this city to a motorist, charged with driving a car while intoxicated, was handed down today by Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon in police court, when he sentenced Mrs. Alice Jones, 136 Grey street, to serve 15 days in the

Mrs. Jones was arrested last nigh in front of the Western Fair main entrance, racing her large touring car among the crowds in the street Earlier in the evening she had struck the rear of another motor and severely injured William Marshall, 552 Horton street, who was in the act of cranking his car when the smash occurred. He was dragged beneath his sister and brother, obtained the number of the touring car as it backed away from the scene of the accident and disappeared.

Most Aggravated. Branding the case as the most ag-gravated one which has come to his attention, Magistrate Graydon de-clared that Mrs. Jones was utterly heartless and brutal in her action. "The most unfortunate part about the affair is that you are a woman." Magistrate Graydon told Mrs. Jones In court today. "You might have killed a man. The case is particularly aggravating, coming at a time like this, when the exhibition is in pro-gress, and the streets are crowded. If something is not done to stop this it will go on forever. I feel inclined o inflict the maximum penalty in this

According to the evidence of two onstables who were on duty Western Fair grounds at 10:30 last night, the touring car approached the Dundas street entrance in leaps, the notor racing at full speed. Con-stable William Snell walked over to the car and found the driver, Mrs. Jones, intoxicated. He and Constable James Aitken placed Mrs. Jones under arrest, who was accompanied by another woman in the back seat, and drove the car to the police sta-

MAYOR WENIGE'S PORTRAIT AT THE FAIR.

This portrait of Mayor Wenige by a Chicago artist is on exhibition in the Crystal Palace at the Western Fair, where it has attracted a great deal of interest and attention. For some reason it appears to have met with Mr. Wenige's disfavor, because he has unsuccessfully attempted to have the exhibit withdrawn and has since issued a paid statement in the local news.

oundaries, this year's large enrollment at the public, as well as sec ondary schools, suggest problems in the matter of accommodation before

According to figures available to day at the offices of the school inspectors this month's public registration is the largest in the history of the city schools. There are already 8,529 pupils registered, increase of fifty over September of 1923. Registration is believed to be only slightly more than 85 per cent complete.

"Comparison between September of this year and September of last year is the only fair way to base a report," Inspector G. A. Wheable said today. "There will be many pupils leaving the city, others coming in, and some removed because of sick-ness. We make all our reports on a onthly basis.

Last year, while the attendance was high, it was not so great as the previous year—1922-23 has previously held the high record for school attendance.
Total Registrations.

Total registrations to date in eac of the schools are: Aberdeen, 596; Alexandra, 348; Boyle Memorial, 461; Charles street, 87; Chelsea Green, 64; Chesley avenue, 602; Ealing, 446; Empress avenue, 434; Knollwood, 134; Lord Roberts, 405; Lorne avenue, Rectory street, 340; Riverview, Ryerson, 363; Simcoe street, St. Georges, 597; Talbot street, gar, 246; Victoria, 443; Wortley road, 501.

These figures include 724 kinder garten pupils. In the auxiliary classes there are 100 children, including those at the preventorium.

It is suggested that by making a year to year census of children under school age, better arrangements for accommodations can be made.

By ELEANORE BROWNE. Since kings are effete and it's con-sidered hard luck to be a prince, just why is the Prince of Wales? He's a bright young man, most ecople agree, but on the other hand he's a mere royal scion who'd have to start in as office boy if he had to

In truth there are some good reasons why the future subjects of this heir to the British throne should look upon their prince as many another prince. He takes a stubborn notion, once in a while, to let the people know all about who and what he is! He can snub a dowager or an earl, or ignore a pompous lord mayor, as austerely as the most oppressive of his ancestors. He can lose his temper over such little things as a commone's forgetfulness to put on gloves before touching the royal hand and he can remind that protector of the common people, the prime minister, that prime ministers are what

Trouble Started.

And his feet were no more than firmly planted on the red carpet that morning in Leeds than trouble began. The lord mayor had never received his king's son before. Doubtless he had been chosen for his office that adds to his popularity. In work, the country responds as gan. The lord mayor had never received his king's son before. Came to Leeds.

The prince once came to Leeds, England. The sturdy people of Leeds are factory folk who acknowledge not autocracy but that of the factory whistle. When their candidates for parliament are short of language.

Harried equerries rushed ahead to whistle. When their candidates for parliament are short of language they hold up their hands, and the pair with the majority of callouses fringing the palms is the pair that goes up to London to show the "nobs" up to London to show the "nobs" what sort of laws to make. There's an aversion to "nobs" at Leeds.

When the royal train arrived at 10:15 sharp, the crowds became a sea of waving handkerchiefs. The royal carpet was placed just right. There's an old engineer of royal trains that wouldn't die content unless assured in advance that his subbing they got for not knowing that when a fellow puts on his prince failed to stop his train with the steps squarely over the royal carpet. It was by no means Eddie Windsor who stepped down into the hollow steps squarely over the royal carpet. It was by no means Eddie Windsor who stepped down into the hollow square of gentlemen in attendance. It was, if you please, His Royal Highness, son of his august father. There's magic in the royal red carpet. It transforms Edward, invariably, into a grim descendant of the Black Prince.

Trouble Started.

Unlike his grandfather, King Edheaded back to town, the young word, and despite popular American belief, the Prince of Wales sets no fashions for Piccadilly Johnnies. He responded to the ovation from pit and stalls, was rumored, proposed to pay England a visit on the wave of her royally inspired popularity. Audience Stirred.

Suddenly the audience stirred in its seats. A scene was being shown on the screen in which—well, one must not be too definite! And the young lady at the other end of the foot was supposed to be an ancestress of England's royal family, not one amployment and keen the men in the Suddenly the audience stirred in of England's royal family, not of unblemished report, but still an ancestress. Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, Sept. 8 .- From the far north comes a story of jealousy violence and tragedy, and finally justice administered under the midnight sun on the shores of the Arctic Ocean. The case is that of Ikalupiak, copper Eskimo, who was charged with murder of Kavougach another of the same race, on November 15, 1921. The trial of Ikalupial took place on July 5 of the presen year, after a judicial party had trav elled 2,000 miles from Edmonton to Aklavik on the delta of the Mackenzie River to hold it. The result was a sentence of five years in Stoney Mountain penitentiary, Manitoba, on manslaughter conviction

Adopted By the Family.

The story told at the trial on boar ne steamship Distributor wa briefly, that Ikalupiak, a boy of 18, had been taken in as a member of their family by Havougach and his wife, Khattiah, that Havougach be-came jealous of the young man, to whom, it is supposed, Khattiah was reason to fear an attack. Finally on a day when the two men had gone for several miles away from the snow houses, the tragedy occurred. It was claimed by the defence that the prisoner had gone out unarmed, while Kavougach carried both a knife and a gun. The latter was discovered by in the act of attacking Whether or not this is the fac Havougach was found with a bullet

The True Story of the Mayor's Picture!

Man's Labor Should Be Commended and Not Condemned

The Mayor's Desire To Aid the Deserving Has Again Been Misconstrued By the So-Called Philanthropic Few

Several months ago, a highly-cultured colored gentleman—a citizen and taxpayer of the City of London-called on the Mayor. He showed credentials that proved beyond doubt that at one time he had been employed as an artist by one of the largest art galleries in the City of Chicago, and the leading art journals commented very favorably upon the work produced by this gentleman, showing that at least some of his pictures were in great demand.

Through unfortunate circumstances beyond his control, which caused the change of his occupation and necessitated his again taking up his residence in his native city of London, he left Chicago. This gentleman had approached many of the so-called philanthropic citizens in his desire to obtain lucrative employment in his chosen profession. In many cases he was promised the opportunity to show his talent, but in every case they failed to "come through."

This circumstance forced the artist to accept a position as a laborer, at which he is today employed, at a wage that hardly permits him to live, and there are hundreds working under the same wage conditions in the City of London. As my sympathies are with this man and many others in his condition, it has been my aim to advocate that every honest man should make a better living.

Being persistent to still follow his chosen profession, this artist called on the Mayor and laid his case before him, and the Mayor as usual "came across" in a practical way, not in a theoretical way, and assisted the artist by giving him an opportunity to display his ability.

Now, then, after many years away from his chosen profession, he painted the Mayor's picture and HE DID THE BEST HE COULD, which is all anyone can do in any line of endeavor, and a better job in his line than, for instance, many editors and news writers do, who rely on scissors, paste and copying or writing sensational stories, rather than use their own ability.

There is a fine opportunity here for the so-called philanthropists of London who have the means (and there are many of them) to "come across" and assist this artist to develop his talent.

Now, let's have a show of hands.

Yours to assist London, its talent and its workers.

H New Discovery

Is in store for every visitor to the Mason & Risch Booth at the London Exhibition, who has not yet heard the glorious tonal beauty of the Mason & Risch Piano.

Franz Liszt, the greatest musician of all time, said of the Mason & Risch Piano, "It is excellent, magnificent, unequaled. Artists, judges and the public will be of the same opinion."

The full, clear, singing tone of the Mason & Risch Piano has captivated the greatest musical artist of both the past and present generation.

An enviable thrill of pleasure awaits the hearer of a Mason & Risch Piano for the first time. And an ever-increasing pride of possession is the satisfaction it brings to the home it adorns and dignifies with the charm and beauty of music, for all time.

Is She Justified in Taking Another Man's Love When Her Husband Has Grown Cold?-How Can Wife No. 2 Make Him Stop Idealizing No. 1?—The Man Whose Wife Objects to Smoking.

Dear Miss Dix-Four years ago when I married my husband I loved him better than any one on earth, but now he has grown cold toward me. He never speaks a single word of appreciation and affection to me, and finds fault with everything I do or say. He never takes me anywhere, but he has his diversions with his men friends in the way of athletic sports. In eye been true to him and have tried every way to hold him, but in vain, for he is the kind of man who takes his wife for granted and thinks that she is a fixed piece of machinery in the home to grind all day long. The result is that I have ceased to love him. Now I love another. and my heart is being eaten out with longing for a little devotion. I cannot live without love, but I cannot leave my husband, either, for we have a baby to raise

What shall I do about the man I love and who loves me? ACHING HEART.

Your case is another example of the truth that so many men are too blind to see that when a man ceases to make love to his wife some other man generally begins. There would be mighty few cases of alienation of the affections if it were not for the contributory negligence of the husband or wife who was too lazy, or too careless, to keep the love that had been intrusted to his or her care. The trouble with a lot of husbands is that they are so selfconceited that they think if a woman has once loved them she is just bound to go on loving them to the end.

Such a man never realizes that the flame of a woman's love burns out you don't keep putting fresh fuel on the fire. Nor does it cross his wedding on Wednesday, Aug. 27. mind that there is very little that will keep a woman interested and enthusiastic about a man who never notices how she looks or what she does, and who doesn't care enough for her to try to bring all the happiness and pleasure he can into her life.

Still less do such men realize that their wives cease to love them they are very apt to fall in love with some other man, and that the other man is generally waiting around the corner for the indifferent husband to leave the door unlatched for him to walk in Moreover, under such circumstances even the best of women will take love unlawfully if they cannot get it honestly, as a starving man will steal a loaf for which he hungers.

Without doubt, your husband is this type of man. Probably he loves you as much as ever, but having got you he does not feel called upon to make any exertion to keep you, so he has grown outwardly indifferent. Your best plan is to wake him up by letting him know that he is in danger

So far as the other man is concerned, put him out of your life at once. Two wrongs never made a right. A married woman who listens to the love-making of another man dishonors herself and is pretty sure to bring disgrace upon all connected with her. Forbidden fruit is always tempting, but it turns to dust and ashes on our lips. Go straight for your sake and that of your child. Your first duty is to it. And it is not true that you cannot live without love. There are lots of interesting things in the world besides sentimental love. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix-I am a second wife. My husband's first wife has been dead five years, but he continually visits her relatives alone, never taking me with him. My predecessor was a blonde, very pretty and dainty, and dressed well, so my husband says. She also took life easily, went about a lot and left husband to get his own meals and often hers. But he was generous to her, and seems to have been proud of her.

I am a brunette, not pretty but a hard worker and a good cook, and always have good meals prepared for my husband. But he is very stingy with me and gives me virtually nothing for clothes or to spend on myself How am I ever going to get my husband to think as much of me as he did of his first wife and to get him to live in the present with me instead of the past with her? Why, he even calls me by her name! And how can I make him realize that I am a better wife than No. I was? I make him realize that I am a better wife than No. 1 was?

You know the old saying about "blessings brighten as they fade." Evidently your husband's case is an illustration of this. Now that his first wife is gone, he idealizes her and attributes to her charms and virtues which she never possessed. It is often said that the only perfect wives and husbands are the dead ones.

AN ADMIRER.

his dear, lamented wife was evidently exactly the sort of a wife that he wanted, I had determined to imitate her in every way. I would go and get myself a lot of pretty clothes so that I also could be dainty, and I would lie in bed and let him get his own breakfast as she did, and I would go off and not come home of an evening as she did. And when he got back from work he would find no savory dinner waiting for him, but a cold gas range, just as he used to find in the dear days when No. 1 was alive.

Try this for a little while, and I think you will give him a jolt that will make him realize that he has been mooning over a silly dream instead of appreciating a good flesh-and-blood wife.

On your part, be big enough not to resent his visiting his wife's relatives. They were his good friends in the past, and because he has married again is no reason for his breaking off with people who have been kind to him and for whom he has DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix-What is your opinion of a woman who objects to a man's smoking around the house? Do you think there is any harm in smoking? It is the only habit that I have, but my wife is continually grumbling at me about it. I can't see any harm in smoking and I don't want to give it up.

Righto, C. M., and don't you let your wife browbeat you into doing it. Surely the man who pays the freight has a few rights in the home that his

A woman who has got a husband whose only bad habit is smoking-if smoking is a bad habit-ought to be patting herself on the back for her luck and begging him to smoke wherever he pleases. It is women who nag their husbands about everything they do at home who drive them to clubs and saloons and corner groceries, where they can have a little personal liberty.

If women only knew it, tobacco is first aid to domestic peace and happiness, and fortunate is the wife whose husband, after dinner, settles down with his pipe or cigar where she can keep an eye on him. DOROTHY DIX.

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Oliver Tressilian, renowned for his exploits on the Spanish Main, is betrothed to Rosamund Godolphin, Is betrothed to Rosamund Godolphin, but the marriage is opposed by Rosamund's brother, Peter, and her guardian, Sir John Killigrew. By repeated insults Peter finally provokes Oliver to threaten murder; and when Oliver's young half-brother, Lionel, kills Peter in a quarrel suspicion falls on Oliver. Even Rosamund believes him guilty, and asks him to explain the trail of blood found leading from the trail of blood found leading from the body to his doorway. Desiring to protect Lionel, Oliver can do nothing but protest his innocence. But to protect Lionel, Oliver can do nothing but protest his innocence. But he goes to the justices and asks them to draw up a document attesting to the fact that he bears on his body no mark of recent wound; that therefore the trail of blood, obviously that of the wounded murderer, was not his. This document he takes home, to hold in readiness until needed.

A few weeks later Lionel learns truth. Lionel hires Leigh to abduct him and sell him as a galley-slave to the Barbary rovers. With Oliver's disappearance all doubt of his guilt is dispelled. The assumption is that he has fled to escape trial.

Complete pass matriculation may now be obtained in any of London's high schools. This year a "year" has been added at the East London and London South collegiates and at the De La Salle C. I.

At the Central unit of the London At the Central unit of the London Collegiate Institute upper school or senior matriculation, the equivalent standing to one year in university may be obtained. At the London South C. I. a fifth year class has been added. All upper school subjects, with the exception of German, Greek and chemistry, are taught there. These subjects are desired by so few of the students at this school that classes are maintained only at the Central school.

A LITTLE POLITENESS. There is a man in London who, although he is a very busy and prominent personage, is making a great success, says Ella Hepworth Dixon, by a little politeness. If he has enjoyed a party he actually writes a few charming phrases to his hostess and tells her so. It is a proceeding so unusual to make social history. It is just one of the little things which most of us forget. We do not realize how much it means to the jaded host and hostess, the day after a big party in the reaction which evidently sets in, to get a few thanks for the tumult they have undergone. This gratitude is so rare as to give real pleasure.

The English are curiously remiss in these amenities. Most people are so accustomed to the routine of the season, to accepting unending hospitality, in town as well as in the country, that only after a visit of several days is a letter of thanks considered obligatory. Beyond that they do not go, except that women often make each other little presents in return for country-house hospitality. It is difficult to recall any man who has sent a cigarette case or stick to his host as thanks for hospitality received. But perhaps men do this in that queer way of theirs and we do not hear of it. On the whole women are more grateful than men for being entertained. They know the infinite pains that have to be taken, not only to secure the right company, but to organize all the details of a successful gathering. After all, asks Miss Dixon, why not a little politeness? It costs

Engineering—

The large engineering staff of expert specialists, working in the most modern and complete engineering laboratory of the General Motors Research Corporation, supplement the knowledge and experience of the various engineering departments of General Motors units.

The result is that all General Motors cars are designed from correct engineering standardsalways up-to-date and free from mechanical defects. New features of tested and proven merit are incorporated as they are passed by the engineering staff.

Craftsmanship-

Long trained in the coach-builder's art in the production of quality vehicles, General Motors craftsmen lend that added touch of refinement and beauty to Oshawa-built cars which at once marks them as the refined product of the master craftsman.

In mechanical construction and superb appointments, General Motors products set a high standard of quality.

Wallaceburg, Sept. 8.—In an interesting exhibition soccer game Saturday Sarnia defeated Wallaceburg here 2 to 0. About twenty minutes from the start Curry opened the scoring for Sarnia. Wallaceburg was weak in the forward line and missed several good chances to score. In the second half A. Weston notched the second point, the home team being unable to reply. At no time throughout the game was the visiting goalkeeper, McMillan, severely tested. Barrett at the other end, made several good saves. Boyle and R. Pearson were the pick of the backs and played a fine game, and were mainly responsible for the score being kept close. The visitors were much heavier than the locals, who were also handicapped by the absence of two of their best players, W. Pearson and H. Gibson. A return game has been arranged, and next Saturday the locals will play the International Harvester aggregation of Chatham here.

mission of the League of Nations assembly that she accepted with reservations the idea that all disputes between states should be settled by obligatory arbitration was the dominant subject of discussion in Geneva, which last week's memorable proceedings in the assembly had created.

Italy's position was presented by Signor Schanzer, former foreign minister, and many delegates tonight were comparing it with Italy's attitude at the last assembly when she incar mid-season, Wilson started on his batting rampage that brought new life.

Commission At Work.

With businesslike directness, the disarmament commission of the league assembly began this afternoon its examination of all questions and all material touching the mutual plan of guarantees and assistance between states and the general problem of disarmament. The commission decided at the outset that these subjects could not be intelligently treated without also discussing obligatory arbitration.

Hence, compulsory arbitration, which is now regarded as the main foundation stone of all the projects to outlaw war, becomes an integral part of the discussion of disarmament, the final goal of which is the convocation of a conference at Geneva for the reduction of armaments in all countries.

A new angle was given the debate Geneva for the reduction of armaments in all countries.

A new angle was given the debate today when the Swedish foreign minister, Baron Von Wurtemburg, introduced a resolution in the assembly concerning the codification of international law.

In a wide sense the Swedish suggestion supplements the immediate program of the assembly of studying certain articles of the league covenant with a view to redrafting, and of examining the compulsory arbitration of the world court of justice with the hope of rendering it more precise and thus more acceptable to the great powers, such as Great Britain and France.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

1	OTATIONID EXCITATOR
	Canadian Press Despatch.
	Toronto, Sept. 9 Continued weak ness was shown on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, and the trading though light, was sufficient to show a 3	number of substantial declines. The two most active issues were about the strongest, Everett advancing 14c to 5%c, and Tough Oakes 1/2c at 611/2c
	Canadian Lorrain was down 2c at 68c
	New Ray 114c at 22%c, and Vipond 4 at $1.28, with a number of fractiona
2	losses recorded.

the waters of the Mediterranean Sea, advertusing C. P. R. round-the-world trips.

Directly opposite is the postoffice exhibit, which is most attractive. A series of enlarged pictures show how mail is handled in the London post-office. A stamp and money order department is also in running order for the benefit of Fair visitors.

Enlarged views of the new buildings of the University of Western Ontario are also in this building and are particularly interesting to prospective students and their parents. With these pictures are shown views of the Institute of Public Health and the Medical School.

Possibly the finest exhibit in the building is that of the Canadian National Railways, where a huge coloring of Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, is brilliantly illuminated. Other colored pictures depict hunting and fishing scenes that may be reached by the government railway, as well as a picture of the C. N. R. radio broad-casting station at Ottawa.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digest-

Most people who suffer, either occationally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time, because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.—Advt.

Manitoba Woman Thanks Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Crandall, Manitoba.-"When I was a young girl at home and working l had terrible pains, almost more than I could bear, and I was not regular. These troubles kept me so tired all the time that I had no strength and no ambition to join in with my friends and have a good time. I was just tired and miserable always and life just seemed as if it wasn't worth living. I saw so much in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then I had a friend who had taken it and told me about it, so I got some. Every month after taking it I got stronger and I soon did not suffer every month. It stopped the pains and helped me in other ways. Then when my babies were coming I was tired and worn out the first three months and ached badly. I took the Vegetable Compound right along and must say it made a new woman of me and able to do mywork, and it helped me through confinement. You see I am a farmer's wife with a big house to look after, and three babies now. I have told ever so many women about your medicine. Just last week I got a letter from my old chum in the East. Her baby was born fifteen days before mine, and she told me she was not feeling very well, her back aches so much, and that she is going to take the same medicine I took. You can use my letter if you wish."—Mrs. Jos. H. KIDD, Box 56, Crandall, Manitoba.

THE COACH'S JOB

Something of the taskmaster, t general and the diplomat, and a lot the doctor must be hidden away in the man who would be the coach of a suc cessful football or track team.

Emergencies of all kinds are his daily routine. A thorough knowledge of first aid is as essential as a knowledge of the game played by his men.
Bumps, bruises, strained ligaments and muscles are every day happenings, but the coach never becomes contemptuous of them. He knows that if neglected, they may result in anything.

Trainers everywhere keep Absorbine Jr. in their lockers. They use it not only for sprains, cuts and bruises, but for the skin and blood protection of its disinfecting properties. In one convenient container it combines the functions of a number of preparations.

It is the first of all the First Aid requisites in use in all of the leading athletic clubs.

And there are just as many everyday uses for Absorbine Jr. in the homes of Canada as there are in the training camps. Always keep it in the home where you can "jump to it" in case of emergency. $1,25 at your druggist.

Support of Klu Klux Klan

Helps R. C. Brewster To Defeat Democrat.

Associated Press Despatch

Portland, Maine, Sept. 8 .- Apparently safe lead for Ralph O. Brewster. Republican, for governor, was shown in returns from today's election from 515 precincts out of 633 in the state, which gave Brewster

104,534 votes to 69,714 for William R. Pattangall, Democrat. Pattangall late tonight conceded Brewster's election.

In the early returns all the Republican candidates for Congress were in the lead.
Pattangall made the Ku Klux Klan

Pattangall made the Ku Klux Klan the leading issue of his campaign for governor. Because Brewster had the Klan indorsement in his primary campaign, which resulted in his nomination on a recount, after the official count had shown Frank G. Farrington nominated by a narrow margin, the Democrats asserted that Brewster represented the Klan Brewster represented the Klan. Brewster, who had previously denied that he had sought Klan support, SOFT INNER WARMTH AS WELL!

EXCLUSIVE LINES OF KNITTED UNDERCLOTHES

Layers of heavy outer clothes alone are insufficient for winter warmth. Inner warmth is required. And now better supplied than with English woven inderwear of delicate softness?

English Knitted Underclothes, the special lines of great manufacturers, exclusive in London to SMALLMAN & INGRAM, have arrived in a newly open shipment. They combine beauty and durability with elasticity and softness. They are as smooth to the most sensitive skin, as the finest silk. They are light, warm and porous. To wear them means adequate protection from chill rains and from biting

FAILLE AND BENGALINE FROCKS.

The wide use of faille and bengaline in the new frocks has permitted extensive and charming originations in the semi-tailored models for afternoon and general wear. Their simple, youthful lines achieve a fascinating touch of sophistry by the use of inset bands of material, long revers or pleated front

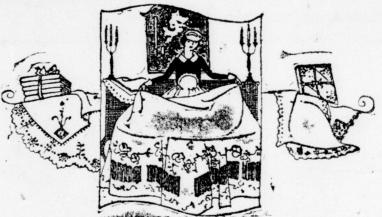

The use of the pleated front panel is at its best in a frock of black bengaline, which maintains utter simplicity at back and sides, and then, reaching the front, flares open to reveal a sweeping, finely pleated panel of pussy-willow sleeves create a graceful shoulder line, and the blouse opens under revers at the front to reveal a vest worked in chenille embroidery of crimson and black

In a smartly youthful frock, satin-canton takes on the tailored appearance which gives it a rightful place with these models for general wear. Narrow tiers ornament the front of the skirt, and the air of utility is heightened by the tomboy collar and vest of canna crepe, corded in black and gold $35.00
