THE WRECKED FAST MAIL.

Seven Postal Clerks Have a Narrow Escape—Robbery the Object of the Boy Wreckers.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 20.—The boys who wrecked the New York Central fast mail, east, No. 6, near Rome yesterday say they intended to rob the passengers when the wreck occurred; but it being more disastrous than they expected, they became frightened and ran away. They have also acknowledged that they are the ones who attempted the wreck of a week ago last Sunday night.

There was eleven postal clerks and fourteen passengers aboard, besides the members of the crew. When the crash came engine No. 888 was thrown from the track into the ditch and completely submerged in the mire. The second car, in which the mail clerks were working, was thrown on the tender of the engine and badly demolished.

Engineer Hager was buried alive with his engine. His fireman was tossed in the air, and it is feared he is injured internally. The two tramps were mashed like flies. McCarthy was dead-heading, and asleep on a shelf. He was badly bruised. The eleven clerks were not hurt beyond the shock and bruises that they received. The passengers were rolled out of their berths, but not seriously injured.

Abdul's Appeal.

The Sultan of Turkey Writes to the British Premier.

His Majesty Wants Salisbury to Make Another Speech,

Modifying His Statements Uttered at the Lord Mayor's Banquet.

Comments of the London Press—The Letter Variously Characterized as "Pathetic," "Dignified," "Sincere," "Childish," "Undignified," and "The Message of a Cruel, Cowardly, Fanatical Tyrant."

London, Nov. 20.—An incident unparalleled in the annals of English diplomacy occurred last evening at the conference of the colonial agents in London. This was the reading of a letter from the Sultan of Turkey to Lord Salisbury, begging him to make a speech that would offset the one he delivered on the occasion of the banquet given by the new Lord Mayor of London.

Lord Salisbury referred to the impropriety of reading the letter at the conference, but he took advantage of the occasion simply to grant, so far as he could, the request made by the Sultan. At the outset of his speech, the Prime Minister said: "Allow me to say a word in answer to a very distinguished distant correspondent, if I may so term him, who has requested me to make a statement in some public speech. My correspondent is no less a personage than the Sultan of Turkey. I feel that there is profound impropriety in thrusting any diplomatic details on your attention, and I hope you will believe that nothing would have induced me to produce on this occasion the august message I shall read, except the distinct commands of the person from whom it proceeded."

Lord Salisbury then referred to the speech he delivered at the Guild Hall on the occasion of the banquet given by the new Lord Mayor of London on Nov. 9, and added: "His Majesty has been pleased to send me a message to say that he has been very much pained to read the report of that speech, and the expression of the opinion that the promised reforms in Turkey would not be executed. His Majesty desires it to be known that he is carrying out those reforms decided upon by him. He is desirous of executing them at the earliest possible moment, and has so repeatedly instructed his Ministers. His Majesty continues: 'The only reason why Lord Salisbury should thus throw doubts on my good intentions must be the intrigues of certain persons here or false statements made to cause such an opinion.' After the intermediate observations his Majesty says: 'I repeat that I will execute the reforms. I will take the paper containing them, place it before me and see that every article is put in force. This is my earnest determination, and I give my word of honor. I wish Lord Salisbury to know this, and I beg and desire his Lordship, having confidence in these declarations, to make another speech by virtue of the friendly feeling and disposition he has for me and my country. I shall await the result of this letter with the greatest anxiety.'"

When the Prime Minister had finished reading the letter he was greeted with loud applause. He then proceeded to say: "As you know, we are part of the concert of Europe, which has resolved, so far as it acts, to act with unanimity. Some persons imagine that we dispose of the decisions of the European powers. That is crediting us with more influence than we possess. Whatever is done must be done with unanimity. I do not admit that responsibility for any decision that the powers make rests entirely or mainly on this country. We and all the powers are in a position common to those who are obliged to act together, namely, that if others do not agree with them they cannot have their own way, but I in nowise desire to intimate by these words that the slightest shade of disagreement has arisen among the powers." Lord Salisbury expressed deep regret for the apparently irrecoverable illness of Rulstem Pasha, the Turkish ambassador to Great Britain. He could not help feeling that if men like Rustem Pasha had had charge of the districts in which the recent horrors occurred, the conscience of Europe would never have been tried, or its sympathies racked by the details of suffering and terror. "If," he continued, "there were men like Rustem Pasha near the Sultan, the problem would not be solved by external action of the powers, which is a clumsy device at the best. It would be solved by the natural operation of the councils of an enlightened Ministry, working through efficient and competent instruments. I do not see the men who are to replace Rustem Pasha. I cannot enter into the question why there are none such now. Twenty-five years ago there were several such. I exhort you to consider that the terrible Armenian problem is due as much to the want of competent men as it is to the want of adequate laws. The mere writing of new provisions and fresh decrees cannot supply the place, especially in eastern communities, of governors knowing how and having the courage and integrity to perform their duty. The powers will doubtless do their best, but do not imagine that the deep-seated diseases of the empire, can be cured by a wave of a magician's wand. The result of long years of error must be paid for, and the cruel law is that those who will pay are not those who were originally guilty of the offense.

Then turning to other matters, Lord Salisbury alluded to the agitation against the House of Lords. He said he did not deny the the Upper House was capable of improvement. Some improvement might well be made in its constitution, but the idea that one could straightway write upon paper a new assembly was a mere dream of doctrinaries.

Referring to future measures of naval defense, the Premier declared that no improvements of fleets and no combination or alliance of foreign powers ought to be able for a moment to threaten British safety at home. He believed that Great Britain was now more friendly with the world than she had been for some time before, but the nations were living in a period of transition. The mere fact that so much territory was coming into the market was a reason why every power, especially Great Britain, should be protected against every emergency. Not only in Turkey, but elsewhere, there was a tendency in the direction of change.

PRESS COMMENTS.

The Post: Nobody who considers eastern politics with calm, unbiased judgment will fail to be struck by the pathetic dignity and frank earnestness of the Sultan's message.

The Graphic: In writing these manly words the Sultan has rendered a signal service to himself, his country, and Europe.

The Telegraph: If words could cure the reign of terror, the Sultan's would be received with deep relief and congratulations throughout Europe.

The Times: The Sultan's unique appeal is a remarkable tribute to the influence Lord Salisbury wields in Europe. It may be doubted, however, whether his Majesty will be greatly pleased with the result. His plan has always been to profit by the dissensions and jealousies of the powers.

The Standard: There is a pathetic sincerity in the Sultan's combined protest and undertaking that cannot fail to win the respectful sympathy of Englishmen, but if Abdul Hamid had an intelligent grasp of the situation he would know that what is needed is strenuous exercise of individual control.

The Daily News says: The message of a "cruel, cowardly and fanatical tyrant!" While approving Lord Salisbury's language, it deeply pities him for being compelled by international courtesy to refer to an inhuman despot in terms of conventional respect.

The Chronicle regards the Sultan's letter as undignified and childish.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 20.—The Grand Duke Valdimir has an autograph letter from the Czar to the Kaiser relating to the situation in eastern Europe. A FATHER'S TERRIBLE DEED.

London, Nov. 20.—A fearful tragedy is reported from Sale, a town of Victoria, Australia, where Manager Short, of the Commercial Bank, of that place, shot his wife and two children and then killed himself. The two children died instantly, and it is believed Mrs. Short is fatally wounded. It is thought that reading of the reports of the recent murder of Mrs. Arthur Dacre in Sydney, by her husband, who also killed himself, unbalanced Short's mind.

CARDINAL BONAPARTE DEAD.

On the death of his elder brother, Prince Joseph, he became the chief of his branch of the family.

ASHANTEE TROUBLE SETTLED.

London, Nov. 20.—Lord Suffield and Mr. Sutherst, as intermediaries on behalf of the Ashantee envoys, whom the Governor has declined to receive, yesterday visited Mr. Chamberlain and undertook that the British demand relative to having a resident at Coomasse and the other demands contained in the ultimatum to King Prompeh shall be satisfied. The King will also pay the cost of the present preparations for sending an expedition against him. The formal terms will be made when the envoys arrive at Coomasse, for which place they will start shortly. Mr. Chamberlain undertook that no troops would be sent to Ashantee if the King indorses the above terms. The preparations for the expedition will continue for the present, but the difficulty will probably be settled without war.

THE SULTAN AT WORK.

Constantinople, Nov. 20.—Through the night of Saturday last, Nov. 16, which was a most critical day for the Turkish Empire, the Sultan was engaged, sitting close to the telegraph instrument in the Yildiz Kiosk, personally dictating instructions to the different provincial governors to do their utmost to restore order in their districts. This indicates that the Sultan has at last had his eyes opened to the character of his advisers, and that he has finally determined to take the reins of government in his own hands.

The lack of sufficient funds to equip the reserve called out and the scarcity of regular troops in the disturbed provinces is a matter of great concern to the Sultan, who is said to be rapidly getting an idea of the extent to which misgovernment has spread, not that this has gone on without his knowledge.

The situation in Southwest Anatolia, where the Christians are revolting in large numbers, is inspiring the most grave anxiety among the representatives of the powers here, and it is difficult to see how the Turks can be prevented from restoring order there by force.

It is reported that the Sultan is trying to raise funds to mobilize an army of 500,000 men.

THE PORTE'S STORY.

The Turkish legation at Washington received from the Sublime Porte the following telegram, under date of yesterday: "The Armenian insurgents of Zeitoun, Ferned and Kemban, numbering more than 800, attacked the district of Enderin, burned the palace of the governor as well as the houses belonging to the Mussulmans, and captured those of all Mussuman families that were unable to flee. The rioters again fell on the village of Kurtier, at Marash, and burned ten houses with their contents.

"The Armenian rioters of Hasnimemsour, having killed two Mussulmans, an affray took place, during which there were dead and wounded on both sides. The authorities restored order. The rebels of Marsovan and Amassia, after closing their shops, went to their churches and to different khans, from where they fired on the Mussulmans.

"Two letters sent from the Armenian bishop of Aleppo to the bishop of Curfa, through the intermediary of an Armenian disguised as an Arab, but arrested by the authorities of Curfa, proved the perfect understanding that exists between all the Armenian revolutionists of Asia Minor. The following is a summary of these letters:

"'Send powder to the rioters of Zeitoun to enable them to resist the authorities and procure a certain quantity of saltpetre for the fabrication of powder. Baronaga, of Zeitoun, is assembling an army. The days are near when bloody deeds will take place. The Armenians of Marash are ready for action and they wish to fight. They ask for arms and ammunition in order to help their comrades.' The above information has been transmitted to all the Armenian revolutionists."

The following telegram under today's date was also received: "The Armenian insurgents of Zeitoun plundered and burned the following villages: Lousikudi, Kechkere, Moussali and Kerimli. Four bombs were found in the yard of an Armenian rioter at Diarbekir. The Armenian agitators at Marsovan attacked two Mussulmans going to the mosque and wounded them.

"They also fired from their houses to the barracks and to the palace of the governor. Disorders followed these provocations, and on both sides there were dead and wounded. The authorities, however, succeeded in restoring order. All news concerning a supposed insecurity regarding all foreigners living in the towns where troubles take place are absolutely and entirely false."

Remarkable Sayings and Doings at a Conservative Convention.

WON'T PLEDGE HIMSELF.

John A. McGillivray, Q.C., is the Conservative candidate in North Ontario. He refused to say what action he would take on the remedial bill until he saw it. Mr. Foster and Dr. Montague spoke at the Cannington meeting, but were absolutely silent on the school question. Several of the speakers at the convention condemned the remedial order sent to Manitoba as coercive and against the interests of the Dominion, while others asserted that they did not believe that the Government at Ottawa has yet made up its mind what to do. Messrs. Foster and Montague are credited with the diplomacy that resulted in the avoidance of an open rupture at the convention.

ENGINEER FARR'S SENTENCE.

Sent to Penetentiary for a Term of Ten Years.

Story of His Terrible Crime—Incendiarism and Attempted Murder.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 20.—Engine Driver Farr, convicted of arson and attempted murder, was yesterday sentenced to ten years in Stoney Mountain Penitentiary.

Farr, who is a married man with several children, his wife being the sister of the Rev. W. D. Russell, of Winnipeg, became enamored of Miss Maggie Robertson, and she, believing him to be a single man, engaged herself to marry him. Last Good Friday night, about midnight, the Farr residence was discovered to be on fire, and after Mrs. Farr and her children had been rescued it was plain that a deliberate attempt had been made to burn them in their beds. Coal oil had been poured along the stairs—the only means of exit from the bedrooms—and the entire house and furniture had been also saturated with coal oil.

Investigation revealed that Farr had a few days before increased the insurance on his house, and had purchased an unusually large supply of coal oil. During the night he left his engine for half an hour, and told contradictory stories of where he was. His fireman testified that during the night Farr climbed on the top of a box-car to see if his house was all right, declaring that he had heard the fire bells ringing. The fire bells did not ring that night at all. There were other equally suspicious circumstances.

Farr was arrested, but while in the police station awaiting trial escaped and reached Vancouver, B. C. He was recaptured as he was about to sail for the Hawaiian Islands. As all the parties in the sensational case are more or less prominent it excited the greatest interest. Most damaging evidence was furnished in the shape of letters written to one of the papers after the discovery of the attempt to burn Farr's house. These letters, which were handed over to the police, made the direct charge that Miss Robertson, after haunting Farr for years, had endeavored to get his wife and family out of the way by setting his house on fire. Upon examination it turned out that the letters were in Farr's own handwriting. While Farr was in British Columbia, after his escape from the police, he kept up a correspondence with Maggie Robertson. Some of these productions were very effusive.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

Denounce the Decision of the U. S. Supreme Court.

Washington, Nov. 20.—In the general assembly of the Knights of Labor yesterday, Master Workman Sovereign presented the following resolution, which was adopted by unanimous vote: "Whereas, the Supreme Court of the United States has affirmed the decision of Judge Ross, which decision raised a misdemeanor to a felony and sent four local officers of the A. R. U. at Los Angeles, Cal., to prison for eighteen months; and whereas, the decision of the United States Supreme Court places all labor organizations in the role of criminal conspirators; and whereas; said decision affirms that a greater penalty can be imposed for a conspiracy to commit a crime than is imposed for the commission of the crime itself;

"Be it resolved, that this general assembly of the Knights of Labor earnestly protests against such a travesty on justice and outrage on the liberties of the people, and condemns said court for its partial ruling in the interest of the plutocratic classes, and its abridgement of the constitutional rights of the laboring people."

In supporting the resolution, Mr. Sovereign said that the imprisoned men had acted as a committee, one of them urging a railroad engineer not to take the place of a striker and thus become a "scab." There had been, he asserted, no interference, no threats, and the engineer had volunteered to talk to the committee. The resolution was then passed, with the understanding that it would be supplemented later by one advocating the election of the Supreme Court judiciary by popular vote.

The Bonus Question Handled by the Council.

Electric Lighting Discussed—Debate on the Transient Traders' Bylaw—Young Liberal Club Proceedings—A Fine Place of Business.

("Advertiser" Agency, City Bookstore.)

Nov. 19.—The following members were present last night at the regular meeting of the town council, held in the council chambers: Mayor Watterworth, N. H. Bartley, R. Butler, Geo. Christopher, L. Ruddick, W. Berry, W. Toull, J. Horsman.

The vault committee reported, giving statements of receipts and expenditures in connection with the town vault for treasurer and town clerk. The total cost of the vault was $480 95, which the committee recommended to be paid by the town.

A report was also read by S. King, chairman finance committee, that the office lately vacated by the chief of police be fitted up for a police magistrate's office, and that Mr. Chadwick, who has resigned his position as magistrate, be notified that the council would no longer be liable for the rent of the rooms recently occupied as a magistrate's office.

It was recommended that as the Evans Bros. Piano and Manufacturing Company (Ltd.) are contemplating building an addition to their works and going into the manufacture of organs, the assessment of the whole property of the Evans Bros. Company be fixed at an annual rate of $4,000 for seven years.

The dispute with the electric light company is not yet settled, and considerable discussion arose regarding making a contract for a new term, but no exemption from taxes, nearly all the members deciding that the plant of the company be not exempt, and that the question of taxes be not mentioned in the contract. Mr. Christopher argued that the contract should not extend over two years from termination of present contract, he contending that new and perhaps better and cheaper systems of lighting may be discovered in that time, and the town would not then be bound down by contract to take the present system of street lighting and pay for it at the same rate. The electric light company have nothing to lose by a two years' contract, and under the above conditions the town would have everything to lose.

Mr. Noxon favored a contract for a longer period, stating that the city of St. Thomas had recently made a ten years' contract for street lighting.

Mr. Toull asked regarding the transient traders' bylaw, why Messrs. Hollinrake, Ionson and Hill had not "put up" their $50. He said Mr. McRossie, Mr. Brody and Mr. Quigg were obliged to "whack up," while the gentlemen he named had not even been asked to pay.

He was told that the finance committee would look after the case of Mr. Hill, who is a butcher on King street. The other gentlemen purchased established businesses, and some of the councilors maintained that they did not come under the requirements of the bylaw, while others contended that the bylaw was intended to refer to bankrupt stock dealers only, who were liable to come here for fall or winter trade and get out as soon as the dull season came on.

Mr. Noxon suggested a remedy. He says if the bylaw was properly graded it would be no injustice to any dealers, no matter whether they bought out a business or brought stock and new goods into town. He did not think it fair that a man with only a small stock of about $300 or $400 should be obliged to pay as much as one with a $5,000 stock. He thought it an injustice to the one man to pay as much as the other.

Mr. Bartley moved that the Constables' Association have the free use of the council chamber for Dec. 2, 1895, it being the regular meeting of the association. Mr. Noxon seconded this motion, which was carried without discussion.

The bylaw for the ratifying of the placing of a hydrant by the Ingersoll Waterworks Company on the corner of Wellington and Canterbury streets, in the town of Ingersoll, was read twice, discussed in committee of the whole, with Mr. Bartley in the chair, and finally passed.

One hundred dollars was placed to the credit of the Separate School Board.

The debate in the Young Liberal Club rooms last night was ably conducted by Messrs. J. C. Hegler and Rev. E. R. Hutt for the affirmative, and Messrs. J. B. Jackson and A. P. Gundy for the negative. Mr. Vance, president, acted as referee, and decided in favor of the negative, stating that in his opinion the burden of proof rested with the affirmative, and they had not proven by the argument that it would be to the material interests of Canada to be independent, therefore the decision was forced to be in favor of the negative.

The parties for the next debate, Nov. 26, have been chosen—Mr. F. A. Brady, S. F. Howser, Mr. Govenlock and Geo. L. McDonald. The subject has not been decided upon yet.

At the police court this morning the adjourned case of Cherry vs. Hugh McKay was given a hearing before Magistrates Stevens and Nelles. After a good deal of contradictory evidence the magistrates dismissed the case. However Hugh did not get off so easy as he expected, for just as he was leaving the court room a charge was preferred against him by Agnes Campbell of swearing on the public street. This case was adjourned till 4 o'clock, when court was opened, and during the progress of the case perjury appeared to have been committed by either one side or the other. This was a very serious aspect of the affair, and the magistrate expressed his intention of having the case thoroughly sifted to the bottom. He requested Chief Skirving to use his best detective ability to bring the guilty party to justice. His worship bound over Hugh McKay, defendant; Mary McKay, his witness, and Agnes Campbell, the complainant, for $500 each, to appear at the trial hereof on the 26th inst. at 2 o'clock, that being the date for the further hearing. The McKays have issued summonses for two parties, John Waud and his wife, at whose place they contend they spent the evening when the alleged offense was committed.

Two incendiary Michaels (whose names by the way were not Mike) were up before Justice Stevens today. They were each fined $5 and costs, or five days in jail. But one, who gave his name as Morency, was allowed to go on his promise to work; the other, Handly by name, who was an old timer, preferred Woodstock jail to liberty.

THE CUBAN WAR.

Spaniards Not Negotiating With the Natives.

Arrival of Two Bands of Filibusters on the Island.

Madrid, Nov. 20.—The Premier, Senor Canovas del Castillo, declares that the persistent rumors regarding peace negotiations between representatives of the Spanish Government and the insurgents of Cuba are untrue. He also discredits the report that the rear guard of Maximo Gomez's forces was defeated in the province of Santa Clara, and the newspapers discredit the reported submission of the insurgents.

New York, Nov. 20.—President Palma has received news of the safe arrival of two bands of filibusterers in Cuba. Gen. Carillo's party were 100 strong with arms, and 10,000 cartridges. Col. Aquirre's party was 129 strong, with two cannon, 500 Winchester rifles, and 464,000 cartridges. The men were from Jamaica, Florida, New York, Pennsylvania and other places.

Mariano Abericne, Alfred Dongo, M. Soto and Gen. Calexti Garcia, Cuban exiles, who have been on parole in Spain, have arrived here and will go to Cuba. They justify the breach of their parole by saying that Spain has disregarded the usages of civilization in its treatment of Cuba. If they are caught in Cuba by the Spaniards they will be executed.

I saw it in the Sunday Bee, and so of course it's so—
That journal always tells the truth, or tries to, you must know—
That when a Jappy loves a maid so much he wants to wed,
He has to court by proxy—send another in his stead.

Now that would never do for me; I think I'd draw the line
At sending up a proxy for to woo a girl of mine,
And though I have great self-control, I don't think I could stand
The notion that in my behalf another squeezed her hand.

Nor does it strike me pleasantly to think, through love of me,
My Phyllis would consent to sit upon another's knee.
And if I thought my proxy ever dared to take a kiss,
To bring me when returning to contribute to my bliss,

I think I'd wring his proxy neck, and pull his proxy nose,
Until he'd bellow to be freed from all his proxy woes.
The only use that I can see in this queer Jappy fad
Is when it comes to calling on a mussy, fussy dad.

A father old, and tough and cross,
with hob-nailed, thick-soled boots,
Who calls his daughter's lovers either milksops or galoots.
For this a proxy'd be a joy, but otherwise my whim
Prompts me to woo myself, and give the marble heart to him.

Prof. Southwick, a celebrated agri-culturist, says the subject of insecti-cides has become a burning question. He's wrong, altogether wrong. The real absorbing, burning question, is to find the man that puts carpet tacks in the road for bicycles to run over, and the best way to dispose of him.

Crime is more common in single life than in married. In the former, 33 in every 100,000 are guilty, while only 11 married men of the same number have gravely broken the laws.

In the regions of Switzerland, where cheese is a staple product, it serves one curious purpose. A custom prevails for the friends of the bride and bride-groom to join in the presentation to them on their wedding day of an elab-orate cheese, to be used as a family register. Cheese, therefore takes the place in this country of wedding cake and the family Bible, upon which births, deaths and marriages are duly recorded. Some of these old cheeses date back to 1600,and at an agricultural show held in Gessenay in 1892 one was exhibited whose age was nearly two centuries. The cheese had been an heirloom in a family residing in the canton of Taud, after which it be-came the property of its present pos-sessor, who resides in the canton of Berne.—Table Talk.

"Jonesy, you have a hired man, have-n't you?" "What does he cost you?" "Thousand dollars a year." "Phe-e-ew! That's high wages, isn't it?" "No. His wages are nominal—four hundred dollars a year. The difference is what he wastes on our furnace fires."

"Can I offer you a stick of chewing gum?" said the passenger in the linen duster.

"Thanks," replied the traveler with the skull cap. "It will help to pass the time and—hello! What's this? 'Hanky Panky' brand? Great Scott! I can't chew that. I manufacture it!" —Chicago Tribune.

"Strange as it may appear," says M. de Guerville in his account of Japanese women, "a kiss is an unknown thing in Japan—not unknown to the gay maidens of Yokohama, Kobe or Na-gasaki, who have so much to do for the amusement of foreigners, but un-known to the Japanese in general. A lover never kisses his sweetheart, a mother never kisses her child. He made a great mistake, the man who wrote that 'a kiss is nature's Volapuk, the universal language of love.' You can kiss any Japanese girl. She will not object, for she cannot possibly under-stand what you mean. She will only think, 'What queer people these for-eigners are!' " low is reserved for decoration. Flowers painted in colors that contrast well with the dark leather background are effective.

Lighter and more delicate in appear-ance are the glass frames. Directly be-neath the glass is a piece of water color paper, with a circular opening. Usually this opening is formed by a ring of flowers painted on the paper and then scalloped out around them, making a fitting environment for a pretty face.

Some doilies of bolting cloth look well. Around a circular piece of bolting cloth, 2½ inches in diameter, is gath-ered a full ruffle of the same material 2 inches wide, edged with pansies, ex-quisitely painted, outlined with gold and scalloped out around the petals. Others are similarly made with wild roses embroidered on the ruffle.

To Make a Christmas Ball.

A Christmas ball is a pretty trifle to give an absent friend. The heart of the ball may be some pretty little gift, a gold thimble, an emery ball, a silver spool or something of that nature. Around this silk floss or zephyr is wound with quotations appropriate to the person for whom the ball is intend-ed, put in and covered with the floss or zephyr.

These quotations may be taken from a favorite author of the giver or the one who receives the present, or they may be made personal in character.

When the ball has been made the de-sired size, a handsome pair of scissors, a gold bodkin, a beautiful needlecase or any gift the donor fancies may be at-tached to the end of the thread.

As the ball is unwound in embroider-ing, knitting or crocheting, as the case may be, the quotations come to light unexpectedly and give pleasure long after Christmas day has passed into the shadows of memory, while the heart of the ball adds the final bit of pleasure when the last thread is unwound.

From Girl to Girl.

For the young girl who wishes to give her best girl friend a Christmas present here is a suggestion. Make her a stock-ing case. It is a novelty, and will de-light her. The stocking case bears a striking resemblance to a cravat case or a glove case. Its special privilege is to care for dainty silk stockings. The girl who embroiders may make it of silk. It must be lined with silk wadding and delicately perfumed and finished with a deep frill of lace. "Stockings" or "For My Lady's Hose" is embroidered on the outside. Within are two straps of rib-bon, under which the stockings are slip-ped. Let the girl who wields the brush instead of the embroidery needle make her stocking case of ooze kid. It should be satin lined and perfumed. On the ooze kid she may scatter painted violets or paint in bronze or tinsel coloring the plain sentiment "For My Stockings."

A STOCKING CASE.

Simple Gifts Are Best.

As a matter of fact the simple things are often best. They convey all the love and none of the distress that bigger things are apt to carry in their wake. They tell of kindly thought and, if made at home, of hours of loving work, and they seem in their very simplicity to carry out the spirit of Christmas as it was long years ago. The costly gifts and the elaborate gifts have become a burden too great to bear. They have ac-cumulated and increased till a list of the dear ones to whom one longs to send a greeting becomes a source of anxiety in place of the pleasure it ought to be. But if we will be wise and will do only that which we can afford no such state of things need exist. The pretty things and the charming things can be made in less time than is required for the search after something that is just be-yond our reach.

The Joy of Sharing.

Of course at such a time, whoever may be overlooked, the children must not be forgotten. This day is especially their own, and it is the duty of every parent to make his own child happy. But do not let him be selfish in his hap-piness. Teach him to remember those others, the waifs and strays on the bar-ren commons of life, who by the hard accident of birth are excluded from the paradise of home and luxury. Remind him then that the good will and peace so many years ago proclaimed on this day was a universal benediction.

Sweet Girl Grads.

Trained Nurses Presented With Medals and Diplomas.

Miss Tye on the Qualities of a Successful Nurse.

The London Training School Has a Proud Record.

Facts and Figures by the Medical Superintendent.

Miss Tye's Annual Report—Addresses by Col. Lewis and a Number of Clergymen and Medical Men—Large Crowd Witness the Exercises.

Dressed in the sober habiliments of their profession, and with natural and becoming modesty, five spick and span young lady graduates of the training school for nurses in connection with the City Hospital received their certi-ficates at the Music Hall last night from the hands of some of London's leading medical men, clergymen and non-professional men. The graduating class numbered seven in all, but two have already entered upon the career which they have been fitting them-selves for, and as they were unable to leave patients they missed the joy of publicly receiving their rewards of merit. The graduates occupied a front row at the side of the platform, and they were flanked by nearly half a score of nurses who are yet in train-ing. They were attired in the regula-tion dress, the material in which was of a small check pattern—white and red. They also wore white aprons, a white kerchief over their shoulders, and a dainty white muslin cap orna-mented with a narrow black ribbon. Each "sweet girl graduate" was a picture of neatness and health, and their natural good looks were enhanced by the glow of excitement incident to the occasion. At the table in the center of the platform sat Col. Lewis, the chairman of the Hospital Trust. At his elbow was Dr. Balfour, the energetic medical superintendent, and on the platform were seated Dr. Moorhouse, dean of the Western Uni-versity medical faculty, Dr. Hodge, Dr. Meek, Dr. Eccles, Rev. W. J. Clark, Rev. J. G. Stuart, Rev. E. B. Lanceley, Rev. Walter Rigsby and Mr. Thomas McCormick. Miss Tye, the lady superintendent, sat with her pro-teges, the nurses.

The night was a very disagreeable one, but notwithstanding the body of the hall was very well filled. The students of the Western University medical department lent their services as ushers. During the evening a short but very pleasing musical programme was carried out. Mr. Roselle Pococke played a delicate violin solo, which was highly appreciated. Miss Roblin sang a solo and was encored, and afterwards sang a duet with Mr. Will Skinner. The latter also sang a solo and was generously applauded. Mr. Moxon accompanied the performers.

Rev. Mr. Clark opened the proceed-ings by invoking Divine blessing.

BRAKE BROKE DOWN.

Col. Lewis explained at the outset that a mishap to the brake which was conveying the nurses from the hospital to the hall had caused a slight delay. He read the following letter of regret from Mayor Little:

"My Dear Col. Lewis,—Unavoidable absence from the city will prevent me from being with you at the presenta-tion of the diplomas to the hospital nurses this evening. I need not tell you that I regret very much that such is the case. I have been looking for-ward to this event for some time, and was most anxious to be present when the young ladies received the well-earned recognition of their arduous labors. Please convey my regrets to them. Yours truly, J. W. LITTLE, Mayor."

Continuing, Col. Lewis regretted the wet day and also the fact that he was the only member of the Trust Board present.

"We usually hold this celebration at the hospital," said he, "but that place was so very much crowded that it was impossible for us to do so this time. Mr. Harvey kindly gave us the use of this hall free of charge, for which we are very thankful." (Applause.)

Very briefly the chairman went into the history of the formation of the Hospital Trust and the work it had ac-complished. Continuing, he said: "Something will have to be done to enlarge our present premises. We have eleven or twelve rooms for paying patients, but these we want for our sick poor people.

"Our city is able to provide a build-ing for the paying patients. It can erect other buildings that are really not so necessary or useful, and I don't see why we cannot have sufficient hos-pital accommodation. (Applause.)

The lady superintendent then read her report as follows:

MISS TYE'S REPORT.

"Mr. Chairman and members of the Hospital Trust,—I take this opportun-ity of thanking you for your assistance and ready sympathy in our co-work. Ladies and gentlemen, who, by your presence, show your sympathy with us I will give you a brief outline of our training school system and work.

"In almost all hospitals the training school is a corporative system, attach-ed to some hospital and under a sepa-rate management. This training school, however, is controlled by the trustees of the hospital, like all the other de-partments of the hospital service, the superintendent having the general su-pervision, and the head nurse of the training school immediate charge of the nursing, course of work, study, lectures, discipline and instruction of all the nurses in the hospital.

COURSE OF TRAINING.

"The course of training for women desirous of becoming professional nurs-es is two years. The sum paid to nurses is $4 per month the first year, and $6 per month the second year. This sum may appear small in comparison with the services rendered, but it must be remembered this is not looked upon as payment, as the experience gained and instruction given are considered a full equivalent.

"A regular course of study and lec-tures are prepared for nine months in each year, and arrangements made so that examinations can be conducted regularly every six months. The studies comprise anatomy, philosophy and hygiene, together with practical nursing, while the lectures given gratuitously by many of our most eminent physicians and surgeons em-brace a large number of subjects cal-culated to make nurses more intelligent and efficient.

AIMS AND OBJESTS.

"At present nurses are required to pass an entrance examination, consist-ing of ordinary English and practical work. A written examination at the end of the first year, set by the head nurse of the school, and at the end of the second year a written and oral before an examining board. The prim-ary and greatest aim of our training school system is the improvement of the nursing staff in the hospital, so the poor of our community, who would otherwise find it beyond their means, have every advantage of skilled nurs-ing.

It seeks also to be a school of in-struction where women, who are fitted by nature and education, can obtain a practical knowledge of the art of nursing, with a view to making it their calling or profession. It also aims to give the medical profession intelligent and skillful co-operation in their noble profession of alleviating the sufferings of others.

A SUCCESSFUL NURSE.

"To be a successful nurse a woman must possess a combination of rare qualities, zeal, knowledge, patience, tact, wisdom and health, together with great powers of endurance. Consider-ing what the nurses daily come in con-tact with, our school has been re-markably free from serious sickness. We have to report only one case of diphtheria and one case of typhoid fever, both of which terminated favor-ably. Since we last met under sim-ilar circumstances, in April, 1894, over one hundred applications have been re-ceived, 34 of which were from the county of Middlesex, and received pre-ference in admission to our training school. Of these 11 entered on proba-tion, 6 proved satisfactory and were admitted, and three were dropped from the roll for various causes,and two have not yet filled thei probationary term. The school, as it now stands, numbers 9 pupil nurses, 2 probationers, and 2 graduated nurses—13 in all.

SCHOOL LECTURERS.

"Lectures have been delivered on the following subjects:

Gynechology and Obstetrics (4), Dr. Meek.

Medical Cases (6), Dr. Hodge.

Physiology and Hygiene (4) Dr. Mc-Callum.

Surgery (4), Dr. Wishart.

Anatomy (8), Dr. Williams.

Materia Medica (8), Dr. Neu.

Also a weekly class conducted by my-self.

"The records of the school during the past seems to have been a broadening influence in the community and in-creased usefulness to the hospital from year to year, while the hospital in turn offers ever increasing advantage in this educational work.

"In closing this report we once more glance backward over the path that has been traversed during the past two years and rejoice with gratitude in the progress that has been made, and therefore we enter earnestly and hopefully on the work of another year.

"'Tis weary watching wave by wave,
And yet the tide heaves onward;
We climb like corals grave by grave,
Yet pave a pathway upward.

We'er driven back in many a fray
But newer strength we borrow,
And where the vanguard rests today,
The rear shall camp tomorrow.
M. S. TYE."

PRESENTATION OF DIPLOMAS.

The graduates present were Nellie O'Dell, Sarah Kilbourn, Evelyn Rob-son, Kit Taylor and E. J. Glass. The absentees were Rebecca Robb and Annie Milne. The former is in New York and the latter is nursing some distance away.

Dr. Eccles was called on to present Miss Kilbourn with her diploma. Be-fore doing so he referred to Col. Lewis as a military man, "a man of punctu-ality and fidelity in conection with the Hospital Trust." (Applause.)

"It affords me great pleasure," said the doctor to the graduate, "to present to you this diploma, because I have some personal knowledge of your abil-ity and skill in connection with the discharge of the onerous duties which have devolved upon you during your two years at the City Hospital. If the same tenderness and firmness and zeal and tact which have always char-acterized you during that time follow you in your professional career you will always be an honor to your Alma Mater."

Mr. Thomas McCormick presented Miss Taylor with her diploma. "I have been going as regularly as perhaps most people to the hospital," said he, "and I have found the nurses very patient, very kind and very cheerful—and I tell you that cheerfulness is a great thing among sick people."

Rev. J. G. Stuart presented Miss Robson's parchment. In doing so he said that he remembered when at old Queen's College the boys almost re-belled rather than have anything to do with women in college work.

Students—No, no.

Mr. Stuart—I said students in olden times. Students are very different now. (Laughter.)

Said Mr. Stuart, "The true new wo-man is the woman who occupies a sphere such as these ladies hope to occupy—(Hear, hear)—in helping their fellow-men."

"If the people of London with large hearts and large purses would take hold of the matter your chairman would not have to complain of lack of room."

Dr. Hodge made the presentation to Miss O'Dell, speaking briefly on ac-count of indisposition. "I would like," said he, "to bear testimony to the efficient work which this class, one and all, have done."

THE MEDICAL SUPERINTEND-ENT.

Said Dr. Balfour, in presenting a di-ploma to Miss Glass, "We were dis-appointed in not having as many med-ical men, clergymen and lawyers on the platform as we thought we would have tonight, and therefore it devolves upon me to present one of these di-plomas. Mr. Lewis did not give you all his reasons for departing from the usual custom of conferring the diplomas at the hospital. The fact of the matter is the chairman has be-come very proud of this staff and wanted to have this ceremony held in an uptown hall, not alone because of lack of room at the hospital, but be-cause he wished the citizens of Lon-don to see what the nursing staff looked like." (Applause.)

The doctor explained that 81 young women had entered the training school. Seventy-four had signed the agreement to spend two years in training. Of that 74, 13 from various causes left be-fore graduatin. Two of them died dur-ing the course. Nine are still in the training school, and 50 have graduated.

"Of the 13 who left the classes be-fore graduating they passed out be-yond our ken. Of the two died we trust that our loss is their gain. Of the nine who still remain in training, we expect great things in the future, and of the 50 who have graduated the greater number are perhaps engaged in the work of plying their calling in all the principal cities on this conti-nent. We have also one graduate who is a missionary in foreign parts, and who has already experienced the 'rainy weather' of missionary labor, barely escaping from some of the recent mas-sacres. Eleven are home missionaries—at least I hope they are—I mean they are married. (Laughter.) So you see the chances in this direction is not one of the least inducements for joining the training school.

"There has been no class, in my time at least, who deserve as much credit as the present," concluded the doctor.

PRESENTING THE MEDALS.

"What's the matter with the class?" shouted a student.

"They're all right!" came the an-swering chorus.

"Who is all right?"

"The nurses."

A rather feeble chorus, "They are daisies," followed, and at its conclu-sion Mr. McCormick presented Miss Kilbourn with her medal. Mr. Mc-Cormick said that if he were young again he would try to marry a nurse.

Students—You can't have 'em.

Dr. Moorhouse, in presenting the medal to Miss Taylor, spoke of the rise of nursing as a profession, going back as far as Florence Nightingale's time. Even twenty years ago in Lon-don, professional nurses were unknown, and any old woman over 60 who had reared a family and whose husband had died and who did not live happily with her daughter set up as a nurse, and they were always too frightened to handle infectious diseases. "Profes-sional nursing has lessened the mor-tality very greatly," said the doctor.

Rev. Walter Rigsby presented Miss Robson's medal to her, stating the true women were those who, like the nurses before him, knew enough about the human body to supplement the skill of the physician and to be his right hand. No warrior deserved medals more than the devoted nurse in the sick room.

"Hundreds of thousands today, not only in our civilized lands are dying for want of proper nursing," said Dr. Meek, in presenting Miss O'Dell's med-al, "I meet with it quite frequently in my own practice. The people are still uneducated to trained nursing."

Rev. E. B. Lanceley presneted Miss Glass with her medal. "I often wond-er," said he, "why it was that doctors and nurses did not contract diseases. It is because health is more contagious than disease. These young ladies go not to take disease, but they go to breathe health. And as we see the ef-fect of their work we behold disease taking to itself wings and flying away."

BIBLES FOR THE GRADUATES.

Chairman Lewis called Rev. W. J. Clark to speak some words of spiritual advice to the young women. He urged them to do their duty truthfully,and at no time mechanically, but with the same care when nursing a beggar as when nursing a capitalist.

"All I will ask you," said Col. Lewis to the nurses, as Mr. Clark handed them the Bibles, "is that when you have an opportunity you will peruse the word of the Master. You will be well repaid. As the mariner uses the compass so it will be a guide to you through life. Study a little of it every day. That is all I ask."

The proceedings closed by the sing-ing of the doxology.

London, Wednesday, November 20.

London as an Inland Revenue Producer.

According to the annual report of the Minister of Inland Revenue, London contributes a very considerable proportion of the taxes collected by the inland revenue officers of the Dominion. Of the three and a half million dollars collected for inland revenue in this Province last year, London's contribution was $349,865 98, drawn from the under-mentioned commodities:

Balances due July 1, 1894....$	1,179 00
Spirits	81,073 21
Malt liquor	300 00
Malt	61,498 20
Tobacco	66,612 93
Cigars	128,143 32
Petroleum, inspection fees ..	11,855 72
Other receipts	382 60
Total accrued duties.....	$349,865 98

Only one other city in the Dominion manufactures more cigars than does this city. While $128,143 was collected as the tax on cigars made here, Toronto came third, with $34,947 There are 15 cigar factories under inspection by the inland revenue officials here. They pay fees, amounting to $1,-25, and last year they used 350,192 pounds of raw tobacco leaf, from which they produced 21,297,875 cigars. The duty paid was $6 per 1,000,and $77,943 90 was the tax collected on cigars taken out of warehouse for sale. Only one tobacco manufacturer was licensed in this city last year He paid a fee of 75, and made 8,312 1-4 pounds, for which a tax of 25 cents per pound was paid. London had three maltsters doing business, who paid $450 in fees. They placed 5,496,352 pounds of grain in steep, from which they manufactured 4,442,581 pounds of malt, on which a tax of 1 1-2 cents per pound was levied. The total cost of collecting this revenue was $17,765. Last year $11,-5 72 was collected here for inspecting coal oil. Over $41,000 was collected for this purpose in the whole of Canada. There were no seizures in the London district last year, but at other ports several officials made for their own pocket hundreds of dollars extra by out of discoveries of irregularities. The seizures were chiefly in Que ec Province.

In Manchester, Eng., 60 years, ago, 60,-000 factory operatives were living underground in cellarages. Today, according to Carroll D. Wright, United States Labor Commissioner, who recently made a full investigation of the conditions of labor in England, not one family belonging to the industrial classes can be found so living. British trade freedom effected this change. In the motherland the workers do not toil so long hours as do the workers in "protectionist" European countries, and the British worker is much better paid.

Factories in Canada 35 Years Ago

In 1860 Sir John Macdonald pointed out, in a public address, that foundries, machine shops, tanneries, and other factories were flourishing in Canada, and were giving employment to many, while woolen mills and great cotton factories were being erected. This was under a low revenue tariff policy—15 per cent—which afforded incidental protection it is true, but which nevertheless was not oppressive to the great masses of the people.

It is well to recall this fact when we hear the advocates of the enormously high tax policy now in force—amounting, in some instances, to 40, 60, and even 100 per cent—declaring that this was not a manufacturing country until 1879, and that our manufacturers would not prosper under a low tax policy, with free or nearly free raw material.

The fact is that London and many other centers of population, as well as almost every city, town and village in the country, made greater progress under the low tax system than they have done under the high tax policy. The reason is obvious: the present system has made a few millionaires in Montreal and Toronto, but it has impoverished the vast majority of the people.

Here we asked why the Dominion has endured this policy so long—why it has kept its head above water despite the extraction of many millions of unnecessary taxation from the pockets of the people and the piling up of a debt of over $250,000,000? The great natural resources of the country, for which we, thanks to the politicians, have done nothing, have saved us from national bankruptcy.

A brighter era is dawning. In the near future the people of this fair land will not be kept toiling to the full limit of their powers to maintain their families and to pay the enormous taxes levied on them. They will see to it that every cent is taken from them in taxation—either direct or indirect, which does not go into the public treasury. The country needs a change.

By the Way.

The reported contemplated establishment of a car ferry between Port Stanley and Cleveland, in close co-operation with the line of railway connecting Lake Erie with London, is one of the most important items of news in today's "Advertiser." There will be an united wish in this city that this important aid to our commerce with the United States may be successfully organized. It was once before nearly set going, and would have been running today but for mismanagement in this city. However, that is past, and the new deal ought to be better engineered. What a grand thing it would be for the people on both sides of the lake if we could have perfect freedom to trade between Cleveland and Port Stanley, and vice versa! Then we could have not only one but several lake ferries daily.

Canon Du Moulin has been addressing the Toronto Ministerial Association asking resistance to the threatened invasion of horse racing and gambling in Toronto. A paper was also read by Rabbi Lazarus, on the Jewish Criminal Law. Some discussion took place on the question of admitting reporters. The question might be easily settled if the members had their minds made up as to what they really want. If it is to be a public body, be it so. If it is to be a private body, be it so. What some of the members seem to desiderate is a combination of the "glory" and influence that come with publicity, coupled with that lack of responsibility and freedom of unconsidered utterance supposed to go with unofficial, social intercourse. Whether these things can be combined is a question. Rev. Dr. Blackstock, in defending the reporters, said: "If a man makes a fool of himself, it is not the fault of the reporter. It is his own lookout, and he must bear the consequences."

When will people in the old world fairly represent Canada? Even at the World's W. C. T. U. meeting in the British metropolis, according to Mrs. Todd, a Canadian delegate, the Dominion was grossly travestied. Mrs. Todd says she was "more than a little disgusted when in a procession representing the different countries of the world Canada was marched and dressed in a blanket. Why not sealskin instead of a blanket? Why not a sheaf of wheat as well as snowshoes? Why not the Canadian flag? The children of the United States were draped in theirs. It was time Canada woke up. Time she flew her flag so that others could see it. It was time we took our stand among the nations and made ourselves felt." We certainly should have a steady crusade against the idiots who invariably represent this magnificent country as a frost-bitten, below zero shiver—and—shake—perpetually land.

Dr. R. J. Wilson and Mr. R. Hassard, two prominent members of the Young Conservative Association of Toronto, have resigned because the President announced that no hostile criticism of the men in power at Ottawa would be allowed. Dr. Wilson and Mr. Hassard announced that they valued freedom of speech more than membership in an institution which backed up the views held by their president. Dr. Wilson and Mr. Hassard are in the wrong association. They hold to sound Liberal doctrine.

E. H. Thompson, the Government entomologist of Tasmania, Australia, has made some interesting discoveries as to the growth of trees at different times of the day. Measurements were taken as far as possible every three hours, with the following results: From 6 a.m. to 9 a.m., 8 2-3 per cent of growth; from 9 a.m. to noon, 1 1-3 per cent of growth; from noon to 3 p.m., no growth; from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m., no growth; from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., 1 1-3 per cent of growth; from 9 p.m. to 12 p.m., 3 7-8 per cent of growth; from 12 p.m. to 6 a.m., 85 per cent of growth. The greatest growth in 24 hours were banksia rose, 6 1-2 inches; geranium, 5 3-4 inches; wattle, 4 1-3 inches; apple, 2 1-4 inches; pear, 1 1-3 inch. The result of these experiments will throw doubts on the utility of the electric light as an aid to vegetation. Some have said that we had but to keep the electric light shining on our gardens and fields to fool the trees, vegetables and grasses into growing night and day, but Mr. Thompson's researches indicate that this expenditure is unnecessary—that Nature provides for far greater growth during dark than while the sun is shining. It would be interesting if our friends at the Agricultural College would make similar experiments here.

PRAISE FROM SIR HUBERT.

(From the Fourth Estate, New York.)

The London "Advertiser" is considered by those competent to judge to be the best paper in Ontario, outside of Toronto.

Mr. Hyman, M.P., Speaks.

His Recent Speech in the Town of Berlin.

The Manufacturers and the Policy of High Taxation.

A Tariff That Will Injure No One, But Will Be Fair All Round, Needed.

Speaking at the recent mass meeting in Berlin, Ont., Mr. C. S. Hyman, M.P. for this city, set out by paying a tribute to his leader. There was not a man in Canada, he said, who had had more kind things said of him in a given time than Mr. Laurier, but no matter how lofty might be the pedestal on which his followers placed him, it would be no higher than he deserved. He had come to Ontario with his friend, Mr. Tarte, from the Province of Quebec, bringing with them a lesson which the people of Ontario would do well to learn, a lesson not of bigotry, but of the very opposite kind, and surely the Liberals of Ontario could send back with Mr. Laurier and Mr. Tarte, a lesson of a like kind to their fellow-Liberals in the Province of Quebec. Surely their patriotism was broad and strong enough to enable them to join hand in hand and to work out the destinies of Canada together. Mr. Hyman said that he was pleased to speak to the people of Berlin for many reasons, and particularly because he conceived the interests of Berlin to be almost identical with the interests of the city of London, where he was born, and which he hoped to some day again represent in Parliament. "I come," said Mr. Hyman, "to tell you why I, a manufacturer, believe that in the policy of the Liberal party lie the hopes of the manufacturers as well as the rest of the people. We know that our Conservative friends are very fond of posing as the sole friends of the manufacturers. The Conservative orator and the Conservative editor are always preaching that they are the friends of the manufacturers, and they apply their preaching and their writing in the very broadest sense possible."

He further said: "I am prepared to confess without hesitation that there are industries in Canada which are benefited by the National Policy, but I am also prepared to take exception to the claim that the main manufacturing interests are benefited by that policy, especially in the way in which it has been applied." Taking up the last census, Mr. Hyman quoted the returns to show that out of 1,659,000 people whose occupations were given, but 320,-000 were directly engaged in manufacturing and directly interested in the fiscal policy. Out of these 320,000 only 150,000 were directly affected by the benefits of the National Policy. The figures showed that the fiscal policy of the Government was designed to directly benefit but 10 per cent of the population. He said the time had come to give the 10 per cent the indirect benefit and make the fiscal legislation of the country for the benefit of the 90 per cent. He was sensible to the great difficulties that presented themselves in the framing of a tariff. He pointed out the results of attempting to make a protective tariff on iron, following the product from the iron and coal mines to the workshop, and showing how the protection of one man's product became a tax on the raw material of another. He quoted from the Berlin News a demand for a statement from the Liberal party as to what course they would pursue on the trade question if they acceded to power, and as to whether they proposed to help out the manufacturers of the country. He said that the people of Waterloo would have no doubt on that subject after the plain declaration of Mr. Snider at Elmira yesterday. Mr. Hyman, as a manufacturer, expressed his confidence that no such result would follow. He quoted the tariff plank of the platform adopted at the Liberal Convention in Ottawa in 1893, which is plain and explicit on the point.

TARIFF READJUSTMENT.

Continuing, he said: In 1893—I take that year because that was just about a normal year of expenditure, receipts and importations and exportations—it required $36,813,000 to meet the requirements of the Government. Coming from excise, postoffice, railway and other like receipts there were $17,214,000, leaving $19,599,000 to be raised for the purposes of government. Our total importations, leaving out importations of gold and silver coin, were $115,170,000. If I understand the meaning of a custom tariff based upon the requirements of the public service, it means that upon $115,170,000 of imports there should be imposed such a rate of duty as would produce $19,599,000. But there's one thing we must take into consideration, that in the imports of $115,170,-000 there is a large amount of goods that should be admitted free. The platform plainly takes that ground. It says the tariff should be so adjusted as to make free or bear as lightly as possible upon the necessaries of life, so that before we impose any duty upon that $115,170,000 when the Liberals are in power, they will have to take away what may be termed the free list. There is another thing which will be most carefully considered, and that is the free list as affecting the manufacturer. This will be an opportunity of helping the manufacturers and it will be a particular in which the manufacturers' interests should be considered and seriously considered without hurting anybody else. They can consider the manufacturer for this reason, that they know that when goods are put on the free list the interest of the manufacturer and the consumer are one, because it permits the manufacturer to sell to the consumer at a cheaper rate than if these goods are on the duty list; whereas the present policy if applied to the benefit of the manufacturer must injure the consumer, since it increases the price to him. The free list in 1893 amounted to $45,-599,000. Deducting this from $115,170,-000 of imports we have left $69,581,000 of dutiable goods, and upon that there must be a duty imposed which would produce $19,599,000, which means an average duty of 28 per cent. This would be subject to two modifications were a Liberal Government in power. I do not believe that in 1893 the country was run honestly, economically and efficiently, and it would be subject to the modification that under Liberal rule the country would be run honestly, efficiently and economically, so that it would not need this 28 per cent, and subject to another modification. We hope and trust that with a fair, honest policy, framed in the interest of the 90 per cent and not of the 10 per cent, as is the case under the National Policy, there would be an increase of imports, thus decreasing the duty required to raise the necessary revenue, and subject to this further modification that if you applied the principle of a revenue tariff in 1893 there would have been a duty of 28 per cent, and under that 28 per cent there lies—I am going to say the protection, but I won't use the word protection—there lies the security and preservation of the manufacturer against a possible undue outside competition. That 28 per cent is simply and solely the revenue tariff as applied on the imports upon which you collect duty. That, to my mind, is the

but there is this difference in the application of that 28 per cent and in the division of that 28 per cent. Instead of it being applied to importations simply and solely for the use of any one class it will be applied for the use of the country as a whole, although the manufacturers must have an incidental protection. For that reason I, as a manufacturer, conceive it to be in my interest and in the interest of the vast majority of the manufacturers of the country to support the Liberal policy. I think the time has come when it should be understood that the manufacturers do not desire to be a class by themselves, and we do not want to be pointed out as a class having everything that the Government has to give.

Scott's Sarsaparilla His Salvation.

Nothing blights existence like the knowledge that our appearance is repellant to those with whom we come in contact, nor is there any relief like that of feeling that the disfiguring causes have ben removed. Says Mr. Willilam Alger: "My face on one side was a mass of blotches, some of which were constantly full of matter. I run a bake shop, doing my own work, but my face got so bad that customers drifted away. Then I hired a man and went to a doctor. He said my blood was in a horrible condition. I sold my business and moved to the city, where Scott's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me. The first bottle did me much good, and after taking five bottles my skin is as clear as possible, and not a sign of my previous disfigurement. I say Scott's Sarsaparilla is the best blood medicine going and am speaking from experience."

Pimples, blotches, boils, ulcers and all diseases arising from vital exhaustion and impure blood are radically cured by Scott's Sarsaparilla, a concentrated compound of finest medicines ever known. Your druggist has it at $1. But get Scott's. The kind that cures.

Catarrh in the Head

Is a dangerous disease because it is liable to result in loss of hearing or smell, or develop into consumption. Read the following:

"My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years and the disease had gone so far that her eyesight was affected so that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered severe pains in the head and at times was almost distracted. About Christmas, she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. Money Received and Not Accounted For —A Doctor's Testimony—More Wounds Than One.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 20.—Hector W. Charlesworth, a reporter, was the first witness at the Hyams murder case yesterday, but after objection by the defense, on the ground that if the examination of the witness were allowed it would inevitably bring out that part of the case which had been ruled against by his Lordship, Mr. Osler withdrew the witness.

Ledger-keeper Brodie, of the Bank of Toronto in Montreal, identified deposit slips in the bank account of H. P. Hyams in his bank. He also gave evidence as to the condition of that account, and testified that one sum of $7,954, which appeared in a pass-book found in posssession of Harry Hyams, had not been deposited in the bank. Witness was the ledger-keeper in the office, and the one in the bank entitled to initial deposit entries, who would use the initial B, which appeared after the entry. Neither the entry nor the initial B was in his handwriting. The intention of the crown was to show that Harry Hyams had entered this sum of $7,954 in order to deceive his wife.

At the opening of the court in the afternoon there was another consultation between the judge and the counsel, and Mr. Osler said that the evidence tendered by Mr. Ames and two or three other witnesses, and the evidence of Mr. Smoke, now under consideration by his lordship, was tendered by the crown with the view of showing the total amount of money, the proceeds of this insurance, reaching the prisoners.

The result of checking over the various vouchers and bank accounts came to this, that prior to the marriage of the prisoner, Harry Hyams, with Martha Wells, the sum of $8,500 was received and not accounted for, $1,900 of which sum went to pay the joint debt of both prisoners, viz., the chattel mortgage of Dr. McPherson. That money was the proceeds of insurance in Martha Wells' hands. After the marriage, in large sums, the prisoner, H. P. Hyams, received $14,300, of which sum $3,150 came directly to Dallas. As the counsel for the prisoners admitted this, Mr. Osler said he would refrain from giving the further evidence tendered on this part of the case. The counsel for the defense conceded this evidence.

Dr. John Caven, professor of pathology in the university of Toronto medical faculty, testified to having been present when the body was exhumed, two years after it had been first buried, and to having made a post mortem. He described the wounds on the skull, which were very numerous. One divided the skull into two lateral halves, and a fracture running transversely from ear to ear divided the skull into two other portions—an anterior and a posterior one. Another line started on the right temple, and ran around to the front of the head through the brow, and terminated above the left temple. There were many other smaller wounds. The vault of the skull was broken into eight or nine pieces. When the force which caused the wounds was applied to the head, it must have been resting against something hard. He did not think the one blow could account for all the wounds, and saw indications of a second blow.

The Sultan Has Turned Over a New Leaf,

And No More Bloodshed Is Feared—A Canadian Missionary Maltreated by the Turks.

Constantinople, Nov. 20.—As intimated in these dispatches during the last few days, the attitude of the Sultan has undergone a decided change since the other fleets began to join the British fleet in the naval demonstration in Salonica Bay. There is no doubt that the pressure brought to bear upon the Sultan has been strong enough to make him take personal charge of the work of reform in Armenia, and it is now hoped that there will be no further bloodshed. It is hoped, moreover, that the Armenian clergy will be able to induce their coreligionists to lay down their arms, especially as the sentiment of the whole of Europe is now in favor of the Sultan, whose evident desire to meet the views of the powers is thoroughly appreciated and has undoubtedly tided over a most difficult crisis in the east. There is no longer any talk of the armed intervention of the powers in the Turkish empire, and if any display of force is necessary upon the part of Europe it might be in the direction of supporting the authority of the Sultan, as Great Britain, Russia and France are extremely desirous that order should be promptly restored throughout Asia Minor.

London, Nov. 20.—A dispatch to the Globe from Constantinople published this afternoon confirms last night's report of the ill-treatment which the Canadian missionary, Rev. Mr. Martin, has been subjected to upon the part of the Turks, adding that he was beaten and afterwards imprisoned for sixtenn hours at Fewkkah, near Hadjin, in the province of Adana, in the heart of the Taurus Mountains. There is nothing, however, in the more recent dispatches to indicate that Mr. Martin is fatally or permanently injured. Rev. John Campbell Martin is a Presbyterian in faith and a member of the American board. He is a native of Heatherdale, P. E. I., and is about 35 years of age. He has been a missionary in Armenia for over three years.

Remarkable Results.

A prominent resident of an eastern town called at the office of Lakehurst Institute this week to tell us how Gold Cure matters were progressing in this town, from the immediate vicinity of which no less than eighteen well known residents have come during the past ten months to take the famous treatment at Oakville. He said: "Only one of the whole list has touched liquor since, and no one ever had any confidence in him. The majority of the other seventeen cannot be persuaded to drink even a glass of water or buy a cigar at a place where liquor is kept. I tell you our people have entire confidence in your treatment." This is no solitary instance. The knowledge of the Lakehurst treatment has penetrated to every quarter of the province, and from all points of the compass there come to Oakville each month level headed men who have had enough of liquor drinking and intend to derive permanent benefit from a four or five weeks' stay with us. Our treatment enables them to abstain from alcohol by removing the disease from the system. Toronto office, 28 Bank of Commerce Building. 'Phone 1,163.

An All-Year Service Between Port Stanley and Cleveland.

Rumored Agreement With the L. E. and D. R. R.

Immense Car Ferries to be Constructed by a Detroit Firm—Passengers and Freight to be Carried.

Detroit, Nov. 20.—An evening paper says: O. W. Shipman, of this city, has closed a contract with the London and Port Stanley Railway, by which he is to establish an all-year passenger and freight boat service between Port Stanley and Cleveland, Ohio. The contract runs for ten years, and is renewable for the same time at the expiration of the first period. Two big three-track car ferries, having a capacity of 26 cars each, and similar in size and construction to those in use on the Straits of Mackinac, are to be built at once for this line, at a cost of about $225,000 each. A tug and two flat boats, each of the latter carrying 25 cars, will also be constructed, at a cost of about $30,000, for use in the summer months, when ice-crushers are not necessary. The two first mentioned boats will be equipped to force their way through any probable thickness of ice, and will make regular trips the year round.

Mr. Shipman is already engaged in organizing a company to push the enterprise. On his recent return from Carlsbad he stopped in London, Eng., and presented the project to some bankers there, to whom he had letters from Wall street connections. He was promised all the funds necessary to carry out the plans he outlined, and no time will be lost in beginning the work. Mr. Shipman says the new line will open a large Canadian territory to American soft coal. The saving in freight from Cleveland to points in the vicinity tributary to London will be about $1 per ton, and, while the 80 mile trip across the lake will occupy six hours, freight is now from three to four days in going around the lakes between the same points. The London and Port Stanley road agrees to have engines always ready at Port Stanley to haul cars from the boats directly to London, twenty miles, without delay. Since arriving home, Mr. Shipman has received letters from two of the large Pennsylvania coal roads, which desire to arrange for a hard coal and coke as well as a soft coal traffic, on the new line. He will go to New York Tuesday of next week to meet these parties.

The boats are to be arranged for the accommodation of package freight in addition to cars. It has not yet been decided where they will be built.

HIS HEAD CRUSHED.

Mr. Joseph Hockins Injured in an Elevator Accident.

Skull and Jaw Bone Badly Fractured and Face Torn — Was Looking Down the Shaft When the Hoist Came Down.

Mr. Joseph W. Hockins, of 556 William street, is lying at his home with his skull fractured posterially, his upper jaw fractured in several places, and the muscles of the right side of his face badly lacerated and cut through to the bone. The injuries were sustained in an elevator accident at the London Furniture Company's factory, King street, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Hockins is one of the company's oldest and most faithful employes, and was engaged as usual on the third floor. He had occasion to use the elevator, and going to the shaft about 4 o'clock he looked towards the basement to see where the hoist was. To look into the elevator way, Mr. Hockins had to lean over a rail which was used to prevent the employes from falling into the opening, and he had no sooner done so than the elevator descended, catching his head between the cross rail and the hoist floor. Hockins did not have time to raise an outcry, but the man on the hoist, noticing the sudden stop, reversed the machinery, and started on an upward course, almost immediately releasing Hockins from his terrible position. Hockins' face was badly crushed, and blood was running from several wounds. He was attended by Dr. Drake, and removed to his home, where it was found that the skull and jaw were fractured, as mentioned above, the jaw fractures extending to the right eye-ball.

He rested better last night than Dr. Drake expected, and consequently is considerably easier this morning. He is by no means out of danger.

Mr. Hockins has been employed by the London Furniture Company, for many years, and is popular with his fellow-employes. He is between 50 and 60 years of age, and has a grown-up family.

THE RAILWAYS.

Plan for a Raid on Pullman Car Prices —C. P. R. Said to be Building a New Line.

The Chicago Evening Post says that the C. P. R. is building a line to connect Chicago with its "Soo" line and thence with the main line to the Pacific coast. The construction of the new line, it is said, has already been commenced.

English railroads have been stirred up by the recent feats of the New York Central and Lake Shore roads. They are now preparing to beat all records next year. The Midland Railway, which took no part in the race to the north last summer, is building an engine at Derby that will be able to run from London to Sheffield and thence to Carlisle without stopping. The Great Northern is improving its tenders so as to make an unbroken run to York, and the London and Northwestern is substituting bogies for its compound engines. They all declare they will reach Manchester in three hours and a half or a quarter from London, instead of four and a half hours.

A Chigago dispatch says: All the railroads in the United States using the Pullman sleeping cars are likely to present a petition to the company to have the price of berths in its sleeping cars lowered at least 25 per cent. The Pennsylvania railroad started the war. About two-thirds of the Chicago railroads using the cars have agreed to join in the campaign. The price of an upper or lower berth from Chicago to New York is now $5. Under the proposed reduction by the Pennsylvania people the price of a lower berth would remain at that figure, while the rate for the upper would be $3 75. The price for a berth for one night is usually $2. Under the proposed reduction an upper berth would be only $1 75 for a single night. Out of the 173,370 miles of railroads in the United States the Pullman Company runs its cars over 127,000 miles. It owns and operates 2,588 sleeping, parlor and dining cars.

WALKER & CO.

COAL OIL IN THE STATES.

The New York Herald has a valuable article on the production of petroleum, the outlook for new wells and other matters pertaining to oil. It finds that in the eastern district there has been a general decrease in output, that more Lima oil is being produced, and that the amount of exports is falling off.

Dairy Market.

INGERSOLL.

Ingersoll, Ont., 19.—At the cheese market here today 3,900 boxes October and balance were offered, but no sales; 8⅝c bid. Large attendance, but the market was very dull. Board adjourned for two weeks.

Hides.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—Owing to the unfavorable market reports from Chicago, prices for green hides here dropped ½c and now stand at 5½c. The situation is rather discouraging. It is difficult to make sales; everyone seems to prefer to await the course of events.

Beans.

Chatham, Ont., Nov. 19.—Dealers in beans report a better feeling in New England and New York, and some sales, but in Eastern Canada no business can be done at a profit. One Montreal firm offers $1 for hand-picked delivered there, which would net the shipper here about 83c or 87c, and bring the street price down to 68c to 70c. No business can be done at that figure. Offers from Halifax, St. John and Moncton are very little better, but as stocks are low here dealers are not pressing sales, and if the eastern people want beans they will have to raise their offers at least 10c or 15c a bushel. Unless farmers begin to deliver soon there will be no business to do, and present appearances indicate most of them have made up their minds to wait, feeling that the prices can't go lower. There are no beans west at present. Not a bushel of shipment have crossed the Detroit River this month. Michigan and Wisconsin supplying the west and south almost entirely. A few sales have been made to New England people at 95c on the track here, and if enough orders at this rate would come in stocks here would be cleared out in short order.

British Grain Trade.

London, Nov. 18.—The Mark Lane Express, in its review of the British grain trade, says: English wheats have declined 6d and American red wheats 1s. American flours designated as "patents" have receded 1s. Corn has been firm, American selling at 16s 3d. Barley, beans and peas have been steady. Today English wheats were weak, with quotations unchanged. Foreign wheats were a shade firmer, and for flour there was no demand. Malting barley was 6d cheaper, and beans 6d dearer. Oats, rye and peas were steady.

Live Stock Markets.

TORONTO.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—The Toronto cattle market today was dull and weak. Receipts were fair—55 cars, including 869 sheep and lambs, 1,200 hogs, 15 calves and 20 milch cows. The demand for export cattle is over. Butchers' cattle were in fair demand, but most of what was offered was poor stock. Choice sold at 3¼c, and fairly good lots at 3¼c to 3½c per lb. Common cattle sold at 1½c to 2c. Bulls were selling at 1½c per lb.

Sheep and lambs were very dull. Lambs were steady, at 3c to 3½c per lb, but most of the sales were made at $2 50 to $2 60 each for good, and common sold as low as $2 each.

Calves were steady, at $2 to $6 each.

Milch cows steady, at $20 to $37 each, the latter for choice.

Hogs were 10c per cwt. lower, the best selling at $3 75 per cwt. The prospects for next week are for lower prices.

CHICAGO.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Hogs—Receipts 45,000; left over, 4,000. Market fairly active; prices steady to 5c higher. Light, $3 40 to $3 65; mixed, $3 40 to $3 67½; heavy, $3 25 to $3 70; rough, $3 35 to $3 45.

Cattle — Receipts, 14,000, including 2,000 Texans and 1,000 westerns. Market steady to stronger. Beeves, $3 15 to $4 15; cows and heifers, $1 50 to $3 60; Texas steers, $2 70 to $3 35; westerns, $2 90 to $3 90; stockers and feeders, $2 25 to $3 70.

Sheep—Receipts, 12,000. Market steady.

EAST BUFFALO.

East Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 20.—Cattle —The market was about steady with about 3 cars on sale. About all were small lots and ends of loads except one drove of stockers, mostly heifers, which sold at $3 10.

Hogs—Receipts, 55 cars. Market only fairly active. Yorkers, fair to choice, $3 65 & $3 70; roughs, common to good, $3 @ $3 30; pigs, common to fair, $3 @ $3 65.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 40 cars. Market fairly steady. Lambs, choice to prime, $4 15 @ $4 25; culls and common lambs, $2 75 @ $3 40. Sheep, choice to selected wethers, $3 15 @ $3 40; culls and common sheep, $1 25 @ $1 85.

Three weeks ago an advertisement was inserted in the "Weekly Advertiser," and in a neighbor weekly by a school section of Westminster, asking for applications for the position of teacher. Fourteen out of the fifteen replies mentioned the "Weekly Advertiser."

GILMORE'S BAND.

Rain kept many away from the Grand last night, when Gilmore's Band held forth, but those who attended were more than repaid by the splendid concert given. The band is under the direction of Victor Herbert, and the programme included many spirited selections of his own composition. "Tell's Overture," scenes from "Faust," "Scenes Neepolitaines," and selections from Massenet were given in a manner that provoked the utmost enthusiasm. Mr. Herbert gave a solo on the violoncello, Mr. H. L. Clarke a cornet solo, and Sig. De Clarlo, a piccolo fantasie on "Come Back to Erin." In response to an encore for the "Faust" selection the "Canadian Patrol" was given. It is the composition of Mr. Clarke, solo cornetist, who is a Canadian. It introduced British and Canadian airs that aroused such a storm of applause that Mr. Clarke had to rise and bow acknowledgments. Miss Ida Klein sang the "Roberto" aria in splendid voice, and later a song composed by Victor Herbert, entitled "The Kiss of Spring." Encores were numerous.

THE YOUNG LIBERAL CLUB.

There should be a large attendance of the members of the Young Liberal Club on Friday evening, when the president, Dr. George C. Davis, will deliver his inaugural address. It will probably be one of his best efforts. In addition, a programme of varied character, by the best local male talent in the city, will be furnished. It will be equally as good as the last concert held there, and that is saying a good deal. The chair will be taken at 8.

THE GRAVEL PIT TROUBLE.

Mr. Oliver, the owner of the Wellington street north gravel pit, which the street railway company proposed to tap, informed the city engineer this morning that he would not allow the company to use the pit. If the company would grade the street four feet in front of his property he had agreed to let them take three feet off the surface of his land. But as the council decided on Monday night not to grade the street to the detriment of the other residents, Mr. Oliver is not willing to make a hole out of his place. The street railway company must have gravel, and it is probable that they will have to go farther north for it.

REMEMBERING THE POOR.

The pupils at the Colborne street school again remembered the poor at Thanksgiving time this year. Yesterday they brought to school enough vegetables and provisions to fill two ordinary wagons. The articles brought by the children were such as they could secure from their parents, including flour, raisins, currants, bread, cakes, pies, poultry, meat and every class of vegetables. These will assist many deserving families to a proper enjoyment of Thanksgiving. The kindergarten class of the Talbot street school and the children of the Queen's avenue kindergarten also made up a collection of edibles for the Orphans' Home.

ISSUED A WRIT.

A writ was issued yesterday by Meredith, Cameron, Judd & Dromgole at the instance of the village of London West to compel the street railway company to give the village the electric transit agreed upon, namely, a 20-minute service and transfers at the bridge. The company are given ten days to comply with the request of the village, and at the end of that time, if the service is not in proper shape, steps will be taken to cancel the covenant between the company and the coporation.

Writ talk was rife about the village today, and it was asserted that two individual writs had been issued, one by a young man working at an uptown factory, who had lost a position through being late on account of the service, and another by a man who had been obliged to get off the car at Ridout street. These rumors, however, could not be verified.

APPEALS AGAINST ASSESSMENT.

Judge Wm. Elliot held a court today for the hearing of eleven appeals which had been entered against assessments, as fixed by the court of revision. Owners of vacant lands comprised a majority of the appellants. The Ontario Lands and Oil Company (formerly the Western Land Company), the Renwick estate, Levi Lewis, A. S. Oliver, John A. Grant, and Mr. Barratt were the vacant land owners, and their respective solicitors, held that their properties should be assessed as farm lands, with a percentage added on account of their location, as required by an amendment made to the Municipal Act in 1895. The contention of City Solicitor Meredith was that the act was so indefinite in its provisions that the only thing the assessors could do was to assess the lands at a fair value; and if the properties were assessed as farm lands a percentage should be added sufficient to bring them up to their actual value. Judgment was reserved.

Murray Anderson's appeal was against a $7,000 assessment on the house and property at the corner of Dundas streets, the ground of appeal being that the building has been occupied as a place of worship since early in the year. Reserved. Chorazin Lodge's $2,300 assessment on two lots at the corner of Rectory and Dundas streets, was confirmed. In the assessment notice the frontage of the lots was given as 166 feet, where it should have been 116. This clerical error was the cause of the appeal, the lodge officials believing they had been assessed in accordance with the frontage given on the notice.

The Consolidated Plate Glass Company appealed against personal property assessment, and the C. P. [illegible]graph Company objected to their assessment on wires, poles, etc. Reserved. No insurance companies entered appeals against their income assessment. Messrs. Magee, McKillop & Murphy arranged with Assessment Commissioner Grant and Ald. Armstrong (chairman of the court of revision), whereby the income of the Standard Company should be fixed at $1,500, the Sun Life at $1,200, and the London and Lancashire at $3,000. Had this agreement not been reached the campanies would have refused to pay their taxes.

When the War Was Over

BY FREDERICK R. BURTON,

Author of "Her Wedding Interlude," "Josef Helmuth's Goetz," "A Pot of Gold," "The Strange Object of Thornton Wetmore," etc.

CHAPTER XXX.—"THE PRESIDENT."

So like a cat did the black man move that neither Mrs. Warren nor Elsie were aware of his presence until he was passing them on the way to the bed.

Elsie screamed, and Mrs. Warren sprang to her feet and tried to lay hold of Wanga's arm.

He shook her off and grasped at Dutton's throat, seizing the scapular and wrenching it away. The band broke and he turned with it in his hand as Mrs. Warren cried:

"Do not profane the dead! 'Tis the sign of his faith."

Dutton was not dead. The violence with which his head had been pulled forward aroused him.

His eyes opened and rested on Wanga. It was but an instant. Mrs. Warren was even on the point of reaching to Wanga's upraised hand to take the sacred emblem from him, when a terrific report shook the house and the black man tumbled backward, the scapular dropping from his hand with a sharp rap as it struck the floor.

Dutton with a supreme effort had summoned all his waning forces and shot Wanga with the ancient pistol that Will had found for him.

Mr. Warren and Will had rushed from the gate the instant they heard Elsie scream. As they entered the spare room Dutton was sinking back upon the pillows, pointing feebly to the scapular and gasping:

"The 'President'! It's yours, Elise!"

Mr. Warren's first thought was for the black man. He feared lest, being slightly wounded, he might yet commit irreparable mischief; but Wanga's evil course was at an end. The charge of buckshot with which the pistol had been loaded had passed through his heart.

Mrs. Warren had gone to Dutton, whose head had fallen forward on his breast. She raised it tenderly, and Dutton's eyes were open, but there was no light of life in them.

Will had taken up Elsie and carried her past the tottering Gran'pa into the sitting room. She was hysterical, and it was well for her that she could sob her nerves to rest in his arms.

"It is the end, Nicholas," said Mrs. Warren, turning to her husband with a ghastly white face.

"Yes," he answered, "the end," and he sighed profoundly. He stooped over and picked up the scapular.

Mrs. Warren burst into tears at the sight of it.

"How shamefully thoughtless!" she sobbed. "I didn't remember today when the doctor said that there was no hope, to send for the priest. Poor Freeman! I ought to have been more considerate."

Mr. Warren had the scapular clenched tight in his fist.

"I don't believe," he whispered slowly, "that Dutton wanted a priest. I don't think so."

"Why, Nicholas, why?"

There was the sound of a horse galloping along the road. It stopped in front of the house.

"It's Dr. Nason," said Mr. Warren. "Perhaps he knows. We'll ask him."

Dr. Nason walked quickly into the room and stopped short at the tragic spectacle before him. Then without a word he knelt by Wanga a moment, went from him to the bed, and after a brief inspection said:

"There is nothing for me to do here, my friends. Mrs. Warren, why don't you go to your daughter?"

The daughter was not exactly in need of her mother's comfort at the moment, but it seemed to the doctor as if Mrs. Warren ought to find some outlet for her emotions in caring for the living rather than remaining in that grewsome chamber of horrors.

"Is Dutton dead?" asked Gran'pa Kirk, who had dropped into a chair near the door.

"Yes, father," answered Mr. Warren, helping him to rise and leading him to the sitting room. Mrs. Warren and the doctor followed.

"Dr. Nason," asked Mrs. Warren, "is there anything that can be done for a Catholic after he's dead? Should we send for Father Reardon now?"

The doctor smiled faintly.

"Dutton was not a Catholic," he said. "Father Reardon told me something about it at the time your husband was in trouble. It was probably fortunate for Nick that Dutton was not of that faith, otherwise Father Reardon might have felt constrained by the obligations of his sacred calling to hold as an inviolable secret what Dutton told him on the day when we supposed he was making his confession. As it was, he went straight to Judge Drew with his information, or enough of it at all events to give the judge a better view of the situation than you yourselves had."

"Then the man told the secret of his life to Father Reardon, and the father told the——?" asked Mrs. Warren.

"Secret? No, not that I know of. He told how Wanga and his partner attacked him, how Warren was innocent, and he gave him a story about the diamonds. That was all, except that he begged the priest to do what he could to save Warren. The trouble with Dutton was that, in his way, he was as diamond crazy as the others, and he wouldn't give away the hiding place of his jewels. That was the only secret, I guess, and that he kept to himself."

"But the sacred emblem, the scapular?" insisted Mrs. Warren, still in doubt.

"Didn't you hear him say, 'The 'President'?" asked Mr. Warren. Here's the emblem," and he held up the supposed scapular and began to pick it to pieces.

Mrs. Warren would have protested still, but before she could speak her husband had pulled away the cloth from a large diamond, one end of which had been experimentally cut. Its facets flashed and sparkled in the lamplight, and everybody exclaimed in astonishment.

"That's worth a big fortune!" said the doctor, bending over it; "and that's what he willed to Elsie. Well, well!"

Elsie herself went to her father to look at it.

"That for me!" she exclaimed. "Why, I never could wear such a beautiful gem."

The doctor laughed quietly.

"I wouldn't advise you to," he said; "although I understand that the four men who claimed ownership in it are all where they couldn't give you any trouble about it. No, my dear, if you want a diamond, have the cutters give you a chip from it when they finish the stone, and then sell the 'President' and buy Granite—buy the whole county if you want to."

"Is it really so valuable?" asked Will.

"I wouldn't pretend to estimate it," replied the doctor, "but it's a big thing."

Mr. Warren handed the diamond to his daughter, but she drew back with a little shudder.

"Take it, my girl," he said. "I know the story of its discovery and disputed ownership. There may be dark points in connection with the tragedies of which we have been a part, but nothing is surer in the world than your right to that stone, and in your hands I have no doubt it will cease to be a source of evil."

So Elsie took the "President," wondering what she ought to do with it, and how she could find a purchaser for it. Will was very silent. The possibilities of his future stunned him.

The villagers began to straggle home presently. Of course they stopped at Mr. Warren's and heard the news. By common consent no one in the household mentioned the "President" that night. The neighbors were well satisfied that the dangerous black man was dead, and that the strange crew of diamond hunters that had come into the peaceful wilderness had perished one by one at each other's hands, for it might be said that Golding's death was affected by Dutton, who incited the pursuit that ended in his steamer fouling a water-logged wreck off the Jersey coast. The body of Wanga was taken away by some of the neighbors, while that of Dutton was left at Mrs. Warren's request.

A few days after the funeral Gran'pa Kirk, who had been moody and silent from the time of the tragedy, called to Will to come to him where he sat, under the tree in the orchard. Will went over, supposing that the old man wanted some trifling errand done.

"Billy," croaked the old man, with a queer smile, "I've been thinking a long time about something, and I've made up my mind that 'tis a joke after all, and I'm going to tell you."

"Well, Gran'pa, what is it?" asked Will.

"It's about this man Dutton," chuckled the old gentleman. "I remember as well as if it was yesterday when he married my daughter Martha."

"What!" cried Will, aghast.

"Yes; he and Martha were lovers before the war, and I didn't think much of him. I was glad when he enlisted. But what do you think! On the very morning of the time he was to march away they were married. The fun of it was that I happened along just at the conclusion of the ceremony and took Martha home, while Dutton pranced off to his regiment, and we never saw him again. When the war was over, along came Nick Warren, a likely fellow, who'd been a soldier. Martha had been faithful to Dutton's memory, but 'twas years afterward, and finally she fell in love with Nick and married him."

Will knew not what to say. A vague appreciation of Mrs. Warren's situation dawned upon him. The old man chuckled again.

"The best fun of it all was that 'twan't a marriage at all," he continued. "The fellow who performed the ceremony was a fraud. He had no authority to tie the knot, but neither Dutton nor Martha knew it. They don't know it now, so I s'pose I'll have to tell 'em when Dutton gets well. I suppose Martha thinks she's married to two men at once. You see, I let her think she was married all through the war so's 'twould be a lesson to her, and when we heard Dutton was dead I didn't care to say anything about it. Guess I'll have to now, but 'tother night, when I found Dutton in the house and saw how they was keeping me in the dark, I jist got my dander up and I played it on 'em. I pretended how shocked I was at seeing him, and I guess Martha was pretty scared for fear I'd tell. Guess she's suffered enough, and as soon as Dutton gets well enough to go, I'll tell her all about it."

Will, of course, promptly told Mr. Warren of Gran'pa's rambling story. The old soldier was profoundly affected. He questioned Gran'pa sharply about the supposed marriage, and he found that his memory was true to the slightest detail of 35 years ago, while it was so impaired by age now that he had forgotten the circumstances of Dutton's end the week before.

"We took the marriage seriously," said Mr. Warren to Will. "Fact is, I had promised Dutton when I supposed him dying on the battlefield to hunt up his sweetheart and take a message to her from him. I fell in love with her, and after a long courtship won her. When Dutton suddenly appeared as from the grave, I was so startled that without thinking I leveled my rifle at him. You can understand how we felt, and how it complicated all we did or tried to do. Martha's thought, of course, was for Elsie. Well, we must investigate."

The investigation, quickly made, corroborated Gran'pa's story in every particular. Martha Kirk had never been Mrs. Dutton, though she had passed under that name for several years. Incidentally to the investigation it was learned that Dutton had started, after the war, to return north, and had been cast away in a shipwreck, rescued, in company with Golding, and carried to Australia. He may have felt then that he would dig a fortune from the gold mines before returning to his wife, or his affection may have cooled, no one knows.

The "President" is in New York, in the hands of a reputable firm of diamond dealers. Several hundred dollars were found in Dutton's handbag, which, by the terms of his concise will, belonged to Elsie. A part of it was used by Mr. Warren and Will in going to New York, where they offered the diamond for sale. The stone created a sensation, but no dealer would make an offer. It was simply worth too much. For a time it looked as if Elsie's fortune would be a white elephant on her hands, but there are prospects now that she will realize on it.

"Diamonds like this, don't you know," said the dealers, "can be bought only by kings, or people of the most extraordinary wealth. A dealer can't afford such a luxury. The one way to do is to leave it with somebody to be sold on commission. The dealer will then make known its existence to the great people of the world, and before long it will be disposed of at something like its value."

Such an arrangement, therefore, was made, the firm selected not only volunteering bonds for the safety of the diamond, but advancing several thousand dollars on it as a guaranty of good faith. Out of this money Elsie is paying for the erection of the house she and Will are to occupy when they are married next December.

Meantime, the diamond has been quietly advertised, and a prince of Bohemia has sent his Grand Chamberlain across the sea to look at it. It is said, too, that one of the Rothschilds has seen it, and has quietly made an offer that will be accepted if the prince's purse doesn't prove to be too long.

(The End.)

HIS LORDSHIP ROBBED.

Viscount Curzon and Ohio Bill Get Into Trouble.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Right Hon. Sir Richard William Curzon, Viscount Curzon, of the well-known English family of that name, complained to the police last night that he had been robbed of $185, and asked for warrants for the arrest of the thieves.

The viscount, who is traveling under the name of Bloomfield was robbed in an establishment at 327 State street, kept by a woman named Annie Bell. Warrants were issued for the inmates of the place, and an effort will be made to get the viscount's money for him. The police, however, have very little hope of securing the stolen funds. There was nothing sensational about the robbery, it being a plain case of "touch."

The viscount was traveling around the city in the company of a "levee" character known as Ohio Bill.

The viscount is about 27 years of age, and claims that he was a classmate of the Duke of Marlborough, who married Miss Vanderbilt recently. He also says that he is a cousin of the Curzon who became the husband of Miss Mary Leiter.

A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than a half-bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me any good."

HOLMES' LATEST CLAIM.

Says Hatch Killed the Three Pitezel Children

And That Minnie Williams Coaxed Him to Do So in Order to be Revenged on Holmes.

New York, Nov. 20.—H. H. Holmes has written from his Philadelphia prison to the New York World a circumstantial denial of his connection with the murder of Minnie and Nannie Williams and the three Peitzel children. He claims that Nannie Williams was killed by her sister Minnie, when she was in an insane frenzy, and that the Peitzel children were killed by Edward Hatch, the mysterious individual whom he has before blamed for the crime. Hatch had fallen in love with Minnie Williams, and in this he finds the motive for the destruction of the little ones. Miss Williams was in love with Holmes, and when Holmes said he was going to marry another woman, she swore to be revenged. Holmes claims that she induced Hatch to kill the children for the purpose of bringing the crime home to Holmes.

Edward Hatch was first brought into the conspiracy to rob the insurance companies, Holmes says, in Indianapolis. Hatch impersonated Hiram S. Campbell there before a notary public. Hatch, he says, ingratiated himself into the affections of the children. Holmes claims that Hatch murdered Howard Peitzel in Indianapolis, while he was in Chicago, and tells of his doings while in Chicago to prove and alibi.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—James McNeary, a street car conductor, who formerly worked for Peitzel, declares that he met Peitzel recently in Chicago and talked with him.

Robert Corbett also claims to have seen Peitzel.

PARMELEE'S PILLS possess the power of acting specifically upon the diseased organs, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease. In fact, so great is the power of this medicine to cleanse and purify, that diseases of almost every name and nature are driven from the body. Mr. D. Carswell, of Carswell postoffice, Ont., writes: "I have used Parmelee's Pills, and find them an excellent medicine, and one that will sell well."

The Mystery Story.

Important Information for Readers and Competitors for Prizes.

In another column of today's issue will be found the final chapter of the remarkably interesting mystery story, "When the War Was Over." In it all of the mysterious circumstances and the relations of the characters to one another, which so puzzled the reader while the story was running in the "Advertiser," are clearly explained. Those who formed their own conclusions as to how the story would end, and they number many thousands, will now have an opportunity of comparing their conclusion with the autnor's solution of the mystery.
The work of sorting and examining the many hundreds of guesses which were received is being pushed as rapidly as possible. The number is so large and the points of competition so varied that the task is enormous, but as soon as possible the final awards will be made by the Story Editor according to published conditions, and published in the "Advertiser."

—Dollie Brooks, the little comedy queen of song, will appear at the Grand tomorrow (Thanksgiving), matinee and night, in a new edition of "Jerry." "Jerry" is considered one of the strongest comedy dramas on the road today, and has been specially rewritten for Miss Brooks. Her supporting company is headed by Mr. Charles W. Travis, Charles H. Mestayer, and other recognized metropolitan favorites.
THE WATER COMMISSIONERS.
The regular semi-monthly meeting of the water commissioners was held in the City Hall yesterday afternoon, with Messrs. Cowan (chairman), and Judd, Engineer Moore, Inspector Plastow and Secretary Ellwood in attendance. Mr. Moore recommended that a two-inch main be laid on Wellington street, north of Cheapside, as requested by Mr. W. G. McKenna. The cost would be about $120. The revenue from the consumers in the block would amount to $70 at least, a year.
"But in time all these small pipes will have to be taken up," said Mr. Judd.
"Yes, in about ten years," replied Engineer Moore; "but they pay for themselves in less time than that."
The main will be laid.
Mr. J. H. Cooke, assistant to Secretary Ellwood, asked for leave of absence beginning Dec. 1, so that he could visit the old country. The request was granted.
On account of the absence of Mayor Little in Toronto, the Keating and other special reports before the board were left over for consideration at a special meeting to be held before the end of the month. The waterworks year closes on Nov. 20, and the commissioners will see that all accounts are passed and paid and every item cleared off the books before Dec. 1.
Chairman Cowan stated that he had heard some complaint against the commissioners putting motors in some private residences. Inspector Plastow had also heard one consumer complain about his motor.
"Those fellows were having a nice snap," said Mr. Moore.
Mr. Cowan—Yes, pumping water with our water and paying nothing for it.
