

JAPANESE CHARGED ACROSS A MINED FIELD AND MANY THOUSANDS ARE BLOWN TO PIECES

After terrific fighting and sacrifice besiegers gain important points.

Gen. Kuroki Now But Twenty Miles From Mukden and Battle Is Imminent.

London, Friday, Aug. 19, 4 a.m. — A dispatch to the Telegraph from Chefoo says that the Japanese have made a great attack on Port Arthur on Aug. 15. They charged over huge mine fields which were blown up with terrific effect. Many of the Japanese were blown to atoms. It is estimated that the Japanese have lost about 10,000. The Japanese are reported to be driving large herds of cattle over the Russian mines trying to explode them. The Russians have captured numbers of these cattle, thus adding to their food supply. The spectacle was a terrible one. The Japanese, who arrived at Chefoo Thursday night, say that the Japanese losses were terrific. It is asserted that one battery of horse artillery, two squadrons of cavalry and half a division of infantry were completely annihilated by mine explosions. The men's bodies were dismembered. The spectacle was a terrible one. The Japanese right and left flanks are retreating. The center positions are the objects of attack. The Japanese are described as being of a fearful character.

Chefoo, Aug. 18, 8 p.m. — A battle of huge proportions raged around Port Arthur Aug. 14 and 15, and was resumed Aug. 17. The Japanese, who reported, sacrificed 20,000 more men, but gained important advantages in the matter of positions. The Japanese were blown to atoms. The Japanese right and left flanks are retreating. The center positions are the objects of attack. The Japanese are described as being of a fearful character.

London, Aug. 18, 8 p.m. — Beyond representing to the Chinese the choice of preserving the neutrality of the harbor and not attacking the Russian cruiser Askold and the Japanese gunboat, the Japanese are reported to be sending a message to the Japanese right and left flanks are retreating. The center positions are the objects of attack. The Japanese are described as being of a fearful character.

Russia Challenges Britain With More Volunteer Ships

New York, Aug. 19. — The Odessa correspondent of the Times cables: In spite of the feeling aroused in England and elsewhere by the action of Russia in sending the Petersburg and the Amurenskiy to the Dardanelles, I learn on good authority that she intends to challenge once more the clauses of the Black Sea agreement by sending the Sarafok, a sister ship of the Petersburg, to the harbor and not attacking the Russian cruiser Askold and the Japanese gunboat, the Japanese are reported to be sending a message to the Japanese right and left flanks are retreating. The center positions are the objects of attack. The Japanese are described as being of a fearful character.

Russ Gunboat Goes to Bottom

The warship Olavjin strikes a mine and sinks close to Port Arthur.

Tokio, Aug. 19. — A Russian gunboat of the Olavjin type struck a mine and sank near southern point of the Kwangtung Peninsula on which Port Arthur stands. The vessel was on Thursday night.

Fighting Parson of Blenheim Town Had Himself Sworn to Enforce Local Official Bylaw and Defied a Big Mob.

Chatham, Aug. 18. — Harwich township and Blenheim town are local opponents. The Rev. G. R. Brown, of Blenheim, who inaugurated the temperance movement there, heard that liquor was being sold at Erieau, a summer resort in Harwich township. He had himself sworn in as a special constable and went down to investigate on Tuesday night, when the band gave a concert. The lessee of the pavilion refused him admittance, and he has laid a charge against the latter under the statute. There are about a hundred men employed at the piers by the Lake Erie Coal Company, and there was talk among them of mobbing Mr. Brown should he return. He went down again yesterday armed with a search warrant. He invited three other constables to go with him, but they refused.

MAXIM'S FLYING MACHINE Believed to Have Solved the Problem of Aerial Flight.

London, Aug. 19. — The Evening News reports a first view of Sir Hiram Maxim's new flying machine, which, it says, has probably solved the problem of aerial flight. The machine resembles a gigantic swallow.

Kuroki Falling Back.

A Liao Yang correspondent says that Gen. Kuroki's right is apparently withdrawing and that the advance in the direction of Mukden seems to have been abandoned. An enforced armistice, due to the prevalence of heavy rains, prevents military operations.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19. — The newspapers here received the official news this morning too late for comment. The fact that although there is a holiday there are no crowds in the streets is evidence of the gloom of the loved ones with the fleet.

RUSSIA CHALLENGES BRITAIN WITH MORE VOLUNTEER SHIPS

New York, Aug. 19. — The Odessa correspondent of the Times cables: In spite of the feeling aroused in England and elsewhere by the action of Russia in sending the Petersburg and the Amurenskiy to the Dardanelles, I learn on good authority that she intends to challenge once more the clauses of the Black Sea agreement by sending the Sarafok, a sister ship of the Petersburg, to the harbor and not attacking the Russian cruiser Askold and the Japanese gunboat, the Japanese are reported to be sending a message to the Japanese right and left flanks are retreating. ### Many Radical Changes in the Ontario School System

The New Regulations are Far-reaching and Up-to-Date.

Entire System is Recast on the Frobenian Plan.

A Policy of Decentralization to be Adopted—Public and High School Programmes—Latin Optional.

Toronto, Aug. 18. — Complete and radical will be the changes instituted in the public and high schools of the Province by the revised regulations which have been prepared by the Minister of Education and his assistants, and which were indorsed by the provincial cabinet at the meeting on Tuesday afternoon.

Only the proof sheets of the regulations are yet ready, but these were placed at the disposal of the press this morning by the deputy minister, Mr. John Millar, and enough information was gleaned from them to show that the regulations are of the greatest importance, and that the influence of them on the provincial school system will be far-reaching.

Speaking generally, the regulations have been based on the draft submitted by the minister to the Educational Association two years ago, and the subsequent report of the committee of nineteen, but neither of these documents has been slavishly followed, indeed, there is much material that is not suggested in these reports.

The Minister of Education has held to his opinion concerning Latin, despite the vigorous criticisms which have emanated from the "Latinists" during the past year. In the new curriculum Latin is not an obligatory subject for the junior non-professional examination, but the pupils who take it will have the marks made on the paper added to their total. In other words, Latin will be a "bonus optional subject."

The effect of the new regulations will be to put more power in the hands of the inspectors and the teachers, to decentralize in a measure the school system in Ontario. Examinations are not to be the be-all and end-all of education, but the examinations are taken the candidate will be obliged to make 40 per cent of the total marks on each subject, and 60 per cent of the grand total. This raises the standard of scholarship very materially, for in the past the percentages required have been 34 and 50 respectively.

An important change in the regulations relating to the Normal Colleges is that the students may be tested by the board and inspectors.

High School Programme. High school courses of study shall be of the following order: (a) general, (b) commercial, (c) manual training, (d) agricultural, (e) art, (f) agriculture, (g) or manual training, (h) non-professional certificates. The board of education shall have the power to take up, obligatory subjects being English grammar, writing, reading, physical culture, English composition, English literature and history, the same to be taken up in elementary science.

DAIRY OUTPUT WILL BE HEAVY

Will Exceed Anything Reported by Railways as to Butter and Cheese.

Montreal, Aug. 18. — Mr. A. A. Ayer, head of the large produce company of A. Ayer & Co., Quebec, today made a statement of conditions in Ontario and Quebec, based on private reports, which are contrary to the statistics given by the railways. He said:

The total output of butter and cheese in the two Provinces will be equal to, if not greater than, last year. There are certainly no indications of a shortage of the former, and the latter is being produced in larger quantities than in any year since 1898. The surplus of the latter is being sold in the United States, and the surplus of the former is being sold in the United States and in the West Indies.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19, 7:25 a.m. — Referring to the British expedition into Tibet, the Novoye Vremya today says:

Russia is now being paid for the forbearance shown Great Britain during the South African war. Had we taken advantage of Great Britain's preoccupation then to cross Persia, the Baltic fleet might now have a base on the Persian Gulf from which to operate.

CHINA PREPARES

Thousands of Soldiers Drilling Under Japanese Instructions.

London, Aug. 19. — Mr. Martin, Liberal States' consultant at Nankin, China, who arrived from the Chinese steamer Siberia, is quoted in an interview here to the effect that immense bodies of Chinese troops are now drilling in the central portion of the kingdom under the direction of Japanese officers well versed in the modern art of warfare. The soldiers have been supplied with the Mauser type of rifle and the most up-to-date machine guns obtainable are now being purchased for their use. In the vicinity of Nankin alone there are about 5,000 soldiers, drilling constantly.

RUSSIA'S GLORY IS RED CROSS

Army and Navy Poor, But Hospital Work Good.

TITLED MEN AND WOMEN SERVE

Amid So Much Blundering and Incompetence It is Delight to Find Efficiency in One Department.

Tokyo, Japan, July 22.—The Russian army, considered as a fighting machine, may be obsolete (such at least is the opinion of the foreign military attaches and correspondents) but there is one branch of the Russian service, at least, that is thoroughly up-to-date. It is the Red Cross corps, or, to be more specific, the Red Cross Society, all working together as a harmonious and efficient unit.

Amid so much blundering, incompetence and incredible carelessness as we had to witness in Manchuria, it was a delight to see one body of men and women working together in thorough effective organization, all doing their duty with a will and to do without hitch or breakdown, and above all without the usual bickering and bombast that disgraced the relations of all the other branches of the Russian service at the front.

Much of the signal success attained by the Russian Red Cross corps in the very outset of the war resulted from the first place from the wise forethought shown in its organization, and secondly, from the enthusiastic cooperation of the Russian Red Cross Society, a wholly independent association that brought to the aid of the picked men and women serving purely as volunteers at their own risk and expense, the most powerful influence of Russian army life.

Many of the gentlemen and ladies in white aprons and with Red Cross badge on arm or breast, whom I came across toiling in the service of Manchuria like common Cossacks, were members of the highest nobility, prince and court chamberlains, who had given up their positions at court and closed their residences at St. Petersburg in order to devote themselves to the arduous duties of trained nurses.

The chief officer of the three organizations is Gen. Treppel, the general staff at the fighting front. Three general staff officers in charge of the Military Medical Corps, the Sanitary Corps and the Red Cross Society. All three bodies are independent, having their own surgeons, nurses and medical attendants.

Four sanitary railway trains are employed as flying hospitals between the fighting end of the Trans-Siberian railway and the big base of Harbin, where the trains are met by hospital barges, which are towed up the Sungari River to Habarovsk with its five great hospitals of 1,000 beds each.

Counting only the Red Cross hospitals, there are two of 500 beds each, and of all divisional, brigade, regimental or other military hospitals, there are two of 500 beds each at Harbin; three at Mukden, four at Liao Yang, one at Tachichiao and one at Hai Cheng with 200 beds each.

Another disputed flag incident might also be explained here. The Russians made a formal protest to the Geneva Society that a Japanese infantry detachment at Peking had fired a signal train coming out of Fort Arthur. The Japanese claim that it was the Red Cross flag that was hoisted, and that the Japanese flag was hoisted by the cowardly exploit of hoisting the Red Cross flag.

GALLANT FIGHT OF RURIK'S MEN

Magnificent Courage Shown by Crew of Doomed Ship.

SERVED GUNS TO BITTER END

Kept Up Struggle After Consorts Had Deserted Her and Until She Gradually Sank.

London, Thursday, Aug. 19.—A dispatch to the Times from Tokio gives an account of Vice-Admiral Kamimura's fight with the Japanese fleet, and brings into high relief the magnificent courage with which the Russians fought to the bitter end, the outfit the Japanese projectiles repeatedly took effect. The Russians changed their course to bring their guns parallel to the Japanese, and they threw the Rurik out of line on account of her concentration of fire, enabling the Japanese to concentrate their fire on her. A range of from 4,500 to 5,000 yards. There, observing the Rurik's position, they round her for the purpose of securing her, thus again exposing themselves to a raking fire, which was poured hotly on them. The Russians replied with every available gun.

The Rurik, hit by flames and began to describe circles, her steering gear apparently being injured. The Russian admiral, however, never flinched, and flames poured from their port holes. There was evidently much concussion on board, but their crews succeeded in extinguishing the fire. Meanwhile the Rurik began to go down by the stern, and listed to port. Her brave crew, however, never flinched, and the guns, repeatedly the Rurik and Gromobol went to her assistance, but only exposed themselves to a raking fire, which was poured hotly on them, and inflicting little damage.

The Japanese range at this time did not exceed 5,000 yards. Nearly every shot from the Japanese took effect. The Rurik was hit five or six times, and on three or four occasions the port hole burst into flames. Finally the Rurik had only two guns left in action, and her mizzenmast was shot away. It was now 9 a.m., and the Rurik and Gromobol seeing that the Russian fleet was being broken up, steamed away at full speed. Then the fourth squadron, consisting of the Naniwa and mercantile vessels, addressed the engineering section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science today.

Cambridge, Eng., Aug. 18.—Mr. Charles Parsons, the English inventor, who developed the steam turbine and made it suitable for the generation of electricity and the propulsion of war and mercantile vessels, addressed the engineering section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science today. Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, the Prime Minister, who is president of the association, presided over the meeting. Mr. Parsons' address was a long and interesting one dealing with inventions and patents. He urged that greater encouragement, assistance and protection be given the British inventor and patentee by the state along the lines adopted by Germany and the United States. He strongly advocated changes in the law of patents of all countries, especially in regard to the extension of the time limit, but he pointed out that it would be useless for Great Britain alone to make these changes, if capital was to be attracted to the development of inventions dependent upon patents from which the world would derive immense benefit. As an illustration, Mr. Parsons gave details of a scheme for the sinking of a shaft to a great distance in order to explore the lower depths of the earth.

JAP FLEET AFTER CRUISER ASKOLD

Threaten to Enter Neutral Port of Shanghai and Cut off Russian Ships.

Shanghai, Aug. 18.—M. Odagira, the Japanese consul-general, has notified the Tao-tai of Shanghai that a Japanese fleet is coming to seize the Russian cruiser Askold and the Russian torpedo-boat destroyer Grozovoi. The chief engineer of the customs reports that the Russian vessels are not seaworthy. The repairs being made by the Russians on the Grozovoi will be completed in 10 days. It is interesting when the repairs to the Askold will be finished. There is no uncertainty here, although the situation is thought to be acute. The foreign consuls are determined to preserve the neutrality of the port. Upon the recommendation of the chief of the customs the Tao-tai of Shanghai will allow the Russian cruiser Askold and the Russian torpedo-boat destroyer Grozovoi to remain in port until Aug. 23, when one day's notice to leave a disarm will be given them. The arrival of Chinese men-of-war is expected.

RACE TRACK BARN BURNED

Conflagration at Fort Erie Does Damage to Extent of $25,000.

Fort Erie, Ont. Aug. 18.—At 10:45 tonight fire broke out in B barn at Fort Erie race track and burned fiercely. By the time the fire was under control, and consequently the village firemen, who were on hand with their engine and tools, could do nothing for some time. Ultimately they did effective work and saved one of the short barns, built last spring. This, with the barns in the Irish Row, are all that remain. All the short barns, A, B, C, and the kitchen being burned. The loss is estimated at $25,000. This is the second fire that has occurred at the track this summer, and has a bad appearance, as no horses were stabled in the barn that first took fire.

MR. SUTHERLAND'S HEALTH

Grave Anxiety of Friends, Who Say He is a Very Sick Man.

Woodstock, Aug. 18.—The latest advice from the Danville Sanitarium in New York indicates that there is no hope for the recovery of the health of Hon. James Sutherland, and he is expected here shortly. Among his close friends here there is the greatest anxiety regarding him, and the impression prevails that his health is very bad. There are prevailing rumors here that he is not but forward on his return to his family that he is a very sick man. THAT CELESTIAL VISITOR

Stone Fell Within Two Feet of Mr. John Shields' Veranda. The John Shields Free Press has the following about the meteor which fell in that neighborhood Saturday: A peculiar thunderstorm visited this locality between 8 and 9 o'clock on Saturday evening. The first indication was like the boom of two cannons in succession, then a rattle, like drum beats, musical in tone. The vibrations lasted much longer than usual, and the sound of the music of the spheres was heard on every side and many ideas were given out on the subject. At the same time the northern sky was a bright red and the western horizon was a dense black dash. From recent developments the noise is supposed to have been caused by the rapid travelling of a meteor through the sky, that fell within two feet of the veranda of John Shields' residence on lot 8, concession 2, Melancthon and sank into the ground, splintering the roof over the veranda, and side of the house. The stone weighed thirteen pounds and is of a dull, grayish color, having a bright, speckled similar in appearance to a streak of stone seems to be a good deal heavier for its size than that of an ordinary stone.

By recent authorities, meteors, aerolites, bolides, falling stars, meteoric stones and bright red and orange flames, are all one and the same, and are called together as only different varieties of the same phenomenon, caused by the swift entrance into our atmosphere of bodies of various sizes traveling in their own orbits round the sun. The air offers so great a resistance to their swift motion that this is immediately checked and its energy changed into heat, which rapidly consumes the bodies, the smallest being burned out in a flash, the larger continuing to swoop on over distances, leaving trains of incandescent debris behind them as they pass. Where a large one passes near the ground, the air is always followed by a noise like thunder or a distant explosion. The largest ones are occasionally bright enough to shine in the day-time, if visible at all, but their general appearance is like a streak of smoke. The greater part of the meteors that reach the earth consist of stone, and a small per cent consist of nickel. The one before us which fell on Saturday evening contained several brilliant pieces embedded in it, but we are not geologists enough to determine their value or quality.

THE STONE ONE HAS IRON scattered through them in nodules and contains considerable in the way of sulphur and other compounds. Out of the 67 known chemical elements, late authorities state that 24 have been found in meteors. The various shapes of the huge bolides after an explosion occurs, passing swiftly through the air at the rate of 20 miles per second, no doubt, caused the musical sound heard on Saturday night last, and at the time this meteor passed over. The fragment of stone thrown off in the explosion while passing over Mr. Shields' farm no doubt fell straight down, as the hole where it embedded itself shows an inclination of any curvative whatever.

Advertisement for Hed-rite IS EXCELSOR. The shades of night were falling fast. When through a country village passed a youth who bore, 'mid snow and ice, a banner with the old device. Use Hed-rite. A man who just the previous day had suffered headache's painful sway had rested this sign so both with plain. And then he tried to ease the pain With Hed-rite. He took a lozenge crisp and sweet; A short time after down the street Once more he joyfully danced along. He's got a cure for a head-ache. It's Hed-rite. Written for The Herald Remedy Co. Peace or War. The meeting of the Friends of Canada and the United States (Quakers), in Toronto the other day, was made the occasion of an interesting discussion on peace and war. The views held by people of this denomination are consistent with their past record. They have always been opposed to war, in theory as well as in practice. And they carry their opposition to a logical conclusion by refusing to fight. They do not believe that a man should fight with his neighbor, or that a nation should fight with its neighbor, or that it should make any preparation for fighting if the other party should commit an assault.

The Grand Trunk Pacific. The name of Mr. James C. Duffield was connected with the commission-ship of the Grand Trunk Pacific between Winnipeg and Moncton, but Mr. Duffield's extensive private business rendered it difficult for him to accept, and Mr. Robert Reid, of the firm of Reid Bros. & Co., of this city, has been offered and accepted the position. It is one we are pleased to see filled by a Londoner. Either Mr. Duffield or Mr. Reid would be an excellent appointment. Mr. Reid is in the prime of life, and has had an extensive experience as a successful business man. No doubt the appointment of Mr. Reid is due to the influence of the member for London, the Honorable C. S. Hyman, who has made an appointment that will be universally approved.

Every one acknowledges that this is a great advance. And everyone is ready to admit that it would be a good thing to have the same rule apply to nations that now applies to individuals. But while we have reached this desirable conclusion in theory, we are unfortunately confronted with conditions which render the theory impracticable. There is such a thing as international law, but there are no international police. The law is in force just so far as the disputing parties choose to accept it, and no further. Doubtless there will come a time when some of the leading nations will agree on an international code, and establish an international police to enforce the code. But that time has not arrived.

What shall be done then, by those who look on war as barbaric, and desire the settlement of all disputes by arbitration? Shall they adopt the policy of the Friends, and abolish their own armaments, dismantle their fortresses, stop building warships, turn their old cruisers into freight vessels, dismiss their militia, and beat their spears into pruning hooks? That would hardly be a wise proceeding on the part of any nation. For there is no power to see that it is protected in its rights, that it is preserved from invasion and spoliation by some neighbor less civilized, who is prepared to fight for what it wants.

Absolute disarmament on the part of any one nation would be unsafe, when the majority of nations agree to it. All talk, therefore, against military preparations and military training, under our circumstances, is futile. For self-defense alone military preparation is always necessary. And preparation for war is really one of the best preservatives of peace.

Of course, there is such a thing as going to the opposite extreme. While the man who is loyal to his country will cheerfully submit to taxation for military purposes to a reasonable degree, and readily risk his own life for his country's sake when called by his country's need, yet he is not anxious for war. The sturdy common sense of an civilized self-governing countries is opposed to war. Only a small section of the community are dangerous to peace. There are some men who take up militarism as a profession, who live by it, who look towards war as an opportunity for advancement in their chosen calling, and as an opportunity for the securing of reputation and glory, if not actual profit. These men may possibly delight in the idea of war. But they are not many in number. The most dangerous class are the second-rate politicians (the demagogues of a community), who delight in stirring up ill-feelings as a means for political gain, to injure the other political party, and advance their own interests. These are the men who are to be feared, as a rule, are not fighting men. They are the bellicose journalists and ward helders, who are always shouting about the old flag, only want to use that venerable article for their own profit, but have not the slightest intention of ever fighting for it. If they "keep both hands on the Union Jack," it is to purloin it, not to defend it. They often speak of "the old flag," but when war breaks out, their place is in the rear, where they can urge other people on to meet the foe, without any danger to themselves. That class is an unmitigated nuisance.

But the masses of the people do not want war, and will submit to any sacrifice to prevent war. Yet if it becomes unavoidable, through no fault of our own, these same people will by all means take part in it to preserve their country's honor, and their country's rights. And, when a better condition of affairs is brought about by the present meeting of shareholders of the present meeting of shareholders, it will provide for international courts, with laws that must be obeyed, these people are ready to sustain any government that will make reasonable preparation for contingencies undesired, but sometimes unavoidable. And they will sustain such a government so long as it acts with common sense, but will promptly overthrow it when it gets a military craze, and gives itself up to the control of illgoists.

In the meantime, while we cannot all fall in with the non-combative policy of the Friends, let Friends of elsewhere, we can heartily indorse all propositions on their part looking to the ultimate abolition of war and any policy that will facilitate the settlement of international disputes by arbitration. Our own experience of arbitration has been not such as to make us very enthusiastic over it. But the general results are certainly beneficial, in so far as they prevent the loss of life and property in war, even though we have lost property by it often than we have gained. And when the Friends send their memorial to King Edward and President Roosevelt urging that Great Britain and the United States form a treaty of arbitration, we wish the movement success.

The building of the Grand Trunk Pacific is a great undertaking for Canada in the beginning of the twentieth century. Those who look back on the undertaking towards the close of the century may not regard it as of such magnitude as we do now. Canada, before that time, largely added by just ten times its present population. Between the lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Pacific there will be large numbers of connecting lines, so that instead of the Grand Trunk Pacific being a rival of or injury to the Canadian Pacific, it will be a great feeder to it. The Grand Trunk Pacific can't succeed without helping the Canadian Pacific very materially. The Grand Trunk was the pioneer railway through old Canada, and the Canada of today from ocean to ocean, will welcome the Grand Trunk Pacific. Its future is much bound up in the success of the two great railways of Canada, the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk Pacific.

It is a great honor to be appointed one of the commissioners to build this great railway. The father of the memorial to the firm of Reid Bros. & Co. had made the name of Robert Reid respected, and as the son bears his father's name, and inherited much of his ability and integrity, he is well qualified to fill the position to which he has been appointed. We approve heartily of Mr. Reid's appointment, and have no doubt he will prove to be a very valuable member of the board of commissioners.

Making Both Ends Meet. [Success.] The old saying, "His head will never save his hands," has many illustrations, and in this story it has a most forcible application. "Well, Caleb," said Captain W., of Massachusetts, years ago, "what will you ask a day to saw wood for me? I've got several cords that I want sawed, but I ain't got time to saw 'em myself." "I should charge you about half a dollar a day if I had a saw," replied Caleb, "but I ain't got none, captain, so I don't see how I can accommodate you." "That's all that's lacking I guess we can manage it," said the captain. "I've got a prime new one, keen as a razor, and I'll let it to you reasonable. How would nintepence a cord for the use of it?" "I reckon that's a fair price, captain. I'll be over in the morning." "Bright and early that next July morning Caleb was at work, and he kept at sunset, when he finished before he went to the house to settle.

"La sen," said the captain, "you were to have half a dollar a day; well, call it a day, although it ain't sun- you were to pay me nintepence a cord for the use of the saw. There were three cords and a half in the pile; that makes 4 1/2 cords due me. Somewhat, you don't have very much com- pensation to you." "How unfortunit," said Caleb, after scratching his head dubiously for half a minute, and then looking up quickly, as if a new light had broken in upon his mind. "How unfortunit that you as a rule are not fighting men. They are the bellicose journalists and ward helders, who are always shouting about the old flag, only want to use that venerable article for their own profit, but have not the slightest intention of ever fighting for it. If they 'keep both hands on the Union Jack,' it is to purloin it, not to defend it. They often speak of 'the old flag,' but when war breaks out, their place is in the rear, where they can urge other people on to meet the foe, without any danger to themselves. But the masses of the people do not want war, and will submit to any sacrifice to prevent war. Yet if it becomes unavoidable, through no fault of our own, these same people will by all means take part in it to preserve their country's honor, and their country's rights. The Bear. [Chicago Tribune.] Young Wife—Henry, I made that pie myself from a recipe that has been in the family 50 years or more. Does it remind you of old times? Young Husband (tasting it)—Yes, dear, it reminds me somehow of the time when I was a boy and could eat anything." [Chicago News.] "And to think," said the young man, with a large open-faced sigh, "my best friend eloped with the girl I was engaged to!" "All of which goes to show that he is still your best friend," rejoined the hard-hearted old bachelor.

Point of View. [Chicago News.] "I'm just exactly old enough when I may have to run. When I was something at the store, or I pa thinks of something more around here to be done." "I'm lots and lots too old to do that. That's what they always say, to fly a kite, or have a sling. Or they seem to think is play." "But pa and ma, when I'm around, they else they make me hungry. Or else they've so much to talk about that I'm long to go to bed."

The Fussy Gentleman. [Cleveland Plaindealer.] A lively-looking porter stood on the rear of a Pullman car in the Pennsylvania depot. A fussy and choleric-looking man clambered up the steps. He stood on the platform, puffed for a moment, and then turned to the young colored man in uniform and said: "Porter!" "Yes, sir." "I am going to St. Louis to the fair. I want to be well taken care of and escorted to the train. Do you understand?" "Yes, sir, I hope—"

Quite the Reverse. [Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.] "Where is Mr. Soke, James?" asked the caller of that genial gentleman's servant. "In his room, sir." "Getting drunk I suppose?" "No, sir. I'm surprised at you, sir, saying such a thing. He's getting sober."

A Dream of Summer. [Whittier.] Bland as the morning breeze lay of June, And through the meadow's path, Seems warm as hazy, the winter snow, Has dropped his streamlet here, Again the mossy earth looks forth, Again the sun's gush cheer. The fox his hillside coil forsakes, The muskrat wags his tail, The bluebird in the meadow brakes Is singing with a gale, "Beary, O Mother Nature!" cry, "Give us a streamlet here, "O winter voices prophesy, Of summer days to thee!" So, in these winters of the soul, O'erstep from memory's frozen pole, Will sunny days, Reviving Hope and Faith, they show And how the snows of winter's snow Lie germs of summer flowers.
