Alaska.

In the New England Magazine A. G. Kingsbury gives us some graphic ideas of our farthest northwest possessions, won peacefully from Russia in 1867, at a cost of $7,200,000. "It is a land of magnificent distances," he says. "Its area is nearly 600,000 square miles, or nearly 370,000,000 acres. This is greater than the combined areas of New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee. Seattle, in the State of Washington, which is the port of departure for the larger portion of Alaska, is 650 miles southerly of the extremity of the Alaska coast-strip which separates the Canadian territory from the Pacific Ocean. From Seattle to Skagway is 1,000 miles. It is another 1,000 miles from Skagway to the navigable head of the Yukon river. From Seattle to Nome, by the most direct route, is about 2,500 miles. From Seattle to the most northerly point in Alaska is about as far as from New York to San Francisco. With land travel restricted to dog-team trails, and this and sea-travel complicated by Arctic weather perils it has been work requiring courage and endurance even to get to the ground where gold is to be expected. Each season, however, simplifies the question of transportation. . . . But the prospector who proposes to penetrate outside the area already pretty well covered by his predecessors is still confronted with the primitive conditions with which some of us are already painfully familiar."

POPULATION AND TEMPERATURE.

"Up to June, 1903, the revenue from Alaska to the national treasury had amounted to over $9,500,000, of which about $7,600,000 was from tax on seal skins, $1,000,000 from rent of seal and Fox Islands, $500,000 from customs, and $30,000 from sale of public lands. At the date of the purchase the population was estimated at 30,000 about equally divided between Eskimos, Indians and Russians, with a considerable intermixture of the races. In 1900 the population was about 64,000, the increase being largely from the immigration attracted by the discovery of gold from 1895 to 1896. . . . When it is recognized that Alaska's shore line is over 26,000 miles, or more than the circumference of the earth at the equator, varieties of climate are inevitable, and as its northern portion is inside the Arctic circle, there is cold enough for all practical purposes. Near the mouth of the Yukon river the mean summer temperature is 50 degrees Fahrenheit. In the Yukon valley there is only five or six hours of daily sunlight in the winter, while in the summer the day is twenty hours long. In the interior the mean summer temperature is from 60 degrees to 70 degrees, while the winter temperature ranges as low as 47 degrees below zero."

THE CATHOLIC SWISS MOUNTAINEERS.

Anna Seaton Schmidt has a charming sketch of the Swiss mountaineer's life in the August Atlantic Monthly. She writes of the blessing of the fields and cattle in the Alpine hills: "The sun was sinking behind the western mountains, the snowy heights of the Dent du Midi flamed crimson in its glowing light, as I crossed the fields where Rosalie had hastily prepared a little altar. Before it stood a priest in white vestments. The rude table, the queer little candlesticks and artificial flowers were transfixed for me, as God's minister implored Him to bless the earth, to bring forth its fruits for His children, to hold all living creatures within His care. Felix knelt on the ground beside his mother; their faces shone with the light of a perfect faith. Living close to the most stupendous mysteries of Nature, these peasants realize their absolute dependence on Him Who created it. When winter snow shuts them away from the world, and they have for companionship only the vast mountains, from whose rocky heights the glacial torrents thunder, the average crash down upon them, their sublime faith lifts their souls to the heavens above, where dwells their all-loving Father. They do not fear death; it but opens the door of His kingdom. 'Why should we be afraid of death mademoiselle, when it leads us to God?' asked a pretty young peasant. And old Madeline says: 'Ah, mademoiselle, we mountain people love solitude. We can think more of God. He seems nearer to us when we are alone.'"

OLD ISIDORE'S TREASURES.

Miss Schmidt tells of another public opinion has been lead astray by the fact that his words have been given a different meaning to the one they really bear, and says that in granting exemptions which were necessary in certain cases he had no idea of abandoning the glorious traditions of the past or renouncing the rights of the Church or the claims of the Holy See. The Holy Father concludes by expressing his satisfaction at seeing Catholics accept his advice regarding organization for social action, and urges them to continue in the same course.

The English Martyrs.

The appearance of the second and final volume of "The English Martyrs" is an event of more than merely literary importance. It was a lover of paradox who said that a book was a greater event than a battle. There are books and books, and there are battles and battles, but here the alternatives do not clash, for this is a book and a battle—a battle for the faith. Historians in general have been very reticent about these heroes of Tyburn. And how many of the "noble army," now written about with finality in this new volume by Dom Bede Camm. Father Phillips of Ushaw, Father Sebastian Bowden and Father John Pollen, find a record, a mention even, in the boasted "Encyclopaedia Britannica?" Speaking from memory, we shall answer two at the most. Well, indirectly, the appearance this week of this book of martyrs under Queen Elizabeth has helped to change all that, and we have reason to know that in the new edition of the "Encyclopaedia" now in preparation at the Times office every name on this glorious roll-call of Dom Bede Camm's editing will find at last its proper place. All popular stories about the winners of the Victoria Cross pale before these tales of Tyburn. In the excitement of conflict a brave soldier sallies out to the rescue of a comrade. This deed is well done, and so all the people say while the King publicly pins the cross onto the breast which is the breast of valour. Yet one wonders how many of even these gallant men would have endured, in cold blood and for an intangible good the Elizabethan rack. Take the typical case of Alexander Briston, son of a Somersetshire yeoman. At eighteen he matriculated at Hert Hall—the Hertford College of today—and went from Oxford to Douai. In 1581, while on a mission, he was brought into the Tower, "where he had almost died of thirst, and was loaded with most heavy shackles. Then sharp needles were thrust under his nails. After eight days in a subterranean pit he was taken out of the rack-chamber, where the torture was so intense that he, supposing within himself that they would pluck him to pieces, put on the armor of patience, having his mind raised in contemplation of Christ's bitter passion. And here they asked him whether the Queen were supreme head of the Church or not? He replied: "I am a Catholic, and I believe in this as a Catholic should." That the martyr "should be made a foot longer than God made" was the persecutor's inhuman threat, so that "he was racked more than any of the rest." With what effect? "He laughed at his tormentors and, though nearly killed by pain, said: 'Is this all that you can do? If the rack is no more than this, let me have a hundred more for this cause.'"

Catholics will read these things, and will find in them the tonic that in easy and complacent days perhaps they need. But one cannot help wondering what will be the effect of a book like this upon Anglican readers. To no poor controversial uses would we put the records of a human tragedy; all mankind has its share in the treasury of human endurance—rather every song of defiance—of these Tyburn martyrs is consoling. The spiritual independence safely asserted by Anglicans today at Church House meetings was won for them, if only as a boast, by the endurance of our spiritual ancestors under tortures inflicted by theirs. The Tree of Tyburn is the family tree of the Catholics of today, and this book of Elizabethan martyrs will make them prouder than ever of their descent.—The Tablet

She and the members of the order were very reticent about this phenomenon, and avoided in every way publicity about it. But many who knew the dead nun vouched for its truth.

The inauguration of the new Province of Alberta took place at Edmonton Friday, the 1st inst., and was attended with elaborate ceremonies.

Peace Proclaimed.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 29.—The long and bloody war between Japan and Russia is ended. The terms of peace were settled by M. Witte and Baron Komura at the session of the conference this morning.

JAPAN YIELDS EVERYTHING.

This happy conclusion of the conference which a week ago would have been shipwrecked had it not been for the heroic intercession of President Roosevelt, was sudden and dramatic.

WITTE EXPECTED A FAILURE.

It was what M. Witte termed in his interview with the Associated Press the "psychological moment." M. Witte did not flinch. He expected a rupture, and, as he expressed it afterwards, he was stunned by what happened.

TWO MORE CONDITIONS WITHDRAWN.

Articles 10 and 11 (interned warships and the limitation of Russia's sea power in the Far East) were withdrawn. Japan agreed that only that portion of the Chinese Eastern railway south of Chantafu, the position occupied by Oyama, should be ceded to Japan.

GETTING VERY FRIENDLY.

The new treaty will therefore be a wonderfully friendly document of a character almost to raise the suspicion that the two countries have not negotiated peace but have concluded the basis of a future alliance.

SCENES OF WILD REJOICING.

Mr. Roosevelt replied with words of thanks and congratulations. Then began the jubilation. M. Witte and Baron Komura returned to the hotel for luncheon.

THE JAPS HAVE MET THEIR PORTSMOUTH.

Later in his room when he had partially recovered himself he declared that he could not have dreamed of such a victory—for that he regards it as a diplomatic triumph of the first magnitude.

THE TRIUMPH OF WITTE.

Although M. Witte is not a diplomatist he declares that he has outmanoeuvred the Japanese, yielding one by one to the conditions until he forced them into a corner on the main issue of indemnity and left them no escape except surrender or to convert the war into a war to collect tribute. The Russians declared that diplomatically the Japanese made their colossal blunder when they agreed to consider the conditions seriatim.

Despite the fact that neither of the Japanese plenipotentiaries would talk for publication, however, the Associated Press can present their line of reasoning in the words of another: "The Russians may indulge in boasting now. They may call it a diplomatic victory, but we are confident that upon calm consideration the world will applaud our course.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 30.—The actual work of drafting the treaty of Portsmouth began today. It is being done by Mr. De Martens and Mr. Denison, acting as legal advisers for the respective sides.

to fall in the negotiation or to make a "bad peace" and either would have spelled political ruin. Instead, upon the very terms upon which the emperor told Mr. Meyer he would make peace and upon which the military party did not believe it possible for peace to be negotiated, M. Witte succeeded in securing a treaty honorable and under the circumstances favorable to Russia. This has evidently only exasperated his enemies the more, and intrigue is again at work to discredit him. Since Japan was in a conciliatory mood they now say he made a mistake in surrendering half of Sakhalin. Yet he did so by the Tsar's orders and himself insists that personally he would have stuck to the end to his original declaration not to cede territory or give indemnity. In Japan the situation is reversed. The government recognized the advisability of concluding peace ever if all demand for indemnity had to be withdrawn. But the people were incensed even at the suggestion of the division of Sakhalin. That was evident from the expressions in the Japanese press yesterday. And that was before there was ever a suggestion of waving demand for any indemnity whatever. Today Tokio is silent. Not a word or line about the receipt of the news comes out of Japan. The government has its hand upon every wire. And among those who best know Japan here it is ominous of the popular wrath the receipt of the terms has raised, and they recall with a shudder past tragedies when ministers have been unpopular. In view of the situation both at Tokio and St. Petersburg, alarmists are inclined to make much of the fact that the minutes of yesterday's fateful meeting have not yet been signed by the envoys of the two powers. It is pointed out that either side could still repudiate the agreement, but both plenipotentiaries refuse to admit even the possibility of a change in the agreement.

The following statement of the Japanese agreement which governed their decision to waive the question of indemnity can be accepted as authoritative. Japan realized fully she was making a sacrifice for peace, but she was looking to the future. It was not a question of whether the war could be successfully continued, but of whether peace was not now more advantageous to Japan. Japan had already gained all she had fought for. It was only the "spoils of war" that remained, and having achieved the real objects of the war, she could afford to forego the spoils rather than to be placed in the position of fighting for money. While Japan believed she was entitled to the spoils, she felt that her position was so strong her successes so complete, that she could yield without detracting from the force of her victory.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—The following is the text of M. Witte's cablegram to Emperor Nicholas announcing peace: I have the honor to report to Your Majesty that Japan has agreed to your demands concerning the conditions of peace, and that consequently peace will be established, thanks to your wise and firm decision and in strict conformity with the instructions of your Majesty. Russia will remain in the Far East the great power which she hitherto has been and will be forever. We have applied to the execution of your orders all our intelligence and our Russian heart. We beg your Majesty mercifully to forgive that we have been unable to do more. The war office at 3.30 p. m. had not sent any message to General Lignevich concerning the declaration of an armistice. War Minister Rudiger spent the day with Emperor Nicholas at Krasnoye-Selo, the big military near Peterhof. The war office this afternoon addressed a letter to General Rudiger asking for instructions regarding the cessation of the present preparations to send further troops to the front, etc., and also regarding mobilization, but no answer has yet been received. There is reason to believe, however, that General Rudiger after conferring with the emperor sent a message to General Lignevich creating an armistice. It is impossible to learn just what the general said, but the war office is most desirous of averting any engagement which might result in needless loss of life. It is learned today that the first official telegram from M. Witte announcing the conclusion of the Portsmouth conference was received at the foreign office at 11 o'clock last night. It was communicated to his majesty with only the loss of time for recording it. Several high naval officers were seen this afternoon. They one and all expressed regret and even dissatisfaction at the conclusion of peace.

News comes from Santa Fe, New Mexico that two youths named Jos Martinez and Hurore Romero were killed by the explosion of dynamite which they used for a target. The boys were rabbit hunting. Not finding any game when they reached the powder case of the Denver and Rio Grand Ry. Co. near China they set up a box of dynamite as a target. The box contained 400 pounds of explosives and the explosion set off four tons of powder. Many window panes were broken.

An English Marconi Company is about to take active steps towards establishing wireless telegraph communication between British South America and the Mediterranean station of the company, with this end in view. Montreal, is being sent to England, en route for Brazil and Argentine Republic to interview the Governments and to make such arrangements with the different South American Countries that the company consider necessary to the carrying out of their enterprise.

On Friday last the Allan Line steamer Victoria while going out of the St. Lawrence, ran ashore on Cape Charles one hundred miles from Montreal. A dense fog prevailed and in addition there was a thick smoke from the forest fires. Earlier in the day the steamer the Virginia was wrecked at Crane Island fifty miles below Quebec. The Victoria had 300 passengers. She struck hard and fast forward and took in nineteen feet of water in the forward hold. She blocked the shipping channel and impeded navigation. Every effort with wrecking gear was made to raise her. The Virginia will be sold to the salvors.

Six Indians, comprising the whole family met with terrible deaths on the sandheads at the mouth of Fraser River B. C. on the 2nd. In the tide race the Indians were slowly out. As Chas. Gibson, wife and four children started to cross the Gulf of Georgia, they were driven on the sandheads by their boat during the storm, or they managed to make ashore after their boat was swamped. The whole family will never be known, but according to the story told by a fisherman the entire family assembled on the sandbanks at low tide were out of human help, and remained there while the tide slowly rose first to their knees and finally engulfed them.

London advices say: The conclusion of the New Anglo Japanese treaty of alliance has only now become definitely known to the newspapers which were keenly interested and anxiously discussing the probable contents. Important modifications bind either power to come to the assistance of the other, if attacked by any one, instead of as in the old treaty, by two powers. The Telegraph says the Anglo Japanese treaty will guarantee terms of Portsmouth treaty. It will check any insane idea of Russian revenge and will render impossible any Japanese Coalition and terminate the scramble for China. The supposed treaty will establish an unequalled defensive alliance between Great Britain and Japan and it is believed India's included in the territory over which the treaty calls for preservation of the status quo. Should this prove the case its value to Great Britain will be enhanced.

At the Caledonian games in Montreal on Monday, J. W. Morton, the English sprinter, who arrived on the steamer Bavarian on Saturday, equalled the world's record for the 100 yards. The performance was on a wet track and was the more remarkable from the fact that Morton had not been on a running track since June.

The British Men-of-War Cornwall and Berwick came into Charlottetown harbor Monday afternoon about half-past three o'clock and anchored in the stream. The larger ships of the squadron, commanded by Prince Louis of Battenberg, are expected to arrive here on the 15th. Each of the ships here is 800 tons.

It is semi-officially announced from Tokio that the former Russian turret ship Poltava, now known as the Tango, in the Japanese navy, was brought to the naval station at Malabar on Saturday, from Port Arthur under her own steam. The former Russian auxiliary steamers Zaiya and the Booryah have been refloated at Port Arthur.

A tornado struck the northern part of Carbonade Pa. on Thursday last and demolished a score of houses, barns, and railway cars. It caused no fatalities. The storm came from the West and had a path of two hundred feet. The centre had the appearance of a funnel shaped cloud not black but luminous. It was not accompanied by lightning, thunder or rain, and the stars were to be seen shining.

On Friday last the Allan Line steamer Victoria while going out of the St. Lawrence, ran ashore on Cape Charles one hundred miles from Montreal. A dense fog prevailed and in addition there was a thick smoke from the forest fires. Earlier in the day the steamer the Virginia was wrecked at Crane Island fifty miles below Quebec. The Victoria had 300 passengers. She struck hard and fast forward and took in nineteen feet of water in the forward hold. She blocked the shipping channel and impeded navigation. Every effort with wrecking gear was made to raise her. The Virginia will be sold to the salvors.

Six Indians, comprising the whole family met with terrible deaths on the sandheads at the mouth of Fraser River B. C. on the 2nd. In the tide race the Indians were slowly out. As Chas. Gibson, wife and four children started to cross the Gulf of Georgia, they were driven on the sandheads by their boat during the storm, or they managed to make ashore after their boat was swamped. The whole family will never be known, but according to the story told by a fisherman the entire family assembled on the sandbanks at low tide were out of human help, and remained there while the tide slowly rose first to their knees and finally engulfed them.

London advices say: The conclusion of the New Anglo Japanese treaty of alliance has only now become definitely known to the newspapers which were keenly interested and anxiously discussing the probable contents. Important modifications bind either power to come to the assistance of the other, if attacked by any one, instead of as in the old treaty, by two powers. The Telegraph says the Anglo Japanese treaty will guarantee terms of Portsmouth treaty. It will check any insane idea of Russian revenge and will render impossible any Japanese Coalition and terminate the scramble for China. The supposed treaty will establish an unequalled defensive alliance between Great Britain and Japan and it is believed India's included in the territory over which the treaty calls for preservation of the status quo. Should this prove the case its value to Great Britain will be enhanced.

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, small and bearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic. "I was ill for four months with catarrh in the head and throat. Had a bad cough and raised blood. I had become discouraged when my husband bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and persuaded me to try it. I advise all to take it. It has cured and built me up." Mrs. HELEN KUPOLA, West Liscomb, N. S.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures catarrh—is soothing and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

The tissues of the throat are inflamed and irritated; you cough, and there is more irritation—more coughing. You take a cough mixture and it eases the irritation—for a while. You take

The other day a careless mason dropped a brick from the second story of a building on which he was at work. Leaning over the wall, and looking down, he saw a respectable citizen with his hat jammed over his eyes. The mason, in tones of apprehension, asked: "Did the brick hit any one down there?"

The citizen, with great difficulty extricating himself from the extinguisher into which his hat had been transformed, replied with considerable warmth: "Yes, sir, it did; it hit me."

MISCELLANEOUS.

Calming Him.

The other day a careless mason dropped a brick from the second story of a building on which he was at work. Leaning over the wall, and looking down, he saw a respectable citizen with his hat jammed over his eyes. The mason, in tones of apprehension, asked: "Did the brick hit any one down there?"

Calming Him.

The citizen, with great difficulty extricating himself from the extinguisher into which his hat had been transformed, replied with considerable warmth: "Yes, sir, it did; it hit me."

Calming Him.

"That's right," exclaimed the mason, in tones of undisguised admiration. "Noble man! I would rather have wasted a thousand bricks than have you tell me a lie about it."

DR. JOS. AUG. SIROIS. "Let me see!" mused the spinster. "Of the young ladies upon the Thornycroft Road, who are the only ones at all admissible."

Calming Him.

"Am I to be restricted to neighborhoods?" asked the Governor's son, in mock desperation. "Besides, if Thornycroft Road is to be my happy hunting grounds, the prospects are very bad. I believe there is a conspiracy in progress there."

Calming Him.

"A conspiracy?" exclaimed Miss Tabitha uneasily, her mind at once reverting to Eben Knox, who, as she had heard, had lately purchased ground in that aristocratic region. "I mean amongst the women-kind," explained Jim Bretherton. "It must be some new and dreadful phase of the Woman's Rights movement. I haven't seen the face of a girl in all my peregrinations out there."
