EYEGLOSS experience is gained only by years of study and practice To be able to fit eyes with proper glasses requires a distinct knowledge—a knowledge that is possessed by very few. Besides being a graduate of two First-Class Optical Colleges, I have had nearly twenty years experience fitting all kinds of eyes. I employ only the most modern and best methods of examination, objective and subjective, shutting out the possibility of mistakes. I carry the largest stock of Spectacles, Eyeglasses and material ever brought to Newfoundland, besides having the finest machinery for grinding special lenses. No charge made for examining your eyes.

HOW CAN WE COUNTER-ACT THE INCREASED COST OF LIVING?
 A second's reasoning will supply the answer. Beef and pork are dear and getting dearer all the time, and the cost is out of proportion with their food-value.
EAT MORE BREAD.
 There is more nourishment in a shilling's worth of bread than a shilling's worth of beef or pork. But the problem is not done with yet. The shilling's worth of bread is not always the same value. Breadmade from contains more nourishment than any other, because it contains the greatest amount of gluten, the health-giving nutriment of wheat.
ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR

Which Was The Hair?

CHAPTER XXIV. (Concluded.) LET me put this on over your wedding ring, dearest," he murmured. "I hope you will like it." He kissed her as he put the ring on, and she returned the kiss, exclaiming rapturously: "Oh, what a beautiful ring Sidney! It's really too lovely! What big diamonds! And pearls, too! And they're all the fashion!" "You like them he said, with a smile. "My dear Rachel, you shall have ropes of them by and by; and if I don't buy you exactly ropes now, you can have some more rings and a necklace and bracelet. We will go and buy them together. We can get them quite as well in Brighton as in London. That reminds me—we haven't much time before we start. I thought we'd catch the 7.30; it's an express. You left your luggage downstairs. I'll put this important document in my dressing-bag until you buy one; that's another thing you'll want to get at once. By Jove! we shall have plenty of shopping to do; for I want my beautiful wife to be beautifully dressed, and be as happy as the day's long." "Your wife!" she said, hanging on his arm and looking up at him with the light of triumph in her red-barred eyes. "Am I really your wife, Sidney, really?" she breathed. "Eh? What do you mean? Oh—yes, yes! Of course you are, dearest. My dear, beautiful, lovable little wife! Come, you must have a glass of wine before you start. Oh, but I insist—Mrs. Bassington!" She uttered another cry of delight and joy at the "Mrs. Bassington," and in the excitement of her success, did not notice that she had not seen the certificate, indeed, forgot all about it. He had slipped it in his pocket on his way to the sideboard. "But you mustn't call me that, Sidney!" she said, warningly, and holding up her long finger playfully. "Oh, no, of course!" he said, suddenly grave. "By George! we must be careful! If—if it slipped out, and any one heard it—" "Oh, I'll be careful!" she said. "I shan't forget; but, oh, Sidney, I shall whisper it to myself." "Mrs. Bassington—the future Countess of Starborough." "It doesn't sound real even yet; it sounds like—a dream. The Countess of Starborough! Do you think I shall make a good one—a handsome one, sir? Look: the Countess of Starborough!" She drew her slight figure to its full height and walked across the room with her head tilted back, her eyelids lowered, haughtily, and an air of exaggerated importance. He leant against the sideboard with his glass in his hand and laughed; he watched her; laughed almost sardonically and mockingly—for his fear was slipping away from him now that his villainy had proved successful, and he was about to enjoy the fruits of it. 'Splendid!' he cried. 'Splendid! You'll make a perfect countess, Rachel! By Jove! I'm proud of you!' CHAPTER XXVI. THE astute reader will have noticed that poor Geoffrey has been very much neglected by the author; and the reason is not very far to seek. For do we not, authors and readers alike, carefully avoid the unfortunate and unhappy? And, indeed, Geoffrey was very unhappy. Solitude under any circumstances is not very pleasant and exhilarating, and the solitude of the hut by the forest was rendered all the more melancholy by the loss of his late companion. Not until he had lost him, did Geoffrey fully realize how fond he had been of the handsome, bright, spirited boy, with the heart-winning smile and the musical voice. For the first few days the silence of the hut, the sense of utter loneliness weighed upon him to such an extent he could scarcely bear it, and he kept out-of-doors as much as possible. And when he was within the hut he avoided entering Ronald's room for almost a week, and threw himself down beside the fire as he used to do when Ronnie was there. But one night he ventured into the inner room and nerved himself to sleep in it. That night he dreamt of the boy, and, strange to say, dreamt that he was in trouble and needed him. He woke in a cold sweat and with the cry of "Ronnie" on his lips; and in the morning he felt that, to avoid going mad, he must find some kind of work. So he took his spade and pick and went down the valley to Ronnie's claim. There was still gold enough there to make the work remunerative, and Geoffrey worked at it with a kind of spasmodic enthusiasm, with the reflection that he was working for the boy, that he was putting his gold that would help him on his career. "It'll make a rich man of him," he said to himself one day, as he ate his dinner and gazed round the solitude. "He'll want money. He's a sharp lad, Ronnie, and will make his way in the old country. Wouldn't wonder if he became a Member of Parliament or something of that sort. And if he doesn't, he may fall in love with some girl—perhaps some girl who hasn't got any money; then Ronnie will want all the gold I can scrape together.' All his thoughts were of the boy; and the boy's influence was over him and dominated him, though Ronnie himself was absent. For instance, one night, feeling more than usually down in the mouth, he felt tempted to find relief in the whiskey, a bottle of which had been left by a passing sun-downer in exchange for a bed and board; but as he drew the cork he thought of Ronnie and tossed the bottle into the corner. "As the days and weeks crawled by—oh, think how quickly they pass for most of us, and how slowly they passed for this lonely, heart-stricken man—he buoyed himself up during the lonely hours by hoping for a letter from Ronnie. Of course Ronnie would write directly he got to London!

Hugging the assurance to his heart, he went down at intervals to Blue Fig, his nearest post-office; but the weeks went by and there were no letters for him. "Oh, well, he's only a boy, just a boy," he told himself, "and all boys hate letter-writing. Anyhow, it shows he's all right, or else he would have written. Never mind! I don't suppose he's forgotten me! He even meant to give the bank agent the slip and come back, only, I suppose the bank agent overpersuaded him at the last moment. And quite right, too! He's at school now and learning to take his place in the world. I wonder whether he went down to Starborough? Perhaps not; it might not have been convenient. Well, I did my duty by the lad, God bless him! But he'll never guess what it cost me!" His periodical visits to Blue Fig and his stereotyped "Any letter for me?" at the Casino aroused much attention, and caused a certain amount of amusement, and one day this interest and amusement culminated when Geoffrey with his never-varying question, walked in at one door and the bank agent entered the other. "Ah, Mr.—er—Bell, I've been wanting to see you!" said the agent, rather gravely. "In fact, I should have come up to your shanty if I hadn't met you. What will you drink? Geoffrey shook his head. "You didn't go to England, then?" he said, eagerly. "The boy—he sailed with the parson?" "The bank agent stared at him. "Here come this way; it's quieter," he said. "What a devil of a row they make!" The piano was making its voice known in the land, and a miner, very drunk but by no means voiceless, was howling "Annie Laurie" like a bull of Bashan. "Your question surprises me. Didn't he come back to you?" "How do you mean?" asked Geoffrey, endeavouring to conceal his anxiety. The bank agent raised his eyebrows. "I thought he'd gone back to you," he said. "Anyhow, he gave me the slip when we'd got clear of the camp, and I saw no more of him. Hi! What the deuce are you about?" For Geoffrey had seized him by the collar and was glaring at him dangerously. "Gave you the slip! Do you mean that he didn't go with you—that you didn't take care of him?" he said hoarsely. "Yes; he gave me the slip. Would you mind taking your hand from my collar? Thanks. And I naturally thought he'd gone back to you. Boys are the devil and all, as you know." "I—I beg your pardon," said poor Geoffrey. "No; he hasn't come back to me. I thought he was in England by this time." The bank agent shrugged his shoulders. "I'm sorry," he said. "We started fair and square enough, but after a time I rode on a bit; the lad seemed to be quiet, fretting a little, I thought; and when I looked round, he'd gone."

"You—you betrayed your trust," said Geoffrey, savagely. "Where is he?" The agent was rather nettled. "How the devil should I know? If the lad had stuck by me, I'd have seen him through safely enough. But he bolted, I tell you; and I'd ever so many thousands in nuggets and dust to look after—Here, where are you going?" But Geoffrey did not wait to satisfy the agent's curiosity. He went straight back to the hut and returned to Blue Fig a few days afterwards with gold, which the agent exchanged for notes. Provided with these Geoffrey commenced his search. No where, in no camp—and to be sure, he tried all—could he hear any tidings of a lad with grey-blue eyes and curly hair. (To be continued.)

Riddled Miner's Home With Shot.

GLACE BAY, April 11.—It has just been learned that on last Saturday night at a late hour, a cowardly attempt, presumably to end the lives of a workman named Cameron and his family, occurred at the Lingan Colliery, when several charges of shot were fired from some weapon which fortunately did no damage. The matter is now in the hands of the Police who are working upon some private information, and are keeping the matter very quiet. Cameron had previously been warned against continuing work at the colliery by several men, which he ignored, and it is thought that it was the same men who were responsible for the attempted assault. After firing the shots the miscreants left the vicinity before their identity could be discovered. Cameron and his family had a very narrow escape. Cameron recently moved his family from Dominion, and had rented one of the Company's houses adjoining the residences of the Colliery officials, which is a very lonely locality. Shortly before twelve o'clock, Cameron and his wife were awakened by the shots from the gun, and he was horrified to see the glass in the two windows being riddled with a few feet of their bed, and buried itself in the plaster.

Grew Thinner Every Day Appetite was Poor, Dizzy, Faint, Weak, Continuous, Cruel Backache. Another Case in which Dr. Hamilton's Pills Saved a Life that Physicians Despaired of.

What a pitiful sight it is to see a handsome, able man being gradually robbed of good looks, health and ability to work. Such cases are frequent—the one here described being that of E. P. Lascelles, a well-known Printers' Supply man, residing in Hamilton. "About six months ago I began to notice a worn, tired feeling coming over me. I was unable to shake it off. It was not the fatigue that follows hard work—it was a sort of unaccountable laziness that assailed me. I was anxious to work but did not have the energy. Something was dragging me down, robbing me of my health and spirits. I got tired of taking prescriptions that done me no good and used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Their action soon proved to me that I was suffering from a terribly congested liver and acute indigestion. Dr. Hamilton's Pills brought back my appetite, cured the heavy pain in my side and back, gave me a new grip on life. I gained in weight and now I am stronger, look better, work better than ever before. I was taken sick." If you want to get back the spirit and vigour of youth, if you want the sparkle of robust health on your cheeks—use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They cleanse, purify, tone, strengthen—make the sick well, give this grand medicine a faithful trial, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarthozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

You—if you are an average person—have doubtless had more or less to say about the high cost of living. You have blamed it to the tariff, to the scarcity of gold, to the trusts, to the farmers or to conditions in general, according to your ways of thinking, or feelings.

But did it ever occur to you that one reason why the Saturday night bills are so alarmingly large might be nearer at hand than that?

That there might be a leak right in your own kitchen, or rather in the source of supply before it gets to your kitchen.

In plain words, are you sure your butcher and grocer and all the other dealers who supply your kitchen are giving you full weight and measure? You trade with respectable people and you are sure they are perfectly honest?

Listen!

A corps of investigators in the service of the Federal Government, investigating the weights used by dealers in several of the larger cities of the United States, have found that in some cities as many as sixty per cent of the dealers were cheating their customers in some way.

In the city of Chicago a very strenuous and energetic sealer of weights, named Kjellander, has recently made a tremendous campaign against this kind of graft and has found, even among the respectable dealers, every possible kind of device for cheating the customer.

Weights with the metal bored out and the cavity filled with some lighter material, bottles supposed to hold a quart but in reality holding much less, objects weighing two or three ounces hung on the scale pans, butter weighed out in wooden containers which weigh one and a half ounces and, with butter at forty cents a pound, cost the consumer about four cents—these are some of the grafts that "Kjellander, the terrible Swede," as he is called in a recent magazine article, has found.

Of course you don't think your grocer or marketman indulges in any of these tricks—but are you SURE?

What can you do about it anyway, aren't you in just as much danger of being cheated at one place as another?

Well, I'll just quote Mr. Kjellander to answer that.

"Almost any housewife who wants to cut down the cost of living," he says, "can do it by installing an accurate scale in her kitchen and weighing all the food materials that come home from the market and grocery."

Weigh the butter and find out whether you are paying four cents for a wooden container.

Weigh the sugar and find out if there is anything wrong with your grocer's scales.

Either trim your meat yourself or insist on having all the trimmings sent you and see if the five and three quarters leg of lamb really does weigh five and three quarters.

Empty the quart of milk into your own quart measure some day and see if it stands the test.

If you can't control the high price you pay for your provisions, you can at least make sure that you are getting what you pay that high price for.

Prepare for Lumbago.
If You Have "Nerviline" Handy One Rubbing Will Cure the Pain.

THOUSANDS USE "NERVILINE."

The "strike" of lumbago is like a bolt of lightning—you never know when it is coming or where it is going to strike. Probably the one certain thing about lumbago is the fact that it can be cured by Nerviline—the only liniment that penetrates deeply enough to reach the congested chords and muscles.

"Years ago I strained my back and suffered considerably with weakness over the spine," writes Darius P. Millan, a well-known farmer, residing near Kingsville. "Then lumbago attacked the weak spot, and for days at a time I would have to lie up in bed, unable to move or turn. Liniments, poultices and hot applications failed to bring the desired relief, and I was in despair of ever getting really well again. I at last decided to test 'Nerviline.' I got five bottles from the drug store and had it rubbed on three times a day. The stiffness and pain left my back quickly, and by continuing Nerviline I was completely cured of Lumbago."

This is similar testimony to that of nearly five thousand Canadians who have written unstinted words of praise to the manufacturers of Nerviline. For the cure of lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia and rheumatism there is no liniment with one-fifth the pain-relieving power of Nerviline.

capsule. The motive, says the State, was to obtain wealth.

By the terms of Col. Swope's will, Mrs. Hyde was to receive a share of her uncle's property. Desiring to hasten the settlement of the estates, and also to prevent certain changes which the Colonel had planned, Dr. Hyde, the State will attempt to prove, killed the aged capitalist.

Eleven indictments were returned against the physician. One charges first degree murder of Christian Swope, a nephew of Col. Swope, by administering poison to him. An indictment for manslaughter was voted against Dr. Hyde for negligently killing James Ross Hunton, a cousin of Col. Swope by bleeding him. The remaining indictments charges the physician with attempting to poison Misses Lucy Lee Swope, Mildred Fox, Sarah Swope, Georgia Compton, Nora Bell Dickson, Stella Swope, Margaret Swope and Lenora Copridge.

All these people were attacked by typhoid fever when it was prevalent in the Swope home, and it is averred Dr. Hyde caused their illness.

Kansas City, Mo., April 11.—Dr. B. C. Hyde appeared in the criminal court here to answer a charge of murdering Colonel Thomas H. The British Navy is Dependent Upon U. S. for Oil.

Oil will possibly be a permanent form of fuel for the British navy to the amount of about 1,500,000 tons a year. The British Government has made some contracts with the Scottish mineral oil companies and is making more, but as the Scottish production is only from 150,000 to 200,000 tons a year it is a matter of grave consideration to find a satisfactory market for most of the annual supply that will be needed. The estimated basis of consumption is one ton of oil to two tons of coals.

"What, then," says the London Times, "are the sources of supply? Nearly all are foreign up to the present date. The world's annual production of petroleum is about 40,000,000 tons per annum, of which about 95 per cent is produced in countries other than Great Britain. The American production is about 64 per cent of the whole followed by Russia with 22 per cent, Galicia with 4.50 per cent, Rumania with 3 per cent, Mexico with 1.25 per cent, and so on in smaller proportions."

The proportion of the world's production supplied by British possessions are quite small: India about 2 per cent (Burma oil), Borneo about 3 per cent, Canada about 0.20 per cent, and other countries about 0.05 per cent. These are starting figures because they show how largely if not absolutely Great Britain is dependent on foreign mineral oils even with its home distillation. Oil cannot be adopted as the sole fuel of the British navy without making large contracts for supplies with some foreign Power or Powers.

The production of the United States in 1909 was 178,000,000 barrels, compared with 117,000,000 barrels in 1904. "So far this increase is satisfactory," says the Times, "but if the American supply were shut off it is difficult to see whence we should get our oil fuel."

Rosebery's Appeal.

Rosebery's faith in the Englishman's love of a lord must be profound if he imagines that even the English electorate would return a party to power to set up a House of Lords which would be co-ordinate in authority and equal in power to the House of Commons.

Unfair as the House of Lords may at times be, it can be curbed. If the membership of the House of Lords is to be determined by a Statute, which will deprive the Crown and Ministry of its present power of bringing the membership of that House into harmony with the will of the people, the British Constitution would be robbed of its distinctive virtue—its flexibility and adaptability to the needs of the day. It will become as inflexible and unadaptable as the American Constitution, and a powerful instrument to work the will of Trusts and Combinations.

Many English financiers have envied the American Constitution, and the way it has been worked by the coal, iron, oil and railway magnates of America to enrich themselves at the expense of consumer and labourer.

Better an hereditary House of Lords than a cast iron constitution to work the will of English Rockefeller, Carnegie, Goulds, Vanderbilts and Morgans.

Better for the English people to fight the backwoodsmen of the House of Lords than to fight a plutocracy entrenched by statute in a Constitution which cannot be changed except by the consent of Trusts.

The people of the United States have an infinitely harder task before them in breaking the control of trusts over their government administration and legislation than the people of the United Kingdom have in fighting the hereditary landlords in the House of Lords. The American task is a labour of Hercules, the English task is comparatively easy. Better far for the English to hear the lie they have than to succumb to the blandishments of our only "orator," embodying as he does the interests of landlords and Jewish banking and financing. Let the English people once allow the establishment by statute of an independent Senate of the American type, then the Roseberys of to-day will become the Rockefeller of to-morrow, who would sweat hundreds of millions out of them under legislative potency, and challenge the administration of the world for doing out a few of the millions in world-wide advertised schemes of charity.

CANT SELL TO THEM.—To-day Head Const. Peet is serving notices on the owners of the city licensed houses that they are not to sell liquor to Thos. Spilre, who was convicted at Norris' Arm and Bishop's Falls of shebeening. The same applies to Richard Hayden, convicted of a similar offence at Harbor Grace.

Halley's Comet Is Visible at Ottawa.

Ottawa, April 13—Halley's comet was seen for the first time at 4.20 o'clock this morning by the Dominion Observatory astronomers, who have been watching for it through the Observatory telescope for the past two weeks. It was visible for about half an hour, and as yet is distinguishable from an ordinary star only by its size and disc-like shape. As yet it is not visible to the naked eye, and according to the Observatory men will not be within the range of vision by the general public for at least a week or so yet.

Schooner Ashore.

Mr. H. W. LeMessurier, the Asst. Collector of Customs, had a wire to-day from St. Mary's stating that the sch. Nicanor, Capt. Douglas Barnes, was ashore at Gull Island Cove, between St. Shott's and Peter's River. The vessel which is owned by James Baird, Ltd., was bound from this port to Channel with a full cargo of provisions and general supplies. Particulars as to how the accident occurred have not been received. The vessel is insured and there is a possibility of refloating her. She is a vessel of 79 tons.

The Mongolian Here.

The s.s. Mongolian arrived here from Liverpool to-day at 10.30. The ship left there on Saturday week, the 9th inst., and had fine weather until Monday, the 11th, when a gale from the northward was encountered, with heavy sea, and this weather lasted for several days. No fog was met, but the voyage all through was more or less boisterous and most of those on the large passenger list suffered from mal de mer. Last night the ship passed four large icebergs and some loose field ice, but this did not impede her in any way. She took the usual course across the "herring pond" and brought to this port 630 tons cargo and 200 tons in transit for Halifax. The ship has received a thorough renovating since she was lost in port and two weeks ago was fitted with the most modern system of wireless telegraphy, and with it a few days ago signalled the s.s. Calcedonia, bound from New York to Glasgow and distant nearly 200 miles. The Mongolian has on board 722 emigrants, most of whom came from England and are bound to the Canadian Northwest. Of the number 120 came from Russia, Germany and Belgium, and all are about the city to-day taking in the sights. During the voyage a small paper called the Herald was issued on the ship, giving the "local" news. Capt. Guy Hamilton is now commander of the ship, replacing Capt. Williams, who has been transferred to the Hispania, plying from Glasgow to Montreal. Mr. W. A. Milne is chief officer, and Mr. Robert Brown is the chief engineer. Dr. Ferlie is the new ship's physician. She sails for Halifax at noon to-morrow. Her passengers for this port were Hon. Jno. Anderson, Murray Anderson, Eric S. Ayre, D. and Mrs. Baird, W. A. Ellis, Mrs. Macandrie, Mr. M. Meyers, J. R. Whittaker, Eric Parnell, C. McNulty, J. McNulty, Miss M. Greenwood, Miss E. Greenwood, J. A. Green, J. D. Wilson, Jno. C. Chadwick, 9 second cabin and 13 steerage.

Festival of Empire.

Dear Sir.—Will you kindly allow me through the medium of your journal to invite all those who are coming home to England for the Festival of Empire at the Crystal Palace this summer to send to this department their names and requirements in the matter of accommodation. While special arrangements are being made to receive the official delegates, we are desirous of assisting all others as far as lies in our power.

The central feature of the Festival of Empire will be the Pageant of London, presented by 15,000 London citizens with special contingent from each of the great Overseas States taking part in the final scene, symbolic of the children gathered round the Mother Country.

His Grace the Duke of Norfolk is President of the Hospitality Committee, and already innumerable offers of hospitality to Colonial guests have been received by the Committee. It is desirable that a complete register of names be obtained.

On the 10th inst. Mr. E. Cantwell, butcher at Torbay, proceeded to a wedding, taking his two children and locking up his house and premises for the night. Returning the next day, he was surprised to find two panes of glass broken in the windows, two carriage lamps also smashed and rendered worthless and on further investigation he found the cellar door forced open and that two barrels of potatoes had been stolen, his new pants was also taken from his house.

More About "Nicanor."

The Mutual Marine Insurance Co. received a telegram this morning from Capt. Barnes of the sch. Nicanor saying that he had to beach the schooner near Cape English to save the lives of himself and the crew. It was a choice between this and abandoning the schooner. She left St. John's Saturday evening and it is believed that she sprung a leak in the storm of Sunday morning.

The horse was taken from the slings to-day and can use the leg perfectly. It will be out in a week or so.

Hambourg has no Equal

Eminent English Musicians High Estimation of Mark Hambourg.
G. W. L. Marshall-Hall, Composer and Director of the University and Conservatoire of Melbourne, after attending one of the recitals given recently in that city by Mark Hambourg, the great Russian pianist, says, in the course of a very eloquent article:—"I do not know who there is in the old world to equal Mark Hambourg, to surpass him there is no one. We had the privilege to hear him first as a youth, then as a young man and now we have among us as a thoroughly ripened artist in his full manhood. I do not know if I have ever heard this beautiful work (Waldstein Sonata of Beethoven) quite so perfectly interpreted; I am sure it has never made an impression on my mind. MR. HAMBOURG'S tenderness is the tenderness of a powerful, energetic nature, not of a timid, gentle spirit. It is this manly breadth which distinguishes MR. HAMBOURG. He is never petty, never weakly sentimental, never tentative, but always masterful, noble, dignified and impressive."

P. F. COLLINS, THE MAIL ORDER MAN,
Cor. Adelaide & Water Streets.

Mr. Punch and the Lords.

Without profound insight into the political situation, "Punch" suggests a plan for adjusting the relations between the two Houses of Parliament so as to secure comfortable working. The plan is explained in an article by "A. A. M." who observes:

"Our reputation as a nation of sportsmen would be gone for ever if once our faith in the House of Lords as an impartial revising body were shattered. The urgent business before us now is that reform of the House of Commons to which more than one noble speaker in the Upper House has called attention."

To avoid deadlocks between the two Houses, Mr. Punch's remedy, "delightful in its simplicity," is this: Alter the composition of the House of Commons, so as to bring it into line with the House of Lords.

This "reformed and impartial" House of Commons, it is suggested, might be constituted thus:—The House of Commons should consist of 555 members; 250 to be nominated and 300 to be elected, together with five life members.

The nominated members should be chosen as follows:
 Elected by the House of Lords... 100
 Specially nominated by Lord Halsbury (counting four each on a Division)... 50
 Nominated by Lord Rothschild... 30
 Nominated by Lord Burton... 30
 Nominated by the Archbishop of Canterbury... 20
 Nominated by Lords Curzon, Milner, and Cromer (six each)... 18
 Nominated by Lord Rosebery... 1
 Nominated by Lord Crewe... 1

These 250 impartial members should sit in the House of Commons for a period of 20 years—that is to say, for two Parliaments. Every ten years 200 members will be elected as follows:—

One hundred specially qualified members, commanding the confidence of the country, will be elected by the House of Commons. These will be chosen from:—
 (a) Municipal Reform aldermen.
 (b) Defeated Unionist candidates.
 (c) The Stock Exchange.
 (d) The Trade.
 (e) Brighton.

Two hundred will be elected by the constituencies in the ordinary way, a Redistribution Bill having first been passed by the House of Lords, by which England will be divided into 197 constituencies—Scotland, Ireland Wales returning one member a piece.

Five Life Members will be chosen by some high and impartial authority (e.g., the Duke of Norfolk). These would be moderate and independent men, belonging to no party. The first five might be:—

The Editor of the "Times."
 The Secretary of the Navy League.
 The Secretary of the National Service League.

The Secretary of the Property Defence League.

Lord Torphichen (if he'll be good).

"We venture to say," adds Mr. Punch, "that a House of Commons constituted on these lines would receive the approbation of all right thinking men in the country. It would also act in harmony with the House of Lords—that House which for its impartiality is the pride of every true sportsman in Britain and the admiration of the whole world. Were the House constituted thus, there would be no putting party before country; indeed, no considerations of party at all."

New Rifle Range.

During the past two weeks work on the new rifle range being erected on the South Side Hill has been rapidly progressing, the two concrete walls near the targets being almost finished. It was difficult to get materials up over the hill, and a good deal of blasting had to be done to get the work through. The targets will be of the most modern make and will disappear in a trench instead of running transversely as in the old range. Many more can shoot together than at the old butts, and there should be a big increase of members in the Rifle Club as a result of the erection of this new range.

ANDERSON'S, Water St., St. John's.

SHANNAHAN ON POPULARITY AND SNOBOCRACY.

Popularity—being popular is, I think, the strangest thing in the world. No one can buy it. For you will see men who never gave a cent away in their lives basking in the sunshine of popularity. You'll meet a man, a perfect stranger to you, and you immediately feel a liking for him, while on the other hand you come in contact with another whom you dislike at the start. Why it is so you know not. If you were asked the reason you could not give it.

Having a nice smooth way of your own, giving soft, slippery talk, inquiring about the health of one's great grandmother, is not the key to popularity. You may get as far as to be called a nice man, but to reach the summit of popularity, the balloon of soft talk cannot always be depended upon. Acting fair and square towards your neighbor does not always do the trick, for we often see the dodger walking ahead of the upright man in the procession of life. Being industrious and minding your own business is not always the bait to tempt the crowd to stop up all night to cheer you to the echo. On the contrary, you will often find the man who minds his own business left to mind it. No one disturbs him and no one approaches him to chip in to drive down to the races or to splash for a trout excursion. We see men who work and drag all the days of their life, and go to church on Sunday. They have the name of having money and they are talked about as being selfish. But it is not their fault, that is the way they were built. They had nothing to do in shaping their manners. They were born as they are, and have to remain so. But they are not popular, and never will be, and would lose all the money they ever made in trying to be elected for the Municipal Council. Take the man who you see heading the poll for years and years. Ask yourself what there is about him that makes him so popular. No doubt he is a first rate man, but there are others just as good, just as smart and intelligent. You look and look for the reason, but you fail to find it. Nevertheless there is something about him that you cannot explain. Some great writers say that everyone can make himself or herself popular, and if Shannahan were to even express a doubt, regarding this contention, he would be looked upon as a cheeky old man. Nevertheless after my long experience in this valley of bog and holes I must say that popularity is to me a stunner. As the niggers say, "I gab it up."

But now I come to the man who has gained popularity in our own town and who is so foolish as to imagine that he can hold it without a struggle. You get no renewal of the lease of popularity, and once you lose the confidence of your friends, the confidence, mind you, that they placed in you, you may be treated leniently by them, but get a renewal of that genuine, whole-souled confidence—never while grass grows and water runs.

Therefore it is well for us all to remember that there is such a thing as losing popularity. If we are on the "high horse" we should remember that there are good men who have to travel on foot. If we see them trudging along the road of life foot-sore and weary, we should be ready to give them a lift over the stile, for this is a strange old world and we never know when we may require a push ourselves.

In this little small community of ours there is too much drawing of the line—too much of the snobocracy. His Excellency the Governor set a pace for the snobs of this town when he threw open the doors of Government House the other day to the people. That was the greatest kick in the ribs that snobocracy ever got in this town, and that was one of the acts, that and the interview Tucker and myself had with him, that will make the name of Governor Williams a household word and one to be respected not in an official manner, but in that whole-souled fashion which makes life worth living, for Governors cannot live barred up in state, and a whole-souled Governor, one of the people, delights in being beloved in the good old fashioned way by the people.

Thanks be God the day of bowing and scraping is fast disappearing in Newfoundland and the time is approaching when a man will be recognized as a man—simply that and nothing more.

CAPE REPORT.

Special to Evening Telegram.
 CAPE RACE, To-Day.
 Wind west, light, weather dull and cold. The S. S. Kamford passed in at 6 a.m.; a barq., two three-masted schrs. were off Cape Ballard the same time bound in; the barq. is probably the Devonian sighted here yesterday. Bar. 29.30; ther. 34.

Pearson's Fresh Air Fund.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Will you permit me to ask your readers to help me in the Fresh Air Fund, which exists for the purpose of giving the children, from the worst slums of the great cities of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, holidays in the country. Last year as the result of special appeals in my own newspapers and periodicals, and of kindly assistance given to the F. A. F. by Editors and owners of other papers in placing such an appeal as this before their readers, the F. A. F. was enabled to send no fewer than two hundred and thirty-six thousand two hundred waifs away from the slums of our big towns and cities for a day's pure air and sunshine in the country, where there needy little guests were given two good meals and plenty of healthy and stimulating amusement.

The worst and most neglected cases—four thousand and fifty in number—were treated in a special division and were despatched to holiday homes and taken care of for a whole fortnight; and I cannot easily over-emphasize the importance of this departure of the Fresh Air Fund.

A unique feature of the Fresh Air Fund is that no charge whatever is made for expenses in connection with it. There are no salaries of officials, no rent has to be paid, none of the thousand and one expenses, such as printer's bills and postage stamps which eat up so large a proportion of the revenue of most charities, is charged against the amount subscribed to the Fresh Air Fund. The Journals with which I am connected defray the whole of these costs, and every penny received goes intact to the benefit of the poorest of poor children. Thus, if anybody sends us the sum of ninepence, he or she can be absolutely certain one little one will be rescued for a day at least, from the gloomy and grimy surroundings in which he ordinarily lives and moves, while a remittance of ten shillings ensures that a sick or half-starved mite will have a whole fortnight's holiday, attendance, relief and change. There is something peculiarly sad and poignant about the plight of the un-wanted and the unloved child of the slums, and I feel instinctively that I have but to summon up the image of its natural loneliness and unhappiness to make the hearts of your readers—who may have lost a little one, or have bright and healthy children of their own—beat very tenderly and generously in regard to the Fresh Air Fund.

I remember, for instance, one of my workers telling me, how one day she visited an unsavoury district in the East End of London, taking with her a present for a little girl who had no parents and seemed to have no friends, but lived on sufferance with some relatives, picking up a precarious meal where and how she could. Before handing over the present (it was a dress) she chanced to say to the little one, quite at random, "Now Madge, here is the gift I promised you, but tell me first what you would like best." The little one looked wistfully at her for a moment and then said very softly and very shyly: "I would like to sit on your knee for a minute and pretend that I was your little girl."

And there are practically 300,000 Madges in our slums to-day, waiting in much the same plight, with the same pathetic wistfulness and eagerness, for men and women they do not know to help the Fresh Air Fund secure them a day's sympathy and respite. I do therefore beg your readers to help the Fresh Air Fund with a subscription now and at once; and further to interest their own children in so humane and satisfying a social service to others, and persuade them also to become little Fresh Air Missionaries. The address of the Honorary Secretary of the Fresh Air Fund is 23 St. Bride Street, London, E.C.

I am, dear Sir,
 Yours faithfully,
 C. ARTHUR PEARSON,
 23 St. Bride Street, London, E. C.

Laid Up With Lame Back

Pain, helplessness and suffering are overcome by DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Mrs. Frank Bloom, Hardwood Lake Ont., writes: "I want to tell you of the great benefit I found in the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I suffered so badly with kidney disease that when I lay down I could not get up without help. I was completely laid up with lame, aching back. I read about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the almanac, got them and they cured me of kidney disease and back-ache. "My husband had dreadful pains in his sides and obtained cure by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. These pills are the best on the market and I am glad to recommend them." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are definite and certain in action, enliven the liver and bowels as well as the kidneys, are lastingly beneficial and economical. But to obtain these results you must get the genuine Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill's dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Rosebery's Appeal.

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, April 16. Lord Rosebery to-day makes a newspaper appeal to the Unionist leaders to drop the tariff issue in the coming election and to appeal to the country as defenders of the constitution. If victorious he suggests that they could at once set about for a real reform of the Second Chamber and when that is completed appeal to the country on the Tariff Policy. The Time says Lord Rosebery's idea has its advantages.

The Labor Party Win.

Special to Evening Telegram. MELBOURNE, April 17. The triumph of the Labor Party in the General Election has produced a profound sensation. While apparently there is no great difference between the programmes of the parties, there is a big divergence in principle. The Laborites are strong for concentration of power in the Federal Government, while the Fusionists desired to strengthen the authority of the States by a graduated land tax. Industrial legislation on advanced lines is inevitable in the first session of the new Parliament. The new protection as a policy giving the benefits of the tariff to those manufacturers only who pay higher wages will be watched with interest. The complete returns were: Labor, 45; Fusionists, 27; Independent, 1; Independent Liberals, 2. At the dissolution the Fusionists numbered 44 and Labor and Independent Liberals 31.

Halley's Comet Seen At Placentia.

Special to Evening Telegram. PLACENTIA, To-Day. Halley's Comet was seen here first time this morning at 3.50 o'clock, rising over south-east horizon. Its light brilliant, comecusant and of corona form. Its reflection on the waters of picturesque Arm was very beautiful. It was visible about one hour after which it was lost in heavy bank cloud. Our watchers who climbed the steep sides of Duffy at above early hour to view this interesting stranger say they were more than rewarded by a sight of grandeur and the brilliancy of the celestial visitor.

THE PORT SAUNDERS.—Capt. Hensen and crew of the whaler Port Saunders will arrive here by the S. S. Mongolian. The whaler will sail for Hawk's Bay about May 1st.

Drop in Pork.

Cablegrams received in town from Chicago Saturday night say that a drop of $1.90 took place in the price of pork there in the afternoon. This will be good news for the fishermen who will now be able to lay in their supply for the Labrador fishery as usual.

Bruce Passengers.

The Bruce arrived at Port aux Basques at 7.35 a.m. yesterday. Her passengers were:—G. H. Massey, Misses Massey (2), H. R. Laurie, R. G. McAdam, H. French, Miss L. Parsons, M. Fisher, H. B. C. Lake, W. E. Benson, Geo. A. Moulton.

A Gale of Wind.

A gale of wind blew from the N. N. E. Saturday night and yesterday morning creating quite a sea outside. Trees and fences were blown down in some parts of the suburbs, and part of the boarded fence surrounding St. Patrick's Convent, Riverhead, was levelled.

At Gower St. Church.

Rev. Dr. Campbell who is here from Canada in the interest of the Bible Society, preached at Gower Street Church yesterday morning, on the text from Isaiah, "How beautiful upon the mountains is the face of him that bringeth good tidings." The sermon was a beautiful one and the attention of the hearers was held to the close. No attempt was made at oratorical effort. The effect of the discourse being its simplicity and poetic tenderness. The consoling gospel of peace and salvation stirred all hearts and appealed to the congregation by its beauty. It is a sermon that will not be forgotten for a long time. Only a master mind with a poetic temperament could do such justice to the text. At night Dr. Campbell spoke again at the Missionary meeting. He alluded to the great responsibility of the Church in Canada, Japan and China. There were 16 million people under the sphere of Methodist influence in the Orient and in North America, the present was God's last opportunity to the world for building up a great Christian Nation. The audience was large, Mr. King presided at the organ and the singing was excellent.

Birchy Cove—Wind W, fine and clear.

RAISED A DISTURBANCE.—Saturday night a man who was inebriated, tried to enter the Nickel theatre and being refused admission repeatedly tried to assault Const. Tucker who was on duty there. I. G. Sullivan in passing noticed the man's conduct and informed officer Devine whom he met. He with another constable, where soon on the scene and hurried the delinquent to the Police Station.

Where the World's Furs are Sold.

"Into College Hill Sale-Room, Queen Street, and the adjoining warehouse of Messrs. Lampson," says the Times, "are poured the spoils of the hunters and trappers of every region of the earth, from the Arctic Circle to Cape Horn and Australia. In room after room they are piled in crates or hanging in masses from stands, awaiting the inspection of the buyers, who at side desks are handling the bundles of a score which represent large lots to be sold at the auction. It is the task of Messrs. Lampson's sorters to arrange the lots according to their quality, and out of each to choose a score of sample skins which shall faithfully represent the general quality of the whole.

A World of Fur Buyers.
"To London the Russian comes to buy the best Siberian sables, and the American to fetch home the furs of his own continent, which, viewed from this corner of London, would seem notably the Land of Foxes. Silver, Arctic, blue, red, cross foxes—ones hardly supposed the round world contained such a multitude. Yet even the silver fox, the supremely valuable, contrives not to be extinct, for Reynard, whatever his colour, is still Reynard, and sleeps with one eye open.

"Here hang side by side two skins destined to fetch, one £500, the other £470, in the open market. They are a brownish black, the large bushy brushes tipped with white. The one which fetches the lower price seems the handsomer of the two, but it has a few white hairs in it, and the value of the skin depends on the absence of these. Such little foxes must spoil many vineyards, for by the time this £500 skin reaches its destined wearer it will be worth £300; and it would take two skins to make a stole. The colour fades in the wearing, so that this costly fur will very shortly be worth only a third of its present value. Vanity! thy name is really man. For, truth to tell, it is only in a country where the magnificence of his women's clothes fosters a man's self-esteem that colossal sums will be spent on them. An Englishman may often be vain of his horse's coat, but he is seldom vain of his wife's clothes. Accordingly, Paris takes both these skins. It is there that the finest furs usually go. The Russians, fur-lovers for practical reasons, also compete for them with the French.

"There, seated in three blocks or standing at the counter of the congregation, are buyers from many lands—France, Russia, Germany, Spain, Norway, America. But the flat-iron of cosmopolitanism, if only the hand of the tailor has been massed over the surface of the civilized world, and there is little of that picturesque diversity of exterior which would have been seen here thirty years ago.

In the Sale Room.
"This sale-room seems singularly devoid of excitement, even when the great furrers of the continents are disputing some noble spoil. The gesture of the bidder is difficult to detect, for he wishes to keep his purchases a secret from competitors. But all the while $90,000 skins and very large sums of money are changing hands; and outside the sale-room the cases of skins are pouring in, and pouring out, and a crowd of sorters, packers, workmen of all sorts, are swarming at their labours. This is London, a very small corner of London—a little world, yet the heart of a wide world, and containing enough in itself to stir the imagination of the dullard and to give the wild-cat politician pause."

HIS FACE BURNED.—While a man was slacking roach lime in the basement of Mr. T. J. Wall's residence Friday last, while Mr. Wall was trying to save one of his children from falling into it, the lime splashed in his face, burning it severely. He narrowly escaped getting the stuff in his eyes.

MARSHALL BROS.

Suspicious Characters.

At 2.05 this morning Mr. Jas. Kenny, who resides over his grocery store on Freshwater Road, was awakened from his slumbers by hearing a noise at his front door, and getting hurriedly out of bed he realized that some person was trying to force an entrance into his store, where there was considerable cash after Saturday's sales. Mr. Kenny was well prepared for the intruder had he entered and decided that he would not walk away but would get a rifle in the ambulance. When the prowler noticed a lamp which Mr. Kenny had lit sending its rays through the windows he noiselessly quit the place, but returned in about a half hour and again tried the door and once more quickly vanished. About three weeks ago a man tried to enter the residence of Mr. John Reid on Spencer Street, and that the nocturnal prowler is bent on robbery there is no doubt. A few months ago while absent from the premises Mr. Kenny's store had been entered and considerable cash was stolen from the tills. Should this scamp continue prowling about Freshwater Road he will get a disagreeable surprise.

McMurdo's Store News

MONDAY, April 18.
Labor and time-saving devices are now so much sought after that it is not wonderful that the Safety Razor, which offers such a quick and easy method of shaving, should have jumped into popularity. But now comes Colgate's Rapid Shave Powder, "the powder that shortens the shave," which still further abridges the number of minutes required for a man to "make himself presentable." The time saved by a Safety Razor and Rapid Shave Powder on a single shave is perhaps not very appreciable, but in a year it will be considerable, and be just as much added to the life of a busy man. Safety Razors (12 blades), $1.00; Colgate's R. S. Powder, 30c. tin.—adv.

Violently Resisted Arrest.

C. L. B. Parade.

Avalon Battalion of the C. L. B. held the first parade of the season to St. Mary's Church yesterday. There was a large turnout. The companies met at their armory at 2.30 and headed by their brass band marched to the South Side, where service was held at St. Mary's Church. Rev. Mr. Uphill preached the sermon, which was suitable to the occasion. After the service the Battalion returned to their armory by way of Water Street, New Gower Street, Theatre Hill and Long's Hill.

That Bay Bulls Petition

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—"Look Out" in the Chronicle has tried to say something in reply to John Cully's statement of facts in connection with the petition from the people of the parishes of Witless Bay and Mobilie. He evades every point in my letter but tries to divert attention to Mr. C. O'Brien. Mr. O'Brien may keep his job as far as Cully is concerned. But in the name of common justice he wants the Government, through the proper channels, to attend to the petition. Let the public keep that in view till attended to.
"Look Out" says "Cully" has been trying to "knife him" for the past 20 years. Evidently he is after the wrong man. I have never tried to knife; never had any business with him; but I did not feel like letting Mr. Cashin walk roughshod over the people of Bay Bulls without trying to call him to order.
There is nothing in "Look Out's" reply worthy of further attention, so I will not trespass further on your valuable space.
Hoping the people that signed the petition in question will keep it in sight and bring M. P. C. to a sense of his duty.
I remain, for the present,
Truly Yours,
JOHN CULLY.
Bay Bulls, April 15th, 1910.

OBITUARY.

MR. RICHARD SAGE.
Death came almost suddenly on the 7th inst. at Brooklyn, N. Y., to Mr. Richard Sage, son of the late John Sage, of the Terra Nova Constabulary, and brother of our esteemed citizens Charles and William of the firm of Sage & Wallace, of Water Street.

The deceased left here a quarter of a century ago and enjoyed good health. A few months ago he was taken ill from dropsy. Everything was done to alleviate his suffering. He was removed from his home to St. Mary's Hospital, where he breathed his last attended by his two daughters and the visiting Catholic clergyman who gave the last consolation to the dying man, who was conscious to the last moment and died fully reconciled to his fate.

The deceased was born in this city 56 years ago and educated at the Old Orphan Asylum. He served his time as a printer in the Times Office. He became a first-class printer, particularly on tabular work at which he had no superior in this country. Previous to his management of the Colonist, he was foreman with the late Mr. F. W. Bowden. He became foreman in one of the biggest printing establishments in Greater New York, and was also a prominent member of the Big Six Union.
Those printers who knew "Dick," as he was familiarly called, will have no doubt that his "proof," after being read by the Great Proof Reader, will be found to be marked "Clean Proof."

CURE FOR WHOOPING COUGH.
Mrs. Wm. Ball, Bracebridge, Ont., writes: "My three boys had whooping cough and we could get nothing to help them until we used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It arrested the cough at once and they kept on improving until they were cured at the cost of one dollar. This was not a large bill for so dangerous and distressing an ailment."

Law Moot Saturday.

Saturday afternoon the sessions of the Law Moot were continued in the Supreme Court. The facts for the case to be discussed were as follows: "Barkis was driving along the high road; overhanging the road were branches from a tree on neighbouring land. The road at this particular point was very narrow. One of the branches tore a tarpaulin cover which Barkis had to his car, from end to end. Can Barkis maintain an action against (a) the owner, and (b) the occupier of the land.
Mr. D. M. Browning, K.C., occupied the position of Judge, while Messrs. J. A. Winter and F. Summers argued for the plaintiff, with Messrs. C. E. Hunt and L. E. Emerson, for the defendant. The students also entered into the discussion, and also Messrs. J. P. Blackwood and W. J. Higgins. When the argument had concluded the Judge delivered a learned discourse on the law of "Nuisance," and after reviewing the case before him decided that an action could be taken by plaintiff against both owner and occupier.

CHINESE RICE RIOTS

Missionaries and Foreign Traders Flee---
Their Houses and Shops Looted and Fired---Soldiers Join Rioters.

Special to Evening Telegram.
CHANGSHAN, China, April 17.
All the foreign owned buildings in Changshan have been destroyed by fire with the exception of the British Consulate. All the buildings rented by foreigners have been looted. The Chinese officials on Thursday issued a proclamation that they were unable to protect the lives and property of foreigners, and therefore all foreigners made haste to leave the city. So far as is known no foreign resident was killed and several other Government officials fled. Even now a section of the city is in flames. Six thousand foreign drilled soldiers are stationed here, and a few of these protected the Governor's house for a time, but soon all joined the rioters. The riots began on April the 13th, when the famine sufferers looted the rice shops. A captain of the police was wounded while trying to restore order, but thousands crowded around him and his assistants and he was obliged to flee to the Yamen. The rioters followed him there and besieged the place all night. The following days the disturbances became anti-foreign, this being a strong anti-foreign province. The China Inland Mission and the Norwegian and Catholic missions were burned. The other missions were destroyed on April 15th. The missionaries attached to the Inland Mission, numbering 41 in all, took refuge in boats. They lost all their effects. The destruction of all foreign property, including the Japanese Consulate and the British warehouses, followed. The fate of the Standard Oil Co.'s new erected tanks is unknown. The British Consul detained two steamers for the refugees, who included 70 Japanese. Owing, however, to the shortage of provisions it was decided to start for Hankow. The official buildings were destroyed the same day and the soldiers joined the rioters, who numbered not less than 24,000. Eight Germans attached to the Libeonzoll Mission were in Changshan when the trouble began. They fled from the city and it is reported that three of them while proceeding to Hankow in a junk without lights were run down by the British gunboat Thistle and drowned. Another report states that the three men drowned were Americans, but there is no confirmation of this. The chief cause of the rioting was the scarcity and high price of rice. For a long time past anti-foreign feeling has been in progress. According to a report the Governor of Hunan committed suicide after notifying the Chinese Government that he was responsible for the trouble. The latest advice regarding the situation throughout the district are very far from being encouraging.

Cabman's Narrow Escape.

About 9.30 Saturday night a cabman who was well under the influence drove down Water Street at break-neck speed and sent his horse full tilt against the rear of a bread wagon left standing opposite Miss May Furlong's millinery store. The horse went completely out of the traces which were badly torn, a shaft and one of the wheels were broken, and the driver was pitched from his seat to the street. All present thought he had been badly hurt but he escaped with only a dirty coat and a few slight bruises. Had the bread cart been absent he would have gone in on the sidewalk and either killed or injured some passers by.

Marine Notes.

The Bella Rosa went from Oporto to Cadix and is now on the way from that port salt laden.
The brig, Clementine, Capt. Tucker, arrived at A. Goodridge & Sons, at 8 p.m. Saturday, after a run of 22 days, salt laden from Figueria. She had fine weather until she made this coast when fog and head winds were met. Captain and crew are well.
The Cheekers arrived at Vienna last Saturday, 22 days out from St. John's with a load of fish from Bishop, Sons & Co., Ltd. Capt. Geo. Runsey is in command.
The Golden Hind left Barbadoes yesterday for St. John's with a load of molasses. Capt. Herald is in command.
The s.s. Durango sailed at noon today for Halifax, taking a big freight of oil, lobsters and codfish.

The World's Biggest Airship.

Completing the Navy's Huge Vessel—Flights in June.
The new airship for the British Navy is rapidly nearing completion at the works of Vickers, Sons and Maxim at Barrow-in-Furness. It will be the largest, one of the fastest, and the most powerful airship in the world. Its great gas-containing body, built up rigidly with a new metal which is far stronger and only a trifle heavier than aluminium, will be 500 ft. long and 50 ft. in diameter, as against the 446 ft. in length of the monster Zeppelin type of airships. The garage, which faces the sea, is 600 ft. long and 100 ft. broad.
Gangs of men are now busy constructing a great "cradle." Upon this the airship will rest as it is pieced together. Practically every part of the airship is now ready, and only awaits the assembling process. The plan has been to distribute the making of the various sections over all departments of Messrs. Vickers, Sons and Maxim's works. By this means it has been possible to preserve great secrecy concerning all important details of construction.

Trials Over the Sea.
Work is also about to commence upon a special launchway from which the airship will take flight. Its trials will be carried out over the sea. It is designed, in fact, for sea-scouting. The airship's permanent quarters will be on the north-east coast, and it will be called upon to cruise for days at a stretch along the coastline and out to sea. With this work in view, reliability in storm weather has been one of the chief aims in the airship's construction.

The method of fitting together the sections of the airship's tremendous hull is particularly interesting. As one metal section follows another in position around the sides of the ship the whole of the hull can be made to revolve upon its cradle for the convenience of the fitters.
Its remarkable size will enable the airship to raise into the air a weight of close upon twenty tons. Its two 200-horse power petrol engines, which have already been subjected to tests for reliability, will give it a considerable speed through the air. It is hoped, in fact, that it will attain 45 miles an hour under fair conditions.

New Metal.
It was at first intended that the metal ribs and rigid sections of the hull should be built of aluminium. But since the first plans were made the constructors have discovered a new metal alloy. It is said to be nearly seven times as strong as aluminium and only very slightly more weighty.

It now seems probable that the airship will be ready for its preliminary trials in June or July next—the time mentioned by Mr. McKenna in the House of Commons not long ago.—Daily Mail.

For Lower Labrador.

A second steamer, the S. S. Stella Maris, will be engaged the coming summer to ply on the lower coast of Labrador from Nain to Muford to connect with the S. S. Invermore. It is said that Capt. W. Winsor will take charge of her.

Rosalind Coming.

The Rosalind which had been on dock to get a new tall shaft adjusted, left New York for Halifax and this port at 10 a.m. yesterday. She will leave for Montreal on Saturday next. The Florizel will leave here for New York on May 2nd.

The Devonia arrived at A. Goodridge & Sons to-day, 28 days from Barbadoes with a load of molasses.

Greatest Living General.

High Tribute Paid to Lord Kitchener at Banquet in San Francisco.
San Francisco, April 8.—Field Marshal Lord Kitchener, of the British army, who arrived yesterday from Australia en route to London, was a guest last night at a banquet given in honor of Rear Admiral Uriel Sebree, U.S.N., retired, Governor Gillette was toastmaster.
The banquet hall was draped with British flags, and behind the speaker's table hung the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack.
Gov. Gillette in introducing Lord Kitchener proclaimed him "the greatest general of any army in the world."
Lord Kitchener's remarks were brief. He expressed his appreciation of Admiral Sebree as a naval officer, and congratulated San Francisco on the speedy rehabilitation of the city after the earthquake and fire. Lord Kitchener will leave to-day for the Yosemite National Park and will start east on Sunday.
