—OR—
For Daisie's Sake

CHAPTER XIII.
"HER OWN AGAIN."

"So they have quarrelled? About me, of course. She is true, after all, my own sweet love! Ah! what a weight of yoke is lifted from my breast! Oh, I must manage to see her presently, and beg her to forgive me for my rash flight, jealous fool that I was! As for Royall, I am not sorry for him, since he acted in a mean, underhand way to gain her love. Well, he had his day, and failed; now comes mine."

Meanwhile, Letty was watching him with some compunction, owing to a guilty conscience.

Her first womanly pity for Annette had prompted her to mail to Dallas the letter she had stolen from the young girl's pocket, but on trying to get the address from Mrs. Fleming, the latter's suspicions had been aroused, and she had persecuted Letty till she found out everything. This done, she exchanged a gold piece with the devoted maid for poor Daisie's love letter.

"However," thought Letty, "there's no harm done, for I can tell him all about his pretty sweetheart, and maybe his cruel heart will turn back to her again."

So, getting close to his ear, Letty poured out in moving terms the story of Annette's accident, though she did not tell him the fate of the letter.

When she had ended, he sighed, and answered:

"Poor girl! I'm sorry for her; but there's some mistake, surely, Letty, for little Annette was never my sweetheart—never! I never loved any girl in my life but Daisie Bell, and I want you to slip in there and get her to come out here and see me. Won't you?"

Two big silver dollars pressed into her hand clinched the argument, and Letty tripped blithely away on her errand, leaving Dallas waiting with wild impatience for the coming of his little love.

And presently she came with a look of wonder on her fair face, for the maid had simply whispered to her that some one wanted to see her on the balcony, and she must just slip out without any fuss.

Daisie thought it might be a messenger from Aunt Alice about something, so she stole away, pretending she wished to lay aside the bridal veil.

In the hall she gave it to Letty to carry upstairs, and then glided out to the balcony, all unconscious of the joy that awaited her there.

When Dallas heard her coming he stepped back from the window into the screen of a climbing vine, where there was a seat for two, and waited. She came close to him, and the moonlight shone on her fair face and white gown and waves of golden hair. Oh, how beautiful she was in evening dress, with her neck uncovered, and her perfect arms, so white and rounded, bare to the shoulders!

She saw the dark form sitting in the shadow so silently, and as the hem of her white gown brushed against his knee, she faltered:

"Who wants me?"

Dallas half rose, holding out impassioned arms, whispering:

"I want you, Daisie, darling! I want you to forgive my folly and madness! I want you to be my little love still, as you promised that day before I left you! I want—"

But then his arms closed around her yielding form, and his last words were smothered in the kiss he pressed on the top of her shining head.

Ah! what joy for little Daisie, what sudden rapture!

Dallas Bain drew her down to the seat beside him, and in the shadow of the rose vines he kissed her lips, and she kissed him back again, dear little Daisie, forgiving everything in a moment, forgetting all the past, thinking of nothing else on earth but that he was her own again.

CHAPTER XIV.
"LOVE IN HEAVEN."

Inside the drawing-room, now that the last act of the entertainment was over, all was joyous confusion, people fitting about in merry converse, while over all rose low strains of music, now sad, now joyous, each finding an echo in some tender heart.

But Daisie Bell was too beautiful not to be missed, even in that brilliant throng, even had not Royall Sherwood impatiently questioned his cousin as to her absence.

"She has gone upstairs to remove the wedding veil that she was so reluctant to don, and will return presently," answered Mrs. Fleming; but though Royal lolloped near the stairway for half an hour, she did not come.

Half an hour of the keenest impatience and longing for him, of the most exquisite joy for Dallas and Daisie.

Between the two lovers there had been full explanations of everything, and renewed trust and confidence.

As they lingered there in the moonlight beneath the fragrant rose vine, with the voices of the sea blending in their ears with the lilt of merry music, their hands entwined, their hearts in unison, there came to them a foretaste of heaven, if 'tis true, as poets tell, that—

Love is heaven, and heaven in love,
"And you will give up your fine, rich lover for me, my Daisie—for me, with love in a cottage?" cried Dallas fondly.

"Can you doubt it?" she whispered back, blushing beneath the kiss with which he rewarded her devotion.

"You will be my own sweet bride! Oh, what joy—what bliss! How—how have I deserved such a boon from Heaven!" he cried, remembering his agony just now, when he believed she was giving herself away to his rival. "Oh, Daisie," he continued, "you shall never repent your sweet trust in me! I will make your life a dream of love and happiness. You say Royall Sherwood told you that my life was clouded with mystery, and that all mystery hid dishonor. Well, all shall be explained to you, and you shall know better, my precious love!"

But at that moment they heard a light, grating laugh, and saw before them Mrs. Fleming leaning on Royal Sherwood's arm.

Royall had grown so impatient of Daisie's long absence that he had insisted on having Mrs. Fleming find out the cause.

So the unsuspecting lady Letty Green, who was flirting with Cullen at the end of the hall, and demanded to know what Miss Bell was doing upstairs so long.

Letty tossed her pert brown head, and replied that Miss Bell hadn't gone upstairs at all.

"Didn't she go with you to remove her veil, girl?" cried Royall impatiently.

"No, sir; she sent me upstairs to take it, and went to meet her beau," returned the saucy maid.

"What do you mean, Letty?" Explain yourself, without any more trifling!" exclaimed her mistress, in a tone of sudden, sharp anxiety.

Perhaps Letty had a grudge against her mistress, and knew that she could pay it off now, for she proceeded to recount, with sly enjoyment, her rencontre with Dallas Bain.

"He actually thought at first that 'twas a real marriage, and I almost feared the man would drop dead at my feet, he was so upset," she cried. "But when I explained all to him—oh, what a change! His eyes just flashed with joy, and he crammed my hands full of money, saying: 'I never loved any girl in my life but Daisie Bell, and I want you to slip in there and get her to come out here and see me, won't you?'"

Letty thought her mistress would drop down dead, too, she clung so tightly to Royall Sherwood, and turned so deathly white, while she muttered, in impotent wrath:

"How dared you do it?"

Royall Sherwood went quite white, too, but he uttered no word; and Letty, with an air of innocence, tossed her head, twittering:

"La, ma'am, did I do anything wrong? If so, I'm sure I beg pardon."

"You should have come to me first," muttered Mrs. Fleming angrily; and the girl answered, with mock humility:

"I didn't know it, I'm sure, I didn't know you had a claim on him."

"Silence, girl!" cried Royall, interpreting her mood; and he drew Mrs. Fleming aside into a deserted anteroom to discuss the situation.

"Get me some wine, Royall; this is a terrible shock to my nerves!" she panted.

She drank, and the ruby liquid coursed through her veins like fire, inspiring her with new courage.

A low, hateful laugh thrilled over her lips as she cried:

"How very, very fortunate that he did not come ten minutes earlier!"

"How very fortunate!" echoed Royall; but his blond face was ashy pale, and dismay lurked in his eyes.

She held the half-drained glass to his lips, saying wildly:

"Drink! it will give you courage. We must go and face them with the truth!"

"No; I must keep a clear head," he answered, in a shaking voice, pushing her hand aside, and adding: "This is a terrible complication that one shrinks from meeting."

"Courage!" she answered gayly, slipping her hand through his arm, and leading him, half unwillingly, down the hall toward the door that opened on the balcony.

"I—I—hadn't you better break it to her first alone? I dread a scene!" he muttered tremblingly.

"Pshaw! don't be a coward, Royall. You know your role. Just stick to it like a man, and all will be well. Her fate is sealed, and their anger cannot change it, however they rage. Come," and, drawing him with her, the crafty schemer confronted the happy lovers on the moonlit balcony.

Her low, grating laugh startled them from a happy dream, and they sprang apart in confusion as she cried:

"Daisie, we have been searching for you everywhere! And here you are hiding from us like this, forgetting that your flirting days are over now! Why—Mr. Bain!" this in tones of profound surprise.

Dallas, quickly recovering himself, bowed profoundly, and responded:

"Yes, Mrs. Fleming, I am back again—just now returned—and meant to go in presently to greet you. Good evening, Mr. Sherwood. We are well met, all of us, for I wish to ask your congratulations on my engagement to Miss Bell."

He saw quite plainly, despite their seeming nonchalance, that the announcement would not wait, hence his haste.

Royall Sherwood gave a start of dramatic surprise; his cousin groaned:

"Good heavens!"

Daisie, shrinking into the shadow of the vines, waited for her lover to explain the situation.

He resumed sarcastically:

"You seem surprised, Mrs. Fleming, and yet you should not be. You knew quite well that I was Miss Bell's lover, though I was foolish enough to be frightened off that day when you came to her house and found us together. Well, I repented my haste, returned to-night, and sought an explanation. All is satisfactory, and we will soon be married."

"Sh-h!" almost hissed Royall Sherwood, while Mrs. Fleming added:

"This is terrible—terrible!"

"Why is it terrible, madam?" demanded Daisie, with sudden fire; and as the little widow looked at the handsome, spirited couple before her, she longed to strike them dead at her feet because of their love for each other.

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Genuine Aspirin

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, you are not getting Aspirin—Remember this! Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" are now made in America by an American Company. No German interest whatever, all rights being purchased from the United States Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. The "Bayer Cross" is your only way of knowing that you are getting genuine Aspirin, proved safe by millions for Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for pain generally.

Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 781) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid-ester of Salicylicacid.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger sizes "Bayer" packages can be had at drug stores.

France Demands Reparation.

Germany Must Settle for Breslau Incident--Triple Alliance of Labor Back Miners--New York Has Complex Strike Problem--Conflict Raging in Belfast.

FRANCE DEMANDS REPARATION.

BERLIN, Sept. 1. The French Ambassador informed the German Foreign Minister to-day that the French government desired a settlement of the Breslau incident, arising from an attack by a mob on the French Consulate, as soon as possible. France demands that the Consulate be repaired at the expense of the German government, that an indemnity of a hundred thousand francs be paid for losses, punishment of the persons responsible, and the ceremonial re-opening of the Consulate.

TRIPLE ALLIANCE BACKS MINERS.

LONDON, Sept. 1. The Executive Commission of Labors' "triple alliance" considering the miners' claims, unanimously passed a resolution yesterday in which it is set forth that claims are "both reasonable and just, and should be considered forthwith." Previously it had been considered doubtful if the Alliance of the three great unions would support miners.

MORE STRIKERS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1. Three thousand moving van drivers, helpers and packers were added to the New York army of strikers to-day. The men demand an increase of five dollars per day of eight hours.

MILLIONAIRE PLUMBERS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1. Unless they are awarded a minimum wage of nine dollars per day, a forty-four hour week, ten holidays per year, and double time for all overtime and holiday work, plumbers announced that they will strike. Painters, Paper Hangers and Decorators have voted to strike to-morrow unless they are given ten dollars for an eight hour day and a five day week.

BELFAST BATTLE.

BELFAST, Sept. 1. Fighting was resumed this morning between Nationalists, Unionists, shipyard workers, workers from Shankill district, and troops. Heavy firing continued nearly an hour and it is feared the casualties are heavy. Fighting centred about North Street. The total number of serious fires in Belfast since Wednesday last reached two hundred and fourteen this morning.

TWO MORE CASUALTIES.

BELFAST, Sept. 1. An unidentified man was shot and killed by the military patrol during curfew hours last night. A soldier was accidentally shot dead by a military patrol.

A RELAPSE.

LONDON, Sept. 1. Late editions of the morning papers report that Terence McSweeney suffered a change for worst during the night and is now sinking rapidly. It is stated that the prisoner can no longer speak.

SOVIET H.C.L. IDEAS.

BAKU, Sept. 1. Revolutionary outbreaks against Bolsheviks are reported among the Tartars. Disturbances were caused by the increased cost of living, which is now twenty times greater than when the Soviet government was instituted.

CURFEW AT BELFAST.

BELFAST, Sept. 1. Enforcement of the curfew ordinance in the city last night had a quieting effect. There were several fires in various sections of the town during early evening, but no serious rioting occurred.

CRICKET.

LONDON, Sept. 1. In yesterday's Cricket series Yorkshire defeated Hampshire, Lancashire defeated Worcestershire and Sussex defeated Leicestershire.

Retail Prices Will Slump.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Retail prices, in the opinion of the Federal Reserve Board, will decline slightly during the coming fall and winter months and will slump next spring to lower levels. Summarizing recent changes in prices of various commodities in the United States, the Board in a report last night said that "Saving afforded by manufacturers through lessened costs of materials and increased efficiency of labor must eventually be reflected in a downward movement of retail prices."

Changes in the prices of raw materials, which were reported to have declined sharply during the past few weeks, will not show their effect, according to the Board, in retail prices until early next spring. The Board stated that an "important downward tendency" in prices of all commodities except food had been evidenced throughout the United States, the reduction in prices of raw products having been especially marked.

This general lowering of the price level, it was believed, indicates a probable drop in food prices during the coming months.

Our Sheet Anchor.

It is hard to believe that Russia, even a Soviet Russia that has found new sources of strength in aggression from outside, should have any passion for a great war. If the victorious Allies find themselves exhausted, their state is golden by comparison with that of Russia. We must believe that only the firm hold of an Imperialist militarism could persuade or compel Russia to insist on war when peace and recognition are within her grasp. That is the surest foundation of hope for the victory of sanity in a crazy situation. We cling to it.—London Daily Express.

"Greenwich" Follies' Promoter Hangs.

Boundbrook, N.J., Aug. 27.—Guy Briggs, wealthy theatrical promoter, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself in the cellar of his home here.

He promoted the "Greenwich" Village Follies, "What's in a Name," and the "Greenwich Village Follies Number Two," which will open in New York next Monday night.

He is said to have inherited an estate estimated at $1,000,000 from his father, the late Benjamin Briggs, a financier largely interested in the Cunard Steamship Company.

Briggs had lost considerable money in theatrical enterprises, but this is not supposed to have been the motive for his suicide.

Clouds Always Climb.

As the sun sinks at night the earth gradually cools, giving off its heat by radiation to the surrounding air. Later, this air near the earth cools, and the moisture condenses on the surface of small particles of dust, causing what is known as mist.

During the night mists hang over low-lying valleys, but when the air is warmed again by the sun next morning the mist evaporates and disappears.

When warm air ascends, it not only passes into colder regions, but the very act of expansion from the warmth it receives lowers its temperature, and the vapour condenses and forms clouds.

Clouds often appear to float in the air for hours, but the water particles falling slowly through the air meet with warmer and drier air, and so evaporate again and ascend.

At the top of the cloud condensation occurs, and drops of moisture fall and, if striking the earth before they can evaporate, become rain. At the same time the bottom of the cloud vaporizes and rises, forming smaller clouds higher up; thus part of the clouds continue to ascend and become still cooler until they reach a height where they turn into particles of ice and can get no higher—about six miles on a warm day. The average height of clouds is just a mile.

Honours for Heroines.

Women are now eligible for the Victoria Cross. Two years ago they were similarly made eligible for the Military Medal, and they are also entitled to receive, under certain circumstances, the British War Medal and the Victory Medal.

Hitherto we have not been over-generous in bestowing war decorations on women, though some few have received them. Miss Sidney Browne, for instance, the first matron-in-chief of Queen Alexandra's Military Nursing Service, wears medals for the Egyptian War and the Khedive's Bronze Star, and two medals for the South African War, in addition to the Royal Red Cross and the Coronation Medal.

Our Allies, and especially France, have been more free in this direction, quite a number of British nurses having been decorated by them for their services, amongst the earliest recipients being Mrs. Harley, a sister of Lord French, upon whom General Sarraill bestowed the Croix de Guerre, "with palm."

Fell Into the Trap.

"Do you think any girl ever proposes in leap year as they say, Maudie?" he asked.

"Not unless she is obliged to," answered the maiden.

"H'm! I hadn't thought of that," he said, after a pause.

"But, George," she said, laying her hand affectionately upon his arm and looking into his eyes. "you, I am sure, will never force me to that humiliation."

"No—er—that is to say—of course not—"

The ice was broken, and three minutes later George was Maudie's accepted.

To-Day's Messages.

LESS ANXIOUS.

LONDON, Sept. 1. The condition of Lord Mayor MacSweeney in Brixton Prison to-night was without change, except that he appeared a trifle weaker. His relatives seem less anxious than they were a few days ago. Mrs. MacSweeney not paying his customary visit to-night.

LORD CAVE AT OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, Sept. 1. "Imperial relationships and Canada's part therein," were discussed at to-night's gathering of the Canadian Bar Association. The speakers were, Viscount Cave, Lord Justice of the Court of Appeals of Great Britain, and Hon. W. R. Ransay, Attorney General for Ontario. Lord Cave's reference to Imperial relations came at the end of an address, in which, as former Home Secretary and Solicitor, he had been able to present an intimate view of British war legislation. Lord Cave opened with the following tribute to the part which Canada had played in the war, making the sense of brotherhood deeper and more vibrant. He said he gave a review of war emergency legislation in Great Britain, and of the part which members of the bench and bar had played. "You, Lord Cave remarked in passing," were prompt and resolute in adopting that compulsion of military service which we adopted just in time, and without which the war would have been lost." Lord Cave was of the opinion that the British Government made an error at the commencement of the war in adopting the declaration of London as guide for contraband. Nowadays, when not only armies, but whole nations made war, and when success or failure depended as much upon the national spirit as upon prowess in arms, meticulous rules as to what was absolute and what was conditional contraband, or as to what was and what was not a continuous voyage destined for the enemy, simply would not work. Lord Cave also referred to the effect of the war upon constitutional relations between the old country and Dominions.

GOOD PROPERTY DESTROYED.

QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 1. The coastguard at Crookhaven reports that all buildings at Browhead, including the War Signal Station, Postoffice and Power Station were destroyed by fire and bombs last night.

PLEGGED TO SUPPORT MINERS.

LONDON, Sept. 1. Evening papers assert to-night that the triple Alliance of labor railway transport workers and miners will not adopt meditation between miners and the Government but on the contrary newspapers say that railway men and transport workers have pledged full and active support to the miners should a strike be decided upon at to-morrow's conference of Delegates of three Unions.

SHIPPING WORK PROGRESSING.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1. Work of loading and discharging

British steamships approached normal to-day with the return to work of most of the men who last Friday "went on strike" in sympathy with the cause of Irish freedom. The Cunard Line announced it had all the men required to handle its ships. The White Star Line still felt the effects of the walk-out, all but one of its vessels remaining idle.

NEWSPAPERLESS CITIES.

LONDON, Sept. 1. Manchester and Liverpool are still without newspapers, owing to the printers strike, with the exception of the Northern edition of Daily Mail. The men betray no signs of yielding in their demands for ten shillings a week increase, which the Daily Mail has already granted.

U.S. ANSWERED.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. Poland has answered the admonition of the United States that Polish armies halt at the ethnographic boundary of Poland, with a statement that strategic considerations must govern Poland's course. This reply was delivered by Prince Ludomirski, Polish Minister and followed on informal answer last week, transmitted through the United States charge at Warsaw, which has been characterized by officials "not disappointing" comment was reserved to-day on the formal communication.

AIRPLANE MAIL SERVICE ACROSS PUGET SOUND.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. An airplane mail service will be established next month between Seattle, Washington, and Victoria, B.C. Postmaster General Burleson announced to-day. Bids have been asked for operation of service by Hydroplane, both cities being located on Puget Sound, eighty four miles apart.

COLBY MADE A PROMISE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. Frank Walsh, Chairman of the American Commission for Irish independence, after a conference to-day with Secretary of State Colby, announced that Colby had promised "to endeavor to do something and do it quickly" in behalf of Terence MacSweeney, Lord Mayor of Cork, now on a hunger strike in Brixton jail, London.

MACSWEENEY'S CONDITION.

LONDON, Sept. 1. Government physicians to-day reversed their recent decision, and declared that Lord Mayor MacSweeney, on hunger strike in Brixton prison, would live for a week or ten days longer. The Government is providing the best medical experts obtainable and has declared officially that MacSweeney will not be permitted to die from complications, if science can prevent it. This was his 19th day without food. Hunger strikers of Mount Joy prison capitulated and began eating this afternoon. Twenty-two hunger strikers in Cork, however, continued their voluntary starvation, and several had collapsed to-day.

CARSON'S OFFER.

LONDON, Sept. 1. Reports were received here to-day that Sir Edward Carson has offered the British Government the services of thirty thousand Ulster volunteers, to replace soldiers now on duty here and elsewhere in Ireland.

STRIKE ORDER ISSUED.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 1. John Lewis, President of United States Mine Workers of America, late to-day issued an order for a general strike in the bituminous coal fields of Alabama. The order followed a report made by the organization committee of the International Executive Board. The report declared coal operators had failed to put into effect the awards of President Wilson's Coal Commission of last March.

SHOT IN DEFENCE OF HOME.

DUNGARVAN, Ireland, Sept. 1. During a raid on a private residence near Dungarvan, Monday night by twenty armed men, one of the occupants resisted and was shot dead.

POWELL EXPOSES CONSPIRACY.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 1. That a plot to overthrow the British monarchy and establish a republic in Great Britain, was hatched during the war, is a statement made by Dr. Ellis Powell, of London, Financial News member of the Imperial Press party, which left Vancouver on Monday. Dr. Powell was one of the men responsible for exposure of the conspiracy, and in an interview which he gave before leaving the coast he reiterated his assertion that the danger outlined is not yet passed.

Steps Forward.

The Spa Conference, at which, as Mr. Lloyd George says, the Allies for the first time had a real talk with the representatives of Germany, has put both the obligations of Germany and the determination of the Allies on a sounder footing. Germany has failed in her Treaty engagements; her plea of inability has been met by certain concessions, and if she does not now fulfil her undertakings as to disarmament and coal she knows what the penalty will be. The great Polish adventure had ended in disaster, and the Bolshevik advance had enabled the Allies to intervene (1) in her own interests and those of Europe, to save Poland from the full consequences of her folly, and (2) to prove to the Soviet autocrats of Russia—Mr. Lloyd George describes Lenin as the lineal successor of Peter the Great and Ivan the Terrible—that their only chance of opening up relations with the rest of the world lies in restricting their energies to Russia itself. The success of the Greek Armies in Asia Minor and in Thrace has assisted the Turks in Constantinople to a decision which will spare them further humiliation; the Peace Treaty will be signed substantially in the terms in which it was presented. In view of British relations with the King of the Hedjaz, it is peculiarly regrettable that the Emir Feisal should have adopted an attitude towards the French which has involved an advance on Damascus. On the other side of the account is the reference of the Aland Islands dispute and of the terms on which the Anglo-Japanese Treaty should be renewed to the League of Nations. The world's chief enemy is still impatience. As Mr. Lloyd George, in his account of the Spa Conference, suggested, great things have been accomplished where "organized impatience" demanded impossibilities. Cheques in payment of indemnities cannot be paid into the bank in a year, the world cannot get back into the old grooves "with a click," and neither Arabs nor Poles can resume

Amritsar.

No more difficult or painful problem of Empire can be conceived than that of Amritsar. Its complexities are shown by the contrary votes given by Lords and Commons. On the facts, it is impossible not to sympathise with General Dyer, and to feel that the professional career of a fine soldier and humane man has been ruined because in the most anxious and critical circumstances, which cannot be properly appreciated from an arm-chair, he took action that involved tragedy, but may have saved India from worse disasters. On the other hand, the authorities, with whom rests ultimate responsibility for the government of India, are, rightly or wrongly, of opinion that he was guilty of a grave error of judgment, and that he adopted precisely the measures on account of which we have condemned Germany in her dealings with helpless peoples. General Dyer's motive was, of course, very different from the German, and the utmost that can be said against him is that he went too far. Statesmen of such vast antecedents as Mr. Montagu and Lord Milner, Lord Sinha and Lord Curzon are equally emphatic in their endorsement of the Hunter report. The heat generated during the discussion in Parliament and the Press is not the ideal atmosphere for judicial decision. Views are sharply divided between the personal and the political, between the furious defence of General Dyer and a supreme consciousness of the effect which approval of his action might have in India and elsewhere. It would be peculiarly unfortunate if the verdict should be in favour of the man who has made the Empire what it is—confidence in his own judgment, in hours of crisis. In Lord Milner's opinion it will do nothing of the sort—United Empire.

MAID-BOUND.

What an unpleasant thing it is to be maid-bound!

Here's the sort of thing I mean: I was in the home of a friend of mine the other day when we heard voices in the kitchen. The queen of the kitchen was speaking to my friend's small daughter in a way that did not seem to me I could have a child of mine spoken to. I expected to see the mother and interfere.

I did not do such thing. Later when she came into the room, she reproached her for going into the kitchen. I went in to get a clean handkerchief, she protested. "They were there with the clean clothes," she shouldn't bother Mary when busy.

"I didn't bother her," protested the girl. "I was just going to go in and brighten up again and she began to scold me."

You have to Put Up With. It's the sort of thing you have to put up with," her mother sighed. "If you are going to keep help days."

Other time I was spending the afternoon with a friend of mine. "I'm going to lunch," she said, "you know how girls are about lunch. I'm just going to sound and see how she would feel company this noon." (I assure you she wouldn't have stayed for dinner if there was no rancor in my eyes about this.)

One believes in consideration for servants more than I. But this is a little hard on the body sometimes, but it certainly is easier on mind and soul.

THE EARTHQUAKE.

The other evening, while I wandered beside a Cheap John Inland lake, and on Dame Nature's beauties pondered, the earth reared up and threw a quake. One moment everything was quiet, no leaves were trembling on the trees; the next there was the blameliest riot, and I was jolted to my knees. Insanely things began to frolic, and mountains waltzed, and buildings, too; for when this planet has the colic the strangest marvels come in view. I thought, "It is the resurrection!" Gabe must have blown his trumpet notes, and my renown's of such complexion I fear I'll line up with the goats; I wish I hadn't lied and cheated, when I swapped horses, in my youth, and dished up fiction, superheated, when people simply yearned for truth. I wish that I had gone to churches when Sabbath bells admonished me, and heard the pastors, from their perches, hand out the truth that makes men free. And I regret, O like the dickens do I regret the times now gone, when I went out and gathered chickens between the sunset and the dawn! Thus my dark record rose before me, and showed no gold, but heaps of dross; dark recollections came to bore me and made me feel a total loss. But presently earth ceased its quaking, my feet grew warmer in a trice, and I remarked, "It's time for taking a nice cold bottle from the ice."

What a Face!

Jenkins must have married Lobelia Jumkins for love. At any rate, beauty could not have had anything to do with it. Her face would have ripened a cheese or stopped a train. One day, soon after his marriage, Jenkins met a friend and timidly asked him what he thought of Lobelia.

"Help! Don't ask me!" gasped the friend.

"Beauty is only skin deep, you know!" remonstrated Jenkins stiffly.

"Skin? er, then, dear chap!" advised the friend. "For heaven's sake, skin 'er!"

The Turkish Woman's Veil.

Ancient Mark of Her Seclusion and Servitude Becoming More Disaphonous, and at Times is Dropped Entirely as the Wearers Begin to Take Their Places in the Working World.

(From the Sun and New York Herald.) An American woman recently returned from Turkey said that one of the greatest changes from pre-war times when she observed was the growing tendency among the Turkish women to abandon the veil which in the past was an indispensable part of their attire. She says that in Constantinople one seldom sees a Turkish woman with her face covered with a heavy black veil. Habit and custom remain so strong, however, that the Turkish woman clings to the veil as a sort of symbol but, at the same time, she throws it back from her face.

The Turkish woman of the cities long before the war had stopped wearing the yashmak. The veil which she substituted for it gradually changed from black to brown or white and from a heavy texture to a light fineness that scarcely concealed her features. There came, too about the same time another marked change in the seclusion of the Turkish woman; she went about more in public conveyances and the curtains dropped in front of the apartment reserved for her were not always closely and strictly drawn. She still seldom goes to theatres where there are men, but the number of matinees and special evening performances for her benefit has greatly increased.

Education Removed Veils.

When the American Woman's College at Scutari across the Bosphorus from Stamboul, was opened there were more applications for admission from Turkish girls than there was room for them in the institution. The college continued its course uninterrupted throughout the war, and at one time every member of the Turkish War Cabinet had a daughter or a female relative in attendance. The girls of the college wear athletic dress and play with much enthusiasm basketball and tennis and engage with spirit in athletic games and contests.

They prove, too, rather to the surprise of the early instructors, excellent students with an intense eagerness for learning. Many of the graduates have filled successfully places which twenty years ago public sentiment in Turkey closed to women. When a telephone exchange was opened a few years ago at Constantinople the question was where to find operatives. It was impossible, old Moslems declared, for the Turkish girls to engage in such employment. The girls, many of whom were graduates of the Scutari institution, settled the question themselves; they undertook the work and they put aside their veils when employed at the exchange.

Woman Asserts Herself.

The Turkish woman, in short, has come in the last few years to the point where she demands her share in the affairs of the country. One of the fiercest and most ardent advocates of nationalization is Halide Edib Hanem. She won by her own efforts so important a position as political leader and power in the revolutionary movement, that the Turkish court at Constantinople condemned her to death—an inconceivable accomplishment for an Ottoman woman.

Years ago the religious head of Islam at Constantinople sent a representative out to a part of Herzegovina to find out why the women did not go veiled. The women told him that they had to work in the fields and that they could not do this if they wore yashmaks, and if the Sheikh ul Islam or the Sultan himself did not like it he could lump of their own. A Turkish girl finds the yashmak as such a hindrance in her work as an American girl would find a crinoline. For the same reason that the one would not restore the crinoline, the other would discard the heavy cumbersome veil. The Turkish woman as a worker will bring a new factor into the economic life of the remnant of the old Ottoman Empire; possibly if she had earlier taken part in the affairs of the country Turkey might not today be in such a hopeless state.

Just Folks

THE TIME I PLAYED WITH VARDON.
The time I played with Vardon, I was surely on the game. The gallery was greeting every shot with loud acclaim; I was driving right with Harry, and was getting home in two. And every trick that Vardon tried, I showed that I could do; I had the Briton worried—I could tell it from his looks. For I was doing everything he'd printed in his book.

I'd held him level several holes, and then the crowd began in a fever of excitement to applaud me to a man; Men were whispering together, "Ed-die's surely right to-day. He is just as good as Vardon! Oh, it's great to watch him play!" Then Vardon tried a long one, but his ball just missed the cup. And I dropped my twenty-footer for a birdie and was up!

Nip-and-tuck out there we battled, and I ventured soon to guess if I could keep it going, I'd make Mr. Vardon tremble; He was very nice about it, but when I'd got home in two I noticed he was lunging like I often used to do. When he dubbed a shot completely, when I'd played a perfect cleek. And I whispered to my caddie: "Vardon sometimes takes a peek!"

I was just one up on Vardon on the good old eighteenth tee, And a half was all I needed for my greatest victory. I was confident of winning—calm and cool about it, too; I wasn't going to falter, for I knew what I could do. I looked the distance over, then I made a perfect stroke— But just then the misssus shook me, and confounded it! I awoke!

"He Had Went."

"I have told you I don't know how often, my lad, not to say 'I have went,'" remarked the village dominie to his most hopeless pupil. "Now you will stay in and write the correct expression a hundred times."

After school, Tommy set to work to scrawl his lines. When he had finished he left them on the master's desk with a little note.

"Dear teacher," it ran, "I have wrote, 'I have gone' a hundred times, and now I have went."

Evening Telegram

Make It An Issue.

The Fish Exporters have an opportunity this evening to take a firm stand with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and to show him just how far he can go in the measures which he seems determined to enforce upon the trade, whether the members like them or not. The Minister assumes that he is absolute in his authority, and so far the business community appear to bow to his dictum without protest or argument. They have suffered Mr. Coaker to continue in the way set by him, and apparently have lost that spirit of independence so characteristic of their predecessors, a spirit which would not brook the arrogance of political or other upstarts. And not only have Water Street followed the direction of the Fisheries Minister, but they have done, and are doing it blindly, seemingly without courage to oppose his arbitrary decisions. Unhesitatingly they have accepted and agreed to his rulings on all matters appertaining to their own businesses and have practically permitted him to be their guide and philosopher, but unfortunately for themselves—not friend. For Mr. Coaker makes no secret of his hatred towards St. John's merchants. As it was in the beginning it always will be, and Water Street had better walk warily. The walk-into-my-parlour invitation may have more behind it than appears visible. Verbum Sap.

It is not a question of party politics at present, as some of the highly enlightened members of the Board of Trade would endeavour to make it appear. There is more at stake than the mere question of who should or should not be at the helm of Government, but if educated men are so petulant and purblind as to only look at serious affairs through political glasses, then the country is in for an exceedingly bad time of it, and the sooner the more conservative fish buyers cut loose from the callow innocence—to give it no stronger a term—of those who have not perspicacity enough to see where the game of blind man's buff played with them by Mr. Coaker is leading, the better will it be for their business and for the dominion at large. Enough transpired at the Board of Trade meeting on Tuesday to prove that there are some amongst the merchants who are willing to follow wherever Mr. Coaker leads, be it to financial perdition or elsewhere, equally fatal to them and their interests. The time has come when a halt must be called; a period placed after the amok of the Acting Premier. If some people evidence a desire to chase him around in circles, as a dog chases its tail, by all means let such folk do so. But the hour is now striking when sensible men will refuse any longer to obey the behests of the man who is using all his intellectual powers and all the authority given him by his office to weave a web into which to inveigle them to their own undoing.

C. L. B. Sports Postponed

FOOTBALL SIXES RUN OFF.
Owing to the rainstorm, the C.L.B. Cadets Sports had to be postponed yesterday, only C.L.B. inter-company football sixes being run off. In the first contest the Old Comrades defeated the Headquarters Team by 2 corners and in the play off the Heart's Content six won from Old Comrades by 1 corner. The storm prevented the Bell Island team from crossing over to Mr. W. J. Higgins, who refereed the game, the Sports Committee are grateful. The splendid miniature silver cups, imported specially from Headquarters, England, were presented to the winners during the dance at the armoury in the night. It is the hope of the committee that arrangements will be made whereby the sports will be run off next Wednesday week.

Laborer Had Leg Crushed.

While crossing to North Sydney on the Kyle last trip, a laborer named Ingraham, resident of Port aux Basques had one of his legs badly crushed by getting caught in the ship's machinery. On arrival at North Sydney he was attended by the port Doctor who ordered him to hospital. It will likely be a couple of weeks before the injured man will be able to leave the institution.

Motor Boat, Struck by Lightning, Sinks.

At Petty Harbor, yesterday before noon, a heavy rain and lightning storm raged and boats on the fishing grounds were compelled to suspend operations and seek shelter. A motor boat, in which were three men, Edward Brien, Augustus Brien and Thomas Madden was hit by lightning and so badly damaged that it sank immediately. The occupants only escaped death from drowning by the promptness of Denis Everett and his sons who, not far distant, rushed their boat to the rescue. The loss of the boat which was equipped with a 5 h.p. engine amounts to about $400.

Columbus Ladies' Outing

The Columbus Ladies' Association outing at Donovan's yesterday afternoon was well patronized, more than 200 persons going out by special train. During the afternoon indoor sports were held and after supper had been served the ball room was occupied by dancers until midnight, the music being supplied by the Jazz Orchestra. Return to town was made at 1 o'clock this morning.

League Football.

The League football match between the C.E.I. and Felidians was run off last night, the latter winning by one goal, although the C.E.I. had the best of the game all through. One of the Briton's crew dressed in oil coat and 'souwester, refereed the game. It is too bad that common sense did not prevail last night and have the game postponed. These two teams are well matched and on a fine evening the game would be well worth seeing. In a downpour of rain such as prevailed yesterday evening the match should have been called off as the field was only fit for water polo.

MARRIED.

On September 1st, by the Rev. W. B. Bugden, B.A., Agnes, daughter of Mrs. M. A. Evans, to Mr. G. Stanley Garland, both of this city.

IN EVER LOVING MEMORY of Harold G. Hussey, who departed this life September 2nd, 1919. We mourn the loss of one so dear. Our hearts are sad to-day. To think of one we loved so well, was quickly called away. The sweet to know we'll meet again. Where parting is no more; And the one so dear to us, Has only gone before. He has gone across the river, To the shores of evergreen; How we long to see his dear face, But the river flows between. And our aching hearts are calling, To the shadows dark and grey; For that dear one who left us, Just one year ago to-day. Sadly missed by mother and father.

TO GIVE YOUR CAR A GLITTERING GLOSS

PICTURE your car as you first saw it, with dazzling radiance—that's how it will look when cleaned and polished the O-Cedar way.
First remove mud and grease, by washing with water. Then wet a piece of cheese-cloth—wring out surplus water, pour on as much O-Cedar as the cloth contains water. Thus a safe lather is formed.
Finally, a little rubbing with a dry cloth produces a hard, dry brilliance that will last. What little dust may settle on it, can easily be removed with an O-Cedar Duster.

O-Cedar is the Polish that brightens and preserves floors, woodwork and furniture. It is equally dependable as a Polish that will prolong the life of the varnish on your motor car.

Incredible Stupidity.

One by one the German commanders who lost the world war are publishing explanations of their crushing defeat. Grand Admiral von Tirpitz is the latest in the procession. The London Times print a translation of an article which he has contributed to Der Grenzboten of Berlin. It shows that he could still join most heartily in Lassauer's song of "Hate against England." On that nation he pours his wrath and lays the blame for Germany's failure, at the same time expressing contempt for other European nations because they did not in earlier years combine for the destruction of British power. "Once again," he says, "England has succeeded owing to the sheer, incredible stupidity and jealousy of the European nations, and thanks to the wide moat which she possesses around her pirate's nest." That "pirate's nest" is good, but were not the principal pirate's nests at Zebrugge and Wilhelmshaven under the supreme control of the grand admiral, Thence the German submarines stole out to prey, piratically on unarmed merchant ships, to sink passenger liners without warning, and to send troop transports to the bottom whenever possible. That torpedo warfare under water was cowardly warfare, and it was miserably ineffectual for its main purpose, though it caused a considerable loss of life. Who was chiefly responsible for its introduction? The name of Von Tirpitz is inscribed in the history of the time as that of the cock-sure warrior who persuaded the German Chancellor and general staff that by means of unrestricted submarine operations the conveyance of food and munitions from the United States to the Allies could be stopped and an American army be prevented from crossing the Atlantic. He did not know what he was talking about. It has long been apparent that the "incredible stupidity" was under the hat of Von Tirpitz. His notion of destroying Anglo-American naval power with submarines was nonsensical. The barbarous use of them took America into the war and caused her to put on the Western front that army, which struck the final blows that smashed the German military machine and dispelled the illusive dream of "Germany over all."—Boston Sunday Herald.

Canada's Challenge.

The Canadian challenge for the America Cup is not the first that the Dominion has made. In 1876, after two English attempts to "lift" the cup, the Canadian schooner, Countess of Dufferin, named after the wife of the Governor-General, sailed two races against Madeline, the United States defender, and was badly beaten in both. Another attempt was made in 1881 with the sloop Atalanta, but she also went down before Mischievous, which won by an even bigger margin than Madeline. Neither of these boats was specially built for the race. One great advantage which a Canadian challenger will have is that she will not have to cross the Atlantic.—London Daily Chronicle.

Capt. Fryatt Memorial.

UNVEILING CEREMONY.

The Memorial erected by the Great Eastern Railway Co., in the churchyard at Upper Dovercourt, as an expression of their admiration of the gallantry and devotion of the late Captain C. A. Fryatt was unveiled before a large gathering on 18th June. Captain A. W. C. Jackson, Chairman of the Management Committee of the Guild, and the Guild's Honorary Agent at Harwich, represented us, while Captains A. A. Minter and Joseph Cottier attended on behalf of the Mercantile Marine Service Association. The Great Eastern Railway Company was represented by the Right Hon. Lord Claud Malmilton, and various other public bodies sent members in token of their sympathy and interest. Before unveiling the Memorial, Lord Claud Hamilton delivered an impressive appreciation of the character of Captain Fryatt, and recalled how on the occasion when he was presented with a gold watch on behalf of the Great Eastern Railway Co., in recognition of his services, the Chairman said to him:—"I hope, Captain Fryatt, you will never lose an opportunity of ramming a German submarine." The master's face lighted up with enthusiasm as he replied:—"You may trust me for that, Sir." "That trust," added His Lordship, "was not misplaced."

Captain Jackson's Tribute.

After Rear-Admiral Mansell had spoken, Captain Jackson said that it was a great privilege to him to be present on what he considered to be an historic occasion, to do honour to the memory of the late Captain Fryatt, whose name would be handed down to posterity, as a national hero, who in spite of the dangers he knew he was running never faltered in his duty, and carried on until eventually he was cruelly murdered. He was pleased to feel that he belonged to the profession which Captain Fryatt honoured, and also to know that he was a member of the I.M.S.G., a Society which he (Captain Jackson) was representing there. He felt proud of the Merchant Service and of the active part they took in the great war. He had yet to meet the first man who refused to carry on—men from time to time, after having been torpedoed, never hesitated to go to sea again, as soon as a ship was ready for them, thus upholding the old traditions of the sea. This late war had brought the Royal Navy and Merchant Service in close touch with each other and very cordial relations now existed; they had worked hand in hand with one object in view. Their sympathies were with the Captain Fryatt's wife and family. They have lost a husband and father, and the nation has lost a hero. He thanked the G. E. Railway Company for erecting this handsome Memorial Stone, and his lordship for the very kind and appropriate remarks he had made.

A Simple Memorial.

The Memorial is a simple yet dignified one in Portland stone; surrounding the inscription is an inter-twined rope-work of a very handsome character, and the top is surmounted by the badge of the Mercantile Marine, while underneath the inscription is a wreath of laurel leaves with the words "Pro Patria" in the centre. The inscription reads: "In memory of Captain Charles Algernon Fryatt, Master of the Great Eastern Railway Company's S.S. "Brussels," illegally executed by the Germans at Bruges on 27th day of July, 1916; erected by the Company as an expression of their admiration of his gallantry.—From the Dolphin.

Bad Baccy is Gritty.

Statistics have shown that the world consumption of tobacco for the last few years has been steadily increasing. In order to meet the growing demand, new sources of supply have been established. Before, most of the tobacco came from Central and South America, and Southern Europe, but now we find that the leaf is extensively cultivated in Central Asia, notably Japan, South China and the Philippine Islands.

There are many different types of tobacco leaf, but that which has the greatest demand is chiefly of a reddish colour. It may be light red, dark red or a dark reddish yellow, according to the purpose it is used for. To be of a superior quality, the leaf must be well cleaned, and not dusty or sandy, with the minimum amount of stalks left on, and for this tobacco manufacturers are prepared to pay a higher price.

Another thing, too, about the first class leaf is that it should be properly dried and aired in the sun, and not over a fire, before being packed, as otherwise the smoke weakens the tobacco, besides imparting a "smoky" flavour to it. When packing the leaves should not be pressed too much or they will be completely crushed and spoiled.

Most of the big tobacco factories have experts on their staffs, whose sole business is to examine the quality of tobacco leaf by tasting it. Good tobacco usually has a strong and agreeable flavour, and is free from gritty substance.

The Jamboree.

Boy scouts from all parts of the world recently gathered in the largest building devoted to public entertainment in London for a joyous festival, which was described under the picturesque name of a "jamboree." It appears to have been as jolly as its name, a veritable spree of good-fellowship, giving the boys an opportunity of displaying the athletic feats and the craftsmanship which are the nerve and sinew of their organization. No prizes were offered and each group wrestled, or rescued miners, erected tents, or gave a demonstration of signalling, without regard to the vast audience without expectation of individual applause or acknowledgment. Beneath all the fun and enjoyment lay the deeper meaning of the marvellous movement, a revelation of the inspiration, the imagination and the power of organization that in little more than a decade have made the Boy Scout a name to conjure with all over the world. Baden-Powell has made usefulness romantic. It was a tremendous inspiration. Boys love adventure, they despise mere utilitarianism. Mending an old boot, washing a soiled shirt or hawking a frozen pipe are dull and prosaic jobs when they come in the ordinary routine of "helping mother," but invest them with the clock of romance, extract the individualism from the tasks, cover them with all the insignia of chivalric ritual and they are transformed.

The Jamboree of the Boy Scouts was the Youths' League of Nations. The fraternization and the good-fellowship display during those days of high spirits and great endeavor at Olympia not only trained the boys for acceptance of the principles on which its great parent is founded, but the hand clasp of nation with nation must have left an impress on the spectators that will not be without its effect.

The Jamboree brought the world one step nearer to universal peace.—Montreal Daily Star.

The World's Oil Tank.

Baku, it is said, has fallen into the hands of the Bolsheviks. As an oil city, Baku was born in 1859, when oil was first tapped there by boring. Natural naphtha springs had, however, been known there for very many centuries.

In 1875 the Nobel Brothers took charge, and that was the beginning of the great oil boom. Baku is, perhaps, the most hideous town in the world. It is a howling wilderness of sand, where no green thing will grow. The whole place reeks of petroleum. All the food smells and tastes of it.

When the wells were first opened the oil was caught in reservoirs, dipped into barrels, and in them taken down to the Caspian Sea, which is visible from the town. It was the Nobel Brothers who first laid a pipe line to the sea, at a cost of £1,000. The saving was enormous, for, previously, one refinery alone spent £15,000 a year on men and camels for transportation. The carriers, thrown out of their job, attacked the piping, so that eventually it was necessary to build small stone forts for the purpose of protecting the line.

Baku has the "spouters" bigger than ever known in America. The famous Dwogha, when first tapped, spouted one million eight hundred thousand gallons a day. It took three months to cap it and the amount of oil wasted during that time is reckoned to have been five thousand tons.

At present the yearly output of the Baku wells is estimated at ten thousand million pounds' weight.

No Profiteer.

Hotel Proprietor: "Sorry, sir, but we're full up. There is not a vacant bed in the house."

Wary traveller: "What will you charge me to sleep on a billiard table?"

"Eightpence an hour, regular billiard rates. I wouldn't profiteer on a man in trouble."

Preferred the Forfeit.

"My sister Maggie is a very fortunate girl."

"Yes? Why?"

"Dunno. But she went to a party last night, and played blind man's-buff all the evening. The boys hunt around and find a girl, and then they must either kiss her or give her a shilling."

"Yes?"

"Maggie came home with thirty shillings and a War Bond."

Three Courses Are Open.

The real issue, which is peace or war with Bolshevism, has become inextricably related to the claim of the Bolshevik Labor leaders to dictate to the Government in what shall consist the foreign policy of this country, a claim they threaten to enforce by violence. The Government, therefore, whose task is sufficiently difficult in itself, are menaced at this moment by men who are traitors to their country. In these circumstances the Government must take one of three courses. They may do what they believe to be their duty irrespective of all other considerations; in which event they would be assured of the support of the great majority in the country. Or they may temporize, or again they may yield to the Bolshevik Labor leaders; and in either case the Government will but postpone the conflict, and present the leaders of revolution with time to reinforce their ranks in preparation for the next challenge. — London Morning Post.

Hats That Are Not Worn

The peculiarity of the Cardinal's hat is that it is not intended to be worn.

On one occasion only is it to be seen on the head of a Cardinal, and that is when the Pope himself places it there as a symbol of his own elevation to the Sacred College. When the Cardinal dies it is placed upon his coffin.

The hat is of a deeper red than that of the robe worn by a Cardinal. It has long heavy silken cords, each with fifteen tassels at the end, hanging on either side. There are at present three "Red Hats" in Westminster Cathedral. They are those of Cardinals Wiseman, Manning, and Vaughan.

The crimson robes which, like the hat, denote the Cardinal's office are made of a cloth which for several generations past has been supplied by a firm of cloth merchants at Burtefeld, near Aix-la-Chapelle. The process by which the dye is distilled is a jealously-guarded secret.

Tricotine suits are made on semi-sports lines.

Sugar at New Price To-Day.

Hallifax, Aug. 28.—Word was received shortly before noon yesterday from Montreal announcing the two cent drop in the price of sugar, which was decided on there Thursday. A Halifax retailer yesterday said that this was not expected to affect the local retail market until to-day, and up to an early hour yesterday afternoon none of the retailers were reported to have lowered their prices. Some had not been advised officially of the drop. Those who have only a day's supply of sugar on hand will, of course, be affected by the new price almost immediately and will sell to the consumer at a corresponding reduction, the law allowing only a certain margin of profit.

Sugar was selling wholesale Thursday at $24.10 a bag, and under the new rate which came into effect yesterday, is now quoted at $22.10. The retail price has been 25 or 26 cents a pound and it is expected that the new price will be 23 or 24 cents.

A local retail merchant stated yesterday that he did not expect to see a big slump in the sugar market at present. The refineries are well stocked up and until they unload themselves of this stock and receive new supplies no great drop in price is expected. He predicted that the price of sugar would gradually decline.

BROKERS UNEASY.

Montreal, Aug. 27.—Local sugar brokers who seem to have heavy stocks, were yesterday offering the best granulated sugar to wholesalers at 15 cents a pound in lots up to one thousand bags, containing 100 lbs. to the bag, while refiners were quoting twenty-two dollars and eighty cents a hundred for the same grade.

It was explained that brokers have been holding heavy stocks for higher prices, but in view of the outlook for a decline they are anxious to unload.

It was said that some of the stocks accumulated by brokers had been bought as low as 15 and 16 cents.

Announcement was made by sugar refiners yesterday, after a long consultation with representatives of the Board of Commerce, that the price of sugar would be dropped two cents all round, to-day, and that this would affect all grades of sugar, both granulated and yellow.

Due to Volcanic Dust.

A curious discovery was made some years ago abroad with reference to certain luminous clouds visible at night for a long time after sunset, and in the morning for a corresponding time before sunrise. The clouds were seen here lying in parallel stripes and not less than fifty miles high. They reflected the sunlight and had a silvery tint, sometimes bluish. It will be remembered by some persons that after the great volcanic explosion that blew away half of an island in the Straits of Sumatra in 1883 clouds of fine dust hurried into the upper atmosphere by the explosion quickly enveloped the whole earth and produced for several successive years magnificent crimson sunsets and other beautiful effects. It has been thought that the luminous clouds may have owed their origin to the same cause.

There's a Touch of Tomorrow In All Cole Does Today

Do You Know What We Mean When We Say The Aero-EIGHT Is Balanced to Zero?

What gives the Cole Aero-EIGHT its 15,000 miles on tires and causes its 80 HP engine to require so little fuel?

What enables the Aero-EIGHT to be so light and yet possess such strength, endurance and stamina?

Why does the Aero-EIGHT pick up so swiftly and have so great a fund of reserve power?

What vests it with its unusual range of performance and enables it to operate with uniform efficiency throughout its entire speed scope?

Why does the Aero-EIGHT adhere so tenaciously to its course under all conditions of travel and absorb the shocks when the going is rough? What frees it from the usual ravages of time and wear and causes its performance from year to year to possess the same dependability?

There is one answer to all of these questions: the Cole Aero-EIGHT is balanced to zero!

That is one of the achievements of aertype engineering—an exclusive characteristic of the Cole Aero-EIGHT which an hour in traffic or a mile on the road will reveal as one of the master features of automotive engineering.

Lighthouse Without Keepers.

SEA SIGNALS CONTROLLED FROM THE SHORE.

The decision of the lighthouse authorities to erect beacons around Britain's shores, similar to the famous unattended tower at Guernsey, in the Channel Islands, means that lighthouses of the future will be run without keepers.

The fact is, many new towers are needed, more particularly in Scottish waters, but the cost of erecting an ordinary structure is now almost prohibitive. In addition to the initial outlay, the running expenses of the station have to be considered, and here the authorities are faced with higher wages for the keepers and enhanced prices for oil and other necessities.

It was just before the war that the engineer and the electrician completed the Platte Fougere Beacon, marking the entrance to Russell Channel, which leads to St. Peter Port, the capital of Guernsey. It is a real, up-to-date lighthouse without keepers, the first to be erected on a wave-washed rock, and so far the only one in existence that possesses a powerful fog-signal as well as a light.

The rock on which it stands is difficult of approach owing to tides and currents. As it is entirely submerged, except at low spring tides, much of the foundation work had to be carried on under water when wind and sea would allow it. As a result, a whole season was spent in merely securing the foundations for the tower.

It took Winstanley, who built the first Eddystone Lighthouse, four years to drill foundation holes and fit them with iron rods.

Stevenson spent even longer in securing the foundations for the Bell Rock tower. Only two men could remain on the rock at a time, but they stuck there with the tenacity of leeches, the cold waters of the North Sea bearing down every few minutes and sweeping entirely over them. When the first stone was at last swung into position, the men clung to the iron rods and cheered madly.

Power of the Waves.

Instead of the ordinary, gracefully-curving tower forty feet in diameter at its base, the Platte Fougere structure is a comparatively narrow, thin edifice of irregular octagonal shape, measuring 14½ ft. and 17 ft. across the faces, 80 ft. in height, and carried out in ferro-concrete. This strange design was chosen because it offered a minimum of surface to the waves.

An idea of the enormous strength of the waves in these waters may be realized when it is stated that in building the Bishop Rock Lighthouse a heavy steam-winch was wrecked and carried away, although it stood 20 ft. above high water, and was protected by masonry and bolted to the rock. A blacksmith's anvil, weighing one and a half hundredweight, was actually washed out of a hole 3½ ft. deep and 2 ft. in diameter, wherein it had been deposited for safety!

In the case of the Platte Fougere tower the seas fall on either side, divide, and rush round the building. Perched on top of this tower are motors, compressors, foghorn, and light, as well as a wonderful array of electrical devices, by which the light and fog-signal are automatically controlled from the shore, a mile and a quarter away, by means of a submarine cable.

An ordinary rock lighthouse establishment at Platte Fougere would have entailed an expenditure of £80,000. Then there is the saving in maintenance, as only two men are required in place of four. They live in comfortable quarters on shore, and their principal duty is to see that the light is switched on at night and turned off at sunrise. Should fogs occur then the mere action of pressing a key sets in motion the siren, whose blasts can be heard twenty miles away.—Tit-Bits.

Strong "Beer."

Amongst many amusing stories told by Major General Sir A. Montgomery, the author of that superb new War Book, "The Story of the Fourth Army," is one concerning a nigger soldier on the Western Front.

He was (says Sir A. Montgomery) a doctor's orderly, and he was extraordinarily ill.

"Drink!" said the doctor.

"No, sah," said Rastus. "Deed I only had dem two bottles ob beer."

"What two bottles?" asked the doctor.

"Dem two what you had in your tent," sighed Rastus. "Dey was labelled 'Cognac.'"

Belgians Insulted British

'BOOED' BRITISH NATIONAL ANTHEM AT CONCLUSION OF POLO MATCH.

ANTWERP, August 27.—The "booming" of the British National Anthem at the conclusion of this afternoon's water polo match, in which England won a hard and close fought game from the Belgian team, resulted in the British representatives calling a meeting of the representatives of all the nations competing in the Olympiad this evening. At the meeting a protest was made over what was termed a "national insult," and it brought a promise of the publication in to-morrow's official programme and in the Antwerp newspapers of an apology for the action of the spectators. The apology will be made on behalf of the Belgian Olympic Committee.

The incident occurred at the conclusion of what was virtually the gala day of the Olympic swimming competitions. The Belgian Princess Marie Jose occupied the royal box. The British Black Watch Military and Piper Bands played at intervals during the programme. Main interest centered in the polo championship match. The British and Belgian teams had been picked by the public as the best teams entered and as a result the grandstands were crowded.

The feeling of the spectators were manifest early in the contest when each adverse decision against the Belgian team by the Swedish referee occasioned prolonged booing from the Belgian supporters. This was heightened when the referee disqualified two Belgian players and one English player for fouling.

The Princess was leaving the royal box amid the cheering of those in the nearby sections of the grandstand just as the Union Jack proclaiming the English victory was being run up and the band was playing "God Save the King" those who saw the Princess continued their cheering until she entered her motor car, but a majority of the thousands present, ignoring the attempts of the Belgian officials to quiet the demonstration, boomed and hissed even for a few minutes after the band had finished the anthem.

Wanted Precaution.

One day as a Sixth avenue barber shop had but one empty chair a man wearing a very big hat, and walking with a great swagger, entered and hung his hat on a peg. Then, drawing a revolver, he turned to the idle man and said: "I want a shave—just a common shave. I want no talk. Don't ask me if I want a hair cut or a shampoo. Don't speak of the weather or politics. If you speak to me I'll shoot."

He took the chair, held the revolver across his legs, and was shaved with promptness and despatch. When he got up he returned the shooter to his hip pocket, put on his hat, and after a chuckle he said to the cashier: "That's the way to keep a barber quiet. He didn't utter a word."

"No, sir, he couldn't." "He's deaf and dumb."

A Royal Marriage a La Mode.

Because of the far-sighted statecraft of Prince Ito—who took the young Prince Yi as a boy of nine to be educated in Japan—the present rulers of Korea have gilded the pill of "assimilation" for him whose father was an emperor. They have left him the outward and visible signs of semi-royal state and have given "face" to many of the old Korean nobility—as useless a lot of hereditary wasters as ever fattened on a miserable peasantry, says a writer in "Asia." They are going to marry His Highness, in April to a daughter of the Japanese. Prince Nashimoto, the idea being to set an example of harmonious fusion, and thus to counteract the agitation of the mission-taught students and other exponents of the principle of "self-determination." One hears all sorts of stories about this strategic marriage. Very different is the tale they tell you in Seoul from that which you get at Tokyo.

Most Japanese will tell you that, in giving Prince Yi one of the most beautiful and high born ladies in Japan to wed, the Japanese Government is doing its best to atone for the errors and offences committed by the Military Party in Korea; that the marriage is, in fact, part and parcel of the policy of conciliatory Liberalism, which aims at making the Koreans capable and contented citizens of the Empire, with equal rights and representation. They point to the fact that the administration of the country is now in the hands of progressive and broad-minded civilians and that the condition of the people, infinitely better than ever it was under the old regime, is steadily improving; both of which facts are undeniable. When the Koreans get the measures of local self-government which have been promised them and full representation in the Imperial Diet, the cry of "self-determination" will have nothing behind it but the professional agitator and the mushy sentimentalist, who is always for the under dog, no matter how he got there.

Loyal Bermudas.

There are no purple patches in the history of the Bermudas. They have lived a life of their own, "coloured," as one writer says, "rather than changed by history." They have had good and evil days. Time was when they were spiritually the most neglected spot in the Empire. In James II.'s reign their Governor could find no one entitled to open a letter addressed by the Bishop of London to the first clergyman in the Islands, the only claimant being an old tailor who had once been a Houndhead field-preacher. To-day they are spiritually shepherded and materially prosperous. The public debt is small, the volume of trade is growing, and their nearness to the Continent of America is making them a favorite winter resort for Americans and Canadians, with all that this implies of profit. They go peacefully and contentedly on their way, proud of the purely English tradition which has held them fast to the Mother Country through hundreds of years, a distant but necessary stronghold of sea power. Their fellow-Britons of the Seven Seas wish them well at a time of rejoicing.—London Times.

Geddes Riddles Britten Charge.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 26.—(United News).—Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to the United States, prefaced an address before the American Bar Association Wednesday with a denial of charges that the British Government was giving financial aid to the Democratic National Campaign. Congressman Fred A. Britten, of Illinois, in a statement Tuesday, in Chicago, said that an $87,500 fund appropriated by the English Government for "entertainment" purposes of the British Embassy, in Washington, had found its way through the Ambassador to the Democratic National Committee.

"I would like to seize this opportunity for public denial of reports that funds are coming from the British Embassy for use in the campaign of one of the presidential candidates," the Ambassador said. "There is not a shadow of foundation for the report which shamefully misrepresents and is absolutely untrue."

The declaration was met with vigorous applause, in which Charles Evans Hughes, Republican candidate for President, in 1916, joined. Hughes sat with the New York delegation in a rear seat of the theatre.

Previously the Ambassador had said the only fund the British Government had placed at his disposal was one covering the living expenses of himself and thirty other persons connected with the Embassy.

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

An English Wife in Berlin

A story reminiscent of the old elocutionary "piece" on the death of Benedict Arnold, is revealed in an account just published of the last hours in Germany of Roger Casement, the Irishman executed for promoting the Easter rebellion in 1916.

The story forms one of the most striking passages in the book "An English Wife in Berlin," by Princess Blucher, daughter of an old Lancashire family, who married the then Count Blucher in 1907 and was forced to leave England and go to Berlin with him and other members of the German Embassy staff in 1914.

She knew Casement throughout his sojourn in Germany. She tells how at first both she and her husband endeavored to dissuade Casement from attempting his exploit, but the latter not only persisted but made himself obnoxious by the manner in which he aired his opinions. Later Princess Blucher describes Casement's disillusionment.

"The poor man came into the room like one demented and rushed around examining all the doors. For a moment I was frightened, thinking that I had to do with a maniac, and moved toward the telephone.

"Then he began: 'You were right last year when you told me I had put my head into the noose by coming here. I tried not to admit you were right. I didn't like to tell you when you kept urging me to get out of the country, that I realized from the moment I landed here what a terrific mistake I had made. Also, I didn't want to tell the reality, that I was a prisoner here. I couldn't get away. They won't let me leave the country.'

"The German Foreign Office has me shadowed, believing I am a British spy, and England has had men spying upon me at all times as well. Now the German Admiralty has asked me to go on an errand which all my being revolts against, and I am going mad at the thought of it, for it will make me appear a traitor to the Irish cause."

"At these words he sat down and sobbed like a child."

The Princess tried to get more facts from him in order to try to suggest an exit from the situation, but Casement refused, saying that if he told more, lives would be imperilled, if he were silent, only his own would be forfeit. Casement said, according to the Princess:

"They are holding a pistol to my head here and they have the hangman's noose ready for me in England, so the only thing for me to do is to go out and kill myself. I dissuaded him from this, and he finally left, leaving a packet of letters for delivery after his death."

"Tell them I was loyal to Ireland, although it won't appear so, he said."

He Got Up Then.

The portly gentleman strolled up to one of the seats in the park, and, having seated himself comfortably, was soon absorbed in his newspaper.

After a while he began to be annoyed by a small boy who persisted in steadily staring at him, and at last he could bear it no longer.

"What are you looking at, little boy?" he inquired. "Is there anything funny about me?"

"Not yet," replied the youngster, "but there's going to be when you get up. Them seats have just been painted."

Oil of Vanilla

Just received a small shipment of Oil of Vanilla. This is the actual oil obtained from the Vanilla Bean and has not got alcohol or other preservative added to it. Two teaspoonfuls will flavor a ten-gallon batch of Ice Cream. It will be found much more economical for manufacturing purposes than any brand of Vanilla Extract.

Orders should be placed promptly as this will be the last shipment received this season.

Stock Market Report!

Stocks are pointed higher. The decline which began last November seems to have run its course, and apparently the turn in the general price movement has begun.

It is our opinion that a pronounced improvement in stock market prices is ahead, unless, of course, some drastic and unexpected situation develops, but we are taking the logical position that there is a bottom to everything and surely it seems to have been reached.

We are in the market to buy or sell any listed security and we have unusual facilities for the prompt handling of your orders.
