this desi treacherously, and holdent thy tongus when the wicked decoursed the man, that is more righteous than he 1"—Heb. i. 13."

On the lower part of a small mean boat, on the Ried River, Tom sat—chains on his wrists, chains on his feet, and a weight heavier than chains lay on his heart. All had faded from his eky—moon and star; all had passed by him, as the trees and banks were now passing, to return no more. Kennieky home, with wife and children, and indulgent owners; St. Clare home, with all its refinements and aplendours; the golden head of Evg., with its saint-like eyes; the proud, gay, handsome, seeming careless, yet ever-kind 5t. Clare; hours of case and indulgent leisure—all gone! and in plate thereof, what remains?

It is one of the bitterest apportionments of a lot streety, that the negro, sympathetic and assimilative, after acquiring, in a refined family, the tastes and feelbings which form the atmosphere of such a place, is not the less liable to become the bond-slave of the coarsest and most brutal—just as a chuir or table, which once decorated the superb saloon, comes at last, battered and defaced, to the bar-room of some fithly tavern, or some low haunt of vulgar debiuschery. The great difference is, that the table and chair cantot feel, and the most can; for even a legal enactment that he shall be "taken, reputed, adjudged in law, to be a chattel personal," cannot blot out his soul, with its own private little world of memories, hopes, loves, feurs, and desires.

Mr. Simon Legree, Tom's master, had purchased whaves at one place and another, in New Orloans, to the number of eight, and driven them, handeuffed, in couples of two and two, down to the good attenuer Pirate, which lay at the levee, ready for a trip up the Red River.

Having got them fairly on board, and the boat heing off, he came round, with that air of efficiency which were characterised him, to take a review of them. Stopping opposite to Tom, who had been attired for sale in his best broadeleth suit, with well-starthed linen and s

"You go there, and put these on."

Tem obeyed, and in a few mements returned.

"Take off your boots," said Mr. Legree.

Tom did so.

"There," said the former, throwing him a pair pace or two back, "look at me—look at me— look me right in the eye—straight, now!" said be, stamping his foot at every pause. As, by a fascination, every eye was now di-rected to the glaring, greenish-grey eye of Simon rected to the glaring, greenish-grey eye of Simon.

"Now," said he, doubling his great, heavy fist into something resembling a blacksmith's hammer, "d'ye see this fist! Heft it!" he said, bringing it down on Tom's hand. "Look at these yer bones! Well, I tell ye this yer fist has got as hard as iron knocking down niggers. I never see the nigger yet I couldn't bring down with one crack," said he, bringing his fist down so near to the face of Tom that he winked and drew back. "I don't keep none o'yer cussed overseers; I does my own overseering; and I tell you, things is seen to. You's every one on ye got to toe the mark, I tell ye; quick, straight—the moment I speak. That's the way to keep in with me. You wan't find no soft spot in me, nowhere. So, now, mind yourselves: for I don't show no mercy!"

The women involuntary drew in their breath, and the whole gang sat with downcast, dejected faces. Meanwhile, Simon turned on his heel, and marched up to the bar of the boat for a dram.

"That's the way I begin with my niggers."

"That's the way I begin with my niggers," he said to a gentlemanly man who had stood by him during his speech. "It's my system to begin strong—just let 'em know what to ex-begin strong—just let 'em know what to expect."

"Indeed!" said the stranger, looking upon him with the curiosity of a naturalist studying some out-of-the-way specimen.

"Yea, indeed. I'm none o'yer gentlemen planters, with lily fingers, to slop round and be cheated by some old cuss of an overseer ' Just feel of my knuckles, now; look at my fist. Tell ye, sir, the flesh on't has come jest like a stone, practising on niggers—feel on it."

The stranger applied his fingers to the implement in question, and simply said—

"Tis hard enough: and I suppose," he added, "practice has made your heart just like it."

"Why, yes, I may say so," said Simon, with

"Why, yes, I may say so," said Simon, with a hearty laugh. "reckon there's as little soft me, neither with squalling nor soft soap—that's a fact!"

"You have a fine lot there."
"Real." said Simon. "There's that Tom, they tell'd me he was suthin' uncommon. I paid a little high for him, tending him for a driver and a managing chap; only got the notions out that he's larn't by bein' treated as niggers never ought to be, he'll do prime! The yellow woman I got took in in. I rather think she's sickly, but I shall put her through for what she's worth. She may last a year or two. I don't go for savin' niggers. Use up and buy more's my way; makes you less trouble, and I'm quite sure it comes cheaper in the end;" and Simon sipped his glass.
"And how long do they generally last!" said the stranger.
"Wall donne: 'covdin' or their constitution.

and Simon sipped his glass.

"And how long do they generally last!" said the stranger.

"Well, donno; cordin' as their constitution is. Stoat fellers last six or seven years; trashy ones gets worked up in two or three. I used to, when I tust begun, have considerable trouble fussin' with 'em and trying to make 'em hold out—doctrin' on 'em up when ther's sick, and givin on 'em cloths and blankets, and what not, tryin' to keep 'em all sort o'decent and comfortable. Law, 'twasn't no sort o' use; I lost money on 'em, and 'twas heaps o' trouble. Now, you see, I just put 'em straight through, sick or well. When one nigger's dead I buy another; and I find it comes cheaper and easier, every way."

The stranger turned away, and seated himself beside a gentleman who had been listening to the conversation with repressed uneasiness.

"You must not take that fellow to be any specimen of Southern planters," said he.

"I should hope not," said the young gentleman, with emphasis.

"He is a mean; low, brutal fellow," said the other.

"And yet your laws allow him to hold any one night, Lors, he talked so orful to me, and he tell me he'd sell me to just the hardest master he could find; and he'd promised me my freedom, too, when he died."

"Had you any friends!" said Emmeline.

"Yes, my husband; he's a blacksmith. Mas'r generally hired him out. They took me off so quick, I didn't even have time to see him; and I'se got four children. Oh, dear me!" said the woman, covering her face with her hands. It is a natural impulse in every one, when they hear a tale of distress, to think of something to say by way of consolation. Emmeline wanted to say something, but she could not think of anything to say. What was there to be said! As by a common consent, they both avoided, with fear and dread, all mention of the horrible man who was now their master.

True, there is religious trust for even the darkest hour. The mulatto woman was a member of the Methodist church, and had an unenlightened but very sincere spirit of piety. Emmeline had been educated much more intelligently—taught to read and write, and dilligently—taught to read and write, and di years!

The boat moved on—freighted with its weight of sorrow—up the red, muddy, turbid current, through the abrupt, tortuous windings of the Red River; and sad eyes gazed wearily on the steep red-clay banks, as they glided by in dreary sameness. At last the boat stopped at a small town, and Legree with his party disambarked.

THE SEARCH FOR SIR JOHN FRANKLIN.

THE SEARCH FOR SIR JOHN FRANKLIN.

(From the Loadon Atheneum, April 9th)

The departure of the Isabel screw steamer for Bering's Straits, furnishes another proof of Lady Franklin's devotion to her husband and his companions, and of her zeal in carrying out measures for their rescue. It is due to the Admrality to state, that they have rendered some assistance in the equipment of the Isabel, and that this vessel will be towed by a Government steamer as far as the Isle of Wight. The heavy expences, however, of provisioning and stoing the vessel, with a part of the crew—fifteen in number—is defrayed by Lady Franklin. The Isabel is provisioned with every requisite for her long voyage. Mr. Kennedy hopes to reach Vancouver's Island with his stock of fuel. There he will take in a fresh supply—that Island having, valuable coal mines on the north-eastern-side, about fifty miles from the chief settlement of Fort Victoria. He will take in a stock of dried beef and vegetables. His provisions include an abundance of various anti-scorbutic and preserved meat and vegetables. Mr. Kennedy will sail on temperance principles, taking with him only such a quantity of sinists as (From the London Atheneum, April 9th ) served meat and vegetables. Mr. Kennedy will sail on temperance principles, taking with him only such a quantity of spirits as may be necessary for medical purposes. His first object will be to communicate with Commander Maguire, at Point Barrow, which is 600 miles beyond the entrance to Behring's straits. If he succeed in affecting this, he will, should the sea be sufficiently open, make his steampower available in any manner that may be deemed most desirable for prosecuting the search for Sir John Franklin, and for the Captains Collinson and M'Clure. To this paragraph we may add, that the enterprising Arctic traveler, Dr. Rae, leaves Liverpool this day (Saturday) for New York, from whence he will journey as fast as possible to Lake Superior, and thence by canoes, to the North American shores: He hopes to be able, by a dint can shores. He hopes to be able, by a dint of long marches, to effect his proposed ex-ploration this summer; and if he discovers, as we think he will, a continuity of water between Bellot Strait and the passage be-tween America and Wollaston and Victoria tween America and Wolfaston and Victoria Land, he will have discovered a northwest passage! not, in all probabity, a passage practicable for ships, but water communica-tion between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans to the north of the American continent.

THE SOCIETY OF LADIES.

THE SOCIETY OF LADIES.

The following persinent remarks occur at the close of an article on the dangers of "College Life," from the pen-of a New York clergyman, which appeared in the New York Times:

The society of ladies has done much for me all my life long; and it was the salutary, softening, inducence of such associations that, with God's bleming, restrained me from many in excess into which I might otherwise lave been led while receiving my education. It is a bad sigh when a young man has no relieb for such company. Whatever be a man's estation in life, whether higher or lower, public or private, he will become a better man, and escape many a disaster, if he will listen in the season to the voice of the intelligent and the refused among the other sex. Not only do they generally excel us in their nice perception of the proprieties of life, and in their render cense of day to both God and man, but they are equally before us in their instinctive feelity of forecing the character and motives of mes. It was not all a dream which made the wife of Julius Construction that he should not go to the Security Chamber on the fatal Idea of March; and, had he complied with here astruction, he might have ascaped the dagger of Brytan. Disaster followed disaster in the currer of Naphron, from the time has be counted to feel the balance wheel, of Josephine's influence on his important questions were substitude to this, often he will be additionable before he had his decision; and those who knew the clear judgment; and elevated purposes of Mrs. Washington, thought all the better of him for wishing to make her a confidential connection. In-deed, the great majority of men who have sequired for themselves a good and great hame, were not only married men, but happily married.—" both paired and matched."

How to Daess.—A friend of ours says the Portland Transcript, who had long been absent, returned recently, and called upon two beautiful young ladies of his aquaintance. One came quickly to greet him in the neat, yet not precise attire, in which she was performing her household duties. The other, after the lapse of half an hour, made her stately entrance, in all the primness of starch and ribonds, with which, on the announcement of his entrance she had hastened to bedeck herself. Our friend, who had long been hesitating on his choice between the two, now hesitated no longer. The cordinlity with which the first hastened to greet him, and the charming carelesaness of her attire, entirely won his heart. She is now his wife.

of her attire, entirely won his heart. She is now his wife.
Young ladies, take warning from the above, and never refuse to see a friend because you have on a wash gown. Be assured that the true gentleman will not think less of you because he finds you in the performance of your duties, and not ashamed to let it be known. Besides, there may positively be a grace, a witching wildness about an every day dress, that adds to every charm of face and feature. Old Herric expresses this "delight in disorder" far betpresses this "delight in disorder" far ter than we can:

han. we can:

"A sweet disorder in the dress,
(A happy kind of carelessness):
A lawn upon the shealders thrown,
Into a fine distraction:
An erring lace, which here and there
Enthrals the crimson stomacher:
A cull neglectful; and thereby,
Ribands that flow confusedly;
A winning wave, disserving note,
In the tempestuous petiticat;
A careless shoestring in whose tie
I see a wild civility;
Do more bewitch me than where art
Is too precise in every part."

ARTIFICIAL STONE FRONTS.—A great number of houses are built with coarse brick fronts, which afterwards receive two or three coats of builded oil, and are then covered with a cost of peculiar mastic cement, which is composed; we are told, mostly of dried sand, some boiled oil, some red lead, and a little plaster of Paris. This coment resembles moist sand when put on, but it sticks well and in a short time, becomes at hard as freestone, which it greatly resembles. This plaster is streaked off in blocks, and a building so covered, looks like one built of hard brown polished freestone. We have heard objections made to such buildings, but not one by a person who had taste and experience in architecture. This coment does not scale off; it endures and forms a thorough coating of artificial stone.

A BUSY PAY DAY

A BUSY PAY DAY.

A profligate young fellow, a son of a lawyer of some eminence in Rhode Island, on a certain muster inspection day, purchased a horse of an ignorant farmer, and engaged to pay for it on the next inspection day. He gave a note; but instead of inspection, he inserted the word resurrection, word resurr spection, he inserted the word resurrection, making it payable on the resurrection day? When the inspection day had come, and the farmer, unsuspicious of the trick, supposed the note to be due, he called on the young man for payment. The latter expressed great astonishment that he should call on him before the note was out.

"But it is out," said the farmer; "you call on him before the note was out.

"But it is out," said the farmer; "you promised to pay me the next inspection day; the time has come, and I want my money."

"If you look at the note again," said the young man, coolly, "you will find it has a very long while to run yet!"

The farmer was sure the note was due, or ought to be; but on spelling it over carefully, he found, to his astonishment, that it was not due till the resurrection day. He remonstrated with the young scape grace; but all to no purpose, and he finally laid the case before his father, the lawyer. The latter took his son aside, and told him he had better settle the thing at once.

"For" said he, "though the pay day is far distant, you are in a thir way to have business enough on your hands that day, without having your notes to settle." The advice was taken.

Sum Enough—Mother, asked a fittle girl, while listening to the reading of Uncle Tom's Cabins. Why don't the book never mention Topsey's last name? I have tried to hear it whenever it spoke, but it has nover once spoke."

Why, she had no other name, child. "Yes she had mother, and I know it."

Why, Turvey—Topsey Turvey."

You had better go to bed my dear, said the mother. 'You are in bud as your old grandmother for she can't my pork without beans for the life of her.

The ATMOSPHERIC POST.
The Editor of the Islander in his is has, on this subject a long, labour would be learned, theoretical article, from his self-congratulatory style, we is he regards as a complete blow-up to thaking. His idea that the friction of the applied to an exhausted tube, prev working, has been proved to be erron long ago as the year 1840, when an at rie railway—which is in principle identithe atmospheric Post—was at work or toon of the West Loudon Railway. So it was put in operation on the Line Kingston and Dalkey; on which, we it is still used. It has also been other lines, but, owing to the groups of keeping the tube air-tight been abandoned. This objection is in the atmospherie Post, because it require a alit in the tube to allow Piston's being attached to the carriage idea of the power of the atmosphere t a weight through an exhausted tube formed, when it is known, that, on the and Dalkey line, this power operating I of a tube of 15 inches diameter, propel train of carriages at the rate of 12 or an hour, on a rise of 71 feet in a dir II miles.

Nathless "the blow-up", we expect the tube for the atmospheric post la and firmly fixed, by the time the Edit Islander has his first errop of YAMS a exportation.

Important to British Ship Masters and Owners.

By a letter, written by Capt Gillis, an experienced Ship Master, which we publish in to day's issue, it appears that the working of a create British Shipping Interests. There extrainly desire, or extended to Ship Masters, all over the string on the one side, or else very culpable negligence on the other, when a Treaty, containing out the one side, or else very culpable negligence on the other, when a Treaty, containing such a clause, as that of which our Correspondent complains, was agreed to by the two great contracting parties. All that we can do, is to caution Ship Masters and Owners, that they may be upon their guard, and take such precautions as may protect thion, in some measure, from the serious inconvenience and loss to which the operation of the Treaty exposes them. The great temptation, direct to British Samen, to desert their ship, in the Poins of the United States, is, we believe, in the ligher wages given to merchant seames in these country. For the present, it sust, therefore, rest with our Ship Masters and Owners, therefore, rest with our Ship Masters and Owners, the beginning of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe, in the light of the United States, is, we believe in the Point of the United States, is the Country of the cases of need, all the assistance, from the authorities of the place, which I could reasonably desire, or expect. It is only in Ports of the United States of America—amongst our brethren, our "own people", as I would wish to account them—that I have been denied that fair protection which the interests of commerce require to be extended to Ship Masters, all over the world.

In conclusion, however, I may just further observe that the Treaties to which I have alluded, injuriously as they opersts to the Shipping Interests of Great Britain and Denmark, are yet protty advantageous to the Consuls of those countries in the United States; for these gentlemen charge a dollar a head for all the seamen whom they are the means of procuring for any ship-master who is deserted by the whole or any part of his crew.

TODOURING DELICACY.

There were many little occurences which suggested to me, with great consolation. how natural it is to gentle hearts to be conhow natural it is to gentle hearts to be considerate and delicate towards any inferiority. One of these particularly touched me. I happened to stroll into the little church when a marriage was just concluded, and the young couple had to sign the register. The bridegroom, to whom the pen was handed first, made a rude cross for his mark; the bride, who came next, did the

THE POET'S DOG.

The manner in which Pope, the great English poet, was perserved by the uncommon sagacity of his dog is truly remarkable. This animal, which was called Marquis, could not agree with a fayourite servant of this illusous writer; he constantly growled when ar him, and would even show his teeth near him, and would even show his teeth when this servant approached. Although the English poet was singularly attached to this dog, (which was a spaniel of the largest species), yet on account of extreme neatness which he pushed almost to excess, he would never allow him to remain in his chamber: Nevertheless, in spite of the most positive orders, the spaniel would frequently sheak towards evening into the apartment, of his master, and would not be driven from it without the greatest difficulty. riven from it without the greatest difficulty. One evening, having alipped in very softly without being perceived, the animal placed himself under the bed of his master, and remained there searcely breathing. Towards morning, the servant rushed hastily into the morning, the servant rushed hastily into the chamber of Pope. At this moment the faithful dog suddenly left his post and leaped on the villain who was armed with a pistol. The poet started from his sleep he threw open the window to call for assistance, and beheld three highwaymen, who had been introduced by his servant into the garden, of his villa, for the purpose of robbing him of his most valuable possessions after having assissinated him. Disconcerted by this unforcesson accident, the robber's hesitated a measure and their took fifth. The servant moment and then took flight. The servant thus bitrayed by the watchful dog was sentenced to forfeit his life. How powerful al, by whose astonishing sugacity was preserved the life of a man of whose rent, exhibited another proof of his rearkable instinct. Pope, reposing one flernoon in a little wood about three sagues distant from his house, lost a watch f great value. On returning home, the oet wished to know the hour, and found se watch was not in his pocket. Two or arechours had clapsed, and a voilent storm ras just commencing. The poet called his og, and making a sign which Marquis well nderstood, he said "I flave fost my watch go look for it." At these words Marquis eparted, quick as the flash which gitted his stops, and repaired, no doubt, to very spot at which his master had stopped,

To Professor Horstow Ay.

DEAR STR.—I am embled to furnish you with a most extraordinary cure effected by your invaluable Oliment and Fills which has astonished every person acquainted with the sufferer. About 16 years ago, Mr. W. Cummins, of Saltney Strest, in this town, was thrown from his horse, whereby he received very serious injuries; he had the hest medical advice at the time, and was afterwards an immate of different infirmaries, yet he grow worse, and at length a malignant running ulcer settled in his hip, which as completely crippled him, that he could not move without crutches for nearly 10 years; recently he began to use your Ointment and Fills, which have now heafed the wound, strengthened his limb, and enabled him to dispense with his crutches, so that he can walk with the greatest case, and with renewed health and vigor. Copy of a Letter from Mr. Hird, Draper, of Keady, near Gainsbro', dated March 1st, 1852
To Frofessor Holloway,
Sirm-Some time since, one of my children was afficted with dreadful cruptions over the body and limbs. I obtained the advice of several eminent Surgeons and Physicians, by all of whom the case was considered hopeless. At length I tried your Ointment and Fills, and without exaggeration, the effect was miraculous, for by persovering, in their ose, all the eruptions quickly disappeared, and the child was restored to perfect health.

1 previously lost a child from a similar complaint, and I firmly believe, had I in her case adopted your medicines, she would have been saved also. I shall be happy to testify the truth of this to any eaquirer.

HEALTH.

Copy of a Letter, from Mr. J. M. Clennell. of Newcastle-on-Type, dated September 20th, 1852.

To Professor Holloway,
Dean Str.—I am authorised by Mrs. Gibbon, of 31, Bailey Street, in this town, to inform you that for a considerable period she had been a sufferer from debility, and general ill health, accomponied by a disordered stomach, and great derangement of the system. In addition to this, she was terribly afflicted with ulcerated wounds, or running sores, in both her legs, so that she was totally incapable of doing her small work. In this distressing condition she adopted the use of your Pills and Ointment, and she states that in a wonderful short time, they effected a perfect care of her legs, and restored her constitution to health and strength; and that she is now enabled to walk about with ease and consfort. Several other persons in this neighbourhood have also received extraordinary benefit from the use of your invaluable medicines.

To Professor Holloway.

Dean Sir.—Among the numerous cures effected by the use of your valuable medicines in this neighbourhood, we may mention that of an old lady living in the Village of Preston, about five miles from this City. She had ulcarated wounds in her leg for many years, and lattérly they increased to such an airming extent as to defy all the usual remedies; her health rapidly giving way under the suffering she endured. In this distressing condition the had recourse to your Ointment and Fills, and by the assistance of her friends, was enabled to persevere in their nee, usui she received a perfect cure. We have ourselves heen greatly astonished at the effect upon so old, a person, she being above 70 years of age. We shall be, heppy to satisfy any enquiries as to the authenticity of this really wonderful case, either, personally as by letter.

letter.

A private in the Bath Police Force, also, has been perfectly cured of an old coorbuite affection in the face, after all other means had failed. He states that it is entirely by the use of your Ointment, and speaks loudly in its praise. We remain, Dear Sir, Your's faithfully,
