MOTOR SHIPS FEASIBLE

First Mechanically Propelled Passenger and Cargo Vessel Completes First Round Voyage to the Far East—Ships of Future to be Independent of Steam Power.

London, July 31.—The motor ship Selandia, the first mechanically propelled passenger and cargo vessel to be independent of steam power, has just completed her first round voyage to the Far East.

When she drew to her moorings in the West India dock her log showed the completion, in round figures, of 21,500 miles. In spite of the fact that the vessel embodies many new principles and was strange to her engineers, only one slight adjustment of the exhaust valves, involving fifteen minutes' rest for the engines, was found necessary during the entire trip. In all matters of fuel consumption, ease of manoeuvre, and general behavior the vessel far exceeded expectations.

East of the Suez Canal the Selandia occasioned great excitement among the natives. The mystery surrounding the absence of funnels and the result in her gaining the name of the "Devil Ship," and as she was hailed from Singapore, Bangkok. Great incredulity as to the nature of the vessel at first, even among the naval officials of one important Eastern country, but this was dispelled after a day's cruise upon the vessel.

The success of the voyage has led the owner, the Danish East Asiatic Society, to order three other motor ships of greater tonnage. A sister ship recently completed was sold a few days ago to one of the leading German steamship companies.

Very few alterations in design are suggested by the experiences of the engineers on the maiden trip. The principal of these relate to the heat radiated from the exhaust, which affected the temperature of the engine room. The trouble has been corrected on the Selandia by the installation of supplementary fans and ventilators, and will be avoided in future boats by the natural cooling of the exhaust chambers above decks.

The fuel consumption fell considerably below that estimated by the builders. On her home voyage she averaged ten nautical miles an hour on a consumption of 8.5 tons of oil a day, and the charge of Borneo oil taken on board at Singapore is confidently asserted to be sufficient for the round journey. The owners find that suitable oil can be purchased at much more reasonable rates at Singapore than in any European port. The opening up of all gears and bearings at Copenhagen on the completion of the round journey and the inspection by Lloyd's representatives of that port showed that everything was in perfect order, and that no parts had suffered undue strain. The temperature of the water cooling the cylinders at no time exceeded 40.6 degrees had been previously established as a working maximum.

The chief engineer of the Selandia, discussing the behavior of the engines, said that the motors far exceeded the steam engine for ease of control and working. The auxiliary engines had been found capable of performing far heavier tasks than had been originally assigned to them and the main engines, while requiring no special adjustment for working under tropical conditions, ran ever "sweeter" in the Eastern seas than in the higher latitudes. "Judging from my own experience," said the chief engineer, "I see no reason whatever why high speed motor ships should not only be feasible but forthright in a very short space of time."

While she was stopping in the Far East the Selandia, which is handsomely appointed as a passenger vessel, was utilized by the Crown Prince of Siam and his suite for a short cruise.

CHAMPION APPLE TREE

On the farm of Mr. Joseph A. Kinsman, near Lakeville, in Nova Scotia, stands the champion apple tree of North America, now one hundred and thirteen years old, still healthy and productive. It grows on the side of the bank of a ravine that makes down from the North Mountain, in which a small stream of water runs, the roots extending into the stream. The trunk of the tree is nearly three feet in diameter, the limbs begin to branch out again six feet from the ground, and the branches have a spread of over eighty feet. The tree was grafted to a Gravenstein about forty-three years ago. It bears only on alternate years, as a rule, but in some "off" years, it has four or five barrels.

For a considerable period Mr. Kinsman kept a record of its yield, but this has not been continued in recent years. However, it is now producing almost as large crops as it did in the years given below when records were kept.

In 1878 it produced fifteen barrels of saleable fruit; in 1880, eighteen barrels of apples; in 1882, twenty-one barrels; in 1884, twenty barrels; in 1886, twenty-one barrels; in 1888, twenty-three barrels; in 1890, twenty barrels; in 1892, twenty-one barrels; in 1894, twenty-six barrels; in 1896, twenty-seven barrels; in 1898, twenty-two barrels, making a total of two hundred and thirty-four barrels, which, at two dollars a barrel, were worth $468.

Mr. Kinsman kept no account of the apples that dropped during those seasons, nor did he of the loss in picking, which is very great, owing to the top being nearly fifty feet high on one side, in consequence of its position on the side of the bank. In 1896, he should have had over thirty barrels if it had not been for an accident in the breaking of a large limb from the top in August. The apples have averaged about two dollars a barrel.—Journal.

SPLENDID AMUSING FEATURES AT THE NOVA SCOTIA PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.

Aeroplane Flights, Vaudeville, Horse Races, Fireworks, With a Splendid General Exhibition.

Amusement features will be strong at the Provincial Exhibition at Halifax this year that will open its gates on September 11th, continuing seven days.

The greatest attraction will be the aeroplane flights with the CURTIS AEROPLANE, Manager Hall having signed a contract with the great leader of AERIAL NAVIGATION for two flights daily during the Exhibition, each flight to be of thirty minutes. Not only this, but the VAUDEVILLE program of seven acts will include "CEDORA" in the Golden Globe, a thrilling performance which has only been seen in the biggest state fairs in the United States.

Still another great amusement attraction will be the FIREWORKS with which each evening's performance will conclude. On three nights a fine piece representative of the "King at Durbar" and on alternate evenings a "PLOW & SHEAF" with the motto "SPEED THE PLOW" will be given.

There will be six days of HORSE RACING for purses aggregating $6,800 and the Prize List will be over TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

The Sussex Record says:—Representatives of large financial interests were here this week investigating the coal deposits of the county. A number of property holders in the vicinity of Mount Middleton were approached and asked for leases of their real estate holdings with options to purchase at the end of three years. For many years it has been known that coal deposits were to be found in Kings and at Dunsenane operations have been carried on spasmodically for some years. The activity in the Minto mines has attracted attention to the New Brunswick coal fields and it looks now as if new sources of supply would be opened up.

A Crop of Clean Fruit by Proper Spraying.

In looking over the apple crop prospect of the Annapolis Valley, one cannot help but observe the care the apple orchards have had during the present season. Hardly any orchards are to be found but what have been given proper pruning, fertilizing and cultivation.

Regarding spraying, the most essential end of all, sad neglect is in evidence, which can be attributed to the comparatively clean apple crop of 1911 even where spraying was neglected, besides several good orchardists this year have failed to get results by not applying the spray at the proper time, or in sufficient quantity.

The part of Prof. Wallace's address at Windsor in 1910 where he said, "It has cost the State of New York hundreds of thousands of dollars by not spraying at the right time," can be taken home to a good many staunch fruit growers in Nova Scotia this year. The lack of proper spraying this season will cost the fruit crop of Nova Scotia a good many hundred thousands of dollars. Fortunately, there are a few growers who have been wide awake and have got clean fruit. These orchards should be an example to convert the "doubting Thomases."

If there are any who discredit the truth of this statement, let them visit the orchard of Mr. Isaac Chipman of Chipman Corner. This orchard under other management in 1910, hardly produced a barrel of decent apples. Last year it was sold to another party and thoroughly sprayed giving a fair crop of apples and this year it has not only one of the largest crops of apples to be found in Kings Co., but about as clean as it is possible to get—spotted year like the present one. One large fruit grower examined it last week and said he had seen over one thousand barrels, and not one spot on an apple.

When one comes to reckon up and find it has cost Mr. Chipman less than fifteen cents per barrel to get such results; the loss to the grower who sends the bulk of his gravenstein and other varieties prone to spot to the evaporator or cider mill through lack of spraying or not applying at the right time, will be very apparent.

If apples bring a normal price this fall, Mr. Chipman will get in the neighborhood of $2,000 clear of expenses, which will be between forty and fifty per cent. on his investment which can be charged up to the profit side of careful spraying.

Mr. Chipman has sprayed five times with Lime-Sulphur and Arsenate of Lead, using a power sprayer at two hundred pounds pressure.

An Orchard Meeting will be held there early in August. Every one interested in growing better fruit should attend.

C. O. ALLEN, Kentville, July 25th.

DOMINION ATLANTIC CHANGES.

At the retirement of Mr. William Yould, on August 1st, the office of Mechanical Superintendent was abolished. At the same date, the following appointments were made:—

Mr. James H. Yould is appointed Superintendent of Motive Power, and will have control of the Locomotive Department.

Mr. George Gillingham is appointed Master Car Builder, with full charge of the Shops and Car Equipment.

These are two good men, of long experience, and their appointment is a still further assurance to the travelling public, that everything possible will be done to secure the comfort and safety of passengers over the popular "Evangeline Route."

HUNDREDS OF CASES OF TYPHOID IN OTTAWA

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—There were seven hundred and seventy-one cases of typhoid fever reported in the city up till five o'clock this evening, the number reported today showing a decrease over the previous day. Twenty-four cases were reported on Thursday and eighty on Wednesday.

SUMMER SCHOOL OF SCIENCE.

Yarmouth, N. S., Aug. 1.—The annual business meeting of the school was held on Friday afternoon, July 26th, and the following resolutions passed:—

Whereas: The instructors of the Summer School of Science have for many years served the cause of education in connection with the school receiving in return therefor an amount less than sufficient to cover their actual expenses in attending that school.

And whereas: It has been found impossible to retain on the faculty the men that it is desirable to have because of this lack of remuneration. It is resolved that unless the aggregate grants received from the Provincial Government and the town in which the school meets, amounts in each year to twelve hundred dollars that the school will discontinue holding its sessions. Term of office for President and Secretary-Treasurer was made five years instead of one.

Place of meeting for next year was placed in the hands of a committee and "Zuffern joss" was appointed 5th to July 29th, 1913.

Officers were elected as follows:—President, S. A. Starratt, B. Sc., Roxbury, Mass.; Vice presidents, B. McKitterick, B. A., Lunenburg, N.S.; D. W. Hamilton, Ph. D., Fredericton, N.B.; Miss Marion Judson, Alexandra, P.E.I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. D. Seaman, Charlottetown, P.E.I.; Board of Directors, Prof. L. W. Baily, L.L.D., Fredericton, N.B., retiring in 1913; Prof. L. A. DeWolfe, M. Sc., Truro, retiring in 1914; Prof. D. S. McIntosh, M. Sc., Halifax, retiring in 1915; Prof. H. H. Hagerman, M.A., Fredericton, N.B., retiring in 1916; Prof. H. E. Bigelow, Ph. D., Sackville, N.B., retiring in 1917.

St. John Exhibition

St. John City, which is very much in the public eye at the present time because of its transportation and industrial boom, has been quietly but effectively preparing for its Greater St. John Exhibition and the opening of the big fair on Aug. 31st will surprise even residents of that city themselves, when the magnitude of the Exposition is disclosed.

Following the example of the Toronto and most of the leading American Executive have this year laid out much more money upon the free entertainment features than ever before. It is a notorious fact that while thousands of Exhibition visitors are charmed and edified with the displays of a serious character it is the amusements that create a real holiday effect.

The chief feature will be the aeroplane flights of M. Emil Metach, a daring aviator from Paris, who will make two flights daily, one for distance and one for altitude. Signor Jovine's Neapolitan Troubadours, a band of thirty Italian instrumentalists and singers, will give two concerts daily in the main building, in front of the grandstand the leading features will be Takezawa's Imperial Japanese Troupe in wonderful acrobatics; the Ernst Trio of knockabout comedians; continuous band concerts; New York horse show; stock parades and the nightly fiery spectacle "The Bombardment of Tripoli," a masterpiece in pyrotechnics.

The commercial exhibits at the approaching fair, will be upon a scale equally as extensive as at the Dominion Exhibition in 1910. Particularly in the manufacturing lines will the exhibits be most interesting. St. John, Moncton, Fredericton, St. Stephen, Halifax, Amherst, Truro, Charlottetown and other Maritime Provincial centres will compete in a general and particular way, while spaces have been engaged by concerns having their headquarters in every section of the Dominion and United States, as well as in the Old Country.

The live stock show will this year be catalogued so that visitors may read the pedigrees, etc., of the fancy stock shown, and this departure promises big things. A veritable Horse Show, such as are held from time to time in cities, is on the cards as well as a distinct feature in the animal section. Then come the poultry and pet stock, the vehicles, the usual big agricultural displays and fruit-growing competitions, not to mention dairying, apiculture, etc.

TOWN COUNCIL

Mayor and Members of Bridgetown Town Council Invited to Participate in Reception to Governor-General, Duke of Connaught, and Party, at Middleton on August 17th.

The regular monthly meeting of the Town Council of the Town of Bridgetown was called by his worship the mayor and held pursuant to notice in the Council Chamber on Monday evening, the 5th inst. at 8 o'clock, with Mayor Harlow in the chair, and Councillors A. B. McKenzie, J. W. Salter, J. K. Craig, S. F. Pratt, W. E. Reed and Karl Freeman present.

Ordered that the following bills be paid:—Jos. I. Foster, on poor acct., $13.00; G. L. Witham, services as special policeman, $6.00; Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co., Ltd., tolls crusher acct. $1.55; Douglas & Co., Dartmouth, for chisel casting, etc. crusher, $15.00; N. S. Car Works for casting jaw for crusher, $12.00; F. R. Beckwith, for changing fire alarms, $6.65; E. A. Craig, repairs for crusher, $6.05; Bridgetown Electric Light, Heat and Power Co., Ltd., for quarter's lighting, $187.50; A. L. Anderson, services as special policeman, $4.00; W. E. Joubert, team to reserve, $3.00; Jas. A. McLean, K.C., Bridgewater, one-half his account for legal opinion re joint liability referred to him by both the town of Annapolis Royal and town of Bridgetown, $7.50.

Stone for crusher, measured by Connell:—A. L. Anderson, $15.93; Burpee Phinney, $6.37; Jas. H. Tupper, $6.34; W. R. Marshall, $8.54; Herbert Hicks, $3.88; Isaiah Ramey, $6.80; Warnford Dodge, $0.53.

Resolved that the account of The Crowe Elliott Co. for $5.00 be referred to the water committee for further information.

Resolved that the account of The Bridgetown Foundry Co. for $17.50 be referred to the firewards to be certified to by them.

Resolved that the clerk be authorized to pay A. Palfrey's account for $5.00, when the work is completed to the satisfaction of A. L. Anderson, superintendent of streets, who engaged him.

The Clerk read the opinion of Jas. A. McLean, K.C., re joint liability between the town and county which had been referred to him by both the arbitration committees of Annapolis Royal and Bridgetown, and the following resolution was passed:—

"Whereas the arbitration committee appointed by this Council to settle with the committee from the municipality of the County of Annapolis, the amount to be paid by the town of Bridgetown on joint expenditure account re. the year 1911, met the county committee, but were unable to adjust matters of joint expenditure as provided by section 67 of chapter 73 R.S. 1900, on account of a dispute between them on the items of poor and insane.

"And whereas Mr. Justice Meagher in his award made between the town of Middleton and the Municipality of the county of Annapolis to whom this question was referred, decided that the poor and insane at the time of incorporation were not matters of joint expenditure and that the town of Middleton was not liable therefore.

"And whereas the committee have since taken the opinion of Jas. A. McLean, K.C., of Bridgewater, which has been read to this council, and fully agrees with the opinion given by Mr. Justice Meagher.

"Therefore resolved that this council fully indorse the action taken by the arbitration committee in this matter and refuse to pay further to the Municipality of Annapolis County, for such items on joint liability account, and that the clerk notify the Warden of the County who is chairman of the committee for the County, to that effect."

The police committee reported verbally that they had been unable to secure the services of a competent man for police duties and that they had made arrangements with Mr. A. L. Anderson to act for the present, and that in the meantime they suggested that an advertisement be put in all the local papers for a police officer, Mr. A. L. Anderson was therefore temporarily appointed.

After some discussion it was resolved that the report be received and adopted and that A. L. Anderson be appointed a police officer of the town.

A letter was read from Arthur Roberts, Hon. Secy. of the Union of Nova Scotia Municipalities, requesting the Council to appoint a delegate or delegates to attend the convention of the Union to be held in Antigonish on the 21st and 22nd inst. After some discussion it was resolved that H. Ruggles, Town Clerk and Town Solicitor be appointed such delegate.

His Worship the Mayor, the Clerk and all the Councillors present said that they had received invitations from the Mayor and Councillors of the town of Middleton to be present and to occupy a seat on the platform at Middleton on Saturday, the 17th inst. on the occasion of the presentation of an address to H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, the Governor-General of Canada.

Resolved, that all accept the kind invitation and attend in a body, and that the clerk be requested to formally acknowledge receipt and accept the invitations on behalf of the Council with thanks.

Minutes read and approved and Council adjourned.

A MOTHER'S REWARD

A STORY OF MATERNAL HEROISM THAT HAD UNEXPECTED DEVELOPMENTS.

The baby was dying.

He lay in his cot, with the blue of his eyes showing through the closed, heavy lids, with a waxen pallor on his cheeks, drawing wheezing breaths which stabbed the heart of his mother who bent over him.

Sue Giles went to the cottage window in despair. Before her stretched the moor—wild, rugged, almost purple against the flaming western sky. Then she glanced at the clock. It wanted half an hour before the six-forty stopped at Barleycombe, and it took Ben, her husband, twenty full minutes to trudge the mile to the lonely cottage down the line.

There were no neighbors nearer than Barleycombe. Yet the doctor ought to be summoned—must be summoned. And Dr. Kent lived two and a half miles down the line, in the opposite direction to Barleycombe, nearer Lakehampton. The railway ran past his garden, half a mile after Archer's tunnel and the cutting, and it was the nearest route. She had often trudged there and back.

But to go meant to leave the baby alone. To stay meant—She glanced at the child once more, shaking her head and repressing a sob.

Ben was Barleycombe's solitary porter, and his lantern, ready-trimmed for the nine-fifteen, stood in the corner. Sue lit it, scribbling a note to her husband, and laying it on the dresser. "Gone for doctor. Baby's queer. Mind him," were her simple directions.

Then she kissed the baby very lightly, for he seemed asleep, and slipped to the door.

It seemed terrible to leave the child alone. But she comforted herself, as she hurried on, that he was too young to walk, that the fire was safely guarded, and that before long Ben would take her place.

It was weary walking, plodding over the heavy ballast beside the permanent way. She dared not run, for she was not strong; but she pressed on, mutely praying, passed the signal, her face to the glowing fiery sunset. She reached the stunted bushes round Wolf's Hollow, left them behind, and crossed the trestle bridge over the babbling Aze.

Now she passed Highwayman's Oak—a landmark to stragglers lost on the moor—and now the mouth of Archer's tunnel, black and grim, was before her. She had always feared its depths and its darkness, had usually climbed the hill and plunged into Archer's Wood, to descend the steep sides by the jaws of the cutting a quarter of a mile on, in preference to the more direct route which the tunnel's grimy, slimy, reverberating hollows afforded.

But she could not think of herself now. The tunnel was the quickest and therefore the only way, and she chose it without hesitation.

It was long, and the lantern's feeble rays seemed swallowed up, mocked at, in the gloom. The light from its mouth faded. Pitch darkness settled down before and behind her. But she had forgotten herself; she was only counting her steps, longing to reach the doctor's garden, praying to find him home.

A dim light began to pervade the blackness; it grew stronger, and the air sweeter. She trudged on round the curve of the line, and presently the arched opening of the tunnel's mouth showed up like a life taken out of a huge slice of black bread.

Only the cutting now, she rejoiced, quickening her steps; only the cutting—half a mile of level road—and her journey was done. Dr. Kent would get out his trap, the old grey cob would be coaxed into his ambling canter, canter, and—

She tripped, stumbled a few paces, regained her balance, the lantern swinging. Without stopping, she looked over her shoulder. Once more her feet found an obstruction, she turned her lantern forward with a scream of horror.

For fifteen yards ahead of her, rails sleepers, the ballast path she trod, were obliterated in a pile of rock, on which the ferns and wildflowers still grew. One glance told her what had happened. She remembered such an occurrence before. The face of the cutting had slipped. Stress of storm beating rain, and the constant vibration of passing trains had loosened foundations, letting down tons of red rock, of red earth and loose stones, in piled confusion on the rails.

But though she had stopped, the delay was but momentary. The subsidence was an obstacle no more. Nothing short of the will of heaven could prevent her reaching Dr. Kent. She clambered up the fallen rock, sending a volley of stones which turned beneath her feet down the steep sides of the mass, catching at ferns and roots to aid her ascent, crawling almost on her hands and knees over the litter, which stood seven or eight feet high at its summit.

The thought of her baby—only that. Only that thought and the summit was reached, the descent before her, the difficulties surmounted.

And then she thought of the six-forty! It stabbed her to think of it set her trembling, shaking her lips quivering, her forehead damp—this sudden remembrance.

The six-forty with its five-mile run before it, its clear road, its passengers, its huge speed, its tearing whistle as it slid into the tunnel, the roar of it as it shot into the open of the cutting.

She saw the end—saw the engine rolled over with a shriek of escaping steam; saw the coaches piled one upon another; heard the screams, the groaning and the moaning of the passengers; saw red fire creeping over the ruins; quaked at the thought of imprisoned men, women, children—babies like her own—being roasted as the debris of the wrecked train fed the flames.

And in fifteen minutes—fifteen minutes at the most—it would be due! She could save it—might save it—flashed through her back on her errand, faced the tunnel once more, chanced meeting it there and her death!

But even if she won through, even if she turned her back on her errand, a precious half-hour would be lost. It meant death to her baby. She could not doubt that. She had seen death come to a little brother, to babies of others innumerable, and she knew his approach.

Her baby! She began to clamber down the steep sides of the fall. The mother in her kept on. What matter if the whole world perished if her baby lived? She had come so far to save her child—

She paused. Why, she could come back! Supposing she ran to Dr. Kent! There would be time. She would come back! She would stop the train when her errand was done. But as she struggled on, the hot argument of her heart died down. She began to feel chill. She knew there would not be time. It was one or the other; she knew that.

But still she kept on her way. Her baby—her baby! Why did Heaven ask this thing of her? And as she reached the level ground on the other side of the fallen mass, she fell on her knees, shaking with sobs, crying out:

"Ah, them people! Ah, them people!"

She sank down, throwing out her arms, letting her head fall on them weeping piteously, moaning.

When she struggled to her feet, she stared dully down the cutting and her lips moved.

"Oh, Heaven, save my baby! I can't!"

She turned her back on her destination, feverishly began to retrace her steps, fought her way over the slipping debris with fierce energy—the energy of a mind made up.

Down the other side she scrambled with a clatter of pattering stones, along the littered permanent way to the ballast free from the fall, nearer the tunnel.

Then she darted into the darkness, running panting, her heart burning and her breast torn with each wild breath. She passed the middle of the tunnel, where the walls ran water and drip-drip it fell in melancholy cadence from the roof. She was nearing the other end when first the rails began to hum, and she knew the six-forty was upon her!

Out of the night came the rumble, the roar, the clatter of the onrushing train. She rounded the curve again, catching sight of the headlights; of the steam by the driving wheels, floating backwards like pennants; of the seething smoke overhead, illumined as it passed, the cab by the ruby glow of the furnace.

She stood upon a rail, balancing herself, holding the lantern high above her head, waving it madly, screaming, though even then she knew her puny cries were swamped in the roar of the whirling wheels.

Suddenly the pennants died away. With a hideous, grating whirl the brakes were put on, and she slipped from the rail with it only a dozen feet from her. Still the lantern waved as a hoarse voice shouted to her and the train went by.

It began to draw up. Heads appeared at every window. The guard leaped down, lantern in hand. The fireman left his engine, groping his way back to the screaming woman at the rail-side.

"A fall—a fall in Archer's cutting!" she yelled, and toppled forward into the fireman's arms.

"'Twas as she said," she heard a gruff voice saying as she came to. "The train must have been wrecked—several hundred tons—rock. She's saved the train and all of us!"

She opened her eyes. A man bent over her, and a pair of kindly, stern eyes looked into hers.

"All right—feeling fitter? I'm a doctor. You saved us all, we here. You're a brave woman."

"A doctor?" she cried shrilly. "Then come—my baby—he's dying—at the cottage—not far back—come. Please come."

"I'm afraid it's impossible. I've a very important operation—"

"You can't get on tonight, sir—at least not yet awhile," announced the guard. "We shall have to run back to Barleycombe, and have a gang sent down to clear the line. It'll be several hours afore we're—"

"MY STOMACH IS FINE

Since Taking Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets"

Mrs. J. Merckhager, Waterloo, Ont., enthusiastically recommends Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets. Her experience with them, as she outlines it, explains why.

"I was greatly troubled with my stomach," she writes. "I had taken so much medicine that I might as well give them a trial and really they worked wonders. Anyone having anything wrong with his stomach should give Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets a trial, they will do the rest. My stomach is fine now and I can eat any food."

One of the many good features of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets is that they are so pleasant and easy to take. The relief they give from heartburn, flatulence, biliousness and dyspepsia is prompt and permanent. Try one after each meal—they'll make you feel like a new person.

"The train passes my cottage—on the way back. Won't you come, sir?"

The doctor nodded. "If I can't get on I'll come," he said gently. "If it not been that I could allow no one in the kingdom to delay me, I wouldn't have refused at first. Are you running back now, guard?"

He helped Sue into the first-class compartment he had left, and climbed in beside her. A word from him to the guard brought the train to a standstill at the little track-side cottage. Ben met them at the garden-gate, his face white.

"He's nearly gone!" he whispered. "Dr. Kent I—Why, Sue, couldn't you find the doctor?"

A few minutes afterwards Ben found himself driven from the cottage.

"Where's your nerve, man?" growled the doctor. "Oh give me a woman when there's illness and something to be done!"

Later on Ben brought Dr. Kent. The two medical men talked together in the garden till the train passed the cottage, once more, picked up the stranger, and went on its journey through the cleared cutting.

Dr. Kent went into the cottage where Ben and Sue stood hand-in-hand, the woman rosy, with tears of thanksgiving in her eyes, the man white and shaking.

"You were lucky, Mrs. Giles," he said. "The boy will recover. Never have I seen a more delicate or more skilful operation. Had it been delayed an hour, death must have ensued. Had the fall not taken place, had you come straight on to me, I should not have been prepared for an operation, and the child would have almost certainly perished before I could have sent home for my instruments. You don't know, I suppose, who attended you? You don't know the name of the man, so providentially equipped for the emergency you summoned him on?"

She shook her head. How near she had been to going straight on! How swift her punishment would have been!

"A royal personage lies at Devonmouth; an operation was decided on yesterday. When you saved the train, Mrs. Giles, by your bravery, you also saved Sir Alexander Beaton-Bruce, C.B., surgeon to His Majesty the King, and incidentally—your baby!"

An Impeachment Trial

Perhaps one of the most conspicuous instances of the intention of the American public to rid themselves of untrustworthy officials came before congress last week at Washington, when thirteen articles of impeachment were presented against Judge Archibald, circuit judge of the United States.

The charges against Judge Archibald of impeachment range from his business transactions with actual and possible litigants in his court to a trip of Europe which, it was charged, was paid for by Henry W. Cannon, a railroad litigant was also included in the charges, and in the thirteenth count of the indictment, under the heading "General Misbehavior of Judge Archibald," the committee reviewed the charges and found that Judge Archibald had "grossly abused the proprieties of his office of judge, were guilty of misbehavior and of misdemeanor in office." Accompanying the articles of impeachment Chairman Clayton presented a brief to show that the actions of Judge Archibald described as "misbehavior" came within the purview of the constitutional provision for impeachment, which enumerates "treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors." The penalty provided in successful impeachment cases is removal from office, and may include a bar from ever holding any office of trust or honor again.

Only eight times in the history of the United States has the senate been called upon to hold an impeachment trial, once being in the case of President Andrew Johnston, who behaved in such an extraordinary manner after being installed in the presidential chair as a result of the murder of Lincoln.

JOBS FOR THE INDIGENT

In Switzerland the people act upon the theory that a man who is unemployed, is, if left to himself, liable to become a waste by being a subject of charity and a tax upon the community. Therefore, the problem is considered as an economic question.

The purpose is to secure work, not only for the sake of his family, but in the interest of the State. There is no toleration for the loafer. Begging is prohibited by the law and vagrancy is classified as a crime.

If an unemployed person does not make a serious effort to find work the authorities will find it for him, and he is compelled to perform it. If he refuses he is placed in the work-house, where strict discipline is maintained and every inmate is required to work to his full capacity receiving therefore his board and lodging and from five to ten cents a day in wages.

The manufacturer guarantees it. It will grow hair, stop itching scalp, falling hair, and make the hair thick and abundant. It prevents hair from turning gray, and adds life and lustre.

SALVIA is a hair dressing that has become the favorite with women of taste and culture who know the social value of beautiful hair. A large, generous bottle costs only 50c. at leading druggists everywhere. The word "SALVIA" is on every bottle.

SPEEDY AIRSHIPS.

Berlin, July 23.—The most modern airship of the Zeppelin rigid system has been taken over by the War Department today, after an endurance and speed trial lasting eighteen hours. The airship developed forty-eight miles an hour, and is considered the most speedy dirigible in the world. It has been christened the "Z III" and is to be stationed at the fortress of Metz, near the French frontier.

MILLION DOLLARS DAMAGE BY FLOOD.

Wausau, Wis., July 24.—Flood damage estimated at $1,000,000 was wrought today from the breaking of two dams on the Wisconsin River north of Wausau. Three bridges in this city have been washed out, and fourth has been partly destroyed. All electrical power has been cut out of commission.

"The most meritorious as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the world would be much better off and the percentage of suffering greatly decreased," writes Lindsay Scott, of Temple, Ind. For sale by druggists and dealers.

When culverts are washed out, and the road rendered impassable, he not only suffers inconvenience but may also be caused financial loss by inability to get necessary supplies in time for spring planting. And at best, with wooden culverts, part of the money that should be used to make better roads must be spent every year for repairs.

THE DOCTOR'S JOKE.

A propos of the recent resolution of the Bible Students' Convention in Washington repudiating the doctrine of the literal "hell fire," Dr. Philip Hale Curtin of Wheeling said to a reporter:

"Hell fire is rarely mentioned any more except in jest—except for example, as in the body-snatching story."

"A doctor, according to this story, saw, late one night, a fine automobile halted outside a cemetery. He hid behind a tree, for he suspected that body-snatchers were at work; and, sure enough, in a few minutes he saw two body-snatchers stagger from the cemetery carrying a body. They placed it upright in the automobile as though it were alive, propping it securely in the back seat, and then they hurried back to the cemetery to fill the violated grave again."

"The doctor in their absence, lifted the body out of the automobile, hid it under a hedge, and took its place himself."

"Soon the scoundrels returned. One seated himself at the wheel, and the other seated himself in the back seat beside the body so as to support it. Then in the darkness, they glided off."

"After a while the man in the rear seat said in a rather awed tone:

"This body seems mighty warm for a corpse."

"The chauffeur reached back his hand and touched it."

"Don't it, thought," he muttered, between perplexity and fear."

"Then the corpse, in deep, sepulchral tones, exclaimed:

"Warm? Of course I'm warm! And if you had been where I've been for the last two days, you'd be warm too!"

"With loud yells of horror the body-snatchers leaped from the automobile and fled. The doctor seized the wheel and drove it home. He has it, they say, still."

An exchange is reminded of an incident that happened a week ago. Two nice girls, out for early bargains, met in front of a store on the avenue.

"I saw you in church yesterday, dear," gurgled one.

"Oh, were you in church?" gurgled the other.

"Yes, love. And I noticed that you had at last made your husband accompany you to divine worship."

"Of course he went with me. He'd rather go to the theatre, but the theatres aren't showing anything on Sundays now. But he disgraced me."

"In church? How?"

"The rector read four chapters from 'The Acts of the Apostles.' And my husband insisted on getting up and going out after every act."

Where can I get a drink in this town?" asked a travelling man who landed at a little town in the oil region of Oklahoma of the "bus driver."

"See that millinery shop over there?" asked the driver, pointing to a building near the depot.

"You don't mean to say that they sell whiskey in a millinery store?" exclaimed the drummer.

"No, I mean that's the only place here they don't sell it," said the "bus driver."

Sheep Husbandry in Canada.

Coincident with a number of other active agencies designed to revive the sheep-raising industry in Canada, there has been issued by the Live Stock Branch of the Department of Agriculture a new edition of that exhaustive, and practical treatise "Sheep Husbandry in Canada," which received such a warm reception some four years ago. This work of 128 pages, which constitutes a report as well as a helpful bulletin of instruction, covers the history and condition of the sheep industry in every province, pointing out the weak points and offering useful information for the guidance of older shepherds as well as those who are just beginning, or desire to begin, raising mutton and wool. In this work the author, who is a trained sheep man, brings out clearly the great advantages of keeping sheep from the dual standpoint of direct profit in cash returns, and the even more important indirect one of cleaner arms and better crops. Then there is a special section, "From the Block to the Table," designed to popularize the consumption of mutton and lamb. Other sections deal with weed destruction by sheep, diseases, wool, housing, enemies, breeds and breeding, feeds and feeding, and other important matters. Under "The Industry in the Different Provinces" some startling new facts, concerning the profits made from sheep, are brought out. It is shown that a flock of about 150 ewes worth $6 each, after housing, feeding and care were charged against them, gave in 1911 a profit of more than $600. This occurred on a Manitoba wheat farm.

A special feature of this bulletin is its many beautiful illustrations in sepia tints, many of which are worth framing. A large issue has been printed to be supplied free to those who apply for it to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

REASONS FOR SOUPS AND SALADS.

There are several questions which frequently arise in the mind of a person who begins to study food values. One is, why are articles included in the menu of almost every meal which have almost no value as nourishment?

In many cases such articles are appetizing and refreshing: such as lettuce, celery, muskmelons, cucumbers and many soups and desserts. They also contain much water, of which the body has great and constant need. They also give bulk to our food, which is a necessity because some of the processes of digestion do not begin until the organs to which they belong are expanded.

A housewife who is bewildered or disheartened will sometimes ask why we cannot take our food in capsules, or why an ideal dietary cannot be made and used over and over again. She will not be the first person who has thought of these expedients. It has been fairly well proved that highly condensed food, as also "pre-digested" foods, not only lack the element of bulk, of which we have been speaking, but have an even worse defect. They give us something for nothing, which is always bad for us. That is, they furnish us with nourishment requiring very little or no effort from the digestive organs.

IMPORTATION OF GREAT BRITAIN OF CANADIAN HORSES.

The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa is in receipt of a new Order by the Board of Agriculture at London, England, entitled "The Horses, (Importation and Transit), Order of 1912."

In Chapter 1 of this Order provision is made for the detention and testing with mallein, on and after January 1st, 1913, of all horses, asses and mules landed in Great Britain from abroad, except such as may be exempted for special reasons under licenses issued by the Board. It also contains provisions designed to prevent the introduction of various equine diseases, as well as glanders, such as Dourine, Mange, Strangles, Ringworm, etc.

Chapter 2 of the Order deals with the carriage of horses, asses and mules by water, and lays down requirements as to fittings, etc., of vessels on which such animals are carried to or from any port of Great Britain, and Chapter 4 relates, inter alia, to the cleansing and disinfecting of such vessels.

The Order, except Chapter 1, will come into operation on July 1, 1912.

A vast amount of ill health is due to impaired digestion. When the stomach fails to perform its functions properly the whole system becomes deranged. A few doses of Chamberlain's Tablets is all you need. They will strengthen your digestion, invigorate your liver, and regulate your bowels, entirely doing away with that miserable feeling due to faulty digestion. Try it. Many others have been permanently cured, why not you? For sale by druggists and dealers.

Siberian Fur Trade

More Wild Animals Killed in 1911 Than Ever Before—Total Returns Over $4,000,000.

(From U.S. Consul General John H. Snodgrass Moscow, Russia.)

The requirements of fashion were the cause of the greatest destruction in 1911 of wild animal life in the history of Siberia. The total returns of the fur trade in that country amounted to more than $4,000,000, or over $500,000 in advance of 1910. There were 4,525,000 gray squirrels killed in the Siberian woods. The sales of the tails alone, used for boas and dress trimmings, amounted to twenty-one tons. The Siberian dealers made $2,000,000 on this fur, which because of its increased demand on the foreign markets has gone up to fifteen to twenty per cent. in price. The cheapest skin sold for thirty cents, the superior qualities thirty-two cents. The price for tails rose to $5.50 per pound. Next after the gray squirrel comes the white hare; 1,500,000 of these brought $275,000. Of sable, 12,250 were killed. The most valuable dark sables were sold at an average price of $200 but there were not many buyers for this fashionable luxury, and a much better sale was reached with the cheaper qualities. The total amount received for sables was about $500,000. Arctic fox was scarce. About one hundred skins were offered, which were valued at $100 and $250 each. Ermine has again become fashionable, and 200,000 animals were sold for $350,000. The slaughter of brown bears continued; 1500 of them realized only $11,000, or less than $7.50 per skin. The price of this fur has been going down for some time, which fact is due to the improved conditions in railway travel across Siberia, where the cars are kept warm and comfortable. Not a single white bear skin was brought to market. They are said to be very scarce. More than 180,000 "kolonki" (a species of the skunk) were killed and sold for only $150,000, the skins averaging about seventy-five cents each. The tails of the "kolonki" are used by artists for plant brushes. Of gray wolves 15,500 were killed and realized a good price—$6.50 each. This is said to be quite unusual.

PERSECUTED CHAUFFEURS.

One police regulation after another has made the life of the chauffeur miserable, but apparently the depths of his wretchedness have only recently been plumbed.

"I was driving uptown the other day at a pretty fair speed," a chauffeur said, "when a cop bawled at me to stop. I stopped."

"Under arrest?" I said.

"Not yet," he answered. "Come over here a minute."

"He directed me to a hydrant with hose attachment, and the first thing I knew he was giving my tag a good washing."

"Your number was buried an inch deep in dust and oil," he said. "You might have run over a dozen people and got away safe, for nobody could read your number. Hereafter you fellows have got to look out for that."

"Look out that your license numbers are clean enough to read! Will the persecution of chauffeurs never cease!"—Toronto Mail.

Contracted Smallpox

Man Who Was Vaccinated. Wife, unvaccinated, Did Not.

Hamilton, July 26—The smallpox hospital on Paradise road contains today one of the most peculiar smallpox cases that has come under the notice of the local health officer in years. It is that of a man who contracted the disease after having been vaccinated, and he is said to have caught it from his little baby.

The man in question is S. Rolston, a laborer, formerly employed by the city works department. He resides at 146 1-2 North James street.

Over a month ago Rolston's baby daughter contracted the dread disease in some unaccountable manner and it was placed in the smallpox hospital. On account of its tender age it was necessary for the mother to accommodate the child, and although she had never been vaccinated Mrs. Rolston remained in the hospital with the child and six or seven adults for several weeks without contracting the disease.

After the child returned home fully cured, the father became ill, and Dr. Roberts, medical health officer, diagnosed it as a case of smallpox, and he was taken to the hospital on Saturday.

The case of Rolston and his wife is regarded as remarkable in view of the fact that he contracted the disease from the child after having been vaccinated, while Mrs. Rolston remained in the hospital for weeks without being vaccinated and did not contract the disease.

"I WILL NOT LEAVE YOU COMFORTLESS."

"I will not leave you comfortless; I will come unto you. Lo! I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." As long as God lives and our souls live, so long does this pledge stand, declares Dr. Van Dyke. It is true, we cannot always feel this presence. But we can always know that it is there, always think of it, so long as thought endures, always rest upon it forever and forever; and the reason why this promise is given is that we may hold fast to this truth. "There may be a moment in the very depth of sorrow and anguish when the presence is hidden from us. But it is because we are stunned, unconscious."

It is like passing through a surgical operation. The time comes for the ordeal. The anaesthetic is ready. You stretch out your hand to your friend. "Don't leave me, don't forsake me." The last thing you feel is the clasp you feel is the clasp of that hand, the last thing you see is the face of that friend. Then a moment of darkness, a blank—and the first thing you see is the face of love again. So the angel of God's face stands by us, bends above us, and we may know that he will be there even when all else fails. Amid the mists that shroud the great ocean beyond the verge of mortal life there is one sweet, mighty Voice that says, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee. In all thy afflictions I will be with thee, and the angel of my face shall save thee."

HE DIDN'T ADVERTISE

(Canadian Grocer.)

A hardware merchant went home to supper one night and a new silver percolator was on the table. He asked his wife where she got it and she said: "Why, dear, I selected it out of Smith's catalogue and it only cost me $4.25 and the express." Of course the husband was in a moment and said: "Why in the deuce didn't you tell me you wanted the thing? I have lots of them in my store and they only cost me $3."

Then his wife handed him one like this: "Well, John, if you would advertise once in a while so the people would know you were still in business maybe the people wouldn't send a way for so much stuff."

ANXIETY ABOUT SCHOONER "ADVANCE"

Halifax, July 22—Anxiety is felt here by the Halifax owners of the three-masted vessel Advance, which left Campbellton on June 27th with a load of laths for New York, as no word has been received of her whereabouts. The schooner is considered to be exceptionally fast, having made a voyage last year from Halifax to Southern Brazil in nine days.

LONGBOAT AGAIN DEFEATED CAMERON.

Charlottetown, July 29—Tom Longboat defeated Fred Cameron of Aherst in the ten-mile road race here this afternoon. The Indian's time was 53.10; Cameron's 55.38 2-5 the latter being half a mile behind at the finish. The Indian gained lap by lap, and lapped the Amherst man at the fifth mile. The track record was 56.04, made by Cameron two years ago. Over 2,000 people witnessed the race.

LEAD POISON.

Lead poisoning—recognized in its forms of lead colic, lead tremor and lead palsy—is a disease common to all workers dealing with lead. Such occupations comprise the smelting of lead ore in the mines, the manufacture of red and white lead, china, earthenware, glass, and the use of paints, as in carriage making, ship-building and house decorating. Plumbers are very liable to its attack.

These definite forms of lead poisoning last often six months, but they are, if anything, less serious than the chronic form, where the workers' system becomes impregnated with the poison. This brings on anaemia, diminution of physical and mental force, neurasthenia, the outward and visible signs of which are chronic headaches, loss of eyesight, forms of neuritis and lack of ambition and initiative. Alcohol and tobacco are predisposing causes.

It has been found that oxide of zinc may be substituted for white lead in paint. France was the first country, in 1909, to realize the necessity of enforcing the use of this innocuous substitute. The law then passed statutes that after 1914 the use of white lead in all paints shall be abandoned. The last two years have seen the passing of similar bills in Italy, Germany and Belgium. Statistics as to the percentage of lead workers who have in the past been victims to the poison are to hand, but space will not permit setting them down. Suffice it that the percentages, without precautionary methods of treatment, are terribly high.

MILIONAIRE NOVA SCOTIAN DEAD.

John S. Lyle Leaves a Fortune Estimated at $20,000,000 to $40,000,000.

New York, July 23—John S. Lyle, aged ninety-four and childless, is dead in his home, Springfield, at Penfield, N.Y. It is said he leaves a fortune of from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000, much of it made in New York City real estate, in which he began investing half a century ago. He was born in Nova Scotia, and at ten years of age came to this city.

He became an office boy in Lord and Taylor's drygoods store. When he retired from that concern ten years ago he was a leading stockholder.

Mr. Lyle's first wife died in April, 1907, and in September, 1910, he married Miss Julia G. Hannon, a trained nurse, who attended him during an attack of pneumonia.

One of the most common ailments that hard-working people are afflicted with is lame back. Apply Chamberlain's Liniment twice a day and massage the parts thoroughly at each application and you will get quick relief. For sale by druggists and dealers.

MILIONAIRE NOVA SCOTIAN DEAD.

John S. Lyle Leaves a Fortune Estimated at $20,000,000 to $40,000,000.

New York, July 23—John S. Lyle, aged ninety-four and childless, is dead in his home, Springfield, at Penfield, N.Y. It is said he leaves a fortune of from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000, much of it made in New York City real estate, in which he began investing half a century ago. He was born in Nova Scotia, and at ten years of age came to this city.

He became an office boy in Lord and Taylor's drygoods store. When he retired from that concern ten years ago he was a leading stockholder.

Mr. Lyle's first wife died in April, 1907, and in September, 1910, he married Miss Julia G. Hannon, a trained nurse, who attended him during an attack of pneumonia.

One of the most common ailments that hard-working people are afflicted with is lame back. Apply Chamberlain's Liniment twice a day and massage the parts thoroughly at each application and you will get quick relief. For sale by druggists and dealers.

M. K. PIPER

PROPRIETOR AND PUBLISHER

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 7, 1912.

—A town's local newspaper is a good criterion of the enterprise and progress of its citizens. It is the best advertisement a town can have.
The use the merchant makes of its columns is an expression of the commercial activity and enterprise of the community. Bridgetown has nothing to be ashamed of in this respect.
The advertising columns of the Monitor are constantly filled with good live "store news" and no one could examine its pages without being convinced that the merchants of Bridgetown are wide-awake and keeping pace with the enterprise of the time. An exchange makes the following pertinent remarks:—

"No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in it without taking the opportunity to have his name and business mentioned somewhere in its columns, says an exchange. This applies to all kinds of business—general stores, dry goods, grocers, furniture dealers, manufacturing establishments, automobile dealers, mechanics, professional men and in fact all classes of business men. This does not mean that you should have a whole or half or even a quarter of a page ad. in every issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned if you do not use more than a two-line space. A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell just what business is represented in a town by looking at the business mentioned in the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser.
The man who does not advertise his business does an injustice to himself and his town. He is the man who expects the newspaper to do the most free boosting for his town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to a town but refuses to advertise his business is not a valuable addition to any town. The life of any town depends upon the live wide-awake and liberal advertising business men."

OBITUARY

EDWARD M. BAUCKMAN.

The death of Edward M. Bauckman occurred at his home on Queen street
Bridgetown, on Friday night, August 2nd, aged fifty-nine years. He had been ill for about a year, from consumption of the blood, but was only confined to his home a few days and up to within a few weeks of his death was at his regular occupation at the Bridgetown Foundry daily. Mr.
Bauckman was employed at sixteen years of age by Messrs. Hillis and Douglass, who were then proprietors of the Bridgetown Foundry and with the various changes of ownership he has remained as an employee, with the exception of a few years when he was employed elsewhere. He is survived by his wife and two sons, Reginald and Vernon, and by two sisters,
Mrs. Milton Daniels of Wancasset, Maine, and Mrs. Everett of Bridgetown.
The funeral took place on Monday afternoon, Rev. E. Underwood officiating, and was attended by many citizens. As a tribute of the esteem in which they held their old associate, the manager and staff of the Bridgetown Foundry attended his funeral in a body, and also contributed a beautiful wreath of flowers.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Don't forget the date of the Flower Show at Bridgetown, Aug. 23rd and 24th.

Some late correspondence and other matter is unavoidably held over till next issue.

A special orchestra will play "Between the Acts," Primrose Theatre, Monday, 19th inst.

Mass will be celebrated in St. Alphonse's church next Sunday at 11 a.m. Vespers at 3 p.m.

Copies of the Nova Scotia Horticultural Exhibition Prize List may be obtained from R. J. Messenger, Secy.-Manager, Lawrencetown.

Have you ever seen "Between the Acts?" It is really funny. Not a dull moment from beginning to end. Primrose Theatre, Monday, Aug. 19.

The Methodist church at Parrsboro held a joy-fest on Wednesday evening, July 17th, and burnt a mortgage of $1,200 which had been on the property for the last twelve years.

The Baptist pulpit will be filled on Sunday next by Rev. Denton J. Nelly, on the 18th by Rev. A. Lewis, a former pastor, now of Yarmouth, on the 25th by Rev. Mr. Eaton of Freeport.

Some of our best amateur talent is now hard at work on that most amusing comedy sketch entitled "Between the Acts," to be presented in the Primrose Theatre, next Monday week, 19th inst. Watch for posters and our next issue.

A telegram of an alarming nature was received Monday morning by the Messrs. W. R. and C. B. Longmire regarding the very serious condition of their brother Bernard from typhoid fever in the hospital at Calgary. The latest telegram last evening was of a more encouraging nature.

The Port Lorne Baptist House of Worship will be re-opened on the 11th with services at 2.45 and 7.30 p.m. Pastors of Bridgetown, Paradise and Lawrencetown Baptist churches have been invited to assist in the exercises. The evening service will be largely devoted to music.

A light case of scarletina was developed in town during the week in the family of Mrs. Palmer, her youngest daughter, Bertha, being the victim of the unwelcome visitor. Health officer Dr. L. G. DeBlois, promptly had the house placarded, and it is hoped there will be no further development.

A light case of scarletina was developed in town during the week in the family of Mrs. Palmer, her youngest daughter, Bertha, being the victim of the unwelcome visitor. Health officer Dr. L. G. DeBlois, promptly had the house placarded, and it is hoped there will be no further development.

Starting rumors of a murder at Granville Ferry were aloft yesterday. On investigation it proved a false report, though the shot fired by an intoxicated man by the name of Harwick at Mr. Withers, of Granville Ferry, who was assisting the constable to arrest him, might have been a fatal shot instead of just grazing the arm of Mr. Withers, as actually occurred.

The New York Times, of Thursday, July 25th, states: "Mrs. Janet C. Messenger Babb, wife of George W. Babb, manager for the Northern Assurance Company, of London, died last Monday, July 22nd, in her fifty-ninth year, at her home, 311 Garfield Place, Brooklyn, Mrs. Babb is survived by her husband, two brothers and one sister." Mrs. Babb is sister of Charles Messenger of Bridgetown.

A serious accident occurred at McKenzie, Crowe & Co.'s tannery on Saturday morning by which their head tanner, Mr. Camp, received a fracture of the arm below the elbow. He was in the act of feeding leather into a machine when his hand was caught and drawn into the machine. The fracture will incapacitate him from active work for many weeks, but he is able to superintend the work of the department.

Among the attendants at the Summer School of Science, the following were registered from Annapolis County: May T. Davis, Granville Ferry; S. E. Primrose Elliott, Lower Granville; Laurence O. Gates, Melvern Square; Claire Goodspeed, Paradise; Elizabeth Hiltz, Middleton; Annie Jackson, Paradise; Estelle Jones, Clementsport; Evelyn Smith, Melvern Square; Minnie Whitman, Annapolis Royal; Alice Thorne, Lower Granville.

The death of W. C. Nelson occurred at Los Angeles, Cal., on July 6th, ult. He was a former prominent business man of Bridgewater, and he and his family possessed many friends here. He leaves three daughters, Mrs. Dr. Foster, Mrs. Vail and Miss Beesie; and a son, Chipman. Mrs. Prince of this town and Mrs. Lockhart of Melvern Square are sisters, and Samuel of Bridgetown, and Thomas of Nosherville are brothers.—Bridgewater Bulletin.

The government ditching machine has been at work during the past week or two on the property of the Wolfville Fruit Lands Improvement Company. The ditcher, we understand will be operated in different parts of the country and will give our farmers a splendid opportunity of getting this important branch of work done at a very moderate cost. Those who have seen the machine in operation are much pleased with the manner in which the work is done.—Acadian.

GOLD AND WAR.

The world at large owes Great Britain at the present time about $18,000,000,000, payable in gold. The secretary of the British Colonial Free Trade League, who publishes these figures, argues that the danger of a foreign war, about which so many speakers and newspapers express fear from time to time, is not likely to materialize for the reason that no one of the debtor nations could finance a great war.

The secretary of the league in question says that those who have been talking about an attack upon Great Britain appear to have ignored her unique financial position as an element of her strength against attack. Nevertheless, he contends that preparation against attack is still necessary, and will be until Great Britain's financial position is still further improved. To recapitulate, he says that the world owes Great Britain eighteen thousand million dollars, in gold. Then he goes on to say:

"The stock of gold available for coinage in banks, mints, treasuries and in circulation amounts to $9,000,000,000 (nine thousand million). This shortage of gold compared to the debt is growing yearly for two reasons. 1st. The annual production of gold available for coinage is less by about $200,000,000 than the interest on the debt at three per cent. 2nd. The protectionist countries are borrowing huge sums of Britain annually turning it into various products and selling said products to the people below cost of production. In proportion to the increase of the indebtedness of protectionist countries to the people of Great Britain will their desire to attack her become more pronounced, but their ability to do so with success will diminish.

This unique financial position of Great Britain makes it difficult, if not impossible to finance a war against her. When war threatens Great Britain her people instantly demand gold for abnormal blocks of this huge debt from every country in the world. This abnormal demand automatically infringes with crushing effect on the finances of the country or countries threatening Great Britain. Were it not for this unique financial position of Great Britain, in all human probability, she would have been at war with Germany last summer, for the world knows that a few days tension deprived the German bankers of their ability to finance a war with Great Britain."

SHOULD BE OFF THE STREETS.

On several occasions we have referred to the fact that children and boys and girls who count themselves as out of the children class are allowed to roam the street to all hours of the night.

This week the report comes that several girls belonging to this town were hanging about the circus grounds till all hours without any proper person to see after them. This is only an instance of the criminal neglect of parents who will allow young girls to prowl around in the manner described. Such parents are not fit to have charge of children. Night after night dozens of girls from ten to sixteen years of age can be seen wandering around the streets and out-of-way places when they should be home in bed. This street wandering is the greatest school known for crime, for either boy or girl. It is the high road to all kinds of immorality.

There is not a parent in town that does not know it. That is the reason why parents who so lax are criminals of the meanest type; for they are deliberately allowing innocent boys and girls, who might be brilliant men and women, to go down to certain ruin and degradation. There is no man or woman so contemptible as the one who stands in the way of the proper bringing up of a boy or girl, or neglects that sacred duty.—New Glasgow Enterprise.

Boys have been ordered out of the British collieries under fourteen years of age. This is a provision of the new Act. It will necessitate the employment of more expressive helpers. The loss in wages will be felt by many families in the coal districts of England.

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

What is the Matter With Our Autoists?

Reports come in thick and fast, during the last two or three weeks, from all over the province, of accidents, more or less serious, in the use of the automobile. Right here in Kentville, says the Kentville Chronicle, while nothing serious has occurred, there have been several slight accidents which can only be attributed to recklessness or inexperience. As a matter of fact, there is entirely too much recklessness in speeding on the streets and in the suburbs of the town. The town by-law in this matter, is being broken almost everyday, and should be looked after by the proper authorities. Last Tuesday, Yarmouth had two auto accidents resulting, in one case, in the demolition of a bicycle with slight injury to the rider, and in the other, the smash-up of a buggy with more or less injury to the horse. At Woodville, last Saturday, an auto-car became unmanageable and turned turtle, pinning the occupants underneath the car. There were no, or at least, very slight injuries.

Last Thursday, in the vicinity of Dartmouth, a car containing four persons, went over an embankment and turned bottom up, one of the occupants, Mr. John P. Ross, was seriously hurt.

This recent outbreak of auto accidents is not to be attributed to the cars, which are, probably, as efficient and safe as cars are generally, but in most instances, to carelessness or inefficiency on the part of drivers. No one should be allowed to drive an auto-car, who does not hold a certificate of competency the same as is required of the engineer of a steam car or boat.

Mr. Asquith's visit to Dublin has passed into history as an event both picturesque and significant. This holiday, somewhat solemn Yorkshire man is poles removed in character and sympathies from the mercurial Irish, but the welcome he received was probably more enthusiastic—and that is saying a good deal—than the Irish people ever tendered anyone within living memory. Dublin is par excellence the city of demonstrations, royal visits, nationalist victories, historic anniversaries, public funerals all these and many other events have crowded her streets with interested and quick witted crowds. Kings, queens, ecclesiastics, prize fighters, rebels, politicians have been received with open arms, and a 'caed mille falthe', but Mr. Asquith's welcome seems to have eclipsed them all. Flowers thrown before his carriage, scores of bands, thousands of torches shouting multitudes, all must have united in forming a unique experience to a man whom many respect and admire, but whom no one has ever charged with being magnetic, or liable to awaken passionate regard or vociferous esteem.

The Roosevelt Party

The Progressive party of the United States has now been launched, as far as Michigan is concerned. It represents revolt against the privileged interests which have governed the Republican party, and through it the country. It is possible that by no other means than a schism of this sort could the party of pooled interests have been dislodged from power, as, outside of the United States, it is now generally assumed it will be. The Progressive party is, however, launched with some disabilities. For one thing it is neither more nor less than a Roosevelt party. It is, as it were, crystallized around that magnetic personality and now follows his bidding unquestioningly. Up till the meeting of the convention at Jackson the Michigan Progressives imagined they were a party of principles. They had existed as a movement for years before Mr. Roosevelt had adopted their cause, and hoped to conquer in the correctness of those principles. They were the very pick of the Republican yeomanry of the country, standing up for liberty against capitalist domination. They might well hope to enlist an equal contingent from the Tammany-run Democratic party. But from the moment that Mr. Dixon, Mr. Roosevelt's agent, appeared at the meeting and said that so and so was what the Colonel wanted, it was seen that all controversy bowed to that.

A DISGRACE TO THEIR SEX.

The most progressive minister that Great Britain has ever known, though mostly in the prime of life, is growing gray and nervous through fear of assassination by crazy women. People who could march to the canon's mouth cannot stand this continuous danger of assault, in which those dearest to them share. Part of these women's crazes is to seek the sympathy of equally unreasoning people by attempted suicide by starving. Imprisonment always was a very crude form of punishment. The fact that mankind has, since the abolition of the lex talionis—an eye for an eye, a life for a life—discovered no very logical form of punishment, has raised in some minds the question whether any form of retribution is for the public good. When people become wayward, discipline becomes dangerous, restraint of some sort is necessary, but when the mania is suicidal it is indeed difficult to deal with. We should think the best form of discipline for these murderous women would be to maroon them on one of the South Falkland Islands, or somewhere where they could form a republic of their own. It would have to be seen to that they had plenty of food, but to themselves would be left the responsibility of eating. They are doing their sex the worst possible turn.—Montreal Witness.

Sick Insurance in Canada

The sick insurance law of Norway was enacted September 18th, 1909, and amended April 1st, 1911, but did not go into effect until July 1st, 1911. The law embraces all wage earners and public servants over fifteen years of age whose yearly earnings do not exceed $322, if in the rural districts, or $375 in the cities. The law also provides that the employer shall pay a certain percentage (one-sixth) of the premium while he is held responsible for the whole, but may deduct from the wages of the insured at the end of term for which premium is paid the amount thus advanced. Theoretically, it is self-insurance on the contributive plan, while actually it amounts to an extra tax upon the employer, as most employees stipulate when engaging their services that the insurance premium shall be paid in addition to the wages. The first semi-annual report of the committee on invalid insurance for the city of Bergen, just issued is interesting, but not satisfactory, and failed to meet the expectations of the advocates of the law. Instead of an expected surplus as budgeted, the first six months' operation of the law created a deficit of $2,270. The committee point out as the main causes for such deficit (1) that the insured seek medical aid for most trivial cases and more frequently than the uninsured, and (2) that applicants for sick benefits have increased to an alarming extent.—United States Consular Report.

THE HOME

THE EXACTING DAUGHTER.

(By Harriet Prescott Spofford.)

It is to be expected that every generation will be in some degree superior to the one that went before. How else could the race advance? But it is not expected that this superiority will manifest itself in the first two decades of life.

Many of us can remember how our grandmothers lamented over the behavior of the young companions of their grandchildren; and now those of us who have become grandmothers frequently find ourselves doing the same thing.

"What can mother want of these? They are so much more suitable for me!" said a young girl, when she saw the sheer Eastern muslins, with their snowy wrought work, that had been sent to her from the far Pacific shores. But when she saw her mother with the drapery floating about her like moonlight, the young girl felt that she had not properly appreciated either the muslins or her mother. Alas, that young girl was I!

Often a girl feels that her mother has had her day. Too often the mother agrees with her.

Is there a picnic? Mother must make the cake and sandwiches and fill the basket, so that daughter may take a rest, or go to talk it over with the girls.

And it is not all daughter's fault, for mother chooses to do it. And mother sees also that the gown is in order, the ruffles crimped, the torn lace mended—and is fortunate if she has not had to "do it up."

"If my dress isn't starched and ironed before night, I—I shall do it myself!" cried one daughter.

Mother goes to the picnic! What in the world would mother do at a picnic? But Gladys's mother is going; indeed, she always goes, and the men wait on her as if she were a queen. Perhaps the reason is that Gladys's mother is as attractive as Gladys, and the men enjoy waiting on her.

Daughter has yet to learn that a society is possible in which young people hold meet on equal terms, except that the young acquire new and charm through the conversation and care they show their with what endeavors and scrimping saving and sacrifice has mother last furnished the parlor! The piano has been paid for by instalments, to meet which she had to resign every outside pleasure and practise countless painful small economies at home. Father himself has sacrificed much for the sake of the carpet rugs and furniture. And now the place seems beautiful to the mother; she enjoys her evening by the fireside, and often glances up from her book or her work to take in anew the pleasantness of her surroundings.

Then a caller comes, a callow youth, and if mother does not gather up her belongings, daughter gathers them up for her, and mother disappears.

When there is an unusual pleasure to be had, is it mother who is thought of? Daughter is the young thing; life must be made pleasant for her; all the after years are colored by the impressions of youth. And this feeling would be good and sweet enough if daughter did not so easily acquiesce in it.

So mother stays at home, sees daughter go to sail or to drive, and is glad of her girl's enjoyment. Yet she sometimes sighs, for she remembers similar pleasant occasions that she herself would like to renew.

Why should not mother have all that she can enjoy as long as she lives. Why should she help her child to form unlovely traits of thoughtlessness? Why should not daughter make it her business to see that life yields all that it should to mother?

Among the rich the small tyrannies of the young are more conspicuous than elsewhere. Mother is tired of halls, but daughter must go, and mother chaperons her, although she wishes she could pin her eyelids open. Daughter wishes to go to Europe, and mother wants to stay at home; she is old, she is afraid, she is seasick. But think better of it and to your trunks, O mother!

Daughter wishes to move to a larger house or to a more fashionable region; mother loves her old home, her old outlook, her old neighbors. But when daughter orders the tent struck, mother takes up her bed and walks.

Yet not all imperious daughters are exacting. "Opy the door!" demanded a little four-year-old with her arms full of dolls. And as the door remained closed, "Opy the door!" she cried again. "When I say opy the door, opy the door!"

Yet this small damsel grew into the most devoted of daughters, quietly. Painted walls are much whose imperiousness served as a shield for her mother against the importunesses and extortions of others. Woe betide that servant who dared neglect her mother's wish! And seeing the daughter's reverence, every one else gave her reverence, too.

When the mother grew melancholy over the evidences of age, the daughter exclaimed, "Oh, how beautiful you are, dear! How long do you think it will be before my hair is like yours? Silver is so much lovelier than gold. Yours is like a saint's aureole. In the next life I suppose father will see you look the way you did when you were married! But I shall want you to look just the way you do now!"

Contrast with the speech the exclamation that I overheard from the lips of a prettily dressed young girl: "Oh, you shut up, mother! What do you know about it?"

And the mother only smiled. If she had been uttering the most insane folly, would that young person have been justified?

I recall a story that used to be told of a woman whose old father, instead of coming to the table, was given her porridge in a wooden bowl by the chimney corner. One day one of the children was seen laboriously whittling at a little block of wood, and on being asked what he was doing, innocently remarked: "I am making a bowl for you to eat your porridge out of when you are old, mother."

It would be well for the exacting daughter of today to think that even if her mother has not the wisdom of sages or the manners of a princess, she went down to the gates of death to give her daughter life, and has spent her years in a trying to make her child happy, in meeting her wishes, in submitting to her exactions without feeling them to be exactions.

But when kind fate lets us meet the dear daughter who is the opposite of our unpleasant heroine, who forgets herself in little offices of tenderness, in smoothing the pebbles out of the path of feet that have trodden weary ways, we feel not as if she were any young girl of the period, but something like an angel from heaven.

WHEN WE TEACH THE CHILD.

"I see in every child the possibility of a perfect man."

What do we do when we teach the child? We put a thought that is sweet and mild into a mind that is waiting for seed. Into a heart that has never felt greed.

The man with such thoughts is never beguiled. For we teach the man when we teach the child.

What do we do when we teach the child? We take the treasures which may be piled in lesson or poem or Nature's store, And transform them all into golden ore.

Of character, which cannot be revised. The strong man comes from the well-taught child.

What do we do when we teach the child? We take the nature, untamed and wild, And mold it into a life serene, With heart and will and judgment clean.

We make the man who is undeluded. When we teach, as we ought, the child.

What do we do when we teach the child? We plant the truth, where the Under-Our Lord and Master, said: "freedom wakes. Through knowledge, true freedom comes and takes Its place, and dominates passion wild. We've saved the man, when we've saved the child," Frederick Froebel.

SHE FAINTED WITH THE AGONY

"Fruit-a-lives" Cured Her Kidneys

MISS MAGGIE JANNACK

MOUNTAIN, ONT., Dec. 12th, 1910
"I desire to let the world know the great debt I owe 'Fruit-a-lives' which saved my life when I had given up hope of ever being well again."

For six years, I suffered from dreadful Kidney Disease. My legs and lower part of my body were fearfully swollen. The pain in my side and legs would be so bad that I would faint with the agony.

Five different doctors attended me and all said it was Kidney Disease and gave me no hope of getting well. A kind neighbor visited me and mentioned the case of Mrs. Fenwick who had been cured of a sickness like mine. I took 'Fruit-a-lives' and in a short time, I began to feel better—the swelling went down—the pains were easier—and soon I was well.

I have gained over 30 pounds since taking 'Fruit-a-lives'—and my friends look upon my recovery as a miracle."

SUCCESSFUL JELLY MAKING.

Use good fruit which is a little under-ripe.

Use the best granulated sugar. Do not make large quantities of jelly at one cooking.

Heat the sugar in the oven before adding it to the fruit juice.

If the juice must be boiled down always do so before the sugar is added.

The jelly will be clearer and finer if the fruit is simmered gently and not stirring during cooking.

Do not allow the syrup to boil rapidly, or crystals may appear in jelly. Always make jelly on a bright, clear day.

Wash the jelly glasses in hot water and set them on a folded cloth, running out of hot water.

Set the jelly in a sunny window for twenty-four hours, then cover with melted paraffin and set in a dry, cool place.—Eldora Lockwood Dow, in Woman's World for July.

BAD TASTE.

To quarrel or to air one's family disagreements in front of outsiders is a painfully bad taste.

To appeal to these outsiders to take sides by expressing their opinion on the points of contention is worse than bad taste. It is discourtesy; it is unkindness; it is a flagrant violation of the golden rule. For everyone knows how embarrassing it is to be appealed to in this way. To have to be a witness to a family disagreement is bad enough. It makes one feel so awkward and self-conscious, so painfully in the way and so, wishing of an Aladdin's carpet on which to whisk one's self to the farthest corner of the earth. But to be appealed to to take sides—that is the last straw.

A Guide to Agriculture

By direction of the Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, a timely bulletin on bee-keeping has been issued by the Federal Department of Agriculture. According to a statement of the author, Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, this work has been prepared to meet a very persistent demand for information by persons who wish to learn how to begin and to continue the industry of apiculture. It was the further object of the author to increase the number of bee-keepers in Canada by indicating the advantages of bee-keeping. It is pointed out that bee-keeping returns the direct profit of a honey crop and the indirect one of improvement to yields of clover seed and fruit. It is observed that a bullock after being fed and cared for during an entire winter will not realize much more than the produce of a colony of bees in a single season. Beginners are recommended to start on a small scale with one or two hives increasing the number annually as experience is gained. This treatise of forty-five pages, which is helpfully illustrated, covers, in plain language, the whole field of apiculture, including equipment, management, the production of honey and wax, diseases, legislation of the various provinces against bee diseases, etc. It is designated "The Honey Bee," Bulletin No. 2, Division of Entomology and No. 69, Experimental Farms. Copies may be had free by applying to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Men speak feelingly of the beauty of the summer mornings at sunrise, and just before and after, but instead of enjoying the beauty and the health-giving qualities of the early daylight they remain in bed, and confine their daylight-saving experience to more or less idle conversation about the matter.

Recently an Ontario town—Orillia—attempted an experiment in the matter of daylight saving. After some agitation on the subject the Mayor, having found that the leading business people were agreeable, issued a proclamation as a result of which all the clocks in town were put forward one hour on June 22nd. This meant that those who had been getting up at six o'clock, under the old arrangement, rose at five under the new, and would stop work or business an hour sooner in the afternoon. The experiment should have been a great success, but it wasn't. On July 7th the Mayor issued another proclamation sadly requesting the people to set their clocks as of old.

The trouble was that the very people who would have profited most by the change refused to give it a fair trial. A large number of men employed in industries in the town declined to start work an hour earlier and without their co-operation the new plan could not succeed.

BELIEVED MANY WERE LOST IN NELSON STORM.

Many Empty Pleasure Boats Seen on the Lake After the Tempest Abated—Much Damage Done by Wind and Hail.

(Canadian Press.)

Nelson, B. C., July 22—Several persons are said to have been drowned, the weight scales building was levelled to the ground, boardings were picked up and carried scores of feet, streets and houses were struck by lightning, and gardens and glass houses were damaged by a terrible rain and hail storm, punctuated by frequent flashes of lightning which swept over Nelson about 7 o'clock Sunday evening, and a similar, but less severe storm on Saturday.

Scores of people were on the lake in launches, rowboats, and canoes when the heavy clouds burst yesterday and several were driven on the rocks. Numerous empty rowboats were seen from passenger steamers, but no names of missing have been reported.

A unique way of preserving family wealth has been taken by the seven Weitman brothers of New York. They are wealthy men, but have put into a fund all their inactive money, and have incorporated the Weitman Family Fund. When a member of the family dies he will bequeath his money to the fund, the income of which will be used for the support of the children of the family, and the burial of their bodies.

The Weitman family fund is a unique way of preserving family wealth. It is a fund into which all the inactive money of the family is put. When a member of the family dies, he bequeaths his money to the fund. The income of the fund is used for the support of the children of the family, and the burial of their bodies. This is a unique way of preserving family wealth.
