. Wilson. Promptly at the appointed hour, to the strains of Lohengrin's bridal chorus, rendered by Mrs. I. A. Corbett, the bride entered the parlor looking particularly charming in a princess dress of white suesine silk, and the ceremony was impressively performed by Rev. I. A. Corbett.

Miss Pearle Robbins, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and was daintily gowned in pale blue suesine silk. Penwick W. Jackson, of Clarence, supported the groom.

The parlor was tastefully decorated with flowers and autumn leaves. After the ceremony a luncheon was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were driven to Deep Brook station by York's team, where they took the express for Halifax.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will be at home in Clarence to their friends on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, the fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth instant.

MESSENGER-CLARKE.

A pleasant but quiet wedding took place at the residence of J. William Clarke, at Port Lorne, when their youngest daughter, Lizzie Landers, was united in marriage to Mr. William S. Messenger, of Arlington.

The bride entered the room leaning on the arm of the groom to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Georgia Hall. The ceremony was then performed by Rev. George F. Johnson, of Bridgetown, in the presence of a number of guests, including friends and relatives of the contracting parties. At the close of the ceremony, luncheon was served, when the happy couple left by special conveyance for Paradise to take the D. A. R. Express for Digby, Yarmouth, and other points, from whence they will proceed to Lower Woods Harbor, Shelburne County, where Mr. Messenger will assume the duties of Principal of the High School in that place. The bride looked charming in a travelling suit of brown panama cloth with hat to match. The presents were numerous and costly, including a silver tea service, evincing the esteem in which the happy couple are held by their many friends.

HARDWICK-WHITMAN.

St. Paul's church, Rosette, was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday, when the Rev. John Reeks united in the holy bonds of matrimony Agnes, Eugenia, second daughter of Henry B. Whitman, of Round Hill, to Roy F. Hardwick, of Annapolis. The church had been beautifully decorated by friends and members of the church of the young bride. A large white bell formed the central decoration under which the young couple stood. At precisely ten o'clock Mrs. James A. Whitman, presiding at the organ, commenced the wedding march. The two ushers, Ross and Lewis Dodge, sons of E. N. Dodge, of Kentville, escorted the groom and his best man, Mr. Templeman, of Hampton, to the foot of the altar, followed by the bride, leaning on her father's arm, then her two maids, Miss Grace LeCain, as bridesmaid, and Miss Maud Whitman, sister of the bride, as maid of honor. The pastor then began the grand and solemn service of the Episcopal church.

The bride was charmingly robed—cream silk voile over cream silk and white hat, and carried a large bouquet of white roses and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid wore a lovely white gown of white silk and lace, white hat with pink roses and carried a huge bouquet of pink and white chrysanthemums and maiden hair fern. Little Miss Maud was sweetly gowned in a white net dress, edged with lace over white, pink silk sash, white lace hat with pink and white roses, and carried pink and white sweet peas.

The gifts were numerous and beautiful and testified to the high esteem in which the bride was held by her many friends. Amongst the guests were the venerable and aged grandfather of the bride, the Hon. George Whitman; William Whitman, of Boston, a cousin of the bride's father, and Miss E. Jane Whitman, of Paris, who is at home on her annual visit to her father.

PORTER-ROBBLEE.

After the breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, the young couple attended by the groom's parents and many friends proceeded to the station. A copious shower of rice annoyed all on board the Halifax express. Life's new stage when the young couple boarded the train for a trip to Bridgewater and Liverpool.

SHAW-CORBETT.

The residence of Mr. Stephen H. Robb, Lower Granville, was the scene of a very pretty home wedding on Wednesday evening, September 2nd, the occasion being the marriage of his youngest daughter, Myrtle W. Porter, to Victor J. Porter, of Port Wad, Porter, Customs Officer, Port Wad. At eight o'clock the young couple took their position under an arch of evergreens and flowers and were made one by Rev. J. K. West. Congratulations over, a beautiful collation was served. The large company then listened to some excellent music and the evening passed rapidly away. The bride was handsomely dressed in white sicilian cloth and wore a veil and orange blossoms and looked very pretty. A large display of wedding presents attested to her popularity. The groom's present to bride was a gold watch and chain. On Thursday, Sept. 3rd, the happy couple left for Annapolis, where they took the Bluenose for Halifax.

BATH-DODGE.

The home of Capt. and Mrs. A. P. Dodge was the scene of a very pretty home wedding on Wednesday morning last, when their daughter, Miss Beale Miller, and Mr. Frank Herbert Bath, of Bridgetown, were married by Rev. G. W. Schurman. Only immediate relatives were present. The principals were unattended. The wedding march was rendered by Mrs. A. H. Bishop. The bride looked charming in white silk with the conventional veil and orange blossoms.

After the guests had offered their congratulations and admired the fine display of wedding gifts, a lunch was served. Mr. and Mrs. Bath's honeymoon will include a trip by team through the Valley and to Halifax, Chester, Bridgewater and other places. The bride is one of our most popular young ladies who goes to her new home with the good wishes of her many Middleton friends.—Out-look.

THE CASE OF THE NEWSPAPER MAN.

According to an exchange a preacher near the conclusion of one of his sermons recently said: "Let all in the house who are paying their debts stand up." Instantly every man, woman and child, with one exception rose to their feet. The preacher seated them and said: "Now every man not paying his debts stand up." The exception noted, a care-worn and hungry-looking individual, clothed in his last summer suit, slowly assumed a perpendicular position. "How is it my friend," asked the minister, "that you are the only man not to meet his obligations?" "I run a newspaper," he meekly answered, "and the brethren here who stood up are my subscribers, and—" "Let us pray," exclaimed the preacher.

Success Out of Failure

A few weeks ago a technical school in a large nearby city opened for the fall term. Applicants for admission not holding certain certificates of graduation were required to pass an examination, which was held during the week previous, and on the opening night none of those who had taken the test had been notified of the result. In the long line of men and boys who waited for their cards of admission stood one youth of about sixteen, who was approached by the desk, gave his name, and was informed that he had failed in his test, which meant that he could not be admitted to the school during the present year. This boy had never been taught to sustain himself under defeat, and the result was a natural but very distressing one. Several sympathizers left the line to go to him, and help to brace him up, but it was useless. He had gone all to pieces, and would listen neither to reason nor comfort, and after a time he crept out of the building, with lowered head and downcast eyes, the picture of defeat.

There was less than one-quarter of the number of applicants that succeeded in passing the examination. It was interesting to watch the different ways in which each bore his disappointment. Many of them carried it off with a bravado that was clearly assumed, and would give away to the bitter wrestle of soul when none was by to see. Some hurried quietly out, unable to bear the disappointment under the gaze of others. All of these carried the deepest sympathy and respect of the more fortunate ones. One cried, "Hard luck this time, but better luck next!" and the others softly cheered him.

That failure is marked for success. He has learned to view things with optimistic eyes; they are resolute and courageous, and one failure isn't going to sap all the sweetness out of his life. Like the Old Man of the Sea every time that sort of a bit is thrown down he rises with new strength and courage, new determination, and this is because he is taught as a child to be cheerful under adversity; to make the best of all things, and to lose no time crying over spilt milk.

The boy or the man who has never had an obstacle to overcome is an ungrateful quantity. It is a strange mistake to take not to throw a boy somewhat on his own resources, and have him learn from experience many of the incontrovertible facts of life while he is still young, and events do not create grooves in his life. Failure may not always be due to lack of endeavor—or there are many conditions that make all things at times impractical, but success, that is, the only success worth having, rarely comes without real and earnest endeavor. Boys who are compelled by necessity to habits of self-reliance make the best men. They have learned that everything that is worth having has to be worked for, and that things that come too easy have little value indeed. The obstacles that they need in everyday life they look upon as a matter of course. Life must be taken the bitter with the sweet and there is nothing to do but make the best of the unfavorable considerations, convinced that they must eventually be overcome by persistent opposition.

The Ottawa Journal says:—"If the reforestation of the treeless wastelands of Massachusetts with white pine would represent an estimated value of nine hundred million dollars as State Forester Rane asserts, what would the reforestation of all Canada's denuded timber areas be worth? Looking at the forest results so far as the Dominion is concerned, The Journal would like to see Canadian reforestation taken up and going ahead a great deal faster than it is."

Whale Attacked by Porpoises

Vessels of the Dominion line seem to have had many experiences while crossing the Atlantic recently. Coming close on the heels of the Kensington, which had a race with a whale off the Banks of Newfoundland, is the steamship Canada, which arrived on Saturday, and reported a fight at sea between a school of porpoises and a whale.

According to the version given by the officers of the ship and also some of the passengers who witnessed the battle, the mid-ocean fray was ended by the killing of the whale. It was on Sunday, while nearing the Banks of Newfoundland, that the officers on the bridge of the Canada caught sight of a commotion in the water. At the time the weather was clear and moderately calm. The trouble was in progress when first seen about a mile ahead, and while the whale was continually spouting, the school of porpoises were dashing around in what seemed to be hundreds. Frequently the whale would dip in the effort to get rid of his pursuers, and by the time the Canada got near to the scene of the conflict it was half over.

The porpoises continually darted under the belly of the whale, which sounded immediately a fresh attack was made, and only rose to the surface a sufficient length of time to blow a stream of water many feet in the air before disappearing beneath the surface. The passengers crowded to the decks to witness the unusual spectacle, and before the boat went down far enough to lose sight of the combat, the whale was seen floating and apparently dead. Mr. Jacob Birchman, one of the passengers, who witnessed the fight all the way through, stated that the mode of attack on the part of the porpoises seemed to be to dive underneath the whale and stab him in the belly with the dorsal fin. The fin of the porpoise would appear to be extremely sharp, and as there was a whole school of porpoises, numbering more than a hundred, the countless wounds struck in the carcass of the whale must have weakened it considerably, until at last it was compelled by loss of blood to give up the fight.

It was explained by passengers on the Canada, who claimed to have some knowledge of such matters, that a school of porpoises will occasionally attack larger denizens of the sea, just as a flock of sparrows will worry a hawk to death by their relentless attacks.

A TRAVELING MAN'S EXPERIENCE.

"I must tell you my experience on an East bound O. R. & N. R. R. train from Penlidton to LeGrande, Ont.," writes Sam A. Garber, a well-known traveling man. "I was in the smoking department with some other traveling men when one of them went into the coach and came back and said, 'There is a woman sick unto death in the car.' I at once got up and went out, found her very ill with cramp colic, her hands and arms were drawn up, so you could not straighten them, and with a deathlike look on her face. Two or three ladies were working with her and giving her whiskey. I went to my suitcase and got my bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy (I never travel without it), ran to the water tank, put in some doses of the medicine in the glass, poured some water into it and stirred it with a pencil, then I had quite a time to get the ladies to let me give it to her, but I succeeded, I could at once see the effect and I worked with her, rubbing her hands, and in twenty minutes I gave her another dose. By this time we were almost into LeGrande, where I was to leave the train. I gave the bottle to the husband to be used in case another dose should be needed, but by the time the train ran into LeGrande she was all right, and I received the thanks of every passenger in the car." ### A PERISHING CREW.

Just in time to save the crew from dying of thirst at sea, the steamer Winifredan, which arrived at Boston on Tuesday from Liverpool, ran across the schooner Alfred Wilson, of Lunenburg, helpless on the Grand Banks. The crew had had no water for three days and had been on short rations a week before that. The Winifredan arrived just as the schooner's men had given up hope and had lain down to die the most awful of lingering deaths. Captain Shepherd, the hardy mariner in command of the Winifredan, declared on the arrival of his ship at Boston that he had never in all of his eventful career on the sea seen such a pitiable scene as came to his view on the deck of the Wilson when the big Leyland liner ran alongside. The liner passed a line of hose over to the schooner and began to fill three casks, when the half crazed men on board could not wait but fell prostrate on the deck to drink the water from the casks as it dripped from the hose.

CAUSE OF WARS.

"Papa, how do nations get into war with each other?" asked Harry. "Sometimes one way, sometimes another," said the father. "Now, there are Germany and Spain. They came near getting into war because a Spanish mob took down the German flag." "No, my dear," put in Harry's mother; "that wasn't the reason." "But, my darling," said Mr. M., "don't you suppose I know? That was the reason." "No, dearie, you are mistaken. It was because the Germans tried—" "Mrs. M., I say it was because the—" "Peleg, you know better. You are only trying to—" "Madam, I don't understand that your opinion was asked in this matter, anyway." "Well, I don't want my boy instructed by an old ignoramus." "See here, you impudent—" "Put down your old cane, you brute. Don't you dare bristle up to me or I'll—" "Never mind," interrupted Harry. "I think I know how wars begin."—Lippincott's Magazine.

IT WAS OSHKOSH.

The elderly matron with the bundles, who was journeying to a point in Wisconsin and occupied a seat near the middle of the car, had fallen asleep. On the seat in front of her sat a little boy. The brakeman opened the door of the car and called out the name of the station the train was approaching. The elderly woman roused herself with a jerk. "Where are we, Bobby?" she asked. "I don't know, grandma," answered the little boy. "Didn't the brakeman say something just now?" "No. He just stuck his head inside the door and sneezed." "Help me with these things, Bobby!" she exclaimed hurriedly. "This is Oshkosh! It's where we get off."

HARD LINES.

Dr. Austin Flint, the famous alienist, said at the Century Club in New York, apropos of a will contest that had been tried last year: "The plaintiff lost, and no wonder. His case was as difficult a one as that of the young man who appeared unduly depressed after the death of his rich aunt."

"Why are you so sad?" an acquaintance said to the young man. "You never appeared to care much for your aunt." "I didn't," said the youth dolefully; "but I was the means of keeping her in an insane asylum the last five years of her life, and now that she has left me all her money, I've got to go to court and prove that she was of sound mind."

TOO MUCH PROOF.

District Attorney Jerome, at a dinner in New York, told a story about honesty. "There was a man," he said "who applied for a position in a dry-goods house. His appearance wasn't prepossessing, and references were demanded. After some hesitation, he gave the name of a driver in the firm's employ. This driver, he thought, would vouch for him." "A clerk sought out the driver, and asked him if the applicant was honest." "Honest?" the driver said. "Why, his honesty's been proved again and again. To my certain knowledge he's been arrested nine times for stealing, and every time he was acquitted."

AN EASTER SUPPLEMENT.

"This proposition," said Rudolph Boker, of Indianapolis, during a shareholders' meeting, "reminds me of one that a wife made to her husband the other day. 'James,' she began, 'you know how I have been scraping and saving all the year for my Easter costume?' 'Yes,' said the man; 'I know.' 'Well,' she went on, 'I've decided on it now. It is an empire gown of pale green broadcloth, and it is to cost $150. I want to ask you to help me a little.' 'How much do you need?' the husband inquired. 'I've got all but $125,' she replied."

COULD AFFORD TO TAKE TWO PAIR.

One day, when the northern soldiers were marching through the South, they saw an old lady hanging clothes on the line. When a soldier, who needed a pair of socks, took a pair from the line, she said: "You will have to pay for them." "The soldier asked her when she said: "On judgment day." The soldier replied: "Oh, if you are going to trust me that long I will take another pair." And he did.—Judge's Library.

IMPORTANT LEGAL DECISION.

This was an action for damages tried before Judge Drysdale at Bagninton last June. Judge Drysdale in his decision filed last week awarded the boy $530 damages and all costs against the railway company on the ground of negligence. James A. McLean, K. C., acted for the boy, and Hector McInnes, K. C., for defendant company.

OUT OF THE GINGER JAR. Once he called her "darling," she wrote her three times a day. Now they're married he never calls her anything but "Say!" When in doubt, set another hen. Shorten the row by grinding the hoe. Rainbows can never be seen in burr-holes. He who fears the storm spends many idle days in port. It is well to plan the work, but be sure you can work the plan. Take time to grind your jackknife; many farmers carry awfully dull knives in their pockets. Open your heart to the sorrow of every man who comes to talk to you about his troubles. Many workers are not satisfied on the road to success. They grumble because it is not a pike. Why is the careless boy like a hen? Because he can seldom find anything where he laid it yesterday. Make your boy a working partner. That is, give him some interest, however small, in the rewards of intelligent husbandry. Pay as you go. More than one ship has been sunk by the nibbling of a rat. Let no store-bill rats nibble at the bottom of your home craft. A man will wait on the banks four hours for a fish that doesn't intend to bite; but he won't wait five minutes for his wife to get ready for church. There isn't any music for a good farmer in a rattling wagon. He knows every time he drives such a wagon that he is just shaking the money out of his own pocket. Tighten things up, and save the wear and tear on the wagon and on your own nerves at the same time.—From July Farm Journal.

In Memoriam

CHARLES B. TUPPER.
(Annapolis Spectator.)
The congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was again stricken on Sunday, when Charles B. B.
Tupper, of Round Hill, was removed by the hand of death. Mr. Tupper was 75 years of age, and came from Upper Stewiacke, Colchester County,
to Annapolis County, 54 years ago.
He, with his father, two brothers and two sisters, settled at Round Hill. With the exception of the two sisters, all have passed away. Mr.
Tupper married a Miss McDormand, of Pictou County, who, with three sons and a daughter, survives him.
He was dearly beloved by the whole community for his earnestness,
of soul and the singular purity and simplicity of his character, and was followed to the grave by a large body of people who thus bore testimony to the high place he occupied in their affections. He was deeply interested in the welfare of St. Andrew's church of this town, of which church he was a member. On the 25th of March, 1888, he was elected to serve the church as an elder and continued in the performance of the active duties of that office until age
and physical infirmities laid him aside. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. James Carruthers and the body was laid to rest in the beautiful cemetery which at one time formed a part of the Tupper estate.

A Harvester's Experience

To the Editor Wolfville Academician:
Dear Sir—I never tried before in my life to write anything for a paper,
but feeling very sore at the treatment received on this trip West thought best to send a little history of how things have gone with me
since leaving Nova Scotia.
On leaving I had but my ticket, the boys from Wolfville provided all that was needed for sustenance on the journey West. On arriving in Winnipeg I decided to go with the boys from Wolfville for they were encared by letter, wages $2.25 per day, the farmer wearing twelve men. On our arrival in Verden, no farmer came to meet us, and we learned that cutting would not commence for another two weeks, with the exception of the light land. We found a place to stay in the Emigration Hall. From 100 to 150 men have been booked in this place since last Saturday, getting food as best they could. 15 negroes from Cape Breton, (formerly from Barbados, W. I.) were in the crowd.
You can imagine what it might be living in close quarters with a crowd of Negroes, Swedes, Italians, Canadians, U. S. people and Nova Scoti-ans. Five days I travelled around with an empty stomach but got through the week until Friday, when Duncan, Christie and Gould got a job to work for their board until harvesting began in general. I thought it was about time to try some other part. Learning that William Fitch, formerly of Wolfville, lived near by,
I went out to see him. He treated me royally and helped me to this city.
My leg from the kick (the last kick that the poor old laundry gave) was troubling me so, that I am forced to find a place in the hospital here. I hope to be able to work a month in order to pay for return ticket. If I am lucky enough to find my way back to old Nova Scotia, there I will remain.
I am writing this in order to try and persuade any who might think of coming out in September to remain at home unless they want to remain here or have lots of money to the trip. In closing I would like to refer to the experience of two boys from New Minas, Turner and Meisters.
They ran short of money and for two days did not have anything to eat. They asked me to help them dealings have given them an estimable
reputation in the community.
Mr. Steadman Newcombe was a
valued member of the Baptist church
and choir. He was also for many years a member of the Bridgetown
Band, in which he was much interested.
Mr. Newcombe was unmarried. Beside
his mother and brother, he leaves
one sister, Mrs. R. J. Messinger.

Industrial School Exhibit

Among the most notable exhibits at the Fair is one made by the State Industrial School of Verennes.
This includes a splendid display of vegetables and other farm products grown in the gardens at the institution by 30 boys under the direction of superintendent Barss and W. J.
Erwin of the staff. The vegetables are exhibited by Ralph Kennedy and William Nelson.
A handsome display of pyrography
is made by the girls of the institution and special exhibits are shown by the sewing, cooking and art classes, work that is highly creditable. It includes daintily embroidered
dresses, under-clothing, aprons, etc.,
dresses, under-clothing, aprons, etc.,
in tempting array. Well made shoes and slippers in a variety of shapes and styles, all hand made by pupils
at the school, in charge of John Moros, comprise an interesting exhibit and there are specimens from the printing department of the school which ought not to be overlooked.
Goods from the tailor shop and from the laundry department are also shown.
The boys this afternoon gave a demonstration of separating cream making butter and testing milk all accomplished and done by Harry Sears and Leon Latour both about 15, and Leon Provost, 13, all of Burlington who are inmates of the school—Burlington News.

STeadman Newcombe

The death occurred at his home,
Burnside Farm, on August 28th, of Steadman Newcombe, after a long illness caused by a complication of diseases. Mr. Newcombe, who was but 39 years of age, was one of the most progressive farmers in the vicinity of Bridgetown.

Some twenty years ago the farm which became the homestead, was purchased by his father, R. A. New-combe, who came here at that time from Bridgewater. On the death of his father, the sons, Steadman and Max, came into possession of the property, and have continued to reside there with their widowed mother.
By their industry and painstaking care they have largely increased the value of the property, and at the same time their integrity and honest dealing have given them an estimable
reputation in the community.

Mr. Steadman Newcombe was a
valued member of the Baptist church
and choir. He was also for many
years a member of the Bridgetown
Band, in which he was much interested.

Mr. Newcombe was unmarried. Beside
his mother and brother, he leaves
one sister, Mrs. R. J. Messinger.

The Monitor would convey to the bereaved family the sympathy of the community in their sad loss.
(Bridgewater papers please copy.)

WALTER GILLIATT

Never did the community of Granville Centre, receive a greater shock than on Friday morning last, when went around that Walter Gilliatt had passed away during the night. At ten o'clock, with other friends, he left the store in his usual health. Going home he made preparations for a fishing trip the following day. At two o'clock, after three hours suffering from heart trouble, the call came. A gloom has been cast over the entire neighborhood by
the sudden removal of one who was
a familiar figure to all. The heartfelt sympathy of all goes out to the stricken family. An aged father and
mother, a wife and two daughters,
and one sister, Mrs. George Armstrong, of Round Hill, are left to mourn their sad loss. The funeral took place on Saturday and was largely attended. In the absence of Pastor Simpson, Rev. W. I. Warren,
of Bridgetown, conducted the service, assisted by Rev. J. Hackenley
of the Episcopal Church.—COM.

REED'S EARTH CURE

Mr. D. J. Harris, of Ohio, Shelburne, N. S., says: "For near one year I suffered much with my hand.
I tried Dr.'s medicine but could get no help, but as soon as I applied Reed's Earth Cure, the swelling was removed and my hand was soon well again."

The above statement is correct for I saw Mr. Harris before and after he was cured. I thought it would take one month to effect a cure. However, less than one week his hand was well again with a cost of less than 20 cents. A trial 1/2 oz. box of E. C. can be had for only 25 cents.

To the Wise a Bargain.

Said the Slumchild to the Wise—
"To the people of place and power
Who govern and guide the hour.
To the people who write and teach.
Ruling our thought and speech,
And all the Captains and Kings
Who command the making of things—
'Give me the good ye know,
'That I, the Child, may grow!
Light for the whole people long,
Food that is pure and strong,
Housing and clothing fair,
Clear water and electric air,
Teaching from day to day,
And room—for a child to play!"

Then the Wise made answer cold:
"These things are not given, but sold.
They shall be yours to-day,
If you can pay."

'Pay!' said the Child, 'Pay you?
What can I do?
Only in years' slow length
Shall I have strength.
I have not power nor skill,
Wisdom nor wit nor will—
What service weak and wild
Can you ask of a little child?"

But the Wise made answer bold:
'Goods must be bought and sold;
You shall have nothing here
Without paying—paying dear!
And the Child cried on them: 'Stay!
Wait! I will pay!'

'For the foulness where I live,
Fith in return I give,
For the greed that withholds my
right,
Greed that shall shake your might
For the sin I live in and learn,
Plentiful sin I return.
For my lack in home and school,
Ignorance comes to rule,
From where I sicken and die,
Disease in your homes shall lie,
My all uncounted debt
Shall choke your children's breath,
Degenerate—crippled—base—
I degrade the human race.
And the people you have made—
These shall make you afraid!

I ask no more, I take Terms you make:
And steadily, day by day,
I will pay."
—Charlotte Perkins Gilman in The Public.

LET YESTERDAY ALONE

Let yesterday alone—don't face the wrong way—don't desecrate the resting place of the dead.

If you have made a mistake, forget it—nothing worth while was ever built upon useless regret.

We have all wrestled with ghosts and hobbs grim at grey dawn of the morning after; but when earth to earth is said the healthy mind refuses to longer keep step with the hearse.

To err is human—only one man
ever escaped the scourge of conscience
—because immaculate, and therefore to sin immune. Don't look back—and don't dodge.

With every error safely under vesterday's sod, the wise man and woman wipe away the tear and bravely face the front.

The lesson has been learned—We know better now—and what avails regret, or grewsome watch beside the grave?

Today is the aftermath of yesterday—but it is more important to remember that tomorrow must be the aftermath of today, the nature and influence of which it lies with you to determine.

And it is only the idiot, anyway,
who sets his heart out for what can not be undone.

THE MUSINGS OF A COUNTRY MERCHANT

"Yes," remarked a country merchant, quoted in an exchange, "I certainly have a snap. Wholesale houses send down every month and draw on me at sight, but if I send a bill to a farmer, he becomes swear-
cast over the entire neighborhood by
the sudden removal of one who was
a familiar figure to all. The heartfelt sympathy of all goes out to the stricken family. An aged father and
mother, a wife and two daughters,
and one sister, Mrs. George Arm-
mourn their sad loss. The funeral
took place on Saturday and was largely attended. In the absence of
Pastor Simpson, Rev. W. I. Warren,
of Bridgetown, conducted the service, assisted by Rev. J. Hackenley
of the Episcopal Church.—COM.

I ought to do this because they do part of their trading here, but our friends, Robert Simpson and T. Eaton, neither buy tickets nor help the church fund, and yet they get the cash in advance business. If I sell a pair of pants I must treat the family to candy or cigars; if I buy a load of potatoes I must do the same.
Customers who are able to pay hang on to their money, while I pay ten per cent. at the bank to get ready cash. I have a big business during hard times and poor crops, from people who are willing to trade with me
provided I can duplicate catalogue for money. My scales weigh too much when I sell sugar, and too little when I buy butter. I am a thief, a liar, and a grafter. If I smile I am a soft soapy hypocrite, and if I don't I am a grump. Yes, certainly this is a snap." And he looked over $10,000 worth of accounts all good, and wondered how he could raise $250 to pay a eight debts due to-morrow.

The latter get more enjoyment out of life in buying tea for the satisfaction you expect to get from its use, it will pay to purchase "Salada." Avoid anything "just as good." Imitations are invariably of poor quality.

Mr. A. L. Davidson, barrister, of Middleton, has authorized his solicitors to take action against the Morning Chronicle of Halifax for libel, naming damages to the amount of $20,000. Mr. Davidson is the man that Ralph Aston, who gave evidence for the crown in the Bayne case, testified to having left for Five Islands with two or three heavily loaded grips. The Chronicle in commenting on this evidence implied that these grips contained whiskey, which was used to secure votes for John Standfield, hence the action on the part of Mr. Davidson.

The death occurred on Thursday last of "Charlie" Bonnett, a familiar figure for many years to the residents of this county. One of his eccentricities was an extraordinary memory for dates—a date of any event occurring in his mind was never forgotten. He spent much of his time travelling from place to place, and found friends wherever he went, until the infirmities of age laid him aside. He was a son of the late Isaac Bonnett, of Bridgetown, and leaves a brother and sister, Mr. George Bonnett and Miss Eliza Bonnett, both of Bridgetown. Interment took place in the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

The Halifax and South-Western express failed to make connection with the D. A. R. west-bound trains yesterday and there was much complaint among the passengers in consequence, some of whom were Boston boat passengers. # In The Fog

BY
Richard Harding Davis.

Copyright, 1901, by Robert Howard Russell.

Lyle cried. He could not have taken the letters. Lord Arthur has been in his cot at the hospital. That is his alibi. There is some one else, some one we do not suspect, and that some one is the murderer. He came back here either to obtain those letters because he knew they would convict him, or to remove something he had left here at the time of the murder, something incriminating,—the weapon, perhaps, or some personal article; a cigarette-case, a handkerchief with his name upon it, or a pair of gloves. Whatever it was it must have been damning evidence against him to have made him take so desperate a chance.

"How do we know," I whispered, "that he is not hidden here now?"
"No, I'll swear he is not," Lyle answered. "I may have bungled in some things, but I have searched this house thoroughly. Nevertheless," he added, "we must go over it again, from the cellar to the roof. We have the real clew now, and we must forget the others and work only it." As he spoke he began again to search the drawing-room, turning over even the books on the tables and the music on the piano.
"Whoever the man is," he said over his shoulder, "we know that he has a key to the front door and a key to the letter-box. That shows us he is either an inmate of the house or that he comes here when he wishes. The Russian says that he was the only servant in the house. Certainly we have found no evidence to show that any other servant slept here. There could be but one other person who would possess a key to the house and the letter-box—and he lives in St. Petersburg. At the time of the murder he was two thousand miles away. Lyle interrupted himself suddenly with a sharp cry and turned upon me with his eyes flashing. "But was he?" he cried. "Was he? How do we know that last night he was not in London, in this very house when Zieby and Chetney met?"

"He stood staring at me without seeing me, muttering, and arguing with himself.

"Don't speak to me," he cried, as I ventured to interrupt him. "I can see it now. It is all plain. It was not the servant, but his master, the Russian himself, and it was he who came back for the letters! He came back for them because he knew they would convict him. We must find them. We must have those letters. If we find the one with the Russian postmark, we shall have found the murderer." He spoke like a madman, and as he spoke he ran around the room with one hand held out in front of him as you have seen a mind-reader at a theatre seeking for something hidden in the stalls. He pulled out old letters from the writing-desk, and ran them over as swiftly as a gambler deals out cards; he dropped on his knees before the fireplace and dragged out the dead coals with his bare fingers, and then with a low, wretched cry, like a bound on a scent, he ran back to the waste-paper basket and, lifting the papers from it, shook them out upon the floor. Instantly he gave a shout of triumph, and, separating a number of torn pieces from the others, held them up before me.

"Look!" he cried. "Do you see? Here are five letters, torn across in two places. The Russian did not stop to read them, for, as you see, he has left them still sealed. I have been wrong. He did not return for the letters. He could not have known their value. He must have returned for some other reason, and, as he was leaving, saw the letter-box, and taking out the letters, held them together—so—and tore them twice across, and then, as the fire had gone out, tossed them into this basket. Look!" he cried, "here in the upper corner of this piece is a Russian stamp. This is his own letter—unopened!"

"We examined the Russian stamp and found it had been cancelled at St. Petersburg four days ago. The back of the envelope bore the postmark of the branch station in upper Sloane Street, and was dated this morning. The envelope was of official blue paper and we had no difficulty in finding the two other parts of it. We drew the torn pieces of the letter from them and joined them together side by side. There were but two lines of writing, and this was the message: 'I leave Petersburg on the night train, and I shall see you at Trevor Terrace after dinner Tuesday evening.'

"That was last night!" Lyle cried. "He arrived twelve hours ahead of his letter—but it came in time—it came in time to hang him!"

The Baronet struck the table with his hand.
"The name!" he demanded. "How was it signed? What was the man's name?"

The young Solicitor rose to his feet and, leaning forward, stretched out his arm. "There was no name," he cried. "The letter was signed with only two initials. But engraved at the top of the sheet was the man's address. That address was 'The American Embassy, St. Petersburg, Bureau of the Naval Attache,' and the initials," he shouted, his voice rising into an exultant and bitter cry, "were those of the gentleman who sits opposite who told us that he was the first to find the murdered bodies, the Naval Attache to Russia, Lieutenant Sears!"

A strained and awful hush followed the Solicitor's words, which seemed to vibrate like a twanging bowstring that had just hurled its bolt. Sir Andrew, pale and staring, drew away with an exclamation of repulsion. His eyes were fastened upon the Naval Attache with fascinated horror. But the American emitted a sigh of great content, and sank comfortably into the arms of his chair. He clapped his hands softly together.

"Capital!" he murmured. "I give you my word I never guessed what you were driving at. You fooled me, I'll be hanged if you didn't—you certainly fooled me."

"The man with the pearl stud leaned forward with a nervous gesture. "Hush! be careful!" he whispered. But at that instant, for the third time, a servant, hastening through the room, handed him a piece of paper which he scanned eagerly. The message on the paper read, "The light over the Communion is out. The House has risen."

"Hurrah!" he cried. "The House is up! We've won!" He "naught up his glass, and slapped the Naval Attache violently upon the shoulder. He nodded joyously at him, at the Solicitor, and at the Queen's Messenger. "Gentlemen, to you!" he cried; "my thanks and my congratulations!" He drank deep from his glass, and breathed forth a long sigh of satisfaction and relief.

"But I say," protested the Queen's Messenger, shaking his finger violently at the Solicitor, "that story won't do. You didn't play fair—and—and you talked so fast I couldn't make out what it was all about. I'll bet you that evidence wouldn't hold in a court of law—you couldn't hang a cat on such evidence. Your story is condemned tommy-rot. Now my story might have happened, my story bore the mark—"

In the joy of creation the story-tellers had forgotten their audience, until a sudden exclamation from Sir Andrew caused them to turn guiltily toward him. His face was knit with lines of anger, doubt, and amazement.

"What does this mean?" he cried. "Is this a jest, or are you mad? If you know this man is a murderer, why is he at large? Is this a game you have been playing? Explain yourselves at once. What does it mean?"

The American, with first a glance at the others, rose and bowed courteously.

"I am not a murderer, Sir Andrew, believe me," he said; "you need not be alarmed. As a matter of fact, at this moment I am much more afraid of you than you could possibly be of me. I beg you please to be indulgent. I assure you, we meant no disrespect. We have been exchanging stories, that is all, pretending that we are people we are not, endeavoring to entertain you with better detective tales than, for instance, the last one you read, 'The Great Rand Robbery.'"

The Baronet brushed his hand nervously across his forehead.
"Do you mean to tell me," he exclaimed, "that none of this has happened? That Lord Chetney is not dead, that his Solicitor did not find a letter of yours written from your post in Petersburg, and that just now, when he charged you with murder, he was in jest?"

"I am really very sorry," said the American, "but you see, sir, he could not have found a letter written by me in St. Petersburg because I have never been in Petersburg. Until this week, I have never been outside of my own country. I am not a naval officer. I am a writer of short stories. And to-night, when this gentleman told me that you were fond of detective stories, I thought it would be amusing to tell you one of my own—one I had just mapped out this afternoon."

"But Lord Chetney is a real person," interrupted the Baronet, "and he did go to Africa two years ago, and he was supposed to have died there, and his brother, Lord Arthur, has been the heir. And yesterday Chetney did return. I read it in the papers."

Harvesters are Here in Hordes

(Saskatchewan Evening Capital.)

If Jack London had really wanted to write a lurid account of life in the underworld, he should have come up from Toronto to Saskatchewan on harvesters' excursion. It is improbable that anyone not having gone through that experience realizes fully just what that implies. Vaguely, through the columns of the press, one gets a glimpse as through a glass darkly of the conditions that would shame the followers of Raisuli, but only when one hears from the lips of those who have been through the trip, does one begin to appreciate the depths to which some grades of humanity can descend. One of the original sources of the trouble was a circular written by the polite letter writer of the Saskatchewan government, Hon. W. R. Matherwell. However, this was not the only inducement offered. The railroad companies asked for 40,000 men to cut a record in the west. They promised fine wages and farmers crowding the platforms looking for help. And the forty thousand came.

Not all of them came as far west as the Prince Albert-Regina line, but a very great proportion of them did. They were of all classes. Dock hands from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia ports, unemployed from Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton, and even men who have held good positions in the cities, one and all attracted by the lure of the west, and one and all determined to make up the forty thousand workers in the harvest fields. How many of them have found work in those harvest fields it is impossible to say. It is certain, however, that about a thousand of them have drifted into Saskatoon looking for harvest fields to find work in, and have found them not. A Capital man spent an odd hour and more this morning talking to many of them, finding out their hopes and aspirations, their conditions and their prospects, and many a pitiful tale was told.

One young fellow from Hamilton was a glove worker by trade. Times had gotten quiet in Hamilton as in many another town in the east. This trade depression in Ontario and Quebec is something that is assuming the proportions of a plague, by the way, and he had made up his mind to come west. He had enough money when he struck Saskatoon to last him a week, and that week expired on Monday.

"A box car doesn't make much of a bed," he commented, when asked how he was faring. "But I have put in a couple of nights in one now," and he looked it, too.

"What am I going to do? Board the first train going out of here. They can only throw me off. I've done some railroadng, and if I can get back to Winnipeg I might get on."

Another red-headed boy from Nova Scotia had had work for three or four days, but the crop was all cut now, and the farmer had no more need of help. "I wouldn't care so much for myself," he commented, "I guess I could worry along, anyhow; but my pal who came along with me has taken sick, and the doctor has told me that he must go down east. I can't get transportation for both of us, and I hate to have to stop."

It was suggested that perhaps his pal might weather the storm in a day or two, and then they could get work. These are just two instances. A dozen more could be cited.

The most distressing feature of it all is that there seems to be no let up to the rush. Every train seems to be bringing its quota. Had no more come in since Saturday things would have been in pretty good shape, in Saskatoon, at any rate. So far as can be learned fully two hundred men have got work. Not harvesting, it is true, but in the railroad camps. Seventy-five went down the line to the Disley cut for steel laying. A number went out on the C. P. R. for ballasting, and one way and another about 200 have been disposed of.

It is not difficult to see why there should be no demand for harvest help in this locality. The country is filled up with homesteads and homesteaders, men in the majority of cases, who have but little crop and no patents. They are only too glad to get out into the fields and help their neighbors, and, as a fact, by the time that the harvesters from the east had arrived the crops were very largely cut, and no outside help was needed. Just why this was not obvious to the authors of crop circulars is not apparent. The map of the country shows that there are an enormous quantity of homesteads taken up, but not proved up yet, and one would have thought that the department would have sufficient intelligence to realize this fact. Of the hundreds that are in and around town just now the majority have but very little money, probably sufficient to last them a few days. Many of them have not enough to take them to points west and run the risk of being stranded for a week for railroad help springs up in a nearby quarter, a very serious state of affairs is bound to occur in a very short time. Upon whom the blame actually rests is doubtful. Probably it is largely due to the hard times down east. It is true that crops are not in quite such good shape as they were a month ago, but inasmuch as this cry is coming from all over the west, it is impossible that this can be entirely the cause. The authorities should be prepared to grasp with the situation as very short notice, unless something new turns up whereby 400 able-bodied and active men can be employed in a hurry.

ENORMOUS CROP OF PLUMS AND PEACHES.

St. Catharines, Ont., Aug. 31.—Plums are an enormous crop this year throughout the Niagara fruit belt, just about on a par with peaches. So loaded down are the plum trees that the growers express gratification in the fact that rot has set in which will relieve the trees. Otherwise the weight of the fruit when it becomes full grown would injure the trees by breaking down limbs. Peaches are probably more abundant than in any previous year, but growers say the price will keep up pretty well on account of large demands of canning factories and so many being shipped to Winnipeg. This year, of course, will beat previous records for shipment to the West in all kinds of fruit.

MOTHER AND CHILDREN DROWNED.

New York, Aug. 31.—Mrs. Richard Ruderbacher, 52 years old, of Brooklyn, and her two children, Ida, 11 years, and Richard, 4 years, were drowned at Broad Channel, Jamaica Bay, tonight. The children were fishing from a boat this evening, when the boy fell overboard. Ida screamed and then jumped in to save him. The girl managed to reach her brother, but was dragged under the surface just as Mrs. Ruderbacher, who had been attracted by the girl's cry, reached the scene. The mother, without hesitation, dived after the children, fully dressed though she was. None of the three came to the surface again.

Royal Household Flour

Only part of the wheat berry is fit for food. Yet much that isn't often gets into flour. You cannot see it or taste it, but it's there. It is simply a case of the miller getting more flour from his wheat and your getting less nourishment.
