INCIDENT.

SOME people in this town seem utterly incapable of appreciating a generous act, merely because a young man calls on a young lady half a dozen evenings during the week, and occasionally drops in between meals.

There are people mean enough to jeer at it that means something besides sympathy about the health of the sick mother or to see how the kitchen range is working.

Some of the ranges that remind me of the large stock I saw in the Chestnut store of cooking ranges and stoves, judging by the stock on hand we came to the conclusion that firm does not intend to take any back rest in that line.

Should you require anything in that line just give Chestnut & Sons a call they can satisfy you any one.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT.

UNLIKE ANY OTHER.

Originated by an Old Family Physician. Think of it. In no form more than thirty years ago, when it was first used, it was a simple liniment, but now it is a powerful medicine, and is the only one of its kind that has remained pure and unchanged.

TO THE PUBLIC.
With the present number THE HERALD enters upon its fourth year. During the past years it has endeavored to give its readers a faithful service. As a public newspaper it has tried to discuss fairly and intelligently the questions of the day, and to place before its subscribers the latest and most reliable news from all places of interest. With what degree of success its efforts along these lines have been rewarded, it would prefer its readers to judge. If the generous patronage which it has received from the reading public can be considered as an indication of approval, then its course as a public journal is fully vindicated.
From a business standpoint it has no complaints to make. It has received a good share of public patronage and its circulation is rapidly increasing. The encouragement which it has received on all sides, is most gratifying. In view of the large amount of work which has been given to the job department, it has been found necessary to increase the facilities for job work of all kinds. New type and modern designs and improvements have been recently added to the department, and as good work can be done in THE HERALD office as in any printing establishment of the province. Extra efforts will be made in the near future to make THE HERALD still more worthy of the support and good will of the public. In the meantime, although perhaps a little "previous," THE HERALD wishes all its readers a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

THE NEW MINISTRY.
Sir John Thompson's new ministry is composed as follows:
Prime minister—Hon. J. H. Cameron.
—Sir John Thompson.
Minister of trade and commerce—Hon. Mackenzie Bowell.
Minister of finance—Hon. George E. Foster.
Postmaster general—Sir Adolphe P. Caron.
Secretary of state—Hon. John Costigan.
Minister of marine and fisheries—Hon. C. H. Tupper.
Minister of railways and canals—Hon. John G. Haggart.
Minister of public works—Hon. J. A. Oulmet.
Minister of militia—Hon. J. C. Patterson.
Minister of the interior—Hon. T. M. Doherty.
Minister of agriculture—Hon. A. R. Angers.
President of the council—Hon. W. B. Ives.
Without portfolio—Hon. Frank Smith, Sir John Abbott and Hon. John Carling, Hon. Wood, Brockville.
Comptroller of customs—Clark Wallace.
Solicitor general—John J. Curran.
It will be observed that this is a rearrangement of the old cabinet with the addition of two new ministers, Hon. A. R. Angers and Hon. W. B. Ives, the former of whom takes Carling's portfolio, and the latter becomes president of the privy council in place of Sir John Abbott. Messrs. Carling and Abbott still remain in the cabinet. Chapeau goes out to become governor of Quebec, and Hon. John Costigan takes his place. The new department of trade and commerce is created, and the customs and inland revenue departments become subsidiary thereto, under the control of Sir John Thompson, and J. F. Wood respectively. The new office of solicitor general is given to J. Curran, Q. C. The last three gentlemen, while members of the government and receiving salaries of five thousand dollars each, are not members of the cabinet.
Under the above arrangement the government consists of eighteen members, an increase of four from the present cabinet, required to carry on the business of the country since confederation. The creation of these additional offices means additional expense, not only in the matter of salaries to the heads of the departments, but in traveling expenses and office contingencies as well. This shows that there is no desire on the part of Sir John Thompson to curtail expenses. His first official act has been to add to the cost of governing a country, already too much governed in proportion to its wealth and population. In place of improving the opportunity of reconstruction, by making the government more in keeping with the requirements of the people, and more in harmony with the needs of a young democratic country, he increases and complicates the governing machinery, and makes still greater the preponderance of the executive in a house of parliament, where its previous large influence in proportion to the number of representatives, made good government a difficult task.
In regard to the personnel of the new administration, little can be said in its favor. Hon. John Costigan, who of all members of the old government was entitled to promotion, has been reduced from the department of inland revenue to the inferior position of secretary of state. Sir A. P. Caron, in defiance of all public sentiment, has been retained. Carling, the big brewer and the particular friend of Hon. G. E. Foster, is still a member of the cabinet, though without office, in spite of the desire of the premier to get rid of him altogether. Angers and Ives have nothing to recommend them, except their willingness, at all times, to perform any kind of services the party might ask of them. Clark Wallace is a sort of compromise with the opposition, for the time being. On the whole, Sir John Thompson cannot be congratulated on his efforts at cabinet making. Perhaps it was the best he could do under the circumstances, and with the material at hand to work with. The adverse criticism, however, which his effort at reconstruction has called forth from the independent and liberal press of the country, and the entire lack of enthusiasm with which it has been received by the ministerial papers, show that disapproval is the peoples verdict.

Mr. CHAPLEAU, the late secretary of state, has been named out of the cabinet, and appointed lieutenant-governor of Quebec. Thereupon Mr. DeBoucherville, the premier of the province, immediately resigned, for the reason that he and Chapleau have not spoken to each other for about fifteen years. And now there is much consternation among the Tories of the old French province.

There are many rumors floating around as to who will be the successor of lieutenant-governor. Among the names mentioned are those of Sir John Allen, Judge Fraser, and Hon. John Boyd. There is nothing as yet, however, to indicate that the government has had the matter under consideration.

THE LAW COURTS.
We notice that an agitation is already started by the St. John press to have the law courts removed to that city. It is not very long since this matter was brought up in the house of assembly and thoroughly ventilated. The firm stand taken by Mr. Blair at that time prevailed, and it was decided that the courts should continue to sit at Fredericton. It is true that the majority in favor of Fredericton was only one vote, but it was sufficient for the purpose, and as a consequence new and commodious quarters were soon after provided, at considerable expense, for the accommodation of the supreme court of the province. From that time to the present, nothing has been heard about removing the courts to St. John. No doubt the fact that Mr. Blair was in power, and that he represented York county, was a good and sufficient guarantee that any attempt to again agitate the question, would be of no avail. But now that the people of York have thrown Mr. Blair aside for other men, and have said that they do not require or appreciate his services in their behalf, and Mr. Blair has been secured by another county, and is about removing to St. John, those persons who have been looking with jealous eyes towards York, and particularly the people of St. John, whose desire to take charge of the whole province, was held in check by Mr. Blair, are already agitating for the removal of the supreme court of the province to the big city by the sea. If, however, they think that Mr. Blair, who is already a record as in favor of Fredericton at the seat of the supreme court, will aid them in their efforts, they mistake their man. Mr. Blair is not built that way. It is true that he may not be in a position to do as much as he once did to retain the courts in his native city. His hands have been tied to a certain extent by the people of York themselves, and the influence he could once bring to bear in its interest, has been greatly lessened. But whatever may be his lot in the future, he will never forget that the city of Fredericton always stood loyally by him, and as long as he is in power he may be relied on to do all he can to secure to each public work and institutions as she now possesses. Still a majority of one in favor of keeping the courts in Fredericton is not a very strong guarantee that an agitation to remove the courts to St. John might not succeed, particularly when we compare the men who so valiantly fought for us in former days, with the material we have to depend on now.

The Gleason is so enraged because the opposition leaders have not taken steps to protest Mr. Blair's election in Queens, that it accuses them of treachery towards Mr. Necker in leaving him to fight his election alone, after inducing him to enter the contest; and even so far forgets itself, in the depth of its rage and despair, as to acknowledge that Mr. Blair has friends who are always ready to stand or fall with him. Of course he has, but it is not the Gleason rather hard on George F. Gregory, John Black, H. H. Pitta and the rest of the gang? Haven't the campaign bills been paid, or what is the trouble now?

Mr. BLAIR will take up his residence in St. John next week. On Thursday evening next his friends in this city will tender him with a banquet at the Queen hotel. The affair is in the hands of an efficient committee, and it promises to excel anything of the kind ever held in Fredericton. We will have a full account for our readers next week.

HOLIDAY TRADE.
Where to Buy Your Christmas Presents.
Now that the holiday season has again come round the chief topic is Christmas goods and Christmas groceries. The merchants, especially advertisers in THE HERALD, are ever ready with the times and have laid in a heavy stock of goods, have displayed them in the most advantageous manner and expect to secure a full share of the city and county trade. It is apparent to all that while prices do not show an upward tendency neither the reverse, all goods are of a better class, of more beautiful and artistic design, and embracing a wider range in quality and quantity than ever. Fredericton may well take part in the general rejoicing for the holidays in all the latest novelties as well as in staple wares. His line of ladies and gentlemen's goods, gold filled watches in Elgin, Waltham and Columbus movements is unequalled in the province. Finger rings, set and fancy, fill a large space. All styles of small jewelry carries on while some of the most unusual and tasty tea services ever imported to this city find a place on his shelves. The establishment is especially rich in clocks in all the similar styles as well as in marble, ebony and mahogany. Some fine gold-headed canes, making a very suitable present for grandfather or father are shown. Everything offered for sale is of the best quality and fully guaranteed as represented. All articles purchased are engraved free. Watch repairing a speciality.

McMurray & Co.
A visit to this large establishment, especially at the present time, is a treat in itself. The assortment is large, the quality superior and at the lowest prices ever known in this city. The fancy goods department contains many elegant novelties, as a glance at the windows and numerous cases will determine. Dolls, rocking-horses, pianos and banquet lamps, books—books everywhere. Toys for the boys, toys for the girls; something to make each, old or young, happy. Just think of stacks of good size and well made, at 30 cents each and five hundred to choose from! The display of organs and pianos on the second floor is superb, and is unrivalled in the lower provinces, and no fancy prices are asked. You can find anything you want in the shape of a Xmas present at this well stocked and reliable establishment. Opposite the normal school.

Jan. D. Fowler
Still carries on an extensive business in jewelry as a glance at his advertisement in this issue will show. He has won a good reputation with all for fair dealing and for selling the best quality of goods. Besides carrying a large stock he gives excellent bargains some of his leaders being down to wholesale rates. Anything in watches, clocks, rings, brooches, pins, bracelets, table wares, watch chains, in fact all lines of gold and silver goods may be found in his establishment, opposite the post office. Having had a long experience in the business he is able to buy cheaply and to know when goods are as represented. Watch repairing in all its branches carried on. Magnificent Christmas and New Year presents now in stock ready for your inspection.

A. F. Randolph & Sons.
This old and reliable firm still continues in the heavy grocery business. They invite all retailers to their very large stock of reasonable goods. They can quote as fair prices as can be got elsewhere and can fill your orders at shortest notice.

John J. Weddall
Whose large advertisement appears on the front page is one of the standard dealers of

R. Yezza & Co.
READERS will note the advertisement of this reliable grocery firm in our columns. Visitors to their store—only a few steps from the market—will find a complete stock of groceries at reasonable prices; they make a specialty of choice teas. You want something to gladden the hearts of all at the Christmas table, and you can find no better place to secure it than at R. Yezza & Co's.

Lemont & Sons
Establishment now entering on the forty-eighth year of active business in the importation for all sorts of goods furniture, crockery, tin, silver, fancy metal wares, in fact everything that the mind of man has devised, and skill accomplished, have a place in their ten massive warehouses, now completely stocked by the enterprising and reliable firm. Their advertisement in this issue contains portraits of the proprietors—Wm. Lemont on the right, and Martin Lemont on the left. They have for years carried on the business of this mammoth establishment in a way that has gained them a multitude of customers. They have gone personally into the markets of the world, making up their own stock, and have anything superior, and never could be had, they have purchased and brought it here to delight or comfort those who deal with them. It is almost an impossibility to ask for anything that they cannot supply. Their silver goods, although beautiful, most artistically designed and finished, are placed at prices that put them within the reach of all. Visit the store and see the immense stock of useful and fancy articles displayed on their 10, 25, 50, and $100 counters. Anything to make home brighter and happier, more comfortable and enjoyable, they can supply and the price will suit you.

M. S. Hall
Here we present to our readers the name of another old and well known business man. His stock of books, toys, fancy articles and general holiday goods is replete with the latest novelties and most fashionable wares. He requires no recommendation, his past business life being a guarantee for the present. Call and see his goods and you will be surprised at the low prices quoted. He carries a fine line of choice stationery—no better assortment being on sale in the city. Intending purchasers should give him a call before making their purchases; but a few steps from market square.

Dever's Brothers.
This is one of the reliable houses in the general dry goods and haberdashery line. The stock laid in this season has been carefully bought, the choicest and most fashionable goods only are shown, while the novelties for the season are among the latest of dress goods and trimmings, are superior to those of last season while the prices rank lower. In small wares there is an immense stock to select from. The display of furs is large—prices ranging from the lowest to the most expensive. Call in and see what you can purchase a beautiful beaver cap for, or a dogskin coat. Particular attention has been paid to the supply of blanketing, shirts and drawers and all requisites for being comfortable in the lumber woods. Give them a call.

One Mall
Though but a short time conducting business under the above name, G. H. Thomas & Co., by careful buying and giving good value, have won a reputation that may be envied. The store opposite the post office is stocked with men and boys' wear of all kinds. Lumbermen's goods is a special feature. Rigby and water-proof coats, hats or caps, gloves, ties, valises, everything necessary for a man in any walk of life. Buying large stocks, they are prepared to give customers the advantage. A visit to the city is not complete during the holidays unless you make a call at Oak Hall.

C. P. Cheast
Asks the patronage of all wishing pure drugs and chemicals. He has also laid in for the holiday trade a large line of fancy goods in toilet and manure sets, ladies companions, which he has at very low prices. He carries a full line of brushes for all purposes. Give him a call. Two doors above Barker house.

Lucy & Co.
This firm still occupies the building on the corner of Queen and Regent streets and give some extra bargains in clothing, hats, boots, shoes, rubbers and moccasins. Camp supplies and lumbermen's clothing are especially a feature of the business. See their advertisement in another column and note the prices that rule during their cheap sale. Just think of a suit for one of the boys at eighty-five cents. It would scarcely more than buy the trimmings. Not only do they have a large stock but the quality in all lines is excellent. If you want a low priced article it is there for you, but better ones can be bought at better prices.

Geo. E. Davis
For years the drug store at Regent street corner has been well patronized and patrons will find it during the holiday season as well worthy a visit as ever before. Geo. E. Davis has a full line of patent medicines as well as the purest of drugs. He is prepared to fill prescriptions at all hours. His large stock of perfumes, fancy goods, soaps, etc., is exceptionally fine. He displays elegant dressing cases in gilded oak, rose wood, walnut, plush, and has gents shaving sets in large variety. Among perfumers who have goods in stock are Leebon, Ricker, Cleaver, Bissell and other celebrated makers. A magnificent line of menschaum and brier pipes with and without cases, cigar holders, cigar cases, Havana cigars, cigarettes. Then there are hair brushes, combs, razors, razor straps and shaving brushes. Patrons can be sure of getting just what they call for.

W. E. Logan
The popular down town grocer, has filled his store with groceries for this special season. He carries a very large stock of best quality at extremely low prices. Coffee, sugar, flour, cornmeal, oatmeal, mustard, pickles, saucers, ketchup, canned goods, apples, and a superior stock of candy. Logan's grocery is one of the reliable places and only the choicest goods are sold. Therefore, you may be sure of getting the worth of your money. There is nothing in his line that he does not supply and care is taken to tip in your favor each time. Give him a call and secure some of the bargains that will be shown you.

J. M. Wiley
Who carries on a large wholesale and retail trade in his place of business opposite Normal school, invites the trade, and has prepared a large stock of general goods and novelties for their inspection. Besides all the old and reliable patent medicines he has the latest popular favorites. His line of soap is large, including among other varieties Murch's Amber, allowed to be the best in the market. Should you want a cane he has a very large stock from which to select and prices are right. Try Wiley's emulsion for that cold and go home relieved. Give him a call.

G. T. Whelpley
Is perhaps known to all visitors to the city. He will be found at his old stand, next the Barker house, where he has on sale all kinds of heavy and light groceries, a splendid assortment of delicious preserves, jams and jellies, sauces, pickles and relishes, cheaper than if you made them yourself. A heavy stock of first class confectionery has lately been received especially for the Xmas holidays. Flour, oatmeal, Graham flour, oats, bran and heavy feed are kept in stock and range at very low prices consistent with quality. A superior place indeed in which to purchase your holiday groceries.

W. H. Carten
Although but lately launched out in the drug and general dispensary lines, yet has by strict attention to business secured a large trade. His store, at the corner of Queen and Carleton streets, will be found replete with all lines of patent medicines, pure drugs and chemicals, sponges, fancy goods, brushes, and everything usually kept in a first class drug store. Patrons may depend on having their prescriptions carefully filled with the best materials, Mr. Carten being fully qualified as a chemist.

J. G. Gunn
Carries on the tailoring business opposite the Normal school and has a choice lot of cloths for the season. He gives the best of satisfaction and deserves your patronage.

Henry H. Moore
Sill carries on the general harness business at his old stand opposite the county court house. Single and double harness, heavy or light and fancy, supplied at short notice, blankets, saddles, boots, everything for the trotter or for the lumber woods in stock. Inspect his stock and get a good bargain.

R. Chestnut & Sons
After many years of trade in all branches of hardware, again ask the patronage of all in their cooling apparatus would do well to first examine our line of

W. H. Carten
Invites your inspection of his stock of general hardware, stoves and ranges, guns, rifles and revolvers, general shelf hardware, paints, glass, putty, shovels, and an endless variety of small wares. He has in stock a full line of tinware. He pays special attention to electrical and mechanical bell hanging, speaking tubes, etc. His place of business is opposite county court house.

Tennant, Davies & Co.
Are showing an immense stock of goods suitable for presents and as this is the important matter at this particular season their establishment is well worthy a call. Those in want of furs will find a very choice and valuable assortment from which to choose. They have some especially fine astrachan jackets displayed. Ladies or gentlemen in want of goods for the department ought to visit the place when buying. They have placed all single width wool dress goods at twenty-five cents per yard. Kid gloves, fancy handkerchiefs, melissa rain proof coats, etc. are some specialties and contain some choice samples. A big lot of all the small wares is also carried. 202 Queen street, opposite Normal school.

Geo. E. Davis

R. T. O. T.
The Council R. T. O. T. Gibson, had a very pleasant pie social in the church hall on Friday evening. There were solos, duets, instrumental music, readings and recitations. It was free and a large crowd gathered to have an evening's enjoyment.

A. M. Brooker
Lawrence Hughes, son of John Hughes, Queen street, while playing with other youths on the post office steps on Thursday, fell down the steps, which were icy from the sleet, and had his right arm broken.

SELECT STORY.

COUNT OF MONTE-CRISTO.

REVENGE OF EDMUND DANTES.

CHAPTER XV.

THE ENQUIRY.

"Doubtless, and we are not now enquiring into his creed, but his actions, in the name of the prefect of police, I demand that you know of him."

"He passes for a very charitable man. Our holy father, the Pope, has made him a knight of Christ for the services he rendered to the Christians in the east; he has five or six rings as testimonials from eastern monarchs of his services."

"Does he wear them?"

"No, but he is proud of them; he is better pleased with rewards given to the benefactors of man than to his destroyers."

"He is a Quaker then?"

"Exactly, he is a Quaker, with the exception of the peculiar dress."

"Has he any friends?"

"Yes, everyone who knows him is his friend."

"But has he any enemies?"

"Lord Wilmore."

"Where is he?"

"He is in Paris just now."

"Can he give me any particulars?"

"Important ones; he was in India with Zaccaro."

"Do you know his abode?"

"It is somewhere in the Chaussee d'Antin; but I know neither the street nor the number."

"Are you at odds with the Englishman?"

"I like Zaccaro, and he hates him; we are consequently not friends."

"Do you think the Count of Monte-Cristo had ever been in France before he made the visit to Paris?"

"To that question I can answer positively; no, sir, he had never been, because he applied to me six months since for the particulars he required; and as I knew not when I might again come to Paris, I recommended M. Cavalcanti to him."

"Andrea?"

"No, Bartolomeo, his father."

"Now, sir, I have but one question more to ask, and I charge you in the name of honor, of humanity, and of religion, to answer me candidly."

"What is it, sir?"

"Do you know with what design M. de Monte-Cristo purchased a house at Anteuil?"

"Certainly, for he told me."

"What is it, sir?"

"To make a lunatic asylum of it, similar to that founded by the Count of Pisani at Palermo. It is a magnificent institution." Having said this, the abbe bowed to imply that he wished to pursue his studies. The visitor either understood the abbe's meaning, or had no more questions to ask; he rose, and the priest accompanied him to the door.

"You are a great stranger," said the visitor, "and although you are said to be rich, I will venture to offer you something for your poor people; will you accept my offering?"

"I thank you, sir; I am only jealous of one thing, namely, that the relief I give should be entirely from my own resources."

"However—"

"My resolution, sir, is unchangeable; however, you have only to search for yourself, and you will find, alas! but too many objects upon whom to exercise your benevolence." The abbe once more bowed as he opened the door, the stranger bowed and took his leave; and the carriage conducted him straight to the house of M. de Villefort. An hour afterwards the carriage was again ordered, and this time it went to the Rue Fontaine St. George, and stopped at No. 5, where Lord Wilmore lived. The stranger had written to Lord Wilmore, requesting an interview which the latter had fixed for ten o'clock. As the envoy of the prefect of police arrived ten minutes before ten, he was told that Lord Wilmore, who was precise and punctuality personified, was not yet come in, but that he would be sure to return as the clock struck. The visitor was introduced into the drawing-room, which was like all other furnished drawing-rooms. After ten minutes' expectation the clock struck ten; at the fifth stroke the door opened, and Lord Wilmore appeared. He was rather above the middle height, with thin reddish whiskers, light complexion and light hair, turning rather gray. He was dressed with the English peculiarity, namely, in a blue coat, with gilt buttons and a high collar, in an old-fashioned, white kersey waistcoat, and nankeen pantaloons, three inches too short, but which were prevented by straps from slipping up to the knee. His first remark on entering was—"You know, sir, that I do not speak French?"

"I know you do not like to converse in our language," replied the envoy.

"But you may use it," replied Lord Wilmore; "I understand it."

"And I replied the visitor, changing his idiom, "I know enough of English to keep up the conversation. Do not put yourself to the slightest inconvenience."

"Oh, dear, no," said Lord Wilmore, with that cool tone only known to natives of Great Britain.

The envoy presented his letter of introduction, which the latter read with English coolness; and having finished, said, "I understand, perfectly."

Then began questions similar to those addressed to the Abbe Basconi. But as Lord Wilmore, in the character of the count's enemy, was less restrained in his answers, they were more numerous; he described the youth of Monte-Cristo, who, he said, at ten years of age, entered the service of one of those petty sovereigns of India who make war on the English; it was there Wilmore had first met him and fought against him; in that war Zaccaro had been taken prisoner, sent to England, put in the armory, whence he had escaped by swimming. Then began his travels, duels; then came the insurrection in Greece, and he had served in the rebel ranks. While in that service he had discovered a silver mine in the mountains of Thessaly, but he had been careful to conceal it from every one. After the battle of Navarino, when the Greek government was consolidated, he asked of King Otho a mining grant for that district, which was given him. Hence that immense fortune, which might, in Lord Wilmore's opinion, amount to one or two millions per annum, a precarious fortune, which might be momentarily lost by the failure of the mine.

"But," asked the visitor, "do you know why he came to France?"

"He is speculating in railways," said Lord Wilmore; "and being a clever theorist, he has discovered a new telegraph, which he is seeking to bring to perfection."

"How much does he spend yearly?" asked the prefect.

"Not more than five or six hundred francs," said Lord Wilmore; "I know me to present to you M. Maximilian Morrel, captain of Sapha, one of our best, and above all, one of our bravest officers."

"I have already had the pleasure of meeting this gentleman at Anteuil, at the house of the Count of Monte-Cristo," replied Madame de Villefort, turning away with marked coldness.

"The answer, and above all, the tone in which it was uttered, chilled the heart of poor Morrel. But a recompense was in store for him; turning around, he saw near the door a beautiful fair face, whose large blue eyes were, without any marked expression, fixed upon him, while the bouquet of myosotis was gently raised to her lips.

The salutation was so well understood that Morrel, with the same expression on his eyes, placed his handkerchief to his mouth; and there, without any marked expression, fixed upon him, while the bouquet of myosotis was gently raised to her lips.

an establishment of mineral waters at Anteuil."

"Well! I'm sure," said Moreorf; "this is indeed news! Am I allowed to repeat it?"

"Yes, but cautiously; tell one thing at a time, and do not say I told you, because it is a secret just discovered by the police."

"Then this news is correct?"

"At the prefect's last night. Paris, you can understand, is astonished at the sight of such unusual splendor, and the police have made enquiries."

"Good! nothing more is wanting than to arrest the count as a vagabond, on the pretext of his being too rich."

"Indeed, this would doubtless have happened if his credentials had not been so favorable."

"Poor count! And he is aware of the danger he has in hand?"

"I think not."

"Then it will be but charitable to inform him. When he arrives, I will not fail to do so."

Just then, a handsome young man with bright eyes, black hair, and glossy moustache, respectfully bowed to Madame de Villefort. Albert extended his hand.

"Madame," said Albert, "allow me to present to you M. Maximilian Morrel, captain of Sapha, one of our best, and above all, one of our bravest officers."

"I have already had the pleasure of meeting this gentleman at Anteuil, at the house of the Count of Monte-Cristo," replied Madame de Villefort, turning away with marked coldness.
