Now the Prices you've been waiting for are here

The old year took away, for ever, we hope, the old burden of war prices. For months conditions have been working toward the great climax that brought the remarkable merchandise that is here assembled for this our greatest January Carnival of Economy.

The results came in two ways: 1st. The drastic lowering of prices on our own stocks, down to the new low basis, and often far below it—to double your interest in January buying in our store.

2nd. We have combed the markets—taking utmost advantage of the opportunities created by far sighted manufacturers who were ready to co-operate with us in presenting to you now the lowest prices that will be possible, for the next six months, at least.

We can just see the delight of our Customers when they see the splendid assortment of goods, in every department of our store, and then realize that prices are away down to the bottom, where it is a pleasure to buy things.

Many Manufacturers have ACCEPTED LARGE LOSSES.

We shall forgo a large part of our profits on the new goods and accept large losses on our own mark-downs—to inaugurate this first New Year under the New Management and

THE MOST STIRRING PRICE-UPSET THAT THIS COMMUNITY HAS EVER KNOWN.

No matter what you need or desire, now is the best time for months to come to buy it. Some of the reasons are told on this page; but scores of others are here that can get no mention today, even in this broad space.

Sermons On Catholic Worship

"The Preface and the Sanctus" is the Twentieth of a series of Sermons now being published on Catholic Worship. This Sermon was prepared by the Rev. Frank O'Farrell, pastor of St. Matthew's Church, Kippisell, Montana.

PREFACE AND SANCTUS.

We read in the Holy Scripture that, before changing bread and wine into His own body and blood at the Last Supper, Christ gave thanks to His heavenly Father in imitation of His father the divine founder of the Church, before the consecration of the Mass, the hymn of thanksgiving known as the preface, which means "forward." It is the preface to the "canon of the Mass." The custom of saying the preface dates back to apostolic times. The earliest liturgies have been preserved from the beginning, while in the western rite the number of prefaces steadily grew during the early centuries. At the time of Pope Gregory the Great (590-610) the number of prefaces in the western rite was reduced to 10. Pope Urban II in the 11th century added a special preface for the feasts of the Blessed Virgin and finally Pope Benedict XV gave us two more special prefaces, one for the feasts of St. Joseph and one for the Masses for the Dead. Thus we have 12 in all.

Today we shall explain the common or ordinary preface, which is said at all Masses not having one of the special prefaces. You will notice that the preface begins with a little dialogue between priest and people, and closes with the chant of the angels. The ordinary preface has these parts in common with the special prefaces, while it differs from them in the words found in the body of the preface, which vary according to the season of the ecclesiastical year or the sacred mystery, which the church specially commemorates on certain days.

THE FIRST WORDS.

The first words of the preface are but the concluding words of the secret prayer. The priest gives out these words in a loud tone of voice to call the attention of the people to the fact. To signify this union of sentiment with the priest the people through the server reply, "Amen." The priest and people then hail one another in the usual manner by saying, "The Lord be with you," and "And with thy spirit." Hitherto the celebrant always turned to the congregation when addressing to them these words of salutation. Now however, since he has entered the Holy of Holies of the Mass, like Moses whom the Lord led into a cloud on the mountain (Exodus, XIV, 15) he shall turn no more towards the people, nor shall they see his face again until the great sacrifice is completed.

After this exchange of salutations the priest invites those present to set aside all earthly thoughts and to fix the eyes of their mind on the heavenly things soon to materialize on the altar, by saying, "Lift up your hearts to God." To emphasize the thought contained in these words the priest raises his hands from the altar in accordance with the admonition of the prophet: "Let us raise our hearts together with our hands to the Lord in the heavens." (Lamentations, III, 41.) To this the people reply, "We have them lifted up to the Lord." The priest follows up his invitation to the people to raise their hearts to God by specifying the distinct purpose he has here in view, namely, the praising of God, who called us, though most unworthy, to the celebration of the divine mysteries: "Let us give thanks unto the Lord." While uttering these the priest joins his hands and bows his head to the Crucifix to signify the reverence and ardor of his innermost thoughts.

THE PREFACE.

Now begins the preface proper. The priest confirms and evolves the last response of the people, addressing his words to God the Father: "It is truly meet and just, right and salutary that we should always and in all places give thanks to Thee, O Holy Lord, Father Almighty, Eternal God through Christ our Lord, who is with us, and it is fitting to thank God. It befits both His dignity and ours, it acknowledges Him to be the source of all blessings, and it reveals the nobility of our nature, for gratitude is the sign of a noble soul."

"It is right" to thank God, not that the letter of the law requires it, but that the sense of propriety and equity demands it in view of God's infinite goodness and mercy towards us.

But it is not only meet and just. It is eminently salutary that we return thanks to God. For gratitude blesses him that gives and pleases him that takes. The thanks of the grateful leper and the hymn of thanksgiving of the three young men in the furnace at Babylon were most pleasing to God. Gratitude is the key that unlocks the treasure-house of divine grace and is the surest means of obtaining fresh favors from God.

"It is truly meet and just, right and salutary that we should always and in all places give thanks to Thee." Indeed nothing could be more meet, just and right than that we creatures, the adopted sons of God, should at all times and everywhere give thanks to God, our Creator, our most kind and loving Father, whether in adversity or prosperity, in wealth or poverty, in sickness or in health, because He nowhere ceases to shower His gifts upon us, since "in Him we live and move and are." (Acts XVII, 28.)

WORTHY THANKSGIVING.

But no act of thanksgiving is more worthy of God the Father and more acceptable in His sight than that which goes up to Him through Christ our Lord, for by Him we have access to the Father (Eph. II, 18) especially in the sacrifice of the Mass, in which He gives Himself as a thanksgiving of infinite dignity. Through Christ all blessings are brought to us, even salvation, because there is salvation in no other; for there is no other name under heaven given to men whereby we must be saved. (Acts IV, 12.) And it is only through Him that our feeble voices can return thanks in a worthy manner.

But it is not only men, but also angels, who praise God through Christ, through whom they too were created and are preserved. (Coloss. I, 16); who, even as man, is the king and head of the angels. (Eph. I, 20.) Therefore the preface goes on saying: "Through Christ our Lord, by Whom the angels praise Thy Majesty, the dominations

TROUBLED FOR YEARS WITH CONSTIPATION

If you have suffered from constipation for years, tried all kinds of remedies without getting relief, if you have been subject to all the miseries associated with constipation, wouldn't you consider it a blessing to be able to keep the bowels in a good healthy condition and prevent disease getting a foothold on your system?

LAXA LIVER PILLS

As indicated just for this purpose, their regular use relieving the worst cases of constipation.

Mrs. J. Thompson, Bonny, Sask., writes: "I have been troubled for years with constipation, and tried various remedies which did me no good. I then tried Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and they have done me a world of good; they are indeed a splendid pill, and I heartily recommend them to all who suffer from constipation."

Price: 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

adore it, the heavens and the heavenly virtues and the blessed seraphim exultantly celebrate it in common.

Therefore, realizing our unworthiness, we humbly implore that we be permitted to join the heavenly hosts in saying: "Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord of hosts, heaven and earth are full of Thy glory. Hosannas in the highest." Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord. Hosannas in the highest. Saying these words the priest joins his hands and inclines towards the altar to signify that he unites himself with the angels in reverent acknowledgment of the Divine Majesty, and signs himself with the sign of the cross in sacred memory of Christ's passion and death.

THE DOMINANT THOUGHT.

The words of the first part of the Sanctus give praise and glory to the Holy Trinity, and are taken from Isaiah (VI, 3) while the closing words are from St. Matthew (XXI, 9) and refer to the acclamations of joy and welcome with which the Jews received our Saviour on His entry into the Holy City. They are very appropriately used here to announce Him who will soon come upon the altar to be immolated in an unbloody manner as He once entered Jerusalem that He might shed His blood on the Cross. Let the thought that runs through the preface of the Mass be the dominant note of our whole lives, so that when our feeble voices are hushed forever on earth our souls may be found worthy to join the angels in singing the praises of God forever in heaven.

UNSIGHTLY PIMPLES

MAY BE ERADICATED BY

FOR THE BLOOD

Miss Mary E. Flanagan, R.R. 3, Stella, Ont., writes: "I suffered about two years with pimples and blotches breaking out on my face. The doctor said it was caused by bad blood. My face was so bad I didn't like to go out among a crowd of people."

One day I was talking to a friend, and she advised me to get a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and try it. I just took three bottles, and there wasn't a blotch or pimple of any kind left.

Some of my friends asked me what I had used and I said "Burdock Blood Bitters cleared them." I cannot give it enough praise and recommend it to any person who wants a sure remedy for these nasty pimples and blotches."

Arguments Slaughtered

One by one the argumentative defences of Free Traders are falling before the irresistible onslaught of economic necessity. The Emergency Tariff Act and the Fordney Bill in the United States were disastrous reverses, but now comes an annihilating blow in the "Safeguarding of Industries Act" just put into effect in that Mecca of Free Trade doctrines, England.

We have heard a great deal in recent years from Dr. Michael Clark and Mr. Crerar of the alleged benefits of "Free Trade-as-they-have-it-in-England," and that the United States was fast becoming a Free Trade nation. Suddenly these economic Rip Van Winkles awake to witness their pet arguments being ruthlessly swept away, and now, like Rachel weeping for her children, they will not be comforted. Mr. Crerar, however, doggedly refuses to follow the trend of the times. He still declares Free Trade ultimately, or in due course, to be the goal of the Progressive party and in a ludicrous attempt to cover the rout of the Free Trade forces now falls back on the argument that the United States is the largest Free Trade "area" in the world. But why cross the line for such an argument? Canada should have sufficed because interprovincial trade is quite as free here as inter-state trade over there. But one argument is as good as another when all are futile.

"The Safeguarding of Industries Act" put into force on October 1st last in England and which is to remain in force for five years, is one of the most radically protective measures passed by any country in recent years. The preamble of the Act leaves no doubt whatever in the mind of the reader as to its "protective" object and intent. It is described as:

"An act to impose duties of customs on certain goods with a view to the safeguarding of certain special industries in the United Kingdom against the effects of the depreciation of foreign currencies, and the disposal of imported goods at present below the cost of production, and for purposes connected therewith.

Further the preamble declares: "We, Your most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Commons of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in Parliament assembled, with a view to the safeguarding of certain special industries and the safeguarding employment in the United Kingdom against the effects of the depreciation of foreign currencies and disposal of imported goods at prices below the cost of production, have freely and voluntarily resolved to give and grant unto Your Majesty the several duties mentioned."

Section one of Part one of the Act then stipulates what duties are to be charged. It reads as follows:

"Subject to the provisions of this Act, there shall be charged, levied and paid on the goods specified in the Schedule in this Act, on the importation thereof into the United Kingdom, duties of customs equal to one-third of the value of the goods."

Section 2 of the Act deals with the question of "dumping" and sets forth certain regulations designed to prevent the dumping of foreign goods into the United Kingdom.

Clause one provides that if, on complaint being made to the Board of Trade, and it appears to the Board that goods of any class or description (other than articles of food and drink) manufactured in a country outside the United Kingdom are being sold or offered for sale in the United Kingdom—

"(a) at prices below the cost of production thereof as hereinafter defined: or

"(b) at prices which, by reason of depreciation in the value in relation to sterling of the currency of the country in which the goods are manufactured, not being a country within His Majesty's Dominions, are below the prices at which similar goods can be profitably manufactured in the United Kingdom, and that by reason thereof employment in any industry in the United Kingdom is being, or is likely to be, seriously affected, the Board may refer the matter for inquiry to a committee constituted for the purposes of this Part of this Act:—

"Provided that the Board shall not so refer any matter involving a question of depreciation of currency of the country in question in relation to sterling is less by thirty-three and one-third per cent. or upwards, than the par value of exchange.

The Act also provides that where goods are manufactured partly in one country and partly in another, or undergo different processes in different countries (other than parts of the British Empire) they shall be subject to the 33 1/3 per cent. duties. This also applies to goods brought back into the United Kingdom after having been exported for the purpose of undergoing further process in manufacture.

"(a) the wholesale price at the works charged for goods of the class or description for consumption in the country of manufacture, subject to the deduction of the amount of any excise or other similar internal duty leviable in that country and, including, in the price; or

"(b) if no such goods are sold wholesale for consumption in the country of manufacture, the price of the works (subject to the like deduction) which would have been reasonable if the goods had been so sold, and in determining what price would have been reasonable, regard shall be had to the wholesale prices charged for goods as near as may be similar."

The value of any imported goods, the Act further provides, shall be taken to be the price which an importer would give for the goods if the goods were delivered to him freight and insurance paid, in bond at port of importation, duty to be paid on the value fixed by the Board.

In a schedule of goods chargeable with duty under this Act a list is given of the several thousand articles affected. The list includes optical glass and optical elements, optical instruments, scientific glassware, laboratory porcelain, scientific instruments, gauges and measuring instruments, mineral compounds, synthetic or organic chemicals, lamp-blown ware, wireless valves, etc., magnetos and magnets, arc-lamp carbons, hoistery, latch needles, installé tungsten, etc., etc.

If the election be determined on the merits of the respective policies, it is determined by reason rather than by class prejudice, Canada and the Government need not fear the result. The choice should be an easy one for all right thinking people to make. It is a choice between Meighen with ability, advocating stability—King a doctrinaire, without a policy, anxious only for office, and Crerar, a political amateur, who would experiment with the country's most vital interests at the most inopportune time in its history.

Close-up Study Of Premier Meighen

In the current issue of MacLean's Magazine an article appears by "Scrutator," entitled "Canada's Next Premier." The following extracts regarding the Right Honorable Arthur Meighen are taken from this article:—

"Mr. Meighen . . . owes his political pre-eminence mainly to three things: to courage, industry and eloquence."

"He had not only the eyes for big occasions and the courage to rise to them; he had the instinct for the big foe. He was the hunter for big game."

"He emerged from the battle smoke, if not victorious at least with the tribute of the Old Chief that he was among the most brilliant minds that Canadian Conservatism has produced."

"After 1914 Mr. Meighen's career became a procession of dazzling advances, culminating at the highest goal. Today, broader in outlook, mellowed slightly, and with a year of the Premiership behind him, he stands as a salient personality upon the Canadian and Imperial stage. He is incomparably the most powerful intellect in the House of Commons—not the finest nor the most spacious, nor the most attractive, but the most effective."

"If the object of the controversy is to clear up obscure points, he is undoubtedly the most powerful debater of his time. But he is no orator. He creates confidence and carries conviction, but he does not inspire men with passions. . . . He is not a rhetorician. Cautious, analytical, practical, he scorns the oratory of exhortation; refuses to adjective minor questions into a Thermopylae and never puts imagery before fact."

"Yet despite his fidelity to logic he is not without beauty in expression. The gift of style is his, acquired by ardent study of the Masters of English literature. And while there are neither pomp nor purple patches in his passages, there is a fine diction and a compelling lucidity and simplicity. It is the eloquence of the newer school."

"Behind the exterior of frigidly there are the shy virtues of gentility and even tenderness, and in personal contact you are impressed not merely by his clear grasp of affairs, but by his kindness, his courtesy and considerate attention. . . . He comes to the front, not by his power to please, but by his power to persuade; his appeal is to the sense and never to the touch."

"A moderate Conservative, it has been written of him, and not without truth, that he has the outlook of a Roosevelt with something of the temper of a Wilson. In international affairs, as his attitude at the Imperial Conference plainly showed, he is a Liberal in his tendencies. A democrat of the democrats, he is progressive, but would safeguard his advances with caution."

"Mr. Meighen has not brought and will never bring discredit upon his office. As premier he is not inferior to a great lineage. He commands in a rare degree the confidence of his party, and his talents, marked to the point of brilliance, have won universal admiration. If he is triumphant on December 6, the destinies of the nation will be entrusted to steady hands."

Dangerous Agitation

Canadian industries and Canadian workmen are passing through one of the most critical periods in their history. Tight money overproduction, and a big slackening of buying by the public has forced many industries to reduce their staffs and wages. The storm will only be weathered by whole-souled co-operation—a strong hard pull together. How dangerous then is the agitation to lower Canada's protective tariff and lower the bars to a flood of foreign goods. Canada's industrial stability rests on the permanency of a protective tariff. No worse time could be chosen to talk about lowering the tariff.

Diamond Jubilee of Mgr. Bugald Macdonald

Very Rev. Mgr. Macdonald, the venerable and beloved pastor of St. Simon and Jude Church of Tignish, celebrated his diamond jubilee on Tuesday last, 22nd inst, when impressive and memorable services were carried out. At 10.30 Pontifical High Mass was celebrated by His Lordship Rev. Dr. O'Leary, Bishop of Charlottetown, with Rev. Dr. Gauthier, Deacon, Rev. Terence Campbell Sub-Deacon, Mgr. J. C. McLean Deacon of Office, and Rev. W. V. Macdonald Master of Ceremonies, and a number of other clergymen in the Sanctuary. The spacious church was crowded with people.

The sermons in English and French were preached by Rev. J. A. Macdonald, Grand River, and Rev. P. P. Arsenault of Mt. Carmel, respectively. An address in English was read by Mr. John A. Hackett and one in French by Mr. J. J. Arsenault. Eloquent and fitting references were made to the long years of faithful and devoted services of Mgr. Macdonald, his scholarly attainments, his unremitting care for the spiritual welfare of his people, and the affectionate relations between pastor and parishioners.

Mgr. Macdonald was presented by the members of his congregation with a beautiful golden Chalice, studded with diamonds, the presentation being made by the oldest parishioner, Urban Gallant, Sr., aged 99.

The Monsignor, who was deeply touched by the tokens of affection and esteem, expressed his gratitude in an appropriate and feeling way. At the close of the service, His Lordship the Bishop delivered from his throne a brief, effective, and happily worded address, supplementing the sentiments, so admirably given expression to, in the congratulatory address from the people.

In the afternoon a banquet was held in the Convent Hall, Rev. Mgr. Macdonald, was the guest of honor, Tignish presiding.

An informal feast was carried out, the speakers included members of the clergy, the four laymen who were in attendance, Senator Murphy, Sir Charles Dalton, A. J. McFadyen of Tignish, and Dr. W. J. E. McMillan of Charlottetown, all of whom paid worthy tribute to the reverend pastor of St. Simon and Jude.

Of special interest was the address of Mgr. Gillis of Indian River, a class mate of Mgr. Macdonald. Mgr. Gillis has already celebrated his own golden jubilee, and judging from his present splendid condition of health is destined to repeat the unique celebration of his confrere at Tignish.

Mgr. Macdonald, or Father Dugald as he is affectionately known by members and non-members of his faith was born at Pisquid in 1837 and is therefore in his 84th year.

It is nearly sixty years since he was ordained a priest, Tignish was his first parish, where he has served in all for fifty-five years. In the early period of his priesthood he was at Souris and East Point for about two and a half years, but returned to Tignish, "his first love."

ADVERTISE IN THE Local and Other Items

The Market yesterday was very poorly attended and prices remained about the same as last week.

Sir Ernest Shackleton with his Antarctic expedition arrived in Rio Janeiro last Tuesday on the ship Quest. The expedition is expected to remain there about two weeks.

With his head caught in the bows of a buggy top with which he was playing with another boy, Terence Sullivan, son of J. E. Sullivan, of Elgin, Leeds county, strangled to death before assistance could arrive. When his parents reached the scene life was extinct.

Cast adrift in a lifeboat upon the turbulent waters of Lake Ontario, when their ship the City of New York foundered during a terrific gale which swept down the Lake Thursday morning last, the bodies of four members of the ill-fated crew and Mrs. Randall, wife of the Captain, were found on Friday huddled in the bottom of their frail refuge frozen to death.

Two children were burned to death, one severely cut about the head and hand, and a woman suffered serious burns about the head and body, while damage estimated at $20,000 was incurred in a fire of undetermined origin that broke out in a block of houses on Ninth Avenue, Rosemount Ward, Montreal, on Nov. 28th. Nine houses with their contents were completely destroyed, and the same number of families are rendered homeless. The men were accommodated with cots at the neighboring fire and police stations, while the women and children were given hospitality by neighbors.

At a meeting of Division No. 4, Palmer A. O. H., the following resolution of condolence was unanimously passed:

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst Bro. William Noonan, father; and whereas his family have lost a faithful and devoted member; therefore be it

Resolved that the members of Division No. 4, A. O. H., in meeting assembled, do hereby tender to his bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in this time of their affliction; and be it further

Resolved that a copy of this Resolution be sent Bro. Noonan and our official organ, and to the Charlotetown Herald for publication.

GEORGE QUINN, Prov. Sec'y. A. O. H.

A meeting of the congregation of St. Dunstan's Cathedral was held in the basement of the Cathedral Sunday evening. His Lordship Bishop O'Leary addressed the meeting and explained the purpose of calling them together—whether it was advisable to repair the City Hospital recently badly damaged by fire, or build a new one.

It was decided to remove the damaged hospital near by to a lot owned by the church, repair it and possibly convert it into a home for aged ladies. A new brick or stone hospital will be built on the old site. A committee consisting of His Worship Mayor Riley, Hon. J. J. Johnston and Mr. L. B. McMillan, were appointed to meet and confer with His Lordship. After the meeting the committee met at the Bishop's Palace and the following committee appointed to work in conjunction with the three already named: Messrs. Mark R. McQuigan, Frank P. Hennessy, Thos. Campbell, Prof. Henry Blanchard and John McKenna. It is the intention of the committee to commence a "drive" at once.

Crerar's Policy

Spells Disunion

Mr. T. A. Crerar, dominated by Henry Wise Wood, apostle of class consciousness, is striving to stir up hard feeling between the people who live in the cities, towns and villages.

But the mothers and fathers who live on the farms of Canada are no-doubt asking themselves these questions: "What about our children? Shall we cut up our hundred acre farms and give the pieces to our children when they marry? Or will some of our children have to seek their fortunes elsewhere?"

As a rule, in Eastern Canada or in British Columbia, a mixed farm of one hundred acres, or in Western Canada, a farm of one hundred and sixty acres, supports one family and descends to one son of that family. The remaining children must go out into the world to make a living. Some take up new land. But many have to go to the towns, cities and villages for work.

If, this work is not procurable in Canada, they will go to the cities, towns and villages of the United States.

The majority of the present inhabitants of Canadian cities, towns and villages were born on Canadian farms.

Most farmers in Canada have relatives living in the cities, towns and villages.

Why, then should there be division between town and country? Why should Canadian farmers want to destroy the urban settlements of their own country and thereby drive their sons and daughters to the cities of the United States?

Surely the national interest of town and country are the same. Let us see to it that there is harmony co-operation, not suspicion and disunion between them.

Now the Prices you've been waiting for are here

The old year took away, for ever, we hope, the old burden of war prices. For months conditions have been working towards the great climax that brought the remarkable merchandise that is here assembled for this our greatest January Carnival of Economy.

The results came in two ways: 1st. The drastic lowering of prices on our own stocks, down to the new low basis, and often far below it—to double your interest in January buying in our store.

2nd. We have combed the markets for the utmost advantage of the opportunities created by far sighted manufacturers who were ready to co-operate with us in presenting to you now the lowest prices that will be possible, for the next six months, at least.

We can just see the delight of our Customers when they see the splendid assortment of goods, in every department of our store, and then realize that prices are away down to the bottom, where it is a pleasure to buy things.

Many Manufacturers have ACCEPTED LARGE LOSSES. We shall forgo a large part of our profits on the new goods and accept large losses on our own mark-downs—to inaugurate this first New Year under the New Management and

THE MOST STIRRING PRICE-UPSET THAT THIS COMMUNITY HAS EVER KNOWN.

No matter what you need or desire, now is the best time for months to come to buy it. Some of the reasons are told on this page, but scores of others are here that can get no mention today, even in this broad space.

What is Good?

Order, said the law court; Knowledge, said the school; Truth, said the wise man; Pleasure, said the fool; Love, said the maiden; Beauty, said the page; Freedom, said the dreamer; Honor, said the soldier; Equity, said the seer. Spoke, my heart fully sadly: 'The answer is not here.' Then within my bosom softly this I heard: 'Each heart holds the secret; Kindness is the word.' —John Boyle O'Reilly.

The Last Figure

(Concluded) Suddenly Susanna's brief anger faded. He was such a dear, and so kind, and such a shrewd teacher. She put her hand quickly through his arm. 'I do mind, granddad,' she whispered a little brokenly. 'I don't want mother to know how much it means to me, but I don't care if you do. I really am as competent now as Rosemary, and there isn't any reason why I shouldn't have her place. I can't think now of any figure I can put down, but I'll think it over granddad—and thank you.'

His hand closed over hers. 'You're a good sport, Susanna. It's a kind of a Blair trait. You think it over, and something'll come to you I guess. You're competent—' He paused. 'But may be you haven't said so.'

It rained all the next day. Drenching, flooding sheets of rain, and Susanna had the library virtually to herself. But it was a busy day nevertheless, for she was having a dispute with herself. 'What's the use?' she demanded. 'They know I'm here, and they know that I know perfectly well how to catalogue books, or I'm sure they wouldn't let me stay and do it.'

'May be it won't be any use, she retorted to herself, 'but how can you know till you try it? Granddad's answer might have been right, or it might have been wrong; he couldn't tell till he put down the last figure. And anyway, why don't you want to do it? Yes why?'

'Of course now,' declared Susanna indignantly, 'but I've never talked to Judge Bruce; and he's such a silent, gruff-when-he-does-speak sort of a man that I—just hate to.'

'What's that but shy, she gibed it herself. 'You might as well get over it one time as another. What if Judge Bruce does remember you as wearing pig-tails? You're not wearing pig-tails now; so you might as well go and talk to him and show him that you're grown up.'

'Very well,' agreed Susanna. 'I'll do it, and then maybe after that you'll stop bothering me. I'll talk to them all, she flashed magnificently.'

She went to the telephone. 'Give me 445. Is that Judge Bruce's residence? May I speak to him, please? Judge Bruce, this is Susanna Bryer, Miss Rosemary Weston's assistant at the library. I wonder if you can give me a few moments of your time—to talk over a matter of business,' she added desperately. Except to her own ears her voice was quite composed. 'At seven? Thank you, Judge Bruce.'

Doggedly and with burning cheeks she called the rest of the four members of the library committee and made similar requests, arranging matters so that she could see them all that evening.

'And get it over,' declared Susanna, trying to laugh. 'At seven o'clock she was ringing the judge's doorbell. The judge's wife greeted her kindly. 'Come right in. The judge is expecting you, Susanna. How is your mother?'

'Very well, thank you, Mrs. Bruce,' Susanna replied mechanically, but her thoughts ran swiftly. 'That's it,' she told herself forlornly, 'it's because they all know me. Who wants to ask advice about books from a girl they saw in hot-air cart?'

'Right in here, dear.' At the sound of Mrs. Bruce's tranquil voice she straightened herself. 'The judge has sent for the other.'

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat. No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite. To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.

'I was ill for four months with catarrh in the head and throat. Had a bad cough and raised blood. I had become discouraged when my husband bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and persuaded me to try it. I advise all to take it. It has cured and built me up.' Mrs. Helen Roberts, West Liscomb, N. S.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures catarrh—it soothes and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

members of the committee. He thought probably you wanted to speak about your work at the library; so to save time he had them come here.

Four of them, solid citizens who had watched her grow up and who regarded her as not yet fully grown! Why, oh, why, had she come? If they wanted her, they would have told her. They would think she was too forward.

'Anyway,' declared Susanna sternly to herself, 'granddad'll be glad I put down the last figure, even if I don't get the right solution.' And she threw up her head gallantly, with a real Blair gesture, granddad would have said, and walked into the judge's study.

'Good evening, gentlemen,' she said. She was so composed and as formal as if it were her first visit to Meadville, and the judge had never seen her skirts an inch less than their present length.

'How do you do, my—how do you do, Miss Bryer.' The judge rose and held out his hand. 'Er, nice evening, Susanna,' extended his hand. Even old Mr. Willis, who was old enough to have sat in the presence of any woman, made acknowledgment of the pretty womanhood of Susanna Bryer.

Then Judge Bruce found her a chair. 'I assumed,' he remarked, comfortably, 'that you wished to talk about the library; so we are all here.'

'Yes,' agreed Susanna, 'I did. She was amazed at her assurance—the assurance of desperation, she guessed. 'I wished to say that I should like very much to be permitted to take Miss Rosemary Weston's place. Not fill it, she continued hastily; 'it would require a long time, I think, before Meadville could find anyone to do that. But I am sure Miss Weston will tell you that I am competent to do her work. I like it very much and I'd like to be allowed to try.'

With her hands folded in her lap she sat very straight. A great weight had rolled off her mind, and she found suddenly that she hardly cared whether they decided in her favor or not. She had put down the last figure. Perhaps she could be the new librarian's assistant.

'Miss Bryer,' said the judge 'I'm going to be frank with you; Susanna's heart sank a little, but she smiled. 'We have talked with Miss Weston, and she recommended you strongly for her position; but we felt that you were very young, and that the importance of this town in the summer season made it necessary to have some one with experience and poise in the library. In short, Miss Bryer, we were a little afraid that you would not have sufficient dignity. But I think,' he paused and glanced at the others, 'and I believed that my fellow board members will agree with me, that you have eased that impression. Your businesslike directness in making appointments with us and coming straight to the point are greatly in your favor. And I wish to add,' said the judge boyishly, 'that a young lady who can walk into the presence of a group of men, one of whom I know picked her down from a cherry tree—only a few days ago, it seems—and the rest of whom no "doubt" seen her in your mother!'

'Very well, thank you, Mrs. Bruce,' Susanna replied mechanically, but her thoughts ran swiftly. 'That's it,' she told herself forlornly, 'it's because they all know me. Who wants to ask advice about books from a girl they saw in hot-air cart?'

'Right in here, dear.' At the sound of Mrs. Bruce's tranquil voice she straightened herself. 'The judge has sent for the other.'

A SEVERE COLD

THE LIKE SHE NEVER HAD

Our advice to you is, never neglect what at first appears to be but a slight cold. You think you are strong enough to shake it off, but colds are so easily fought off in this northern climate, and if they are not attended to at once they may, sooner or later, develop into some more serious lung trouble.

Mrs. Edward Kincaid, 60 Bryden St., St. John, N.B., writes: "I wish to express my hearty thanks to your valuable remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and what good it did me. Last fall I contracted a serious cold, the like I never had. My head and nostrils were so clogged up I could get no vent, and could scarcely get my breath. I tried remedy after remedy until at last I thought I would try "Dr. Wood's." After the first dose I felt relief, and by the time the bottle was finished I was better. I wish to extend my thanks to your valuable remedy. After this I will always keep a bottle in the house."

similarly embarrassing predicaments of the tomboy age—well, a young lady who can walk into the presence of such a group and soberly begin her remarks—Gentlemen, possesses dignity enough to hold any position that Meadville has to offer. Is the young lady to be our librarian, gentlemen?'

And suddenly they were all congratulating Susanna warmly, but with a little reserve and deference, too, that was balm to her. Before she went upstairs to tell mother, before she even stopped to take off her hat, she telephoned granddad.

'Sorry to get you out of bed,' she apologized shamelessly. 'But I put down the last figure, granddad. And the answer was right.—Youth's Companion.'

Halifax, N. S. Minard's Liniment Co., Ltd. Gentlemen—I have used Minard's Liniment and have found it a good remedy. After the explosion I was pretty well shaken up, having quite a number of bruises and cuts, but thanks to Minard's Liniment I am my old self again. It healed the sores and bruises and gave me much relief. It is true to its name as the King of Pain, for it stopped the pain at once. I first noticed the ad in the Montreal Standard and decided to invest in a bottle, for which I am not sorry, but can say with truth that I am thankful for it having done all it claimed to do, and in my case much more, and a satisfied customer is the best ad one can possibly find. That is my view of it and I think you will agree with me too.

Yours very truly, (Signed) ALFRED BLAIN, 181 Agricola St., Halifax, N. S.

The doctor told me it would stop on me sometime if I did not cut out tobacco. When I would get a spell my heart would pound and I would break out in a perspiration, and get so weak I would have to sit right down and quit my work; also in the night I would wake up and my heart would be going.
