AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

SAVED HIS LIFE

So says Mr. T. M. Reed, a highly respected Merchant of Middletown, Ill., of a Young Man who was supposed to be in Consumption.

"One of my customers, some years ago, had a son who had all the symptoms of consumption. He had a cough, and he steadily failed until he was unable to leave his bed. His mother applied to me for some remedy, and I recommended Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. He took it, and was entirely cured. I don't doubt it saved his life."—T. M. REED, Middletown, Ill.

"Some time ago, I caught a severe cold, my throat and lungs were badly inflamed, and I had a terrible cough. It was supposed that I was a victim of consumption. My friends had little hope of recovery. But I bought a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, took it, and was entirely cured. I don't doubt it saved my life."—I. JONES, Memphis, Tenn.

Canadian Pilgrims at Lourdes.

Miraculous Cures.

Mr. A. J. Boucher, one of the organizers of the Canadian pilgrimage which has just returned from Lourdes, writes to the Montreal Star:

Lourdes with its queer population of about seven thousand inhabitants is situated on an impetuous mountain stream, the Haute Pyrenees, in the midst of a bold mountain scenery of the loveliest character, and within an hour's distance from the Spanish frontier. The language universally spoken by the inhabitants is an unintelligible Bretonese patois, bearing little resemblance to either the native French or the neighboring Spanish. The bare, wide wooden cap (somewhat resembling the bonnet of the Scotch mountaineer) is universally worn by the men and by many of the women also. Friday afternoon, August 17, the first informal public exercise took place. Bells were rung at the Grotto by Rev. Father Trotter, and several sick, belonging to divers French pilgrimages present, were, at their own request, specially recommended to the prayers of the Canadian pilgrims.

Tuesday morning, a special Papal Benediction was given in the Basilica, this was the last public act and conclusion of the Canadian pilgrimage. Since 3 o'clock in the morning, Lourdes was invaded by an army, of some 1200 sick and infirm of every conceivable class—many of them in the very last stages of disease—brought from Paris and every corner of France by numerous successive trains—the white, the blue, the green, the purple, the grey, the yellow, the blue and white trains each conveying some special class or the incurables of a particular Parisian hospital. A perfectly organized ambulance service, comprising gentlemen of the first families of France, le Baron de Malet, Comte de Raymond-Castane, M. de Laurens-Castel, M. de Scouraille, M. de l'Epinois and others, met the unfortunate at the railway station and conveyed them, with the most tender care, to the Grotto, the Piscines, the fountain and the various hospitals where innumerable angels of charity, both lay and religious, took them in hand and kindly ministered to their wants. These were followed, throughout the day, by the remainder of the National Pilgrimage, which this year attained the extraordinary figure of 35,000. We have no time at present to describe the imposing ceremonies, the touching devotions, the many heart-rending scenes, and above all, the numerous cures, each day, took place under the eyes of assembled thousands around the blessed shrine, at the miraculous fountain, at the bath of the pious and during the procession of the Blessed Sacrament.

The certified minutes of some forty remarkable cures, all closely investigated at the Bureau des Constatations Medicales, ably assisted by Dr. Boissarie, and attended this year by 88 physicians from all parts of the world (three of whom are from Canada) and two at least from the United States) and of all shades of religious creeds, were duly recorded and published—thus, openly bidding defiance to scientific contradiction—during the two busy days of the national pilgrimage.

We cannot but conclude this account of the Canadian pilgrimage by relating the cure (which more intimately interests the pilgrims, as it may many of your readers) of Mrs. Dr. Bourque, of Longue Pointe, near Montreal. Mrs. Bourque had been suffering for some time past from an aggravated case of pelviperitonitis; for ten months she had been unable to leave her house, and had been confined to her bed for eight months. Hearing of the contemplated pilgrimage to Lourdes Mrs. Bourque conceived the idea of joining it—a project further encouraged by her eldest son, Mr. Henri Bourque, scholar of the Society of Jesus, who had himself experienced some six years ago, in a very marked manner, the favor of the Virgin of the Pyrenees. Besides Dr. Bourque, Dr. Ducher and Desjardins were to accompany her, and berths were accordingly retained for the party on the steamer Vancouver, sailing with the pilgrims on the 31st July last. Eight days before leaving, however, her case took such an unfavorable turn that it appeared evident she would be unable to undertake with safety so long and fatiguing a journey. As a last resort, however, Dr. Brennan was brought into consultation at the very last moment, but he declared the voyage impossible under actual circumstances. Nothing daunted, however, Mrs. Bourque, her husband and friends determined an effort should be made by the following steamer of the line, and accordingly, Mrs. Bourque and party took passage on the Oregon, which left Montreal on the 28th of July last. Some and was so much admired that when the Duke de Loubat wished to have a statue of Leo XIII. by the best artist possible, Cardinal Rotelli, then Nuncio at Paris, recommended Luchetti. The Duke accepted the advice, and coming to Rome he ordered one of the very first quality of Serravezza marble, and presented it to the Catholic University of Washington. Satisfied with this work he ordered a second one, which is now in the Collegiate Church of Carpineto, and a third, which is in the Cathedral of Perugia. It is no wonder, therefore, that Leo XIII. said to him: "You must be indeed blessed with plentiful wealth!"—a just reference, considering that each of the statues costs about $6,000. Not content with this marvellous one ordered another, which was to be an exact replica of the others. It was his intention to offer it to the Church of St. Joachim, which the Catholic world is erecting in honor of Leo XIII. but no suitable place being found there, it has been presented by the Pope to the Church of St. Anselm, which is to be a university and the headquarters of the Benedictine Order, costing the Pope 1,600,000 francs. The statue weighs about six tons and is in splendid white marble, the Pope being represented seated, vested in full pontificals, with cope and tiara, and in the act of imparting his benediction. It is no exaggeration to say that the features which have baffled the efforts of the best artists are reproduced with admirable fidelity and transparency. Luchetti is a Perugian and thus well known to the Pope, who, when a Cardinal, visited his studio on two different occasions but he has been resident at Rome upwards of forty years. Besides these five statues of Leo XIII. he has executed busts of the Duke de Loubat, of Mgr. Marzolini, one of Pope's chamberlains, and of Cardinal Rotelli, two intimate friends of Pope Leo, all of which the Duke has placed in his residence at Paris.

THE TOMB OF LEO XIII.

This much-talked of subject has a close connection with the preceding one. I have been moved by the recent assertions copied by the American papers from the French to make a thorough inquiry as to whether Leo XIII. has ordered his tomb to be erected in the Basilica of St. John Lateran. The item of news asserting this cannot be called fresh, except inasmuch as this time it has associated with it the name of an artist, Marsati. In the first place the name of such an artist is unknown in Rome, and information taken at the Vatican itself enables me to say that no similar commission has been entrusted to any one. In the second place, if any such a commission were given, there are many reasons why it should be given to the Cavaliere Luchetti, of whom mention has been made above. This most-gifted sculptor is the author of the tomb of Innocent III., which Leo XIII. erected at his own personal expense in the Lateran, placing it in one of the archways pierced by the doors connecting the church with the Leonine—Portico. As there is a strong probability that Leo XIII. has chosen the corresponding arch on the Gospel side of the apsidal altar as his place of sepulchre, it is most likely that the same artist would be called upon to perform another similar work. I would be strange if another were selected to copy his ingenious adaptation of sculpture to difficult architectural circumstances, while it would be impossible to depart from his principles without offending artist harmony. [This is all the more improbable if we consider Leo's love of severe artistic forms.] Thus, for instance, the tombs of Leo X., and Clement the VII. in the choir of the Minerva and the two Sanosino tombs in the choir of Santa Maria del Popolo agree architecturally while differing in the figurative parts. Moreover, it seems that Luchetti has already some years ago drawn up a plan which has met with the approval of his Holiness, and has been laid by. It is well to note that Papal tombs begun during the lifetime of their intended occupants have often proved failures. Witness, for instance, the tomb which Julius II. ordered Michael Angelo to prepare, and for the reception of which as the only worthy receptacle the present St. Peter's may be said to have been built. The work was interrupted, and finally left unfinished, and the completed parts stand in melancholy grandeur

Items of Interest From Rome.

(Correspondence of the Philadelphia Catholic Times, Sept. 18.)

Among those who have been lately received in audience by the Sovereign Pontiff were his Eminence Cardinal Langenieux, Archbishop of Rheims; Mgr. Augard, Vicar Apostolic of Oubanghi; Mgr. Carrano, Archbishop of Aquila; Mgr. Cosenz, Bishop of Caserta; Mgr. Valansie, Bishop of Nicosia; Mgr. Szabo, G. S. S. Rumanian Bishop of Armenopolis; Father Raphael d'Heruille, Procurator General of the Minor Observant; Mgr. Tescari, Bishop of Borgo San Donnino, and His Excellency the Spanish Ambassador to the Holy See.

THE OCTOBER ENCYCLICAL.

The eloquent October Encyclical for this year strikes a blow at two modern writers, Zola and Bovio. The former receives the second Pontifical disapprobation of his "Lourdes." The second is an Italian Deputy, an ex-Garibaldian soldier and implacable anti-clerical. He takes an active part in the political and literary life of Italy. In literature his tastes are serious. He is a sort of ultra-radical Borghi, but far more bilious, and the thought of Catholicism has become his bugbear. His latest ton-de-force has been a play, in which the divinity of Christ is annihilated and an imperfect man set forth in place of the Redeemer. It has been set to music, fitted, and endorsed and translated—all for its own quality of anti-clericalism. In stigmatizing this—"Christ at the Feast of Purim"—together with Zola's book, the Pontiff has shown once again the unity and harmony which exists between devotion to God, the Son and to his earthly Mother.

A TYROLESE PILGRIMAGE.

The ardent faith of the Tyrolese people is well known. About seventy pilgrims of that nationality were received by the Pope on Sunday, September 18th. The pilgrims were disposed in different rooms of that part of the Vatican which is known as the Pontifical department, and were admitted one by one to the throne-room, where the Pope was seated. A Tyrolese parish priest, the Rev. Father Wurtele, and the Marquis Pietramellara acted as interpreters.

CONVERSIONS.

News has been received of some conversions from Waldensianism. Such conversions are frequent in Italy. The Jews and the Waldensians are the only considerable dissenting religious bodies in Italy. Conversions have always been made in both bodies, and each Holy Saturday at St. John Lateran is the fixed day for public baptisms of this kind. Cardinal Wiseman speaks of the Waldensians as the only medieval sect which survives the blight of the Church's anathemas. They claim to be as ancient as the ninth century, but their name and other indications go to show that they are not older than the twelfth century. They got on very well with the House of Savoy, which formerly treated them with great severity.

"LEO XIII IN THE STREETS OF ROME."

This is the flamboyant heading under which a daily paper chronicles the transfer of a colossal statue of the Pope from the studio of Cavaliere Giuseppe Luchetti to the abbey church of Saint Anselm on the Aventine hill. The statue is the gift of the Duke de Loubat, a New York millionaire, and is the fifth work of this kind executed by the sculptor Luchetti. The first was ordered by the Sacred Congregation of Propaganda through the medium of Cardinal Randa and Mgr. Jacobini, now Nuncio in Portugal,

REAL CAPTIVITY.

Notice has been taken of the villa which Leo XIII. has erected in the Vatican gardens and where he has repaired regularly during the summer months. The last days of August and the first days of September were marked by an intolerable return of suffocating heat after comparatively mild weather. During these days the doctors obliged the Pope to stay in the house in order to avoid the intensity of the heat. Now had Leo XIII. been free to leave the Vatican he could have repaired to a summer residence where the temperature would have been lower. This is one of the little facts which speak great truths.

THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC AND THE HOLY SEE.

It is now certain that the Argentine Republic intends to establish diplomatic relations with the Holy See. At the same time it is rumored that it will abolish its representation at the Quirinal. The Monteur de Rome says that this is probably due to the fact that the Italian Government affords no sufficient help to the 200,000 Italians settled in the republic.

PEACE FOR THE ITALIAN CHURCH.

The fever of persecution has been less for some time past. The confraternities and religious processions are the only objects of attack. The government is granting exequators one by one to each of the bishops appointed by the Pope and unrecognized by the government during a long period. The question of the Patriarchate of Venice was the key to the difficulty. The King claimed a right which had been accorded to his remote predecessors in the government of that State when independent, as a personal privilege limited by the will of the person to whom the right essentially belonged. This was the right of nomination. All the exequators were refused because the Pope held out in his refusal to concede this point. Now the government has had recourse to a legal fiction. The King nominated Cardinal Sarto, whom the Pope had nominated and whom the King had refused to recognize, and then the exequatur was given. An example will show who won the day. A and B both claimed a property, but the claim of B seems rather a bogus one, because not made by his father, who could have an equal right. The question is brought forward at a time when the property is to be let and a tenant is actually accepted by A. B opposes his entrance, by force, for some years and finally decides to accept him as a tenant, and declares that he (B) lets the house to C, the tenant. From the beginning the question was one of Cardinal Sarto. The King would not accept him because he was the Pope's nominee. Finally after a long opposition, he is accepted. This concession and the Pope's decree that Italian missionaries shall supply the French missionaries in Italy's African colony at Erythrae, coupled with Signor Crispi's speech at Naples, invoking the name of God and calling upon the Church to unite with the State anarchism, are all taken as signs of a peace-making While the Vatican organs deny the significance thus given to the Papal action in Erythrae, the ultra liberal papers are vociferating against even an atom of religious peace. Still it may be hoped that partial peace may come, if only for the simple reason that Signor Crispi is not such a fool as most of his contemporaries, and may thus be led to recognize the benefits of partial if not of total concord.

THE HERALD

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY. SUBSCRIPTION—$1.00 A YEAR.

JAMES MCISAAC, Editor & Proprietor, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1894.

The treasury department at Washington is officially advised that British Guiana has passed the new tariff law by which the reciprocity agreement between that country and the United States is abrogated.

Dr. Dawson has returned to Ottawa from his season's geological work in British Columbia. He expresses the opinion that many deposits of auriferous gravel exist in the province which will pay, and believes the success of companies now conducting extensive hydraulic mining operations in Carbon county will be a great incentive to others.

J. W. Hodgson, the big produce merchant of Liverpool with branches at Montreal and New York, interviewed Hon. Mr. Angers and Prof. Robertson at Ottawa a few days ago. He visited the Experimental farm and was much interested. "Canadian cheese," says Mr. Hodgson "brings the best price in Britain today and is certainly the best quality in the market. The demand in England for Canadian products is excellent."

It affords us much pleasure to learn that Mr. Alexander McDonald, acting Superintendent since Mr. Unsworth's death has been appointed Superintendent of the Prince Edward Island Railway. We feel confident he is the right man in the right place, and we have every reason to believe that under his management the business of the road will be conducted in a manner satisfactory, not only to the Railway Department, but to the general public as well. We congratulate Mr. McDonald on his well-deserved promotion, and the Minister of Railways on the wisdom of his choice, and we trust the new Superintendent may long enjoy the position of trust and importance to which he has been elevated.

This is what the Montreal Star has to say of our friend Mr. L. H. Davies, M. P., in connection with a reference made to that gentleman in the Halifax Chronicle, and quoted below: Hon. L. H. Davies is a manly, impetuous politician, with the power of making himself understood if his auditor is not stone deaf. This is a quality that the editor of the Halifax Chronicle will probably better appreciate when he next meets Mr. Davies after that swift-tongued gentleman has read the following "pray-friends-stay-and-hear-the-poor-brother" paragraph in the Chronicle: We have reason to believe that the Hon. Mr. Davies, the Liberal Leader for the Maritime Provinces, is ready to respond to invitations to address public meetings throughout the province. An intimation of this kind ought to be all that is needed to induce our leading friends in the different counties to get together and prepare for an autumn campaign, not a half dozen but scores of meetings held everywhere, at some of which Mr. Davies can be present, and at which good speakers belonging to the province will be available. The Nova Scotia Grit says, the Star, who would not try to get the loan of a school-house for Mr. Davies to talk in after the above touching appeal, is plainly without a heart.

As winter approaches the wants of the poor become more pressing, and the members of the St. Vincent de Paul Society find the demands made upon them for fuel and provisions greater than they are able to meet. As they have scarcely any fixed source of revenue, they have to depend for the most part upon the generously disposed for the means of enabling them to carry on their work of assisting the poor. In order that all may have an opportunity of participating in this good work, without bearing heavily on anyone, the Society has arranged for a series of entertainments to be held in St. Patrick's Hall during the autumn and winter months. These entertainments will be musical and literary in character, and the best talent available will be brought into requisition. The small sum of ten cents will be charged for admission, and the members of the conference feel sure that the intellectual enjoyment afforded will amply repay all who will attend; besides they will have the satisfaction of knowing that they are assisting a most worthy charitable object. The first of the entertainments will take place tomorrow (Thursday) evening and the third Thursday of each month. It is to be hoped the hall will be crowded. Doors will be open at 7.30, and the entertainment will commence about a quarter to eight.

The Land Assessment Act.

DURING the last session of the Provincial Legislature provision was made in so many different forms for the collection of taxes, so many assessment acts were passed, and such multifarious machinery set in motion for the production of a revenue that it is not wonderful many of our people are confused and scarcely know what steps they are obliged to take in order to meet the demands made upon them, so as to avoid dire consequences. Of the income tax we have already spoken; the insurance and bank tax acts are not of general application, and will be dealt with as well as possible by the representatives of these institutions, while the commercial travellers may be depended upon to look out for themselves.

The Land Assessment Act, then, is the one most universal in its scope, as it is the one that affects every farmer in the Province. The act provides for the classification of all the farm lands under different valuations, and the Government in their most generous concession have left to each farmer the task of valuing his own land, but in the opinion of the Provincial Treasurer or any one of his deputies, the valuation is not sufficiently high, it is to be set aside, and the Government officials will value it to suit themselves.

The taxation imposed is at the rate of one cent per acre on farms not exceeding in value $5 per acre. On all farm lands exceeding an average of $5, and not exceeding an average of $10 per acre, two cents. Exceeding $10 and not exceeding $15, three cents; exceeding $15 and not exceeding $20 per acre, four cents; exceeding $20 and not exceeding $25, five cents, and all exceeding $25, six cents per acre.

Besides this taxation of the regular farm lands, the act provides a special taxation of plots of land of ten acres or less, which cannot properly be regarded as farms, and which are not situated within the bounds of the city of Charlottetown or the town of Summerside. The rate of taxation on these plots is as follows: on plots not exceeding in value $250, fifty cents; on plots exceeding $250 and not exceeding $500, one dollar; exceeding $500 and not exceeding $1,000, two dollars; exceeding $1,000 and not exceeding $1,500, three dollars; exceeding $1,500 and not exceeding $2,000, four dollars; exceeding $2,000 and not exceeding $2,500, five dollars; and all exceeding $2,500, six dollars.

From these figures it will readily be seen that the government framed a land assessment act sufficiently comprehensive to bring within its provisions almost all the land in the Province, not subject to taxation in some other form.

Now, as to the manner of levying the tax. The owner of every farm or plot of land subject to taxation is required to appear before the Provincial Treasurer, or before the deputy treasurer appointed for the township or district in which the land is situated, and make a declaration regarding the quantity and value of his land. We imagine that no farmer will have very much difficulty in finding a deputy treasurer, as the country is filled with those minions of the government. These land taxes are due and payable on the first day of December, but all who pay on or before the fifteenth day of November will be entitled to a discount of five per cent on the amount of their tax bill.

These, in brief, are the main provisions of the land assessment act, saddled on the country by the Provincial Government. We have given this information for the benefit of our readers and friends who are taxed, so that by no misunderstanding may be put to any trouble or inconvenience by the government tax gatherers.

The trial of Mr. Keating, White-waite member of the legislature for St. George's District, Newfoundland, was concluded at St. John's on Friday last. Justice Little unseating and disqualifying him for bribery and corruption. This makes the sixteenth White-waite unseated for these offences. There is no more trial.

The United States Consul at Dundee, Scotland, reports to the State Department at Washington, that 31,745 tons of potatoes, valued at $554,288 were shipped from that port to the United States, from October last year to June this year, inclusive. The tariff was then twenty-five cents a bushel, which has been reduced by the Wilson Bill to fifteen cents, but it is not thought that this fact will affect the size of shipments in the future as much as a short crop and high prices in the United States, and over-production in Scotland. The crop this year in the Dundee district shows a considerable decrease, and it is not likely that American potatoes will suffer much by Scotch competition.

Popularity.

Popularity is a fickle goddess that has many votaries. "Trimming sails to catch the popular breeze" is a humely metaphor, yet it is a true one, and perhaps never more true than at the present time. It typifies never more prevalent than in our day. It does not follow, however, that there is not a popularity worthy of acquisition, and, when acquired, worthy of the highest appreciation and the most zealous guardianship. This genuine popularity comes unthought and is the recompense of deeds well done. It is that consensus of favorable public opinion which, an exemplary life and great works elicit. Perhaps no more striking example of genuine, unqualified popularity of the present day could be cited than that of the late Oliver Wendell Holmes, who died recently in Boston. He seems to have been a man of noble character and unblemished life, who achieved enduring fame in the republic of letters. During his life, as well as after his death, there was no one to say anything but good of him. That is true popularity in its highest and noblest sense. It was not sought or acquired by peddling to the prejudices of this one or that; but by his great qualities of head and heart.

There is another popularity which does not rise spontaneously but which is eagerly sought. A popularity which would sometimes seem to constitute the object of a person's highest ambition. There are not wanting those who seem willing to break off life-long friendships; to flatter the vanities of the ignorant and to connive at the silly frivolities of the addle-brained, in order that they may hear themselves favorably spoken of. Such a popularity is empty, vain and unstable, and as evanescent as its modes of acquisition are unworthy and unmanly. Such a popularity is worse than useless.

True popularity, whether in the statesman, the professional man, or the man in the ordinary walks of life is that which springs from genuine worth; from a life well lived, and from a conscientious and faithful discharge of the duties of one's station. "Act well your part, there all the honor lies."

For the first ten days of September there was a deficit in the Washington treasury of $1,336,765.

The Victoria, B. C., papers contain long accounts of the return of the Canadian International Boundary Commission after six months absence. The result of the commission's observations is that the whole ground from Junken, Alaska to Mount Fairweather is new surveyed. One thousand photographs have been taken. Many of the photographs it is said do relative justice to the northern scenery. The exploring parties brought back strawberry plants from the neighborhood of Lituga Bay, where the berries were "abundant beyond conception." The work of the commission has been eminently satisfactory.

We are pleased to know that Mr. J. J. Chappell has been promoted to the position of Store-keeper and Mechanical Accountant of the Prince Edward Island Railway and that Mr. H. W. Anderson has been made Mechanical Foreman with an increase of salary in each case. These promotions are suitable recognitions of the long and faithful services of these gentlemen. Mr. H. S. Coffin of the Mechanical Department has also received an addition to his salary. Congratulations.

Montreal advices of the 15th say that a correspondence has been opened up between Premier Taillon and several well known Montrealers with a view to offering the treasurership to R. B. Angus, a director in the Bank of Montreal and a many times millionaire in the country. If he would accept the portfolio it would be a great hit, the idea being for Angus to hold the portfolio a couple of years, put the finance in a good condition, and then retire to Spencerwood as the first English speaking governor since Confederation.

Winnipeg Commercial: "An effort is to be made to introduce one cent coins into circulation in Winnipeg. At least this will be the result of a new departure in the newspaper line in Winnipeg. The Free Press is advertising an evening edition at two cents, and a supply of one cent coins has been secured for change. If the move is a success, it will mean the final introduction of one cent pieces here. Up to the present time the smallest coin in circulation in Manitoba and the west generally has been the five cent silver piece. An effort has been made on two occasions to introduce the copper coin, but failed. Business people were opposed to the innovation, and they did not encourage the attempt to bring the small pieces into circulation. The one cent coin, however, is bound to come, and if the two cent paper is a success, it will go a long way towards bringing it into general use. There are many little things which now sell for five cents, though not worth that much, because there is no smaller money in use here. This, however, will eventually be changed, to the annoyance of trade people and the outlying districts of collection returns."

Entertainment at St. Teresa's.

The entertainment given in St. Teresa's Church, Cardigan Road, on Monday evening was a decided success. All those who took part in the performance are to be congratulated on the efficient manner in which they rendered their different parts. Great credit is due the Pastor Rev. M. J. Macmillan for his untiring zeal and unwearied energy in drawing up the programme, and preparing for its successful execution. As it was said by one of his parishioners, Father Macmillan is not content with doing what duty demands of him, but he must consecrate even his leisure moments to the betterment of the flock entrusted to him. The large number, who notwithstanding the bad weather, were present at the entertainment, show how well his faithful people appreciate his devotion. At sharp seven the programme was opened with a chorus of welcome by the choir. Then fourteen young men, whom seven were farmers and seven school teachers recited in turn a series of selections descriptive of the life and labor of O'Connell the great Irish Agitator. This part of the programme was intensely interesting. The subject in itself was one calculated to rivet the closest attention, whilst the admirable theatrical ability displayed by the various performers elicited the applause of the vast audience. The story of O'Connell's wrestling Catholic emancipation from a tyrannical ministry was vividly described, and his saintly death at Genoa, amid the sighs and tears of his grief-stricken people was feelingly and pathetically portrayed. The recitations were interspersed with vocal and instrumental music, of which a vocal duet by the Misses George and Griffin of Cardigan Bridge deserves special mention. The solo "Marguerite" by Miss Lottie Macdonald was sung with much feeling, and a solo and chorus "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground" merited the rounds of applause it received. Towards the close congratulatory remarks were made by Rev. Father Macmillan, pastor, Rev. J. C. McLean of St. George's, Rev. J. B. Mackenzie of St. John's, and Rev. P. Curran of Tracadie. Mr. Robert Money too, started in to make a speech. It was his intention, we believe, to have given a detailed account of all the events that transpired in Irish history from its beginning down to the latest pronouncements in the Parnellite and anti-Parnellite camps. But as the hour was late, and none of the audience possessing such an emergency, had brought books with them, a society of young ladies, headed by Mrs. M. B. Dakin and her son, Kenneth, and Mr. M. B. Dakin and his son, Kenneth, and Solomon Graham and Jacob Swift. A moderate breeze was blowing off the shore when the last boat heard from the Central wharf, no distinguishing marks by which she could be identified. A heavy southeast gale raged at the wharf, and considerable damage. Great fears are felt for the safety of a number of the fishermen of different localities, who are now in the bay. Two of seventeen fishing boats that left Centreville in the afternoon are missing. They were accompanied by W. M. B. Dakin and his son, Kenneth, and Solomon Graham and Jacob Swift. Here is a bit of real life which surpasses fiction. According to the Savannah, Ga., News, one Jones, bookkeeper of the Southern Express, who died in 1873, and after a while it happened that he had robbed the bank by means of forged drafts on the New York correspondent. He was found in New York, fled from there, found again and arrested in Belgium, and killed himself after his arrest. He left nothing but some old clothes among them a pair of shoes which lay in a cupboard for twenty-one years, when a man found them and took them to be repaired. The bookkeeper found the upper to be made with bank notes and securities of considerable value. The police learned of the find and have notified the bank, and now there is a prospect that the bank will get part of its gain.

Mr. Dillon has received from Professor Robertson a letter asking that Messrs. H. S. Pearson, of the Crapaud creamery; Joseph Burgess, of the Dunk River creamery; and Albert Raby, of the Kensington creamery, be transferred to Ontario to take charge of winter creameries there. The factories above mentioned will continue work as usual, the places of the old managers being filled by new men. The New Perth, Crapaud and Crapaud creameries will be run during the winter. Professor Robertson has suggested that Mr. Dillon his intention of paying a visit to the Island about the 1st November, on which occasion he will be accompanied by Mr. Hodgson and Mr. McKenna. Mr. Hodgson, it will be remembered, purchased largely of Island cheese last fall. Mr. McKenna is a member of the firm of A. A. Ayer & Co., Montreal.

HEART FAILURE, FAINTNESS, ACUTE DYSPESIA, with Complete Nervous Prostration, Cured by Using HAWKER'S NERVE & STOMACH TONIC.

A LADY'S TESTIMONY. Mr. Wm. Thompson of Massachus., N. B., says: "For 3 years past my wife has suffered with Acute Dyspepsia accompanied with complete nervous prostration and a smothering sensation about the heart which prevented her from taking any food, and had a constant feeling of drowsiness. She suffered with intense pain in the stomach after eating, which was usually followed by the smothering sensation about the heart, and fainting spells. She tried a great many remedies and was treated by the best medical skill, but obtained no relief. She became so discouraged that she gave up all hope of ever getting better, when our pastor suggested that she try HAWKER'S NERVE & STOMACH TONIC, which had produced remarkable cures in several cases he knew of. We did so, and obtained immediate relief from the distress after taking the second dose, and has continued to improve ever since until today she is as well as ever, and can enjoy her food without suffering. I cannot speak too highly of this medicine, which has restored my wife to health and strength and saved much suffering and expense."

Rev. Henry H. Sells, Doctor of Massachus., N. B., says: "I am personally acquainted with several cases of the kind which I recommended to be treated with this medicine, and have produced such remarkable results. A LADY'S TESTIMONY. Mr. Wm. Thompson of Massachus., N. B., says: "For 3 years past my wife has suffered with Acute Dyspepsia accompanied with complete nervous prostration and a smothering sensation about the heart which prevented her from taking any food, and had a constant feeling of drowsiness. She suffered with intense pain in the stomach after eating, which was usually followed by the smothering sensation about the heart, and fainting spells. She tried a great many remedies and was treated by the best medical skill, but obtained no relief. She became so discouraged that she gave up all hope of ever getting better, when our pastor suggested that she try HAWKER'S NERVE & STOMACH TONIC, which had produced remarkable cures in several cases he knew of. We did so, and obtained immediate relief from the distress after taking the second dose, and has continued to improve ever since until today she is as well as ever, and can enjoy her food without suffering. I cannot speak too highly of this medicine, which has restored my wife to health and strength and saved much suffering and expense."

Rev. Henry H. Sells, Doctor of Massachus., N. B., says: "I am personally acquainted with several cases of the kind which I recommended to be treated with this medicine, and have produced such remarkable results. Sold by all druggists and general dealers. TONIC 50 cts., FILLS 25 cts. Manufactured by HAWKER MEDICINE CO., Ltd. St. John, N. B.
