Happiness Secured AT A Heavy Cost!

CHAPTER XXXVII. SAD NEWS—A DYING REQUEST. Half an hour later Len is en route for Hanbury...

CHAPTER XXXVIII. LESLEY'S SECRET. A year has slipped past since the day on which that summons to poor Robert Fuller's deathbed was placed in my hands...

looking more bright and pretty, if possible, than the Adelle of old times. I think, as I glance down at her from the embrasure of the window at which I sit writing...

They were married some months ago, and so were Charley and I; and we—I write it reverently, thankfully—are not one whit less happy than the others.

Heaven has been very good to me, for, at last, from the very depth and fullness of my heart, I can say, in all truth and sincerity, I love my husband.

The old love which, under other circumstances, might have shadowed my life into its close, is nothing more to me now than a tender memory of the past.

It was buried forever in the grave in which, a year ago, we laid poor Robert Fuller to his last, long sleep; and the saddest and most painful part of my task lies before me: To tell the story of his death as I learned it that day when I came down to Devon with Charley Denton...

Over a Hundred Different Ways of Serving Macaroni. Why not make up a tempting, appetizing, satisfying dish of "Macaroni à l'italienne" or "Macaroni Steak" with...

BERT S. HAYWARD, St. John's Distributor for Nfld.

something in his face gave me the answer, "Too late!" From that moment I needed no words to tell me that Robert Fuller was dead!

He had died that morning; but it was not until hours later that I could bear to ask or listen to the particulars. It was Ernest Warden, and not Len who told me; and there was an indescribable something in his voice and look as he performed the sorrowful task that touched me more deeply than the loudest expressions of sorrow and sympathy could have done.

"I read it over and over again, from the first word to the last, for, to my unspeakable joy, it hinted at what I have learned more fully since. That I was a free man—free to claim my darling—my wife!

struck me with a vague, indefinable sense of foreboding. "Would to Heaven some gift of foresight—some instinct of what was about to happen—had come to me in time; but it never does! These terrible calamities generally do overtake us when least prepared.

"Even now I hardly know how it all happened. We were standing together on the platform—Maud Fuller and I—when, just as the train came up, she made a sudden rush from our side, and before any one could interfere to prevent it, threw herself on the line, straight under the wheels of the advancing train.

"It was a horrible moment, the thought of which will turn me sick and giddy to the day of my death. There was a cry of horror, a scream of terror from the bystanders, and the next moment, with a herosim worthy of a better cause, poor Fuller had sprung after her.

"In a moment it was all over. In its smooth, relentless way the iron monster came up to the platform, but two poor, human forms lay crushed beneath its pitiless wheels, and in a few minutes we knew the worst.

"He was too late to save the worthless life for which he had so needlessly imperiled his own. The wretched woman who had ruined his life was killed on the spot. They took her up, a shapeless, senseless mass, and laid her away out of sight as quickly as possible. He was not dead, though so badly hurt that he hardly knew, at first, poor fellow, whether it was a corpse or a living man that we carried into the little waiting room.

"A doctor was quickly in attendance, but he could do nothing—a fact of which no one was more fully conscious than the patient himself; and even in that supreme moment there was a grim humor in the smile with which he looked up into the despairing face of his collaborator.

"A hopeless case, doctor," he said, as we wiped the blood from the poor white lips. "Human skill is powerless enough here. Take me to Deepdene; I should like to die there."

"Ah, Lesley, he was a grand fellow!" Ernest pursued, a mist of tears in his eyes and a huskiness in his voice for which I honored him as I had never honored him before; "and as we watched over him through those last moments, Len and I felt that I would have given my right hand gladly, freely, to have saved him had it been possible; but it was not to be. That kind, good heart, to which sorrow has dealt so many a cruel stab in its time, is still and at peace forever."

"Tell me," I returned, as soon as I could command my voice sufficiently to speak, "did he suffer much? Was he conscious?"

"Quite, until the last; and I don't think he suffered so much as one might have expected," he replied. "He was beyond that, you know. I was sorry he did not live long enough to see you, Lesley," Ernest went on, little dreaming with what vital interest I hung on his words. "It was the one and only wish he expressed from first to last. 'If I don't last until she gets here, Warden, he said to me, when I told him that we had telegraphed for you, tell her how I longed to look on her fair, bright face once more, and that I should like her to have my ring, and keep it, if she will, in remembrance of a friend who loved her. Leave it where it is, old fellow,' he added, as I glanced at the golden hoop encircling a finger on the poor hand even then growing cold in death. 'If I do not live to give it to her, let her take it from my hand herself. Poor little Lesley, we never spoke of it, but some instinct told me that she gave me what, through many a lonely year my sorrowful heart had craved and yearned for: the sweet pity and sympathy of a tender woman's heart; and may Heaven bless her for it!"

(To be Continued.) "It was his intention to take her back to London with him and place her in an asylum; and, feeling like a man from whose soul some horrible incubus had been lifted, I went to the station to see them off. Maud was in one of her most sullen and impracticable moods that day; she had evidently recognized her husband, and seemed to shrink from him as with some dim perception of guilt and fear. "Not but what she was quiet enough; but the demon of madness evidently possessed her; and, as we stood there on the platform, waiting for the train, something in her eyes

WAR REVIEW.

The Germans have markedly stiffened their resistance against the Allied armies from the region of Arras to Rheims, but their effort to ward off future encroachments into the territory they are holding have failed. All along the front the German big guns are violently in action, while machine guns in vast numbers are being used in front of strategic points which the Allies are endeavoring to gain. Nevertheless the British have gone more deeply into the sector south west of Cambrai, capturing important positions on the four mile front between the Havrincourt Wood and Pezere, regaining their trench positions dominating Gouzeaucourt and capturing Gouzeaucourt Wood. Meanwhile in the south the French are only a short distance west of St. Quentin and are at the gates of LaFere. On this last named sector the French have been enlarging their turning movement against the great St. Quentin forest, the conquest of which would remove the great barrier to an Allied advance in force eastward to an in an outflanking movement against both the Aisne and Chemin Dames positions of the enemy. The Germans here and northeast of Soissons also are offering most determined resistance against the French, realizing that should General Mangin's strategy prove successful the entire German line eastward to Soissons necessarily would be compelled to undergo marked readjustment. Thousands of machine guns and guns of larger calibre are roaring away against the French both from the St. Quentin forest and the Plateau above the Ailette-Avre northeast of Soissons. Along the Aisne the Germans are still endeavouring to retard the advance of the French in further crossings of the stream, probably in order to give their main army a chance to make its way unimpeded northward in case of a quick rush by the French towards Laon, a manoeuvre which seems in the making by Marshal Foch's forces. Large numbers of reinforcements have been ordered up here by the Germans and all along the Aisne front where the Americans are fighting alongside the French. Particular attention is being given by the Germans to the three stages of their line in Flanders, northeast of Soissons, and around Soissons. A break through at either point by the Allies, would spell disaster for the enemy. Therefore, the German high command is buttressing them for eventualities. In Flanders the German strategy seems to be the silencing of points vulnerable to aerial assaults. Particularly in this sector along the Lys River south of Ypres, where the Germans are reported to have removed all their artillery to the east side of the river, send a little more to the north around Ypres Chateau, where the British have advanced nearly a mile and apparently with slight opposition. The concentration of artillery of all calibres, including machine guns, and large bodies of men in the region of Soissons where every nook and corner of the rolling country contains hordes of defenders, proves the importance of enemy planes in holding this territory, while nothing is being left untried in the region around Rheims to strengthen in gun and man power the German line against the assaults the Allies apparently realize are soon to come. After virtually two months of hard fighting in which from Arras to the Marne the Germans everywhere have been worsted, General Foch has given no outward indication that he is to permit the Germans a breathing spell. The greater portion of the German defensive system in the battle zone already has been demolished or is in the process of demolition or of being made untenable. This is from the southwest of Cambrai to LaFere and the British and French are virtually upon it at distances ranging from a half mile to six miles at the farthest where the British and French are standing west of St. Quentin. When the drive began St. Quentin was thirty-eight miles distant from the Allied front.

OFFENSIVE TO BE KEPT UP.

PARIS, Sept. 9. If the Germans are expecting to be allowed a respite from the attack either during the autumn or through the winter, they are counting without their host, says Premier Clemenceau's newspaper L'Homme Libre, in commenting upon the military situation. They made their great trial last spring to outpace the United States, it points out, but lost the race to a competitor who was too fast for them. Nevertheless, the newspaper anticipates a certain slowing up of the fighting because of the necessity of bringing forward the necessary infantry support of new positions the Germans are occupying, and which they are expected to defend stubbornly. The regrouping of the Allied forces, however, will not be delayed. L'Homme Libre predicts, as the movement of the troops is based upon the excellent method through which the Allied Commander in Chief was able uninterruptedly to retain the initiative for a period of more than six weeks. In connection with the probable further course of the fighting in the immediate future, the Echo de Paris points out that the Allied command is not of a type to gamble with fortune, and that it is not likely to hurry an effort to capture lines so strongly held that losses disproportionate to the results would be risked in taking them.

NEW BRITISH LINE.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 9. (Canadian Press Despatch from Reuters).—Southwards we have reached a line eastwards of the villages of Trefon, Pocolilly, Flechin, and Bernes. We are in Reisel. From thence the line runs along the Reisel-Villiers-Ancon railway. We occupied Faucon, also Saulcourt and Guyencourt. Further north we carried the spur southeast of Heudicourt and gained useful ground north of the village. We are at Dessart Wood, between Fins and Gouzeaucourt. The Germans are reported to be trailing out of Heudicourt near which we captured a spoil heap, which figured in the battle of Cambrai in November last. Prisoners and machine guns have been taken. East of Walverghem an enemy storming party gained our trenches, but was driven back with considerable losses. Fires have been observed in Douai during the day. Among the prisoners taken are eight men recently released from Russia. A captured order, signed "Schullheim" directs that no dugouts with more than 8 steps can be used. These deep shelters were one of the great features of the Hindenburg line. This morning we made satisfactory progress between Gouzeaucourt and Peziers.

PROHIBITION ZONES IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 9. Without a dissenting vote, the House to-day passed, after a few minutes' consideration, the Senate resolution empowering the President to establish prohibition zones around munition factories, mines, shipyards and other war production plants.

RUSSIAN AFFAIRS.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 1. Premier Lenine's removal temporarily from the head of the Bolshevik Government at a time when it is in such a precarious state threatens to shorten its existence. The Premier's bullet wounds, inflicted by Dora Kaplan, a social revolutionary, are so serious that it will be many weeks before he can return to his desk, if he recovers. In the meantime Leo Mamenoff, vice-president of the Workers' and Soldiers' Delegates, has been appointed to act in Lenine's place. This appointment undoubtedly will revive the anti-Semitic agitation against the Soviet Government, which had been held in check somewhat by having a Gentle as Premier. Mamenoff is a brother-in-law of War Minister Trotsky.

ANOTHER SHOT FOR PEACE.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 9. Another shot from the Teuton peace propaganda has been fired by Count Cernin, the former Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, in a long article printed by the Vienna Neue Freie Presse. The Count writes in favor of the idea of a league of nations, and declares that an overwhelming majority of the German people with the Emperor at its head really and honestly desires a lasting peace. He holds that the authoritative factors in the Berlin Cabinet today openly favor the proposal of a League of Nations, and that Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, is not antagonistic to this. Therefore, Count Cernin declares, "there is nothing to prevent the Central Powers working out the fundamental principles of this new world order and in bringing them before the world."

NO MORE FORD CARS.

DETROIT, Sept. 9. The production of motor cars by the Ford Motor Company has been suspended entirely, it was officially announced at the plant here to-day. This move will enable the Company to devote its entire facilities to Government work, the announcement said.

CANADA'S GOVERNOR GENERAL AND PARTY IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9. The Duke of Devonshire, Governor General of Canada, members of his staff, and Newton Wesley Rowell, President of the Privy Council of Canada, arrived in Chicago to-day to visit the war exposition. To-morrow will be Canadian Day at the exposition, and the Duke of Devonshire and his party will be the City's guests of honor.

AVIATION WORK.

LONDON, Sept. 9. The official statement of the activities of the British flying forces over the battle zone issued to-night says: On Sept. 8th the day was overcast and there were frequent rain storms with high winds. Our airplanes carried on their work with the artillery and also accomplished a number of reconnaissances and contact patrols. Five tons of bombs were dropped during the day. There was no flying at night. The activity of the enemy machines was very slight, but we brought down five and drove two down out of control. None of our machines are missing.

QUIET ON BRITISH FRONT.

LONDON, Sept. 9. Last night passed in quiet along the British front in Northern France and Flanders except for artillery action and minor raiding operations, according to to-day's war office report. Southeast of Lens, in the region of Arleux-En-Gohelle, a German raiding party was repulsed.

PREPARING TO EXCHANGE.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 8. The Soviet government of Russia is willing to prepare for exchange of diplomats with Great Britain if the neutral powers will undertake to guarantee that the Bolshevik representatives at London are given a safe conduct home. The following statement by Foreign Minister Tchitcherine forwarded to the Voessische Zeitung by the Petrograd Telegraphic Agency outlined the conditions under which the Soviet government will act after discovery of the course of action of the French and British diplomats whose activities were directed against the Soviets power. The government of the Soviet republic found itself obliged to seek various agents of the powers named, nevertheless the government as before is willing to prepare for the exchange of diplomats if the neutral powers will undertake to guarantee that M. Litvinoff and all Russian citizens receive a safe conduct. That Litvinoff's and collaborators baggage be permitted to pass without examination and that no further difficulty be put in the way of his collaborators. The second must together with exit from London and passage across Scandinavia be guaranteed by Holland, Norway and Sweden. M. Litvinoff is being notified by telegraph, and on receipt of his

"MARNE" ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED.

PARIS, Sept. 9. All France paid tribute to-day to the heroes of the Marne in celebration of the fourth anniversary of the historic conflict. The celebration took on added significance from the recent series of victories over the same fighting ground as four years ago. Although the day was overcast there was a great pilgrimage to the battlefields and many ceremonies were held in villages slowly recovering from the devastation wrought when the Germans made their first sweep towards Paris.

ENCOURAGED TO MORE SACRIFICES.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 8. In a lecture on the war in Berlin Lieut. General Baron von Freytag-Lerchingoven, deputy chief of the general staff, contended that the present crisis on the western front was less serious than many others during the course of the war. He added that nothing like a decision was in prospect. He said: "the thing now is to push things so that Great Britain and America will recognize our invincibility in defensive war. We lack neither men, war material nor raw material to hold out for a long time. We must not however slacken in our determination, which must remain alive in the army and at home. All that might divide us must be postponed until the end of the war."

DE LESSEPS KILLED.

PARIS, Sept. 9. Capt. Count Bertrand De Lesseps was killed while leading a reconnoitering party of his regiment, the Twentieth Light Horse, before Cuvilly. He was the third son of Ferdinand De Lesseps.

SUPPRESSING INFORMATION.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 8. (By the A. P.)—The lack of reliable information possessed by Finland and Sweden concerning internal affairs in Russia amazed the American and Italian refugees who have just arrived here from Russian territory. They were likewise much surprised to find Finland and Sweden in such a normal condition. The Bolshevik and German newspapers and propagandists have the field all to themselves in supplying Russia with what information they choose regarding outside affairs and they also monopolize the reports from the Government of the country. Bolshevik Russia now stands in absolute telegraphic isolation from the rest of the world, with the single exception of the outlet through Germany. The Bolsheviks have not only suppressed all opposition newspapers, but the Government now actually prints and controls the few journals and Moscow. Russia is given little foreign news except what indicates weakness on the part of the Entente Powers and strength of the Central Empires. Germany and Austria are denounced as ferociously as the Entente by the Bolshevik press, whose constant aim is to create the impression that all the world is starting and demanding a proletarian government similar to that existing in Russia. Japan and China are represented as undergoing widespread revolutions. Instead of there being a demand for a Bolshevik regime in Finland, as the Soviet papers represent, nine-tenths of the Finns throw up their hands in horror when Bolshevism is mentioned.

THEY'RE EVERYWHERE.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 9. The court room was crowded to capacity to-day when Eugene V. Debs, former Socialist candidate for President of the United States, was placed on trial before Federal Judge D. O. Wostenbaker, charged with violation of the espionage act. Debs was vigorously indicted by the Federal grand jury here on June 29th, on ten counts for remarks alleged to have been made in an address before the State Convention of the Ohio Socialists.

MOVING ON.

LONDON, Sept. 9. Pushing ahead to-day on the front between Peronne and St. Quentin British patrols have occupied the towns of Vermand, five and a half miles northeast of St. Quentin and Vendelles two miles north of Vermand.

ATTACKING GOUZEACOURT.

LONDON, Sept. 9. The British this morning were attacking Gouzeaucourt. Southeast of Havrincourt Wood they are on the western and northern edges of Epehy within two and a half miles of the Hindenburg line, opposite Le Catelet and their patrols are reported to have passed through the village.

FRENCH MAKE FURTHER ADVANCE

PARIS, Sept. 9. North of the Somme, French troops have made a further advance in the direction of Clastres and have occupied Loret farm, according to the war office announcement to-day. French troops have crossed the Crozat Canal opposite Lys, three miles southwest of Venduilly. Two strong German counter attacks were repulsed by the French. In the Lauffaux region northeast of Soissons, the French took 80 prisoners belonging to five different regiments.

BIG BRITISH THRUST.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Sept. 9. (By the A.P.)—Field Marshal Haig's forces this morning advanced in the area west and northwest of St. Quentin, and are now five miles from the Hindenburg line. They are still pressing forward. The British made a formidable thrust this morning south of the Arras-Cambrai Road. In Flanders it is said that the Germans have removed their artillery to the east of the Lys River.

NEARING ST. QUENTIN.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 9.—The advance on the St. Quentin front progressed in spite of the prevalence of heavy rain over the ground and deep mud. A fresh German division has arrived in this sector. An enemy resistance as the rearward movement goes on seems likely to be stiffened somewhat before the Hindenburg line is finally reached. Heavy artillery duels were reported to-day at many places along the line. The thrust launched by the British just to the north of the Arras-Cambrai road seems to have made some progress, according to reports before 11 a.m. Further south the British were on the outskirts of Gouzeaucourt with the line being steadily drawn around Peziers and Epehy. The enemy machine gunners have been offering strong resistance in this neighborhood.

BRITISH IN NEW ADVANCE.

LONDON, Sept. 9. The British in an advance over a four mile front between the Havrincourt Wood and Peziers, have captured all the German positions on the high ground between these two points and won their old trench positions overlooking Gouzeaucourt, according to an official communication from Field Marshal Haig to-night. The Gouzeaucourt Wood also is in British hands. English and New Zealand troops performed the task, and during the fighting repulsed heavy German counter attacks.

The Result.

Having announced on Saturday that we purposed instituting enquiries into the matters alleged against the Harbor Grace Shipbuilding Co., we are now in possession of some facts which have been elicited from persons who are in a position to speak with assurance, and we therefore have no hesitation in making them public. In the meantime we have received several letters condemning the unjust and wholly unwarranted suspicions which have arisen, and still perhaps, surround this concern, but as the matter at our disposal to-day covers most of these, no further details are needed. We give the fullest publicity to the information received in order that our readers may learn for themselves from authoritative sources, something of the bona fides of this new Company recently established at Harbor Grace. Nothing, however, should prevent the Government from investigating anything they think proper, and this should be done at once in justice to both the community and the Company, and in the public interest. Furthermore the result of any investigation of this nature, held should be given to the press, without deletion unless such deletion was in the national interest. Following are some of the facts which enquiry has elicited:

The schooner referred to by a contemporary a few days ago is obviously the "Marne," owned by Christoffer Hannovig of New York, which came to Harbor Grace with a cargo for the Shipbuilding Company. Afterwards she was sent to St. John's with a view to her purchase by the Government, which, however, was not finalized owing to the difficulty of getting the Register changed. The crew of this vessel were arrested in the United States and the company has not heard anything against them. They may be foreigners, but so are many of the officers and men of the Bell Island ore boats. The proper authorities are supposed to keep a record of all crews, which no doubt has been done in the present case.

Certain employees of the Company at Harbor Grace were said to be unable to give explanations of conduct, alleged to be questionable by the military authorities and were thereupon deported. The number of Norwegians on the managing staff were six, including the manager and assistant manager. Their names are in our possession and can be given if necessary. Nothing has been alleged directly against the managing officers, though the conduct of some of the employees has not, in the opinion of the Company, been in its interests. Hence they have been either discharged or sent back to New York. Those under warrant for debt, were discharged from the employ some months ago, hence with these, as with others who have accepted employment elsewhere, the Company's control does not exist. The records of the men discharged or resigned are before us, but we do not consider that their personal affairs warrant publicity.

Operations of the whalers "Hawk" and "Port Saunders" have also been noted upon with suspicion, because of certain baseless allegations. At Cape Broyle where the Whaling Factory is situated, the manager is a forewegian, and there is but one man of that nationality aboard each of the teams, viz., the captains. The crews are all Newfoundlanders, and a addition the Government has a man on each boat, as a further measure of precaution. Therefore it is obvious that no "funny" work can be done by these boats, even if such were attempted, and an accusation of that nature is ridiculous. The main enterprise of the Company is the Shipbuilding plant at Harbor Grace, where some three hundred men from superstitious and bosses, down, all of whom being practically local men, are employed. Further comment is unnecessary. The Company desires the strictest and most searching investigation into its affairs in every direction, by the proper authorities, at all times, so that if any reasonable ground of suspicion is found it may be dealt with. The concern is owned by Christoffer Hannovig, Inc., of Broadway, New York. It operates five large shipbuilding plants in the United States and two at Toronto, Canada, and is not to be believed subjected to any of the annoyances and troubles which the local company is meeting. The controllers of the company are well known in London, England, and have a banking institution there. It is to be thought that enquiry of the Governments of the United Kingdom, the United States and Canada would produce satisfactory information concerning the standing of this company, and it would surprise the local management if the authorities had not already directed an enquiry to these Governments. The Harbor Grace staff is not only willing but anxious to give all the information the local authorities might desire. They naturally are hurt and indignant over the absurd stories which have been circulated without the shadow of foundation. Being foreigners they feel more acutely the baseless aspersions on their loyalty to the country to which they have come for the purpose of carrying on an industry of supreme importance to a maritime people. We might further add that those who represent the Shipbuilding Company locally have their honor impugned by the reports being put abroad and we think it only proper to say that there is not a representative in this town who would not deem it his first duty, as a citizen of this country, if he saw anything, or became acquainted with anything, of a suspicious or treasonable nature, to report it to the authorities, and such duty would over-ride all business relationships.

There are some other circumstances in connection with certain matters which could be published, but we think that enough has been written to prove that so far as Christoffer Hannovig, Inc. is concerned, that corporation in Newfoundland and elsewhere is not in communication with the enemy.

Returning From Africa.

By the express which left Port aux Basques this morning, Capt. J. B. O'Reilly, R.A.M.C., is a passenger. Capt. O'Reilly, who is a son of Inspector O'Reilly, I. S. O., has been for over a year with the British Forces operating in German East Africa and is now on a short furlough home. During his service with the German East Africa B. E. F. he contracted several of the diseases peculiar to that territory, but has fully recovered from the effects. His many friends will give him a hearty welcome.

SUCCESSFUL ATTACK.

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 9 (Canadian Press to Reuters, Ltd.)—This morning's attack between Goussencourt and Ephehy is completely successful. Considerable resistance was encountered from strong pockets of Germans with machine guns. The attack partook of the character of a reconnaissance in force by strong skirmishing patrols, as a result of which we carried Goussencourt Wood, which lies on high ground to the northwest of the town.

SEISMIC DISTURBANCE.

OTTAWA, Sept. 9. A severe earthquake was registered at the Dominion Observatory on Saturday afternoon. The officials at the Observatory report that the quake is one of the most severe registered in years. The first preliminary tremors occurred at 1 h. 28 mins. and 24 secs. p.m. local summer time, and the disturbance continued for over five hours. The distance to the origin was 7,000 kilometres, or 4,500 miles.

DEVONSHIRE'S DECLARATION.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9. "We will not negotiate terms of peace, but will dictate them," the Duke of Devonshire, Governor General of Canada, declared in a speech at a banquet given in his honor tonight. "The war will end, it may be in months or may be in years, only when we have certain assurances that the menace of Prussian autocracy and militarism is not only defeated but stamped out for all time," he said.

SOME GERMAN STATEMENTS.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 9. (By the A.P.)—The German command has discovered that its troops are unable to emerge from deep dugouts in time to meet infantry attacks, following on bombardments, so quickly do the Allied soldiers co-operating with the tanks move these days. Thus it would seem that the Hindenburg line may be in considerable alteration at various places along the front, including Douai. Further corroboration of the enemy's shortage of ammunition has been obtained from German prisoners, who said they had been receiving only limited allotments daily. Some idea of the state of the German morale may be had from the following quotations picked at random from captured German documents and letters. One German wrote home, but did not get a chance to post the letter: "I have been in the line for fourteen weeks. Johann is being well looked after. I wish I too was a prisoner of war." Another letter reads: "When we retired two Alsatians remained behind. If they had only said they were going to desert, many more would have stayed with them." Another message says, "Our men are completely exhausted, and can hardly stand upright." Another says, "The men cannot keep their eyes open, owing to fatigue. They must have relief." Still another soldier says, "We hear that the Bavarians and Saxons no longer wish to fight. How is it going to end?" Captured orders indicate that the German air service is being well combed out, and that airplane machines, much to their disgust, are being drafted into the infantry. One mechanic wrote to his brother in great detail what he should do in order not to be removed from the air forces. It appears that even the anti-aircraft batteries are parting with as much as ten per cent of their effectiveness so that more men may be had for the infantry.

GERMANY NOT STARVING.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 9. Germany is not on the verge of starvation, ira Nelson Morris, American Minister to Sweden, said to-day in reminding the American people that every enemy must be put into the war. Mr. Morris said his statements regarding the food situation were based on many reports from reliable sources, which had reached him at Stockholm. It was prompted by many published reports regarding conditions in the German Empire, which had come to his attention, since he recently returned to the United States. There can be no question, the Minister said, that there is a shortage of most of the essentials of life, but to state that this borders on the verge of starvation is erroneous and misleading.

UNCLE SAM'S TROUBLES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9. A strike of garment workers, affiliated with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, which it effected, would make speedy equipment of the new army, which registers Thursday, practically impossible, is threatened for October, in accordance to a statement issued here to-night by Leon Mann, Managing Director of the American Clothing Mfg. Association.

ENEMY OPPOSITION OVERCOME.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 9 (by the A. P.)—French troops forced the crossing of the Croisset Canal to-day, overcoming strong opposition, and occupied positions in the triangle formed by the two branches of the Canal and the road from Lafere to St. Quentin. They also advanced north of the Oise, taking the Lys fort, and north of the Oise, capturing Etreviller and Neuple. Though these were only operations of details, they tightened the lines around both St. Quentin and Lafere, greatly facilitating future operations against both towns. General Humbert's forces now command the entire region west of the river, and the Canal from Lafere north, and beyond a single track railroad, that crossed the river at Mesieres, they command all of the approaches to St. Quentin from the northwest, and south are within a few miles of the town. Occupation of Fort Lys gives the French command, not only of the entire country around Lafere, but of the valley of the Oise, to a considerable distance northward, the valley of the Sere eastward, and the railroad line leading to the Laon Citadel, which is visible from the height. General Mangin's army south of the Oise took German clothing in one Laferre from the south, while they improved their position north of Lafere. Both the third and tenth French armies are now practically on the line where the pursuit of the Germans stopped in the spring of 1917. German prisoners say that orders recently issued are to fight to the last man to hold the present positions. There are indications, however, that the Germans have less confidence than last year in the invincibility of this line as they made more sacrifices to hold their position in front of it without avail, and the burning of Lafere betrays the fear that the line is not entirely safe there.

WAR ENTERS ON NEW PERIOD.

PARIS, Sept. 9. The Allies are now almost back to the line they occupied before the German offensive, after six weeks of unbroken victory, and the war has entered a period not of calm but of precaution, with the promise of just as wonderful things to follow. The dry, and on the whole, fine weather which helped Marshal Foch to turn the tables on the Germans so fast, has now ended, and a warm, stormy spell has set in. The fighting yesterday centred south of Cambrai, south of St. Quentin, and to the heights north of Soissons, three vital spots for the Germans, who resisted desperately but unsuccessfully the Allied forward thrust. The German heavy artillery is becoming active from Arras to Rheims, indicating that General Ludendorff fears further removal will be forced upon him. Military critics here are guessing what Foch will do next. Critics credited with having inside information are displaying much ingenuity and variety in their descriptions of the coming moves on the different parts of the front, but the belief is fixed and confident throughout France that there is little danger of General Ludendorff being allowed to buttress himself again.

A Nice Young Man.

In these days of Hindenburg's Eastern glory, Belgian massacres and the Hymn of Hate, the figure of the German Crown Prince, adorned with a ghastly head-dress bearing a skull, flamed the flame of enemy ambition. Germans everywhere, unleashed at last for battle or conspiracy, hailed the childless stripping as the incarnation of the Fatherland's lust, and built up their rosy dreams of the Prussian future mainly upon the ardent nature and savage character they knew him to possess.

By throwing the whole weight of his influence into play to glorify German war, the Crown Prince was a prime factor in stimulating the national egotism that made the attack on civilization in 1914 seem natural and fitting as a process for the punishment of supposedly weaker breeds of men. When war began and extended strangely beyond the limits set by the plotters of the Wilhelmstrasse, party leaders in Germany, still drunk with pan-German liquor, rallied to his name and made effective use of his personality and ideas in dangling the world prize ever before a maddened people.

And this nice young man who is quoted now as saying temperate, dispassionate things about the war, and who had suddenly decided to take the interest of a normal being in what had been going on. Victory, he says, means only safeguarding the Fatherland. The moment England entered the war, he knew it.

The Crown Prince is not the only German personage who may be expected to get lightning changes from rage to reason, as the new peace offensive opens. What a relief it must be to these swashbucklers, after their ungenerous parts are spoken out on the stage to get back behind the scenes again with the beer and the bottles.—Montreal Daily Star.

Narrow Escape Along the Waterfront.

FROM DROWNING—GALLANT RESCUE.

Saturday afternoon Pouch Cove was the scene of what very nearly amounted to a tragedy but for the bravery of one man. Two men named John Sullivan and Walter Gould, were driven out shore in their motor boat, the engine of which broke down. They were drifting away to sea when a man in another motor boat who was passing threw them a line and attempted to tow them to shore. However, his engine being a small one, and the seas raging furiously, he had to abandon the attempt and severed the tow line as he did not wish to be drowned himself. In the meantime the entire population of Pouch Cove were assembled on the shore watching with anxious hearts the tragedy that was being enacted before their very eyes. It seemed that nothing could be done, and the castaways fate seemed to be black indeed, when a man named Reginald Sullivan, who is a fish buying agent of Bowring Bros., called for volunteers to man a large skiff, and within a few minutes had ten. Then he asked if anyone else would command another skiff, and accompany him out. Another man whose name is Diamond quickly volunteered, and within a few minutes two large skiffs, each manned by ten stalwarts, were plunging through the seas in the gallant endeavour to save the two men. They soon reached the helpless motor boat and tying on tow ropes towed her safely to shore. The two men had nearly succumbed when their rescuers arrived, and the people scattered along the shore were praying for their safety. The man Reginald Sullivan, assuredly deserves some recognition for his initiative and dauntless courage, and the Telegram very cheerfully speaks his due.

She leaves port to-morrow with a full cargo of salt for La Scie and Till Cove, and will bring back a cargo of salt fish. Crosbie's Earl of Devon is at the wharf of the Produce Co. The scho. E. A. Woodman, Harry Morgan master, from New Hr., T.R., got in here a few days ago. She is now at Godridge's wharf. The Woodman brought fish, hoops, etc., which she has not yet unloaded. The S. S. Portia left Grand Bank at 7.30 this morning. She is due here Thursday morning. The Mary Cashin, formerly owned by Hon. M. P. Cashin, Walter G. Cull, master, from Caplin Cove, C.B., got in last night with a cargo of fish for Bowring Bros. She will unload when the weather permits. When discharged she will take a general cargo, and will then bring back fish again. M. E. Martin's new 450 ton vessel, built by Mannes, Norris Arm, will be captained by Capt. Doyle, and will be used in the foreign fish trade. The Lunenburg banker Itaska, I. Ritcey, master, arrived here this morning from Grand Banks, where she has been fishing for a 7 weeks' stretch. The Itaska which reports for 3,000 qts, came in here for salt. She reports fish plentiful, squid scarce, and weather fine. She will sail in a day or two. The Allan F. Rose, Belleoram, Clere, master, arrived here last evening from St. Lawrence, on her way to Labrador. She is now at Harvey's wharf.

Fads and Fashions.

Odd fastenings are noticed on many of the new fall suits. Monkey fur is very fashionable for both frocks and wraps. A cloak of black broadened satin has a large collar of monkey fur. Every infantry battalion of the Line, with the exception of rifle corps, carries two colours as standards, called respectively the King's colour and the regimental colour, the latter bearing on it the regimental "honours," or the names of the campaigns and battles in which they have been engaged.

A Word to "Constant Reader."

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A letter came to me this morning so typical of many which I receive that I am going to print part of it. It writes my letter friend, "if you could let me know one t h a t I would want a girl to work in the evenings, doing little things of various s o r t s. Some folks would gladly pay a dollar to get a night out from their families so they could go out for an evening's enjoyment, but where are they? You can go to your friends and tell them you are doing that, because you can't accept money from that kind of folks.

When Unexpected Company Comes. "Again I should imagine some people would be glad to have someone come along that would do some business for them that they simply can't manage for themselves. For instance, you know how often people receive company and if they had someone to come right in and help them wouldn't it be a blessing? And they don't know who to get and I don't know who they are."

My letter friend signs herself "Very truly yours, Constant Reader."

Now if I did know any people who would like to work evenings, how could I let her know?

She would hardly expect me to publish their name in this column, would she?

Granted that they would be willing that would hardly make interesting reading for the rest of my friends. And yet I am constantly getting letters of that sort, appealing for personal help and signing a nom de plume!

A Boon To Both. I agree with my letter friend that it would be a boon to both of them and her if she could get into touch with the people who need a helper. And since I am using her case as a bad example I am going to pause and say here just what I should say to her if I were writing a personal letter. The answer to "And they don't know who to get and I don't know who they are," is always the same. Send out a drag net to bring them to you. Let them know whom to get, and you will find out who they are. In other words put in a simple advertisement in the classified advertisements telling clearly and fully just what you stand ready to do.

Isn't My Advice Worth That? So much for this specific example of "A Constant Reader."

As to Constant Readers in General—once more let me repeat what I have so often said—if you want personal advice please sign your real name, and enclose a stamped envelope. Surely if my advice is worth anything it is worth three cents and that amount of confidence.

Building Eagle Boats in Vast Conservatory.

Stearle Hendee, in the September Popular Mechanics Magazine.) When one has seen warships taking down like cucumbers in a hot house, he no longer wonders whether or not America's industrial preparedness has been estimated conservatively.

There is one place in the world where such a dramatic spectacle is being enacted. It is within an enormous glass solarium on a bank of the River Rouge at Detroit where the navy's new "Eagle" boats are being built.

When Henry Ford early this year agreed to build Eagle boats at Detroit, the plans and specifications were yet to be prepared by the Navy Department, a model remained to be built and tested, the present shipyard of the River Rouge was a dream, methods of high-speed production were formulated, important machinery was ordered, and special tools designed.

In normal times a capable contractor might have spent a year in erecting the assembly plant, a steel and glass structure 1,700 feet long, 350 feet wide, and about 90 feet high, but not only was it finished in 11 weeks, but finished in every detail.

From start to finish the Eagle boat is a precedent. It is being built entirely of sheet steel. No "one ever heard of such a thing before. There is not a rolled beam from stem to stern, or keel to bridge. Every part is fashioned from flat steel plates.

Half-inch angles, deck beams, channels and other structural members are bent into shape; some, like the fore-mentioned, manually, others cold-pressed by powerful machines.

An extensive "lumberyard" are lumberable stacks of thin steel plates. Except for the shape of some of them, they look as if they were composed of trimmed and orderly arranged layers of rust-colored sole leather.

And when one of the plates is lifted and swung through the air by a crane, or dragged from a stack by a small army of husky laborers, it bends away in leathery fashion, and the similarity is all the more striking. What then is being done? Sheets of steel are entering at one end of the building and Eagle boats are being launched at the other end!

Each Eagle boat is built on a long keel, supported on 12 standard trucks and stationed on one of the ways. The cars are 187 feet over all, and suggest to one tremendous black catpawes. On each of the three shipway tracks there is room for seven of these cars. Thus there is space in the plant for the simultaneous assembling of 21 ships.

From the laying of the keel to the setting of the rudder and propeller, a boat progressively occupies seven different positions along its way. That means that the assembling is divided into seven distinct operations executed by seven different crews of workmen. When the first operation is completed, the car bearing the embryo boat is moved to the second position, and a new car is brought into the vacant berth ready for the keel of another vessel to be laid. Before a boat can be transferred from the first to the second position, every other boat along the way must advance one station. This means that each of the seven operations on seven different boats must be completed on time to the minute by seven distinct crews of workmen. When the first crew is ready to lay another keel, the last crew must be ready to launch another boat. Not an inch of space has been provided for flexibility in the event of "unavoidable delays." No room has been left for failure!

Codfish Leather.

The next war "substitute" it seems, will be the skins of aquatic animals for shoes leather. At the Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, experiments have been made with the skins of sharks and codfish, and the results suggest that a reasonably good standard of footwear can be made from them.

The new leather will be utilized only in the manufacture of the "upper" parts of the shoe; for, so far, no satisfactory substitute for sole leather is forthcoming. The Pratt Institute, however, have discovered a method of treating ordinary sole leather in a way that doubles and even triples its durability, and it will be used in the manufacture of the shark and codfish shoes. The skins of aquatic animals, of course, have already been extensively used for various leathers because of their handsome markings—Til-Bits.

How to Please a Woman.

Some men don't require to be told. The art comes natural to them, and they understand how to please by intuition. But others—and these the greater number—must learn in the school of experience.

If you would please a woman you cannot be too careful about little things. It is just the seeming insignificant trifles that mean so much to her. A glance, a single word, a slight movement, may repel or charm. A woman may not be able to analyze very deeply, or say precisely where the jar comes in, but she is deeply sensitive to the significance of the "little things." The small attentions and civilities of life please. A careless or pertentious bow, a neglect to choose the road side when walking with her, a failure in attention when she speaks, may alter her opinion of you.

A woman likes the sense of being taken care of, and if you look after her little creature comforts you are on the right road to her heart. If she goes on a railway journey see that she does not sit in a draught, and if she seems cold put a wrap round her. Do all these things without asking her. Anticipate her need, in fact, and she will not fail to appreciate your forethought.

But, whatever you do, don't be fidgety. Women are themselves often inclined to worry and fidget over things; but this makes no difference to the fact that they dislike and despise these same qualities in men. If you accompany her when shopping, you must take a great interest in the important process. You must not seem to be in a hurry to get the purchase over, nor must you wear a pre-occupied air; and if you are out with her in the afternoon, do remember that she will like a cup of tea about four o'clock, and if you can find a quiet and cool place to have it in, she will be the better pleased.

And last—but certainly not least—do not forget that what pleases a woman before marriage will please her still more after marriage. A bunch of flowers, given with a loving kiss, will give her as much happiness as any gift you can offer. And remember that, because she is your wife, you should treat her with great respect, courtesy, consideration and attention than you do any other woman.

Notes From Robinson's

The hay-making season is drawing to a close with an all round average crop. Every year sees some improvement in the farming equipment, etc. This year, again, several farming implements have been imported to help decrease manual labor, but to compare agricultural resources with ways and means of people to develop them we are yet far behind our big Canadian neighbour and lots remain to be done on the part of both people and Government to arrange things as they should be.

The potato crop appears to be equal if not superior to last year's crop, but turnips and cabbage are a blank as they will not reach more than 15 p.c. of last year's yield.

The codfishery, too, has been a failure owing to the caplin not coming in, but we have little cause to grumble even if we have to use 25 p.c. substitute for flour as there are very few, if any, in this locality who will not, during the fall, be able to buy in their winter's supply of provisions.

The people of Robinson's have for many years at times warmed themselves with Newfoundland coal from the seams now advertised, and the reason that more has not been used is that it is eight or ten miles away and there are lots of wood within two miles. But so far as both quantity and quality go, I think we need not doubt.

Playing-Cards With Histories.

Nobody knows when or where the first rude set of cards were invented, although numerous somebody have variously brought forth proofs that each one of a dozen countries created them. But it's somewhere—some wide somewhere—among Assyria, Egypt and India. They have even been said to have been invented for the idiot King of France; but, of course, they were invented long before.

Almost as long as cards have been in existence have card games ruled the fashions, and not only the fashions, but every rank of life. England boasts proudly of having invented whist, and after many tribulations, of having developed it to a point where Hoyle reduced whist to a science, and incidentally associated his name with whist until "according to Hoyle" became a byword. The name of what was said to have its origin from "the science that is to be

Welcome to N. M. Guy and Family.

One of the advantages of the itinerant system of ministerial appointments is that it usually brings to a circuit every three or four years one who comes with new energies, looks out upon the field with new eyes, and is inspired with new enthusiasm. We are glad to welcome in the person of the Rev. Norman M. Guy one whom we have reason to believe has all these qualifications for successful work, and we extend to Mrs. and Miss Guy and himself a hearty welcome to Bermuda. Though the change from the climate, scenery and life of Newfoundland to that of semi-tropical Bermuda will be very noticeable and perhaps not altogether pleasant during the hot weather, we can assure them that there are better things in store, and one year's experience of a delightful Bermuda winter will more than compensate for the discomforts caused by "the summer sun's" directed rays.

A small deputation of the officials of Wesley Church met Mr. Guy and his family on their arrival by the S. S. Charybdis on Tuesday morning, July 30th. Rev. G. B. Sinden, who was at Mt. Allison with Mr. Guy, represented the ministers of the district. We were sorry to learn that a ten days' illness while in Boston had seriously interfered with the enjoyment of Mr. Guy's holiday. Not much time was lost in transferring from the dock to the parsonage, the surroundings and appearance of which delighted the ladies of the party. A few of the ladies of the church were on hand to welcome the minister's family and to initiate Mrs. and Miss Guy into the art and mystery of Bermuda housekeeping. — The Bermuda Methodist.

Among the fantastic varieties were those educational packs which were supposed to teach the player, at his game, the rudiments of some branch of study. Perhaps the funniest pack was one which professed to teach the correct ways of carving everything. Clubs were supposed to represent fish, the king of clubs regal—presented himself with a huge pickled herring; spades were to represent cooked meats, the king making merry in good old English fashion; diamonds stood for fowls, and it was turkey that this king had his carver's knife in; with hearts for good, red beef, the king playing dexterously at roast beef.

From the slip the face cards were represented as carvers the student (?) was supposed to learn the correct methods of the most domestic of arts. And the curious uses to which cards have been put! They have served as impromptu visiting cards, have borne challenges and proposals "as gallantly—as any gentleman of the realm," and have been carefully "cut" to see what luck is in store.

Indeed, even in this age, when life is too strenuous to permit much superstition, the folk-lore history of playing cards is an old one, with numerous devotees who still faithfully believe in it, and who would no more undertake a journey or decide an important question without consulting the cards than they would think of dying.

SAFE SERVICE. Safe service should be nobly done. When some there are go forth to die— To keep the best of freedom high: When youth will stand beside a gun Through bitter hours without complaint. Bear thirst and hunger with a smile, With grimy death unbraving every aisle. Breathe in air that poisons faint, How good the shame of him who fails In duty where no foe assails. It is an easy thing to stand Where never shrieking shell is heard; And kindly is the spoken word, Where little children, hand in hand, Rong out of doors and windows fair. Welcome the toilers home at night. To gentle scenes where eyes are bright. And faces are not aged by care: Of him but little life has asked, However much his strength is tasked. Safe service should be gladly given. Secure from death's destroying shell. A man should do his duty well; If to his task he must be driven, He has disgraced the youth who goes Undaunted to the danger zone And keeps his bitter post alone. And battles with his country's foes. Little of men, sad service asks. Compared to danger's cruel tasks.

Great Housing Scheme.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In The Monetary Times of August 30th, I find the following: Ontario Municipal Convention, Financial, Economic and Social sides of Municipal life discussed in Toronto. At this meeting the Prime Minister of the Province of Ontario addressed the Convention as follows (in part): On Thursday morning Premier Hearst described the Provincial Government's plan for assisting the municipalities in providing housing accommodation. The necessary legislation, he said, will have to be secured, but in the meantime municipalities can proceed with any scheme they have in mind after it has been first forwarded to, and approved by, the Government. The houses are not to exceed $2,500 in cost of construction, and are not to rent for more than $25.00 per month. Suggestions from municipalities would, he said, be gladly received, and he stated that it was not the desire of the Government to dictate to them, but rather to secure their cooperation. In my letter which you published in your issue of the 30th ult., I stated the Government of Ontario have offered $2,000,000 to build houses for workmen. If these houses are not to exceed $2,500 then, we will assume that if three standard houses will be erected to cost $1,500, $2,000 and $2,500, these will represent an average of two thousand dollars each, and would build 1,000 houses at $2,000 amounting to Two Million Dollars; this would further mean that a $1,500 house would rent at $15 per month, $2,000 house at $20 per month, and the $2,500 house at $25 per month, equal to 12 p.c. on the cost of construction. Take three standard houses to be built by the Dominion Co-Operative Building Association, Ltd., twenty foot frontage (single cottage), first floor, living room, small sitting room, kitchen, bath room, etc., and from three to four bedrooms in each house; on the second floor, with the option to purchase on easy terms by the tenant, and in addition free from taxation of any kind during occupancy by the tenant. These houses will be erected by your own company, with your own money, and let to shareholders and nobody else. Per Mth. $1,500 House will be rented at—$12.00 $2,000 House will be rented at—$15.00 $2,500 House will be rented at—$18.00 At the above rentals, no further charge will be made against the tenants, but they will be assisted in every way upon easy terms to become eventually the owners of their own house and land. Comparative statement of houses erected from loans by the Ontario Provincial Government: Per Mth. No. 1 House—$1,500. Rent—$15.00 No. 2 House—$2,000. Rent—$20.00 No. 3 House—$2,500. Germany's Lost Leaders.

(From the Boston Herald.)
Were there a complete roll-call at German general headquarters in the field, it might begin somewhat like this: "All-highest, Kaiser Wilhelm, war lord, in supreme command." No answer. "Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm of Prussia, commander-in-chief of the army of Paris." No answer. "Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, commander-in-chief of the army of the Channel ports." No answer. These lost leaders, where are they, and why are they absent? They have not been wounded, for their participation in battle was limited to the telephoning of orders or inquiries from behind the lines. The disappearance of the Kaiser may be said by his own people to be highly improper, seeing that the great German advance of this summer was designed to bear his name and was begun in his presence, after all Germany had been informed that he had taken the supreme command. The Prussian Crown Prince is said to have received six months leave of absence. Is he in Paris? He ought to have been there with his army in the first week of April, according to the Hindenburg time schedule. But he is not there even in the last week of August, unless the French have kept his capture secret, which is extremely unlikely. The Bavarian Crown Prince is said to have gone away on a serious enterprise. He is preparing at the age of 49 to marry a Luxemburg duchess of 22. But he and his army ought to have been long since at Dieppe, Boulogne or Calais, if not at Southampton or Dover. The retirement of these imperial and royal commanders is significant. They do not wish to have their names mixed up with the disaster. Too late. They proclaimed their leadership of Germany's military might to the position in which it falls before crushing blows. All is not well when the royalties jump from the breaking machine as the rats leap from the sinking ship. At this rate there may not be left in the field as much as a Serene Highness when the time comes for Marshal Foch to present his peace terms, "Unconditional Surrender."

Rammed Hun Sub.

British Captain Receives Decoration from the King.
For sinking in the Mediterranean in June, 1917, a large German submarine, which he believes was the former undersea cargo ship Deutschland, Capt. John Thompson of the British mercantile marine, has been awarded the decoration of the Distinguished Service Order by King George. The mariner rammed the submarine after an hour's manoeuvring in which the U-boat tried unsuccessfully to destroy his craft with shell fire. The submarine's huge size, Captain Thompson said afterwards, convinced him that it was the Deutschland, a belief which was strengthened when a lifebelt with that name on it floated to the surface after the vessel was rammed. When pressed for particulars of the encounter, the captain replied: "I am the man who sank the Deutschland, but I cannot talk about it." The Deutschland has been variously reported as captured or sunk by the British. In March, 1917, the submarine was reported as having been towed into a British port. Later a report said that the vessel whose arrival in Baltimore and later in New London, in the summer of 1916, with cargoes from Germany, created international sensation, had been converted into a war sub. and was renamed the U-52.

The Back Aches

Possibly you do not realize that this indicates derangement of the kidneys. Neglect usually means the development of Bright's disease. You know how dreadfully painful and fatal that is. There is quick relief for the kidneys in the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This medicine is known in the great majority of homes as the greatest of regulators.

Germans Force Old Men and Wounded Soldiers.

TO FIGHT IN THE TRENCHES.
The Hague, Holland, Sept. 3.—From Gelderland on the German border it is reported that the soldiers, mostly elderly men who constituted the German frontier guard, have been sent to the front in France, because of the critical situation there. The new guard is composed of slightly wounded men who are convalescing in Belgium. It is always noticed on the border when the chances of war are against Germany, by reason of desertion. On August 20 the whole German frontier post at Bergyk came into Holland, after switching off the electric current from the wire fence. Since August 23, the Belgian-Dutch frontier has been closed to travellers on account of troops movements. M. Kellanaer, a member of the committee providing houses in Holland for Belgian children, in the course of the war, has made twenty-five trips into Belgium, and what he tells of the conditions there is appalling. The state of affairs has been especially bad since the American relief has been held up and the sending of food impeded. In January, 1915, when relief was unable to reach all places regularly, he was sent to Malines and Etaples. He witnessed thousands of women, children and aged men surrounding Cardinal Mercier on his walks through Malines, and begging for bread. "I saw," he says, "even Germans weep when they witnessed the scenes."

Change Islands' Welcome to "Blue Puttee."

Change Islands was the scene of a very hearty reception by the Men's Patriotic Association on Monday, August 12th, when Lieut. Fred Waterman, one of the Blue Puttees, returned after four years absence. When the motor boat which was bringing him from Lewisporte drew near, a flotilla of boats gaily bedecked with bunting and carrying flags left the harbour and met him. As they passed down the Tickle, volleys of musketry from the various business premises answered those from the boats. At the wharf of Mr. S. Roberts, J.P., a large assembly had gathered to do honour to the gallant soldier, and after vigorous handshakes and prolonged cheers, Lieut. Waterman proceeded to his home, escorted by children bearing flags.

The following evening the Women's Patriotic Association tendered a reception to Lieut. Waterman and Pte. Austin Wagg, who had been honourably discharged. Tea was served at 6 o'clock in the L. O. A. Hall, which was nicely decorated for the occasion, and later in the evening a large audience listened for an hour to a most entertaining programme, which was as follows:

Chairman's Remarks—S. Roberts, J.P.

Chorus—Soldiers of the King.

Presentation of Addresses of Welcome to Lieut. F. W. Waterman by Women's Patriotic Association and Men's Patriotic Association.

Song—"I want to kiss Daddy good-night", Miss Gertrude Oake.

Presentation of Addresses of Welcome to Pte. Austin Wagg by Women's Patriotic Association and Men's Patriotic Association.

Song—"Ladies in Khaki", Miss Flossie Taylor.

Recitation—"A Sermon in the Trenches", Mr. H. J. Earle.

Duet—"We'll never let the old flag fall", Mrs. E. D. Elliott and Miss L. M. Taylor.

Recitation—"Through the night", Miss Mabel Oake.

Song—"Man with a hundred names", Mr. F. C. Earle.

Recitation—"Good-bye, I'm off to Flanders", Master Stanley LeDrew.

Song—"Charge of the Light Brigade", Mr. H. J. Earle.

Recitation—"The Secret", Mrs. Wilkinson.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

Everyone was glad to hear Mr. F. C. Earle again after a silence of many years; the children especially would appreciate one of his comic songs at every entertainment. His genial brother, Mr. H. J. Earle, ex-M.H.A., who was also very welcome, besides singing spoke a few words of welcome to the soldiers and of congratulation to the Women's Patriotic Association.

The most interesting feature of the programme was the address by Lieut. Waterman, who recounted many of his experiences during his four years of active service, and assured his listeners of his eagerness to return to France so that he may be in at the finish.

We wish Pte. Wagg a long and happy life in the homeland for which he so bravely fought, and for Lieut. Waterman bon voyage and a safe return after his trip to Berlin.

ADDRESSES OF WELCOME From the Women's Patriotic Association.

To Lieut. Fred Waterman, Royal Nfld. Regiment.

On behalf of the Women's Patriotic Association of Change Islands, we, the undersigned, beg to tender you this address of welcome as a tangible expression of our joy at your safe return as well as of the high esteem in which we hold you. For four years of ceaseless and strenuous warfare you have brilliantly and faithfully served your King and the Empire. It is with pleasure and admiration that we have followed your career as a soldier. You have measured up to the highest standard of manhood and proved yourself all circumstances a fine soldier and a gallant gentleman.

You bear in your body the marks of honourable wounds of which you may well be proud, in that they were received in a crusade in defence of the high ideals of Liberty, Righteousness and Truth, against oppression, brutality and perfidy. The promotions and honours which your superiors have bestowed upon you show that the service to the King and Empire has been at once valuable and efficient. We rejoice in these honours because in them your country and your home town are honoured as well.

We appreciate your valuable services and applaud your gallant conduct. You have played the man and your whole career reflects credit to yourself, your regiment and your country. It is with the highest pleasure, therefore, tempered with the highest admiration, that we unite in welcoming you back among us, and our sincere prayer is that you may be spared many years to enjoy the thanks of a grateful country and appreciative fellow-townsmen.

Signed on behalf of the Women's Patriotic Association of Change Islands.

FLORENCE WILKINSON, Pres.

JESSIE OAKE, Vice-Pres.

L. M. EARLE, Secretary.

To Private Austin J. Wagg, Royal Nfld. Regiment.

We, the undersigned, on behalf of the Patriotic Association of Change Islands, desire to express our heartfelt joy on your safe return and our appreciation of your services to the King and Empire.

For three years you have willingly given yourself in defence of Liberty, Justice and Right, and have, during that time, faithfully performed your duty in every particular.

The honourable wounds which you carry may be to you a source of pride, bearing evidence, as they do, that you loyally gave yourself at the call of your country when the Empire was in need of the help of her sons.

We, her daughters, always follow with eager interest the life of our boys overseas, ever confident that they will fulfill all that can be expected of the sons of loyal old Newfoundland.

We welcome you most heartily and pray that you may long live to enjoy well-merited esteem and admiration.

Signed on behalf of the Women's Patriotic Association of Change Islands.

FLORENCE WILKINSON, Pres.

JESSIE OAKE, Vice-Pres.

L. M. EARLE, Secretary.

The Glory of the Marne.

The rivers broaden to the sea,
In power and wealth and pride,
And stately ships from all the world
Do berth with every tide.
But Marne hath never port nor pier,
Warehouse nor wharf nor quay,
And the very name of war is lost
Before she finds the sea.

The rivers run rejoicing down,
And singing as they flow,
In rain or sun their course assigned
Pursuing swift or slow.
But Marne goes weeping all day long,
And is not comforted,
Her trampled banks and bloodied pools
And shallows choked with dead.

Yet hath she glory for all time
Mid rivers great and small,
And nobler dower than pride or power
Is hers among them all.
For Marne hath seen the hosts of hell
Turned backward from their goal,
And the stormy dawn of Hope arise
On Earth's war-warped soul.

And Marne hath fame for evermore
While the floods of Time shall roll!
—C. Fox Smith, in The London Chronicle.

Tells of the Raider's Start.

New Harbor, Me., Sept. 2.—"I have been sent here to annihilate the American fishing fleet and I am going to do it," declared the commander of the German submarine which captured the trawler Triumph recently and converted her into a raider, according to Alton R. Geyer, steward of the Triumph, who arrived at his home here.

Steward Geyer and a mess boy were the only Americans on board the Triumph, the captain and the remainder of the crew being Canadians. The submarine held up the Triumph about noon. Upon learning that she had sufficient coal to run her for ten days, the German commander took one of the trawler's life-boats and carried guns, ammunition, wireless apparatus and other equipment to the Triumph. Meanwhile some of the fishermen, including Geyer, were entertained on board the U-boat, being treated to brandy and cigarettes. Geyer said he talked with several German officers, among whom the second commander, a man about 27 years of age, told him that for years previous to the war he was employed on various American ships.

The officer asked Geyer if the United States cruiser San Diego had been sunk off New York, and upon being informed that she had, said he did the work with a torpedo. The commander also said that he had sunk a big oil tanker off Sandy Hook and had her captain a prisoner on board his submarine.

After arming the Triumph the U-boat commander put a crew of twenty-one men on board. He sank two fishing vessels before Geyer and his comrades were out of sight.

Shipments aggregating perhaps 2,500 barrels of Newfoundland Scotch cured herring were received in New York this week, the fish being of good quality, according to merchants, except for a percentage of spoiled stock. Sales of this goods, ex-dock were numerous, the demand clearly indicating that the consumption of this grade is now on the increase. It is reported that this Newfoundland Scotch pack herring, both of spring and winter cure, brought from $23 to $27 per barrel here, and some fancy goods in the shipment is understood to be held at higher prices. Advice from Newfoundland are to the effect that there is now only a limited quantity of Scotch pack of either spring or winter pack available at this time. One estimate gave the quantity in local hands in St. John's at only a few hundred barrels. It has been rumored that one of the large packers in Green Bay sold his entire pack to a Canadian house, but this report was discredited with the arrival of the steamer in New York with a quantity of this pack in its cargo. The price paid for this herring is understood to have been slightly in advance of the original quotation to factors from New York, who were in Newfoundland during the spring. Most factors in New York have comparatively little herring yet to come forward, and while it was reported locally that at least one firm had been short shipped on the steamer just arrived, lots were brought to New York for which space was not obtained until shortly before the steamer sailed, and it is understood that there was room for further shipments when she finally sailed.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette, Aug. 31.

"I Need Hardly Say

how thankful I was to get out alive, and fully made up my mind that I would write and tell you how useful Dr. Chase's Ointment was." writes a survivor of the Gallipoli Peninsula campaign. "We found that it afforded instant relief from poison from shrubs and bushes, and got to using it for all manner of minor wounds and grazes."

Father Finn's Garden Party.

You have heard of "Kitty Kearney" on the banks of sweet Killarney. But I think it is half barrenly about such beauty there; For we have in New York, though you search old Ireland over, Sea views just as beautiful and landscapes just as fair.

Oh, if you come to-morrow you will not feel any sorrow. Just step aboard the railway and to Holyrood say 'Hi'; And I will bet you never, no, nor maybe you shall ever Get such a jolly welcome as you will from Father Finn.

There you'll see girls from the city, and some Mr. Main girls pretty, And some athletes so grim, who upon the priest will call; Mr. Gibbs a cup is sending, and himself is attending, And there'll be two handsome medals being presented by "Phil" Wall.

There you'll meet with bright eyes gazing, there's boat races and there's dancing, And there's galleries there for shooting where your skill you may display.

With the blue sky looking over you and a scenery before you, Which some folks say can rival that of dear old Dublin Bay.

There'll be music there in plenty, there'll be short tunes and the lengthy, There'll be fun enough to make, I know, the strongest stolid grin; So come along to-morrow, and from life a few hours borrow

For to drive away all sorrow with the jolly "Father Finn." JAMES MURPHY.

The Jewish New Year.

The Jewish New Year (Rosh Hashanah) 5679—which was observed on Saturday, Sept. 7, marks the beginning of the principal holiday season of the Jewish year. While the day is really the new moon of the seventh month (Tishri)—the calendar beginning with the spring month—Nisan—yet the religious importance of the month so emphasized this particular new moon observance that it gradually assumed the importance of the New Year day. It is the beginning of the cycle known as the "ten days of repentance" ending with the holiest day of the year, the day of Atonement. In contrast with the rest of the period, which are days of sadness and penitence, the New Year day has always been observed among the Jews as a day of solemn joy and happiness. It is called in the Bible the "Day of Memorial" and to the Jew it marks the recording of the deeds of the past year for judgment—a judgment which is, however, suspended until after the day of Atonement when true repentance and sincere contrition the sins of the past may be blotted out and new opportunity afforded to live a life of purity and usefulness.

It is also called the "Day of the Blowing of the Trumpet" and around this ceremony—the blowing of the Shofar or ram's horn—the service of the day revolves. The ram's horn is supposed to refer to the salvation of Isaac and the substitution of a ram in his place when Abraham was about to slay him in his wrong understanding of God's demand for a sacrifice. (Genesis xxii.) As is the case with all Jewish holidays, the observance begins at the preceding sundown, Friday, and in the orthodox synagogues lasts until sundown Sunday—two days being observed in place of one as is the custom in the reform synagogues.

Brothers All.

Nineteenth Century: I remember going to an underground shelter in a Flanders district of grotesque desolation. To reach it one had to slip and struggle along greasy duck-boards, blood-stained in places; then leave the road and flounder through mud between nasty water-logged shell holes. The landscape showed not one blade of green grass or any living plant. Even the blackened tree stumps one sees on the Champagne battle fields or on the the Somme were missing. The mud was littered with a medley of smashed weapons and wagons, and many a long-cold corpse lay out. Shells dropped intermittently. Men were being picked off by chance shots; no man knew whether his turn might not come next. We reached the shelter and crawled inside—myself with relief after two miles of poignant apprehension. I never met a brighter company than the half dozen men and their officer in that shelter. They congratulated themselves things were no worse. No self-pity, no repining. One of the company crouched over a stove heating some food. The place was so cramped and dark I could not distinguish officer from men; they struck me as brothers all.

What About These Coal Shares?

The opportunity is a good one, $25,000.00 worth of stock has been placed on the market, and to the purchaser of each one of these shares three extra shares are given free of cost.

This makes the purchaser of each one dollar share the owner of four fully paid up shares in the company. The company also guarantees that none of the above shares will be subject to any further call.

The opportunity to invest is open to everybody. Get busy before it is too late; no bonus shares will be given after the present allotment is disposed of.

You can't lose. Invest to-day. For every single dollar you invest in this proposition you get four 1 dollar shares in return.
