"I Guess Not."

"Now, what kind of a fit do you call that?"
"Oh, well, it doesn't matter, a rubber is a rubber, and all it is intended for is to keep your feet dry."

"Well, I guess not; I've had those rubbers that keep the feet dry, and pinch my feet and rub my shoes, and flip flop every time I step, and wear out and let my feet get wet. Only 78 cents, huh, and they are dear at that."

"No, thanks, I'll get a pair of 'Slater Shoe Rubbers' that fit, that wear and are comfortable."

"They are worth the dollar every time, and I'd rather have them than your 78-cent ones. Good day."

"Slater Shoe Rubbers" are branded on the soles with makers' name and price.

A GLORIOUS VICTORY

Fittingly Celebrated by a Great Gathering at Dresden.

Thousands There—An Ovation to the Victor—Many Speeches and Much Enthusiasm—Large Delegations Present From Chatham, Wallaceburg and Other Places.

One of the most magnificent and successful celebrations in the political history of this peninsula was held last evening in the progressive and busy town of Dresden. It was under the auspices of the Liberal-Conservative of the Bothwell constituency, and commemorated the recent re-election of James Clancy to represent the riding in the Dominion Parliament.

Dresden was veritably en fête. Special trains over the L. E. & D. R. R. steamed in from Chatham and Wallaceburg with screaming whistles and cheering passengers. The town was ablaze with brilliancy, rockets illum-

Fells, Henry Robinson, H. Green, W. M. Fleming, Wm. Moore, D. A. Hutchison, Geo. Grant, R. Skinner, Fred. Goodland, R. O. Knight, H. McAlay, F. Knifton, Dr. Thornton, A. I. McCall, H. Rivard, John Gilligan, Capt. Patteson, N. Massey, R. Reid, G. Park and many others.

THE PROCESSION.

The Chatham train brought the last delegation and immediately upon its arrival the great procession was formed. Hundreds of pedestrians, all equipped with flaming torches, paraded, accompanied by four bands—the Dresden Band, Excelsior Band of Chatham, Tupperville Band and Wallaceburg Band. In the first carriage rode Mr. Clancy, who was everywhere greeted en route with tumultuous cheering. Alex. McVean, Gordon Stewart, Dr. Mitchell and A. B. Carscallen. The second carriage contained Mayor Smith of Chatham, Mayor Craig of Dresden, Robt. Aikin, Dr. Thornton and Capt. Patteson.

It was originally intended to hold the formal gathering in the town hall, but it was seen that the building would not begin to hold the crowd. It was consequently decided to utilize the balcony of the Clifford House for speaking purposes. The balcony faces the corner of the main street and the throng were gathered on every thoroughfare and formed a very imposing spectacle.

THE SPEAKING.

The appearance of Mayor Craig, who presided upon the balcony was the signal for renewed applause. Mr. Craig said they were gathered to do honor to one who had won a great victory—Applause. He was glad to see such a magnificent demonstration. It proved the universal esteem and regard in which Mr. Clancy was held.

John C. Stewart made a rattling address. He congratulated the constituency on the choice made and expressed pleasure at being present to celebrate it.

HIS LARGE MAJORITY.

A. B. Carscallen said he had been present at the Laurier demonstration in Wallaceburg, but the present far outstripped it. In congratulating Mr. Clancy they were not gloating over the downfall of his opponent, but glorying in the success of principle. Mr. Clancy had been elected by the largest Conservative majority ever recorded in inated the sky and myriads of torches—carried by enthusiastic citizens and visitors—decorated every street and were waved from the windows of many a business house. True, the night was damp and the roads disagreeable, but it made no difference to the ardor of the multitude who formed the gigantic procession and did fitting honor to the triumph of Mr. Clancy.

THE CHATHAM CONTINGENT.

The special train from this city left the Union Depot at 7.30 in charge of Wm. Turtle. There were three coaches and each of them was crowded ere departure. Among the many Chatham citizens on board were: Mayor Smith, Dr. Hall, G. S. Hayward, J. E. Johnston, H. S. Clements, C. H. Dunn, S. B. Arnold, John Carpenter, H. Graves, F. Judson, S. S. Kolfage, A. H. Skirving, C. J. Northwood, J. G.

the constituency. It was Bothwell's honor.

Dr. Thornton paid a tribute to Mr. Clancy, who had carried the banner of victory in a clean campaign in Bothwell, and the time would come soon when he would be enrolled among the great statesmen of Canada. In this connection Dr. Thornton paid tribute to the late Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir John Thompson, Sir John Abbott, Mackenzie Bowell and Sir Charles Tupper, who had recently won such a splendid victory in Ontario.

CLANCY BEAT THEM ALL.

Dr. Mitchell, of Wallaceburg, said Mr. Clancy had been a marked man by the government. He was to be got rid of. Down came the Premier, the Minister of Justice, the Minister of Finance, and politicians from Windsor, London, Chatham, and Sarnia. They in-

ANOTHER VICTIM

To the Christian Science Fad—Doctor Barred Out.

Cheyenne, Wyoming, Nov. 20.—Another victim of Christian Science is Mrs. A. D. McNeil, of the city, who died yesterday. Mrs. McNeil had been ill for some time, and a woman relative from Denver came up in the supposed capacity of nurse. This woman proved to be a Christian Scientist, and she began her work at once. Mrs. McNeil grew gradually worse and died early last evening.

A short time previous to her death the physician who had been in attendance on the case came to the house and was unable to gain admittance, the woman having locked the door. The husband was sent for and the door forced open. By that time the patient had become unconscious and died shortly afterward.

WILL WE LOSE THE PARK?

What the Government is going to do with Tecumseh Park is the question that nearly every citizen is discussing just now. Citizens generally are of the opinion that the new barracks will be built on the point of the park where the bowlers have their lawn. Speaking of the matter this morning Fred Stone said that he hardly thought the citizens would stand to be deprived of their place of recreation and he thought they would much prefer to buy the government a piece of land some place else in the city for their barracks and drill ground.

Belmont Times:—John Doan has proved that peanuts can be successfully grown here. Last summer he planted a few, and the result was very satisfactory. From each peanut planted a strong vine grew, spreading along the ground and taking root frequently, and about 200 peanuts grew on each vine. The crop was a very prolific one.

STOLEN DIAMONDS

Surgeon-General Biddle Reports an Extraordinary Case of a Hindoo.

He Had His Throat Fixed up as a Receptacle for Gems.

London, Nov. 20.—A new and startling resource for thieves is furnished by Surgeon-General Biddle, who reports the extraordinary case of a Hindoo who recently made off with a diamond valued at $50,000 from Calcutta's jewellers. He was taken into custody instantly and kept under observation for days, but there was no trace of the diamond, which he was suspected of having swallowed. Roentgen rays were applied and revealed a foreign body in the throat, which could not be dislodged until the culprit assisted under threat of severe corporal punishment. He then explained that his throat had been especially prepared for diamond swallowing. An artificial dilation of the pharynx was produced by swallowing and bringing up several times daily a large leaden bullet until a pouch was made similar to the crop in birds.

BRIDE OF ONE DAY

Wakes up to Find Her Husband has Skipped

And Robbed Her of $700—A Windsor Sensation.

Mrs. Hattie Norton, of Vernon, Me., was the bride of a young man who, after a brief honeymoon, was having called when she awoke on Sunday afternoon at the Manning House, Windsor, and found a note pinned to her pillow, and a large sum of money missing. The note was a request for her husband's return, and she was told that he had skipped with her $700, which she had drawn from the bank in Vernon on Saturday before they were married by Rev. J. H. Sandwick. The money was hidden in the lining of her skirt.

Dr. Soper, who boards at the Manning house, was having called when the woman's condition was discovered and found her hysterical and on the verge of collapse. He detected the odor of chloroform. Mrs. Holmes refused after a few hours, but declined to enter into any details of her courtship or throw much light on Holmes' identity. The marriage license was issued by James O'Brien, who has an office on the ferry dock. Rev. Hinds, the minister who performed the wedding ceremony, said that both parties seemed eager to be married, and that the man had made a special request that the marriage be registered.

At the Manning House the bride couple were assigned to room 17, and nothing was wrong with the room until yesterday afternoon when the woman awakened and called for help. When she asked for her husband it was learned that he was missing. The bar tender thought he saw the man leave the hotel before midnight. Mrs. Lyman Loucks, of Rivard St., Detroit, a daughter of Mrs. Holmes by her first marriage, called with her husband and sought her mother back to Detroit. Sergt. Jackson made an unsuccessful inquiry for the man in Detroit. Holmes is 50 years of age, somewhat stout, and has a gray moustache.

A PREACHER POUNDED.

He Had Made Charges of Immorality Against Some Business Men.

At Columbus, S. C., Rev. A. F. Hensley, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Yorkville, made public charges of immorality against several business men in town. Indicating a certain block of buildings on Main street, in which six merchants were conducting business, he declared that it was disreputable and no fit place for decent people to visit. Five of the merchants had nothing to say, but Dr. A. F. Scoggins, a druggist, and the only unmarried man implicated, met Mr. Hensley on the street and asked if he was included. The preacher said he was, and refused to retract anything. Scoggins suggested that as both were of a size, they fight it out. The preacher agreed and they fell to boot work while several looked on. The preacher's wind soon failed, and he was knocked down. Scoggins pounded him on the ground till Hensley cried: "Oh, Lord, take him off; don't let him kill me."

Then the onlookers interfered. Mr. Hensley declares that he retracts nothing.

Father—"His Majesty."
Small Boy—Well, if they call a king "his majesty" what do they call an act?

How to Avoid Coughing, Croup.

Keep your vitality above the negative condition. No disease can exist where there is an abundance of pure blood. To get the necessary amount eat nutritious food; to circulate it perfectly, take proper exercise; to purify it, get fresh air and sunlight. If a perfectly healthy condition of the skin exists and an even temperature of the surface of the body is maintained it is impossible to catch cold. Cold water, baths taken every day will do much toward producing the former; proper food and exercise, the latter. Nature gives you an alarm in the first chilling feeling. Heed it at once, or pay the penalty. Take a brisk walk or run, breathe deeply, and keep the mouth closed. If you are so situated that you can do neither, breathe deeply, rapidly, and noiselessly, until you are satisfied that your body has passed from a negative to a positive condition. Take care of your throat and lungs by protection from within, as well as protection from without, by keeping the mouth closed when passing from a warm to a less warm temperature. Precautions are often wrongly taken. It may be better to turn your chest protector around and make a back protector of it, thus protecting your chest and lungs by the necessary care of the spinal column, along which is the chain of sympathetic nerves. It is better to turn up one's coat collar than to wear a muffler, and better to protect carefully the back of the neck from draughts of cold air than to protect the throat. Pay attention to the feet by keeping them dry. Discard cotton hose in winter and wear woolen. It is not the woolen hose that make the feet perspire; it is nervousness which has been caused by worry or excitement. In this condition and through this cause the feet become damp, chilly, clammy, and the result is that the glands of the throat become enlarged, and hoarseness ensues.

Pithy and Pointed.

A young man may die but an old man must.

Continued cheerfulness is a manifest sign of wisdom.

Maid of honor are those who do not indulge in flirtations.

From the mother's point of view an ugly baby is an impossibility.

The woman question for centuries has been: "What did she have on?"

It is no credit to a man to keep his word because no one will take it.

Wise is the man who does of his own free will that which he would otherwise shortly be compelled to do.

It is related of Midas that whatever he touched turned to gold, now, adavays if you but touch some men with gold they will turn to anything.

Keep Ducks.

A citizen called recently at the water registrar's office and introduced himself and his business by saying: "I'm a water registrar, Jerry Muldoon. My friend told me of your office, and my huns will be drowned if it isn't fixed, so I want you to fix it."

Mr. Muldoon was informed that nothing could be done for him there.

Two or three days later he reappeared. "I'll come again to see you about that collar," said he. "It's worse than ever."

"But we told you the other day, Mr. Muldoon, that we can do nothing about it."

"Yes, but my collar must be fixed or my huns will be drowned."

"Well, Mr. Muldoon, did you see the mayor about the matter?"

"Indeed, and I did," replied Mr. Muldoon.

And what did the mayor say?"

"What did he say is it?" Mr. Muldoon says he, "why don't you kape ducks?"

Why He Quit the Business.

A man who keeps a restaurant has his two children wait on the table.

One of them is a boy ten years of age.

A customer was attracted by the quickness of the little fellow and said: "You have a splendid waiter."

"Yes," said the proprietor, "he is my son. I used to sell liquor, but he made me quit it."

"How?" asked the visitor.

The father told the story. The boy had come home one day and said: "Papa, we boys at school had a talk to-day about the business of our parents. Each fellow was asked: 'What does your father do?' One said, 'My father keeps a store.' I said, 'My father sells liquor.' That is the meanest business on earth," said one of the boys. Father is that so?"

And the father said: "Yes, John, it is; and God help me, I will get out of it."

The Umbrella Maker.

Two cyclists set out the other day for a spin. One got a long way ahead of the other, and, turning the road just then, was met round the bend by the second cyclist, who asked her:

"My good woman, have you seen a young man on a bicycle up here?"

"No, no," was the reply. "I've seen no bicycles, but I've seen a man sitting on the floor mending umbrellas."

Worth Reading.

"You will find enclosed thirty-one one-cent stamps for one of Dr. Pierce's Medical Advisers, cloth bound," writes James E. Crampton, Esq., of Sharpsburg, Washington Co., Md. "This book is for a friend of mine who is using your Golden Medical Discovery, and I cannot praise your medicine too highly. I was in business in Baltimore and had rheumatism for three months; couldn't walk at all. I tried the best doctors I could get, but they did me no good. I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it cured me sound. I came home to Sharpsburg, and there were three cases of different diseases. I advised the patients to use Dr. Pierce's medicines, which they did, and all were cured."

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, cocaine, nor other narcotic.

Free. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book bound in paper, or 50 stamps for cloth binding, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

RECEIVED FORTUNES.

Old Comrade Gives Two Friends in Omaha $10,000 Each.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 20.—A rare example of human gratitude came to light in Omaha when Major T. S. Clarkson Harry M. Turner received each $10,000 in crisp treasury notes from an old army comrade, whom they had befriended a couple of years ago. Robert Majors, of Huntsville, Ala., was the donor, and an interesting story is told of which the chapter to-day is the last.

Clarkson, Majors and Turner were comrades together during Sherman's march to the sea. Robert Majors drifted west, and ten years ago, broken in health and finances, entered the government service in the capacity of Assistant Custodian of the Federal Building at Omaha. His duties required him to pass the post office after the day force had left. Two years ago a small package of money was missed. It was seen as the clerks were leaving and as Majors was entering a certain room. It disappeared in the interval, and a zealous inspector suspected Majors. The old man was arrested and prosecuted. Major T. S. Clarkson used his influence to get Turner, and Majors was saved the disgrace of a felon's cell, although he lost his position.

He went to live with relatives at Huntsville, Ala. A month ago, he peered in the interval and a zealous administrator of the estate to present a gift to his army comrade. (The three had a jolly reunion in Omaha.

GOOD-BYE TO LEONIDS.

Harvard Astronomers Say Their Orbits Have Changed.

Boston, Nov. 20.—Harvard astronomers have said farewell to the Leonids and will watch for them no more this year. Thirty-three years from now these elusive little meteors will be watched for, but it is doubtful if any great number will be seen. Assistant Professor Oliver C. Wendell, of the Harvard University said:

"It was so evident from Thursday night's watching, that the Leonids have veered in their orbit that we kept to watch that night. The mathematicians have figured that the orbit of the Leonids has changed. Taking them farther away from us, and our observations this week have proved their calculations to be correct."

Unless during the next 33 years there shall be another change in the orbit of the meteors, bringing them back near the earth, we shall see no more of the ancient November showers of Leonids.

since Sunday morning.

The evening classes, which opened at the Business College last night, were particularly well attended considering the very unfavorable state of the weather, and it is expected that there will be quite an increase to-night and again on Thursday evening. A very bright and promising class of pupils have enrolled themselves, and excellent results are expected. The classes will be continued on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings for a period of ten weeks, and the opportunity is an excellent one for those whose circumstances will not allow them to attend the day classes. As the instruction is individual, pupils may begin at any time with equal advantage.

Private Gorrie Says South Africa
Is a Great Place

To Take on Flesh Even on Quarter
Rations—He Will go From Here to Chicago.

Private Gorrie looks exceedingly strong and robust after his hard campaign experience in South Africa. He saw as much active service as any other member of the contingent and enjoys an interesting way about his experiences.

"Yes, I feel splendid," said the veteran of the Boer war, in response to a query as to his health. "I weigh about ten pounds more than when I left Chatham, but 15 pounds less than I did in Cape Town. I suppose I lost the latter weight on the ocean voyage, as I was sick nearly all the way. It is surprising how you can take on flesh
in South Africa, even on a slim diet.
Why, a good part of the time we were on quarter rations, and this, too, coupled with heavy marching."

It is rather exciting when you first go into action, but you get used to the singing bullets. I wasn't hurt in any of the engagements I was in,
but at Paardeburg, a bullet knocked a piece out of my shoe, and later on at Zand River, my rifle was struck. I wasn't near Private Donegan when he was killed. In fact, I know nothing about it till the following morning. I can tell you at the end of the day there was great skirmishing amongst the Canadians to find out who were kissing. Usually I was near Donegan in the ranks but that day we were spread out in skirmishing order."

I had been up near the front, but had a message and when I returned to the front, I found that at which I had been before. We spent the night searching for the dead and wounded.
During the day following the battle we kept wherever we happened to be out in the open. I don't think that I could have stood it in Canada. For four nights we lay down to sleep in mud and water, with wet clothes, and only the sky for a blanket."

"Our food was irregular. Sometimes we got a handful of flour which we mixed with water and cooked. At another time we would get a little crushed corn which we made into a kind of porridge. We found it was dangerous to eat meat without other food as it gives you dysentery. We generally had plenty of meat as we drove herds
of cattle with us."

"Although the temperature is much higher in the Transvaal than in Canada, you don't feel it any more than you do here. I think this is because the country is so high and dry. In the winter it is fairly warm in the day time but bitterly cold at night."

"The Kafirs form a great part of the population and they make interesting study. They are better than slaves. We would get a little crushed corn which we made into a kind of porridge. We found
it was dangerous to eat meat without other
food as it gives you dysentery. We generally had plenty of meat as we drove herds
of cattle with us."

"The British tried treating this dusky population kindly, but they have become so savage that nothing can be done with them and the British find that they have a serious difficulty on their hands."

"The reception of the Canadians on their return to Canada has been perticularly warm. Every place where the people had a chance they came to the train to greet us. Wherever the train stopped, no matter how late at night or how small the place, the residents turned out with the band to show their patriotism and good will."

Private Gorrie will remain in the city for a day or two and then go on to join his family in Chicago.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Fielder, Emma St., celebrated their golden wedding last evening. All their large family of twelve were present. They were,
Mr. and Mrs. John S. Fielder and family, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. E. Fielder and family, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Martin and family, Mr. and Mrs. David Martin and family, Thelma'sville, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Fielder, Mr. and Mrs. John Wardell and family, Blenheim, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crozier, Mr. and Mrs. Robt.
Macdonald, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Fielder,
Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. James Martin, Windsor, and Fred and Miss Jennie, who live at home.

An address to their parents was read on behalf of the children by Thomas E. Fielder, and a purse of gold and other gifts presented. A most excellent spread was then partaken of, after which the happy family gathering spent the rest of the evening in music and song. A feature of the evening was the presence of the little great grandchildren, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Powell. Latham's orchestra contributed to the pleasures of the night.
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fielder were married 50 years ago in Toronto. In 1854, they came to Chatham and have since resided here, where they reared the large family that gathered last evening to celebrate their parents' golden wedding. Both are highly respected and worthy residents of the community.

Rev. Mr. Hamilton, a lately returning missionary to Japan, will occupy Christ Church pulpit next Sunday.
There will be no special collection taken at the services.

AT THE THEATRE.

Headed by one of America's leading comedy ingenues, superbly cast, handsomely mounted, and with an atmosphere of aristocratic English life, the new comedy success "The Girl from Calcutta," will make its initial appearance in this city Saturday next, at the Grand. This very clever comedy is from the prolific pen of the leading actor-playwright of later years, the late Mr. Charles Coghlan, and has the true essence of all that is cheerful and charming.

Brimsful of comedy situations and humorous dialogue, staged by one of England's best producers, and mounted with lavishness high unto extravagance, it will assuredly please the patrons of high class comedy.

With the title role in the hands of Miss Margaret Wilkes, supported by a list of players who have served in the forces of the late Augustin Daly, the Frohmans, Richard Mansfield and the London Lyceum, it cannot fail to be rendered in the most auspicious manner.

Comedies of this order have long been wanted on the American stage, and they will be assured of a hearty welcome from the patrons of art.

OF SOME OF HIS EX-PERIENCES.

G. W. SULMAN, loudly cheered and the City band struck up God Save the Queen. Acting mayor G. W. Sulman, and Major Rankin, the latter in full regimentals, met Gorrie and escorted him to the end of the station where the C. C. I. cadets, under Instructor Black were drawn up. Here Private Gorrie was given another rousing cheer. The "South African soldier" then shook hands with all who crowded around him.

The procession was then formed and marched to the Opera House via William and King streets. The City band headed the parade, then came the cab in which was the brave member of the first Canadian Contingent, Major Rankin and Acting Mayor Sulman. Next the C. C. I. Cadets in charge of Capt. Will Tuckberry, and Lieuts.

Garner House Block.

Will Mounter and Garnet Brackin. The Cadets had crept with a white ribbon on their left sleeves in memory of Private Donegan, who gave up his life fighting in Africa for the unity of the Empire. Citizens in carriages followed the cadets. Amongst the number were Dr. W. R. Hall, R. S. Dunlop, J. A. Wilson, Archie Skirving, Walter Houston, George Molesworth, and others. The whole route of the procession was lined with spectators and notwithstanding the inclement weather the crowd was something remarkable. When the opera house was reached, Gorrie was loudly cheered as he entered, and a short time after the doors were thrown open the building was crowded.

ON THE PLATFORM

besides the guest of the city, were Acting Mayor Sulman, Major Rankin, R. S. Dunlop, Dr. W. R. Hall, and J. A. Wilson.

A CIVIC ADDRESS.

The Acting Mayor introduced Private Gorrie, who was loudly cheered and then Acting Mayor Sulman made a welcome from the corporation welcoming him home, and congratulating him on his deeds in South Africa.

Private Gorrie, in reply, thanked the city for its warm and sympathetic welcome. He had done the best he could while away, but that best was little. He had enough of soldiering, however, and unless his own country, Canada, needed him, he would never fight again.

Major Rankin then made a stirring patriotic speech, that was roundly applauded. He made a touching and tender reference to Private Donegan who had been one of the first from the city to enlist and one of the first to fall for the empire. The memory of the dead soldier should be cherished throughout not only the city, but the whole of Canada. His glorious action had stamped on the maple leaf the splendid courage of the Canadian soldiers, and had honored and glorified Canada throughout the world. The Major concluded his remarks with a brief narration of the deeds of valor of the Canadians in South Africa, and the part Private Gorrie played in them.

At the conclusion of Major Rankin's feeling reference to Private Donegan, a large Union Jack covering the back of the stage was taken down, revealing the C. C. I. Cadets drawn up in line with guns reversed; the City Band played Nearer My God to Thee, and afterwards God Save the Queen. The gathering dispersed to the strains of the latter music and an adjournment was made to the Hotel Rankin, where the hospitable host, W. R. Peck, had prepared a bountiful banquet.

While waiting for the feast to be commenced Private Gorrie held an impromptu reception in the parlors of the Hotel Rankin, and a large number of citizens and the C. C. I. Cadets were present to greet him. He chatted about his campaign experiences.

THE BANQUET.

The company then adjourned to the dining hall of the Hotel Rankin. There they found that "Uncle Bill" had had the hall beautifully decorated in red, white and blue, union jacks and everything else of a patriotic nature.

Ald. Sulman sat at the head of the table, with the guest of the city on his right. Then and around were gathered, Geo. Embrey, Dr. Hall, W. J. J. Twohey, R. S. Dunlop, Walter Houston, Archie Skirving, D. J. O'Keefe, Major Rankin, J. A. Wilson, Fred Holmes, J. S. Black, Will Tuckberry, Will Mounter, Garnet Brackin, Frank Mount, Noble Gardiner, Pen. Reid, Percy Wilson, Wm. Leith, Robt. Hales, Rufus Summers and Will Angus.

Major Rankin's name was coupled with the toast to the Queen. The Major expressed the pleasure it gave him to be present to honor to Private Gorrie. He also referred to the changes that were contemplated in the English militia when Lord Wolseley would be superseded, and stated that the British army would no longer be a playground for the English aristocracy.

The toast to the C. C. I. Cadets was coupled with the name of J. S. Black. Mr. Black thanked the chairman for his courtesy and said that he was glad to be present and to respond to a toast doing honor to a returned hero. He thought the city of Chatham had reason to be proud of Private Gorrie, who had been through the whole campaign.

Dr. Hall, who was nominated by the chairman as surgeon of the 21st Battalion, said that he had no claim to the title, but he had been a full private in the old battalion and had gone out to camp with them at Sarnia and London in the early seventies. The Doctor was glad to see such a large turnout, and especially of young people, and he was pleased to see the manner in which the Cadets conducted themselves.

STORY OF HIS FIGHTS.

Private Gorrie was asked to tell how he whipped the Boers. Mr. Gorrie said that he couldn't tell how he whipped the Boers because they kept behind trenches and under cover. If a Boer did show himself half a hundred yards would shoot at once and none would know whose shot was successful. Twice he had shot a Boer that he could see. Once in the engagement when Col. Otter was wounded, and the other time at Zand River. The latter engagement was pretty hot and the enemy were fought by a charge of B Company. At the battle of Paardeberg it was impossible to tell where the Boers were. The only guidance that the Canadians had in directing their aim was the sound of the enemy's bullets. The soldiers had to judge from the sound from whence the lead messenger of death came. The range was about 700 yards. Before the charge was made some of the fellows didn't fire at all, because they couldn't see where to shoot. At the end of nine days, the night attack was made, B Company was supporting and P. H. and G. Companies were in the advance column. When the white flag was raised on Majuba Day, the Canadians thought that this was another of the white flag outrages. But when Cronje came into camp they knew it was all right.

There was no more fighting for the Canadians till after the Boers had been driven. Their next engagement was at the water-works. At Zand River B company was the only one engaged. At Doreen Kop, one man was wounded in the company but the Gordon Highlanders lost 106 men. At Pretoria the Canadians lay in reserve. In pursuit of Dewet, the Canadians marched 30 miles in a little over 12 hours. This was only one of the many long marches made and with our guns down more often on an empty than a full stomach. ## SURPRISING RESULTS.

A Simple Internal Remedy Makes Remarkable Cures of Catarrh.

People who have used sprays, inhalers, salves and washes for catarrh and have found how useless and inconvenient they are, will be agreeably surprised at results following the use of a pleasant, internal remedy in tablet form; druggists everywhere admit that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which they sell at 50 cents for full sized treatment is the safest, most effective and popular of all catarrh remedies.

Nearly all cheap cough mixtures and throat lozenges contain opiates; these cheap medicines give a temporary relief, especially with little children, by destroying nerve sensation; the irritation in throat, which causes coughing, is temporarily removed, not by removing the cause but by deadening the nerves of feeling the irritation is not felt although it is still there and will promptly return.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is the best remedy to remove catarrhal secretion, whether in the nose, throat or stomach, because they are composed of whole-some antiseptics like Eucalyptol, Gualacol, Sanguinaria and Hydrastin; when you use these tablets you know what you are putting into your system and not taking chances with cocaine, opiates or similar poisons found in so many catarrh cures and cough medicines.

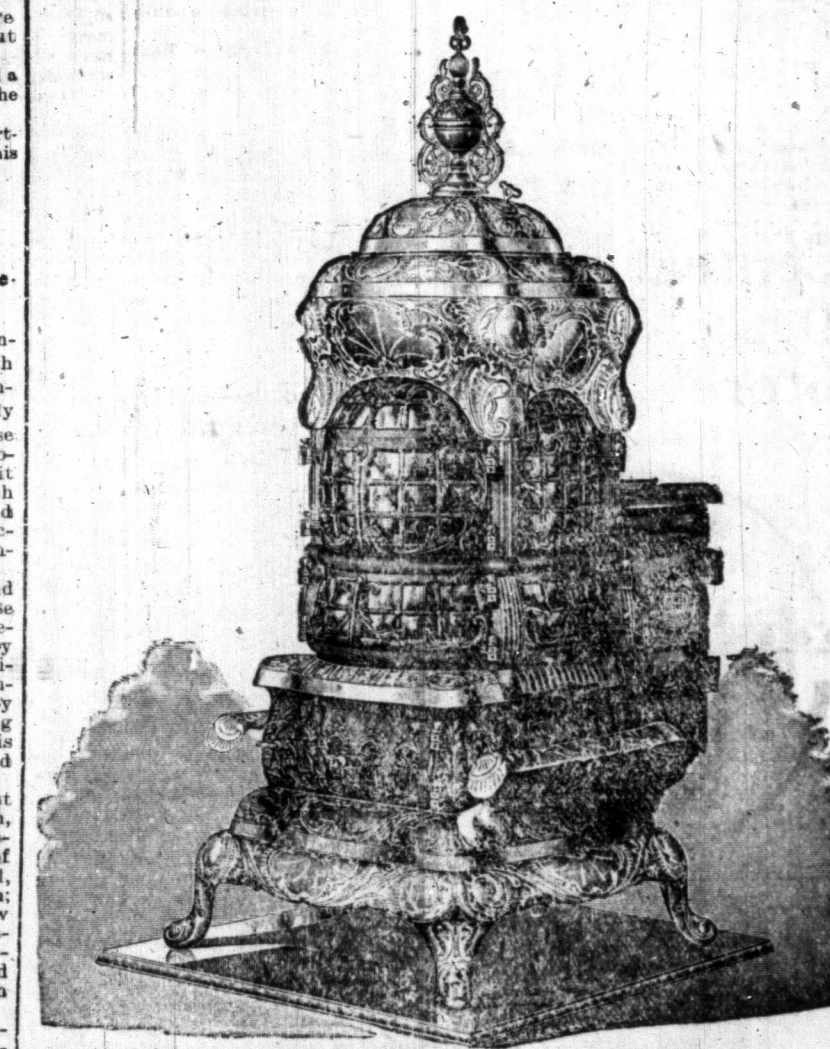

Dr. Ramsdell in commenting on catarrh cures says: "I can heartily recommend Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, because they contain no cocaine nor other dangerous drug; found in so many advertised catarrh cures. I have known of many cases of long standing catarrh of the head and throat completely cured by the daily use of these tablets for several weeks. One case in particular, which I could not reach with an inhaler or spray and where the catarrh caused daily headaches and a noticeable loss of hearing was entirely cured by this harmless but effective remedy."

Dr. Wainwright says: "I never hesitate to prescribe Stuart's Catarrh Tablets for catarrhal headaches and catarrhal deafness because I know them to be perfectly safe for child or adult and have seen many remarkable cures resulting from their regular daily use; because they are advertised and sold in drug stores is no reason why any good physician should not use them because we should seize upon the means of cure wherever found."

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are especially valuable for catarrhal colds in children because they are pleasant to the taste and may be used freely to break up catarrhal colds and croup at the very beginning.

All druggists sell the remedy at fifty cents for full sized package. A little book on cause and cure of catarrh mailed free by addressing the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

PROHIBITION ISSUE

The Dominion Alliance Will Ask Hon. G. W. Ross to Take it up.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—The Dominion Alliance is meditating a pretty little surprise for Premier Ross. The members of the Alliance declare that the Ottawa government's shelving of the question of prohibition has forced it into the Provincial arena. Prohibition, then, the Alliance is determined Mr. Ross will have to face in the next local election.

It is argued that Mr. Ross is different from Sir Wilfrid, having always professed to be an ardent prohibitionist. He will shortly have a chance to prove the sincerity of his views. The Alliance will shortly wait on him and ask him to state his policy in regard to prohibition. The Act of the Manitoba Legislature will be presented to him, and he will be asked to do something on the same line. If the Alliance has its way, then prohibition will be an issue in the next provincial election.

The Face Behind the Mask

A ROMANCE.

In his impatience, "I have to go," he said, "I am about to do. Get along with you directly, and show me to her private room, and no nonsense!"

He tapped his sword hilt significantly as he spoke, and that argument proved irresistible. Grumbling, in low tones, the anatomy stalked upstairs; and the other followed, with very different feelings from those which he had mounted that staircase last. His guide paused in the hall above, with his hand on the latch of a door.

"This is her private room, is it?" demanded Sir Norman.

"Yes."

"Just stand aside, then, and let me pass."

The room he entered was small, simply furnished, and seemed to answer as bedchamber and study, all in one. There was a writing table under a window, covered with books, and he glanced at them with some curiosity.

They were classics, Greek and Latin, and other little known tongues—perhaps Sanscrit and Chaldaic, French belles lettres, novels, and poetry, and a few rare old English books. There were no papers, however, and those were what he was in search of; so, spying a drawer, in the table, he pulled it hastily open. The sight that met his eyes fairly dazzled him. It was full of jewels of incomparable beauty and value, strewn as carelessly about as if they were valueless.

The blaze of gems at the midnight court seemed to him as nothing compared with the Goldenrod, the Valley of Diamonds shooting forth sparks of rainbow fire before him now. Around one magnificent diamond necklace was entwined a scrap of paper, on which was written:

"The family jewels of the Montmorencis. To be given to my sister when I am dead."

That settled his destiny. All this blaze of diamonds, rubies, and opals were Leoline's; and with the energetic rapidity characteristic of our young friend that morning, he swept them out on the table, and resumed his search for papers. No document was there to reward his search, but the brief one twined round the necklace; and he was about giving up in despair when a small brass slide in one corner caught his eye. Instantly he was at it, trying it every way, shoving it out and in, and up and down, until at last it yielded to his touch, disclosing an inner drawer, full of papers and parchments. One glance showed them to be what he was in search of—proofs of Leoline's and Hubert's identity, with the will of the marquis, their father, and numerous other documents relative to his wealth and estates. These precious manuscripts he rolled together in a bundle, and placed carefully in his doublet, and then seizing a beautiful wrought-iron casket that stood beneath the table, he swept the jewels in, and strapped it to his belt. The brisk and important little affair being over, he arose to go, and in turning away he saw the skeleton porter standing in the doorway, looking on in speechless dismay.

"It's all right, my ancient friend," observed Sir Norman, gravely. "These papers must go before the king, and these jewels to their proper owner."

"Their proper owner?" repeated the old man, shrilly; "that is La Masque. Thief—robber—house-breaker—stop!"

"My good old man, you will do yourself a mischief if you bawl like that. Undoubtedly these things were La Masque's, but they are so no longer, since La Masque herself is among the things that were!"

"You shall not rot!" yelled the old man, trembling with rage and anger. "Help! help! help!"

"You noisy old idiot!" cried Sir Norman, losing all patience. "I will throw you out of the window if you keep up such a clamor as this. I tell you La Masque is dead!"

At this ominous announcement the ghastly porter fell back and became, if possible, a shade more ghastly than was his wont.

"Dead and buried!" repeated Sir Norman, with gloomy sternness, "and there will in somebody else coming to take possession shortly. How many more servants are there here beside yourself?"

"Only one, sir—my wife Joanna. In mercy's name, sir, do not turn us out in the streets at this dreadful hour!"

"Not I! You and your wife may stagnate here till you blue-mold for me. But keep the door fast, my good old friend, and admit no strangers, but those who can tell you La Masque is dead."

With which parting piece of advice Sir Norman left the house and joined George, who sat like an effigy before the door, in a state of great mental wrath, and who accosted him rather suddenly the moment he made his appearance.

"I tell you what, Sir Norman Kingsley, if you have many more mornings to make, I shall beg leave to take my departure. As it is, I know we are behind time, and his man—the count, I mean, is not one who is accustomed or inclined to be kept waiting."

"I am quite at your service now," said Sir Norman, springing on horseback; "so away with you as quick as you like."

George wanted no second order. Before the words were well out of his companion's mouth, he was dashing away like a bolt from a bow, as furiously as if on a steeplechase, with Sir Norman close at his heels; and they rode, flushed and breathless, with their steeds all eddying into the courtyard of the royal palace at Whitehall, just as the early rising sun was showing his florid and burning visage above the horizon.

The courtyard, unlike the city streets, swarmed with busy life. Pages and attendants and soldiers, moving hither and thither, or lounging about, preparing for the morning journey to Oxford. Among the rest Sir Norman observed Hubert lying very much at his ease, wrapped in his cloak, on the ground, and chatting languidly with a pet and pretty attendant of Mistress Stuart. He cut short his flirtation, however, abruptly enough, and sprang to his feet when he saw Sir Norman, while George immediately darted off and disappeared into the palace.

"Ah! I late, Hubert?" said his hurried questioner, as he drew the lad's arm within his own, and led him out of hearing.

"I think not. The count," said Hubert, with laughing emphasis, "has not been visible since he entered yonder doorway, and there has been no message that I have heard of. Doubtless, now that George has arrived, the message will soon be here, for the royal procession starts within half an hour."

"Are you sure there is no trick. Hubert? Even now he may be with Leoline."

Hubert shrugged his shoulders. "He must be, we must take our chance for that, but we have his royal word to the contrary. Not that I have much faith in that," said Hubert.

"If he were king of the world instead of only England," said Sir Norman, with flashing eyes, "he shall not have Leoline while I wear a sword to defend her."

"Reflected," exclaimed Hubert, holding up both hands in affected horror. "Do my ears deceive me? Is this the loyal and chivalrous Sir Norman Kingsley, ready to die for king and country?"

"Rubbish and nonsense!" interrupted Sir Norman, impatiently. "I tell you any one, be he whom he may, that attempts to take Leoline from me must reach her over my dead body."

"I have," he continued, to be a Frenchman, Sir Norman. And what if the lady herself, finding her dazzling suitor drop his barnyard feathers and soars over her head in his own eagle plumes, may not give you your dismissal, and usurp the place of pretty Madame Stuart?"

"You cold-blooded young villain! If you insinuate such a thing again, I'll throttle you! Leoline loves me and me alone."

"Doubtless she thinks so, but she has yet to learn she has a king for a suitor."

"Bah! You are nothing but a heartless cynic. I am anxious and irritated flush on his face. 'What do you know of love?'"

"More than you think, as pretty Mariette yonder could depose, if put upon oath. But seriously, Sir Norman, I am afraid your case is of the most desperate; royal rivals are dangerous things."

"Yet Charles has kind impulses. He has been known to do generous acts."

"Has he? You expect him, beyond doubt, to do, precisely as he said; and if Leoline, different from all the rest of her sex, prefers the knight to the king, he will yield her unresistingly to you."

"I have nothing but his word for it," said Sir Norman, in a distracted tone, "and at present can do nothing but bide my time."

"I have been thinking of that, too! I promised, you know, when I left her last night that we would return before day-dawn and rescue her. The unhappy little beauty will doubtless think I have fallen into the tiger's jaws myself, and has half wept her bright eyes out by this time."

"My poor Leoline! And O, Hubert, if you only knew what she is to you!"

"I do know. She told me she was my sister."

Sir Norman looked at him in amazement. "She told you, and you take it like this?"

"Certainly, I take it like this. How would you have me take it? It is nothing to go into hysterics about, after all."

"Of all the cold-blooded young reptiles I ever saw," exclaimed Sir Norman, with infinite disgust, "you are the worst! If you were told you were to receive the crown of France to-morrow, you would probably open your eyes a trifle and take it as you would a new cap."

"Of course I would. I haven't lived in courts half my life to get up a scene for a small matter. Besides, I had an idea from the first moment I saw Leoline that she must be my sister, or something of that sort."

"And so you felt no emotion whatever on hearing it?"

"I don't know that I properly understand what you mean by emotion," said Hubert, reflectively. "But, y-e-e-s, I did feel somewhat pleased—she is so like me, and so uncommonly handsome."

"Humph! there's a reason! Did she tell you how she discovered it herself?"

"Let me see—no—I think not; she simply mentioned the fact."

"She did not tell you, either, I suppose, that you had more sisters than herself?"

"More than herself? No. That would be a little too much of a good thing. One sister is quite enough for any reasonable mortal."

"But there were two more, my good young friend."

"Is it possible?" said Hubert, in a tone that betrayed not the slightest emotion. "Who are they?"

Sir Norman paused one instant, combating a strong temptation to seize the phlegmatic page by the collar and give him another shaking as he would not get over for a week to come, but suddenly recollecting he was Leoline's brother, and by the same token a marquis or thereabouts he merely paused to cast a withering look upon him, and walked on.

"Well," said Hubert, "I am waiting to be told."

"You may wait, then," said Sir Norman, with a smothered growl; "and I give you much joy when I tell you. Such extra communicativeness to one so stolid could do no good."

"But I am not stolid. I am in a perfect agony of anxiety," said Hubert.

"You young jacksnape!" said Sir Norman, half laughing, half indignant. "It were a wise deed and a godly one to take you by the hind leg and nape of the neck, and pitch you over yonder wall; but for your sister's sake I will desist."

"Which of them?" inquired Hubert, with provoking gravity.

"It would be more to the point if you asked me who the others were, I think."

"So I have, and you merely abused

THEY GOT THE CIGARS.

But the Arch Conspirator May Not Have Secured One.

A young Cleveland attorney, whose friends helped him celebrate his wedding, is now the father of a re-markably fine baby boy. He's as proud of the youngster as young fathers usually are, and all his friends have helped to establish the importance of the happy arrival in his mind.

They have written him all sorts of congratulations, some of them in very bad rhymes, and when they meet him they invariably try to convince him that he has done well by his country. One of these friends had forgotten to send his congratulations, and his remembrance suddenly occurred to him. He was in the county commissioners' office at the time and at once sat down and wrote a little note to the happy father, in which, after the usual formal expressions, he said that the tenants of the courthouse—all of them his friends and well wishers—had met and resolved that it would be well for him to observe the customary legal formality made and provided for just such occasions and bring or send to the building a full box of fairly good cigars.

The writer of this precious note did not sign his name to it, but used the brilliant nom de plume "Will U. Sendit." The happy father received the note and was a little puzzled by its contents. He didn't recognize "Sendit" as one of the officials with whom he was in the habit of mixing when in the courthouse on business, but he knew there had been several changes recently in the clerical forces.

Of course he wanted to do the proper thing, and so he bought a nice box of cigars and carried them in person to County Clerk's office.

"With my best compliments to the boys," he blushing remarked.

Clerk Coates may have looked a little astonished, but he hastily concealed the expression and asked no questions. He thanked the donor and turned the precious box over to a subordinate with orders to distribute its contents through every room—as far as the supply would go.

And this explains how a large number of courthouse employees were ahead of a good cigar piece on that memorable day. It is claimed that the arch conspirator who planned the affair secured one of the cigars by throwing himself on the mercy of the court and insisting that he was the sole instigator of the lucky haul. But he has no proof of this—not even the cigar.

Needn't Have Kept On.

Dr. Thomas A. Hoyt, the pastor of the Chambers-Wylie Memorial church of Philadelphia, was recently entertaining President Patton of Princeton, General John B. Gordon and other eminent men at dinner. The guests were speaking in strong praise of a sermon the minister had just preached, and those who were present in the church were discussing the doctrinal points he had brought out.

Dr. Hoyt's young son was sitting at the table, and President Patton, turning to him, said: "My boy, what did you think of your father's sermon? I saw you listening intently to it," at which praise Mrs. Hoyt smiled cordially, and all listened to what sort of a reply the lad would make. "I guess it was very good," said the boy, "but there were three mighty fine places where he could have stopped."

Cause For Wrath.

"Well, Maude and Jack Grottocks are no longer friends." "You don't say so! What's the matter?" "They've had a dreadful misunderstanding. Maude is awfully angry, and it's all about a kiss."

"How did it happen?" "She dared him to kiss her, and he—"

"Promptly did it, of course."

"There's the trouble. He didn't!"

Loneliness at the Resort.

Mrs. Gotham—She lives in Harlem.

"Well, what is the matter with that other lady?"

"Horror!" She lives in Brooklyn."

"But you don't associate with the lady behind her either, and she lives on Fifth avenue."

"She won't associate with me."

The Fountain of Life

IS THE PURE RED BLOOD THAT CIRCULATES THROUGH THE BODY.

If the Blood is Impure and Stagnant, Disease Holds Sway.

Paine's Celery Compound
PURIFIES, ENRICHES AND VITALIZES EVERY DROP OF BLOOD.

The majority of intelligent people know that rich, pure, and highly vitalized blood can alone give health and build up the tissues that have been worn out. New and fresh blood carries all the materials for restoring wasted and worn-out parts of the body and gives to the brain other materials for making nerve matter.

Paine's Celery Compound cleanses the blood and furnishes appropriate food for every part of the system. It increases the appetite, perfects digestion, gives nervous energy and increased strength.

If your blood is impure, if the skin has spots and eruptions, if you have an unhealthy pallor or yellow appearance, and if the eyes are showing yellowish whites, you should use Paine's Celery Compound without delay to cleanse the blood and regulate the liver and kidneys of the strain that has been upon them whenever impure blood pours through their substance. Mr. M. D. Arthur of Chelmsford, Ont., writes as follows:

"I was laid up with scars all over my face and neck, the result of blood poisoning. While in that condition, I could not sleep at night, had no appetite, and could not attend to my work. The doctors in my district and their medicines did not benefit me. My aunt advised me to use Paine's Celery Compound. In two weeks I was so much better that I could go out, and in three weeks I was able to work again. I bless the day I commenced with Paine's Celery Compound."

A BIT OF COLOR.

The snow is white,
The wind is blew,
The grass is green
And so are you.

There's a story of a farmer and his son driving a load to market. Of the team they were driving one was a steady, reliable old gray mare, the other a fractious, balky black horse. On the way the wagon was stalled and the black horse snuffed and refused to pull. "What'll we do, father?" said the younger man. "Well," said the father, "I guess we'll have to lay the load on the back of the gray mare. The gray mare's the better horse." The son, who was a little of a philosopher, suggested that he should lay the load on the back of the black horse. "How often she breaks down at last under the added weight of some 'last straw'." Women who are dragging along weakly through life can gain real strength by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It puts back in concentration the strength making material which working women use up more rapidly than it can be restored by Nature in the ordinary processes of nourishment and rest. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are universal favorites with women because they are easy to take and thoroughly effective in curing the consequences of constipation.

"What kind of a man is this John Smith?" "Oh, he's the kind of a man that thinks he can hang on to his umbrella by having his name engraved on the handle."

DON'T WORRY

When things go contrary, as often they do, And fortune seems burdened with spite, Don't give way to grieving all dismal and blue— That never set anything right! But cheerfully face the day as it may reveal, Make the best of whatever befall; Since the more that you worry the worse you must feel, Why waste time in worry at all?

We all have our troubles, some more and some less.

It's work and a brave heart that lighten the stress of a life's share of sorrow and pain. Then face with this knowledge fate's cruellest deal, Too plucky to faint or to fall; Since the more that you worry the worse you must feel, Is it wisdom to worry at all?

LONSDALE A GOOD LOSER.

He Had Been Up Against a Hard Game, but He Didn't Squeal.

Said a Washington man who does a lot of transatlantic voyaging: "No man can put himself on the back and say to himself that he is too wise to be 'done' by card sharps. I've seen some pretty clever men get theirs at cards on the ocean liners. One of them was Lord Lonsdale."

The famous man was in the full tide of his rapid career. Amid the uproar over his landing in this country the fact did not leak out that Lonsdale was plucked of $8,000 on the trip over by George Sampson, one of the most notable of the older clique of steamship card sharps. He has since died in Australia, I believe.

"I think Sampson had it in mind to do young Lonsdale when he got aboard at Liverpool. Sampson had been working the steamers for 15 years, and at this time he was a man of 40 or thereabouts. The two men struck up a friendship from the very first day of the voyage, and it was Lonsdale himself who first suggested—as he afterward acknowledged, for he was a manly young chap—the game of draw. Lonsdale had only recently learned the hands at poker, and he had the poker player's enthusiasm for the game to an exaggerated extent. Before going any further I ought to say that Sampson always maintained afterward that in his play with Lonsdale he was perfectly on the level.

"Lonsdale and Sampson started the game on the first day out and kept it going almost until the steamer plowed past Sandy Hook. Of course Sampson beat him right along. He made no effort to let young Lonsdale win from him at first. He simply played poker and raked in the young man's money and checks. A lot of us aboard knew Sampson, and those of who had met a young Lonsdale in England got him aside on the second day out and diplomatically put it to him that he was engaged in a pretty difficult counter—that, in brief, Sampson was a professional player and a cheat. For our pains we were told that we were too confoundedly officious.

"At any rate, when the steamer was drawing near the shore, Lonsdale decided that he had had enough. Several of us were in the cardroom when the last hand was played. Sampson took the pot, and Lonsdale scribbled a check on his American banker for the amount he had lost at the sitting. Then he looked up at Sampson for a moment and said: "Some of my friends here estimate you a bit unkindly, Mr. Sampson."

"How's that?" inquired Sampson coolly. "He was a man who never betrayed surprise."

"Well," said Lonsdale, "they maintain that your skill at cards affords you something better than a livelihood."

"I never denied that," replied Sampson calmly. "In playing with me on this voyage you have employed skill alone? Inquired Lonsdale courteously.

"At your suggestion," replied Sampson, with careful emphasis, "I have played draw poker with you for seven days. I understand the game of draw poker, and I have $8,000 of your money. Do you want it back?"

"That was a magnificent bluff on Sampson's part, you perceive. The young chap, he well knew would not accept."

"Oh, if you expect to be insulting," said Lonsdale, flushing hotly, and he rose from the card table and left the room.

Well, a couple of elderly Englishmen on board who knew Lonsdale and his father before him went to the young fellow and told him that he would be perfectly proper and right for him to stop payment on the check he had given Sampson, who, they told him, in so many words, was nothing better than a swindler.

"You will be good enough to mind your own business," replied the latter. "I'll do nothing of the sort." And that was the end of it.

"A Light and a Burn." In one corner of a smoker sat a heavy fellow whose exterior was faultless, even to the aromatic Havana which he was in the act of lighting. Opposite to him sat a workman who had just filled up his "nose warmer" with black pig and bent on economy exclaimed, "After you with the light, gov'nor!" The swell carefully and painfully lit his cigar and when the match had about a quarter of an inch to burn held it carefully between his thumb and forefinger and with a polite smile offered it to his neighbor. The workman, wrapping his huge hand around that of his benefactor, held it rigid while he leisurely lit his pipe, the match doing the work of servant and chastisement, and then, regardless of the tortures of the other, calmly said, "Thanks!"—London Globe.

Keeping Cool in Peking. There is a lot of keeping cool in Peking, where the art of keeping cool is so successfully cultivated as in Peking. In every house of any importance there is a cooling gallery, from which the sun is effectively shut out, while there is the freest access to air. The ceiling, walls and floor are built of bamboo, through the interstices of which air, specially cooled and perfumed, is wafted. Add to this cunningly constructed cooling drinks and the strictest of restraint, and the man who cannot keep cool in Peking should sit on the north pole.

Many Chinese temples have windows made from the white mother of pearl found in oyster shells. The material is perfectly transparent and looks like opal glass.

Do You See It?

Look carefully at this little picture. There's a great deal to it. There's a lamp, that makes the heat. Right over it is the vaporizer that holds the Vapo-Cresolene. This Cresolene is a wonderful medicine. It kills most kinds of disease germs, and is a most remarkable healing agent. You simply breathe-in the vapor of it, that's all; it goes all through your bronchial tubes, curing asthma, croup, coughs, catarrh, whooping-cough.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. The Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a lifetime, and a bottle of Cresolene complete, $1.50 extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. Vapo-Cresolene Co., 150 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

Township Councils.

CHATHAM TOWNSHIP.

The council of the Tp. of Chatham met at the town hall on Friday, the 9th day of November, for the purpose of considering the engineer's report on the Chatham and Dover 18th concession drain and the transaction of general business pursuant to notice in that behalf.

The members were all present.

The report of W. G. McGeorge, C. E., on the construction of the 18th con. drain was read.

Alexander McDougall in behalf of James Steinboff was the only person present interested in the drain. On motion, of Councilors Cumming and Armstrong, the consideration of the said report was adjourned until Saturday, the 17th day of November, the meeting to be held in the clerk's office in City of Chatham.

The report of W. G. McGeorge on the repair of the outlet of the Henson drain was read and the clerk instructed to prepare a by-law.

A report from Councilor Wickens commissioner on the Stone and George drain was read. He reported having the said drains repaired as requested by the ratepayers, and pursuant to resolution of council, cost of repair $439, time spent as commissioner 40 days.—Report adopted.

W. H. Shaw reported he spent 14 days as commissioner on the Danforth drain in 1900 and asked for remuneration therefor.—Report adopted.

Henry Wilson reported the Otter creek or Roe drain in a good state of repair; this time as commissioner one day.—Report adopted.

A notice was received and read from S. J. Tedford, owner of w. l. lot 22, con. 5, stating that the Danforth and Danforth extension drains are out of repair thereby causing damages to his lands and asking to have them put in proper condition.

Thomas Glasgow was heard in regard to having sheep killed by dogs.

John Clyde addressed the council in connection with the Best drain.

George Hoyle was present and addressed the council in regard to keeping the road ditch along the 7th concession free of obstructions.

James Meredith requested the council to appoint a committee to confer with the ratepayers on the Fauser Drain in regard to purchasing a strip of land along the 25th sidewalk at the outlet of the said drain instead of building a bridge across said drain at the river road.

The Reeve reported that he had been served by the township of Camden with a copy of an appeal by the drainage referee against the report of the town of Dresden assessing the township of Camden for the repair of the outlet to the Henson drain.

Moved by Wickens and Armstrong, that the commissioner of the first division be empowered to have certain trees trimmed along the 4th con. road in front of lots 1, 2 and 3.—Carried.

WHO'S YOUR SHOE MAN?

Well, never mind telling his name: But, say

—Does he keep goods you want?
—Sell shoes cheap?
—Guarantee every pair?
—Take pains to fit you?
—Never tell you yarn?
—Make your shopping easy?
—Study to please you?
—Aim to not disappoint?
—Strive to keep your favor?
—Always have sizes?

That's the kind of shoe service this house offers to you. We miss nothing that's made in new footwear today. Try us, you'll find more than you expected to gratify you in calling.

qualities you have had to encounter, and which nothing but your indomitable pluck and readiness in resource have enabled you so successfully to overcome. We feel proud to think that you, who have achieved this great triumph, were for many years our fellow citizen, an honored and a valuable member of the community, and a true and noble purpose, which always distinguished you as a private citizen, it is our bound to think, have also distinguished you in your parliamentary career, wherein you have ever upheld the right, opposed the wrong, and at all times advocated the policy and principles of Liberal-Conservatism with unflinching and unfeeling zeal.

We feel pleased to take this opportunity of extending our cordial thanks to those of your associates who so ably and indefatigably seconded and assisted you in your recent campaign. Their doubtless feel rewarded by the brilliant success they have in no slight degree aided to achieve, but they are none the less entitled to our heartfelt thanks and congratulations. We sincerely trust that many years of health and strength may be in store for you, and although none of us can forestall events, or what exigencies may hereafter arise in the political history of this country, we feel secure in the conviction that you will be found always your post, strenuously advocating the country's best interests.

Again we tender to you our warmest welcome and most sincere congratulations.

Signed—The Liberal-Conservatives of Dresden.

At the conclusion of this address Fred. Goodland carried forward Miss Jennie Slater, the pretty five-year-old daughter of John Slater, of Dresden, who presented Mr. Clancy with a beautiful bouquet of flowers.

Mayor Craig—And now I introduce to you the future Premier of Canada.—Applause.

Mr. Clancy was given another royal reception and the bands played "The conquering hero."

MR. CLANCY SPEAKS.

"Let me at the outset," he said, "thank you from the bottom of my heart for the splendid victory you have achieved in the election. You have been good enough to allude to and honor me, but no one realizes more deeply than myself that I only performed the duty of a citizen and have never struck below the belt, that we have ever stood upon the most honorable ground and that our campaign has been worthy of our cause and the best and highest interests of our great political party. I congratulate you that in the contest now closed you have not adopted one rule for the conduct of our political opponents and another for ourselves, that you have fought on higher grounds than petty private politics, and that you have devoted your best energies and highest duties to the advocacy of a wise and prudent public policy and we are glad that the people of Ontario have rendered a similar verdict."

"The past election has been unique, and it has been less a lesson for the future. Now is the time when we must exercise prudence and caution. There is a high and sacred duty now devolving upon every Canadian patriot, and it is to seek the unity of his country, irrespective of race and creed, in the best interests of our land. Let us resolve earnestly to look to the future course of our great Liberal-Conservative party, that it may at all times, and in all circumstances be for the upbuilding of the unity and greatness of Canada and the British Empire. If we have a divided people, let it become the great task of the Liberal-Conservative party to seek to reunite them. If there be sectarian or local differences, let it be an aim to restore universal national brotherhood. Then shall we be fulfilling the highest call of patriotism and fidelity."

"And I trust that when you meet again five years hence it will be to glory in the fulfillment of our best resolves, that the good old constitution which you won in '96 and retained in your many years in 1900 has contributed to that end. Then, whether there is a Byrdwell or not, for we're told that the constituency is to be swept away—we will have the right to live in the hearts of the Liberal-Conservative party. One more I thank you deeply for this victory which is not mine but yours."

Mr. Clancy was accorded cheer upon cheer on concluding. The speaking

Two Ways of Making Clothing!

There are two ways of making clothing; One is by a rule of thumb-haphazard process which produces one thing to-day and another to-morrow and in which the element of certainty and reliability is never present. The other is a process of scientific intelligence and exactness which produces each season high-grade, dependable uniformity and keeps at it, and that's the way our clothing is made.
