

DEC.

CHIGNECTO POST AND BORDERED

SACKVILLE, N. B., DEC. 6th 1894.

SACKVILLE'S PUBLIC BUILDING.

We present to day some of the views given by our citizens on the subject of "converting the old Ford store into a public building. It will be seen that the people are tolerably unanimous against such a proposal, which ought to have some weight in preventing such a measure. A lot of correspondence on the subject has been withheld for the present, as it opens questions which it may not be necessary to touch. The opinion of the community is unanimous as well as emphatic against the proposal.

NO POLICY.

Hon. Messrs. Davies, Longley, and Fielding have been addressing the public at St. John and other places in this province, and Mr. Davies in others making a stumping tour in Nova Scotia. The Conservative press has been critically examining the speeches of these gentlemen to find out if the Liberal party has a policy and if so, what it is. The nearest approach to a policy was the alleged utterance by Mr. Davies at Woodstock that the Liberal party would provide revenue by tariff levied all around, on free as well as dutiable goods of about 16 per cent. This statement, he has, however, since denied, and in the absence of any official declaration, it may be concluded that the Liberal party intends to go to the country without the enunciation of any policy or principles whatever.

We cannot but admit that this course has its advantages. In former contests the Liberals were swamped by carrying too much sail. They had too much policy. Every election since 1873, they have lost by asking the country to support, exactly what the country did not want. They do not propose to make that mistake in 1895. There is therefore an element of wisdom in attacking the dominant party both for its policy and its administrative acts, without revealing any vulnerable points to be attacked in return, or setting targets for the Conservative. Of course the independent elector will recognize that a party that asks for support for a policy, which it declines to submit to the people, does not occupy the highest or most courageous position.

In the absence of any declaration of policy or principles by the Liberal party as opposed to the Conservative party, it may be assumed that there are no radical differences between the two parties, on the score of principles, and that the differences are limited to administrative methods and the personality between the men and the out. The position largely goes to an admission that the Liberals cannot find a safe tariff policy, in place of the present one.

The Post, reviewing the Tariff from an independent point of view, votes two changes that would both increase the revenue and decrease taxation. The first one is to restore the duty on sugar; the second is to make the tariff on dutiable goods as nearly as possible uniform one of twenty-five per cent, instead of the multitudinous rates now charged, which are an aggravation to importers. Such industries as find a natural root in this country, will in nearly all cases grow and thrive under a 25 per cent tariff, and such a tariff will possess the merit of simplicity, will protect those industries that deserve protection, and reduce the burden of taxation.

THE MUSES AT SACKVILLE.

Commodore Stewart of the Chatham World, sorrowfully remarks that the Muses that rise and spread their wings like mist from a rose-garden at sunrise at Mt. Allison have perished by shock or suicide, owing to the bad treatment received from the Post, and have taken up their abode either in the Progress office, St. John, or at Renous river, whose loud illuminates the pages of the World. We are aware that the literary world has had its eyes fixed on Renous river, not only for the treasures of poetry inspired on its banks, but also for the treasures in the depths of its "muddy waters," namely its casks, which are said to be detectable. We will not minify a spot endeared to the poetic heart of the north by the possession of a two-fold claim, namely charming poetry and superior casks, but we cannot allow the foul aspiration to go forth that the Muses have been killed or departed from the classic shades of Mount Allison. Look at Smith! We do not mean D. G., but Professor Smith, not Goldwin, with whom he might be confounded, but J. Herschel, the author of the "Sarcastical enigma" and who wrote:

"The Proleties were all a myth,
Till worked by me J. Herschel Smith."
Smith lives in a little place outside of Sackville known as Amherst, with in sight and inspiration of our nymph and fairy haunted retreats.

We have no Dantes, but we have Miltons, whose genius, of the obituary kind well accords with the family poem "Il Penseroso":

"Dearest Billy, thou hast left us
And gone with the angels of light.
To join with the angels in singing
And meet those that are gone before."
Has the genial Commodore in his admiration for the poet of Renous River and for the sect of localists, and we would not dispute the Commodore's judgment as to the merits of fried eels, forgot the partnership excursion made by C. P. Mulvaney and A. H. Chandler, in the regions of Parnassus in which the former in a fit of dyspeptic wrath painted Sackville:

"This barren sand strewn red of bleak sea-scorpions,
Of plotting thieves and bitter ton g impure."

Roberts himself was nurtured here and our winds and tides, our marshes and woodlands have filled him full of song.

"Wind of the summer afternoon
Thou hast recalled my childhood's June!"

A note of waves and rushing tides,
Where past the eddies the red flood glides
To brim the shining channels far,
Up the green plains of Tantramar.

The songs of Beau Sejour by a gifted daughter of Port Cumberland; the patriotic verse of Matthew Richey Knight; the peripatetic poetry of Colonel Scott the gallant Editor of the Star; the Addisonian prose of Astra and the bright humor of Geoffrey Cuthbert Strange to which Progress owes much of its popularity; the song writings of Elizabeth Gostwick Roberts, who was born within sound of the flowing tides of Beau Basin—all these evidences must convince the Commodore that while Renous River can boast of its bard and its eels the true seat of divine afflatus is still on the heights of Mt. Allison and within easy access of the office of this paper.

A letter from A. concerning the J. C. R. time table suggests a slight change which should meet with the favorable consideration of the railway authorities could not but be a great accommodation to the travelling public. The change would benefit many other beside commercial travellers.

New Public Building Wanted.

FORD'S OLD STORE IS CONDEMNED A SA FOR MARKSHEET—A BRICK BUILDING NEW BUILDING DEMANDED.

Mr. W. B. DIXON, Manager of the Enterprise Foundry Co., when asked whether he approved of turning the old Ford building into a public building, said that such a make shift would not meet public expectations. The people had been looking forward to the erection of a brick or stone building on Crane's Corner for public offices and would be much disappointed if no effort was made to secure it. He believed that a brick building on the large or expensive design ought to be erected and would not doubt pay as an investment. This is a growing place, and such a building in the most central locality would increase in value and could be used for other purposes than public offices.

Mr. F. McDONALD, of the Merchants Bank said: I think it better to stay in the present building, valuable as it is, for a year or two longer, which will at least keep open the prospect of obtaining a new and suitable public building for Post office and customs.

The old office stands a living, daily petition to the powers that be of Sackville's need in this respect. Surely it is not policy to shelve the question of a new building, which is a generation, which to my mind, the patching up of an old landmark is sure to do.

This is a case where the old adage: "Half a loaf is better than no bread"—is at fault. Moncton, Amherst, Truro and New Glasgow, each expensive public buildings provided by the Government. I mention this because Sackville must soon overtake these, in a measure, rival towns, on the road of progress, and will therefore be in a position to press her claims to a successful issue, if not now.

Mr. THOS. ESTABROOKS, Proprietor of the Brunswick House, said that to fix over the old Ford building would be a great mistake on Mr. Wood's part, and would be strongly repented by the people. That the building is a safe one, and that the people would be well served by the erection of a new building, which would be a credit to the place but a poor one will only hurt it.

Mr. GEO. E. FORD, Merchant, thought that no one in Sackville would be found to favor making over the old building, which he believed the old building was not adapted for the purpose of a Post Office. The people had been looking forward for years to a very convenient season when better accommodations in the way of a post office might be provided, and now they were entitled to better building. Sackville is progressing and will continue so and the building would be in keeping with this progress.

PROF. W. W. ANDREWS, said: I am heartily in sympathy with the article in the "Post" calling for the erection of a brick or stone building at Crane's Corner for public offices and also to the suggestion made by Mr. W. B. DIXON, M. C. A. and other purposes. While it would meet the commercial requirements of the place, it would fulfil the want that is generally expressed by our best citizens that a place under good and proper influences should be provided that will attract young men and provide recreation and amusement.

MR. H. A. FOWELL, M. P. F., thought it very desirable to have a new post office. He thought suitable building for post office, customs, and Y. M. C. A. could be erected for $7500, and that the rents would be sufficient after providing for depreciation and expenses of repairs to make the investment a fair one. He thought that a new building would be a credit to the place and a poor one would be a disgrace.

MR. WALTER CHAMBERLAIN, J. P., said that Sackville after having waited patiently so many years would be much disappointed at having to accept a make over of putting up a brick building by a joint stock company was feasible.

MR. C. PICKARD, Dry-goods merchant thought that to give the people of Sackville an old building made over, after years of patient waiting was nothing short of an outrage. If we cannot have a decent post office we had better keep the old one. Mr. Pickard thought there was money enough in Sackville to provide a respectable brick building for custom house and post office and that capital invested in a public building for Sackville would pay better than if put in a cotton factory to build up some other town.

MR. THOS. MURRAY, of the Halifax Banking Co. said the need of Sackville was a good building. The business men want such a building and money should be got for it. Our men are entreprening enough. To invest money in Moncton and Truro and let the returns would show as good an investment as in Sackville. Mr. Murray thought the investment would be a good one for anyone.

MR. F. G. GEORGE, Farmer of Upper Sackville, said that it was an outrage to take the old building for a post office and that Sackville should have as good a post office as Amherst or Sussex.

MR. H. PICKARD, Merchant, was strongly in favor of making a new building. We have had too much making over post offices now. If a company could be organized Mr. Pickard thought the investment might prove a paying one.

THOMAS SEAN, ship owner, said the old Ford store made into a public building would not give any lasting satisfaction as an old wooden building would be constantly going down. He favored erecting a brick or stone building worthy of the place and the site and considered anything else a mistake.

JAMES BARNES, Manager of the W. U. Telegraph Co's office here is strongly of the opinion that we need a new building. The present facilities both in accommodation afforded and in position are simply disgraceful. An old wooden building made over would be little better than the present one. What is needed is a good building in a good position.

Of the firm of Horsler and Cass said the people have waited so long they have a right to expect a decent building now. It is not using Sackville right to give us an old-fashioned make over building. Our public building should be a credit, not a disgrace to the place.

MR. R. M. FULTON, Hardware merchant, favored a new building. The old store, which would be an improvement on the present post office but Sackville deserved something better.

CAPT. F. HANSON, Merchant, thought Sackville should have a good brick building constructed on the corner by a joint stock company.

MR. W. L. GOODWIN, Proprietor of the Sackville Book Store thought if the people of Sackville contented themselves with a make over they would never get a new one. Ford's old store would be better than the present one but we should have something better. Mr. Goodwin favored the erection of a good substantial building.

MR. WOODFORD TURNER, Boot and shoe merchant said a new building should be put up and that it ought to prove a good investment.

DR. J. W. SARGENT, Dentist, stated that the old Ford store was a miserable building and that if the people of Sackville would put up with that they deserved nothing better.

MR. H. R. FAWCETT, Merchant, stated that the old building was not worth repairing and that his opinion in favor of a new building could not be stated too strongly.

I. C. R. Time Table.

MR. EDITOR.—Mr. Postlager would add very much to the excellent accommodation offered by the present time table of I. C. R. if he would make a change, which could be done without material if any expense. There is a train that leaves Moncton after midnight for Spring Hill, returning the morning of. If this train left at 8 p. m. is 20 o'clock after the arrival of the last train from St. John and after the last regular train leave Moncton, it would serve two purposes. When the C. P. R. train is late—as it often is during the period of the winter—passengers could remain at St. John till about 5 o'clock and leaving there in the northern train could connect with the Spring Hill train at Moncton. In the event of a late arrival, the passengers could remain at St. John till about 5 o'clock and leaving there in the northern train could connect with the Spring Hill train at Moncton. In the event of a late arrival, the passengers could remain at St. John till about 5 o'clock and leaving there in the northern train could connect with the Spring Hill train at Moncton. Dorchester.

On Friday evening 23rd inst a few of the many friends of the Rev and Mrs S. W. Keirstead assembled at the parsonage to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. During the evening a sumptuous repast that had been provided by the ladies was partaken of. A large number of friends were present to the Rev and Mrs Keirstead. After listening to the music provided by the young ladies the company dispersed having spent a very pleasant evening and leaving behind them many good wishes.

While driving home Mrs J. S. Frank and Miss Edith Milton were upset the carriage running too near the edge of the road Mrs Milton had her head and shoulder Frank and Miss Milton escaped uninjured. Mrs Milton is proving.

The young people of Dorchester Cape and vicinity had a very pleasant surprise party at Mr Martin Cole's on Monday evening. Dancing was the order of the evening music being furnished by the popular musician Mr. Thomas Milligan.

Westmorland Point.

The weather of late has assumed quite a wintry aspect, although taking the old sign as a guide our winter is not likely to be at all severe, as the three first days of Dec. have been very moderate.

Miss Mary Firman, who has been suffering from an attack of temporary insanity has almost entirely recovered. Her neighbors and friends feel pleased with her improvement as she is a very industrious and worthy woman.

An order of the royal templars of temperance has been organized in the village where they met for the first time Tuesday evening of each week. Those who have associated themselves with the order say it affords a very reasonable and easy means of securing a life policy or sick benefit privilege.

Miss Amelia Miner who has a class in music at East Amherst, spent Sunday at her home at Mount Watley. She gives a special preference for the study of music, and is considered very clever for her short experience in that profession.

As last Sunday was the beginning of the church revival season being the commencement of the season of advent, a continuation of special services will be held in St. Mark's church on each successive Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. As the pastor is very desirous that these meetings be largely attended, he trusts all those who are any way religiously disposed will make a special effort to attend the services regularly, he hopes to secure the assistance of some of the neighboring clergy to aid in the service.

A musical and literary entertainment is in course of preparation by the school assisted by some of the best talent of the place. An elaborate programme is being arranged and the ladies are furnishing a supply of very palatable sweetmeats including ice-cream and other equally tasty and delicious viands. As the object is to secure means to better furnish and improve the interests of the school room independent of the regular funds, and as it speaks the well for the interest the teacher is taking in the welfare of the school, being held under his auspices, and the very nominal price of admittance should induce at least all who are at all interested in school affairs to attend.

Missionary Life in British Columbia.

Rev. John Spencer and wife, daughter of Rev. T. D. Hart of Sackville, whose marriage at Port Simpson, B. C., we reported a short time since arrived at Kippax, the head station of his mission, on Saturday evening Sept. 29th.

This village of 400 population, of the Kitchikan tribe of Indians is two hundred miles up the Skeena River in latitude 55½ north longitude 107½ west. Mr. Spencer took with him from Victoria house furniture including cooking stove and winter supplies and from his own garden will have cabbage, turnips, parsnips, carrots, etc.; so his log house of four furnished rooms will expect to show the nations something of the manners of civilized life. A year since the number of this tribe embraced the religion of Christ and have made such marked progress that already their condition is much improved. Mr. Spencer in past years had traveled in canoe along the coast waters, but the trip up the river was a new and interesting experience. Landing from the steamer at Seatington at the mouth of the river, two weeks were spent waiting for the mighty rush of waters to subside. The first boat was a short one to Aberdeen. By the kindness of Mr. Noble Mr. and Mrs. Spencer had the use of a furnished house for the thirty hours delay. As soon as the down pour of rain permitted the final towing of cargo was accomplished. All useless boxes and barrels were left and the goods pressed into every available inch of the spacious "loghouse." At one o'clock a m. "O'clock" and his cheery crew of four, governed more by time than time, announced their readiness to move on the rising tide predicted still water for a period, but soon was met by the river falling on an average of five feet to three miles throughout its length.

Miles of comparatively still waters are passed, but they soon give place to greater steps of rushing, bounding, seething tide. Usually a landing was effected at a point reached by a night when great camp fires warm and guard the sleeping crew. Dinner was also prepared and eaten on shore. Sabbath was a day of rest, quietly observed on shore under canvas, with devotional exercises. These landings gave an opportunity to observe the vast piles of drift wood found in many places along the rivers course; whole trees of great proportions, pressed in with broken fragments and forming mounds so wide and high that one might easily suppose whole forests had been swept by the restless waters to furnish material for these vast accumulations. Ever and anon, beautiful groves of cotton wood, extending along to the gravelly beach where the sparkling waters dance in the sunlight, form an ideal spot for a summer day's rest, quite a contrast to the gloom of the river.

When we have "where the canoe was split and all the crew lost," "where men were washed over," "where a body was found," "where the cargo was lost," "where a quiet retreat "where sacrifices were offered to the great spirit" in past years before entering the river. Painful and delightful to use, it relieves instantly, and permanently cures Catarrh, Hay Fever, Headache, Sore throat, Tonsillitis and Deafness. 60 cents. At A. Dixon.

REV. M. TOMLINSON'S House and village of civilized Indians are seen from the river. Who will write the history of that history?

At the head of an independent mission teaching the natives to utilize the resources of the country, canning fruit, vegetables and fish; sawing lumber, in short building up the institutions of a civilized country. Necessarily his own children must lose many advantages enjoyed by mission children, but his civilization in many years has established improved conditions.

REV. PIERCE of Indian blood, well educated, and his wife who was formerly a teacher on the coast, the change of a mission and home formed an interesting village in sight of the river.

REVS. NEVILLE AND COLE, young men, in missions widely separated are each laying the foundations for a future grand result. But step from a College Residence to a little log cabin where on a sheet iron stove, near a pine slab table, the missionary cooks his own venison and after two hours study, seeks repose in his narrow bunk by the wall. Such a life is not to be endured by the hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ.

At six o'clock Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Spencer were glad to enter their mission house rather than spend another night under their 7x8 foot canvas tent. But they were not finished before the first Chief and his son called; then others of lesser rank arrived to pay their respects; thus the missionaries received a kindly welcome, though perhaps disturbed in the effort to collect thought for the two sermons for the morrow to be delivered in the Kitchikan language.

Donation Wedding Anniversaries.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POST. Allow me to express my views on "Wedding Anniversaries" in the columns of your valuable paper, and oblige a subscriber.

Joliceur has been doing a thriving business during the past year in the shape of Donation Wedding Anniversaries. In fact, donation is the sum total of such events. Weddings are held for the purpose of showing the presents, and wedding anniversaries held every five, ten, or fifteen years for the purpose of getting in a new supply donated by the respected couple's most particular friends who are not expected to present themselves on these certain occasions with out first presenting something suitable and appropriate for the event. Often checks are presented and viewed and remarked upon by those present, but after the "show is over" they are made worthless by a slight movement of the hand, attached to the particular donor.

After the guests, or donors rather, have departed, comes the critical part of the affair, telling the public how highly they are esteemed by the public. Such, I call "donation wedding anniversaries," that have been held in Joliceur lately.

—Croke the Oxford burglar who was caught red handed on Thursday night Nov 22 has been sentenced to two years at Dorchester. Croke is a blacksmith by trade and has a wife and two children living at Oxford.

—The saw mill at Truemanville, belonging to Jas A. John, and Thompson Trueman, was destroyed by fire at an early hour Friday morning. An Indian woman who lives in the locality said she heard a team stop at the mill about 1 o'clock and shortly afterward the mill was discovered to be on fire. All the saws and belting were destroyed together with some 500 bushels of crushed grain. The loss will probably be near $1000. The mill was completely overhauled and refitted last fall and was in good working order.

To Be Wedded.—The St. John's Globe says: The Portland Library is soon to lose its trusted librarian, Miss Carrie L. Jordan. During the Christmas vacation she will be married to Rev. Dr. Stewart, of Mount Allison, and will remove to Sackville.

The marriage of Miss Emma second daughter of the late Richard Wry to Aubrey F. Fawcett is announced to take place the 12th inst. at the bride's residence in Lower Sackville. Rev. W. C. Vincent officiates.

Invitations are out for the marriage at Fort Lawrence on Wednesday next of Miss Nettie E., daughter of Mrs. J. Travis Smith of Fort Lawrence, to Albert P. Snowden, of Sackville.

PRESENTATION.—Mrs. M. Welch who has kept boarders at Middle Sackville for many years and is now retiring from that business to live with her daughter in Boston gave an order supper to a number of friends Tuesday evening.

When the supper was over Mr. C. B. Herritt presented Mrs. Welch with a handsome seal skin sash and a pair of friends present and as a mark of the high esteem in which she is held.

LAW OFFICE AT MONCTON.—Mr. Frank Harrison of Sackville who passed his examination as attorney a few weeks ago will enter the law firm of Powell & Bennett the first of the year and will change of a branch office in Moncton. The Moncton office will be conducted by Powell and Harrison; the Sackville one by Powell & Bennett.

SHIPPING NEWS.—Mr. Thos. Egan, managing agent of the Alaska, Capt. R. H. McPherson, received a telegram Tuesday from Shelburne, N. S. saying that the vessel had lost mail and mail and mail. She was bound from Wallace to New York. The Alaska proved unfortunate this season having lost her ribs in May.

Brig's Herbert Robinson, cleared on Monday for Demerara with lumber, hay and oats.

REPORT SAYS BARQUE SIDDARTHA, Captain Rogers, from Cape Tormentine, N. S., for Manchester, which departed on Thursday, had lost much of her deckload during the heavy weather which she experienced.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING.—On Sunday afternoon, Dec. 9th, at 3.30 o'clock standard, a young men's meeting will be held in Powell's Hall. All young men are earnestly invited to attend and bring the hymn book used in their own church. It is the purpose to have good music and singing, led by a double quartet of male voices.

Prof. A. W. Turner will deliver an address to the young men and present to them plans for the winter. Many invitations have been sent out but those who have not received them will please regard this as an invitation. It is desired to make the meetings large as possible.

MISSIONARY SUNDAY.—The Services in the Sackville Methodist Church on the coming Sabbath, Dec. 9th are to be of more than ordinary interest.

Anniversary of the Missionary Society is to be held and both Services of that day will be given up to the consideration of this great enterprise of the Church. Dr. Lathern of Halifax will preach the sermon in the morning and address on serious aspects of Christian business will be given in the evening by Dr. Lathern, Dr. Borden and others. The Annual Missionary Services have been occasions of great interest and it is hoped that the approaching Sabbath in that respect will be fully equal to those of the past years. The services of the Church are free and the kindest invitation is extended to all. The usual special collections will be taken up on behalf of the funds of the Missionary Society.

Obit.—A great deal of sympathy is felt by the community for Professor and Mrs. A. D. Smith in the great loss they have sustained by the death of their only daughter who died on Wednesday morning, after a lingering illness of tuberculosis. Miss Smith was a very amiable and promising young lady and her death is a severe blow to her family and friends. The funeral takes place tomorrow afternoon at 2 p. m.

BOOK NOTICES.—The current number of the Methodist magazine contains a short piece by Rev. W. Harrison of Sackville who is a frequent contributor to its columns. The magazine will be enlarged in 1895 and will contain 300 fine engravings. Among the features will be "John Wesley's Relations to his own age" by Dr. Allison and an illustrated article by Rev. W. Harrison on "Walks in London."

Among publications lately received is the Canadian number of the New York Coal Trade Journal which deals exhaustively with the great coal interests of Canada. It is profusely illustrated.

The November number of the Canadian Shoe and Leather Journal is a very handsome edition. It contains an interesting article on the Maritime Provinces' Shoe Trade.

The Canadian Almanac for 1895 has a full and interesting table of contents. Besides the astronomical society and other like data, there is a list of the British squadron in both the Atlantic and the Pacific, with accounts of the naval establishments at Halifax and Esquimaux.

There is also an unusually large amount of military information, with Canadian flags, etc., a list of vessels in the coast and fishing defences. Dr. Bourne contributes a paper on Canadian parliamentary practice. Statistics are given of the various British colonies; the tariff and other like information is very complete. The clergy lists are full and good, and altogether there is ample return in the way of compiled information for the twenty cents which will buy it. Published by the Copp, Clark Co. (Limited), Toronto.

Mr. Hugh Murray of Wolan, Mass was married on Tuesday by Rev. C. W. Hamilton to Miss Jennie daughter of James Main Esq. of Bayfield. A sumptuous wedding feast was served. The happy couple are now in Springfield where they will make a short visit and then return to their home in Wolan. The full account of the ceremony which attracted a lot for insertion will appear next week.

PATTERSON.—Read. At the residence of the bride's father, Mr. J. H. Patterson, on Nov. 28th, Mr. J. H. Patterson was united in marriage to Miss Jennie Main Esq. of Bayfield. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. B. Lavers before a very large assembly. The presents were numerous and very handsome.
