MR. FOSTER SAYS SENTIMENT GOVERNS SUBSIDIES.

Ottawa, July 9.—In the house this forenoon in answer to a question by Mr. Monk regarding the correspondence between Hon. R. W. Scott and ex-Lieutenant Governor McInnes, the prime minister said: "The secretary of state sent no correspondence to the lieutenant governor of British Columbia, but Mr. Scott wrote to Mr. McInnes some purely personal letters as a friend to a friend. Such correspondence of course cannot be published."

Sir Adolphe Caron said that nearly all the mails were sent by New York. Hon. Mr. Fielding replied that at no time within the last ten years had the service in Canada been such as to approach the efficiency of the New York service. That being the case commercial men marked their letters by New York. The only way that Canada could be arranged with the Allans was to give up the terminus in Canada for one in Portland, which they would not do.

Mr. Richardson, of Lisgar, was told by the finance minister that the most recent information from the west was that the crops were far better than anticipated a few weeks ago, but in any case, Hon. Mr. Fielding added, it was not the intention of the government to remove the $2 a ton duty on hay, or to make any more tariff changes this session. In answer to Mr. Powell, Hon. Mr. Blair said that the cost of the transportation of the Canadian contingents, Stratford's horse and the Halifax battalion and all the supplies by the Intercolonial was $25,775, $8,337 and $1,232 respectively. Mr. Lacombe, of Provencher, took up two hours talking about a disputed homestead, which Hon. Mr. Sifton explained and after which the house went into supply. On the item of $151,000 for ocean and mail service to Great Britain, Sir Richard Cartwright explained that a contract was given the Allans for this service, but owing to the British government having taken some of their vessels, for war purposes, they refused to carry it out. The Allans were to have received $101,817 for the work. A contract, however, was closed with the only other parties who were available, the Elder-Dempster line for $150,000. The Allans wanted to call at Portland but the government did not want to have the winter port in the United States as had been the case under the late government. The present government did not want to give up St. John. The service which the Allans were to give was a trip of seven days in summer and eight days in winter. The Elder-Dempster line was to give a service of 73 days in summer and eight days in winter. For this they get $2,500 from Montreal to Liverpool and $3,500 from Liverpool to St. John calling at Halifax, which was about eleven or twelve thousand dollars less than the Allans contract. The Allans were to get $2,700 from Montreal to Liverpool in summer. The Elder-Dempster service was not what he expected and the whole matter was now under consideration. He had power to cancel the contract.

Mr. Foster—Does the hon. gentleman intend to make a motion for the deterioration of the class of vessels? Sir Richard Cartwright said yes. The service was about 20 hours worse than the Allans'. He asked the Allans to join hands with the Elder-Dempster people, who also complained of being crippled through some of their best vessels being taken for the war, but the Allans refused. "What the Allans did do was to offer to two or three months to carry the mails to Portland until such time as the war was over but the government refused to give up a Canadian port for Portland and insisted on St. John as the terminus. That was a point upon which the government insisted even if an inferior service had to be put up with."

PRINCE CHING IS OPPOSING PRINCE TSIAN.

The Foreigners in Peking Are Probably Alive and Being Protected by a Champion of the Present Dynasty —A Message from MacDonald.

London, July 10, 3.25 a. m.—With the foreigners in Peking, probably safe amidst civil war with Prince Ching on their side, and the powers united and their forces constantly increasing, the outlook in China is rather more hopeful than it has been for a month past. It appears from the cautious statements given out by Tao Tai Sheng in Shanghai that the reason that the heavy guns bearing on the legations at Peking were not used, is that Prince Ching, who is served by 10,000 troops, seized all the artillery ammunition. Sheng likewise intimates that Yung Lu, commander-in-chief of the northern army, is associated with Prince Ching in opposing Prince Tsian's ferocious designs and dictatorial communications, but takes excessive precautions to prevent the Chinese from thinking him friendly to the foreigners.

From a foreign view point the capture of Peking is the key to the situation as there is a fear, says the Daily Mail's Shanghai correspondent that delay now means 100 recruits for the Boxers for every soldier of the allies in the land. Sir Claude MacDonald.

Two couriers arrived at Tien Tsin on July 1, from Peking. One brought a letter from Sir Claude MacDonald, the British minister to the same effect as the previous ones from Sir Robert Hart. The couriers confirm the reports of the death of Baron von Ketteler. They say that Prince Ching is doing his best to keep the foreigners out of the native feeling against the whites is very strong. Two high officials, opposed to the Boxers, are reported by the couriers to have been executed.

London, July 10.—Addressing the first naval division prior to its departure for China today, Emperor William said: "Yours is the first division of armored ships which I send abroad. Remember, you will have to do a man's work, provided the German blood which has flowed. But, spare the women and children. I shall not rest until the Boxers and their bloody deeds are avenged. You will fight together with the troops of various nationalities. See that you maintain good comradship with them."

The emperor is ordering more vessels to get ready for China. The latest order prepares small, but excellent, cruisers and a division of new torpedo boats. They are expected to arrive by the middle of August, before the troops will be used for river service and communications between the coast and the interior. The attitude of the Russian press is considered unexplainable, as official assurances have been given by both the Russian ambassador to Germany, Count Oster-Sacken, and the German ambassador at St. Petersburg, Prince Radolin, that the emperor did not mean by his recent speeches a separate declaration of war against France.

Washington, July 9.—A cabinet meeting was held at the state department today for the discussion of the latest developments in the Chinese situation. There were present Secretaries Hay, Long and Root and Attorney General Griggs. There is good reason for the belief that Admiral Kempff's latest dispatch telling of the military necessities of the case was the basis of discussion. The question at issue is understood, is the sending of reinforcements to China from the Philippines pending the arrival of the troops ordered to the coast from the United States. It is realized that only a small portion of the 6,000 troops ordered from this country will arrive out for two or three months at the earliest and that the troops in the Philippines are the only ones that can be utilized for operations in China within the next month. If action on a large scale is to be had at once it will be necessary to call on the troops in the Philippines. If war should result from the present troubles and the struggle be prolonged, the troops in the United States now under orders for the Philippines will be available in due course of time. It was rumored today that the officials had

CANADIANS STILL FIGURE IN LORD ROBERTS' REPORTS.

London, July 10.—As Lord Roberts' despatches reveal, the Boers are unusually active, both in the Orange colony and the so-called pacified western Transvaal, but without producing any serious impression upon the British arms. The Boer leaders at the Cape are extending their boycott of British firms, and Dutch companies with £200,000 capital, have been formed. Passengers arriving at Lorenzo Marques on July 9 from Middleburg, say there has been severe fighting between the latter place and Machadodorp, in which the Boers were defeated and demoralized. The Lorenzo Marques correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says under date of July 9: "I understand that Mr. Hollis, the American consul here, has been recalled. He is a well-known pro-Boer."

London, July 9.—Lord Roberts telegraphs to the war office from Pretoria as follows: "The officer commanding at Heilbron reports that State Secretary Bignaud, State Attorney Dickson and members of the council Van der Merwe and Kuppervogel came in yesterday and surrendered. Heilbron was attacked yesterday in a position he was holding by a large number of Boers. He cut them off without much difficulty. The 5-inch guns with him being found most useful. Our only casualty was Lieut. Young of the first Canadian mounted troops, slightly wounded. The enemy left several scalp wounds on the ground and sent a flag of truce with a request that they might be received in our field hospital. "I regret to say that Capt. Currie and Lieut. Kirk, of the Imperial Light Horse, who were reported wounded in my telegram of yesterday, were both killed. One squadron of this distinguished corps pressed a very severe force of the enemy in a gallant attempt to carry off a wounded comrade, to which they attributed the heavy loss sustained. "In addition to the officers, A. Farrar, sergeant, and three troopers were killed and the sergeant-major, three sergeants and seven troopers wounded."

Women Protest Against Annexation.

Cape Town, July 9.—At a meeting of Afrikaner women here today, called to protest against the annexation of the republic to the British Empire and the punishment of the rebels, Mrs. Olive Schreiner Crownright denounced the British policy. She said she was ashamed of her English descent and added: "If the republics are annexed; if the Afrikaners are opposed, peace is impossible. Every trench of Boer dead is a grave of England's honor. Every bullet making a wound also finds a billet in the hearts of the Empire."

Washington, July 9.—Developments in the Chinese situation were considered by members of the cabinet at a consultation held today. The participants explained their conference by saying that it was the first opportunity that had occurred lately to get together as many as four of the cabinet members for consultation. Results followed in the shape of renewed activity in the dispatch of reinforcements to China. Admiral Kempff's cablegram, giving his estimate of the amount of force he regarded as necessary to represent the United States properly in the movement upon Peking, was carefully considered. An agreement was reached to say nothing about the admiral's figures, on the ground that it would be impolitic to make our needs known to the Chinese in the first

The Tardy Concession Can Have No Effect Upon the Fate of the Foreigners in Pekin—The Capital Flows With Blood—Prince Tuan Overwhelmed the Chinese Government.

London, July 6, 2.40 a. m.—The Russian government announces that it will give Japan a free hand to apply military force in China. The terms of this concession are summarized in the subjoined despatch from St. Petersburg, under date of July 6, in reply to an inquiry from the Japanese cabinet, regarding the despatch of Japanese troops to China to render aid to the foreigners in Pekin, the Russian government declared on May 27, that it should not object to the Japanese troops if action in this connection, and the Tokio cabinet expressed its readiness to act in agreement with the other powers.

It is in consequence of this, no doubt, that Japan is preparing to embark 20,000 more troops.

Political Considerations. It is thought to have been the intention of the powers to have been thus laid aside, for a moment at least, by the government supposed to have the clearest purpose respecting China's future. Japan's sending of troops now can have little bearing on the fate of the foreigners in Pekin.

Not Harmonious. From these authoritative utterances it is inferred that Japan does not nominate conditions and that the concert of the powers is a little jangled.

A Stamped. Prince Tuan's coup d'etat is described by the Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail as a sequence to the grand council of ministers at which Yung Lu advocated the suppression of the Boxers promptly.

How the Taku Forts Were Taken. Victoria, B. C., July 5.—Details of the bombardment of the Taku forts at the mouth of the Peiho River by the allied fleets in the early morning of June 17, reached here yesterday by the steamer Jun Maru, which sailed from Yokohama on June 29.

The allied fleets had sent an ultimatum to the Chinese in the forts, having noticed the massing of troops and defensive preparations. The Chinese were given time to consider. This had been granted, and fearing no hostile movement on the part of the forts, a number of gunboats were anchored inside the bar.

The first few rounds from the Chinese batteries were harmless, the gunners firing wildly. But soon the gunners found the range and the incoming gunboats suffered. A number of Chinese shells struck the British gunboat Algerine and the German gunboat Itis, both being somewhat damaged. They were quickly got out of the bombardment position, and the larger vessels without the bar replied to the fire from the forts. The scene is described as a most thrilling one, the many searchlights sweeping, and the shells bursting over the forts and the ships.

For seven hours the bombardment, which commenced at 1 a. m., continued. The Yorktown, as is known, did not join in the attack on the forts, when she was run out of her dangerous position.

ment were the British gunboat Algerine and torpedo-boat destroyers Fame and Whiting, the French gunboat Lion, the German Itis, the Russian gunboats Giljak, Bohr and Korjetz, and the Japanese Atago.

Four Chinese gunboats, and the Hai Lung, Hai Nju, Hai Ching and Hai Hoha, all of which were built in Germany for the Chinese government, were lying near the mouth of the Peiho. The British torpedo-boat destroyers Fame and Whiting engaged these vessels while the larger ships were shelling the forts.

The Chinese vessels struck their flags after a short running fight and became captives of the British craft. All the destroyers engaged had a speed of thirty knots. During the fighting two British merchant launches anchored in the Peiho River, were struck by shells and foundered. On the bombardment vessels the loss of life was not so great. The greatest loss was on the Russian gunboat Korjetz, from an explosion. The Algerine and the Itis were both damaged while they were lying inshore and the Giljak was severely damaged. Some shells struck her just below the water line.

Soon after daylight the attack by land began. The Russian, German and Japanese troops held off to guard Tongku station, attacked the fort, and, after a resolute bayonet charge, drove back the Chinese and scaled the walls with bamboo ladders. Coincidentally forces from the ships were landed on the Taku side. All the vessels lowered a number of men and the Chinese outside the point were driven back with great loss of life. Hundreds of Chinese are reported to have been killed as they fled northward. The forts, which were soon afterwards opposed, were found to have been demolished by the fire of the heavy guns of the allied warships. Dead Chinese were strewn everywhere. Russian troops landed to the northward, and the sin troops handed to the flying Chinese and a large number of the fugitives were killed by the Russians. The loss of the Chinese is placed at 400 by some correspondents, and even larger by others. The carnage is described as awful.

A Japanese paper says in describing the bombardment: "This is the first time the history of Japan that her troops have fought side by side with those of European nations, and we are glad to think that they have found an occasion to distinguish themselves so signally."

Bound for Home on the Parisian.

Toronto, July 6.—(Special)—The Telegram's special cable from London says thirty Canadian invalids from South Africa, who have been in the English hospitals under treatment for wounds and diseases, sailed yesterday by the steamer Parisian for Canada. The invalids, but it is not noticeable that it did not evoke any widespread enthusiasm among those who were at the pier, and the only cheering which was heard on the pier was that of the New Yorkers getting to their feet and protesting against the departure of the steamer. Adlai E. Stevenson Nominated by the Democrats for the Vice-Presidency of the United States—David B. Hill, of New York, Finally Declined the Honor.

Kansas City, Mo., July 6.—The Democratic national ticket was completed today by the nomination of Adlai E. Stevenson for vice-president. The nomination was made on the first ballot, state after state joining in the wild scramble to record their support of the winning candidate. It was not accompanied by any such frantic demonstration of approval as had marked the proceedings at previous stages and though the result followed a swift and almost unbroken course, the contest between the advocates of Stevenson, Tamm, Hill and the lesser candidates. The distinct triumph of the day in the way of a point of view was that recorded to Senator Hill and in its spontaneity and enthusiasm was one of the most notable features of the convention.

The Proceedings Today. moved with greater briskness than on the two preceding days for there was none of the tedious waits for platform and no light was truly democratic when the session began. Anticipating the close of the convention the general public crowded into the hall, and the result was a most interesting and available seat in this arena and here this afternoon from two or three adventurous individuals scaled the iron rails and looked down from a dizzy height on the 3,000 people packed below. The crowd practically took possession of the body of the hall, not only filling every available seat in this arena and here this afternoon from two or three adventurous individuals scaled the iron rails and looked down from a dizzy height on the 3,000 people packed below.

The mention of his name was the signal for a flattering demonstration in his honor, men and women joining in the outburst. Far off in a corner of the auditorium a man in a dark suit and a top hat, who had been in the lithograph of the Minnesota and in the other stars and stripes. On the floor, Nebraska, Minnesota and others, but it was noticeable that it did not evoke any widespread enthusiasm among those who were at the pier, and the only cheering which was heard on the pier was that of the New Yorkers getting to their feet and protesting against the departure of the steamer.

Hill as the Vortex of a struggling throng of delegates. They pressed forward from all quarters of the hall urging him to permit his name to be placed before the convention. The face of the New Yorker was a study as the demands upon him came from all sides. He stood in the front row of delegates and Senator Murphy on his immediate left. A second seat away was Mr. Croker. Hill protested vociferously. Delaware was seated beside him to join to obey the will of the convention and accept. While the pleading continued the call for New York yielded heartily to the New York delegates. At this time a bulky form of Senator Grady, the silver tongued orator of New York, stepped to the platform. There was a hush through the hall to hear what word New York had to offer.

"In behalf of the United Democracy of New York," shouted Grady, "I present as a candidate for vice-president the name of David Bennett Hill."

The Effect was Electrical and a tidal wave of enthusiastic approval swept over the convention. Delegates stood on their chairs and waved frantically, for in few scattered groups but in a solid phalanx. Flags and standards were again mingled in triumphant procession through the great structure. Grady stood while a roar as from Niagara pulsed through the great structure. Grady stood while a roar as from Niagara pulsed through the great structure. Grady stood while a roar as from Niagara pulsed through the great structure.

Stevenson was a Strong Favorite. State after state seconded his nomination—Georgia, Indiana, Virginia, Iowa, Kentucky, Illinois, some of the devoted friends of Hill still maintain their allegiance to him and the delegation of New Jersey, Louisiana and some others. A number of favorite sons also were placed in nomination, Maryland bringing forward Governor John Hamilton Lewis; North Carolina nominating Col. Julian Carr, and Ohio presenting the name of A. W. Patrick. It was after 2 o'clock when the seconding speeches were concluded, and the balloting began. As the roll was about to be called, Mr. Lewis appeared on the platform and in a few well chosen words withdrew from the contest. The vote was followed with intense interest, for when Alabama announced three for Stevenson and nineteen for Hill it looked as if it had a strong lead. At the close of the roll he had 293 votes, which, however, was not enough to nominate, the requisite two-thirds being 621. Hill had received 200 votes and Tamm 89. But before the announcement of the result, a strong line of delegates from Tennessee stood on his chair and announced: "Tennessee changes her 21 votes from Hill to Stevenson."

That started the tide irresistibly toward Stevenson. From every quarter of the hall came demands for recognition. Alabama changed to Stevenson, California from Carr same. North Carolina changed from Carr same. Even New York finally and reluctantly announced its change from Hill to Stevenson. That ended the contest for some time longer the various states continued to record their changes from one nomination to another. It was made unanimous. Its announcement was greeted with enthusiastic approval and again standard-bearers and banners were loaned for building in tribute to the party nominee.

The building was completely covered with corrugated iron and enclosed by thick brick walls, and the latter alone saved a row of tenement houses in the rear of the storehouse. that the road from the Natal frontier to the Boer capital is clear, and that the British are in full possession of the line of country between the two places. The only Boer forces that now exist are those in the Orange State, which are with President Steyn and those which are with Kruger in the northern part of the Transvaal, somewhere on the line of railway between Pretoria and the Portuguese border. The overwhelming British forces are closing in rapidly on Steyn, who will be forced to surrender in a few days, and as for Kruger, he will either be driven to the mountains or die in the last ditch, or he will have to follow Mr. Steyn's example and yield himself up a prisoner of war. Although the Boers are showing a good deal of activity and are trying to create difficulties by attacks on detached posts, there is no reason to suppose that they have any great heart in the contest as it is being carried on at present.

The correspondent of the New York Evening Post who is with the Boers, and who has displayed such remarkable sympathy for them in his letters, gives a description of the retirement from Kruisfontein which does not agree very well with the idea that had prevailed of the heroism of those people. They seemed at that time to have no leader who had any influence over them, and while there were a few men who were prepared for all extremities, the majority of the Boers were more anxious to go home than to remain in the train of either Mr. Steyn or Mr. Kruger.

The following extract from the letter of this correspondent will show the condition the Boers were in on the evening of May when General Roberts was approaching Kruisfontein:

All through the week, timid, or discouraged, or tired out, or perhaps had been straggling back from that somewhat indefinite frontier known as 'the front,' like the men of all other countries, there are those who are nervous, and there are those who are tall, there is a vast amount of tall talk about fighting to the end, of death in the face, of English domination, but I cannot help noticing that there has been in the recent days of the campaign in the Free State, a very considerable percentage of Boers who seemed to dislike the idea of dying for their country in too close proximity to the British army. One night indeed they believed that an empty stomach, or a disreputable, or a charitable towards the victim of the combination.

"The tide of stragglers increased on Thursday, and there was a promise of a day of them on Friday morning. At an early hour on that day, President Steyn was in the saddle riding out to meet them and turn them back. He had with him a number of military organizations, this might have been possible even then, although it would really have been useless. With such a disorganized mass, the task was hopeless as that of the old lady who tried to sweep back the Atlantic ocean. Mr. Steyn sought to stay them by every means in his power. He begged, he entreated, and he threatened. He appealed to their manhood and their patriotism. He placed some under arrest. A few returned to the lines, though not many of them stay there. This revolt was not that of a prince-stricken nob, but rather an utter loss of a disheartened and discouraged mass in the face of an overwhelming force.

As the above was written by a friend and partisan of the Boers, we accept it as a truthful picture of their condition at that time, and as nothing has since occurred to give them any further encouragement, it shows clearly enough that while it may be in the interest of Steyn and Kruger and a few others to prolong the contest, the majority of them under their own private concerns.

OUR CANADIAN SOLDIERS.

The high praise which the conduct of our Canadian soldiers is receiving from General Roberts is very gratifying to the people of the Dominion. Although the men we sent out to South Africa were not trained soldiers, in the professional sense, they proved themselves to be as useful and as efficient as the men belonging to the British army. No regrets have done their part better than those which went from Canada. The first contingent has been in as many battles as any British regiment, and we need not claim any higher praise for them than that. They have displayed an attitude for military service which is quite remarkable, in view of the fact that hardly any of them had seen any military service before.

No doubt the presence of so many colonial soldiers in South Africa will be valuable to the regulars themselves and will serve to dissipate many erroneous ideas which have become imbedded in the traditions of the service. One thing which the British regulars will discover, which does not seem to be an inferior race, is that the colonials are not an inferior race, but that man for man they are quite as good as themselves. It is astonishing the amount of ignorance which still prevails in England with regard to colonial affairs. It is not so very long ago that many of the common people in England thought that the colonists were all black men. If Tommy Atkins ever had this idea in his head, he will now know better, and after the war is over and he goes home he will be able to tell his comrades that he met colonists from Canada, Australia and New Zealand who were as brave and as well disciplined as any troops in the British service. If the war has no other result it will have one great effect in knitting the colonies and the mother country more closely together, and in removing misunderstandings which may have existed between them with regard to each other.

A NEGLECTED ANNIVERSARY.

There is one anniversary that the people of St. John have never kept, although it is certainly as well worthy of their attention as some that are always observed by them. We refer to the discovery of the St. John River by Champlain. The readers of Acadia history will not need to be told that it was on the 21st of June, 1604, that Champlain first visited the St. John River and as the day was that of St. John the Baptist he called the river by the name which it has ever since borne, the St. John. The festival of St. John the Baptist is kept in the province of Quebec with great ceremony, and it is also observed among the Acadian inhabitants of New Brunswick, but the people of St. John, who have the best right to remember it, have never given it the slightest degree of attention. Four years hence the three hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the river St. John will have come around, and then it would seem to be a suitable occasion for the people to make up for their former neglect and have a celebration worthy of the city and of the great event which the day commemorates.

When it is remembered that Champlain was the first man who has given any account of the river St. John, so that he was practically its discoverer, it will be evident that the day when he first visited it is one well worthy of our regard. We trust that before the three hundredth anniversary comes around, our people will have come to the conclusion that it is their duty to mark this festival with something great in the way of a celebration. There is, however, plenty of time to discuss the manner in which this celebration ought to be carried out. In the meantime we invite any of our readers who may have ideas on this subject to give us the benefit of them, and we will be glad to publish any communication bearing on this subject which seems to be worthy of public attention.

UNITED LIBERALS.

While the members of the Conservative party in parliament are quarrelling among themselves, some of them actually not being on speaking terms, the Liberals are displaying a solid front and the harmony of a united family. The dinner which was given at Ottawa on Saturday evening to the Liberal members of the House of Commons and senate, and the Liberal representatives of the press gallery, was aptly termed by our correspondent "the largest and most successful banquet ever given within the precincts of the parliament building." Mr. S. D. Scott, of the Sun, is however, not well pleased at the dinner, and he has endeavored to belittle it in his Ottawa correspondence. Possibly one reason for the Sun's disgust is the fact that the Hon. John Costigan, who held a cabinet position in the last Conservative government, was one of the Liberal members of the House of Commons and senate, and he is said to have given one of the best speeches of the evening. These things are naturally disheartening to the disorganized and disunited Conservatives, who see nothing but defeat staring them in the face when the elections come on. The best thing that their parliamentary agents have been able to do brings them out in a considerable minority in the next House of Commons and the news of this has naturally led his way to the different members of the party, who are apparently, not recently, in the opinion that something would happen to restore them to power. With Canada prospering as it is under Liberal rule and with Mr. Birmingham threatening to expose the rascalities of the Conservative party to which he belongs, the prospects of Tory success at the general elections are too small to be worth calculating.

THE COAL OIL QUESTION.

The Tory plan of campaign seems to be based on the assumption that the people of Canada are blind, deaf and idiotic. At all events it is impossible to reconcile their course with any other view. Day after day members in the house make the most absurd and unwarranted statements, and their journals are even more unscrupulous. Here is an illustration. The Mail and Empire persistently asserts that the Standard Oil Company was granted legislation by the present government which has enabled that company to obtain a monopoly in Canada and to raise the price of oil. As everyone knows who has cared to give the matter attention, the Standard Oil Company has not obtained any legislation at Ottawa, neither directly nor indirectly. The privilege of importing coal oil in tanks was not a measure in the interest of that company, but was intended to cheapen the cost of oil to consumers. And that has been the effect. No one in his senses would believe that cheaper methods of bringing in coal oil could possibly lead to a higher price being charged for that product. The thing is too absurd to be seriously discussed. The price of coal oil has undoubtedly advanced three cents per gallon, but the advance has been uniform in both Canada and the United States. It has not been due to anything affected by the tank privilege. Indeed coal oil would be just so much dearer in Canada if it were not for this privilege. But the mere fact that oil has gone up in the market, due wholly to the advance in the crude product, has been seized upon by the operators of the government as a pretext for raising the discriminating rates on the railways. It had the Canadian producer at its mercy, for it was the only purchaser of crude, and it raised the oil from fifteen cents to twenty-five cents a gallon.

The statement that the Standard Company "gave itself discriminating rates on the railways" is ridiculous. We wonder what measure of success would attend the effort of any manufacturing company in Canada to "give itself" discriminating rates? Shippers do not make their own rates in this country, but so far as the Standard Oil Company managed to secure the dishonest and unjust co-operation of the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk railways in applying discriminating rates the Mail and Empire should have been sufficiently decent and fair to say that the minister of railways took the matter up with a firm hand and cancelled the rates.

As to the price of oil having been increased ten cents a gallon, there is not a dealer nor a consumer in the land who does not know that the statement is untrue. Not only are they untrue, but they are absurdly so. We have obtained quotations from Toronto, where this statement was made, as to the wholesale price of oil. On the day the Mail and Empire made the assertion quoted above, the price of oil at Toronto was 16 cents per gallon for the Canadian product, and 19 cents for the American.

Before the tank was introduced into effect the price was thirteen cents and eighteen cents respectively. If an advance of ten cents per gallon had occurred the price today should be 23 cents and 28 cents. The rise of three cents per gallon was due to the cause we have indicated. If this statement of the facts is incorrect, our morning contemporary would be only too glad to point out the error, but we challenge it now to prove to the contrary, or to question the further statement that the Chinese of St. John are not the most prominent element of the population, we presume that by their arrest it may be inferred that other gambling dens in the city have been closed and that there are no quiet pool games going on in any part of it. It appears that the total amount of cash that was involved in the gambling of the Chiamen was $14, which does not appear to be a large sum to those who are familiar with the manner in which some games are carried on, or were carried on formerly in this city. No doubt the Chinese who have been wasting their money in gambling will accept this arrest as a warning against indulging in any future operations of this character, and we trust that if there are any quiet resorts in town in which while men are gambling, they will not wait for the police to surprise them, but will permanently abandon the pernicious habit. Certainly a city of the size of St. John which has no gamblers but a few Chinese washmen is a very happy community, and our freedom from all such wickedness ought to be advertised by the Tourist Association as one of the leading attractions of St. John.

Two months ago the Mail and Empire declared that coal oil had advanced eight cents per gallon as the result of the tanking privilege. One month ago it raised the figure to eight cents. Now it has got up to ten cents. At this rate, if the elections are delayed much longer, it will get up beyond the present retail price. Oil is dear enough, but it would be dearer if it were not for the privilege of importing in tanks.

The chief Tory organ asserts that "every industry Mr. Fording has touched has been injured." The facts show otherwise. Every industry in Canada is flourishing as never before, and during the eleven months of the fiscal year just closed, our manufacturers exported $5,000,000 more of their products than in 1896. They can stand a good deal of injury of that nature.

"On the Yukon deal the contractors stood to make $14,000,000; this was the value of the proposed land grant to them."—Mail and Empire.

Then the railway was to cost nothing? It generally costs something to build 155 miles of railway 800 miles from civilization, and in a mountainous country. But who valued the land grant, and how did they determine its value?

Labor Gazette Editor.

Ottawa, July 9—It is said that John King, B. A., graduate of Toronto University, Mr. King takes an interest in labor problems.

greater industrial activity and more genuine prosperity among all classes than ever before in the history of the Dominion.

The present government is said by opponents to have increased taxation. The very opposite is true. The tariff has been lowered, and the free list has been increased. But what about postage? There is no form of taxation which more directly reaches every class of the community. Can it be said that the reduction from three to two cents was another one of the means cunningly devised by the Grits to sweat the people?

The Mail and Empire says that recent elections in New Brunswick show the dissatisfaction which exists in this province with the present government. This will be news to New Brunswickers who remember that in the general contest along strictly party lines, they took place a little over a year ago, the Foster party won four seats out of 46. Nothing has since occurred to alter the meaning of that verdict, as Mr. Foster could very well tell the Mail and Empire.

During eleven months of the current fiscal year there was an increase in the exportation of fish amounting to $1,235,191, as compared with the corresponding period in 1899. At the same time there was an increase of $2,801,565 in exports of lumber. Both these interests concern us in the maritime provinces, and it would seem that we are commencing to share more largely in the general prosperity which prevails throughout the Dominion.

The common council has agreed to purchase the land upon which the Court block stood provided it can be obtained for $40,000. A great many people are of the opinion that this purchase by the city is not necessary and that the money might be put to a better use in many ways. The Court block has always been used for business purposes and might be used again in the same way.

It is, of course, part of the Tory plan of campaign to insist that Liberals are annexationists. This slander appears every day in one or more of the opposition papers. It must be particularly distasteful to Liberals to be thus misrepresented, but they have the satisfaction at least of knowing that the charge is untrue and that it is not believed by those whom it is intended to influence.

Sir Charles Tupper says he was given a degree by Cambridge because he had united two oceans, but that Sir Wilfrid Laurier got his degree from the same university, and he speaks in two languages. That is Sir Charles' modest way of putting it. He might, however, have said that Sir Wilfrid had done more than Sir Charles man living to unite two oceans. They could claim no credit in that regard.

The Sun blandly tells us that Mr. Powell is not opposed to the Intercolonial extension to Montreal. This is certainly very considerate on Mr. Powell's part. He is the leader in the movement to block the extension, and took up a couple of hours' time the other day in an effort to show that the extension had been a failure. His conversion has been tardy; but even the most rebellious find a day of grace.

Down in their hearts the Tories do not so much object to the fact that the government is spending more money, as to the way it is being spent. They know that it is being laid out honestly, and upon useful works that cannot fail to command popular approval. There are no McGreevy contracts, nor Curran bridges under the present ministry.

The Tories at Ottawa worked themselves into an alarming panic over the probable amount of the railway subsidies. They were telling everybody that when the list came down it would foot up $20,000,000. When the statement was presented the amount involved was only some $3,000,000. How is it that the Tories, who initiated the subsidy policy, are now so desperately afraid of having it carried out by the Liberals?

concluded to dispatch additional troops from the Philippines to assist in the proposed relief movement against Peking for the possible rescue of the foreign ministers and residents, but it was impossible to verify the rumor in official circles. Those people who originated it seemed to be positive of its accuracy and even went so far into detail as to assert that the fourth and eighteenth regiments of infantry now serving in the vicinity of Manila have actually been ordered to prepare for embarkation to Taku.

Secretary Root was questioned in regard to the report late this afternoon, but declined in the most positive manner to commit himself on the question. He would not say that no more troops will be sent to China from the Philippines, nor would he admit that such a movement was in contemplation.

Japan's Position.

St. Petersburg, July 9—Authoritative information just obtained confirms the report that Russia has consented and is even desirous that Japan should actively cooperate in the evacuation of China. Russia places no limit on the number of Japanese troops to be employed and stipulates that this agreement is not to constitute a mandate whereby Japan will obtain a privileged position. Japan, it is added, must co-operate in the work of pacification on the same conditions as the other powers.

The Times Doubts.

London, July 10—The Times this morning says: "Some Chinese officials are evidently desirous to have the legation in Europe that the legations in Peking are still under the protection of one section of the Chinese army. But that only makes it more remarkable that they should not employ the only convincing argument by allowing direct communication between the ministers and the outside world. We are not wish to insist too strongly upon this aspect, but those circumstantial rumors lack the confirmation so easily supplied if they are true."

The Black Regiment.

London, July 9—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Chefoo announces under date of July 7, that the Ninth United States Infantry has arrived at Taku.

Victoria Dairy Association.

The Victoria Dairy Association held its quarterly session and picnic dinner at the quarterly session and picnic dinner at Barseville on Friday, July 6. Quite a large crowd assembled in the Orange Hall. The morning session was called to order at 10 o'clock. Mr. Donald Innis, president, in the chair. After a few introductory remarks Mr. Innis introduced Mr. W. S. Tompkins, of Middle Southey, who spoke for three-quarters of an hour on the conditions which must be provided by the patrons of the butter factory in order to obtain the best results from that institution.

At the close of the address a picnic dinner was served on the grounds of Mr. Baird.

The afternoon session was called to order at 2 o'clock. A large crowd had gathered in the hall. Mr. Tompkins was again called upon and spoke for an hour and a quarter on the possibilities of the farmer as a patron to the butter factories. The speaker went very fully into the details of the patron's duty and the great possibilities in the farmer's power of increasing his revenue from his cows.

On visiting the factory at Andover he had found that the butter fat in the milk received from the different patrons varied from 8.3 per cent to 4.4 per cent, a very pronounced discrepancy in the value of the milk which can only be rectified by the farmer himself in the evening, and by proper selection or by intelligent breeding secure a herd that will give a higher per cent of butter fat. He strongly urged the farmer to get acquainted with the individual cows of his herd, not simply to know them by sight, but to know what quality of work they were doing; whether they were doing their cows at a profit or whether some of the cows in the herd were depreciating the profits of the others. To determine this he requires no more business ability than his does for your butter maker, to make his part of the business profitable. The Babcock test is within reach of every farmer. By this means he is enabled to determine the value of the individuals of his herd.

Having secured quality in your milk you must get it to the factory in the best possible condition. The success of the creamery just started in this district, depends very largely on the quality of the milk. Mr. Tompkins went upon the market the very best quality of butter, and he cannot do this unless you provide for him the very best quality of milk. To do this requires close attention to the milk from the time it is drawn from the cow until it leaves your premises for the factory. Milk when drawn from the cow, possesses animal heat or odor, which, if not eliminated by aeration, will give a bad flavor to the butter. Then care should be taken that the utensils, especially the cans, are kept perfectly clean and bright. Mr. Tompkins spoke of the profits accruing to the farmer in maintaining the June flow of milk all through the summer. He strongly advocated having the cows fresher in the fall so as to be in good condition for the winter. The speaker took up the question of preparing better feed for the cows for both summer and winter. At the close of this interesting address Mr. Manzer was called upon and expressed his gratification at the encouraging prospects he had for the success for the factory. Besides the large amount of butter he was shipping to Liverpool he had orders from the very best butter in the province, hotels at summer resorts.

Mr. Pickett, the president of the Agricultural Society, spoke of the good work being accomplished by that institution and urged every farmer to become a member and have the use of pure bred stock. By request of the audience, Mr. Tompkins was recalled to speak on turning grapes into the province.

At the close of the meeting a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Tompkins for his valuable services for the day. The speaker, in replying, said that while he appreciated the very hearty vote of thanks, they were indebted to the department of agriculture for what services he had rendered them.
