Empty Dory Tells the Fate of Three P. E. I. Fishermen

Charlottetown, P. E. I., May 14--(Special)---The fate of the three fishermen, Campbell, Strachan and Holland, who were driven out to sea in a gasoline dory a month ago is now probably decided. Captain Butler of the schooner Barleigh picked up a gasoline dory full of water off Cape North.

The arrival of fifty English settlers here last night to buy farms marks an epoch in the island's agricultural history, this being the first immigration of any size since the pioneers came a century and a half ago.

A number of young men easily secured employment with farmers, the others will get some experience of island agricultural conditions before buying property. A reception was given them in the legislative chamber today where they were addressed by Governor McKinnon and others. Immigration Agent Winfield who brought them here will return to Scotland for more.

By The Way.

Straight pitching is often puzzling for batters who are looking for curves.

Accidents will happen occasionally to the best of astronomers. They sometimes see stars.

The chief topic in the lasting places is weather--whether Arthur and Lou left any trout in McDougall Lake or not.

A good ball field is a more in the right direction. Let everyone encourage sport in the town and our young men and boys will feel more like staying home.

When a man writes a proposal for marriage, he writes something that will be everlasting. A woman never destroys a letter which contains an offer for marriage.

There are many different ways of using the word "per" in business life. If a man works in a bank or store he gets so much per--month, if running a newspaper he gets so much per--hapa.

A disease seems to be prevalent in the town especially among the young men and boys. It is known as "baseball fever". There are no doctor bills to pay so get among the boys and catch it.

The man who refuses to subscribe to his home paper, and yet borrows it from his neighbor as soon as it leaves the press would drop a nickel with a hole in it in the contribution box at church, sigh because the hole wasn't bigger, and then go home and do without sugar in his coffee for a week in order to get even.

"How much does that stylish doctor of yours charge?"

"Ten dollars a visit?"

"Gee! How often has he called at your house this month?"

"Twenty times."

"Gosh! You owe him $200 then?"

"Nope, only $10. He's made the other nineteen calls trying to collect it."

A train on one of the transcontinental lines that runs through Kansas City and is usually late was reported on time a few days ago.

The young man who writes the particulars concerning the trains at that station put down his statistics about this train: "Number 616--from the West--on time."

Then he wrote underneath: "Cause unknown."

Golden Wedding Anniversary

An unusual and rare event took place on Saturday evening, May 14th, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Magowan, when that couple with their near relatives and friends celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage.

The party consisted of their daughters, Mrs. J. J. Kay and Mrs. Harry Chaffee of Indian Island, Mrs. Frank Chaffee of this town, their son Hassen, and about twenty of their particular friends. The gifts received by the couple were numerous and handsome including gold, cut glass and chinaware. A very pleasant evening was spent in conversation etc., during which light refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Magowan have lived in St. George for many years and have numerous friends and acquaintances many of whom called to wish them many happy returns of the anniversary, and to express a hope that the friendship which exists might not grow less but that it might grow stronger as the years pass on. We join with the entire community in wishing the popular couple many happy returns of the occasion and we hope that many years of happiness may yet be theirs to enjoy.

The following is a list of those who were dressed in ancient costumes at Mrs. Chase's on the evening of May 10th.

The Incentive.

Is it for money we labor?
Is it for wealth and for fame?
Is it to build up securely,
For our descendants a name?
What is the coveted prize?
Maybe a smile from a maiden,
Maybe a flash from her eyes.
Is it that we may be greater
Than our relations and kin?
Is it that we may endeavor
Prizes immortal to win
Or through society, madly
That we may rapidly whirl,
Or is it just for the glances
Deep in the eye of a girl?
Is it that we may be able
Laws for the nation to frame
That will reflect through the ages
Luster secure on our name?
Is it that nations may tremble,
Or is it rather that Mabel
Will not rise and say "Nay"?
That is the gist of the matter.
That is the reason and cause,
Not that the world may come forward
With its inspiring applause.
But same and fortune we gather,
Toiling by day and by night,
That we might sooner or later
Be a big man in her sight.

TRIFLES.

He took a little flyer,
That was all;
He thought he knew the wire
Had the call.
He took a little flyer
And he went up high and higher;
Now his fat is in the fire,
That is all.
He played a little poker,
That was all;
When his wife complained he'd joke her
Stakes were small.
He played a little poker
At a purely social smoker,
And he died dead-broke or broke-er,
That is all.
He used to play the horses,
That was all;
Had tips from all the courses
For a haul.
He used to play the horses
Till he used up his resources;
Now he knows just what remorse is,
That is all.
He was just a rare good fellow,
That was all,
Without a streak of yellow
Great or small.
He was just a rare good fellow
And his moods were often mellow,
What? Another shortage? Hello!
That is all.
He only meant to borrow,
That is all;
To put it back tomorrow,
Sam was small.
He only meant to borrow,
But he found out to his sorrow
That it never comes tomorrow,
That is all. —J. W. Foley.

NOT IN THE FAMILY.

Michael McCarthy was suing the Swift Packing Company in a Kansas City court.
A negro witness was called.
"Did you work at the plant?" he was asked.
"Yassir."
"Do you know the foreman and the other officials?"
"Yassir."
"What were your relations with 'em?"
"Now, look yere," said the witness, "I'm black, and they's white. They ain't no relations of mine."

Joker's Column

"What is good for a cross baby?"
"Good for it?"
"Yes."
"Sensible mother."
"He boasts of his family tree."
"Yes."
"Wonder what it is?"
"Yes."
"A pumpkin vine."
"Do you look on all the world as a stage?"
"I do."
"And why?"
"There are so many bad actors."
"So the price of meat has come down?"
"The wholesale price only," exclaimed the butcher.
"Oh, that suits me all right. I am the father of eleven, all of them growing."
"And there is another way in which women always have the best of men."
"Is there still another?"
"Yes."
"What is it?"
"They never get their pockets picked."

First lady (in intelligence office)—
Hiring a new girl?
Second lady—I had some such plan in view, but now I am not quite sure whether I have been engaging a new maid or she has been engaging me.

Stern Father (to son recently graduated)—My son, one of the first things you must learn is to say "No."
Son—Yes, father I understand.
"I don't know whether you do or not. I heard you say 'maw' and 'nit' to two of my old customers."

"She is getting quite a reputation as a painter."
"What is her specialty?"
"She is good on landscapes."
"I never saw her but once, and I thought she was pretty poor on landscapes."

"Do you believe in spanking children?"
"Certainly."
"Always?"
"No."
"When?"
"When they are other people's children."

"Every one of God's creatures are here for a useful purpose. Now, what do we learn from the mosquito, Tom?" asked a teacher, trying to evolve the word patience.
"We learn from the mosquito," answered Tom, "how easy it is to get stung."
And his hearers tried to think of it.

A man who believes in the old saying, "See a pin pick it up and all day you'll have good luck," saw a pin in front of the post office the other day. Bending down to get it, his hat tumbled off and rolled into the gutter; his eyeglasses fell and broke on the pavement, his suspenders gave way behind, he burst the button hole on the back of his shirt collar, and all but lost his new front teeth—but he got the pin.

Who Is Simpson?

There was an old chap out in my country, said Senator Carter, of Montana, who was not regular in his church-going, and he was jacked up about it by the minister. So next Sunday he slipped into church and sat it out.
"As he was coming home he met a friend."
"Say," he said, "did you ever hear of this man Simpson?"
"Simpson?" asked the friend. "What Simpson?"
"Well, he was a mighty man."
He took the jawbone of a mule one day and went down and killed fifty thousand Philadelphians before noon.

An anecdote is told of Robert Smith brother of Sydney Smith, and an ex-Advocate General. On the engagement he engaged in an argument with a physician over the merits of their respective professions.

"I don't say that all lawyers are crooks," said the doctor in his final stumping up, "but my opponent will have to admit that his profession doesn't make angels of men."
"No," quietly retorted Smith, "you doctors certainly have the best of us there."

THE AGE OF DISCRETION.

Eastern tourists on train going through Arkansas. Train stops at small town. Natives are running around frantically, some with bundles, other with ropes, grab-hooks, and the like. Tourists' curiosity is aroused and he asks one of the hangers-on what is cause of commotion.
Villager replies: "Wall, Judge Smith's son is twenty-one years old today. We're goin' to ketch him and put some clothes on him."

The society dame was giving a luncheon to the distinguished aviator.
"In spite of the dangers of our occupation," she said, "there is an irresistible fascination about it, is there not, Mr. Uppengoo?"
"There is madam, he answered.
"In fact, does not the excitement of it seem to be a species of intoxication?"
"It does, madam," sighed the aviator, "and sooner or later every one of us takes a drop too much."

He was an eloquent young divine, and he was picturing the selfishness of brute man is spending his evenings at the club, leaving his wife in loneliness at home.
Fervently he exclaimed:
"Think, my hearers, think of the poor lonely wife all alone in the great dreary house, rocking the cradle of her sleeping babe with one foot, and wiping away her tears with the other."
And his hearers tried to think of it.

A man who believes in the old saying, "See a pin pick it up and all day you'll have good luck," saw a pin in front of the post office the other day. Bending down to get it, his hat tumbled off and rolled into the gutter; his eyeglasses fell and broke on the pavement, his suspenders gave way behind, he burst the button hole on the back of his shirt collar, and all but lost his new front teeth—but he got the pin.

GETTING HIS WIND.

"Why doesn't he marry Miss Blue-Box?"
"He has asked her forty times."
"Has he given up in despair?"
"No; just paused for breath."

"Where have you been for so long?" asked the head man of the managerie.
"Been watching one of the animals clear his throat," sir, replied the attendant.
"But does it take an hour for an animal to clear its throat?"
"Yes, sir; it was the gruff, sir!"

Little Bobby's Ma—Josiah, Bobby has been using slang again today.
Little Bobby's Pa—Now, see here kid! You've got to cut it out. I won't stand for it.

He—Is this a permanent engagement?
She—I hope not. I should like to get married some time.

Much Will be Blamed on Comet

Much of that history which is now in the making will, in some quarters at least be inevitably set down to the influence of Halley's comet. From time immemorial the popular mind has always seized on celestial phenomena to account for mundane disasters or happenings that were to any remarkable degree removed from the ordinary. Of course, the planets which we have always with us, were in ancient times, and by many are even still supposed to have influence on individuals and nations; but comets, more singular in form and more varied in the times of their appearance, lend themselves still more easily to superstitious ideas, and have usually been associated with the great events of nations particularly if those events happened to be of a calamitous character.

Scarcely any occurrence of which we have record has so changed the course of history, or been taught with consequences so momentous to great masses of mankind, as the conquest of England by the Normans under Duke William. As every one knows the invasion took place on the 28th of September, 1066, and the decisive battle of Hastings was fought on the 14th of October following. Halley's comet had appeared in the April of the same year, and was deemed to presage some event of the highest importance. In Normandy William took it to mean that "a kingdom wanted a king;" in England, Harold, who had succeeded Edward the Confessor in the previous January, and had a good deal of trouble on his hands, regarded it as a bad omen, and the outcome proved that it was correct.

Doubtless in Africa King Menelik's death—if he be really dead—will be associated with the disaster-bringing comet. But what are we to say of the amazing tidings already reported from Evansville, Ind.? There every one appears to be sleeping from 15 to 24 hours on end, and then yawning and stretching and going to sleep again. Business is suspended, policemen are sleeping on their beats, and yet no one is the worse because the thieves are also affected with drowsiness that are unable to steal anything. A telegraph operator has so far managed to keep awake; but should he, too, succumb to the novel sleeping sickness, all communication by wire with the city will be cut off. And Halley's comet is blamed for it all!

If this thing spreads, we may look out for mighty strange happenings while his celestial visitant remains lord of the ascendant. It is, perhaps, fortunate that he looks in on us every 75 years.

He Had a Pain.

A man who had reformal and kept sober for a year called upon the tavern keeper, who welcomed him back to his own haunt.
"Oh, landlord," said he, as in pain, "I have such a lump on my side!"
"That's because you have stopped drinking," said the landlord, "you won't live long if you keep on."
"Will drink take the lump away?"
"Yes; and if you don't drink you'll soon have a lump on the other side. Come let's drink together, and he poured out two glasses of whiskey.
"I guess I won't drink," said the former inebriate, "especially if keeping the pledge will bring another lump, for it is not very hard to bear after all." And with this he drew the lump—a bag of dollars—from his pocket, and walked off, leaving the landlord to his reflections.—Selected.

A DOUBLE CURE FOR DOUBLE TROUBLE

Father Morrisey's No. 26 Cure Catarrh by a Combined Treatment.

The sudden weather variations in our climate result in a great many cases of catarrh—a troublesome disease usually considered hard to cure, and one which often leads to serious pulmonary and intestinal troubles.

A neglected cold in the head weakens the nasal membranes, so that at every future exposure the trouble returns. At length these conditions are fastened onto the system, and the sufferer undergoes the annoyance and danger of chronic catarrh.

Some doctors confine themselves to prescribing external applications, and thus do not reach the seat of the trouble. Others give internal treatment exclusively, and thus do not promptly relieve the affected parts.

Father Morrisey, the skilled priest-physician, rightly regarded catarrh as a double trouble, consisting of unpleasant local effects and their distant effects.

His famous remedy, No. 26, is a combined cure for catarrh. It consists of tablets to be taken three times a day, and an especially compounded salve.

The salve is antiseptic, and quickly heals the inflamed membranes of the nasal passages. The tablets go to the seat of the trouble and restore the system to its usual tone. Together, they cure.

Instead of neglecting a disease that unpleasant to yourself and to others, and one which often leads to pneumonia and consumption, it is surely the part of wisdom to take timely steps to do away with the effects and at the same time remove the cause. No. 26 does just that.

50c. for the combined treatment. At your druggist's, or from Father Morrisey Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N.B. 100

Spring in the Air

I found that Spring was in the fields today. I traced her virgin from everywhere. I tracked her footsteps in the steaming earth, and where she shook the diamonds off the dew. I searched in all the cool and hollow shades, behind the speckled laurels; and I drew the curtains of the pine and feathered eye to see if she were lurking anywhere.

From the next field a skylark soared and sang; and a grey seagull who was wintering here beat with the heavy but unumbered wings his new found way towards his pathless sea. I saw the green wave glistening in his eyes; and caught the perfume of the sea-brine dropped at every beat of pinion, and every exultant scream. The daisies opened their meek, patient eyes. It gladdened me to see them, though later on I shall most likely shear them, as blots upon the beauty of the grass. Rosebuds were shyly unfolding their soft, silky petals—the cradles of the flowers that were waiting the hot sun.

Yes! though invisible, the virgin spring was here; for there was a soft and subtle perfume in the air as of new births and resurrections.

Let no one think there is no soul or sensibility in nature. The mysterious power that "sleeps in the mineral, dreams in the animal, wakens a man," operates too in the veins and capillaries of shrubs and plants. I shall never cut a flower again. I shall fear to see it bleed.—Rev. Canon Sheehan, in Parerga.

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover a course. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor drug the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes quickly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

The Way it is Done up in Chatham.

Under the heading "A Chatham Beauty" the Chatham world says: She glided gracefully along Water street towards the post office, a vision of loveliness, dreamily unconscious of the admiring looks that followed her. She panted, her heavenly blue eyes upward towards a fleecy speck of cloud foam that was drifting over the azure sky, raised her snow-white hand; opened her ruby lips inserted a big cad of gum, and chewed vigorously as she moved forward once more.

A book on Rheumatism and a treatise on the treatment of Rheumatism Remedy should be in the hands of every sufferer from Dr. Shoop's Rheumatism Remedy. You that are well, get this book for some distant friend who is suffering from Rheumatism. It will give you some idea of the suffering from the disease and how to get relief. It will appreciate your aid.

GERMAN AIRSHIP FLEET.

Will be Used for Regular Passenger Traffic.

The wonderful progress which is being made by Germany's airship fleet is shown by the announcement that four new dirigibles of the Parseval type are being constructed at Bitterfeld.

They will be named the Parseval VI, VII, VIII, and IX, respectively. Parseval VI which will be seventy-five yards long, will have a diameter of thirty-two yards and have a capacity of 6,700 cubic meters, and is to be sold to the Munich Aerial Navigation Company, which will start airship cruises in and around Munich for passengers.

Parseval VII is ordered by a similar company in Berlin, which will begin Berlin operations at Wannsee by initiating regular trips for passengers in the vicinity of the capital. Parseval VIII is ordered by the Imperial Automobile Club, the Berlin members having the use of the vessel as an aerial yacht.

Parseval IX is ordered by the Brussels International Exposition, and will begin passenger cruises in the Belgian capital at the end of April or the beginning of May. It is intended to be one principal attraction of the world's fair there.

An immense airship invented by Herr Schuette is approaching completion. It has a capacity of 19,500 cubic meters, and will be able to ascend with a burden of thirty tons aboard.

Herr Parseval has invented a flying machine which is approaching completion. It is fitted with a 114 h. p. Daimler motor, and the will begin this week at Flau, Mecklenburg, where a factory for constructing Parseval aeroplanes has been erected.

The tender leaves of a harmless hugging mountain shrub, given to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its marvelous and curative properties. Tight, tickling or distressing coughs, quickly yield to the healing, soothing action of this splendid prescription—Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so safe and good for children, as well. Containing no opium, chloroform, or other harmful drug, mothers should in safety always demand Dr. Shoop's. If other remedies are offered, tell them "Not for my own judge" S-3d by all dealers.

AN INCIDENT.

On a railway train running on a branch road from a great city to the suburb, a little incident in complete contrast was noted by eyes quick to see what happened on the road. A woman, evidently a foreigner and very poor, was encumbered by a baby in her arms, while two older children tugged at her skirt. In addition she had several nondescript bundles. When the brakeman announced her station she was bewildered and greatly impeded in her efforts to leave the car. She was not quite sure of the place, and she could not easily manage the babies and bundles.

A tall young fellow, conspicuously well dressed, had been sitting near, apparently lost in a book which he was studying. He tossed the book aside, seized the heavy bundles and gave a hand to one little brown-faced child, assisted the whole party out of the car, first ascertain that they were at the right point of their journey, lifted his hat to the mother as if she had been his own, resumed his place and his book as if she had done nothing uncommon. This incident was chronicled in the memory of one whom it made happier for a whole long day.—Herald and Presbyterian.

A Thirsty Jury.

A case was being tried on the charge of selling impure whiskey. The whiskey was offered in evidence. Jury retired to try the evidence. Judge (presently): "What is the verdict?" Foreman of the Jury: "Your Honor we want more evidence."

OUR CIRCULATION

is increasing daily. If you are not already a subscriber, why send us one dollar and have your name placed on our paid up list. Address order to the Greetings, St. George, N. B.

What a Peccage Cost!

The elevation of Herbert Gladstone and Ivor Guest to the peerage is probably as pleasing to themselves as it is to their many admirers, but even of the gentlemen so honored will have to pay pretty heavily for the privilege of adding a title to his name. Between them they will have to pay out nearly a thousand pounds.

The higher the rank the higher the fee, and thus Mr. Gladstone as a viscount will have to pay 467 4s. 6d. in fees, while Mr. Guest as a baron, which is one degree lower in the British peerage, will be off with a mere 360 17s.

As might be supposed the money is not paid over in a lump sum to one of the state officials as a sort of formal payment in exchange of the title but is divided up into several items. Mr. Gladstone for instance will have to pay 200 in stamp duties, 229 in Crown Office fees while Mr. Guest pays 150 12s. for 11 stamp duties, 179 for his Crown Office fees, and 30 15s. for Home Office fees.

COSTLY MONOGRAM

But even when the unfortunate peer has paid all these items he has not by any means come to the end of his long expense list. For the first few months after his accession the newly-fledged peer is simply inundated with official documents demanding license on one or another of his new privileges. There is the license for the coronet on his carriage or motor cars, and the stamp on his note paper, not to mention the expensive coronet and robes which all members of the peerage are obliged to provide themselves with.

In the case of the older families, of course, the latter expense is generally avoided, for the robes of state are treasured as family heirlooms, and a passed on from one member of the family to another as the occasion demands. But in the case of the newer creations, unless the new peer wishes to hire his robes for the few occasions on which he is expected to appear in them, he is obliged to spend many hundreds of pounds in arranging himself as befits so august a personage as a peer of the realm.

DISCHARGE

As a matter of fact the hiring of robes by the eminent gentlemen in the House of Lords for state occasions is far more prevalent than is generally known, which after all, is by far the most economical method of procedure, for practically the only occasion on which the peers put on their symbols is at state coronation of the sovereign, or when they wish to have their portrait taken in their robes, which is, of course, not a necessity.

If the truth were known, there is scarcely a peer in the House of Lords whose gold on his coronet is not pinched back and the jewels imitation simply because of the enormous and useless expense of providing a genuine affair.—Times.

Plenty of Experience

The attractive young lady who had written "Urgent" on her card was shown into the consulting room of Sir Choppam Fyne, head of the famous surgical hospital in Splintshire.

"And what is the matter with you?" said the great man.

"I wish," she answered, "to become a nurse in this institution."

The surgeon tapped a thoughtful tooth with his lancet. "First, one question. Have you had any previous experience."

She dazzled him with a reassuring smile.

"Experience!" she cried. "I should just think so. Two of my brothers play football, another has tried to cross the channel in an aeroplane of his own make, mother is a suffragette, and father keeps a motor car."—Tit Bits.

The nerve centers require nutrition. If the digestion is impaired, the nerve centers become anemic, and nervous debility is the result.

The Naturaliferenos.

There are many forms of swimming, ranging from the most back variety to the so-called "charley" leazar, and perhaps the latter is not the least of these. Such at least is the opinion of the old gentleman who, having been benighted to an affair of the kind, observed that no matter what the amount of money tendered in payment of an article, it was taken for granted that no change was to be returned.

Passing the door booth, he happened to remark on the beauty of the display, and the pretty young person in charge immediately seized the opportunity of placing a bouquet of violets in his buttonhole.

"Thank you, my dear," said the old gentleman, "and now, what do I owe you?"

"Five dollars," smiled the pretty maid. The old gentleman clenched his wrist. "What is that?" he asked, excitedly.

"Why! my wrist, sir."

"Ah," he exclaimed, in a relieved tone. "I was afraid it was your ankle; things appear to be so very tight here."

"William White's brother had killed a man in cold blood."

"Well, William, how about your brother? a visitor to the town asked him one day after the trial."

"Well," said William, "they've put him in jail for a month."

"That's rather a light sentence for a cold-blooded murder, said the gentleman."

"Yes, sir," William admitted, "but at the month's end they're going to hang him."

Why Lick Postage Stamps

Do the people who fear at the cautious ones as "cranks" who refuse to lick a postage stamp know that there is a defined disease known as "the postage stamp-tongue?"

This is an acute inflammation of the tongue, directly traced to the germs to be found on the gummy side of stamps or envelopes.

Other and more serious diseases have been caused by this habit that is so universal and seems so harmless.

One throat specialist in a hospital declares that many chronic affections of the throat are found among persons who have as their means of livelihood the addressing and stamping of envelopes.

Bad skin diseases have been known to follow this habit, and it has even caused pulmonary troubles.

It is, after all, but a habit and a bad one. It takes no more time and is quite as easy to moisten the stamp with damp sponge or rag.

A Last Tribute

As this issue of "Greetings" goes into the homes of our readers, the thought of every loyal British subject is turned towards the place where they lay away with tender hands and sorrowing hearts, the remains of England's greatest King. His reign of nine and one third years was all too short. And yet of it he could say "Well, it is all over now, but I think I have done my best." And he did it well. His reign will ever be recognized as a period most memorable, not only in the history of our own nation, but in that of the world. The glories of the reign of Edward the Peacemaker are glories of peace, of industry, of commerce and of genius; of justice made more possible; of education made more universal; as virtue made more honored; and the glories that arise from benefits conferred and the blessings of a loyal loving people.

"King as true to manhood as Kinghood, Glorifying in the glories of his people, Sorrowing with the sorrows of the lowest, A reign of ever-brightening science! A reign of ever-widening empire! Are there thunders moaning in the distance? Are there spectres moving in the darkness? First the hand of light will guide his people, Till the thunders pass, the spectres vanish, And the light is victor, and the darkness Dawns into the jubilee of the ages." Such a noble life, such a glorious reign, calls from all loyal hearts expressions of sadness and loyal devotion, as with the mourners we mourn today. "The King is dead! long live the King."

Our New King.

The Prince of Wales was proclaimed King George V. at a meeting of the Privy Council on May 7th. While King George was signing the proclamation of his accession in the presence of his Privy Counsellors, in the palace of St. James, a battery in the adjoining park was firing sixty-eight guns denoting the age of his predecessor.

The first official utterance of the new king was marked by feeling eloquence and made a deep impression.

"My lords and gentlemen," said the King, "my heart is too full for me to address you today in more than a few words. It is my sorrowful duty to announce to you the death of my dearly loved father, the King. In his loss which has so suddenly fallen upon me and the whole Empire, I am comforted by the feeling that I have the sympathy of my subjects who will mourn with me for their beloved sovereign whose own happiness was found in sharing and promoting theirs. I have lost not only a father's love but the affectionate and intimate relations of a dear friend and adviser to endeavor to follow in his footsteps, and at the same time to uphold the excellent government of the realm will be the earnest object of my life. I am deeply sensible of the responsibilities which have fallen upon me. I know I can rely upon the parliament and upon the parliament and upon the people of these islands and my dominions beyond the seas for their help in these duties and their prayers that God will grant me strength and guidance. I am encouraged by the knowledge that I have in my dear wife one who will be a constant helpmate in every endeavor for our people's good."

England's New Cruiser.

London, May 16.—Great Britain has just made a new record in the world, as one of the very best of the world. She has built the keel of the new Dreadnought Princess Royal, one of the four "conditional" Dreadnoughts voted last year. Her displacement will be about 26,350 tons, or 1,000 less than that of the Argentine Dreadnoughts, the largest warships yet begun. The Princess Royal will be about 700 feet long and 86 1/2 feet in beam. Her engines will develop 70,000 horse power. Though she is nearly 10,000 tons larger than the Invincible class, her armament will be only slightly more powerful.

She will carry eight 12 inch guns in the centre line and a number of 4 inch or 4.7 inch guns to meet torpedo attack. She has been constructed in reply to the German cruisers Moltke, H. and J. which are understood to displace about 23,000 tons, to mount ten 12 inch guns and to develop about 70,000 horsepower. Of these three the Moltke is nearing completion.

CORRESPONDENCE

Dear Editor,— I desire to call attention to the public roads throughout the Parish of St. George, with commissions and a paid road Board to do the work formerly done by one man. It seems as the bad ruts and dangerous holes should not be allowed to remain in the roads for two months or till the grass grows in them. Nevertheless this is the case as many can testify who attended the funeral of Mr. Wm. Hickey last Thursday, and were obliged to wade through the mud on Letang road. And other roads as bad and worse if possible.

Now Mr. Editor don't you think it would be well for to hold a convention and form a good road association no doubt we would have to organize a bad road one first, of course this is a suggestion merely. But I am satisfied any move in the interest of bettering the roads would receive a solid support from the ratepayers of St. George. Thanking you in advance for space in your valuable paper

I remain Yours
Grumbler.

Back Bay, May 8th, 1910.

Mr Editor, There has been a lot of talk in the newspapers about the G. T. P. buying a lot of land at Courtney Bay for the purpose of making it their terminus. I should like to ask the question, is there no other port in New Brunswick that after building the road thousands of miles to fetch up with mud of Courtney Bay, it will be a dirty ending to a splendid piece of work. I asked the question, is there no other port in New Brunswick, and I will answer it. There is, it is the port of L'Etang and Back Bay, second to none on this American continent; and if one quarter of the money that has been spent digging ditches in St. John had been spent in L'Etang, there would have been a winter port and deep water terminus for all the railroads that will be put in Canada for fifty years to come. Now Mr. Editor I will try and name some of the natural advantages of L'Etang harbor: 1. deep water; 2. freedom from ice; 3. average depth 10 fathoms at low water; 4. wharves built forty feet below low water will float the largest ship afloat, and last but not least, it has good approaches. Now, Mr. Editor, if you will kindly print this, you will oblige
A BACK BAYER.

Sir,—Permit me through the medium of your paper to elucidate a matter that has obtained currency with a number of individuals in the town. Mrs. Tucker was in possession of a dog; the other day it chanced to receive a quantity of porcupine quills. Some person in a base manner acquainted the marshal with the fact that the aforesaid woman was starving the dog and that they had located it in a cellar. This statement is absolutely fictitious, as I am in a position to demonstrate without the slightest fear of contumacy, I fail to see any reason why such a charge should be circulated. Should the person who laid the complaint before the marshal find it necessary to inquire, I may tell him of my willingness to substantiate in a logical way any statement made relative to the aforesaid animal. On any hypothesis the person had no right to utter such a statement; the one thing evidently forgotten was, "truth is a great thing and will prevail" may I in conclusion ask the individual to consider the following dictum. Truth requires not only that we should say nothing that we know to be false, but also that we should weigh our statements and not make rash and unconsidered assertions. There are some people whose talk runs babbling along like a stream in a freshet and with as little meaning. A man with a love for truth will be more sparing of his words, and will weigh them before giving them currency also the command uttered by Almighty God on Mount Sinai "vix." Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor will be beneficial for the person to put in practice. Thanking you in anticipation, I remain dear Sir

Yours sincerely,
JOSEPH HOWE,
St. George, N. B.

He was a shoemaker in this town for many years, retiring from active life about two years ago. He and his wife, then Miss McLagan, had the honor of being the first couple to be married in the present Catholic chapel. He was a very respectable citizen of the town, and only good words can be heard on all sides regarding him. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, and two daughters Katherine and Annie, and a son James all at home. The funeral took place this morning and interment was made in the Catholic cemetery. There was a very large attendance.

A solemn memorial service will be held at St. Mark's church, on Friday morning at 10 o'clock, in commemoration of our late King. Similar services are being held, not only all over the British Empire but in many foreign countries as well, in sympathy with the Royal Family and the nation thus called upon to mourn. The service at St. Mark's should be largely attended.

The work on the new baseball diamond was started on Monday. The diamond was measured off and the entire field ploughed up. The home plate will be next to the main road and the out field to the right of Mr. McCullum's house. It is the intention of the committee to put enough finances on the field to make a perfectly level diamond and out field. It will be about one month before the field will be in a fit condition to use. The boys have been using the Drake field for practice during the past few evenings and already a bunch of good material has been manifested and a first class team is sure to be the outcome of the efforts of the committee.

The annual meeting of the defunct St. Stephen Bank stock holders on Monday proved to be a lively one. A financial statement was read by the directors and showed $600,000 worth of doubtful loans. Many shareholders were present and freely expressed their opinions. Some did not consider President Todd $100,000 a gift but simply what was due the bank, others suggested that other directors pay a like sum. Mr. Kessen expressed his hope that it would not be necessary to call for a double liability and stated that the depositors would receive the amounts due them probably in certain per cent instalments. When the first payment would be made he could not say, but it would probably be some months.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Keeping the boy on the Farm; Some Suggestions Made

It needs only to be stated to be accepted as a fact that the educational and agricultural interests of Ontario are much better served by schools and with markets than is possible in the thinly populated west. The social and religious opportunities are also certainly greater. Everyone who knows this, and yet they go. "Why? Because, with all its outward show of prosperity and comfort, life on the farm is often too narrow, cramped, dull and depressing, and without hope. In the mere work of the farm for instance, the father's word is law, and the ideas of his sons are too often overlaid with an easy contentment. "Oh, Dad seems to think we are still kids" is the secret, and sometimes spoken, rebellious lament of many boys in Ontario at this moment. He wants to be, first of all and above all, his own man, not his father's man, nor anybody else's man.

Increasing liberty and responsibility as the boy grows in years is the only solution. He will count any sacrifice well made or hardship well undertaken if, at the same time, he can feel his self his own man and express his own individuality, his own ideas, right or wrong, in his work. "Sam," said a farmer recently, "if you stay with me you will have this farm when I am gone; but, if you leave, you won't have it, or a single cent of my money, either." The son, whose name is not Sam, has gone west.

I know another farmer who had a brood of four boys, not only one, as in the other man's case. As soon as they were capable of looking after them, he gave one charge of the chicken house, another of the orchard, another of the dairy, and the fourth boy he gave two acres of land, which he afterwards increased on ten. He exercised a good deal of supervision over their operations at first, but when they were bent on it, allowed them to make their own mistakes. When he helped them he charged for his time, and made each lad bear all the expenses connected with his own private business. When they worked for him, he also paid them current wages. He kept showing them pamphlets and agricultural papers with articles bearing on their particular interests till he had cultivated in them an absorbing experimental interest in their work. They all won prizes at fall fairs, and three are still Ontario farmers of the most progressive type. The fourth is now a doctor, but it is still his hobby to keep chickens, and he often threatens his wife that he will drop his professional interests as there is more money in chickens. The wife is almost a cooer.

MONUMENT OF FARM WORK
Unless they have subjects of this or any kind to occupy their minds, boys on the farm are apt to find life dull and monotonous. They work all day, and have an hour or two to sit in the kitchen at night before their bed. Often there is not even a newspaper to occupy their attention. No wonder they rebel. Sooner or later, both to get labor and to keep young Ontario, shorter hours and good wages must come into the country, and the diversions introduced by games and sports, debating, library and agricultural societies must follow it as well. Social life and relaxation must be put on a broader, better basis. It can be, if earnest, intelligent men and women throughout Ontario would only act in like Nelson and Tinsler, and begin gunning things would be stirred up at any rate. That is what is wanted—that things should be stirred up. The farmer boy can be made to feel the strength of his position only by widening his horizon, and his salient, abashed silence before the well-dressed city visitor can only be overcome by accustoming him to dressing just as well for his evening expeditions to neighboring houses or to his debating dramatic or what-not clubs. The mere fact of being accustomed to it will dress clothes and a smart air of the slinger it gives the wearer. He will know that most city boys are not nearly so well placed as himself. Also, if he does go to the city, he would miss three country attractions, and, if his pride would let him, would go back.

THE SMALL HOUSE HUNT
Country life could be made far more attractive than it is without the expenditure of a six-penny. For example, I have learned that many of the best mansions on Ontario farms are ostentatious frauds. The old house was pulled down when the new one was put up, but in reality they are still living in the old one. They have never outgrown the small house habit. They live in the kitchen, except when there are visitors who must be impressed. The red-brick walls, spacious veranda and wide windows are hollow incoherencies that cannot hide the fact that the old frame, rough-cast, or log hut, as the case may be, is the real, though immaterial, structure in which they live. These farmers must learn the uses of a house; the chances it gives for privacy as well as for entertainment, and how in such a house the family life can expand to include a far greater variety of interests and enjoyments. The piano and the library are more important in the country than in the city. This, of course, involves the expenditure of money, but the farmer who can afford it would find it a judicious investment. He must learn how to spend money as well as make it. Many have learned, but the influence must spread. Farmers, school teachers, ministers, anyone, every one who sees the need, must get to work and stir, and keep on stirring things up. Any kind of a stir is better than stagnation. Much is being done, but far more must be done.—Times.

Are You a Dyspeptic?
Nine people out of ten suffer from dyspepsia and don't know it. Half the pale cheeks, poor appetite and sleepless nights are the direct result of dyspepsia. The cause lies in failure of the stomach and kidneys are clogged, and unable to do their work. Nothing puts vigor into those organs so fast as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They tone up the whole digestive system, regulate and strengthen the stomach, absolutely cure dyspepsia. Simple to take and sure to cure.—better try Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

REALLY NO PUZZLE AT ALL
Erudite Editor Arises to Explain Why Women Descend From Street Cars the Wrong Way.

"It makes us tired," wrote the editor of the Hickory Ridge Missourian, "when we see some city newspaper wondering why it is that a woman always gets off a street car the wrong way. There ain't no mystery about it at all. Our wife explained it to us years ago, and she never rode on a street car but once in her life, when she was visiting relations in Kansas city. A woman gets off a street car backward because she naturally grabs her skirts with her left hand. That's constitutional with a woman. Then she has to grab something with her right hand to hold on to, and that's the railing at the rear end of the car, so when she steps off she has to face the wrong way."

Where is Your Hair?

In your comb? Why so? Is not the head a much better place for it? Better keep what's left where it belongs! Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, quickly stops falling hair. There is not a particle of doubt about it. We speak very positively about this, for we know.

Ayer's
Formula with each bottle
Show it to your doctor
Ask him about it,
then do as he says.
Indeed, the one great leading feature of our new Hair Vigor may well be said to be this—it stops falling hair. Then it goes one step further—it aids nature in restoring the hair and scalp to a healthy condition. Ask for "the new kind."
—Made by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.—

Demiston's Breaking

The reception rooms of Chesham House were crowded. Certainly, so far as numbers had exceeded herself tonight. Everybody who was anybody was there—a Royal, a serene Highness, the latest craze in music hall artists, a prodigious musician, and Italian prima donna, and Lady Helena Desborough.

John Demiston stood aside, watching the throng as it passed from room to room. Demiston shrugged his shoulders impatiently, and wondered why he had been fool enough to come. But he became alert as he discovered Lord Borrowdale sauntered towards him.

Lord Borrowdale always sauntered! At last, murmured his lordship, hearing a sigh of relief. "I seem to have been looking for you for hours. I was told you were somewhere amongst this crush, but I began to doubt it."

Well! and have you seen her? The last question was put in contrast to his usually tired voice.

"Seen whom?" inquired Demiston indifferently.

"Oh come, Demiston your ignorance is overdrawn! Seen who? Why, Lady Helen Desborough, of course! She's the only woman here tonight worth looking at. 'Pon my word! she is simply superb. There isn't another woman in London can touch her.' Really my dear fellow," Demiston said, chaffingly, "your beauties are like the stream—they run on forever. I never see you but you have a fresh one to spring upon me. Besides, as you know, speaking indifferently, 'beauty does not appeal to me. I decided years ago that no woman should interfere with my career, and so far I have kept clear of them.'"

"Wait!" exclaimed Borrowdale quickly.

"Some day you'll meet the right woman—you'll take the fever lady, too, or I'm much mistaken; then your career may go anywhere!"

"Do you think so?" John Demiston asked, with an uplifting of his square shoulders. "Nay! I have no time for beauty worship at present; and to me they are all alike, those women who make of their beauty a sort of profession selfish arrogant, often vulgar and unscrupulous."

"Ah well!" you always were a queer sort of chap and he looked intently at Demiston as though the latter were some newly discovered animal. "But the way, have you heard the Lord Southbrook is the latest addition to her host of victims?"

"Surely not!" cried Demiston, in surprise.

"Just now, too when so much depends upon you. He had better retire into private life at once," he continued into a tone of disgust. "A man is leading strings to a fashionable beauty might as well be dead as far as politics are concerned. We've had had examples enough heaven knows—petticoat influence has been the ruin as some of our ablest politicians."

"Bah! what fools men are! Lord Southbrook—it is incredible." "Don't excite yourself! Demiston," cried Borrowdale, coolly, smiling at the other's warmth. "The old boy has done nothing criminal, after all. He shows no taste; at any rate he appeared attentive last night; in fact he was—"

Then that accounts for his tardy appearance at the House last night, and we were within an ace of being counted out, God!"

"Yes, but it gave you your chance, Demiston, so why grumble?" put in Borrowdale. "And by Jove! You made the most of it. How the Opposition must have squirmed in their seats. Everybody declares you made the most telling speech of this session. Well, old fellow, it's one more step towards Cabinet rank, eh?"

"I did my best, and, yes, I think I did hit the Opposition pretty hard! But I tell Borrowdale, we were in a corner. I never felt so nervous in my life. If Southbrook had been much later—a few more minutes—and Lady Helen Desborough might have been the means of overthrowing the Government. She may be as beautiful as Helen of Troy but she won't chain me to her chariot wheels."

"Ah, Lord Borrowdale here? And your friend?" said a soft, sweet voice behind them.

The two men started and spun round on their heels. John Demiston felt his heart beat quickly and the blood begin to run riot in his veins as he looked at the woman before him. She stood there in all the pride and insolence of her matchless beauty, with a tantalizing mockery leaping and dancing in her great dark eyes. Lord Borrowdale had spoken truly when he asserted that Lady Helen Desborough was the most beautiful woman in London.

"Your friend?" The soft silver voice spoke again, and though the words were addressed to Borrowdale, the woman kept her winking glance fixed on Demiston.

Lord Borrowdale made no known to each other and smiled covertly to himself as the humor of the situation struck him.

During the next two months, John Demiston was Lady Helen's shadow. Wherever she was there also was he to be found, and it was noticed and commented upon by those interested that every one around her had to give place to him!

As a cat might play with a mouse, so Lady Helen Desborough delighted to play with John Demiston. She gloried in seeing this strong man helpless before her, and she laughed triumphantly when she heard the whispered sneers, or saw the significant looks which already began to be associated with John Demiston's name, for during these two months he had completely lost his hold, and had fallen from the high esteem in which he was previously held by members of the government. His duties were neglected, his seat in the house was rarely occupied and his reputation was shattered.

Yet one more chance was given to him! Lady Helen had been entertaining a small party of friends. The hour was late, and one by one her guests took their departure, leaving John Demiston alone with his hostess. Something in Lady Helen's manner made him bold tonight.

A few minutes later a note by special messenger was brought hurriedly to Demiston.

It was from the prime minister requesting his presence at the foreign office immediately.

Just for a moment, as he read the note the woman close to him was forgotten.

"Any answer, sir?" inquired the waiting footman.

Again John Demiston hesitated and was lost.

"No answer," he said hoarsely, and Lady Helen turned away well satisfied.

Almost before the door was closed behind the discreet servant, John Demiston was at her side. His breath was coming in quick pants, his whole being on fire with passion.

"You see!" he said in a low, strained voice. "You see! I have done this thing at your unspoken behest. Say—at least tell me you wished me to say. I was not mistaken—you wished me to stay?" he continued devouring her face with hungry eyes. "Lady Helen—Helen I have stayed—at the cost of—My God! at what a cost! Did you understand what it meant when with your glance you bade me stay?"

"And do you regret?" she asked, all so soft. "If I wished you to stay a little longer, is the privilege dearly bought?" She looked at him again, and as she stood there in all her seductive beauty, John Demiston went man.

And Lady Helen Desborough smiled, the mocking devil in her eyes danced as she listened to the man's flow of words.

Up-to-Date Shopkeeping

On a certain block in Boston are two rival candy stores, each doing a considerable business and each trying to outshine the other in artistic and striking window displays. The manager of one of these stores scored heavily on his rival recently when he resorted to a regular dime museum trick to attract the crowd. The exhibit was a young woman who arose out of the show window and was apparently cut off at the waist. Thousands flocked into the store to buy candies and find out, if possible, how the trick was worked.

A somewhat different exhibit was a young lady in a picture hat and a pink ball gown, rocking herself in the show window of a drug store and holding a lap full of a brand of new perfume. Again, a different exhibit was the automaton used by a big fur company to draw crowds to its windows.

The human automaton was dressed in the garb of a Roman gladiator, sword, helmet, and metal shield included. His act consisted simply in assuming picturesque poses befitting the character he represented. By long practice he had mastered the infinitely difficult trick of staring in almost indefinite time without winking his eyes. To this feat add the extraordinary attire and a marvelously true imitation of the awkward jerky motions of an automaton, and you have an idea of the interest this display created along a crowded street.

Thinking up a good show window exhibit may seem like a tremendous feat. As a matter of fact, the only difficult is that the problem is so simple. One little wide awake cigar and tobacco dealer in Newark, New Jersey, simply tears the pages out of funny papers and pasts them on the inside of an upright sidewalk showcase. Another makes his own cigars and advertises this fact, and attracts attention by having his workbench right in the show window where hundreds a day stop to observe the play of deft finger of a rarely seen mechanic.

Not infrequently the up-to-date merchant finds upon search that he himself or else one of his friends has some sort of exhibit connected with a hobby that would be sure to draw attention. One all round clever merchant who sells shoes in a New Jersey town is widely known as an expert chicken fancier who exhibits at poultry shows throughout the country. His chickens take many prizes. Whenever cups and ribbons are awarded to him he exhibits these in his show windows.

Simple schemes by which show windows are made to attract attention number legion. Many are time honored. An installment piano store in Baltimore one day took its pianos out of its show window, draped it scarlet and placed a three foot high jar of dried lima beans in the middle of it.

The idea was that the public should come into the store and register in a big book their names and addresses, together with one guess each as to the number of beans contained in a jar. Upon a certain date the contest was to close, when any one who had guessed the exact number of beans in the jar would be presented with a four hundred dollar piano, while those coming within one hundred of the right number would be presented with coupons good for one hundred dollars on any piano in the store. More than four thousand persons entered and made the acquaintance of this store inside of three weeks and thereafter, for a time, this agency sold an unusually large number of pianos.

Incidentally, this same window display is used with the slight variation of substituting for the jar of beans a heap of pens or, in agricultural districts, instead of a prize being offered for guessing, the contest consists in seeing what lady bring in the biggest hen's egg or the longest ear of corn. But these various schemes however effective, are almost too simple to mention.

There are said to be many blessings in disguise. What seems to be needed in acquaintance with the person who supplies their masquerading costumes and try what a little mazzama applied on the side would do.

If a few drops of glycerine be added to the starch for linens it will be found that the iron will not stick, and that the linens will have a beautiful gloss after they are ironed.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Bloating, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

Funny Sayings

Of Children

A teacher was explaining to the class the circulation of the blood, and said: "Now, scholars, when I stand on my head the blood rushes to it and makes my face red. Why is it, when I stand on my feet, the blood doesn't rush down and make them red?"

"'Cause your feet ain't empty," said a voice in the rear.

Little Willie had a very pretty governess. On April 1st he started his mamma by rushing in to her and saying: "Oh, mamma, there's a strange man upstairs who has just put his arm around Miss Wilson's waist and kissed her several times."

"What?" said the mother as she jumped to her feet.

"April Fool, mamma," said Willie, in great glee. It wasn't a strange man at all; it was papa."

"Snarl" is a despised dog, even among dogs. The human "snarl" is always shunned by his fellow beings, and has but little influence which always takes a form of a dark shadow—there is no sunlight in "snarl's" souls.

The doctrine of never worrying is most pernicious. It is simply the overworldy that is to be avoided. No worry is callous indifference to the sufferings of others.

If you would cash in a good string at the end of the day you have not time to sit round deploring or watching to see how the other fellow does it.

Just plain, everyday hustle, coupled with good natured tolerance of people and things, is what shows results. An empty head is the hardest kind of a head to get an idea into for all the room it has.

There are plenty of fools in the world. Why add to the number?

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

OAK BAY

When Jacob Young removed to Boston, some sixteen years ago, Dr. M. L. Young purchased the homestead, for a summer resort. This season he has a force of men at work making large improvements. In addition to re-modeling the house and barn, twenty-two hundred feet of pipe has been laid from a never failing spring to carry the water driven by an hydraulic ram that sends the stream twenty feet above the buildings. It keeps constantly at work!

"Men may come, And men may go, But I go on forever."

Is the song it sings. The work of laying the pipes was intrusted to Allen Grant of St. George, who has made it a complete success. Driving along the road looking down the vale, you are captivated by the natural scenery.

Miss Lizzie Wilson, teacher, of St. Stephen, spent Sunday with friends in this vicinity.

PAINT PAINT

INVESTIGATE BEFORE YOU BUY!

In these days of sharp competition, it is well to know that you get what you pay for. There are so many brands of house paints on the market, now-a-days, advertised as "pure" (but little better than "dope"), that a man ought to investigate what he intends to buy. We suggest to those about to paint, to make a practical test and convince themselves. Buy a small can of

The Martin-Senour 100 Per Cent Pure Paint, and one of any other brand with which you may have been favorably impressed, selecting about the same colors, and paint a few feet. Carefully measure the paint, so that you use no more of one than you do of the other. Thus, with the conditions the same, you can determine for yourself which paint has the better body or covering capacity; which is the easier brushing out and has the better finish. If you do not decide in favor of The Martin-Senour 100 Per Cent Pure Paint, we will return the money paid for the can of the Pure Paint used in making the experiment. We have no doubt as to your decision, and are prepared to supply you with the BEST PAINT on the market.
