Yesterday the labor men of this city and all over Canada and the United States celebrated the one holiday of strength displayed. It is two years the year which exists as a legislative acknowledgment of the dignity and and this tended to increase the interest nobility of labor. The day was observed in this city by a demonstration that was surpassingly creditable to the forcefully home to the average laylabor men of London, and indeed to man the magnitude of unionism in this the city itself. Many citizens who city. stood upon the streets yesterday at noon as it passed by asked with no inconsiderable feeling of pride, if it was possible that in all the thousands First Called Labor Day in New York in Sepof places on this American continent where similar parades were being neld there was a finer looking lot of men, more manly, more respectable, or more intelligent. It was not more local pride which impelled the belief that the men of London equalled in physique, dress and general appearance those of any other city. Those who looked, felt that it was so and accordingly gave every credit to Labor whose day it was. The labor men of this city gave one more illustration yesterday of their ability to do well anything which is undertaken by them. It is impossible for any other body of men to get up on the occasion of a monster parade a demonstration similar to that of yes- of labor organizations, given under the tember, 1882.

HOW THE DAY WAS NAMED

In celebrating the day the labor men were observing a holiday which is comparatively young as most holidays go. In Canada it has existed as an established legal holiday for only eleven years. The interesting story of the birth of the holiday in America was told in The Advertiser of Saturday, and the same article tells of how the day got its very suggestive name. It is that the real origin of the celebration dates back five years previous to its formal establishment, and the birthplace of the day was in New auspices of the Central Labor Union of New York on Sept. 5, 1882. The General Assembly of the Order of the Knights of Labor was in session in New York at that time, and the labor organizations paraded and held a pic-nic, at which addresses were made. The gathering was the first general one of organized labor in the city, and the delegates to the Knights of Labor convention were invited to review the parade. The invitation was accepted and the general assembly adjourned to witness the first Labor Day parade. ful, far and away more successful than During the time the organizations any that has ever been held under were passing in review before the their auspices before. The comment is that Robert Price, of Lonaconing, which was most frequently heard as Md., turned to Richard Griffiths, the general worthy foreman of the Knights, and remarked: "This is Labor Day in earnest." The phrase stretched so far that one could not Labor Day in earnest." The phrase caught, whether it was the first time see its beginning and its end, was that it was used or not, and Price is credit-the unions of this city must be flour- ed with having christened the day, ishing today more luxuriantly than in and the event was afterwards referred to as Labor Day parade. The following year the organization paraded and celebrated on the same day, and it was again designated as Labor Day. Although the holiday was legally born in Canada only eleven years ago, it was recognized by organized labor many years before as one of the greatest of national holidays, and in recog-nizing that it is but fit and proper that the toilers should have one day in the year consecrated to leisure, the government has but ratified the decree of the people.

When the first Labor Day demonstration was held in this city it was by no means the prodigious affair that yesterday's was. It was an extremey modest celebration in which only four unions took an active part, and who shall say that the men who marched in the parade of that day ever thought that in one brief decade it should swell into a tremendous event, the numerical strength of which should be counted by thousands instead of

Notwithstanding that their numbers were small, the labor men of that day were big in energy, in confidence and enthusiasm and their outing was so successful that in the following year seventeen organizations participated, and since that time the celebration has grown more and more popular and pretentious. This year more than twenty unions were represented in the parade, and the membership of them has increased much faster than the (Continued on page 8.)

TRADES UNION CONGRESS. London, Sept. 2.-W. C. Steadman's residential address at the Trades Inion congress today was pessimestic in tone and included a general denunciation of the present Government's reactionary measures, such as the education bill, the sugar tax and the grain tax, which he described as being an endeavor to permanently relieve the rich at the expense of the poor. Mr. Steadman denied that trades unionism was destructive to British commercial supremacy, as charged by the London Times and other papers. The only means by which they could hope to secure relief from their burdens was, Mr. Steadman added, to constitute themselves a great political force. During the consideration of the pariamentary committee's report a motion to omit referring to the coronation of King Edward, on the ground that references to monarchial institutions were out of place in a labor assembly, was defeated by 162 to 69 votes. An amendment declaring that the South African war was unjust was carried by a vote of 176 to 134. WELCOME RAIN.

New York, Sept. 2.-Thomas Kennington, 36 years old, a tailor, hiving at 324 East Forty-second street, went into a little restaurant at 619 Second avenue Sunday morning and ordered a 15-cent steak. While he was eating it the proprietor of the place approached him and rid himself of a joke about the beef trust. The joke struck Kennington just as a piece of steak was helf way down his throat, and when he laughed the meat strangled him. The proprietor and the waiters slapped him on the back and tried every means they knew to relieve him, but didn't suceed, and he became unconscious. An ambulance rushed him to Bellevue Hospital, where the surgeons performed an operation. trachea was opened and the beef removed: He will get well.

WANT BIG MORTGAGE. Albany, Sept. 1 .- After listening a few minutes to the application of the promoters of the New York and Canadian Pacific Railroad for permission to issue a mortgage for $25,000,000 to build a road from Suffern, Rockland county, to Ogdensburg, St. Lawrence county, the State railroad commission adjourned the hearing until Friday, Oct. 3. Verplanck, Colvin and John W. Van Valkenburg, of this city, and John M. Boyce, of Gloversville, appeared for the proposed road, and Geo. H. Walker, representing the New York Central, opposed the application. He said that the railroad had no existence, and could not show any maps of its route. In 1866 the New York and Albany, the Albany and Schenectady and the New York and Northern railroads secured charters from the Legislature, and in 1890 these paper roads were consolidated under the name of the New York and Canadian Pacific, Messrs. So effective has been this soil from their farms and left them

Lewis C. Burnett, of Otoe county, in a published letter, insists that the impairment of the soil in this manner this year far exceeds the loss caused

"The surface soil that is washed off with each rain or flood," he says, "is to the earth what cream is to milk, and while the subsoil is rich and with plenty of manure and good cultivation can be made to produce good crops, eventually, the black earth, which it has taken ages to prepare for the use of man, can never be reproduced. The loss will not be felt in diminished crops this year, but the soil will never be as good as before, and the droughts of coming years will hurt the farmers worse than ever.'

It is agreed by the experts that the only way to save the black soil for Nebraska is to build dams that will catch the sediment before it goes into the Missouri. This is comparatively inexpensive, but involves a great deal of labor. The farmers have been engaged in recent years in tiling and ditching their lands, and this system, while abolishing chills and fever, has robbed the land of its natural storage reservoirs and impoverished the soil. By a creek which empties into the Missouri, Charles Clayton, of this county, has a 400-acre farm which he "built" by the use of dams. This year he has caught 18 inches of soil-wash on an 80-acre farm. His whole farm is made up of washings from his neighbors' holdings. He has built up his farm until it is beyond the reach of high water. One 200-acre field of corn this year will yield 80 bushels to the acre, while none of his neighbors will go over 50. In one part of his farm is an 8-foot fill.

AT PHILADELPHIA. Labor Day was generally observed here by the various trades unions, and more than ordinary interest was displayed in the celebration from the fact that John Mitchell, President of the United Mine Workers of America, was the central figure of the demonstration. The weather was perfect, and it is estimated that 15,000 men participated in the street parade of labor organizations. The principal event of the day was a picnic at Washington Park, on the Delaware River, where two addresses were made by President Mitchell. All of the noney collected during the festivities will be devoted to the cause of the striking miners. AT CHICAGO.

More than half the usual business of Chicago was at a standstill in honor of labor. The plants of nearly every industry represented in over 300 local labor unions as well as all banks and the stock exchange and board of labor celebrated its annual holiday. During the morning hours a great throng of workingmen passed in review through the down town streets.

A novel feature of this parade was a

Health-Seekers Were Wedded on the Way to Colorado.

Vineland, N. J., Sept. 2.-When the family physician announced that Miss Nellie Fenton must go to Colorado if she expected to regain her health, the and as the officer essayed to follow her heart of Timothy Carey sank within him, for he had been paying attenti to Miss Fenton. The more he thought of the situation the worse he felt about it, and he evolved a plan to cast off the gloom that beset him. "I'll go, too," said Carey, "for I don't believe my health will be any too good in this climate now. A party of friends was made up to accompany Miss Fenton, and Carey's persistent pleadings, seconded by those of his sweetheart, won their consent to his joining the party.

On the train en route from Vineland to Camden, Carey and Miss Fenton sat together, and they suddenly surprised their friends by announcing their engagement. At the depot in Camden they gave further astonishment by stating their intention of getting married "right away" by the first clergyman they could find. So the party of tourists accompanied the couple to the residence of Rev. Charles Bowden, where they were made one. Lawyer Edgar R. Jones, of Vineland, acted as best man, and Miss Ruby Fenton, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Immediately after the ceremony the party of tourists went over to Phila-delphia and boarded a train en route for Colorado.

A Food Thoroughly Relished by All Classes.

Up-to-date ideas crowd thick and fast on the people of progressive communities. The strongest, most sensible and most popular one, that has seized the public is the determination to make Malt Breakfast Food the first dish at the morning meal. When the many positive advantages of Malt Breakfast Food are considered, the new and upto-date idea is worthy of all encouragement by those who value health, vigor and robustness. The best medical men heartily indorse the fact that Malt Breakfast Food is the true health food, and results amply prove it. See

STRENUOUS RIDE FROM NEW YORK

The Son of Cleveland's Mayor Is Persevering.

LOFTIN JOHNSON'S EXPERIENCE

After a Journey Full of Stirring Incidents He Managed to Bring the Auto Home.

Cleveland, Sept. 1.-Loftin Johnson the only son of the mayor, has returned to Cleveland, says the Plaindealer, after a most exciting tour as a chaffeur, wherein he had gone through eyperiences as various as stirring.

Young Johnson has been spending five weeks in New York with relatives and friends. He decided to end his visit strenuously, and enlisted the aid of two friends. His plan was to make the trip home in his automobile. His companions were Charles Cordier, jun., companions were Charles Cordier, Jun., and Linn Miller. They were not able to take the entire trip, and before many days on the road they were glad that it was so. The three left New York a week from last Sunday. The start was made from the Waldorf Hotal At first everything went as At first everything went as smoothly as an idle summer's dream.

Then came the awakening.

At Poughkepesie Cordied decided that his business affairs were such as demanded his presence at the mitropolis. His decision came at just the presence for from then on the way tropolis. His decision came at just the proper time, for from then on the way of the two remaining chaffeurs was thorny indeed. Up to that time the travelers had spent their nights in comfortable hotels. Thursday night, however, overtook them before they reached Buffalo, as planned. A cold, driggling rain made its appearance, and drizzling rain made its appearance, and added to the general discomfort of the

A camp a la fresco was necessary. The automobile was drawn up on the grass beside the narrow road. Here the tired chaffeurs slept as the rain poured down. The lights of the auto were kept alight, so that no midnight speeders might run them down. There was not much room at the roadside, and travel was too close for comfort or safety.

Buffalo was reached on Friday. Here the party remained three days and a half for repairs. It was necessary to send to Cleveland for several parts to replace broken machinery. It finally came, and after considerable tinkering, the trip was resumed. Twenty-five miles out of Buffalo the machinery broke again. Then there was more waiting until the damage was repaired. After that the run to Erie was uneventful. At this point young Miller decided that he too must go to New York, and Loftin Johnson was left to get home alone. The prospect did not daunt him, and he decided to break all records between Erie and Cleve-

He got as far as stop No. 7 on the Shore line, just east of this city. Nothing had broken, and he was just con-gratulating himself upon ending his long trip overland with a flourish. Of course, the steerage apparatus broke at this critical juncture, and young Johnson was left helpless. An exam ination revealed the fact that further progress that night would be impossible. He went to the nearest tele-

After a long wait a handsome landau drawn by horses in silver-studded harness, and driven by an immaculate coachman, in whipcord, was speeding toward stop No. 7. But that is not exactly the way in which the mayor's sen finished his automobile trip. He, ike his father, is not the kind that gives up. When he decided to get from 1) e Waldorf Hotel to his home in Cleva-land, nothing short of that would do. Stop No. 7 was not near enough. So yesterday morning he journeved out lo stop No. 7. He tinkered with the proken steering gear, and a few hours later steamed triumphantly up the graveled road in the ruts made by the 93 miles from landau the night before. He came just 80 minutes. in time to be one of a luncheon party given by the mayor.

The Unhappy Burden-Bearer Must Make Choice.

ANTI-AUTO SOCIETY

Has Been Organized to Protect Life and Limbson Long Island.

New York, Sept. 2. — To protect the public against reckless chauffeurs, the Long Island Highway Protective Society has been incorporated by several leading residents of Long Island. The principal office of the society will be in Counter Bay.

be in Oyster Bay.

Townsend Scudder, former representative, who is counsel for the society, said the purpose of the organization was to co-operate with the authorities in enforcing the speed limit law, not apply a setting automobiles, but else only as affecting automobiles, but also reckless driving of fast horses. Queens and Suffolk Counties, he said, nad spent $11,000,000 on roads, and they had been made useless for pleasure driving by reckless chauffeurs and men who like to speed fast horses.

Horses Killed by Bees.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 1.-During the past week two horses belonging to Charles Fairbanks, a farmer residing north of this city, have been stung to death by bees. One was killed out-right and the other rushed in his madness incident to the stinging into a wall and received injuries from which he died.

Socialist Ticket Named.

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 2. - The state convention of the Socialist Labor party put in nomination the following ticket: Governor, Daniel Delean, of New York; lieutenant-governor, Chas. H. Corrigan, of Syracuse; secretary of state, E. L. Lake, of Schenectady; treasurer, L. A. Borland, of Troy; state engineer and surveyor, Chas. Rubey, of Rochester; attorney-general, John E. Wallace, of Schenectady.

DEAL DANGER AND DIRT

Pure Food Commission Is Investigating Soda Fountains.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Dispensaries of "soft" drinks are being investigated by the Illinois Pure Food Commission. The belief that impure liquids are offered for sale at many of the soda fountains during the summer months led Commissioners Jones and Patterson to start an inquiry. Inspectors have obtained samples of flavoring extracts and other ingredients that go to make up the drinks, and these will be analyzed by the commissioners' chemist, Dr. E. N. Eaton.

It is thought that acids dangerous to health are placed in some of the concoctions, while intoxicating liquors are said to be sold at a number of fountains. The investigation is only begun, and the gathering of samples will continue for another week. If the analyses show a large per cent of acids in any of the flavors arrests will follow.

"The people have little idea of what they are getting at many of these soda fountains," said Assistant Commissioner R. M. Patterson. "Not only is it probable that dangerous acids are used in flavors, but the sanitary condition of some of the fountains is bad. It seems the interiors are seldom cleaned, and at a number of places there were coats of verdigris, the accumulation of years, inside the tanks."

Died at Family Prayer.

Toledo, Sept. 1.-Herman Canfield Sprague, member of the big lumber firm of MacLaren & Sprague, died here last night, aged 63. He had just finished leading evening prayer with his family and had just uttered the "A" of amen when he fell back dead with the family kneeling around him. He was one of Toledo's foremost business men for the past 40 years.

ROBIN TACKLES HEN-HAWK Redbreast's Successful Fight to Save

a Chicken.

Lachine, Que., Sept. 2.—It is well known that the hawk, no matter how fierce and big he may be, has no terror for the kingbird. It is a common sight in the springtime, when they breeding, to see one of these plucky little chaps mercilessly following, pecking and driving away a great bird of prey a dozen times its size. A merchant who was camping out on the Chelsea Hills learned that the kingbird is not the only small bird bold enough to attack and drive away the robbers of the air. The man was approaching a farmyard one morning for his supply of poultry drew his attention to a large hen-hawk which was sailing away and almost a physical wreck, must with a good-sized chicken in its talons. The poor old hen was doing its best to prevent the raid. With much squalling she ran along, and tried to use her clumsy wings in flight after the thief. Just as the hawk rose to the level of the tree tops a robin, which had evidently been taking measures to assist the hen mother, sprang from a limb right atop of the hawk, with a shrill cry of rage. So fiercely did the game redbreast use its sturdy bill upon the hawk's back, at times even alighting upon it, to peck to better advantage, that after a good deal of maneuvering, finding it impossible to escape this persistent foe, it dropped its prey and turned upon the robin. But the brave little bird was by no means fighting for fighting's sake, and as soon as the be living today if it had not been for chicken had been restored to its your wonderful medicine. For a long mother darted back to its tree and began a song of rejoicing.

A New Cereal in Kansas. Topeka. Sept. 1.-Ex-Congressman

Case Broderick, of Holton, who owns an 80 acre farm in Jackson County, experimented this year with emmer (speltz), the new cereal of Kansas. He planted 33 acres of it. He has just threshed the crop. The output averaged 32 bushels to the acre. The grain had the appearance of barley and is said to make a better feed for stock than oats, weighing about 40 pounds to the bushel. The straw was heavy and will make better feed than oat or wheat straw, and is prolific in quantity. This grain, which is of Russian extraction, was first sown in the United States by Russian residents of South Dakota. Many farmers who have been watching its growth are pleased with the new feed. It stood the cold weather of spring remarkably Oats grown in the same vicinity stiff "lodged" considerably, but ommer held its awn despite wind, and did not gust.

ST. PAUL BEATS THE ETRURIA IN

Officers Say No Race, But the Passengers Thought It Was.

NOTABLE PEOPLE ON BOARD

Among Them Were the Earl of Rosslyn, Who Is to Play Under Mr. Frohman.

New York, Sept. 1 .- The St. Paul of the American Line and the Etruria of the Cunard Line arrived at quarantine Saturday within fifteen minutes of each other, thus ending what the passengers regarded as a race between the two. The officers of both vessels said it wasn't. If it had been the St.

Paul would have won. She was about abreast of Queenstown last Sunday when the Cunarder was coming out, and that gave the passengers a chance to figure on where the two vessels would be when they finished. At dawn Saturday morning they sighted each other. The Etruria was astern and both vessels were making their best speed. The Etruria was sighted 21 minutes after the St. Paul at Fire Island, but cut this down six before Quarantine was reach-

The earl, who has only been recently divorced, has had a varied career. At the outbreak of the South African war he went to the Cape as a newspaper correspondent. This is his first venture on the stage.

GOVERNOR HASTINGS. Former Governor Hastings of Pennsylvania returned on the same steamer. Regarding the coal strike, he said he was out of touch with the situation. He favored arbitration on all such questions, but he could not tell whether the present strike was of a kind to be settled in that way.

John D. Rockefeller, jun., and his bride were also on the St. Paul. On the steamer La Savoie, which arrived the same day, was Miss Lulu Glaser, the actress, who is to open in "Dolly Varden," at the Victoria Theater, on Sept. 22. Miss Glaser said she had had a good rest and said she would like to play "Dolly Varden" forever. After playing here two weeks she will go on a tour. She was the winner in an exciting ping-pong tournament on the voyage.

Other passengers were M. Vignal, military attache of the French embassy; Senator Thomas Kearns, of Utah, and Capt. Benito Silvain, who he is on Emperor Menelik's staff and is going to lecture on Abyssinia

"The humilating assertion is male "The humilating assertion is male by some that there are certain offices, like guardianship over undeveloped peoples, imperatively needing to be shouldered by some nation or other, for which a republic is in its very nature unfit. What is that but proclaiming popular government inferior to monarchy. The Monroe doctrine itself cannot be maintained permanently save by a foreign policy which dares look abroad. Territory lying near us will sooner or later tempt hither the old world's powers, when we shall be forced either to abandon the doctrine or fight to uphold it. Alliances will then likely be welcome even should then likely be welcome even should they threaten to be 'entangling,' and in spite of ourselves we shall become parties to the European system.

"Should we in some kind and conservative way lift the Stars and Stripes near enough to Central America to put all Europe's national colors in the shade there, the act would not necessarily have an immoral mean-ing."

Then clting a hypothetical case with England trying to better these Central American States, he added:

"I do not wish conquest or believe that it will be necessary, yet, let the emergency suggested come and we shall act. The alternative clearly being the Union Jack shading our Southern border, as it now does our Northern, or a more scientific Southern frontier for ourselves, the people of these United States, sons of the sires who, in field and in legislative hall, helped the immortal Washington to become father of a country; sires who boldy acquired Louisiana, Florida and Texas; sires who on yon blue Lake Erie water one day met the enemy and he was ours, a victory repeated at New Orleans-sons of those sires, I called to decide between more British bunting before our windows and a more spacious residence for ourselves, will make quick and honorable choice."

With the first paragraph quoted no one will quarrel, but why these swashbuckling references to Great Britain? They resemble a cheap Fourth of July oration more than the well-weighed utterances of a university professor, seeking to rightly inform the minds of students. Not only are they in bad temper and spirit, but they have no practical relation to the subject. Great Britain has no designs on Central or South America, and is the only European power that has virtually assented to the Monroe doctrine as interpreted by the United States. It is eye in this respect. In Australia, as pretation. The snapshot picture, how-Germany, not Great Britain that is in Canada, there is probably a sectooking with longing eyes on South tion which would advise taking John America as a field for colonization and It is Germany that will challenge the Monroe doctrine if it ever is challenged. It would be better for the world if some of the quarrelsome and wretchedly incompetent republics to the South were dominated by the United States, Great Britain or Germany, so as to inforce order and security of properity, the absence of which prevents anything like the full development of their rich natural resources. What progress they can show has been Infused into them chiefly by British and German enterprise. The United States has issued its flat that no European power shall acquire territory terming naturalized citizens as reneor extend its possessions on this continent-a purely arbitrary assumption, which cannot be deduced from the or-Iginal Monroe-Canning agreement-but ent jurist must appear peculiarly felicihaving warned Europe to keep its havior of its troublesome wards and compel them to respect their internakional obligations and protect foreigners in property rights. If the United States cannot or will not do this, other gests the thought that Labor Day powers should have a free hand to discipline them.

United States' Railways.

The annual report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for 1901, just published, is replete with interesting statistics of railways in the United States. On June 30, 1901, the total single track railway mileage in the United States was 197,237.44 miles, this mileage having increased during the wear 3.891.68 miles. This increase is greater than that for any other year since 1893, excepting 1900, when it was 1,051.12 miles. Including tracks of all kinds, the aggregate length of railway mileage was 265,366.29 miles. There was an increase of 6.581.99 miles in the aggregate length of all tracks, of which 2.766.84 miles, or 42.03 per cent, were Que to the increase in yard track and sidings. During the year 87,565.78 miles of line were reorganized, merged, consolidated, etc. On June 30, 1901, there were 39,584 locomotives in the service of the railways, which was 1,921 more than were in use the preceding year. Of the total number of locomotives 10,-184 are classed as passenger locomotives, 22,839 as freight locomotives, 5,-959 as switching locomotives, the remainder, 602, not being classified.

The total number of cars of all classes in the service of the railways on the date stated was 1,500,833, an Increase of 99.995. Of these, 35,-69 are assigned to the passenger service. 1.464,328 to the freight service, and 50,536 to the immediate service of the railways. These figures, however, do not include cars owned by private companies and firms that are used by

The number of employes was 1,071,-169, or an average of 548 per 100 miles of line, an increase of 53,516 employes over the previous year. The wage bill | college of this immense army was $610,713,701, or $33,448,880 more than in 1901. "Yes, but he got him a job as carpenter afterwards." br $33,448,860 more than in 1901.

standing on June, 30, 1901, was $11,-688.177.991, or $61,528 per mile. This suggests a liberal amount of water in the stock. There were no dividends on 48.73 per cent of the stock and the dividends on the remainder totaled $156,735,784, an average of 5.26 per cent. The number of passengers carried in 1901 was 607,278,121, an increase for the year of 30,412,891; tons of freight carried, 1,089,226,440, a decrease of 12,-The gross earnings were $1,588,526,037, an increase of $101,481,223; the operating expenses $1,030,397,270, an increase

During the year 2,675 railway employes were killed and 41,142 injured. The number of passengers killed was 282 and the number injured 4,988. Other then passengers and employes 4,135 persons were killed and 7,209 injured. This makes the total carnage for the year 8,455 killed and 53,339 injured-a terrible record. One out of every 400 employes was killed and one out of every 26 injured.

Sir Edmund Barton on the Conference.

Sir Edmund Barton, the Premier of Australia, who has arrived in Toronto, freely discusses the work of the Imperial conference and corrects the common impression that it has been without practical results. He gives the fullest outline of the proceedings that has yet been made public and his statements are authoritative. Far from the conference being barren he declares that advances have been made in several directions and that the representatives were well satisfied with the progress attained. In regard to commercial questions he says the conclusions point to a trade preference being adopted by the selfgoverning colonies which have not yet acted in that direction. He intends to present such a plan to the Australian Parliament. Not only that but there is a recommendation to the Imperial Government and Parliament to reciprocate. Sir Edmund adds:

"Any preference given to imports from the United Kingdom by a selfgoverning colony will be regulated in all respects by its own parliament. This is a recognition, of course, of the autonomous rights of the free British community outside the United Kingdom, and if we ourselves claim the right of determining the method and extent of preference which we shall grant, it would be strange indeed if we made the least pretense or attempt to dictate to the great Parliament of the United Kingdom on the same subject. We shall endeavor to serve each other as best we may, re-lying on the United Kingdom to make such substantial recognition of our good will as she can in return.' This is the statesmanlike view of the question: the Premier of Australia and the Premier of Canada see eve to Bull by the scruff of the neck and forcing him, if possible, to act against his own inclinations, under the penalty of colonial displeasure. This sort of stand-and-deliver Imperialism, happily for the empire, has no official voice or sanction. The colonies would resent any dictation from the British Government, and as Sir Edward Barton points out, the colonies in turn have no warrant to dictate to the Imperial Parliament.

The Detroit Free Press gives Colonel Denison a rap over the knuckles for gades. "In view of the efforts made by Canadian authorities to attract immigrants the utterances of this emintous to the Government," says the Free hands off, the United States should Press. The worthy Colonel deserves hold itself responsible for the good be- the rap and that's the worst part of it.

The Snapshot Problem.

[Washington Star.] The snapshot photographer has placed a serious problem before the public men of today. No amount of intellectual superiority can render a man quite oblivious to the consideration of personal appearance. When the por-trait painter was the sole personage who assumed to place the lineaments of celebrities before the popular gaze, the task of heightening agreeable traits and softening defects was easy. The ordinary photograph is more candid, but is still amenable to artistic interever, has the disagreeable habit of catching its subject at the greatest possible disadvantage, and it is doubtful whether a man who has so distinguished himself would not display wisdom in lending himself freely and with as good a grace as possible to the general merchandise was on the down artist whose friendly intentions are backed with a reasonable degree of skill. There is no use in defying the photographer. The best plan is to sacrifice diffidence and make his aurreptitious attacks unnecessary.

In cases of national emergency Great Britain must continue to place great reliance upon voluntary patriotism. This is in effect what Mr. Chamberlain said in his address to the Birmingham Ambulance Brigade, but as his remarks were open to misconstruction he has been asked to explain them. The passage in question was that in which the colonial secretary declared that the nation would not sanction the expenditure necessary to be fully prepared to meet an exceptional emergency like the South African war. He now says his meaning was that the nation would not consent to maintain a standing army of a quarter of a million men in time of peace, and such force would have been necessary in South Africa. In that sense the words were true, and he meant them to be understood in that

CHANGE OF LIFE

A Time of Interest and Great Importance to All Women.

Wrecked health is produced by neglect during this trying period, and Graham started from the whirlpool small wonder that women look forward with dread to its coming, for if not made the initial swim through that properly passed, it is but the beginning portion of the gorge. of an endless chain of troubles. As soon as the unmistakable signs appearance, Ferrozone should be used regularly, and if persistently taken will be a guarantee of happy, healthy,

Nothing can bring more pleasure than to know that the days of sickness and suffering are over. This can best be accomplished by building up the system with Ferrozone, which produces blood, muscle, tissue, and strength to resist and ward off disease. Ferrozone increases the appetite. strengthens and improves nerve tone and digestive processes, thereby strengthening and invigorating the whole system. It gives tone to the heart regulates its action, removes distressing palpitations, and it lays the sound foundation to perfect health. Ferrozone is a sensible and efficient tonic; it brings back strength very quickly, and few people are so strong and healthy, that they would not be benefited by not using it.

Be advised and try Ferrozone. It is very pleasant to take, one tablet after each meal. All reliable druggists sell it for 50c. per box, or three boxes for $1.25. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

IN NIAGARA'S LOWER RAPIDS

Detailed Account of Graham's Latest Swim.

FROM WHIRLPOOL TO LEWISTON

Disappears From Sight a Few Secends Beneath the Waves-His Seventh Venture.

Niagara Falls, Sept. 2 .- While a large number of people witnessed the second swim of Carlisle D. Graham through the lower rapids of the gorge, from the whirlpool to Lewiston, Sunday afternoon, a still larger number did not see him. The reason for this was that the greater number believed Graham would swim the rapids, which is that portion of the tumbling waters be-tween the railroad bridges and the whiripool. It was in this part of the river that Capt. Matthew Webb lost his life July 23, 1883. Graham has been through the whirlpool rapids in a barrel several times and knows too much about them to risk his life there without proper protection. The cliffs and bridges were lined with humanity, but above the whirlpool saw nothing of the performance on Sunday.
Graham went down the gorge early in the afternoon. He dressed for his swim by putting on a life preserver and a life ring. A crowd stood about him. He entered the water on the American side of the whirlpool, a few hundred feet up from the turn of the outlet. At a signal from a moving pic-ture machine, on a flat car, that all was ready, Graham walked into the river at 3:30 o'clock. The current quickly picked him up and the next minute he was being hurled down stream and through the long sweeping wave that forms at the outlet to this river poc-

IN THE RAPIDS. After passing this he floated in boiling but comparatively quiet water for a mile or more, until he reached Fos-ter's Flats, where, old fishermen say, is "the nastiest bit of water between the two lakes." Graham met the waves bravely. He rounded into them and then went out of sight. It seemed minutes before he reappeared, but the time was brief, and his movements told the anxious spectators that he was all

When he had left Foster's Flats behind, Graham had an easier task, and he floated with the current, now and then turning and throwing his arms about. The route he took was well over toward the Canadian side to avoid the rocky ledges along the American shore. Opposite Queenstown Heights men in a boat took him in tow at the end of a rope. Nearing the dock he again began to swim. People cheered as he

This was Graham's second swim from the pool to Lewiston, his first having been made Sept. 7 last. While attempting this feat James Scott lost his life Aug. 19, 1886. This was the seventh time Carlisle D. Graham, the Philadelphia cooper, risked his life in the tumultuous waters of the Niagara gorge.

PREVIOUS VENTURES It was on Sunday, July 11, 1886, that he made the first barrel trip through the rapids. Three years before that, on July 24, 1883, Capt. Matthew Webb, the brave English swimmer, had gone down to his death in the gorge. At 3:50 p.m. Graham and his barrel appeared on the current drifting with awful rapidity toward the whirlpool, which everybody thought would kill him. It took eight minutes to reach the pool. Three minutes later the barrel had escaped the pool and was rushing on toward Lewiston. Twenty-four minutes later Graham was taken out of the barrel at Lewiston in prime condition. Previous to this the only persons who had been through the rapids and come out alive were Joel R. Robinson and his associates, McIntyre and Jones. who took the Maid of the Mist through the gorge on June 6, 1861. To the surprise of all Graham announced a second trip, and made it on Thursday, Aug. 19, 1886. This time he kept his head out of the barrel. has never heard a sound in one of his ears since that day, a great wave dashing upon him and, it is supposed, breaking the ear drum. On this second trip he left the barrel at the pool. His third trip was made on June 15, 1887, stopping at the whiripool. rested two years, and on Aug. 25, 1889, he made his fourth trip. He used at much smaller barrel and went all the way to Lewiston. His fifth trip was made July 14, 1901, on which day he

On the afternoon of Sept. 7, 1901, Graham performed his dual act in the waters of the gorge with Maud Willard. This was Graham's sixth adventure in the rapids, and Miss Willard's first. She died in the barrel, as it floated about in the currents for five hours. While the barrel was still in the pool outlet and swam to Lewiston, and thus was taken from his barrel in the whirl-

Graham is growing old, and his career at Niagara is drawing to a close, known to all women make their first but it can be said of him that he never flinched and never disappointed an audience that had gathered along the banks to see him plunge through the torrent of Niagara.

Commission Will Be Purely a Military Body.

President Wants the Army to Construct the Big Ditch.

Hotel Champlain, N. Y., Sept. 2.-The President and Secretary Shaw were at Dr. Seward Webb's place on the lake, but many of those who have ac-companied the President through his trip remained at Burlington. Those who have been closest to him have been much impressed with one or two things which are regarded as certain to happen if he remains of his pres-ent mind, with regard to the Panama Canal Commission and the supreme court bench.

According to the New York Sun's informant, who is not a person whose name is less known in California than it is in Florida or Maine, the President has determined to make the Panama Canal Commission a purely mili-tary body The army is to build the canal. In this way has the President talked. The man for the head of the commission must be a man in whom the President has unlimited faith. There are a great many men in the army who have the President's confidence, but none on whose honor and integrity he leans more heavily than on Gen. Leonard Wood, his boon companion and comrade-in-arms. He would like to make Gen. Wood chairman of the commission; at least, that has been the conviction of those with whom he has taken counsel. There is some talk as to whether there will be room on the commission for anybody who is not a military man.

Float and Twelve Cars Sink. New York, Sept. 2 .- A New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad float, sank in the slip at the foot of Clinton street yesterday. The float had just reached the pier from the Hariem vards when it sprang a leak and began to settle. The bow of the float had been made fast, and when the water began to pour in the stern sank below water while the bow did not. This started the freight cars moving. Five on one track broke the bumper and slid into the water. Two went to the bottom at once and the others floated about in the slip until tied up to the piers. Of the seven cars left on the float five were practically submerged.

The cars contained odd lots of general merchandise, including considerable hardware and paper. Most of the merchandise was from the New Eng-land States. A wrecking company sent a tug to raise the float and cars.

A correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung (Berlin), writing from Manila, replies to the charges of cruelty on the part of the American army appearing in European newspapers. He says: Perhaps no other nation except the United States would have had the patience to meet the stubborn resistance of the Filipinos in Samar for two long years with such humanity as, upon the whole, has been the case. It is not to be wondered at that the American leaders finally let their gall run over at the treacherous tricks played upon them and adopted sharper measures. Of course some excesses occurred, but it is highly inadmissable to select these few cases and serve them to the public as typical of American war making." The correspondent also emphasizes the injustice of expecting Americans to observe in every case the rules of civilized warfare while fighting such a foe. The writer praises the political shrewdness, combined with moderation, of making surrendered insurgent officers governors of provinces.

GOOD BILL AT SPRINGBANK. The attractions at the Springbank theater this week are brightened considerably by the comedy juggling act of Darmody and Coreno. United States. DR. LESLIE'S WORK. An Advertiser representative called on the missionary at his mother's home the other day and learned some interesting facts about his work in this far away region. The mission has met with almost unexpected success, and is now in as flourishing a condition as any in the state. A staff of five English-speaking people control the mission and are assisted by a native staff of 50 teachers, who after going through the training school connected with the mission, are sent into the outlying districts to help control missions and carry on evangelistic wok. They have met with great success, considering that they covered a native of twenty-one days. He was remanded.

The work is extremely hard, but as the mission is now in the 22nd year of its existence, the natives are becoming more civilized works are called, are very intelligent and learn quickly. They have high foreheads and bright faces, and adapt themselves very quickly to the methods of civilization. Until a comparatively short time ago the richness of a man was judged by the number of wives he had. Now polygamy has been stamped out, at least in the immediate vicinity of the mission, and the natives are married under the laws of the state.

NATIVES ARE HARD WORKERS. The principal industries of the people are rubber-gathering, hunting phants for ivory and cultivating sufficient vegetables and fruit for their Steamships, the size of ocean liners, from the coast. Seventy miles up the river from Mattadi Dr. Leslie's mission is situated. Most of the traveling betwere these points is done on foot. A day in Congo is about the same as a sweltering hot day in Canada, and this weather holds good all the year round, although the nights are very cold. The excessive heat brings hordes of "Anofyle" mosquitoes, and the mosquitoes bring malaria, for the cure of which quinine is used. These 'anofyle" mosquitoes are the only kind that carry the disease. Another dis-tressing malady is the sun fever, a disease peculiar to the tropics. For the treatmenut of these and other diseases Dr. Leslie erected a dispensary, where oftentimes he treats over 250 patients Other dangers, besides disin a day. eases, beset the resident at almost every step. The region is infested with herds of elephants, leopards, buffaloes and crocodiles, with all of which the

New York, Sept. 2.-Mrs. Ollie Mason, of 380 Hooper street, Williamsburg, attempted to commit suicide early Sunday morning by swallowing carbolic acid. She is 33 years old. She is the daughter of an East River pilot, flamed Taylor. When the roller skating craze struck the town about eighteen years ago, she frequented a roller skating rink in Grand street, Wiliamsburg.

She was then a very pretty girl of 15. and one night, after skating all the evening,, she and George Mason, a young electrician, eloped and were married by the late Rev. J. J. White, known as the "marrying parson" of

A Cold Bath on a Hot Day.

A cold bath on a hot day is refreshing. Every pore of your body is more open in hot weather and requires more frequent cleansing than in cold weather. The pores in hot weather absorb more freely than in cold weather; it is therefore most undesirable, after taking a morning bath, to cover the body with underclothing that has been washed with adulterated common soap. For comfort, cleanliness, and free-dom from skin disease, the clothing worn next the skin should be washed with a pure and well-made soap. If Sunlight Soap be used in the laundry your pores shorb purity.

Some were to drive, others ride. Miss Montrose, being an excellent horsewoman, preferred to ride, and, of course, Mr. Halstead was in duty bound to accompany her. The morning was charming; everybody paperienced the most delightful anticipa-tions, and even Arthur himself felt a Bense of exhilaration as the horses were brought around to the door, and Ida, more beautiful than he had ever seen her before, involuntarily turned to him and put out her gloved hands to him for assistance in mounting. She were a habit o, very dark brown, closed to the throat with rose-pearl but-tons, her polished linen collar simply fastened with a beautifully carved pin of blood-red coral, which gave a charming dash of color to the creamy face above. Her hat was of brown felt, just the shade her dress, with an elegant feather dead white coiled about it and droop-Ing gracefully at the back.

She made a perfect picture, mounted by the shifting chestnut steed, a tremu-lous smile upon her scarlet lips, a ten-der, half-conscious light in her wondrous eyes, as she bent slightly forward to re-ceive her whip from Arthur Halstead's

A thrill of pain shot through his heart as he looked upon her, and then caught sight of his own and her father standing upon a balcony watching them; and a hot flush mounted to his brow as he saw them turn to each other, speak a few words, and then clasp hands, as if al-ready they were congratulating them-selves upon the speedy consummation of eir hopes.

"Audrey, Audrey!" his soul cried out, yearningly, as if somehow he felt her slipping away from him, "I am true to you—I shall come for you—I shall never swerve a hair's breadth from my allegi-

The ride to the lake was delightful, the road winding now through fairy glades, now over picturesque hills, or by the margin of some silver stream, while a continual feast of beauty was spread out before the eye. Never had there been a gayer, happier or more buoyant party, all young, and with life spreading out rosily before them, while, as they alighted by the margin of the beautiful sheet of water where they were to spend the day, not one dreamed of the sad drama which would there be begun, to result in long years of bondage and sorrow to one, at least, of their number.

least, of their number.

They were to take boats for a sail, and to visit a large island and some ruins, which, tradition said, had once been a Spanish castle, and which attracted romance-loving visitors in large numbers every year.

There were two boats awaiting them, and these were managed by experienced boatmen, who, during the pleasant months, gleaned a plenteous harvest in this way, and by acting as guides to parties.

These boats were quickly filled by the leasure-seekers, and when Arthur Halced and his companion, who had been little behind the others, owing to one of the horses getting a stone in his shoe, arrived on the spot, they found that there was not an inch of room to spare in either.

"What are we going to do?" he asked of one of the boatmen, his tone betraying something of the annoyance which he The man looked at them meditatively a moment.

"Can you row?" he asked.

"Like an old sailor." promptly responded the young man.

"Well, then, I've got a little boat down well, then, I've got a little boat down yonder," pointing to a tiny craft which was rocking upon the water not far from them, "I call her the Fairy Queen, and she's just big enough for the two of ye. You can take this key, go and get her, and come after us. And," he added, with a shrewd smile and a twinkle of amusement in his even se he sterrord into his ment in his eye, as he stepped into his own boat, "methinks ye needn't fret over much at being left behind with a bonny

Ashout of laughter went up from both boats at this sally, while some of the gav company began to banter them, and affirm that there might have been more method in their seeming misfortune than had at first appeared. Arthur gave one glance at his com-panion's face. It was like the glow of sunset upon snow. Then he turned away toward the boat more disturbed and angry than he would have cared to have shown, while the other boats pushed away from the shore with their merry Arthur found the Fairy Queen a dainty little craft, worthy of her name, and, having assisted Miss Montrose to enter, having assisted Miss Montrose to enter, he grasped the oats, and with swift, unering strokes, betraving the practiced oarsman, he sped lightly over the water and soon overtook his companions.

Arrived at the island, everybody was soon ashore, and it was the work of only a mement to pass the chain of the little boat around a post at the landing, turn the key in the padlock attached to it, and thus fasten it securely, as Arthur thought, and then he followed his companions up the hill toward the ruins, which were at some distance, and where they were to lunch.

which were at some distance, and where they were to lunch.

But he had not fastened the padlock securely—he had not turned the lock at all, and as the Fairy Queen danced lightly upon the waves the padlock worked itself loose—the chain gradually slinped until it freed itself from the stante. and then, like a mischlevous sprite, she floated stealthily away until far down the island a gust of wind swept her into the island a gust of wind swept her into a little vine-covered cove, where she nestled cozily beneath the cool shadows, and lay like a fairy asleep and wholiv unconscious of the harm that she was thus bringing upon two innocent people. For an hour the party wendered about exploring the rulns, gathering vines and grasses and flowers, and then they had their lunch—a bounteous repast prepared by skillful hands, and fit for royalty by skillful hands, and fit for royalty

After this they lounged about for a time, chatting in groups, or resting pre-During lunch, Ida had descried, hanging from the rude wall of a portion of the old ruins, a cluster of bright scarlet

"We can try." he answered, willing to gratify so slight a request, and so they had wandered away after dinner to see what the prospect was for securing those coveted blossoms.

They found a place where several huse blocks of stone had fallen from the wall, making a sort of rude staircase, and, with a little dexterous climbing, they thought they might accomplish their purpose. "Let me go slone and get them," Ar-

"No, pleas let me go, too—I shall like the adventure: besides. I have a notion that we shall see something fine from the top of that wall," Ida returned, with animation, and she instantly began the But she was panting with fatigue when she at last stood upon the summit.
"You are tired—it was too much for "You are tired—it was too much for you," Arthur said, noticing that she was pale. "Bit here," he added: "there is one stone higher than the others, and it will make quite a comfortable seat for you."

"Yes, I am tired," she assented sinking wearily upon it. "I never could keep pace with pleasure parties, and mamma cautioned me to remember it this morning before starting: I had not thought of it since, however, I have enjoyed everything so much. But, oh!" she exclaimed, with a sudden delight, her creamy face taking on that rosy afterglow again, "what a view! I told you I thought we should find something fine up here. I shall care for nothing else if I may only sit here and enjoy this."

And truly it was a scene to be long remembered.

The ruins were upon a bill, and the eyes roved over the scene.

"It is worth climbing for," he said,
"and you shall sit here as long as you like."

Hie leaned over as he ceased speaking, plucked the flowers—a great, massive cluster of deepest crimson—which she had coveted, and laid them in her lap.
Can you not see her there sitting among those vine-covered stones, that siemer, graceful girl, in her brown dress, with that creamy face, that dead-white plume floating from her hat, those vivid blossoms lying on her lap?

soms lying on her hat, those vivid biossoms lying on her lap?

It was a picture that an artist would have loved to paint.

"Oh, thank you; they are very beautiful," she cried; then her great lustrous eyes wandered off again to those distant hills. Suddenly they heard their names called from below, and, looking over the wall, Arthur asked what was wanted. The party was going to visit a grotto about a mile up the island, and they wished him and Miss Montrose to accompany them.

"Will you go?" he asked, turning to She glanced up at him, flushed slightly, she granced up at him, flushed slightly, hesitated, then answered:

"If you do not mind. I would prefer to sit here and enjoy this view until they return. But," she added, "do not let me keep you. I shall not mind staying alone, and the place may be of interest to you." No; I shall stay with you," he answered, quietly, but feeling very uncomfortable, nevertheless.

It would seem ungallant be the

It would seem ungallant, he thought, to leave here there alone, even if it would not be absolutely unsafe. He turned again to those below and called out:

"Miss Montrose is weary and not equal to the long walk, so we will remain to the long walk, so we will remain where we are while you are gone."

"All right," was the response from below; "only it will take us some time to go, and we shall return, the guide says, by the way of the Witches' Glen."

"Very well: then we will meet you at the boat-landing," Arthur returned, and as their friends trooped away, he seated himself near his companion, and they fell to talking of various things.

Miss Montrose had been an extensive traveler; her power of description was vivid and inspiring, and Arthur soon found himself listening to her with an interest that was absorbing.

"What a beautiful, talented girl she is." he said to himself, but no tenderer sentiment than admiration thrilled him. He simply admired her as a lovely, gifted He turned again to those below and

The time flew by on magic wings, until the sun began to slip down behind the distant hills, and warned them that they ought to have gone to the boat-landing

CHAPTER V. Arthur perceived the shadows lengthening about them, and looked at his watch.

It was half-past four.

He started up, a half-guilty feeling in his heart that he should have allowed himself to be so beguiled into forgetfulness. He turned the face of his watch to-"It is more than two hours since the party left us to go to the grotto," he

"It cannot be possible!" his companion "It cannot be possible!" his companion replied, in surprise, and then, meeting his eyes, she blushed like a red rose.
"I am afraid our friends have returned, and will think we are not very prompt about keeping our promise," he said, turning quickly away from that glowing face, the sight of which sent a thrill of keenest pain through him. "I should have supposed, however, that not finding us at the landing, they would have sent someone in search of us." he finding us at the landing, they would have sent someone in search of us." he added, as she arose, and he helped her down over the rough rocks.

It was a work of time, though, and much more difficult than the ascent had been, and she was panting again, like a frightened bird, when she reached the ground. "You are very tired. You cannot be very strong to be so easily wearled," he remarked, regarding her with some con-"My lungs are not very strong," she answered, smiling; "but I am so much better now than I have ever been before that I feel as if I am going to be a robust woman yet. I find that going up and down stairs, or steep places, is the hardest task I have to do."

After resting a few minutes they proceeded on their way, but they missed the right path and wandered some distance before they discovered their error. but finally setting themselves right, they hastened to the boat-landing, where they expected to find their friends impatiently But what was their consternation upon priving at the water's edge, to find that they had all departed, while their own

"What can be the meaning of this?"
Arthur Halstead cried in perplexity and accretly indignant at what he considered a very annoying practical loke.

PLAYER INJURED. During the progress of the game between the Londons and the Aberdeens at Tecumseh Park yesterday, Thomas Dewan, of the latter team, collided with Evans and broke his collar bone. He will be out of the game for some time. ANCHORS WON AND LOST. The Anchors played a double-header at Strathroy yesterday and succeed-ed in breaking even, winning one and losing one. In the morning they put up a loose fielding game, and fell down on easy chances, the result being a defeat by a score of 6 runs to 2. The afternoon game, which was watched by a large crowd, proved a close contest, but the Anchors connected heavily with Lucas' choice curves and won out by 8 runs to 7. Facts to Tickle

The Fans' Fancy.

Van Haltren, the veteran center fielder of the New York nine, who broke his leg in Pittsburg in May, will more this season. has signed a New York contract for 1903 and left for his home in Oakland. He will play ball as usual on the Pacific coast this winter to keep in practice.

Many managers have cut Rube Waddell's acquaintance. Hart, of the Chicago National League club, who at the present time holds his signed contract for this season and a receipt for money advanced, when urged to prosecute Rube for obtaining money under false pretences, declared that he never wanted to meet the young man again, even in a police court.-Exchange.

There comes a wail from every section of the Eastern League circuit over the inefficiency of the staff of umpires provided by President Powers season. Frank Rinn is unable to control the players, while Umpire Coxis likewise without influence. Nothing proves so unsatisfactory to spectators and all parties interested in the game as poor umpiring, and it is a matter of great surprise that more men can-not be found who can fill this position acceptably.-Sporting News.

Jake Drauby has been released by Newark. The big fellow let down in his batting, and a guardian of the initial cushion must be a consistent hitter. Ed McGamwell is playing the position. The new first baseman played in the Eastern League last season, and had a batting average of .279 in 23 games. His fielding figures were .842. Early this season he was signed as a first baseman by Rochester, but was released when Ed McKean was signed. Of late he had been playing first for semi-professional games around Philadelphia. A sample advertising bill of Connie Mack's team: "Remember, ladies and gentlemen, that the big show at Twenty-ninth and Columbus avenue begins at 2 this afternoon. Here we have the original 'Rube' Waddell, pronounced by the press and indorsed by the public as the gayest deceiver that ever went into a box; 'Socks' Seybold, sometimes called a human freight car, and the leader of the American ous to mention."-Philadelphia Inquirer. Billy Keeler, of the Brooklyns, declares that the Cincinnati right field is the hardest field to play of any in the National League today. "The old Cincinnati right field was pretty tough," declared Keeler, "but the present one is much worse. It is a hard matter to see a ball until it gets above the stand, and by the time it gets that high it has gone some distance." It will be recalled that the sun field on the old Cincinnati grounds was responsible for the quick deterioration of "Dusty" Miller, although other causes contributed to this. It would be rather hard on the Cincinnati club should the same fate overtake Crawford, who is by far the best right field-er that ever donned a Red uniform.

"Bad Bill" Eagan is once more in jail, the charge against him now being stealing eight brooms at Detroit, Mich. He has lived in Detroit for several months, devoting most of his time to devolve notes in a small combined. dealing poker in a small gambling-room. This is not the first time that the old Syracuse second baseman has been in trouble, but he declares that t is the first time he has ever been charged with stealing, and this seems to distress him more than any of his previous escapades. Eagan wore a dismantled Panama hat. "I paid $35 for that hat on a pinch," he said. "I am going to quit drinking in the fall. and then with a little work in the winter I may break into the game again in the spring. I'm not all in." Syracuse Herald.

gine, and there followed a general mix-up. The accident happened at night, while the men were in their berths. Pitcher Pappalau was thrown against the side of his berth, and had one of his ribs fractured, which may keep very unusual for an accident to hapsure sign of good luck. - Syracuse

Charley Marston, of Fall River, with whom Lajoie played before he was sold to Philadelphia, always goes to Boston to see him play. He said to your correspondent today: was always a natural hitter. When he was with me he could pound the ball safely more times than any other member of the team. And he had so much confidence in his ability as a hitter that he would frequently pick out wide ones to hit at. Oftentimes he made safe hits on these same wide ones. When he didn't and he would come back to the bench, I'd reprove him for going after the bad ones, but he would laugh and reply, "I can hit 'em all if they come within reach of my bat." I frequently see him; every time he comes within 25 miles of Fall River he drops around to see me, and he's as modest a fellow today as he was when I first knew him."-Cleveland Plaindealer.

Congalton, the star right fielder of the Colorado Springs Millionaires, now here, has made a name for himself all over the league by his heavy hit-ting. Congalton played with Minneapolis last season and was sold to the Philadelphia National League club. Tom Burns got him from that club about the middle of the present season, and Congalton has made good with the Springs team. He is batting over the .350 mark, and is one of the heavy hitters of the league. He is also a fast man on the bases. In one of the recent Denver games at the Springs Congalton got two home runs, a three-bagger and a single, off Whitridge, and would have had another single had not the umpire given him the worst of the decision on first base. As it was, he got four hits out of five times at bat, for a total of 12 bases and scored seven runs.-Milwaukee Journal.

THE TURF.

THE GRAND CIRCUIT. Hartford, Conn., Sept. 2.-The $10,000

Futurity for 3-year-olds was the fea-ture of the Old Glory event, which opened the Charter Oak Grand Circuit meeting here yesterday. A field of eight starters in this race was simmered down to three in the final heat. Gail Hamilton took first money. It was a great race, heart-breaking finishes | 122 characterizing a majority of the heats. | 1:14. John Mc. was the favorite. John Mc. and Gail Hamilton fought it out, and the battle between these two colts was a royal one. It took six fatiguing heats to settle the question of supremacy. Summaries:

AT KENILWORTH PARK. Buffalo, Sept. 2.-The second day's racing at Kenilworth Park was satisfactory to the talent, but rather disastrous to the books. A couple of good things went through during the day without a hitch. In the third race, at a mile and three quarters, over the hurdles, the Canadian contingent were on hand to play Gould. It made a number of the books rub before the bell rang for the start. Harvest Moon refused the first hurdle and Neponset fell over the last hurdle, giving Gould practically a walkover for the money. The other good thing came off in the sixth race, when Glenwater was backed until the books refused to take any more money. It was an easy win for Glenwater. as the unions of railroad men, iron molders and others found it impossible to join with their comrades in celebra-tion of this great national holiday.

THE MANAGING BODY

The Trades and Labor Council Which Organized the Demonstration.

In 1896 the unions decided that the observance of Labor Day would be more fully representative than it had previously been were the management of it to be solely in the hands of the Trades and Labor Council, instead of by a joint committee of delegates from the various unions. Labor Day that year was so distinctly successful that the unions have never returned that he old reade of management, and to the old mode of management, and the splendid affair of yesterday was again controlled by the Council. The Trades and Labor Council is an organization, of which little is heard, except at times, such as yesterday, when its influence upon the city is definitely felt. The Council had its birth at the time of the great Knights of Labor boom some dozen years ago. the splendid affair of yesterday was again controlled by the Council. The of Labor boom some dozen years ago. Very few trades unions existed in this locality at that time, and the Typographical, Iron Molders and Cigarmakers' unions took hold of the then growing movement in the hope that it would accomplish the organization of the masses who were not affiliated with the labor movement. A number of assemblies having been instituted, a legislative council was organized, composed of three delegates from each ssembly, and after this body had been in existence for some time, it was deemed advisable to have a central body to represent the Trades Unions as well; hence, the Legislative Council having paved the way and performed its mission, it was dissolved and the Trades and Labor Council took its place. The new organization did not survive without severe internal dissensions, and at one time, so strong had feeling become, there were only two bodies of working men represented in it. This period of adversity was followed by one of even greater prosperity, one union after another 16-turned, advancement became stealy and sure, until today the Council is larger, stronger, and more influential larger, stronger and more influential than at any other period in its history. By means of its various committees a keen eye is kept on all matters of legislation and new unions are being constantly instituted through its instrumentality. In its ranks are to be found the most forward and strudy of the champions of labor, men who possess the confidence and esteem of the workers of the city. The practical work of arranging for and managing the de-monstration yesterday was left by the Council in the hands of competent sub-committees.

COMMITTEES AND OFFICIALS. The general committee was directed by James Baker, chairman; William Burleigh, vice-chairman; Ed. Hayden, treasurer, and R. Ingram, secretary. Other members of the committee were George Hill, W. Crossland, W. Mc-Geary, J. Baker, W. Burdick, J. Mc-Kenzle, J. Forrester, Ed Cookson, Wm. Lyons, Thos. Chrysler, Fred Littleton and J. Lochlane. The judges were Messrs. Burdick, Insell, McGeary and Griscombe; the judges of the unions in the parade were Messrs. J. Baker, J. Marks and Charles Hensall, and ex-Ald. Hugh Stevenson, Ald. Henry Dreaney and Mr. Thos. Chrysler were starters and judges of the racing. Each of these

Mr. Wm. Burleigh, president of the Trades and Labor Council, was the narshal of the day, and it speaks well for the executive ability of himself and his lieutenants that the procession started from the market square within a few minutes of the scheduled time— 12:30 o'clock. The unions were divided into three divisions in the neighborhood of the market square, where they were skillfully marshaled together and the parade started eastward on Dundas street toward Queen's Park. In the parade were many of the old-time organizations, which have been the bone and sinew of trales unionism in this city for many years.

THE CIGARMAKERS' UNION. The Cigarmakers' Union, one of the pioneer organizations, presented a very striking appearance, on account both their numerical strength, which far surpassed any other union represented, and their attractive dress. These men represented an industry in

The first union of eigar-makers in London was known as No. 19, and was organized in 1878 with about 30 members. It continued in operation with varying success for eight years, and was dissolved in 1886. eight years, and was dissolved in 1536. The members of the trade were without organization until 1891, when with a membership of 25, Cigarmakers' Union, No. 278, was formed. Mr. Charles Meaden was elected president, and Mr. W. Lashbrook, financial secreand Mr. W. Lashbrook, inancial secre-tary. Since the reorganization the union has made steady progress, its membership increasing year by year. It is now one of the strongest labor organizations in London. THE BUILDERS' LABORERS' UNION. The Building Laborer's Union, which won second prize, in the parade, the Cigarmakers winning first prize, is first president. The growth of the union since that time has been most the membership at the gratifying, present being considerable over one hundred. The members of this union in particular have prospered during the exceedingly good times which Lon-don and all Canada has been enjoying. During all this year they have been exceptionally busy and none of all the men who walked in the procession yesterday merited their holiday more than the men of the Building Laborer's

PAINTERS AND DECORATORS. The union of Painters and Decorators, which was mentioned by the judges as deserving high praise for their appearance on parade, was high ly deserving of this appreciation, and well merited the applause which their appearance elicited along the line of march. The painters of London or-ganized their first union in 1887, but it existed only for three years and it was not until the summer of 1895 that they joined with the decorators and formed another union. The charter list had nineteen members, but this number has so largely increased that the union is now one of the best in the city. The man who had the honor of being the first president of this union was Mr.

Thomas Boone. BARBERS' AND BARTENDERS' UNIONS. Two other unions were deemed worby the judges of special mention for their excellent appearance on par-ade—the Bartenders' Union and the Barbers' Union. The former has been in existence for only a short time, but is recognized as one of the most progressive organizations in the city. The Barbers' Union is, strictly speaking, a new union, also, but as an association, not as a union, it has been identified with the Trades and Labor Council for many years, and the delegates have, on more than one occasion, taken a prominent part and rendered valuable assistance in various matters brought before that body. An association of barbers has existed in this city since as far back as 1872, the object of it being to regulate the hours of closing, but after continuing for some time it was allowed to lapse. About 1893 Messrs. John Farrell, Shack Martin, James Wilkins and William Brophy nterested themselves in the reorgan ization of the association, and mainly through their efforts the society was again set in operation. Mr. Shack Martin was the first president. Subsequently this association was converted into a union and now forms an influential part of unionism in this

OTHER OLD-TIME UNIONS.

Prominent among the other older unions that were represented in the parade was London Typographical Union, which so far as age is concerned may look with paternal eyes upon nearly all the others. As far back as 1869 the first meeting of printers employed in this city was held to consider the advisability of forming a union, and after fully discussing the proposal, an adjournment was made, and in November of that year a Typo-graphical Union was organized. Mr. graphical Union was organized. Mr. Thomas Coffey was the first president, and the charter members, some of whom set up their last "take" long ago, were: Thomas Coffey, Henry A Durnan, Thomas Ferguson, Robert O'Connor, Wm. Evans, H. C. Symonds EUREKA and James Mitchell. In January of 1870 the union celebrated Ben Frank lin's birthday by a supper, which any one who was present will say to thi day was one of the most delightful affairs in the history of local union ism. From its inception the union has been a power for good in regulating matters pertaining to the craft. Many evils which had crept into the trade in THE PARNELL-DEAN STEAM the early days were abolished through the efforts of the members. States have been members of the local Typographical Union. Today it is one of the strongest numerically as well as one of the most influential organizations in the city.

The Bricklayers' and Masons' Union, which made a very creditable showing members of the "Wine, Women and in the parade, dates its existence not members of the "Wine, Women and Song" Company, who left Toronto Saturday night to go to Troy, N. Y., had a startling experience at the Tenth street station here at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. They work riding in terday morning. They were riding in a day coach, and while their train was standing in the station a freight train came down the yards at a rapid rate, striking the car and throwing the members of the corrections of the corrections of the corrections of the car and throwing the members of the corrections of the corr bers of the company in all directions.

leadership in the union of well balanced officers. The first organization of tailors, whose union was well represented yesterday, took place in this city in 1888, when the need of the union became apparent to those employed at the trade, as there were grievances existing and it was thought that perhaps with united action a much better condition of affairs could be brought about. At the time mentioned t was subsequently decided to affiliate with the International Journeyman Tailor's Union of America. A charter was granted them in 1891. since steadily maintained its strength and influence. The local union owes much of its present prosperity to the earnest work in its early days to the late Martin Bird, who worked indefatigueably for its welfare.

These are only a few of the older organizations which helped yesterday to make the holiday of Labor successful and enjoyable. Many of the other unions which participated in the pleasures of the day have been in existence for many years while others—such as the Milkmen's Union—appeared on parade for the first time.

THE PROCESSION

London turned out "en masse" to view the monster parade, which was undoubtedly the attraction of the day to most people, nearly everyone being interested—employers wishing to see what sort of showing their men made and the children and wives of the workingmen, who were proud to see their husbands, fathers or brothers in the "ranks of the strong." No one was disappointed—the parade satisfied all who saw it. Nothing was done on a very elaborate scale, but everything was smart and attractive and the men had an air of alertness, which seemed to say that this was their day and they intended to make the most of it. All of them wore or carried some distinguished article, either a badge, coat, tinguished article, either a badge, coat, vest or apron or canes or umbrellas. Numerous vehicles of many descriptions representing nearly all of the city's commercial branches, and several large and exceedingly well-gottenup floats, formed part of the procession.

THE LINE OF MARCH. Mr. Wm. Burleigh, who was grand marshal, led the parade. He was fol-lowed by the Twenty-Sixth Regiment Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Pococke. Immediately behind came the various unions and the gaily decorated vehicles. First in Line was the Barber's Union, the members of which wore white coats and red, white and blue caps. They presented a very fine appearance. They were marshaled by C. T. Chrysler, and were about 50 strong. Next came the members of Stovemounter's Union, No. 33, 35 of whom turned out. P. Delaney was their

A band composed of local musicians, led by Mr. Fred L. Evans, followed, and played several pleasing selections. The members of the Cigarmaker's Union of London were next in the order of the parade, and were about 200 in number. They were the strongest in point of unmbers, and were the best-dressed union in the parade. They well deserved the prize they obtained as the best appearing union in the parade. John McKenzie was their marshal. The distinctive dress they wore excited much comment. wore black and white hats and large white aprons with large "blue labels" printed on them. The girls who beong to the union turned out for the first time in local history and conveyed to the park in hacks, hired from union hackmen. Following them came an immense float, neatly decorated with evergreens and white and blue ed with evergreens and white and blue bunting. A large "blue label" on each side was surrounded by various well-arranged designs. The float was constructed by Mr. J. Gray.

Bartender's League, No. 137 turned out about 35 strong. Their showing was very creditable. They were led by a tally-ho, driven by Mr. M. Gll-ligan. The success of their turnout was due to Messrs. Durban and Diknoether. They worked tirlessly in get-ting the employers of the men to let them off for the day. The bartenders wore white caps, dark suits with white vests, and their official button. Fred Harding acted as marshal. London Typographical Union, No. 133, marshaled by A. C. Clark, which captured the "best-appearance" prize for two years, turned out 60 strong. They wore no distinctive dress, thinking it wise to give the other unions a chance at the honors. Refreshments were served by the union to the members and their friends on the grounds.

Marshal W. Toll, led Bricklayer's and Mason's Union, No. 5, which was represented by about 50 members. The members of Boilermaker's Union, No. 203, turned out 36 strong. P. Ryan acted as marshal.

The Builder's Union, No. 8, were next in line, about 36 being in attendance. Their marshal was H. J. Hiscock.
Twenty members of the Coal Employe's Union, No. 7483, were next in the procession, and were led by John was well represented, about twenty of the members attending. D. M. Boyle made an efficient marshal. B. Lyons marshaled the 25 members of Metal Polisher's Union, No. 32, who were in the parade. Their appearance was very creditable, all wearing dark clothes and carrying canes.

For a comparatively new organization, Electrical Worker's Union, No. 120, looked fine indeed. They were

AT THE PARK. An immense crowd followed the procession to Queen's Park, where the celebration was to continue and during the whole afternoon and evening, the grounds presented an appearance very similar to that of one of the big days of the Western Fair. Thousands of people thronged the grounds, which were brightened with the booths and money-making establishments which spring up wherever people gather up-on such occasions, with the entertain-ment which the labor men had pro-vided. Grand Marshal Burleigh open-ed the afternoon's proceedings by a short address. Directly after this the sports were started and in a very few minutes everything was running in perfect order. The local labor unions were all represented in the races, and all the contestants entered into the sport with the same energy that charcterized them at work. For the past six months local racenorse men have been aching for an opportunity to get out and do some-thing with their trotters and pacers. Yesterday their opportunity arrived in the race for trotters and pacers 'arranged by the Labor Day committee. Such an interesting race as that which was seen was not expected even by the drivers themselves. Five horses started in the race, which was one of the "best three out of five" variety. the "best three out of five" variety.

Mr. Pashby, the well-known little stalion which has been owned at respective times by Robert Hueston, Robert Barnes and William Wilson, but which is now the property of R. Brooks, took the lead in the first neat and held it up to the south end of the back stretch, when Sister Jane sprang out from the bunch and went past him. Mr. Brooks, who was driving Pashby, quickly brought him to himself again, and passed May B., driven by Jack Allaster, who had gained to second place, but who broke about the middle of the back stretch, and gave Sister Jane, who was piloted by Wm. Collins, her owner, a warm chase, racing her almost neck and neck under the wire, failing to beat her, however. Jack McAllister had got May B. unto her feet again and come in a third very close up to the winner. Sim Kit, driven by her owner, T. Hamlyn, and Lucy, the property of W. Wilkens, guided by Driver Odell, finished fourth and fifth respectively. The race was decided in three heats, the second and third being quite as fast as the first. Pashby and Sister Jane fighting hard for the place. Sister Jane finished first in both heats and Pashby second. May B. got third money.

An odd coincidence in the race was the fact that the two horses that won first and second are full-blooded brother and sister. Both are from fine Southern stock and were imported to this country by Robert Barnes. A number of local race-horse people got a purse together and secured four starters for a running race. The committeemen agreed, knowing that such a race would give variety to the afternoon's events and would interest a large number of horsemen who were on the ground. The race was made a half-mile dash and was won easily by Belmont, owned by Mr. Stevenson, and ridden by young "Bunnie" Austin. The four got away well together, with Belmont leading, St. Ives second and Andeleer third. It looked for a while as if the race would be interesting. but an unfortunate mishap occurred on the back stretch. The girths of St. Ives' saddle broke, and her rider Cross, was thrown off. The horse is totally blind, and it ran into the fence on the stretch. The jockey was un-hurt. Belmont galleped home an easy. winner, with Andeleer second and The Sorely third.
