The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

Library of the Public Archives of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol → (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ▼ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

La bibliothèque des Archives publiques du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmé i en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole → signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ▼ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

TO THE PUBLIC.

In submitting the following Alphabetical Catalogue of the Newspapers of the Dominion, together with the respective circulation of each. and publishers' names, &c., our aim has been to combine in so far as possible, completeness of information with accuracy of statement and thorough fullness of detail. By a diligent regard to these, generally so well recognized principles, we have endeavored to supply a two-fold desideratum. First: the placing in the hands of the business man and general advertiser a compendium of reference by which he may, readily and at once, select his advertising medium at any point within the Dominion, to which he may wish to extend his business; and, secondly, the removal of some erroneous and, withal, damaging impressions as to the circulation of a number of our Canadian newspapers, caused by their incorrect rating—many of them being piaced considerably below their actual circulation—in Newspaper Directories issued from time to time by other parties. To these ends no labour has been spared. Newspaper publishers throughout the several provinces have been communicated with, inquiry regarding their circulation and status made, and their written replies, in most cases, received and fyled, and hence, any account of such journals found herein, may be considered as the publishers' own.

In a few cases, parties indeed, from one cause or other,—perchance an undue delicacy in making known what they deemed their private business,—failed to answer letter of enquiry; in such few isolated instances, estimates have been collated upon such reliable information as elsewhere was possible, and their rating will be found sufficiently trusthworthy and correct. Obstacles will attend first attemps, and in the present compilation, we have, ourselves, been no exception to the rule.

That a DIRECTOTY of the Press of CANADA, should, to be genuine, be the production of Canada,—an essentially native outcome—will at once appear reasonable. And, inasmuch as such a work, however inconsiderable in size at the commencement, is intended, as in the present case, not to fade out, but to be continued from year to year, in enlarged and more important form, its ethical policy becomes of highest import. Its end and aim should be, to rate each paper honestly and on its true merits; not to depreciate and undervalue, as some Directory publishers before alluded to, in dealing with not a few of our newspapers, have done: in a word, to build up, vitalize, and strengthen, everywhere, the Press as a whole.

Finally, to the general business public and all others who may have occasion to use this Directory, we need say little. Compilations of the kind carry with them their own criticism, are their own commentator—bespeak at once their own design. We purpose continuing the publication annually, with such periodical corrections and variations as change and increase in our Dominion journalism may suggest to be necessary. That it will receive its meed of approval from the advertising public, we make no doubt, and if the first Canadian Newspaper Directory yet issued, be found in some proper degree to answer its title and object, we are already in manner compensated.

T. F. WOOD & CO.

Note.—Our thanks are due to several gentlemen who have in various ways facilited our work: the "Sketch of Canadian Journalism, &c.," together with the remarks on Confederation which form the opening pages were contributed by Mr. James V. Wright, formerly Editor of the Daily Evening Telegraph, in this city, and will be found sufficiently authentic and interesting.

OBSERVATIONS ON CANADIAN JOURNALISM, WITH A SKETCH OF ITS RISE AND GROWTH.

SECTION I.

THE elaborate machinery, wide circulation, and extensive influence of the newspaper-press in the present day, are so uniformly felt, and generally acknowledged, that reflection appears at once superfluous. On both Continents has its presence become a power alike for the government and discipline, as well as a faultless index of the advancement and enlightenment of the respective peoples. In the United States it is found in its perfect and completest vigour, holding conspicuous place among the chief and multifarious mediums of popular education, for which that country maintains so distinguished a precedence. Nor do we find Europe in scarcely any material particular behind. England, with the rest of Great Britain, not to speak of Germany, France, and the neighbouring free countries, has aroused herself within the century to the benefit of a sound and complete newspaper-literature, and pushed forward in the several departments with a marvellous-we had almost said magic-potency and speed. Closely following in the van, is our new Dominion of Canada. Brilliant in native intellectual material for the purpose: fertile in subjectmatter for whatever may legitimately occupy the pen of journalism; strong in sense of right and justice in all that pertains to her true liberties; rich in resources, and broad in acres, she has already won for herself a name in the field of newspaper, and even less ephemeral literature, to be emulated if not envied. These are facts needing only to be investigated to be apparent. Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, comprising in aggregate, a population of four millions, with a total area of slightly over three hundred and seven thousand square miles-lead the way. Prince Edward's Island, Manitoba and British Colnmbia-infant provinces, the two latter, but no less containing the nucleus of a powerful press, follow anon in the wake. Newfoundland, as yet not a part of our Dominion, has from early time in her history, had her press, and we shall, for the purposes now in hand, speak of her as one of the Dominion. The status then, of our press throughout these provinces as a wnole, calls for a cursory glance; and, in submitting this the first Canadian Newspaper Directory yet attempted, a few remarks on the rise and present condition of our newspapers generally, may not be deemed out of place.

In no part of the world has journalism attained to a tithe of the growth and influence that it has in the United States. Our republican friends have indeed acquainted themselves to the fullest extent with its capabilities for good or evil, and, with an energetic appreciation of its benefits at once characteristic, have in a manner made it their idol. We refer more especially to the metropolitan press. By an application of enormous capital and equivalent talent, they have succeeded in elevating that section of journa' a within their range, to a very first place, not only as a furnisher of news and disseminator of opinion, but in a far more important arena, viz.. the education of the masses. A no insignificant quota of the American people mak, the newspaper their chief means of general instruction, as well as transient information; these, too, are among their most intelligent citizens, holding often responsible offices of trust. Nor in this matter of wonder, when we consider the fact that, in the average Americal city daily, nearly every subject is intelligently dealt with. Science and art, social and political economy, together with the thousand other topics pertaining to a round of popular education, have each their writer in the editorial staff; each is handled by men of tried erudition and capacity; and each is presented to the less tutored reader, in a plain matter-of-fact style and phrase, devoid of technicalities, that might in vain be sought for in the ponderous volumes, and learned disquisitions whence they are gleaned. And this is well. Life, in this age of rapid movement and fierce commercial combat generally; is too short for physically working humanity to sound all depths of learning, whether it be of art, politics, or aught else. The daily paper furnishes the substance and the kernel which is all that is required. We have touched thus long on a point that may seem irrelevant, not from any peculiai predilictions for American journalism over our own, but that our own may imitate it in all such as may be esteemed essential and deserving. To educate, as well as amuse and nierely inform, should be the aim of our metropolitan newspapers especially; and with the growing thirst for knowledge among the masses, such, if not already, will soon be absolutely demanded.

Journalism was never in a condition more prosperous throughout Canada and the Dominion at large than at present. Proportional to our population and extent of settled territory, it has few or no compeers. The number and quality of the papers published, if records are an authority, are vastly in advance of those in the United States, at a time when the two populations were equal. No people appreciate a free press as a whole more completely than do the people of Canada; yet, that appreciation, it may be said with truth, has ever been guided by an ear and eye to the morality of that press. Hence, it has long been proverbial that no press stands higher when consulted by strangers abroad as an authority for facts, than does that of Canada. Sensational writing is uniformly frowned down; those few papers that from time to time started making such their speciality, having either succumbed financially or fallen speedily into the ordinary and more respectable channel. As in all countries the newspaper in Canada is a reflex of the several races, governed by their idiosyncracies, and bearing the impress of their habits and idiom of language. The Ontario newspaper differs as widely in tone and general personnel from that of Quebec province as either differs from that of France or Hindostan. The papers of Nova Scotia and the other Maritime provinces are again broadly dissimilar from those nearer home. The difference may be traced to the religion, politics and divers modes of subsistance obtaining among the several peoples. The journalist, however, in each section is governed by a kindred principle, namely, the betterment of the community among whom he works. Each has his pet scheme, political doctrine or religious bias; each clings with tenacity to his party; but each, it will generally be found, has a sincere honesty for his basis, and endeavours when occasion demands, so far as appears possible, to uphold the true interests of the community at large with which he is identified.

Canadian journalism found its first foothold in Quebec province, to which section, inasmuch as it was the first to feel the genial hand of civilization, we are indebted for the founding of nearly all our most valuable institutions. The condition of the press here, however, has always been Differing widely in taste and sentiment from their Teutonic brethren, the French population have stamped that difference in nothing more indelibly than in that of their newspapers. Few care to discuss the politics of the day, save such leading French dailies as are found in Montreal, Quebec, and a few leading towns. Polite in idea and manner, and enthusiastic in religion, the French-Canadian vindicates these, his national characteristics, in the tone of his journal. Poetry, polite essays, and religious topics, form the "general make-up" of its columns. Among the English papers, broader principles obtain. Politics are frequently handled with vigour and acumen by even the most back-woods weekly; while the Montreal and Quebec city dailies are written in a style, and discuss ery topic of the day with an ability unsurpassed anywhere in the world The same may apply to the French papers of those cities. The divergency of races and language has operated not a little against the success of journalism in Quebec province, the circulation in either tongue being much retarded thereby, a fact by no means encouraging to the talented men generally to be found at their head. With the increase, however, of British settlement, matters will undoubtedly right themselves, as the increased influence and circulation of the English press of Montreal, since confederation, sufficiently proves.

Next to Quebec, the Maritime Provinces may claim credit for building up and perpetuating journalism. Nova Scotia had a paper in 1769, and New Brunswick and Newfoundland each possessed newspapers as far back as 1800. None of these, however, have survived to the present. The newspapers of St. John, Halifax, and Frederickton, have always been well edited, are at present numerous, and have substantial circulation. Their press, anterior to confederation, was conducted on no specially broad principles, trade, shipping and agriculture, entirely occupying its columns. Confederation, however, has given the press of these provinces, in common with all other and kindred institutions, an impetus wholly unlocked for; important social and political discussions, and schemes of financial economy that may hasten our national perfecting and consolidation now uniformly grace its pages; while the general make-up and style is quite equal to that of its confreres anywhere in the Dominion.

Ontario is the journalist's harvest-field. There, the newspaper is racy of the soil and there the intelligent editor finds his surest reward. A freedom of social and political discussion, an elasticity in general sentiment. and a trenchancy of debate generally, quite unknown in the sister provinces, renders his task at least brilliant if not directly agreeable; while the stronger tendencies of the people for newspaper literature, stimulates his circulation and augments his coffers. The progress of the press in Ontario has been something unprecedented. Statistics have been published which show that the daily and weekly circulation of the papers in Toronto alone in 1870, exceeded that of the entire United Kingdom of Great Britain in 1820, if we except the London Times in the enumeration. The rise of journalism in the "garden of Canada," as Ontario has been aptly termed, would fill a chapter beyond our limits. Thrift and industry are the watchwords of its people; and public schools being established on a basis of liberality known only in the United States and Prussia, education is everywhere spread broad-cast and the daily and weekly paper finds a welcome in every home; the people think for themselves, read for themselves, and, in all things essential, act for themselves, and a knowledge of the local and general politics of the country is known to every child from the cradle.

SECTION II.

FIRST NEWSPAPERS IN CANADA.

The first newspaper in Canada, the Quebec Gazette, was founded in 1764. It was in existence to within a year ago—the aged parent and acknowledged patriarch of the press of British America.

The second was the Halifax Weekly Recorder, started in 1769, by one Anthony Henry, and edited by Capt. Buckley. It has long ceased to exist.

Next in order is the Montreal Gazette, established by one Mesplets from Philadelphia, in 1778, and originally printed in French and English. It may be curious here to note, as illustrative of the mutations incident to time and circumstance, that this paper, chiefly known through the greater portion of its career for an unbending advocacy of Conservatism and Monarchy in their most pronounced phases, is indebted for its origin and birth to an American revolutionist, an American annexation movement, and, an American invasion of Canada. Mesplets, a practical printer, came into Montreal as an attaché of a Deputation sent hither from the Philadelphia Congress directed to follow in the wake of Montgomery's Army, which occupied the city in 1775. The object of the Deputation was to endeavour to estrange the Canadians from their allegiance, and by specious overtures, lure them to a peaceful declaration for the Government of the United States. Dr. Benjamin Franklin, one of the Deputation, and than whom none knew better the uses of the Press in such an emergency, suggested the bringing with them the complete plant of a printing-office, and, by manifestoes, circulars, and such-like, to spread broadcast among the inhabitance the objects of their mission and the beauties of annexation in particular. The experiment, Mesplets doing the mechanical work, was tried, and it is needless to say, failed signally, the Leputation returned home; the printer alluded to, however, remaining in Montreal, where he continued the office, erected in what is now known as "Custom House Square," and a short time subsequently put forth an eight-column weekly sheet called the GAZETTE; the journal in embryo we have to day. It was long the only paper in the province, next to its namesake of Quebec. The history of these two papers as may be easily inferred, is replete with interest, they having been pioneers in the field of provincial journalism, and surviving every vicissitude of fortune that falls inevitably to the lot of all who would mould and lead public opinion.

Both journals have passed through many ownerships since establishment, and represented from time to time, especially the Quebec Gazette, nearly every shade of political and social opinion. The GAZETTE of Montreal under the late Robert Abraham, an accomplished writer, first came prominently into public favour. James Moir Ferres and others succeeded, but with varied success until it passed into the management of the late firm of Lowe & Chamberlin. Under their control it became at once the acknowledged and energetic organ of the Conservative party in Quebec province, and continues such but with largely increased favour, to the present time. In 1870 the Messrs T. & R. White, formerly of the Hamilton Spectator, assumed possession, changing the shape, and improving the general make tip of the paper. Mr. Thomas White, Jr. is the editor-in-chief, and under him, the Gazette has greatly advanced in circulation and influence; the vigor, brilliancy, and high tone of its editorials commending it to the respectable classes everywhere, while its prompt and accurate news-reports render it of more than ordinary value in that connection generally. The Gazette is the oldest living paper in the Dominion.

Following in the order of dates we turn for the moment to Ontario. In consulting that interesting volume by the Rev. H. Scadding, D.D., entitled "Torento of Old" we find the Niagara Conscellation existed in 1799, and was undoubtedly the next paper published in British America after the Montreal Gazette. The York Gazette followed three years later. The Constellation continued several years, and was the only paper of general information in the then wilderness of the west, known as Upper Canada; it has long ceased to exist.

The Halifax Royal Gazette came next in 1801. It was the official organ of the Government and as such continues.

The Quebec Mercury follows next in order, and was issued first in 1805, by the late Thomas Cary, father of the present proprietor. The MERCURY had long extensive influence in the country previously to the union of Upper and Lower Canada in 1840: it is still vigorous. In the early day mentioned it was a compendium of all that pertained to news, politics and debate. Copies of the Mercury from the first number bound in volume, are to be found in not a few of our public libraries; and so curious and valuable were the early numbers considered that they have been deemed worthy a place in the British Museum, London, where they be seen. *

The Quebec Le Canadien, founded in 1806, succeeded, and still circulates among the French portion of the ancient capital.

The St. John's Royal Gazette and Newfoundland Advertiser was established in 1807; and similar to its namesake of York (Toronto) and Halifax, was the Government official organ. It still exists.

Ushered into being in 1809 and next in order of establishment, we find the Montreal Herald. This journal founded by a wholesale merchant named Kay, subsequently in 1824, lapsing into the hands of Mr. Archibald Fergusson, as the organ of the Presbyterian body, and the property still later of a well known citizen named Wier, has, in common with the Montreal Gazette, long wielded an important and wide influence, and may be said to have disputed through a protracted career, the palm with the latter paper for public favour. The Herald was long edited by a gentleman of distinguished ability, named Kinnear; and to his ready and trenchant, but polished pen, may be attributed the high position it attained to in his day, and which, with kindred qualities in his successors, it has never since lost. Mr. Adam Thom held the management some time previously to Mr. Kinnear, and his ability did conspicuous service to its columns. The paper has long been the organ-in-chief in Quebec province of the English speaking section of the extreme Lib ral Party, the battles of whom it has fought through good and evil report, with a consistency and firmness that may be said to have won the respect even of opponents. The HERALD is owned by a publishing Company. The Hon. E. GOFF PENNY, now of our Dominion Senate, and long a partner in the concern, is the chief editor The HERALD editorials are conspicuous for an easy argumentative style in which all shadow of the sensational or fine writing, is rigorously eschewed. Commercial topics in particular, receive from it a diligent oversight which has rendered its columns in relation thereto a valuable desideratum among merchants. Its discussions generally, are marked by caution and a careful regard to the truth of statements before using them; an element in the paper we need hardly say, which has had its due reward in an increased confidence among readers of all classes, and with it, a proportionably increased circulation.

Next in order of establishment we have the Kingston, Ont. Chronide—to which has been added the title of News—dating 1810. This paper is the oldest that has continued to live in Ontario. It is also the seventh oldest in the Dominion. While its contemporaries one by one have dropped away, the Chronicle and News has stood its ground through all vicissitude and is still fresh and vigorous. Mr. James Shannon is the present proprietor, and his paper has a substantial circulation.

We might speak to almost endless length of papers founded at an early period, everywhere from Ontario to Newfoundland, but which ceased almost with their birth. Such recapitulation is unnecessary. We have seen that the Niagara Constellation (1799), was the first after the Montreal Gazette. A short-lived paper, the Canada Guardian, edited by Joseph Wilcox, was published in Toronto in 1807. The Niagara Spectator followed in 1819. This was a stirring paper and lived some years. It was edited by one Robert Gourley, a state prisoner incarcerated in Niagara jail. Gourley aired with vehemence, his political wrongs in the Spectator, and was subsequently banished. The next paper was the Colonial Advocate, established in Toronto, in 1824, by the political agitator WILLIAM LYON MACKENZIE. Mackenzie assailed the Tory Government of the day with unsurpassed virulence, and for it, his presses and types were thrown into Toronto Bay, in 1826. He subsequently founded the Message, which dropped, when shortly after he went into banishment, but resumed on his return. Among other journals established but now forgotten, were the Examiner, British Colonist, Canadian Review, Loyalist, &c., Toronto. Pilot, Advertiser, Telegraph, Transcript, and others of even more early date, Montreal. Three Rivers, Quebec and the Maritime provinces have all had similarly, papers, from time to time of note but such live only in the past.

After the Halifax Acadian Recorder, the oldest living paper is the Halifax Chronicle, and with it, the Brockville (Ont.) Recorder, founded each in 1820. The Chronicle is edited by a gentleman well known in political circles and a distinguished parliamentarian—the Hon. Charles Annand The Brockville Recorder is the second oldest weekly paper in Ontario. It is edited now by Leavitt and Southworth. (An evening edition of the Recorder is now in its third year.)

The St. Catharines Fournal stands next, having been established in 1824; it has now a daily.

La Minerve, Montreal, follows in order, having been founded in 1826, by the late Hon. Louis M. Morin. It stands high as the leading organ of French Conservatism in Quebec province. Its editorials are conspicuous for vigor and point. Mr. Duvernay, the editor, has long been known in the political warfare of parties in the province. Mr. Dansereau is also associated in the conduct of its columns.

The Toronto Christian Guardian was established in 1829, and is the next; it is a weekly journal in the interest of the Wesleyan Methodist body, and was long conducted by the founder of the Ontario Common School system, the Rev. Dr. Edgerton Ryerson; the Rev. E. H. Dewart is present editor; the Guardian, after forty-seven years, still preserves its ancient vigor and usefulness.

The Woodstock, (N. B.) Carleton Sentinel and Picton (Ont.) Gazette, were the next in 1830, succeeded by the Coboury (Onc.) Star in 1831: the Yarmouth (N. S.) Herald, and the St. Andrews (N. B.) Standard, followed in 1833; the Sherbrooke (Que.) Gazette was also established in this year. The Gazette is among our very best rural journals, being well edited, and having a wide influence in what is known as the "Eastern Townships;" Bradford Brothers are the publishers.

The Kingston British Whig, established in 1834, follows the Gazette, and with it we couple the Belleville Intelligencer, founded in the same year. The Whig claims notice as being the first daily paper established in Ontario; and as such has—the high honour of being the father of that order of journalism in the west! Dr. Barker, one of the oldest settlers of Kingston, and well known in Canada political circles, was the editor and proprietor down to 1871; it is now conducted by his nephew, Mr. E. J. Barker Pense, and is the Kingston organ of the Reform party. The Whig editorials are forcible, and the status of the journal first class.

The Belleville Intelligencer, also 1834, was long owned by Mr. McKenzie Bowell, sometime grand master of the Ontario Orange Association; it has latterly become a daily, and is published by a joint-stock company; 1834 appears to have been a period of newspaper founding, as the Prescott Telegraph and Perth Courier were also started in that year. Proceeding in order, we have the St. John (N. B.) News, established in 1836, and the Halifax Christian Messenger in same year.

In bringing our review of journalism down thus far, we have preserved the dates of establishment in consecutive order, as near as possible, link by link, from the first in 1764 to the two last papers named. We will notice now, but in perhaps less order, the papers that remain, to which age, &c. would seem to attach any interest.

The Ottawa Cirizen was established in 1841, and was long known as "Bell's paper," having been conducted many years by the late ROBERT BELL, M.P.P. for Carlton County (Ont.) previous to Confederation.

The Toronto Globe appears next, and stands first, and pre-eminently $\sqrt{}$ the prince of newspapers in the Dominion. Established in 1844, by the late Peter Brown in conjunction with his son, the present Hon. George Brown, as a tri-weekly and shortly after as a daily, it has gone on increasing in circulation and political power, until its name has become a synonym of whatever is strong in Canadian journalism. The Globe, from its inception, has been in the interest of the Reform party of the country; and has been the means of advancing not a few of that shade of politics to position and preferment, not the least conspicuous of whom may be named the proprietor himself. The name of the Hon. George Brown is so completely one with that of the Globe, that, to disassociate them, would be to rend the fabric. It would be impossible in our space to give even an outline of the career and management of this newspaper, suffice it, that it is immediately controlled by the GLOBE PUBLISHING COMPANY of which Mr. Brown is Managing Director and principal shareholder. Mr. Gordon Brown, brother of the former, has been for many years one of its chief writers. The Hon. William McDougall, long conspicuous in Canadian politics, and sometime governor of Manitoba, was also for years a principal writer. The GLOBE is distinguished for keen and forcibly written editorials; and, what, perhaps, has more than anything else given it its present position—the promptness, fullness, and accuracy of its telegraphic news-reports. No labour, no expense, is spared, when a piece of fresh news is to be obtained. It has its branch offices in all the principal cities, and telegraphic correspondence in all the towns of the Dominion, also in London, England, cable telegrams from which may almost daily be seen in its columns. With such adjuncts, it is not surprising that the GLOBE takes the lead of all contemporaries. With the Reform party, it is needless to say it has ever been the pronounced mouthpiece and oracle; and to them it is indebted in largest measure for its success.

The Montreal Weekly Witness commenced in 1846, passing successively into tri-weekly in 1856 and daily in 1860, and we scarcely need say, has attained a high place among our Dominion newspapers. The WITNESS is essentially a religious-temperance daily, and the conspicuously moral tone of its columns, coupled with its vigor from its inception in the cause of temperance, has in large degree, secured for it its present position.

The Hamilton Spectator established in 1848, by the late ROBERT R. SMILEY, was long the leading conservative paper in Ontario; it is still vigorous and has a large circulation; it is owned by Lawson, McCulloch & Co.

The Hamilton Times, London Advertiser, London Herald and London Free Press, Toronto Leader, Brantford Courier, and a long list of minor papers, daily and weekly, were established between 1848 and the succeeding decade. The papers named, are first-class in their kind, and comprise some of the best enterprise and talent to be found in the Dominion.

We append a few words upon one or two daily papers of quite recent date, that have taken, both in influence and circulation, a leading stand in their respective localities, in common with their contemporaries already mentioned.

The St. John, N. B. Daily Telegraph, established in 1865, deserves special mention, not less for its sound political and commercial standing than for the high literary character it has maintained since its inception. Mr. William Elder, a gentleman of distinguished culture, has long been its chief editor and proprietor.

The Montreal Evening Star was established in 1869, and claims attention for the independent stand it has taken since its establishment. On all matters, social or political, the STAR has exhibited an energy of discussion and a freedom of opinion at once commendable. The paper was established by Messrs Marshall & Co., but almost immediately after was purchased by Mr. Hugh Graham, a young man nearly connected with the late E. H. Parsons of the old Evening Telegraph, a writer sufficiently known in his day. After long connection with the financial department of the Telegraph, and subsequently of the Gazette, Graham entered upon his enterprise of building up the STAR. How well he has succeeded, the paper to-day tells; for, after much struggle, small beginnings and fiercest rivalry, it stands forth at once the equal of any evening journal in the Dominion. This is attested by its circulation, which has so largely increased within the past two years. The STAR is printed on a "Prestonian" press, capable of turning off ten thousand copies per hour. The paper, from the first, has commended itself to the masses by the curt matter-of-fact style of its editorials, and the vigor with which it advocates the interests of the working-man. In a word, the STAR is one of a class of journals to be found in every large metropolis, and to the well-being of which, its presence is sufficiently essential.

The Toronto Mail, established in 1870, is the second most extensive / journal in point of size, circulation and influence in Ontario. Like its rival the Globe, it expends large sums in obtaining latest news. It has agencies in Montreal, and some other principal cities, and the telegrams and general reports found in its columns, are marked by promptitude and accuracy. The Mail is the organ of the Conservative Party in Ontario; and perhaps on no journal can a greater amount of editorial talent be found. It has a substantial circul, ion throughout the Dominion, and its influence is daily and deservedly on the increase. It is printed by a company, of which T. C. Patterson is manager; this gentleman is also editor-in chief.

We close this sketch by briefly remarking on the strides assumed by journalism in Canada within the last ten years. Statistical figures might be adduced to exhibit what those strides, at once so substantial in themselves, have actually been; such, however, we believe unnecessary; facts are patent enough to every observer. The increase in immigration, the opening up of railway communication, the extension and perfecting of telegraphy, and, more than all, the completeness and efficiency of our school-systems throughout the Dominion, have worked changes not to be mistaken. Every city has its round of dailies—every village and hamlet, its one to three weeklies. These are the sure indices of our national progress and enlightenment; the unerring registers that mark our advancement as a people now, and shall continue to do so in the future. What the next twenty years may effect, it is not for us to predict. That our law-makers may work for the good of the people and facilitate the press, by the lowest possible postage laws, &c. is what all must desire.

A GLANCE AT THE CONDITION OF THE DOMINION SINCE CONFEDERATION.

While journalism, as we have seen, indicates so substantial and gratifying a growth, evidencing as its does, the growth and advancement of ourselves as a nationality, we are led involuntarily to a passing glance at those other signs of progress everywhere apparent around us, and which are fast rendering our Dominion the admiration of the stranger, no less than the home each year of the thousands from foreign lands in search of wealth, social independence, and such thousand other requirements as conduce to the well-being and happiness of a free people.

That Confederation, after a full and, now fair and substantial trial, has fulfilled the objects of its inception and the designs of its originators, few will deny. This is seen at once, if other evidence were wanting, in the statistics of the accumulated wealth of the country, and the increase in the volume of its trade. From official figures published in 1874, it appeared that the trade transactions of the Dominion for the fiscal year named amounted to $217,255.772; while the returns for 1867 8—the first year of the Union—were only $129,553,194; increase $87,702,578.

The following table shewing the ratio of increase in Dominion commerce each year from that of Confederation to 1874, will be sufficient for our purpose and render the foregoing more complete:—

Year	1867-8	 	$129,553,194
	1869	 	127,876,951
	1870	 	144,811,093
	1871	 	161,121,100
	1872	 	190, 348, 779
	1873	 	211,304,516
	1874	 	217,255,772

Again: the amount of Banking capital in a country is an unerring index of its stability and progress. This is especially so when the Bank deposits are of permanent character, on which interest is paid. We give the subjoined comparative statement which, referring as it only does, to the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, may yet be taken in illustration of the progress in this particular department of the sister provinces generally.

The table is official; and exhibits the paid-up capital, deposits at call, deposits requiring notice, and the note circulation of the Quebec and Ontario Provinces, on May 31st, 1867, and September 30th, 1874:

	May 31, '67.	Sept. 30, '74.	Increase.
Cipital paid-up	$29,340,853	$56,906,418	$27,559,555
Deposits at call	14,256,754	40,183,880	25,927,116
Deposits requiring notice	13,984,580	35,223,967	21,238,387
Note circulation	8,444,787	25,912,212	17,467,425

The above indicates a growth in capital, the rapidity of which will perhaps in vain be looked for in any other country; especially when we remember that besides the seventy-five millions odd dollars deposits in 1874, there were over twenty millions more deposited in Government, Post Office, and other Savings Bnnks, not to speak of other large amounts in building and Loan Societies of which figures here are needless.

The receipts of the country since Confederation are another criterion of its progress. The following is a verified statement of our receipts for the six fiscal years preceding June 30th, 1873:

	1867-68	•	1868-69.		1869-70.	1870-71.	1871-72.	1872-73.
Customs	3,002,588					11,841,104 56 4,205,944 72
Post-Office, including Ocean Postage and Money Orders Public Works, including	525,691	80	535,315	14	573,565 84	612,630 67	652,87 9	832,196
Railways Bill Stamps Miscellaneous	901,466 119,712	83	129,664	81	134,047 22		1,110,981 189,616 1,319,972
				_		19,335,560 81

The Imports and Exports of the several Provinces previous to Confederation, were, save and except those of Quebec and Ontario, comparatively nominal, being sparse in variety and inconsiderable in value. The increase since our Union has been as conspicuous as any of the foregoing subjects we have touched upon. A comparative table is unnecessary, but the following will be found of interest as shewing the relative value of Imports and Exports of each Province in the year 1874:—

Ontario	$48,757,220	$25,679,169
Quebec	51,982,765	46,723,071
Nova Scotia	10,874,752	7,598,081
New Brunswick	10, 329, 391	6,245,867
Manitoba	1,472,220	797,762
British Columbia	2,047,585	2,120,694
Prince Edward Island	1,914,039	722,156

(We might enlarge ad infinitum on the increase in trade of various cities, were we to go anterior to the ten years preceding Confederation, but as our purpose is more particularly to compare the advantages of the latter, we decline, save in one instance, namely in Montreal. Twenty-five years ago the value of goods entered at the port of the latter, amounted to slightly over seven million dollars; the value of the same entered for the year 1874 ending June 30th, was forty-one millions, three hundred and forty thousand, nine hundred and fifty-six dollars.)

Space would not serve us to enlarge further on the commercial prosperity of our Dominion, sufficient that such prosperity is everywhere apparent; and, as we have shewn, is steadily and rapidly on the increase. What we need, and need only, is population and its concomitant wealth—an increase and continued flow of immigration and capital from the old world. "Canada," in the words of the late Hon. T. D. McGee, "needs men, and men, and more men." That the country is correctly estimated abroad as a field for the immigrant, we have abundant proof in the numbers landing weekly from each ship; and, with the facilities afforded by the Dominion and several Provincial Governments to immigrants arriving, such influx must continue, and the population of our country be in short time doubled.
