THE BATES OUTRAGE.

Herbert and Soole, charged with participating in the outrage upon the person of Rebecca Bates, were brought before magistrates Horton and Adamson on Wednesday for further examination, when it was expected the girl would be able to be present and make her statement.

ENGLISH FARM HANDS.

The Stratford Beacon thus refers to a sister of Miss Oliver, of Goderich High School:—"Miss Marion Oliver, who for the past year and a half has been pursuing her studies at the Kingston Ladies' Medical college very successfully, at the closing exercises a few days since, was awarded a scholarship of $45, given by Mrs. McNece, a Kingston lady. We are pleased to see that the same marked success that attended Miss Oliver for several years as a teacher characterizes her efforts in her new sphere. Natural ability, ambition and concentrated effort must succeed."

HYMNAL.—The Winnipeg Times of April 30th has the following which may interest those who remember the family of Captain Wilson when they resided in Goderich:—"Mr. N. J. Halpin, son of the late Rev. Prof. Halpin, of Huron College, London, Ont., was married in this city, yesterday, to Louisa Wilson, daughter of the late Captain Wilson, R. N., of Goderich, Ont. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. Hicks, curate of Holy Trinity, and the happy couple left for their new home in Brandon, where Mr. Halpin will resume his drug business."

S. S. MASS MEETING.—On Monday week was received from Rev. John McEwen, saying that after further correspondence with the secretary of the county S. S. Association he had finally agreed upon June 26th, 20th and 27th for his visit to Goderich. A telegram arrangement had already been made for next week, but the reply came that he would be unable to be here. The result is that the Sunday School Institute meetings will not be held on Monday and Tuesday next. However, the mass meeting of children will be held at the Sunday afternoon next in Knox church, when the assembly will be addressed by the resident ministers of the town and others. The singing by the children will be an interesting feature of the afternoon's exercises. The church will likely be thronged on Sunday afternoon.

A telegram arrangement had already been made for next week, but the reply came that he would be unable to be here. The result is that the Sunday School Institute meetings will not be held on Monday and Tuesday next. However, the mass meeting of children will be held at the Sunday afternoon next in Knox church, when the assembly will be addressed by the resident ministers of the town and others. The singing by the children will be an interesting feature of the afternoon's exercises

THE STATE OF FLORIDA.

The Rescued Crew Arrive in Canada.

Only Forty-Four out of One Hundred and Sixty-Seven Lives Saved.

Father Point, Que., May 7.—The steamship Titania, from Glasgow, passed inward this morning. She has twenty-four of the crew of the steamship State of Florida on board, the said steamer having gone to the bottom through a collision with a barque in mid-ocean.

Quebec, May 7.—The painful suspense that prevailed here all day with regard to survivors of the disaster to the ill-fated steamer State of Florida, was relieved to-night, by the arrival of the Donaldson steamer Titania, McLean master, from Glasgow for Montreal.

Following is the report of the Titania's captain: We left Glasgow on the 25th April. On the 25th and 26th we encountered strong westerly winds, with gales and high sea. On the 2nd and 3rd of May, a dense fog. On the 4th, clear weather. At 10 a.m. passed Cape Race, and while proceeding up the gulf and off Bird rocks, observed a ship exhibiting two bright lights.

Following is the official report of the third officer of the State of Florida: They left New York on April 12, with about 167 passengers and crew and a full general cargo. All went well until the night of the 18th, when, at 11.30 p.m., they collided with the barque Pomsa, of Chatham, N. B., Capt. Hetburn.

Both ships went down almost instantly, and out of the steamer's passengers, only 44 were saved. The rest of the crew were rescued by the Norwegian bark Theresa, of Christiana, from that port, bound for Quebec. On the 22nd twenty-four of them were transferred on board the ship Louisa from Cardiff for Quebec, where they remained until the 5th of May, when they were taken on board the Titania for Quebec. It is believed 135 lives were lost.

Quebec, May 7.—Bethune, of Toronto, is among the lost.

The Titania, the rescuing vessel, is a Clyde-built vessel of 2,200 tons register, and is in every particular. She is one of the quickest of the Donaldson brothers' steamers.

Spring Cleaning. Every good housewife will renovate the entire house at least every spring and fall. The obstacles I have to encounter in buying and running my insignificant hotel are not so much of the outside as in myself. I am generally in too great a hurry. I insist on things being done before they are done. I fix my time in which things are done and am very impatient when the Almighty insists on his time for doing them.

Why should so many acts of my life be to me irksome and uncomfortable? Why is dressing when I arise at morn an unpleasant and hurried task? Why should I pitch on my clothing as if a fire were threatening my house?

Why should starting the fire in my stove be such an irksome task? Why may I not arrange the kindling wood carefully, not to say reverentially, in such fashion that when ignited it shall burn to best advantage? May there not be a sinful way and righteous way of making things?

Look at my clothes in this room. Flung about wickedly—disposed unrighteously—two places for every one article, and the only place for it happens now to be. Is this religion? Why am I often so long dressing in the morning? Because I cannot find a sock? Where is it found after ten minutes search? CHAPTER VIII.

THE PRESS GAND AT WOODHAVEN - EUSTACE AND WILLY CARRIED OFF.

All was dark and silent in the isolated cottage occupied by Eustace and Willy, as the press-gang approached with stealthy steps. A man was stationed at each window to prevent the escape of those within, and a group of six or eight took up a position in front of the door.

The leader and spokesman of the party gave a low but distinct tap with his hard knuckle—a quiet, deliberate knock, which had nothing ominous in it, and which was not calculated to alarm the inmates.

In the quiet night stillness and sound easily penetrated the small building, and could at once be heard by any one not asleep.

'Is that anybody rapping' at the door?' asked a voice from within, in a tone of quiet enquiry.

'Ay,' responded the leaders, lacquially.

'Is't you, Joe?' added Willy, who was the speaker.

'Yes,' was the ready reply.

Willy said no more, but unexpectingly rose, drew on his drawers, and went and opened the door. In an instant a strong grasp was laid upon him; he was dragged over the threshold, lifted in the arms of several men, and borne rapidly away.

His seizure was so sudden and unexpected that in his bewilderment he had but time to utter one alarmed cry, when a broad hand was pressed upon his mouth, and he was hurried forward over the slope towards the beach. Willy was a strong fellow, and struggled desperately; and, despite the number of those who carried him he freed his limbs and gained his feet when he had neared the water-side, at a spot to which the boat had been brought round.

'What's the meanin' o' this?' he roared.

'Ho ho, messmate, you're going aboard a King's ship—that's all,' exclaimed one, by way of reply.

'Yes,' cried another, 'you're to be promoted to the service. We want a smart built craft like you to have a chance o' prize money. So have ahead my hearty, and your consort will be alongside in a jiffy.'

'Das ye mean tae say we are tae be pressed?' shouted Willy, in wrathful contumaciousness, as the truth of the matter rushed upon his mind.

'Oh, never mind paying out any more jaw-tackle just now. Just step aboard and wrap yourself in a boat cloak.'

'Till dae nae sic thing,' exclaimed Willy. 'Ye hae nae richt tae press me. I'm no a sailor, and I'll no gang.'

'Belay there, my lad. We've got you in t'w, and we're not going to allow you to cut the cable. As to the right we hae, our strength is our right. Bear a hand, mates.'

And in a twinkling Willy was again lifted from his feet, and carried struggling into the boat.

'No use showing fight,' said a voice in the boat, which Willy recognized, and wheeling round, he saw Ralph Bloxam, the gamekeeper, sitting within two feet of him.

'Curse you, Ralph, this is your work?' roared Willy, in awful fury. 'You're an infernal backstap o' a maister!'

'Look at me, said Ralph. 'I'm tied up here like a calf going to the shambles. You are no worse than me. But your guess is not far wide of the mark. We hae both Randolph Grahame to thank for our seizure.'

Meanwhile the rest of the party were engaged at the cottage in effecting the capture of Eustace.

Willy having been marched off, the sailors crowded into the house, and a torch was lit, which cast a glaring light upon the scene. Eustace, who had heard Willy's cry, came from the inner room partially dressed, and, at sight of the wild fop, he started back and disappeared.

The men burst into the apartment after him, and the torchbearer being foremost, he was seen standing in front of the bed, grasping with his hands the barrel of an unloaded fowling-piece, while Lillias, also partially dressed, stood behind him overcome with terror.

'What means this intrusion?' he stately demanded.

'No use standing to quarters,' said the leader, 'so down with your flag before damage is done to spars of rigging.'

'What want you?' said Eustace again. 'Are you robbers, or is this a midnight frolic?'

'We've come for you and your messmate, that's all,' was the answer. 'The King wants men, and you two are just the build for the service.'

'This is a mistake,' said Eustace quietly. 'I am not a seaman, and neither is my companion. We are not, therefore, liable to be pressed.'

'Look'ee, my hearty. We've got no time to wait, for the cutter must drop down the river with the tide. So come along. We have got the other one snug aboard the boat and we only want you to shove off.'

'Stand back,' shouted Eustace, brandishing the fowling-piece, and assuming an attitude so commanding and so defiant that no one ventured near.

'This is a mistake, I tell you,' he continued. 'You may be commissioned by the Government to force actual seamen into the naval service; but I am a landman, and the tyrannous proceeding cannot be applied to me, nor to my brother-in-law. If, therefore, you have taken him away, let him be instantly released, and we shall treat this intrusion as a mistake.'

'My eye, how he talks,' said the leader of the men, turning to the rest of his party.

'He couldn't look grander if he was on the quarter deck of a seventy-four,' observed the torchbearer.

'The lung and short of it is, that we are sent here to press you two and we must do our duty,' said the leader to Eustace.

'Sent to press us,' repeated Eustace, turning pale. 'No one has the authority to give you such an infamous order.'

'Don't know, and don't care nothing about that. We must keep to our instructions, and these are to bring you aboard our cutter, whose light you may see out in the river. So come along, or as my name is Tom Potter, we must carry you by the board.'

'No, no,' screamed Lillias, 'you will not take him away.'

'Sorry to disobey your orders, my pretty lass, but go he must. Cheer up though, he'll come back ere long with plenty of prize money, and then he and you will have a jolly cruise ashore.'

'I tell you this is and must be some preposterous mistake,' exclaimed Eustace. 'I am by birth and education a gentleman, though you find me in this humble position. The instructions you speak of cannot therefore include me.'

'Shiver my timbers if I know anything about birth or education,' rejoined the leader. 'But you are the particular craft we were sent out to capture, and by the Lord Harry we mean to do it.'

'Ha! my seizure has been specially designed,' exclaimed Eustace, as a terrible light suddenly broke in upon him. 'Tell me, is Randolph Grahame your instigator?'

'Better learn to call him Mister Grahame afore you go aboard the Hector,' was the admonitory reply.

'I have guessed aright then, exclaimed Eustace warmly and indignantly. 'He is the author of this outrage. But men, you will not become the instruments of such a base, infamous project. You are brave, generous free-souled British tars, and you, the defenders of our nation's liberty, would not deprive two of your fellow-countrymen of their freedom; you who hate tyranny will not commit an act, so tyrannical.'

'Bless'd if we ain't doing you a mighty service, messmate, giving you a chance of being a hero. If that's tyranny according to your lingo, you've got your larnin' out of a bad dictionary.'

'Belay there with your jaw-tackle, Tom, or we'll lose the tide,' said one of the men impatiently.

'Ay, ay. We'll have him presently, only I want to persuade him to strike afore we board him. He's a trim craft, as I would not like to damage in the top gear. Look ye now, messmate,' continued the speaker, addressing Eustace—'you are just one against eight, and let you do your best you can't get off. Once I give the word you'll be boarded by the whole fleet and one broadside will be all you can give; who knows what damage may be done to you and the pretty consort under your lee? So take my advice; put down that marling spike, and let us take you quietly in tow.'

'Lillias, she speaks the truth,' said Eustace. 'I cannot cope with so many, Willy is already captured. It is in vain to make any appeal. I must go.'

'And leave me alone? Oh, Eustace, I shall die of grief.'

'Nay, we shall soon return. Such a flagrant outrage cannot be sanctioned by those in authority, and I am convinced that I have but to represent the truth to have immediate justice and redress.'

While speaking thus to Lillias, his attention was taken somewhat off the intruders, who, at a signal from their leader, threw themselves upon him, wrenched the fowling piece from his hand, dragged Lillias from his side, and forced him from the cottage.

He made no resistance, for he saw how futile it would be, and they hurried him at a great speed down the slope to the beach, and had almost placed him in the boat, when at that moment his eye and ear were caught by the white form and piercing shrieks of Lillias as she flew wildly down behind them. This sight roused Eustace to fury, and with a sudden outburst of resistless strength, he freed himself from their grasp and springing forward caught her in his arms. He held her there only for a moment, for the band three themselves again upon him and ruthlessly severed the grasp with which the poor girl clung to the form of him she so devotedly loved, and who was about to be turned from her.

Eustace was now mad with that furious passion which surged through his soul, and had the strength opposed to him been less overwhelming, he would have made a terrible resistance. But what could his single arm—nerved though it was by burning passion—what could it do against a dozen? Nothing.

He was, therefore, carried by main force into the boat, which was instantly shoved off, and the deserted Lillias was left alone on the beach.

'Farewell, my Lillias,' exclaimed Eustace.

'We shall meet again ere long.'

'Farewell, Lillias,' shouted the no less enraged Willy. 'Use the siller that's in the house, and if we are not back when it's wearin' aune, try and find out Uncle John.'

An ever broadening strip of water now grew between them and the shore, and with bursting hearts did brother and husband gaze on the white solitary figure that stood with clasped hands upon the beach. Against the dark background of the wooded slope the white-robed Lillias stood, like a mute and motionless statue, looking through the darkness upon the boat that carried from her all she held dear on the earth, and they in turn bent forward over the side of the boat to gaze on the rigid solitary figure till darkness and distance reduced it to a speck. But long after the sailors in the boat lost sight of it, those two, having their vision quickened by love, saw it still.

Willy lost sight of it before Eustace, for having raised his hand to brush the blinding tears, the speck of white could not be discerned when he again directed his eyes to the shore. But the dry seared eye of Eustace still dwelt upon it. No tear had come to allay its burning heat, no mist had gathered to moisten its brilliant brightness. In silent stern gaze he sat, his soul a prey to intense concentrated passion, and a fierce desire for retaliatory vengeance. This last crowning act of Randolph's persecution had raised a leonine wrath in his bosom, which took the form of some retributive act. The sense of injustice and wrong had burned so deep now into his nature as to change it in a great measure, by bringing uppermost those passions and feelings which formerly had slumbered beneath. The experience of the past few months had wrought an utter revolution in his being. That being had been suddenly quickened, intensified and developed, by love on the one hand and wrong on the other. The one had awoke into lively vehemence the tender, generous, noble qualities of his heart, while the other had called into action the sterner tributes of a nature which was strong and self-reliant throughout. He stood now on the basis of his manly independence, and circumstances had fortified him with the resolution to act as well as to think for himself.

His captors, rough and ruthless though their treatment had been, were not wholly unfeeling, for one had thrown a cloak around the half-naked form of Eustace, as he sat heedless of everything but the fading speck of the receding shore.

It vanished at last even from his piercing gaze of love, and when he could no longer discern aught but the black-irregular shoreline between sky and water he drew back into his seat, and suppressed the groan which struggled to escape from his anguished heart.

Propelled by the steady, vigorous oar-strokes of the well-manned boat, they were soon abreast of the stragling village of Newport—a very different place from what it is now—and a little lower down the river ran alongside the cutter to which the boat belonged, the captain of which was impatiently waiting their arrival.

The three prisoners silently suffered themselves to be put up the side, but no sooner had Eustace set his foot on deck than he confronted the captain who stood near the gangway, and firmly addressed him.

'Is it by your authority, sir, that I and my brother-in-law have been dragged from our home in the dead of night, nearly naked, and brought hither?'

'Hilloo, you feel sore of course. They all do at first, but you'll cool down soon, and come to like the service. Here, Swanson, store them away in the after-stowage room, and give each a rig out.'

'This is monstrous, sir,' exclaimed Eustace. 'I am not a common seaman to be kidnapped in this fashion. I am a gentleman by birth and breeding, and my seizure is a gross outrage, which—'

'Away with them,' roared the captain. 'I have no time to waste in listening to heretics.'

'This way, messmate,' said a hearty voice, and a firm hand was laid on the arm of Eustace, and he was drawn away peremptorily, but not roughly, towards a stair which conducted below.

The captain having unceremoniously gone away to another part of the vessel, Eustace was too proud to make further complaint to any subordinate, but silently accompanied the sailor who had taken him in charge, choking down as best he could the insults and indignities to which he was being subjected.

Willy and Ralph followed close behind, and the three captives were shown into a small angular place, from the roof of which a flickering oil lamp was suspended. Here they were left alone for a minute, when the same sailor returned and tossed in three bundles of clothes, telling them to 'rig themselves out, and turn in for a snooze on the floor.'

'Then it was for the first time Eustace recognized the gamekeeper.'

'What Ralph!' he exclaimed, 'are you here, too?'

'Yes,' answered Ralph, with savage bitterness, 'and we have all to thank the same gentleman for our disagreeable position.'

'My brother Randolph?' said Eustace, an angry shadow darkening his eye.

'Your half-brother Randolph,' returned Ralph.

'True; and it is a consolation to think that we did not draw milk from the same breasts. But why has he had you kidnapped?'

'Because I knew more than he dared trust me with,' replied the gamekeeper. 'I had his fortune in my hand, and he was afraid I would betray him. And I shall, continued Ralph, striking his clenched fist on the wooden wall of their floating prison. 'I'll watch and wait for revenge, and will have it if it should be twenty years after this. He the master of Bengarry! That he never shall be. It will be yours yet, and I am the man that will bring back your right. Yes, yours. I have helped them—helped both of them—and how have I been requited? But their treachery shall cost them dear. Ralph Bloxam is not the man to be sold like a slave.'

'I understand nothing of what you are talking about, Ralph,' observed Eustace, who had listened in great surprise to the game-keeper's fierce but incomprehensible allusions.

'Of course you don't, but I do; and when the time comes so shall you. But I'll tell you this much now—Your step-mother fanned the flame of your father's anger, and laid her schemes to get Bengarry for her son. She knew all about your courtship, and employed me to watch everything and report. I did watch, and I did report, and things went just as she wished. You nagged Lillias Somerville, and your father turned you off.'

'Well, Ralph,' rejoined Eustace, 'it doesn't say much for you to have assisted in such a vile and wicked plot.'

'I had my reason for it,' he answered, 'and you'll know some time. I can keep my own council now, and I mean to do it. But I tell you, Master Grahame, I have the power to pin Randolph Grahame, and I'll do it. Bengarry shall be yours yet, and I am the man that will get it for you; but don't thank me for it, for it's not for your sake I'll let the secret out—it's for revenge.'

'Oh,' said Eustace with a sneer, 'I can quite understand that neither regret, nor remorse, nor sense of justice, will influence you. But does it not strike you that you may never be able to accomplish this revenge which is to secure justice for you? Your seizure to-night at Randolph's instance, is clearly for the purpose of preventing you from betraying the secret, and doubtless he will take good care to prevent your return.'

'I'll baffle him,' said Ralph, with fierce determination.

'Then the best way would be to tell us the secret now,' suggested Willy, 'and we too do Maister Grahame will use it as his good effect as ye could do.'

'And so lose my revenge?' exclaimed Ralph. 'Not likely. And who knows but I may return before you, I take it he'll be as anxious to get rid of you as me.'

'Ye wanna tell us then?'

'No; not till the right times come. And now I'll have a sleep. I wish I had a glass or two of brandy.'

'So saying Ralph stretched himself on the floor and in a few minutes certain vigorous snarl sounds gave token that he was in a deep slumber.

The cutter was now sailing fast before a light wind; but though there was one small window in the side of their prison, it was too dark for them to see in what direction.

Willy and Eustace arrayed themselves in silence in the garments provided for them, which was the dress of common seamen.—They did this only because they could not do better—their own clothes having been left behind. The articles had all been made for a full-sized man, and fitted them uncommonly well.

'Well,' remarked Eustace, when their toilet was completed, 'here we are clad in the liverly of bondages.'

'Poor Lillias! I was thinkin' o' her,' sighed Willy.

'Hush, Willy; for my sake, hush,' exclaimed Eustace, hastily and vehemently. 'Don't speak of that, I dare not even think of it. It I think of it I shall go mad.'

And suddenly the great strong heart of Eustace broke down, and he laid his face against them, and wept with a violence which shook the whole frame.

'Dinna greet like that,' said Willy, crying himself like a very child. 'Dinna Eustace; dinna, like a man. I'm sure, had I kened, I wad never have mentioned the poor lassie's name.'

For some moments the emotion of Eustace was something terrible—like the bursting forth of a pent-up flood—as in every truth it was; for all the time, from the moment of his seizure, he had inwardly struggled with his feelings, striving not to manifest them in the sight of his captors. But the very effort to restrain and conceal them, made them the more intense; and the commiseration and utterance of the name of Lillias broke down the barrier in a moment, and the surging grief burst forth.

Willy was frightened. He had never seen emotion like it, and did not understand that a great, strong, calm nature, when once overcome, is for a time moved far beyond all common manifestation of sorrow.

'Eustace,' he repeated soothingly, 'for my sake dinna tak' on in that. Lillias is in the hands o' a higher than man, an' sae are we for the part of that. There—there, dae try an' come to yersel.'

The first fierce uncontrollable wave having spent itself, the emotion gradually subsided, till it reached a point when Eustace was once more master of himself, and with a strong exercise of self-control he quickly became calm and firm again.

'I am glad you touched that cherd, Willy,' he observed, 'for this has relieved me of my burning agony. My brain has all the time felt as if on fire, and but for this escape of feeling through tears, I must have been hereof reason. Now I can think 'nd speak calmly. But was it not enough to make any man's soul boil with rage and anguish to be torn from the side of his nearest and dearest, to leave her in despair, alone and unprotected? Willy, a Government which acts so cruelly and tyrannically, is not the Government of a free country.'

'But,' suggested Willy, 'hasn't Ralph told us that it's Randolph's daisin'?'

'It is done at his instigation,' returned the other; 'but he has employed only the means the Government sanctions and provides. If this flagrant wrong is not at once redressed—if they refuse to release us and force us into the naval service—I will not answer for the deed I may be tempted to commit.'

'I wonder where we are now,' said Willy, putting his face close to the little square of glass. 'By the pitchin' o' the ship I jalousie we are in St. Andrew's Bay.'

Suddenly the outside bolt of their prison door was drawn, and two sailors entered.

'Hillo, my hearties!' exclaimed the foremost. 'Are you keeping the morning watch below?'

In answer to the rough shake, Ralph opened his eyes and started a moment or two in utter bewilderment, but almost instantly he remembered where and what he was, and with an ill-natured growl rose and shook himself.

'Now, then, say farewell to your comrades, and heave ahead.'

'Seems your destination is different from ours, Ralph,' said Eustace, holding his hands.

'Ay, I remember he said so,' muttered Ralph.

'My ship is the Falcon. Yours is the Hector.'

'The Hector—his own ship!' exclaimed Eustace.

'Come along,' said the sailor. 'The boat is over the side by this time.'

'Well, good-bye now, Maister Eustace,' cried the gamekeeper. 'We'll meet again in happier circumstances. Don't forget what I've said. You'll get Bengarry yet, and I hope to see my fine gentleman, and his mother too, turned out to starve.'

'Shiver my timbers, but you are baling out the bilge water now,' laughed the sailor, as he pulled Ralph out, and fastened the door as before.

'His own ship,' repeated Eustace. 'If this be true, it points to yet greater indignity. His lean, pitiless, revengeful nature seeks to triumph by having the power to tyrannize over us, to gull us by the exercise and abuse of an authority which he possesses as a naval officer. Willy, the prospect of this is dreadful. Of course I will never submit to it. I will die first.'

'Maybe that's what he wants,' observed Willy; 'but ye'll no be rash. Oh, dear, ye'll no be rash, baith for yer ain sake and the sake of Lillias.'

Eustace started. 'Willy,' he said, 'you have spoken the word that restrains me. No, brother; for her sake, and the hope of speedy deliverance, I shall curb my temper, and do my best to submit to the tyranny, if the commander absolutely refuses to do us both justice by setting us at liberty.'

It might be an hour after Ralph's departure that their prison was again opened, and they were ordered to go on deck. When they ascended the companion way the morning sun shone bright upon the noble Frith, and the grand and beautiful shores on either side. They were in Leith Roads, where many vessels lay at anchor, and very near to them was a large man-of-war, with its masts and rigging towering high above the lower craft which surrounded it.

Eustace at once guessed this to be the Hector, but ere he had time to convey this impression to Willy they were conducted to the gangway, and the same boat and crew which had carried them from Woodhaven rowed them along the war ship, and in a few moments they had ascended its huge side and stood upon the white well-secured deck.

'I want to see Captain Brentwood immediately,' said Eustace, to the first man he met.

'The captain hasn't come aboard yet,' was the answer. 'He and Lieutenant Grahame are expected at four bells. Here Cox, show the new comers into the waist.'

'Ay, ay, yer honor,' responded the sailor who had received the command, and Eustace and Willy were led to that part of the ship situated between the quarter deck and the forecastle.

A Wide Range of Remedies. The Great Household Remedy so popular with the people—Hagyard's Yellow Oil—is alike valuable for external and internal use, curing rheumatism, colds, sore throat, croup, frost bites, burns, bruises, and all lameness and soreness of the flesh.

With Satisfaction. Polson's Nervine, the new and certain pain cure, is used with satisfaction in every instance. There is abundant reason for this, for it performs all that is claimed for it. Nervine is a never-failing cure for cramps, pains in the side or back, lumbago, sore throat, chilblains, toothache. Nervine is a sure and sure remedy for all pains, both internal and external. Try a 10 cent sample bottle at J. Wilson's. Large bottles only 25 cents.

A business man hasn't much time to devote to getting sick and well again. It is a rather expensive affair to him. His time really means money, and his loss of time often ruins it. It is he who should take time by the forelock. He should check disease at its first appearance. Such dangerous symptoms as colds and coughs should be destroyed at their first appearance by Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam. This is the best remedy for these diseases known. B. W. Masters, of Hamilton, Ont., says that he had a cough for years which he feared would end in consumption. Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam cured him perfectly.

What To Do. If troubled with an unhealthy, slow-healing sore use McGregor's Parkes' Carbolic Ointment. You will find it invaluable for healing, cleansing, and completely removing your trouble. If the blood is out of order, take with it a few doses of McGregor's Speedy Cure from J. Rybans' drugstore.

WASHINGTON, D.C. May 15th, 1886.

GENTLEMEN—Having been a sufferer for a long time from nervous prostration and general debility, I was advised to try Hop Bitters. I have taken one bottle, and I have been rapidly getting better ever since, and I think it the best medicine I ever used. I am now gaining strength and appetite, which was all gone, and I was in despair until I tried your Bitters. I am now well, able to go about and do my own work. Before taking it I was completely prostrated.

MRS. MARY STUART.

At this season of the year there should be a bottle of Pectorin in every house. It is unequalled for Coughs, Colds and Hoarseness, is pleasant, equally safe for children. Price 25 cents at all druggists. M

THE HURON SIGNAL

Is published every Friday Morning by McClelland, Egan, & Co., Publishers, at their Office, North of the Square, GERRARD, ONTARIO.

And is distributed to all parts of the surrounding country by the earliest mails and trains.

By general admission it has a larger circulation than any other newspaper in this part of the country. It is one of the most reliable and most desirable advertising mediums.

FRIDAY, MAY 16TH, 1884. REFORM CONVENTION. The meeting of the West Huron Reform Association will be held at Duncannon on Wednesday the 28th inst., instead of on Tuesday, May 27th, as announced in our last issue.

THE SCOT ACT will be up before the people of Huron before long, and a decision at the polls will follow.

THE PORT HURON TIMES says Richard Minnie and Charles Andrews went to Sarnia Bay fishing on Saturday afternoon last, and in three hours caught 250 perch.

RICHARD MAY has caught his fish with worm, but Andrews was fishing with "Minnia".

THE TORONTO MAIL writes that when Archbishop Lynch wrote his letter to Mr. W. H. Higgins, (the archbishop) knew that he was saying that was not true.

THERE is a rumor that Sir Charles Tupper intends to enter the British House of Commons before long.

MRS. MORLEY'S STATEMENT

Mrs. Morley, the proprietress of the Grand Union Hotel, Clinton, was in town on Tuesday last, and waited upon The SIGNAL, in regard to the reports that are flying around concerning the Bates outrage, at Clinton recently.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE: The girl came to the Grand Union Hotel a few minutes before 6 o'clock in the evening, but I didn't see her come in.

"I THINK SHE'S CRAZY." I went up stairs then, and someone told me that the girl had the door locked and would let no one in.

"I DON'T WANT A ROOM from you, for I have a room at Mrs. Hanley's; I am just going to stop in the hotel a little, waiting for a young man to take me to the circus."

"TOO MUCH OF A PROGRAMME" for her, she then put on her things and left the hotel. That was about 7 o'clock, and I saw no more of her until about 9.15.

"NO SHE DID NOT ASK FOR A ROOM." I turned towards the girl and said, "I thought you went to the hall," and she replied that she had not gone.

THOUGHT SHE WAS A YOUNG MAN, dressed in girl's clothes, and masquerading for a joke. The men of the house had all gone to the entertainment at the town hall except the ladies present.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER'S DEPARTURE. Sir Charles Tupper left Ottawa this evening for Montreal. He was escorted from the Russell House to the Canada Atlantic Station by a crowd of extra clerks, contractors, and others headed by a brass band.

Full wheat in this section is improving. FOOT BALL.—The boys of this section have organized a foot ball club, having elected Wm. Young, captain, and F. Blair, secretary.

BASE BALL.—A friendly game of baseball is expected to be played next Saturday (17th) afternoon between the Manchester school and S. S. No. 3, Colborne. The game to be played in A. Young's field.

COLLEGE BOYS.—John Young of this place has succeeded in obtaining the degree of M. A. Queen's College. W. J. Young formerly of this place has passed his final examination in medicine.

WM. EARNGLY, assistant printer at the Enterprise office, who has been confined to the house with erysipelas this last week is able to be out again.

A span of horses attached to a buggy, belonging to John McLaughlin, who lives about four miles north of this village, broke loose from the shed at the Albert Hotel, and ran away.

The Gorrie foundry had a narrow escape from conflagration last Tuesday, shortly after noon. The workmen were engaged in casting and some sparks from the chimney of the furnace fell on the dry roof which soon ignited the shingles and rafters, and in a few minutes was burning brightly.

$4,000 has been granted to repair the Bayfield harbor. The fishermen of this place report fishing dull; their catches are small for this time of year.

Capt. Spence, who owns the schooner "Nemesis," ashore here, is engaged in taking her off. He expects to have her in the harbor this week.

TEMPERANCE IN SCHOOLS.

The course that should be pursued by Teachers in furthering the work. The following interesting paper on the question of "Temperance in Schools," was read by Miss I. E. Oliver, of the Goderich High School staff, at the meeting of the South Huron Teachers' Association, held at Exeter last week.

The problem, what are a teacher's duties, has often times been solved. We are told that we must care for those placed under our control, physically, mentally, morally—counsel, admonish, and train in regard to all these.

Bayfield. The fishermen of this place report fishing dull; their catches are small for this time of year.

Mrs. Cecilie Crooks, who has been the guest of Mrs. Watson for some time past, intends leaving this week to join her friends in British Columbia.

The mill dam belonging to Thompson's mills, Bayfield, has been thoroughly repaired, and both mills are now running night and day at their full capacity, employing a large staff of hands.

West Wawanosh. Mr. John McKay, teacher No. 3, is recovering from a very severe attack of congestion of the lungs.

John Thompson has sold his 50 acre farm to G. Smith, and purchased J. Durbin's farm, containing 100 acres.

Miss M. Gordon, teacher, No. 7, who has been suffering from inflammation, will soon be able to resume her school duties again.

ARBON DAY IN WINGHAM.—Notwithstanding the fact that Thursday was appointed Arbor day by the Mayor, the great majority went fishing instead of planting shade trees.

On Friday morning last the large grain house used by W. C. Charters, Hensal, was destroyed by fire, together with 600 bushels of wheat and nearly 1,600 bushels of oats. It was only partially insured.

Wm. Holt, of Stephen, met with a painful accident in Messrs. Ratz Bros. hooey factory, last week.

Robt. Cross met with a serious accident last week. While attending to his duties at the Kincairdine railway station, he fell and knocked his shoulder out of joint and broke his collar-bone.

The following from the Wingham Gazette is a little ambiguous:—"On Tuesday evening last we enjoyed a boat ride with Wingham's champion oarsman C. L. Ireland. We proceeded up the Maitland some distance, and the shore on either side was thickly dotted with ladies and gentlemen evidently intent on capturing some of the finny tribe."

Dr. J. A. Gray, son of Mrs. Gray, of Tuckersmith, has received the appointment of Superintendent of the General Hospital in Montreal. Dr. Gray is a graduate of McGill college, and spent a year in the hospital previous to his appointment.

PASSAGE [AWAY.—Mr. Wm. "Whitely" of Tuckersmith, passed over the St. Lawrence river on May 6th, and was buried in Turner's cemetery on the 9th. Deceased was 71 years of age; an honorable man in all the walks of life.

PISCATORIAL.—Suckers are getting up the creeks, and our lads, aided by lanterns, are nightly catching them.

Fort Albert.

BUSINESS.—H. Martin, jr., of Goderich, who has rented the Royal Hotel, is doing a business here. Mr. Mahaffy will soon start his stove factory.

RAILWAY DELEGATION.—A railway delegation will likely go from here to the C.P.R. to this point. The road must strike the lake some place, and there are some men here who think they can convince the authorities that it should be extended to this place.

PERSONALS.—Jas. Dunbar's little boy is recovering from the severe kick he received from a horse lately. Mr. Doherty, of Clinton, visited the Fort the other day; J. O'Connor, his agent here, is doing considerable business in sewing machines and organs.

NEW BUILDING.—Mr. Smale is rebuilding on the same ground occupied by the house lately burned down. Ed. McConnell has the contract, and is sparing no pains to make the building a handsome and commodious structure.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY IN SEAFORTH.—Seaforth is never behind in the celebration of Her Majesty's birthday, and the programme which has been issued for this year promises a better day's sport than has been had for a long time.

DYNAMITERS IN CANADA.

Something More Serious than a

A Scheme to Kill the Governor-General.

TORONTO, May 13.—Information has been obtained from a reliable source that something more was intended than a mere scare in dynamite cartridges being placed under the Parliament buildings.

Ever since the threatened attempt to blow up Rideau Hall, Ottawa, the Dominion and Provincial authorities have had more information of the factions of supposed dynamiters than the public are aware of, several discoveries of dynamite having been recently made in different parts of Canada which have been kept secret.

The operations of dynamiters in Canada have, it is alleged, been carried on under instructions from

HEADQUARTERS IN NEW YORK.

In January last a vote of $2,500 was made from the "Emergency Fund" to carry on the work in Canada. Three men, Nesbitt, O'Hare and Mullane, undertook to expend this sum in the destruction of public buildings in this country. The latter two are supposed now to be in Ontario, and Nesbitt is dying in Troy, N. Y. They made several visits to Ottawa during the last session of Parliament, and they have plans of both the Ottawa and Toronto

Government houses. The baggage of one of them was captured and explosive material found amongst it. A tin case containing the same material was received at an express office directed to Nesbit, which fell into the hands of the police. In Ottawa the dynamitists drank several times with a delective and seregeant of police, who never suspected who they were. O'Hare and Mullane spent a good deal of their time in Toronto, and were believed to be

HERE LAST WEEK.

At all events they were here when the dynamite was discovered in the Parliament Buildings, as they were seen next day at the Hunter. They boarded at separate houses and kept regular hours, leading people to think they were employed in a respectable business. They attended several private and voluntary meetings, and were familiarized with the interior of the staidy. There is no doubt they

PLACED DYNAMITE UNDER THE PARLI-AMENT BUILDINGS

with the intention of blowing them up,

but why they did it so carelessly is open to conjecture. Other circumstances in corroboration of the above can cited.

On the 17th of March last a black leather valise, the owner of which has not yet been discovered, was among the baggage which crossed at Suspension Bridge from the American to the Canadian side. The valise belonged to Nesbitt, and contained some clothing, including part of the uniform of a United States soldier. There was also a coil of wire and a box about eight by six inches, around which was a sheet of paper bearing printed directions for using dynamite. The Customs officer did not care to open the package, and it was forwarded to the Minister of Custom and probably handed by him to the Secret Service. Since then the Government considered it wise to

TAKE PRECAUTIONS,

and for some time the tunnel under the new Welland Canal has been guarded.

Nesbitt was at one time a sergeant in the United States Ordnance, and was the leader of the trio, and it was by the merest accident he lost the valise. They had always come to Canada by the Central Railway, but that time they came by the Erie route. Baggage by the Central is always examined on the American side,

but Erie baggage comes across for examination to the Canadian side. It was their custom to transfer the dynamite to their pockets on the American side, but on the occasion referred to, being passengers by the Erie, it came across to Canada, and they knew too much to claim it.

A couple of dynamitists took a couple of air-guns to Ottawa about the beginning of April last year to KILL THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL,

and a man named O'Brien, who was working on the Ottawa & Occidental

Railway under the name of O'Neil, was to use a dynamite cart. O'Brien applied for a situation at Rideau Hall, but in the meantime the plot was discovered.

O'Brien escaped, but his baggage was seized at his boarding-house. This was the cause of the special guards being placed around Rideau Hall at that time.

Dynamitists also intended to

THROW VITRIOL IN THE PRINCESS LOUISE'S

FACE

when she was in Toronto last September but got no opportunity. She was warned, and when she returned to Montreal shortly afterwards she wore a thick veil.

There is no devilish act that members of this brotherhood would not do. It is opposed not only to the English Government but to all European Governments.

Its members are to be found in every European country, and branches exist in Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal. The magazine at the Old Fort here and the one on the North Shore, Burlington

Bay, opposite Hamilton, are proposed as points of attack.

The way they use dynamite is generally by a pocket battery. A piece of stout telegraph wire is stuck into a cap and a copper wire fastened to this. A man could then walk away, unroll several hundred yards of fine wire connecting the battery with it and the building is demolished. This was the object of the piece of telegraph wire found with the cartridge under the Parliament buildings here, but they had a fuse in case the battery did not work. There must be

FIFTY POUNDS OF DYNAMITE

brought by the trio into Canada, including what the Government has captured.

It is alleged that two constables and a detective here are sympathizers with the dynamitists.

From the above statement of one who is conversant with the actions of these villains since the first dynamite scare in Canada, there is good reason for Canadians to feel alarmed.

A CONTRADICTION.

Fun and Fancy.

An old lady hits the nail square on the head when, in writing upon the woman suffrage question, she says:—"You may look at the matter in whatever light you will; but summer it down, and what is it but a quarrel with the Almighty that we are not all men?"

Dr. Guthrie told a story of his going to preach for a clerical friend in Ross-shire. On retiring to rest on Saturday night he asked his friend if he could get warm water in the morning to shave with.

In a parish not a hundred miles from Dundee there lived, a good number of years ago, a minister of the name of Winehouse, who was very ill-liked by the greater portion of his congregation.

Scene—A Scottish village. pub. Two old cronies having their morning drink and a "crack" together. Jock: "Man, Rubart, my gude wife an me wis uncommonly weel pleased w' your son's ministrations in the pulpit yesterday. He's very clever an a mistake. We were both winnin' whaur he had got."

Gloves are still worn long. Buttons still remain small and round. The size of bustles is on the increase. Feather trimming is worn on spring hats.

Flowers in the hair are almost exclusively restricted to full dresses. Tarnish cloth, made in tail or style, is used much for traveling suits.

Flowers and feathers figure largely in the new evening, dinner, and ball toilets. Stitching and the soutache braid remains as popular as fever for trimming stuff suits.

Not another Pill shall go down my throat again, said a citizen, "when I can get such a prompt and pleasant cure for my bilious attacks, as Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters. It renders the blood pure and cool and makes a splendid spring medicine. Large bottles 50 cents.

A REWARD—Of one dozen "Teasberry" to any one sending the best four line rhyme on "Teasberry," the remarkable little gem for the Teeth and Eats. Ask your druggist or address.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

Failure of a Prominent New York Firm—General Grant Involved.

New York, May 6.—The suspension of Grant & Ward has been announced. Gen. Grant, James D. Fish, U. S. Grant, jr., and Ferdinand Ward compose the firm.

It is pleasant to read the warm words spoken by good and influential men in favor of planting school grounds not only for adornment and shelter, but for the reasons for which pictures are put into school books and on faces and to impress them by actual seeing, so that the lessons cannot be forgotten.

Oh! how tired and weak I feel. I don't believe I will ever get through the Spring house-cleaning! Oh yes you will if you take a bottle or two of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters to purify your blood and tone up the system. In large bottles 50 cts.

Not long before she died I saw the old white-haired nurse of Queen Victoria and she told me some interesting incidents connected with her long service, among them how bitterly the then young Elizabeth-Queen wept when she and that state etiquette assigned her first-born to the tender mercies of a wet nurse and how vividly the memory of that time was recalled to her majesty when the bell rang out in celebration of the birth of her grandson, the future king of England.

Merit Proven. Dollar upon dollar is frequently spent on the faith of recommendations for articles entirely worthless. Not so with Dr. King's New Discovery. You are not asked to purchase it until its merits are proven. Call at Geo. R. Rhynas drug store and get a free trial bottle. If not convinced it will cure you of the worst forms of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, etc., no matter of how long standing, it costs you nothing. Sold in 50c and $1 bottles. The well known strengthening properties of Iron, combined with other tonics and a most perfect nerve, are found in Carter's Iron Pills, which strengthen the nerves and body, and improve the blood and complexion.

Never Give Up. If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life; strength and activity will return; pain and misery will cease, and henceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by J. Wilson.

Brides for French Convicts.

A cargo of human freight left France the other day. Each year one of the convicts, inspected by the prison warden, six central penitentiaries; where women convicts are serving their time to ask for volunteers to go to New Caledonia as wives for convicts serving out sentences in that penal colony. Fifty men who answered this appeal were shipped the other day from Bordeaux, and when they arrive in New Caledonia they will be divided between the two religious establishments, one at Noumea and the other at Bourail. The convicts of the first-class—that is, those who have distinguished themselves by good conduct and who are accordingly to be rewarded by land grants—are to be married to the wives of the women. Those who are unmarried, or who are widowers and desire to get married, go to Noumea or to Bourail, where they are allowed to make their choice among the women. Of course they are not forced to make a choice, and the women are not forced to marry if the men who select them do not please them.

Leard's Valdictory.

General Leard's valdictory is to the point—Leard, frank, soldier-like. He is very discriminating in his thanks, which he confides to those officers and men, of whom there are many, who have striven to improve the appearance and discipline of the force. We shall be glad to learn that he succeeds wherever his duty calls him.—[Montreal Witness.

Wm. Johnson, of Huron, Dak., writes that his wife had been troubled with acute Bronchitis for many years, and that all remedies tried gave no permanent relief, until he procured a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colic, which had a magical effect, and produced a permanent cure. It is guaranteed to cure all diseases of Throat, Lungs or Bronchial Tubes. Trial bottles free at J. Wilson's drug store. Large size $1.00.

Donald Smith, Woodstock's new chief of Police, was born, we believe, near Lockport, where his people resided. He is twenty-eight years of age, stands 6 ft 3 in. in his stockings, and weighs over 200 lbs. A few years ago he made quite a reputation for himself as an athlete, having beaten Duncan C. Ross and others. He has been on the Hamilton Police force for two years, and comes here recommended as a thoroughly competent officer and a man of strict habits.—[Woodstock Sentinel Review.

DR. LOW'S PLEASANT WORM SYRUP.—An agreeable, safe and effectual remedy to remove all kinds of worms.

A Life Saving Present. Mr. M. E. Allison, Hutchinson, Kan. says his wife by a simple Trial Bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, for Consumption, which caused him to procure a large bottle, that completely cured him, when Doctors, change of climate and everything else had failed. Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Severe Coughs, and all Throat and Lung diseases, it is guaranteed to cure. Trial Bottles at J. Wilson's drug store. Large size $1. (1).

A Remarkable Escape. Mrs. Mary A. Dailey, of Tunkhannock, Pa., was afflicted for six years with Asthma and Bronchitis, during which time the best physicians could give no relief. Her life was despaired of, until in last October she procured a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, when immediate relief was felt, and by continuing its use for a short time she was completely cured, gaining in flesh 50 lbs. in a few months. Free Trial Bottles of this certain cure of all Throat and Lung Diseases at J. Wilson's Drug Store. Large Bottles $1.00.

IT IS NO HUMBUG, BUT REALITY. That Diphtheria is one of the most dangerous diseases and annually sweeps away thousands of children, is a fact which no one can deny, and that doctors in many cases are powerless against it is just as true. A medicine that is a certain and sure cure for this dangerous and contagious disease should be hailed with joy and warmly welcomed by every family, for use in time of need. A compensatingly much more easily checked at the beginning than after it has gained headway. So it is with this disease. Keep medicine on hand and do not wait till it is too late. Such a medicine is offered the public in DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY FOR CONSUMPTION, COUGHS AND COLIC. We are thoroughly convinced that it will answer its purpose. Letters patent have been taken out in the Dominion of Canada, and precautions are taken that no one will imitate it. We kindly ask medical men to give their names to the proprietors, and to send trial bottles sent on applying for. Address Rev. H. HALLIETT, M.A., Zurich P.O., Ontario.

WEST HURON TEACHERS.

They Assemble in Convention and Discuss Diverse Matters of Importance.

FIRST DAY—MORNING SESSION.

Exeter, May 8. The regular semi-annual meeting of the West Huron Teachers' Association was held in the school house here, this morning at 9.30 a.m. The president occupied the chair.

Mr. T. Gregory led in prayer. The minutes of last meeting were read by Mr. S. P. Halls, secretary pro tem, and adopted.

The president explained the action of the executive committee at Goderich, with reference to fixing the salary of the secretary-treasurer at $15 per annum, and the appointment of Mr. S. P. Halls to the position, instead of Mr. W. Leigh.

Moved by Mr. Gregory, seconded by Mr. A. Craswell, that the action of the committee be confirmed. Carried.

Messrs. Gregory, Brown and Miss Dickson were appointed a business committee.

A communication from the W. C. T. U., with reference to scientific temperance education being introduced into public schools, was read and referred to the resolution committee.

Moved by Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. T. Henderson, that members of this institute be entitled to receive any two of the following periodicals at institute rates (50c each), viz, Journal, Monthly, and Supplement. Carried.

The association adjourned to 1.30 p. m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

On re-assembling, Mr. T. F. Young read an essay on "Teachers and Teaching," which was well received.

After some remarks by Messrs. T. Henderson, Brown, Gregory, Holman and Hueston, it was Moved by Mr. Gregory, seconded by Mr. Brown, that the thanks of the institute be tendered to Mr. Young for his very excellent paper. Carried.

Miss Dickson then illustrated her methods of teaching an "Object Lesson" with a class, taking for an object "wheat." After remarks by Messrs. Brown, Gregory, Hueston and W. Henderson, it was Moved by S. P. Halls, seconded by Mr. Brown, that a vote of thanks be tendered to Miss Dickson, for the very able manner in which she illustrated her method of teaching the lesson. Carried.

Messrs. T. Henderson and Craswell and Miss Halls were appointed a resolution committee.

Miss A. Henderson then took up "Primary Drawing," using illustrations.

After an animated discussion in which several members took part, it was Moved and seconded that a cordial vote of thanks be tendered to Miss Henderson for her able effort. Carried.

The meeting adjourned to meet at Drew's hall, at 5 p. m.

EVENING MEETING.

On re-assembling in Drew's hall, a delighted audience listened with marked attention to Prof. Chapman's excellent rendering of the various selections on the programme, and to the music furnished by the local talent, after which it was Moved by Mr. W. R. Miller, seconded by Mr. T. Henderson, that a vote of thanks be tendered to those who had taken part in the proceedings of the evening. Carried.

Meeting adjourned to meet at 9.30 a. m. in the morning. Carried.

SECOND DAY—MORNING SESSION.

The association met at 9.30 a.m., the president in the chair.

The minutes of yesterday's sessions were read and confirmed.

Messrs. G. Baird, jr., and Harrison were appointed reporters for the local press.

The chairman of the text book committee reported that they had no report prepared, on account of the members not having met to consult, and from some of the members of the committee having left the profession.

It was moved by Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. H. J. Baird, that Messrs. G. Baird, jr., and Holman fill the vacancies in the committee on text books caused by the removal of Messrs. P. Strang and Duff from the profession; that the chairman call the committee together prior to the next meeting of the institute, and have a report ready for the fall meeting; and that the expenses of the committee be paid from the funds of the institute. Carried.

Mr. Geo. Holman then gave a very humorous address on "Instructive Address 'Whither are we drifting?' coupled with 'What can be done to give greater permanency and stability?'

to discuss the question of Chief Superintendent vs. Minister of Education at present, but that in the opinion of this association it is desirable that the Minister should have a regularly constituted advisory council, representative in character and partly elective, with definite powers and duties fixed by statute.

Moved by Mr. Gregory, seconded by Mr. Holman, that it is the opinion of this association that increased Legislative aid should be granted to public schools, and that increased aid should be distributed on the basis of salary paid to the teachers. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Holman, seconded by Miss Halse, that it is the opinion of members of this institute that there be no optional subjects for the second class candidates, but that they be required to pass an examination on the subjects prescribed on the programme to be taught in public schools, said regulations to take effect immediately after the summer examinations of 1885. Carried.

After some discussion on the advisability of appointing a delegate to the Provincial Association, Mr. G. Baird, jr., was appointed delegate.

The following resolution was then unanimously carried: That we, as an association, are of opinion that the present system of compelling teachers to pay into the Sup. Teachers' fund is felt to be arbitrary, and would therefore consider that it should be optional.

Moved by Mr. Holman, seconded by Mr. W. R. Miller, that Messrs. J. R. Miller, S. P. Halls and E. Hueston, be a committee to confer with a similar committee to be appointed from North Huron, with regard to a union meeting of both institutes.

Votes of thanks were passed to the Sons of Temperance for use of their organ, to the trustees for use of school house, and to the press for insertion of notices of meeting.

The meeting then adjourned to meet in Goderich at the call of the Executive.

Opinions.

John Snyder has got the best piece of fall wheat in this section of the county.

David Cunningham, who is working for Mr. Habel, got his leg broken one day last week by a horse falling on it.

Belfast.

Gardening operations are now complete.

Most of the farmers in this vicinity have finished seeding.

Geo. Irwin has returned home after about three years absence in the Northwest. He bought a farm in the vicinity of Brandon and has rented it out. He looks hearty.

Dunannon.

B. J. Crawford is having a new stable erected on his premises.

A social will be held in the Methodist church next Friday evening.

Miss McDonald, of Ingersoll, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. M. Roberts.

A congregational meeting of the Presbyterian church was held in the Orange hall here last Monday night.

The pulpit of the Presbyterian church will be occupied next Sabbath by the Rev. Mr. Lowe, lately out from Scotland.

Rev. Mr. Forbes, of Minneapolis, who formerly taught the public school here, visited some of his friends in this neighborhood lately.

Brussels.

Jan. Stretton, jr., left Brussels for Clinton on Wednesday where he will take the position of bar-tender at the Grand Union hotel.

The probability is that Ethel will be the head of a circuit in connection with the Methodist Church. After next conference it is expected that Roca's, Whitfield's and the 16th con. churches will, with Ethel form the charge. A parsonage will be the next thing.

Obit.—It is with no small feeling of regret that we are called upon to chronicle the death of Lizzie, youngest daughter of the late Donald Scott, who died on Tuesday afternoon, at the early age of 17 years and 8 months. The cause of her death was consumption, with which she has been afflicted for the past year.

Lizzie was of a light-hearted, joyous disposition and possessed of a very pleasing appearance, she won a large circle of friends who greatly regret her decease.

The funeral on Thursday afternoon was largely attended. Mrs. Scott, who has had a large share of trouble as this is the fourth member of the family who has died during the past six years, has the heart-felt sympathy of the community.

Dunlop.

S. Rye enjoyed a trip to friends in Clinton last week.

Our Irishman has parted with Royal George, and the new owner is thinking of entering him upon the list for speed at the Clinton races.
