ASK FOR MINARD'S LINIMENT AND TAKE NO OTHER.

Healthy Boys need good Bread

When little lad comes in, cheeks aflame from his romp in the open, what will more quickly reconcile him to the indoors than a big slice of bread and butter and sugar, or a bowl of bread and milk?

But for nutriment's sake have bread made of Rainbow Flour.

In wheat there is fibre, skin and a little embryo germ where sprouting starts.

All of these things should be removed in the milling of the flour.

In Rainbow Flour this elimination is carried out completely. Only the purest nutrients remain. These are ground to a surpassing fineness which ensures even baking. No other flour sold in Canada is milled with such painstaking care.

Try some.

ALL FOR LOVE.

PHILIP'S PROTEGE.
CHAPTER XI.

The boy, whose name he had learned, was Nathan, was of a coarser type, but not nearly so ill-favored as he had appeared in his rags and filth and unkempt locks. At first he would not have much to say to Philip, regarding him askance, answering only in monosyllables when spoken to, and often sulkily turning his face to the wall, refusing to talk at all. One day Philip mentioned that he had returned the purse and money to the lady to whom they belonged, whereupon Nathan turned upon him with blazing eyes.

"Yer goin' tell cop?" he demanded fiercely; "and Zieba—she not come mit me to jail—she die."
It had been ascertained that the children were orphans, who, since their mother's death less than a year before, had lived in a room little better than a closet, rented for a pittance from a woman almost as destitute as themselves; and Nathan, whose life was centred in his little sister, had begged, stolen, or worked, as opportunity offered, to provide as best he could for their daily needs. It was a pitiful story, and Philip was deeply touched by it.

to jail, because I think you are going to promise me that you will never steal again," kindly returned Philip, who discerned the terrible fear that was haunting him. "You do not like to steal do you?" he added gravely.

The boy shot a searching look at him, then turned frowningly away, and preserved a sulkily silence.

"Wouldn't you rather work, and earn money honestly, to take care of Zieba?" Philip persisted.

Nathan's upper lip curled bitterly over his strong white teeth.

"Work!—mit who?" he sneered.

"That we shall have to decide after I find out whether you would prefer to work or to steal; whether you would rather grow up to be a thief and have Zieba ashamed of you, and always afraid that you might have to go to jail, or to have her proud and happy because you were honest and respectable," Philip quietly replied.

A dark flush surged hotly up over the boy's face, and he moved restlessly upon his pillow.

"Zieba—my Zieba—shamed mit me," he muttered, with a troubled look; then choked up suddenly.

"You never thought of that before, did you, Nathan?" said Philip kindly. "You only thought you had to take care of her and it did not much matter how, so that she did not go hungry. Now, if I will help you to a better way, will you promise never to steal again—for her sake, as well as your own?"

"How?" curly demanded the boy, with averted eyes.

"You could begin by learning to take care of an office, clean windows, black boots, and run of errands—"

"Mit who?"

"Well, you might begin with me. I have just taken an office here in the city, and I want a boy to do odd jobs for me. Wouldn't you like to try this better way to take care of your little sister?"

Nathan glanced at the child, who was sitting on Philip's knee, looking at a picture book he had brought her, and his chin began to quiver. Then he suddenly threw himself over in his cot, with his face to the wall and lay still without replying, his shoulders heaving with repressed feeling.

Philip, observing these signs of emotion, knew that he was not sulking this time. He gently put Zieba down and arose to go.

"Think it over, Nathan," he said in a friendly tone; "and tell me to-morrow when I come, if you would like to be my office boy when you get well. But"—very gravely—"I shall expect you to promise to be strictly honest from now on."

The result of this interview was very gratifying, for Nathan greeted him with a beaming face the next day, all signs of distrust and fear having vanished. Zieba was sitting beside him on his cot, where they had been looking over her book together.

"I come mit you, sir," he said eagerly. "I never swipe again, and Zieba not be 'shamed mit me any more—my Zieba." As he concluded he lifted the child's tiny hand and kissed it passionately.

Philip had already written to Miss Prue, telling her of the accident to the children, also of his desire to reclaim them from the life they had been living, and asking if she knew of any good farmer and his wife in her neighborhood who would be willing to take them to board, as soon as they were discharged from the hospital, so that they might have the benefit of the country air and living during the next two or three months. He knew he was laying himself open to criticism and disappointment in trying the seemingly hopeless experiment of reforming a young heathen so steeped in crime as Nathan appeared to be, but the boy's intense love for his sister had impressed him deeply, and he believed the venture worth trying; at any rate his humanity revolted against allowing the delicate little girl to go back into the life she had been living. He would save her at least.

Miss Russell wrote back, immediately, that he was to send the children directly to her; she was deeply interested in his plans and wanted the privilege of helping on the good work. Thus it happened that the two youngsters were sent to her, in the care of a conductor, the day before the Armstrong party was to come off at York Harbor. At the earnest invitation of Teddy, Philip had rather reluctantly consented to honor her occasion with his presence.

"You don't look very happy over it," Ted had laughingly observed, as he noted his hesitation. "I suppose it is because Beth is with us. But I want you two to settle up that old grudge and be done with it."

"Well, you know that she ran away from me when I went to New Hampshire. It looks as if she doesn't care to make it up," said Philip thoughtfully.

"That is all nonsense! The idea of you two holding each other at arm's length all your lives just because of that old childish tiff," argued Teddy intolerantly. "Besides you are both very dear friends of ours. You'll have to meet as our guests, now and then, and I can't be looking out for breakers ahead all the time. So come down to-morrow, Phil, and I'll fix it so that you and Lady Beth will have a chance to fight it out by yourselves."

"All right," Philip assented, and proceeded to arrange his plans accordingly.

The Armstrong home being overfull just at that time, Ted engaged a room for Philip at a near-by hotel, an arrangement that suited him capitally.

As Philip stepped off the train at the York Harbor Station late the next afternoon, some one rushed swiftly past him, and the next moment a joyous voice exclaimed just behind him:

"Oh, Agnes, how glad I am you could come! Then your mother is really better. Was she willing to spare you?"

"Yes, mamma is doing nicely, and would not hear a word about my giving up my visit. It is lovely of you, dearie, to come to meet me."

Somehow both voices sounded familiar to Philip, and, turning to get a look at the speakers, his heart bounded with a shock into his throat as he saw a tall, slender girl, clad in a long Rajah travelling coat, and instantly recognized her as the younger of the two ladies whom he had seen in the automobile at the North Station in Boston a few weeks previous; while the other who had greeted her as "Agnes" was the little lady whom he had rescued from the lawless hands of his protege, Nathan.

She seemed even more lovely to-day than she did then, clad in an immaculate costume of embroidered linen, a ravishing hat of white lace with great nodding plumes set jauntily upon her head, her small feet encased in dainty white shoes, and carrying a great white lace parasol in her silken-gloved hands. Philip stood transfixed, a tremor of pleasurable excitement pervading him in view of this unexpected encounter.

Who could she be—this bright little fairy? Her tall friend had called her dearie, as before, the indefiniteness of which he mentally resented.

My Digestion is Now Good

And I Feel Like a Young Man Since Using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Prof. A. T. Smith.

What a horrible condition the digestive system gets into when the liver becomes sluggish and the bowels constipated. The poisonous waste matter is thrown back into the blood stream and finds its way into all parts of the body, causing pain and aches and feelings of fatigue and misery.

It is wonderful how quickly Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills sweep the poisons from the digestive system and enable the organs of digestion to resume their natural functions.

Prof. A. T. Smith, 1 Mt. Charles street, Montreal, and formerly of Boston, Mass., writes:—"I suffered for many years from bad digestion, constipation and horrible backaches. I have been treated by many doctors without any results. One day a friend in Boston advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. After using two boxes I noticed great improvement, and after the fourth box I was completely cured. My digestion is good. I never feel any pain in the back. My head is clear and I feel like a young man. I think Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are one of the best medicines on earth."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

However, he secretly resolved to make the most of this opportunity, and try to locate and identify both ladies before his return to Boston.

At this instant the little lady in white glanced up, and, finding the gentleman's eyes intently fastened upon her, started slightly in surprise, a faint color suffusing her cheeks.

Then, bending her head and smiling sweetly in token of recognition, as he instinctively lifted his hat, she turned away with her friend, leading the way to a waiting carriage, and both were out of sight before Philip recovered himself sufficiently to realize how rudely he had been staring at the beautiful unknown.

CHAPTER XII.

THE MEETING.

That same evening, about an hour before the guests were expected to arrive, Philip slipped over to the Armstrong home from the hotel. He had promised to go early to have a quiet chat with his friend before the fun began. He found Ted in the library, and together they smoked their after-dinner cigar while they chatted upon various topics interesting to both.

At length Philip, glancing at his companion with an uneasy smile, remarked:

"You haven't told me yet how you propose to arrange for me to settle that old faux pas of mine, Ted. I confess I am rather dreading the ordeal."

"Well, then, the sooner you get it over with, the better for you both," Teddy returned with his customary alertness. "Muriel is going to sing once or twice to-night, and I heard Beth tell her, at dinner, she would dress early and run over the accompaniments before any one came, so as to be sure of herself; I think she came down a few minutes ago. There she is now," as a skillful hand swept over the keyboard of a piano in a room across the hall. "Wait a few minutes; then go to her, and—good luck attend you."

They listened in silence until the musician finished, when Philip arose, stood a moment irresolute; then, with a shrug of his shoulders and a half-sleepish glance at his friend, he left the room, whereupon Teddy grinned with secret delight.

When Tolerance Becomes a Vice.

BY RUTH GAMBON.

"Vice is a monster of such frightful mien As to be hated needs but to be seen. Yet, seen too oft, familiar with her face We first endure, then pity, then embrace."

All of which is a rather more grandiloquent and severe introduction than I meant to write for some very simple remarks.

Some two or three years ago a young girl in our neighbourhood had a new evening gown made quite scant and with a small slit down the right side. The slit was not more than three or four inches in width and was filled in with accordion plaited chiffon. But my what a lot of talk that gown did create! For two or three days after the dance at which it made its debut, we talked of little else than sheath and split gowns. The conservatives raved about the fashion; the radicals engaged dressmakers and sent for patterns. To-day how much attention would such a gown excite?

None whatever. The conservatives who raved about its immodesty are wearing gowns infinitely more immodest themselves, and thinking nothing of it. Why? Simply because they have seen so much of this sort of thing that they have grown "tolerant" of it. A gown split up to the knees is a commonplace in our streets to-day. It takes a gown split even further up to shock us now. One wonders, — or rather one scarcely dares to wonder, — what it will take to shock us two or three years from now.

Doubtless you remember what a fuss was made about peek-a-boo waists when they first came in; and peek-a-boo then meant a waist with a few little eyelets through which one could not see the lingerie beneath unless one deliberately tried to. To-day perfectly nice girls go about in waists of which the whole fabric is so thin that their lingerie is entirely visible to the most casual eye.

Really, when you come to think of it, it's quite remarkable how usage can blunt our feelings, isn't it?

Insofar as usage teaches us to consent to that which was objectionable only because it was new, this is a good tendency. But when it persuades us to tolerate things which are intrinsically wrong, it's a very bad tendency.

"All virtues by excess degenerate into vices," says an old philosopher, and tolerance is most emphatically no exception to that rule.

Ruth Gambon

Fashions and Fads.

The fall coat promises to be long. Sashes appear even on tailored suits. Two linen skirts should be in every wardrobe.

The Parisienne has adopted moire for her street costume.

Vatican purple is the most fashionable shade for the parasol.

Deep tulle pleatings form a finish to extremely short sleeves.

Linen is always in good style, being smart, cool and durable.

Even tailors have adopted moire as a possibility for the tailored suit. Side sashes in color are effectively introduced on the bolero costumes.

Some charming evening cloaks are made of headed net and brocaded silk.

A simple, pretty hat is a floppy leg-horn trimmed with a band of red, darned wool.

Two pairs of white canvas pumps are necessary to complete the summer footgear.

The small dolman coats, cut with a shawl-pointed effect at the back, are novel.

Bright-colored silk hose are worn with lingerie frocks. The color should match the sash.

Tulle covers many hats and tulle pleating borders the brims of some of the newest hats.

There are many fine lingerie embroidered batiste robes draped over colored transparencies.

Checks in neat shepherd patterns will hold a place in the smartly dressed woman's favor.

For the young girl the amber necklace is at the top notch of popularity. Coral is also in favor.

Lace and chiffon or lace and tulle are favored for sleeves and upper portion of décolleté waists.

A popular fad in footwear is the low shoe having ribbon straps which cross the ankle in sandal fashion.

A delightful and becoming illusion is gained by using a flesh-colored chiffon yoke finishing the bodice.

In every young woman's wardrobe there should be the white top coat. It is very smart and practical.

Wraps of black chiffon are embroidered with roses in pink crimson and gold and lined with two layers of pink chiffon.

The pelisse dresses, over which are arranged scarfs, oriental draperies and net effects, will be very much in fashion.

Really attractive and graceful are some of the new, big loose waistcoats in white corded silk, with very wide revers and collars.

The hat of changeable silk or satin, veiled with tulle and trimmed with flowers is the latest offering of the millinery world.

Pale rose, blue and yellow linen or soie souple makes a charming fond for the white embroidered lingerie afternoon dress.

Two hats, one small and dark and chic, one large and picturesque, will be sufficient to see the summer girl safely through the season.

A large flat or bullet-shaped button of wood trims some of the tailored suits, and leather buttons appear on motor and steamer coats.

A charming simple frock which one could make at home is of pale blue batiste, the low belt of folded taffeta caught at the side with a pink rose.

The color displayed beneath the lingerie dress may be repeated in a taffeta souple or figured crepe de chine short bolero fronted jacket mantlet.

The black sash bathing suit holds its place in fashion's favor. It can be severely plain, with perhaps the addition of dotted foulard collars and cuffs.

At the Yarmouth Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp, held at Tusket Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.

ALFRED STOKES,
General Secretary.

Salt Air Corroded Timber.

Exhibit for Inquest—Responsibility for the Collapse of the Long Beach Pier to Be Placed—Two Hundred Injured.

Long Beach Cal., May 28. — Evidence to be presented Thursday at the inquest over the thirty-six persons who lost their lives in the collapse Saturday of a portion of the municipal pier will bear directly upon the question of who was responsible for the condition of the structure which proved too weak to withstand the weight of several thousand women, men and children who had gathered to celebrate the birth anniversary of Queen Victoria.

Broken timbers, showing evidence of decay and the corrosive action of salt air from the ocean were under guard to-day. Several construction engineers who were appointed on behalf of the city began an official inspection.

One of the principal witnesses will be James Twombly, member of the Long Beach Board of Public Works, who was charged with the duty of inspecting public buildings. C. White Mortimer, British vice-consul at Los Angeles, will be represented at the coroner's inquest.

Daughters of the Empire and Sons of St. George, the two principal organizations which had charge of the celebration, started a campaign to-day for the relief of the victims, while the seriously hurt numbered not more than 65, nearly 200 were injured, so that aid will be given them.

Dont's for Girls.

Don't paint the rose. Don't use rouge or powder when under thirty, after that age there is hope that you will have too much sense to care to.

Don't be continually using your hands to brush your hair back or brush it forward, to readjust your hat, to rub your forehead, to feel of your collar, to play with your neck-lace, to button and unbutton your gloves, or in any of the countless ways a girl employs them that prove she can't get her mind off herself.

Don't laugh in a manner indicating that your idea of a good time is just noise. Leave that method of mirth to boys under ten.

Don't take five minutes for repeating a joke that should be told in half a minute, and expect it to be funny.

Don't mark a favorite quotation in a book. It is an untidy habit, and serves only the purpose of projecting your personality before the mental vision of the next one who reads, to his confusion and annoyance.

Don't preface your remarks with "As Homer says," "According to Emerson," etc. It is both priggish and stilted.

Don't look with a superior air at those who neither have read nor heard of the books published yesterday. The latest books are not the best, and so many are worthless that it is a sign of a cheap intellect to find satisfaction in them, when so many old and good books lie unread on the shelves.

Don't be humble before fine raiment and scornful before raiment that is plain. This is the first and last proof of the snob.

Don't overestimate the strength of a friend, nor underestimate the power of an enemy.

Don't repeat a compliment paid you to any one on earth but your mother.

Don't think that excessive politeness when a guest in the home of a friend gives you the privilege of criticizing your entertainment after it is over.

Don't talk sickness. The most deadly bores in the world, are those who linger on the memory of aches, pains and operations, and the longer they linger the less likely are they to get well.

Don't flirt. It makes your own sex mistrust you, and leads men to regard you as one who could easily be led around by the nose.

Don't squander your money. Take pride in the thought that so far as you can prevent you will never be a burden to others.

PRESCRIPTION "A"

CURES INDIGESTION & DYSPEPSIA IN ALL ITS FORMS.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing."

I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden.

Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Prescription "A". A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at

SPECIAL TO EVENING TELEGRAM. MONTREAL, To-day. It is officially announced that Armstrong Whitworth & Co., Limited, purchased two hundred and fifty acres of land on the South Shore of the St. Lawrence River, with a water frontage of two thousand feet opposite the city, for the purpose of establishing a Mammoth Steel Works. The expenditure of millions of dollars will be made at once for the construction of buildings.

BERLIN, To-day. There is great rejoicing in German industrial circles here because a German firm has secured contracts for the Lock Gates and Swing Bridge for the London East India Dock. There is a firm conviction that this powerful victory of a German concern over all English competing concerns is an important turning point which inaugurates a new era. A German expert here in one of our technical papers explains after careful study for many years the progress of the iron and steel trades respectively of England and Germany. He had foreseen that a change was due in favor of the German industry. He asserts that in future England will be unable to compete with the German manufacture of heavy goods, but will have to make a specialty of the work. The whole German press is jubilant.

M'Cluskey Was Calm.

It was said of John M'Cluskey when he visited the States that he was the calmest man in the world. Throughout his sixty years he had been a farm laborer in Scotland. Some months previously his brother James died, and left a fortune of several hundred thousand dollars to the brother he had not seen since they bade each other good-bye in the heather forty years before.

A lawyer was appointed the administrator. It was his duty to find the lucky brother. "He was sowing turnips for the sheep on his employer's farm, up among the mist-clad hills of Scotland," said the man of law, "when I found him. I had traced his life from the old farm on which he was born, step by step through the forty years of ill-paid and often most unpleasant labor before I approached him. It was not difficult, for he had held but a few positions in all those years. Everyone in the countryside knew him.

"Are you John M'Cluskey?" I asked. "I am," said he, without taking his eyes from the turnips and the knife. "Your brother James is dead in New York," said I. "Aweel, aweel, all men must e'en die," he said, slicing away. "He left you a great fortune," said I. "I want you to come to the house with me, so that I can establish your identity and arrange for you to enter into possession of the estate."

"I'll talk to ye at six o'clock, young man," said he. "I'll be busy till then. The fortune will keep, but these turnips will not."—Tit Bits.

Weird Walking Sticks.

"Queer waking sticks!" said the proprietor of a large umbrella and walking stick business, in answer to a query. "Why, there are as many queer sticks assisting people to move about as there are queer people. I was asked the other day if I could make a stick from a quantity of cordite; but I thought it wise to decline the order, as my men and I know little about explosives.

"Sticks made from 'bang substances' are not unknown, however, and Lord Haldane, prior to his elevation to the peerage, startled the House of Commons some years ago by producing, during a discussion concerning cordite, a walking-stick made from that explosive. He declared that the stick was quite harmless, and that he had often taken it to St. Stephen's, and left it in the cloak-room there. "A well-dressed foreigner came in to my shop one morning, and inquired whether I could make him a hollow stick, with a silver knob at the top which would screw on and off. He wanted the knob to be a puzzle affair—that is, one that could not be unscrewed by anyone except the owner. I made the stick to his satisfaction. Some months later he was caught red-handed smuggling uncut diamonds into the country. He had the jewels in the stick!"

Destructive Fire at Sydney.

THIRTY HOUSES, CHURCH AND CONVENT BURNED—FORTY FAMILIES HOMELESS—LOSS ESTIMATED AT HALF A MILLION DOLLARS.

Particulars have just been received by s.s. City of Sydney of the serious conflagration which occurred at Whitney Pier, Sydney, on Wednesday last, burning to the ground thirty houses, and contents, valued at $3,000 each, and the Roman Catholic Church and Convent. As a result of the destruction wrought, forty families are rendered homeless, but fortunately there was no loss of life reported. The loss is estimated at five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000). Only a fraction of this amount is covered by insurance. The fire, it is stated, started between four and five o'clock in the afternoon in the R. C. Church, caused by the burning of a live wire. In less than an hour all the Whitney Pier section of the town was enveloped in flames. There was a stiff breeze of wind blowing at the time in fact, our informant said the wind blew with hurricane force. This helped the fire to reach the serious proportions that it did. During the progress of the fire all traffic was at a standstill and the electric and telephone systems were hung up. Volunteers rendered yeoman service in helping the fire companies to cope with the blaze. At nine o'clock when the s.s. City of Sydney was leaving for this port, the Whitney Pier settlement was a mass of ashes. Some woodwork was still smouldering but the fire was under control, having lasted nearly five hours.

Seaweed As Food.

At this time of year laver is in season among the Scottish fisher-folk. Laver is edible seaweed! It is first dried and pounded; then stewed, and seasoned with salt, pepper, and vinegar. Onions or leeks are frequently added to the dish, which has, as may well be imagined, a flavor peculiarly its own.

In Ireland laver is called aloke, and is frequently boiled with milk into a sort of salty blanc-mange. Another way of cooking it is to roll it once or twice very quickly backwards and forwards round a heated poker. Grilled after this primitive fashion, it is said to be quite toothsome. "Dulse" is the local name for another species of edible seaweed that is mixed with barley-meal and made into bread in the Western Highlands of Scotland. In Wales yet a third kind is first dried and pounded and then mixed with ordinary flour. After which it is made into small, flat cakes—known locally as "sowle bread"—which are fried in dripping.

A Quaint Entry Into Prison.

Louis Baudit, a wealthy young artist, of Geneva, was sentenced to twelve hours' imprisonment lately for presenting a loaded revolver at a former friend and threatening to shoot him during a quarrel. The artist, who is somewhat eccentric, made a picturesque entrance into the prison of St. Antoine, accompanied by friends in taxi-cabs. Baudit, who was in evening clothes, with silk hat and white gloves, drove up to the entrance of the prison, where an orchestra was awaiting him, together with a large furniture van. On the arrival of the motor-cars the band began to play lively airs, and workmen deposited on the pavement from the van Baudit's sofa, lounge chair, bath, easy chairs, etc., in front of the prison gate.

Baudit addressed his friends and the assembled crowd, stating that the verdict was ridiculous, and he wanted to make it more so. At the official hour Baudit rang the prison bell, and the door was opened by warders, who refused to allow the prisoner's "furniture" to enter. As Baudit entered the band played Chopin's "Funeral March."

Rose-Colored Visions.

(By Carolyn Wells.) I'm going to be married to a gentleman named Jim; He isn't awful wealthy, but I'm awful fond of him. I'm going to try my best to be a truly helpful mate, And all my household methods shall be new and up-to-date. I've read the perfect housewife's guide, and what it says I'll do; I'll use those paper cookers, and fireless napkins, too. And all my Monday washing shall be done in paper bags, And I shall have those vacuum things to burn up bones and rags.

You see, I haven't ever done a bit of household work, But I am energetic and not inclined to shirk; And in my leisure moments I shall make a guest-room spread, Of baby Irish rosebuds, crocheted of finest thread.

I can't imagine how some brides can dawdle round all day, And let a servant do their work, such an old-fashioned way! It's just because they do not know that all the modern stores Keep all those workless workers to do our household chores.

Now, I shall always keep my pies in rubber pastry-bags, And label all my jars of jam with fancy ribbon tags. I'll buy that "Workless Wonder" that 5 or 6 in 1— That mop and churn and garbage-pail, flat-iron and powder-gun!

I shall have washless dishes, dried by a towelless wipe; And I am going to buy for Jim a lovely smokeless pipe; And, though I'm awful proud of Jim (he is the season's catch), I'm sure he also will agree he's made a matchless match!

Curiosity Killed the Cat.

BUT SAVED THE WORLD.

One of the finest little jokes we men have in stock is about the curiosity of women and cats.

We smile indulgently at our wives and sisters and mothers. We wag our finger at them and tell them in our ponderous humor, "Look out my dear, 'Curiosity killed the cat.' " And we do not seem to realize that if it weren't for curiosity we, in this twentieth century, would be still living like pigs and dying like flies.

Here are some of the things curiosity has done: Archimedes prying up a stone with a stick was curious at the ease with which he had moved a great weight. He discovered the law of the lever, which has made possible most of the mechanical wonders of the present day.

Galileo, curious about the rising of the sun and the movement of the stars, discovered that the world was not flat.

Newton was curious about the apple that fell. Watt about the cover of his mother's tea-kettle. Harvey about our blood. Pasteur about the elements of our blood. Howe about the tedious stitching and mending of patient women. And so on down the endless list of famous names.

And yet we laugh at the curious mothers of such curious men. Curiosity? Why a man ought to be ashamed to wag his finger at the most idle curiosity in the world.

You thousands of people who are reading this paper to-day are simply curious. You thousands of women who turn to your advertising to find out where to go before you begin your shopping tour would probably spend many times more money than you had to if you were not curious.

Don't waste a moment's thought on the hunter of men. Read your advertising, satisfy your curiosity, see the merchandise that appeals to you. Do not hesitate because the name of some advertiser is new. Let your curiosity have its fullest play. It is time we laid this curiosity joke to rest. Heaven help the son of the woman who isn't curious.

Pierpont Morgan's Fairy Palace.

In all the panegyrics of the late Pierpont Morgan little has been said of that wonderful house of his in Prince's Gate. Outside it differed little enough from his neighbors—merely two houses rolled into one; but its interior suggested nothing so much as the fairy palace of Aladdin. In the hall a spring was pressed, and part of one of the walls "fell away" in the approved style. You walked down into a basement, which at first sight resembled nothing so much as one of the lower decks on a large liner. Ranged along the walls were what appeared to be a number of safes, but they were really doors opening into small rooms, into each of which a particular portion of Mr. Morgan's collection has been brought. There were rooms for English silver, for porcelain, and for half a dozen other objects d'art. No one who was ever fortunate enough to be shown round by Mr. Morgan himself can forget the experience.—Bystander.

How Governor Williams Exposed Himself

We return to-day to ex-Governor Williams' observations about the Reid, and Sir Robert Bond's public attitude in respect to these contractors, and as the Editor of the Evening Herald, Mr. McGrath, has given prominence to Sir Ralph Williams' vagaries respecting the Reid and their connection with Newfoundland, we re-publish in part to-day, Mr. McGrath's own views on the same subject which appeared in the Chicago Record, of June 28th, 1900. That article, it must be remembered, was not written by Mr. McGrath to influence the electors of Newfoundland, it was written by him as correspondent to a newspaper, whose local circulation is enormous, and which has branch offices in New York, Washington, and London, England. It was thus written for wide circulation and intended to open the eyes of the world to the threshold, which had been forced upon this country by Sir Edward Morris and his associates in the Railway Deal of 1898, and to the methods that were adopted to accomplish the end in view. It was intended to show to the world what a brave, unrepentable, patriotic man, Sir Robert Bond, was determined to do to try and remedy the evil brought upon the country. Let the public read Mr. McGrath's articles, and then read Governor Williams and determine in the light of experience whose view of the Reid influence is correct. Until the Board of Trade in 1907-protection were forced to remonstrate to the present Government in regard to the mismanagement of rail-

SOME EXTRACTS.
Special Correspondence of the Chicago Herald.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., June 20.—Americans are prone to think that there is but one "Czar" Reid—the gifted politician from Maine. But there is also a "Czar" Reid of Newfoundland, the man who owns England's oldest Colony. He is the greatest landowner on earth, the monarch of all he surveys, albeit he has no titles and figures not in the Almanach de Gotha. His story is remarkable as another evidence of the undoubted energy of the Scotch race, for he has raised himself from a humble stonemason to be an important international factor. France and England have to take him into account when dealing with the "French Shore" Question; Canada and the United States may not ignore him when trying to adjust the dispute about the Atlantic Fisheries. His unique position in Newfoundland makes him more powerful than the Colonial Government. In fact, he has been the colonial government for ten years past.

FEELING OF DISTRUST OF REID.
But to-day an attempt is being made to overthrow him. Silent, sagacious, far-seeing capitalist though he is, his Napoleonic grasp of opportunities, while it has given him an undisputed mastery in the direction of the future development of the island, has aroused the suspicions of the electorate and fomented a feeling of distrust of him and his plans which is finding expression in a political revolt against dominance.

MOVES BEHIND THE SCENES.
The Hon. Robert Bond, an able and honest colonial statesman, sufficiently independent in point of wealth to be able to resist the inducements of rich capitalists like Reid, has undertaken to do battle against this northern Goliath, and the young and patriotic elements in public life are rallying to Bond's standard for the battle of the ballots in November next, which will decide the destinies of the island. Reid is a hard fighter, the more so as his methods are those of the manipulator rather than of the leader, and he accomplishes his object best from behind the scenes, moving his agents like pawns upon a chess-board. The outcome of the conflict is therefore uncertain, though everything indicates a victory for Bond.

By this time the masses of the people were awake to the fact that Mr. Reid had outwitted them, they forgetting that he took all the risks. Denunciation of "land-grabbing," monopolies and oppression of the poor, disregard of public rights and sacrifice of valuable concessions, became frequent, and the Tory party in the Colony, then in Opposition, went to the country in the fall of 1897 on a platform made up of attacks on the Liberals for granting such privileges to Reid and promising a complete change of policy if the reins of office were given into their hands.

The Governor denounced it in unmeasured terms, and wired Secretary Chamberlain in alarm. The reply he got was to follow the advice of his ministers, as the Queen could veto it within a year, if found wise to do so. Very ungraciously he signed it. Then he set to work to foment public feeling against it. He succeeded beyond his best hopes, for certain features of the measure were held by many, when fully ventilated, to be a menace to public rights. Monster meetings were called, clergymen and leading citizens headed an anti-Reid agitation, and a petition to the Queen was got up praying her to veto the Bill and 25,000 out of the 40,000 electors in the island signed this appeal.

Mr. Chamberlain, after examining the constitutional side of the matter, found himself regretfully unable to advise the Queen to use her veto, as the colony had complete local self-government, and any interference would make the British Parliament responsible for such disastrous financial consequences as might ensue. But he very clearly emphasized his dissent from the principle of the contract, which he characterized as the most extraordinary abrogation of its functions by a Legislature, and a Government that the world have ever seen.

Czar Reid thus found himself upheld in his new possessions and monarch of all he surveyed. Newfoundland is three-fourths the size of Illinois, having an area of 42,000 square miles, and eliminating lakes and barren sections, has about 28,000 square miles of arable mineral and timberland. Of these the "Czar" owns 7,000 square miles in fee simple, with all the timber, minerals, water power, and shooting and fishing privileges contained therein. Gold, silver, copper, kensettite, pyrites, kaolin, coal, petroleum, gypsum, timber, pulp wood, and other valuable mineral products have been proved to abound; herds of caribou roam the woodland fastnesses and the rivers teem with salmon and trout.

TRUSTS AND COMBINES.
In this day of trusts and combines it becomes almost inevitable that such a vast and manifold enterprise should ultimately be converted into a limited liability company. Little Cyril is a bright pupil of Miss Maude Hiscock.

This Date in History.

JUNE 13.
First Quarter.
Days Past—163 To Come—201.
MADAME FRANCES BARRY, born 1453, Daughter of Dr. Chas. Barry, and novelist, became the precursor of Jane Austen in the themes of her novels.
DR. ARNOLD, of Rugby, born 1795. He influenced his pupils by stimulus, moral and intellectual, without submitting to the treadmill rule.
JUVENILE MECHANICS SOCIETY formed 1898.
All the fair devices that ever were fancied, are not worth a lie.
—Ruskin.

Reid had in view when he acquired all these franchises. Unfortunately for him, however, his contract contained a provision, inserted as a matter of course in all contracts with the Government, that he was not to transfer or sublet it without the consent of the Ministry. Before his schemes were fully matured the Tory Cabinet which gave him the contract had gone to pieces through internal dissensions brought about by popular disapproval of their action in this very particular. The anti-Reid Ministry of Mr. Bond, which succeeded them, on being approached by Mr. Reid for this permission refused to grant it unless he would consent to submit his contract for amendment on lines suggested by them, involving the repeal of certain clauses generally held to be inimical to the public interests.

MEMBERS "APPROACHED."
The "Czar" declined to agree to this, and some members of the Bond party were "approached" with a view to securing a transfer of their support to the Reidists. One of them gave the thing away and an unequal outbreak of popular indignation resulted. Then the "Czar" tried the alternative of closing down all his works, those called for under his contract and discharging hundreds of his employees. These were all brought in by rail to St. John's to be paid off, and a demonstration was organized by them, presumably inspired to force the Government to agree to Reid's terms.

The meeting was, however, captured by the Bondites, who passed resolutions endorsing the Government's action. Thus the matter stands now, with Bond assuredly the winner of the initial victories. Both parties are lining up for the election, which takes place in October. If Reid wins he will proceed to take his legislation through parliament as speedily as may be. If Bond wins the "Czar" will have received a crushing blow, and it only remains to be seen if his finances will permit him to hold out for another four years and make a second trial, or if he will have to submit and surrender unconditionally to the victorious Bond.

Schooner Dismasted Drives to Sea.

The small schooner Midgascash of about 20 tons, owned by Mr. Jas. Herwood of the Arm, was dismasted while beating in Burge Island Tickle on Monday morning. The masts were carried away and the crew was as well. Anchors were let go but failed to hold the schooner, and off the flag the crew took to their boat and rowed in for Howlett's motor boat. When she reached the schooner however she was unable to tow her and was compelled to abandon her, which drifted to sea. The schooner was loaded with wood, and will thus float making a menace to shipping, though it is probable she drove a long way to sea with the heavy southerly wind of Monday.—Twillingate Sun.

Rossley Star Theatre.

Last night there was a great crowd at Rossley's theatre, and many had to go away disappointed at not being able to get in. Lorraine Buchanan has certainly put up one of the finest comedy dramas ever presented. It is a beautiful little play. Jack Rossley had the house in roars every time he appeared. Billy Devan sang delightfully. Mrs. Rossley in an elegant new costume looked the part she was portraying, while Lorraine Buchanan in her acting and appearance charmed her audience. Little Bonnie Rossley showed herself a fine little actress, and astonished everybody. Harry Ingram as the Count's guard was excellent and his song called for rounds of applause. Not in New York city could any finer show be seen. The pictures, the singing, the music, the acting and the costumes were splendid.

No Suffrage at the Hague.

Dutch Newspaperman Interviews Dr. Willoughby Cummings.

The Hague, May 30.—The Congress of the International Council of Women, which has been in session here, has been absolutely neutral on all matters of contention, especially suffrage.

"Russia does not yet possess a national council of women," said Mme. Marie de Wachtine, a member of the International Council of Women, today. "Some years ago one was being organized, but the government objected and the matter was dropped."

Mme. Wachtine is here to confer with the officers of the International body as to ways and means of starting a national council in Russia, with statutes so altered as to overcome the objections of the reactionary government.

Dr. Willoughby Cummings, of Toronto, one of the Canadian delegates, and chairman of the finance committee of the present meeting of the international council, in a newspaper interview, recounted some of her experiences in a garrison town in Japan. The people there, who were much interested in western ideals, requested Dr. Cummings to give a lecture to the Japanese officers' wives.

In the course of the address the lecturer mentioned that the Canadian government had introduced several reforms at the request of the women of the country. The hall was crowded with women and children, who listened with rapt attention. Immediately after the lecture the editor of the local paper called at the home of Dr. Cummings—others also came on the same mission—and demanded with amazed perturbation if it was true that the Canadian government would take official action at the request of women.

In Japan, they assured her, woman's voice was not heard on public questions. "Yes," they admitted, "during the Russo-Japanese war the women of Japan did something in a public way. They organized a splendid Red Cross service, but after the war there was nothing more for them to do."

Dr. Cummings impressed her hearers with what women could do for the common weal, and the men left her presence converts to the cause and promising that they would do all possible to spread the idea among their friends.

"Queen Wilhelmina has taken the liveliest interest in everything concerning women's work," said Miss Kohanta Naber, president of the press committee and one of the organizers of the woman's exhibition. "Ever since last Christmas I have been regularly at the palace by royal command to explain every single section of the exhibition. As the constitutional monarch of Holland, her majesty has not expressed any of her own views on any subject, and I could not say whether she is for or against woman suffrage, but at least Queen Wilhelmina has shown a devoted interest in matters affecting women."

The Best Seller.

The latest book by Mr. Gush has made a killing grand, and to the bookstores people rush, with money in each hand. "We want this best of Gush's works," they cry, "and here's the man!" And so the sad, soul weary clerks dispense it by the ton. The village libraire's in a stew, for all the dams are there; they want that book—none else will do—and they are pulling hair! In street cars, in the busy mart, and in the social crush, they talk, until they break your heart, about the book by Gush. And all this lissome low brow'd discuss it in the street; and women, at their culture clubs, read extracts and repeat. You hear of it from every bore, and in the evening's hush you sadly sit before your door and curse the name of Gush. And then the talk all dies away as sudden as it rose; a new best seller is in sway, and Gush turns up his toes. If in the bookstore you should look, next month, for Gush's work, "We never heard of such a book" will say the weary clerk. To-day a book may be a scream that holds the public mind; it passes like a winter dream and leaves no trace behind.

Humor That Has Fallen From the Mouths of Babes.

Stories of children have a charm all their own, and there is a reason—the humor of a child's remark is unconscious.

Willie, aged four, had been invited out to tea with his mother, and while he was being dressed for the occasion, the delights in store for him had been depicted in glowing terms.

While his mother chatted with their hostess, Willie sat in solemn silence, and at last the lady of the house rose.

"Now I must bring in tea," she announced; then added: "Would Willie like some tea?"

The child eyed her in astonishment, and, in a deeply-hurt tone, responded:

"Why, that's what we came for!"

HIS STAR OF HOPE.

Outside, it was snowing hard, and the teacher considered it her duty to warn her charges.

"Boys and girls should be very careful to avoid colds at this time," she said solemnly. "I had a darling little brother, only seven years old. One day he went out in the snow with his new sledge, and caught cold. Pneumonia set in, and in three days he was dead."

A hush fell upon the school room; then a youngster in the back row stood up and asked:

"Where's his sledge?"

TOMMY WAS UNKIND.

It is to be feared that Tommy was not so kind to his little brother, Robert as he ought to have been. He tried hard to shake him off, so that he might go and play with older boys; but Robert stuck close.

"You should be ashamed to treat your little brother in that way," admonished father. "He ought to be sacred to you."

Tommy made no reply; but later, when he believed himself to be free from parental observation, he addressed Robert fiercely:

"Always taggin' after me! If you weren't sacred, I'd break your face for you."

MEANT THE SAME ONE.

Edith, aged six, had just been told that she had now two little baby brothers—twins.

She looked thoughtful—very thoughtful. At last she spoke:

"That's funny! Minnie and I both prayed for a baby brother, but we meant the same one!"

The Hope of Ireland Almost Knocked Out.

The sport writer of the Toronto Telegram has the following in a recent issue.

The story goes that at the outset of Mr. Flanagan's athletic career he was called on to act as referee at a prize fight, pug pardon, boxing contest, in which an Irish champion faced a hard-fighting son of Africa. The latter got one well placed wallop at the fifth round in the second round. The Irish hope went down, and everybody thought out. The story credits the referee, T. C. Flanagan, with proceeding to count the Irish champion out as follows:

"WAN—Paddy bye, pull yourself together."

"TWO—It's for dear old Ireland's sake, Paddy; can't you get on your feet?"

"THREE—Wurra, wurra, wurra, are ye knocked out entirely."

"FOUR—Whisper, Paddy, for the sake of Brian Boru and Robt. Hamilt, stand up and take one more punch at him."

"FIVE—That's right, me bye; that's right, yer comin' to, yer comin' to."

"SIX—Patsy, Patsy, make an effort, me man, make an effort."

"SEVEN—Think of ould Ireland, Patsy; think of ould Ireland."

"EIGHT—Are ye goin' to lay there, Patsy; and lave thim Saxons have a laugh on us?"

"NINE—It's Ireland's last chance, Paddy, it's Ireland's last chance."

"TEN—Glory be he's on his fays, he's on his fays."

"To be continued in our next" need not be printed in the text of this serial because the story runs right on with the news that the Irish champion staggered to his feet just as the fatal word "ten" was halfway drawn from the reluctant lips of the referee, T. C. Flanagan. The colored champion had the edge on the Celtic pugilist, but the latter got in one fortunate blow and down went the hope of Africa, while Mr. Flanagan, the referee, counted ten as follows:

"WAN."

"Two."

"Three."

"Four."

"Five an' five makes TEN; yer out, ye Senegambian, yer out."

SWAT THE FLY!

Flies Kill More People Than War.

"I consider that the greatest menace to life, responsible for the deaths of more people than fire, famine, war or flood is the common house fly," says a famous London physician, and the truth of this is being realized, particularly by doctors and nurses who follow their profession in the crowded centres of great cities. The slogan has gone out to "swat the fly to-day and every day. Kill every one of the little pests you can, thereby minimizing the chance for the spreading of disease. The children at school and at home should be drilled to kill every fly they see, as every female fly that lives through this year means a million young next year.

Join the life-saving brigade. Every fly you kill means lives saved."

The fly or the baby. It is life or death for one of them. Let it be death for the fly and life for the baby.

Flies are germ carriers. Their bodies are covered with loathsome death-dealing parasites, which they deposit where they alight.

Much of the sickness during the summer months is directly due to the fly. Kill it and save doctors' bill or worse.

Flies kill more people than do the bullets and swords of all the armies of the world and all the wild animals of the jungle, desert and forest.

The fly you see walking over the butter, enjoying a feast in the sugar bowl, or swimming in the milk, has come from all kinds of horrible filth.

Did you swat the fly this morning? St. John's must be a flyless city. If baby is to live to be a strong man or woman, the fly must be killed. It is either the fly or the baby, so swat the fly, and swat him hard. You may see very many for a day or two, but make sure that you catch every one you see. Remember that every one that escapes you now will be a grandfather or grandmother to millions more later on in the summer.

Set your traps near the flies' breeding places. Is there a stable near your house? If so, no place could be better to place a trap, for a large majority of flies are born in stable refuse. Set a trap on top of the garbage can. It will not be necessary for you to stay there. The flies will catch themselves. Place a piece of meat or some syrup in the bottom of the trap, and the rest is easy. When you have caught the flies, dip the trap in boiling water to kill them.

A Leader's Jubilee Year.

This is the jubilee year of Mr. D. J. Shackleton, former leader of the Labor Party, who was born in 1863. As a cotton operative—and a very skilful one—Mr. Shackleton fell foul of an employer, and was "blacklisted." Nowhere could he get work. He was married, and for nearly three months his wife, herself a textile worker, had to keep him, big, strong man that he was. He was tempted to make peace, but his wife wouldn't let him. She said that he was in the right, and that all would be well in the end. And it was. He got work at last, and, what is more, he got work to sit on the same magisterial bench as the very man who had tried to crush him.

Mr. Shackleton has repaid his debt to his wife, for thanks mainly to his exertions, the women textile workers of Lancashire are the best-organized and best-paid class of "working women" in the country.

With His Long Leg He Pulls Hundreds.

Atlantic City, N.J., June 5.—E. L. Jones, who gave his address as Yankton, S. Dak., was found begging today on the boardwalk. Ordered away he went to Atlantic Avenue. There Detective Charles Apple found him seated on the sidewalk.

Jones has only one leg and can count that as his balance on a $10,000 ranch in Iowa near Yankton, he explained. "My trip this time is to get $10,000 more to buy some new stock. I've been on the road five months and I've got more than half the money."

Jones was put on the first out-bound train, and warned not to return.

The World's Wealthiest Man.

The Tsar of Russia is the wealthiest man in all the world, far richer even than John D. Rockefeller or any of the Rothschilds. His civil list alone amounts to something like $2,500,000 a year, and more than a half of this is available for his own private use.

In addition, the Tsar owns land in European Russia, equal in area to the whole of Ireland, and derives from it the colossal revenue of £5,000,000 per annum. And then he also owns land in Siberia which, even in its present undeveloped state brings him in well over £1,000,000 a year.

The Tsar's annual income, including the interest on his savings, has been estimated at £7,500,000.

Seeing, therefore, that the Tsar puts aside every year a large sum of money for each of his four daughters, the princess who contracts a marriage in that quarter, is likely to do extremely well for herself from a worldly point of view.

Football.

The Feildians and Casuals contested in last evening's football match on St. George's Field, resulting in two goals to one in favor of the Feildians. The match on the whole was fairly good, but only a small number of spectators were present. At 7 o'clock the Feildians outclassed their opponents and were not long in notching up their first goal through Rendell. Less than five minutes later Pinsent netted No. 2. No further scoring was done until the second half when during a scrimmage the Casuals got their one and only goal. The players were: Feildians—Goal, Riley; backs, Rendell, Hewitt; halves, Strong, Bernard, Rowsell; forwards, Lush, Wood, Pinsent, C. Rendell, Winter. Casuals—Goal, Foster; backs, Dick, Clark; halves, Searle, Stevenson, Gardner; forwards, Innis, Reid, Smith, Cunningham, Green.

Wedding Bells.

At Broad Cove, Tuesday, at 7 p.m., a very pretty wedding took place, when Const. Alex. Tucker, until recently of the Station, St. John's East, led to the altar Miss Elizabeth Clarke, daughter of Mr. James Clarke. A large number of the friends of the happy couple were present in the church and the nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Canon Smith. The groom was assisted by his uncle, Mr. John Tucker and the bride by her sister Miss Clarke. After the ceremony the many friends of the happy pair were driven to Tucker's Hill, where a wedding supper was held and the festivities were kept up till a late hour next day. The Premier, and Messrs. Bennett and Kennedy were amongst the guests. The bride received many pretty and useful presents. The groom having been transferred to Greenspond, will live there with his bride in future. To the newly wedded couple the Telegram extends its felicitations.

Fell From Aloft.

A young man, Duhal Reid, one of the crew of the three-masted schooner Tobiatic, discharging salt at J. W. Hodge's, fell from half way up the mizen topmast to the deck on Thursday. In falling his foot struck the cross-trees hard enough to dislodge one of his sea boots, which he was wearing. Fortunately, however, he managed to clutch the throat hal-yards in falling, which slightly checked his fall, enabling him to keep upright and land on his feet. No bones were broken, but the foot which struck the cross-trees was much bruised, as well as his leg, and he will be compelled to lie off for a while. Reid is a Newfoundlander.—Twillingate Sun.

Hr. Grace Notes.

As we write, 1.30, we are being treated to a shower of hail, something unusual, as it is so near mid-summer.

The Labrador men that left yesterday, will no doubt have a quick run to the coast. A few of the more northern planters will get away next week.

News was received here yesterday of the death of Mr. John T. Lynch, in the Straits. Mr. Lynch, who was of a very quiet manner, was a school teacher, and a few days ago word was received that he was ill of Bright's Disease. The sad news of his death is a great blow to his widowed mother, as he was an only child. He was about 25 years of age. The sympathy of the whole community goes out to the sorrowing mother.

Mrs. Edward Corbett, of Bristol's Hope, died on Tuesday, after a long illness. This is the wife of an unfortunate man Edward Corbett, who is suffering from cancer, and to whom reference was made in a recent issue of the Telegram. Mrs. Corbett leaves one young child, to mourn her death.

Mrs. (Judge) Oke and Miss Gladys Oke, were at Carbonar yesterday on a visit to Dr. and Mrs. Boyle.

The sociable and concert held by the Methodist Choir in Coughlan Hall, on Tuesday night, was a great success. The British band favored the audience with some very pretty selections, that were enjoyed by the gathering. The cup that cheers was very much enjoyed, and one young man who is contemplating matrimony, all but proposed to a young lady who not only looked well herself but seemed determined to make all around her happy.

Fresh salmon sold in the market here on Tuesday morning for 8 cents per pound. The market was well stocked on that and other days this week.

Miss Gertrude Trappell arrived from Montreal by yesterday afternoon's train on a visit to her father, sisters and other friends. She is the guest for the present of her sister Mrs. R. S. Munn, Victoria Street.
