THE Phantom Lover.

(By the Author of "A Bachelor Husband.")

CHAPTER XX.

Looking back to that night at the theatre it always seemed to June Mason that she had been most extraordinarily blind in not seeing before that it was Esther for whom Mickey Melowes cared.

One glance at his face as he lifted the girl in his arms told her more than any words would have done; there was a sort of indescribable rage and pain in his eyes as he looked down at the white face lying against his shoulder.

People gathered about them, curious and sympathetic. June heard some one say that it had been so "diced hot in the theatre, no wonder people fainted," but she knew all the time that it was nothing to do with the heat; she stopped mechanically and picked up Esther's gloves which had fallen from her nerveless hand before she followed Mickey back into the foyer, where he had Esther down on one of the long velvet lounges.

Afterwards she realised that the sudden discovery that Mickey loved her friend had been something of a shock to her, that she had even been faintly jealous; she did not want to marry him herself, and yet they had been such good friends, it gave her an odd little pain to think that there was somebody else whom he placed a long way ahead of her in his heart.

Most of the people had gone, one of two of the theatre attendants lingered; it seemed a long time before Esther opened her eyes. She lay for a moment, looking vaguely about her, when her eyes came back to Mickey, who

When he got back to his rooms he told Driver to call him early, as he was going to see somebody off by train. He was at Victoria long before Ashton; the greeting between the two men was constrained.

"I was going back to-day, anyway," Ashton said faintly. "I'm going to be married the day after to-morrow." He looked at Mickey with triumphant eyes. "To Mrs. Clare," he added.

When Mickey got back to his rooms, Driver met him. Driver with a spark of unwonted animation in his dull eyes, and who closed the sitting-room door mysteriously behind him as he came forward.

"If you please, sir—there is a lady to see you."

"A lady!" said Mickey blankly; then he laughed. "Rubbish! You're dreaming man."

"No, sir," said Drivers stolidly. "Mickey stared at him for a moment, then he passed him, and threw open the door of the sitting-room. It was Esther who rose from a chair by the fire as he entered.

For an instant Mickey was unable to believe his own eyes, then he shut the door and took a step forward.

"You!" he said. "I never thought of you."

"She broke in agitatedly. "Oh, I know; I suppose I shouldn't have come; I don't know what June would say if she knew; but—there wasn't anybody else I could come to, you said."

"She flushed up nervously. "Oh, you did say you would be a friend to me, didn't you?"

"Yes," said Mickey. "He might have reminded her that she had declined his friendship; he might have reminded her of all the not very kind things which she had said to him, but it was such happiness to see her here in his room that he was in no mood to be critical.

"Do sit down . . . there's no hurry, is there?" He wanted to put her at her ease; he did not like to see the nervous agitation in her face; but she shook her head.

"I'm not going to say, only . . . only . . ." Her voice changed suddenly. "Oh, Mr. Melowes, will you tell me how I can get to Paris?"

"Paris!" Mickey echoed the word helplessly. "Paris!" he said again. "For the moment he stared at her with blank eyes.

"She rushed on impetuously. "I have a friend there—some one I . . . some one I . . . Oh, it's the man I'm engaged to, and I want to see him—I must see him! I've got the money to get there. I hope you'd think I was going to ask you to lend me that . . ." she added in distress.

"Miss Shepstone . . . I—I . . . Mickey was horribly upset. "I never thought anything of the sort. And—then if you were going to ask me, you know quite well that anything I have, anything . . ."

She stopped him hurriedly. "Oh, I know, it's very kind of you." Her blue eyes sought his face with a sort of abasement. "I don't think I've ever really realised how kind you've been to me," she said. "But . . . but I've been so worried and unhappy . . . I—I do hope you'll forgive me if I was rude or unkind."

Mickey did not answer; so it had come at last, the explanations which he had always dreaded; he racked his brains in vain to think of a way out of it—to make out the best story he could.

She seemed to realise his perturbation, she came a step nearer to him.

"Mr. Melowes," she said earnestly, "will you tell me something?"

"Yes," said Mickey inaudibly, but he did not look at her.

She looked up at him, trying to see his face before she asked her question.

"Do you—do you know who the man is that I am going to marry?"

In the silence that followed her timid question, Mickey felt that he lived through years. Should he tell her the truth, or should he not? Ashton was out of London by this time; in another forty-eight hours he would be married to another woman; he raised his head with a sort of desperation.

"No," he said.

He tried to comfort himself with the knowledge that at least it was substantially the truth; she was not going to marry Ashton—she never could marry him now.

(To be continued)

The fire was nearly out there and the room felt chilly; he shivered, and stooping, tried to rake the cinders into a blaze.

Mickey watched him silently; after a moment Ashton turned.

"Lord, man! What's the matter? You look as cheerful as Doomsday!"

Mickey was standing stiffly against the table.

"I saw you in the theatre to-night," he began without preamble. "I was with Miss Shepstone, and she saw you, too—at least she believes it was you, and I am going to tell her that she was mistaken. How soon can you get out of town and back to Paris?"

Ashton stared; the colour had rushed to his face; after a moment his eyes fell.

"I don't know what the devil you're driving at," he said irritably. "I suppose I can come to London without asking you first, can't I? And, as for Lallie"—he grinned nervously—"well, you know as well as I do that that's all been off for weeks."

Mickey stood immovable.

"You haven't answered my question," he said flatly. "How soon can you get out of London?"

Ashton swore under his breath.

"I'm dashed if I know what you're driving at," he said sulkily. "If you like to take Lallie to theatres, that's your business; she's a nice little girl, I admit, but—"

Mickey took a step forward.

"If you want to make me forget that this is your mother's house, you're going the right way to do it," he said between his teeth. "And I don't want any of your bluffs. Miss Shepstone thinks she saw you at the Comedy to-night; she'll probably write to you or try to see you in the morning, and you've got to be out of London by then—do you hear?"

Ashton laughed; he shrugged his shoulders.

"Must," he said nastily. "How long have you been Lallie's champion?"

"Oh, all right, all right," he broke off hurriedly, as he saw the ugly light in Mickey's eyes. "But she's a bit thick, you know," he resumed lamely. "I've done with her; you know that. You sent my letter on to her yourself. It's absurd if I can't come back home for a few days in case she should see me and get upset. I'm sorry if she's still fond of me, but dash it all—"

"You haven't answered my question," said Mickey again.

He was controlling himself with a mighty effort, but the veins stood out like cords on his forehead and his hands were clenched.

The two men looked at one another, and it was Ashton's eyes that felt.

"If you're going to bullyrag me," he began blusteringly, "I may as well tell you that I'm not going back to Paris till I please, and—"

"Very well," said Mickey. He turned on his heel.

Raymond watched him across the room anxiously. When he reached the door he called to him.

"Micky! What the devil are you going to do?"

And Mickey answered, without turning—

"I'm going to tell Mrs. Clare the way you've treated Miss Shepstone, and if she's half the decent sort I think she is she'll throw you overboard as you've thrown scores of others . . ."

Micky cut him short. "The first train leaves Victoria at 9.45; I'll be there to see you off."

Ashton scowled. "It's a nice way to treat a friend," he grumbled. "If there's really anything up with Lallie . . ."

Micky stood like a statue.

"It's decent of you to take her out," Ashton went on unseeingly. "I'm much obliged to you, I'm sure. She's never had much of a time. If I'd had any money . . ."

Micky broke out then. "Oh, hold your infernal tongue," he said furiously.

He walked out of the room, shutting the door hard behind him. He passed the astonished maid in the hall and let himself out into the night. The blood was pounding in his veins, he felt in actual need of physical violence; he did not know how he had managed to keep his hands off Raymond. He walked on at a furious pace; presently he laughed with a sort of self-pity.

What was the good of what he had done after all? At best he had only succeeded in staying off the inevitable for a little while; Esther would have to know sooner or later.

Such wasted love it was! All for a man who was not worth one thought, or even a tear!

No Renewal of Negotiations.

Striking Miners Will Not Consider Overtures--Seamen's Union Not in Accord.

MINERS DECLARE FOR NO FURTHER NEGOTIATIONS.
LONDON, April 13. The miners, according to the Evening News, have decided there can be no renewal of negotiations for a settlement, even if the invitation emanates from the Government or Labor leaders.

A RENEWAL OF NEGOTIATIONS.
LONDON, April 13. Premier Lloyd George has provided the leaders of the Triple Alliance with another opening for renewal of negotiations in the miners' strike, and a general strike of railwaymen and transport workers in support of it, by asking for their grounds of their refusal of the Government's offer, and any influence labor leaders who are outside the orbit of the actual conflict may be able to exert on disputant, seems for the moment to be the remaining slender thread upon which industrial peace hangs. That such an attempt at mediation will continue and that there are still two days before the general strike becomes operative, are the only hopeful signs. After the receipt of the announcement of the Triple Alliance that its members would be called from their work Friday night, Premier Lloyd George sent the following reply to the Alliance:

"Dear Mr. Thomas, General Secretary of Railway Union, and Mr. Williams, Secretary of Transport Workers' Federation:
"I am in receipt of your letter. The decision you report is a grave one. You threaten Friday night to dislocate the whole of the transport services of this country so essential to the life of the nation. I should like to know the grounds on which you are determined to inflict such a serious blow on your fellow countrymen. Yours faithfully, (Signed) LLOYD GEORGE."

The Triple Alliance sat until a late hour to-night and it was decided to send a reply to the Premier's letter on Thursday morning, when the deliberations of the Triple Alliance are resumed. The manifesto issued by the Miners' Federation to-night seems to render any possibility of renewed negotiations hopeless, apart from such yielding on the side of the government, as the miners themselves say they can hardly expect. The government yesterday met the miners half way by agreeing to give such financial assistance as would be necessary to start regulation of wages on national basis. The miners, however, insisted on the acceptance also of the pooling of profits, which the government throughout has declared to be impossible. This irreconcilable attitude is depriving the miners of any support in the press and apparently is tending to alienate the sympathy of a large section of the public, who had been impressed during the course of the dispute with the justice of the miners' claims for greater consideration than the owners had given in their recent wage offers. There is still some question as to whether a strike of all members of the Triple Alliance is possible. According to the constitution of the respective sections of the railways may be called upon to strike without ballot, but the transport workers are required to take a ballot before a strike is called. A manifesto issued late to-night by Senator Borah at the last session, but which failed of action by the Senate. Senator Kellogg said an examination of the documents involved had convinced him that the United States did not investigate the Panama revolution and had a perfect right to recognize Panama and enter into a treaty for the Canal concession. The title of the United States of the Canal, he said, "is good in law and morals, yet after a lapse of twenty years we are asked to make reparations to Colombia for taking Panama."

PREVENT Skin Troubles by Daily Use of Cuticura
Make Cuticura Soap and Ointment your every-day toilet preparations. Bathe with the Soap and hot water on rising and retiring, using plenty of Soap, best applied with the hands. Smear any signs of pimples, redness or roughness with the Ointment and let it remain five minutes before bathing. Finally dust on a few grains of the exquisitely perfumed Cuticura Talcum, it takes the place of other perfumes for the skin.
Beware of cheap imitations. Sold throughout the Dominion, Canadian Depot: London, Ontario, 246 St. Paul St. W. Montreal, Quebec, 100 St. James St. W. Cuticura Soap shows red lines.

PROCLAIMS MARTIAL LAW.
ATHENS, April 13. With the intention of curbing the newspapers who have been the Government, Parliament has voted a partial application of martial law.

THE COLUMBIAN TREATY.
WASHINGTON, April 13. Launching a fight against the 25 million dollar Colombian treaty, Senator Kellogg, Republican, Minnesota, told the Senate to-day that the ratification of the pact would "place a stain upon the name and fame" of Theodore Roosevelt and would acknowledge that the United States "wronged" Colombia, violating her rights and are now willing to make reparation "therefor." The resolutions are similar to those introduced by Senator Borah at the last session, but which failed of action by the Senate. Senator Kellogg said an examination of the documents involved had convinced him that the United States did not investigate the Panama revolution and had a perfect right to recognize Panama and enter into a treaty for the Canal concession. The title of the United States of the Canal, he said, "is good in law and morals, yet after a lapse of twenty years we are asked to make reparations to Colombia for taking Panama."

SEAMEN AGAINST STRIKE.
LONDON, April 13. About fifty per cent. of members of the Seamen's and Firemen's Union, a member of the Triple Alliance, which is taking a ballot on the question of striking, have thus far cast their votes and President Havelock Wilson of the Union announced this afternoon that a majority of those who had voted were against a strike. The Cardiff branch of the Union, one of its most important branches, voted two hundred and sixty-six for and five hundred against a strike.

Montreal Man Declares He Was In Bad Shape Before He Got Tanlac But Feels Fine Now.
Day after day one interesting statement after another is being made by Montreal people about Tanlac. Among the latest to come forward and testify to remarkable benefits received from the use of the medicine is Zenon Tremblay who lives at 2041 DeLarocque St. He says: "I don't believe anybody ever suffered worse from indigestion than I did. I had acute attacks that were so violent I would not get over the suffering they caused for several days. It's a wonder I ever survived. I lost my appetite just through dread of the awful agony I knew would result if I ate what I wanted. My nerves got keyed up to such a high pitch I was restless day and night. I was going down hill fast and not to where I couldn't eat, couldn't sleep and couldn't work to do any good. "I tried everything I heard of but Tanlac was the only thing that ever helped me. It benefited me in every way, just took hold of me and made me feel like a different man. I am eating, sleeping and working better than I did even before that awful stomach trouble came on. I'm brimful of energy now, and enjoying life as I haven't done for many a day. I had a wonderful medicine and I wish I had the time to go out and tell everybody who has stomach trouble to try it once and get Tanlac, the greatest medicine ever made."

COURTING U.S. FAVOUR.
OFFICIALS OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS have received instructions, says the Echo de Paris, to reduce their undertakings in order that "the misunderstanding existing with the United States may not be widened."

NAVAL PRIZE MONEY.
Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—Please allow me space to reply to a letter which appeared in this morning's News under the heading "Naval Men's Money" and signed ex-Reservist. I wish to inform that gentleman that he is in error when he says that the Naval Prize Money has been taken over by the Nid. Government, for I can assure him that no prize money has yet been handed over to the Newfoundland Government. I also wish to inform ex-Reservist that some time ago a committee was appointed to look into the matter of Naval Prize Money and that the said committee is taking the proper procedure. I have no doubt that in due course we shall be paid the Prize Money. Now, Mr. Reservist, I am under the impression that letters such as yours, appearing in the public press, will not benefit us any. You see your letter is more of a demand than a request, and I think a request would receive more consideration by the Government. Of course if our request does not receive the proper consideration, then it is up to us to demand. Demand as a body, not as one man, but really I don't think that will be necessary. Thanking you for space, Sir, I am, Yours truly,
JOHN RODGERS, ex-Skipper R.N.R.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94 PER CENT. AIR. Beats Electric or Gas.
A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas, or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal-oil). The inventor T. W. Johnson, 246 Craig St. West, Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

"REG'LAR FELLERS"
To-night at Canon Wood Hall one hundred members of the Llewellyn Club will sit down to a Flipper Supper. The hour is set at 8 o'clock. The Rev. I. W. Williamson will be present as a guest and will deliver an address on man's work in Canada, United States and England.

Where the Money Goes.

In answer to Capt. Lewis' question on Order Paper, dated April 13, 1921, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries stated that "no person has been appointed in succession to Mr. J. R. Goodison, but it is the intention of the Department to make recommendation that this position be cancelled and that two practical men be appointed to perform the duties of Inspector while engaged in visiting the Lighthouses and Fog Alarms, one to act North, the other West. In this way greater service can be obtained for the better management of the Lighthouse Service. The Secretary, Mr. Rogerson, will take over the clerical work formerly performed by the Inspector without additional salary."

A BONANZA FOR THE LAWYERS.
Sir Michael Cashin's question as to the lawyers employed by the Colony in connection with the Labrador Boundary question elicited a startling reply from the Minister of Justice yesterday. No less than eight legal gentlemen are engaged to look after this case in behalf of this country, but nobody outside of the Government knows why. Our case was fully prepared by the late Mr. M. W. Furlong, K.C., and a firm of solicitors beside Sir John Simon is all that should be necessary to handle it now. It looks as if the Colony might be mulcted in lawyers' fees for more than the whole strip of Labrador is worth. So far ten thousand dollars have been paid out, $2,500 each to the Minister of Justice and the Prime Minister, though what the latter did to earn the money is a mystery, and $10,000 to Burn and Berridge for counsel fees, printing and other expenses. The legal lights on the case in addition to those just mentioned are Sir John Simon, K.C., Mr. Barrington Ward, K.C., Mr. W. F. Moncton, Lord Morris and Mr. Victor Gordon.

QUESTIONS OF MOMENT.
Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—If Premier Squires thinks that he is going to have an expedition to England at the public expense, let me leave the affairs of this country in the hands of "Boss" Coaker again there is another thing coming to him. After yesterday's outburst of public indignation, the Government must indeed be blind if they do not see the handwriting on the wall against their misdeeds. I notice that President Coaker has started to write another diary. The public is sick of such trash and if he wants to tell his followers a lot of "bull," let him circulate them as he has proven himself well able to do; but so long as he is writing diaries let him answer these questions:—
(1) How is it that the Nova Scotians with no regulations have sold all their last year's catch of codfish while we have half of ours unsold?
(2) How is it that the Norwegians who have no regulations or fixed prices, have sold not only all their last year's catch, but the three previous years catch they had put in cold storage?
(3) How is it we have only sold about 9,000 quintals of codfish to date in Brazil, against 87,000 last year?
(4) Who is going to supply the fish-ermen to catch fish this year if the merchants cannot do it? Will he do so, or does he mean to take the money out of the Savings Banks to do so?
These are some of the questions the people want answered and Mr. Coaker would do well to give heed to them.
Yours truly,
ENQUIRER.

"Ruddigore".
The Opera, which is being produced this week at the Casino, is the latest and greatest musical and comic triumph. St. John's should certainly feel proud of its histrionic talent and direction. On all sides can be heard to-day, "Mr. Hutton's greatest achievement." As an Opera of varied scenes it cannot be excelled. One is entranced by the harmonies and finish of the choruses. The solos, duets, trios and quartets bespeak careful training and comprehensive repertoire. What more pleasant than a first hearing of "Ruddigore" at the Casino? A second and a third. The scenic effects are charming; the costuming delightful. Mr. D. Carroll's paintings of the Baronets are a splendid production. With the exception of the Baronets, the costumes are local, being designed, and for the most part made, by Mesdames J. Warren and C. J. Cox. The lovely Gavotte was taught by Mrs. J. Cleary. The "Ladies" wigs are the handiwork of Mrs. W. James. Last night's production was wonderful. The sailor's "heart and hornpipe" are the talk of the town. Robin played a great part in both acts. Sir Despard thrilled the crowd, while Adam was truly benign. Sir Roderick entranced the audience by his solo, and long after the Opera is over the duet between himself and the stern, yet gentle, Hannah will be remembered. Rose Maybud's name is no misnomer, and Mad Margaret is "fully alive to her awful situation." The "wedged bridesmaids" were ever on the alert. The ghost scene must be witnessed to be appreciated; words fail to describe. The Opera will be repeated to-night and Friday. On Saturday there will be a matinee.

Time for Public Action.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—After listening to a statement of the country's affairs as presented by Sir Michael Cashin in the Legislature yesterday afternoon, I cannot resist the impulse that prompts me to throw out the suggestion, or rather appeal, to some public citizen or citizens who have the interest of our country at heart to once initiate a movement, having for its object the ousting from power of that rotten mass of illiterate, ignorant, inefficient bunglers, whose Bolshevik methods and blundering incompetence is driving this country on the rocks of financial and commercial disaster.
The fact that this country now needs a leader to pilot her through the turbulent waters, whose perilous waves are threatening her destruction cannot be gainsaid, and on every side is convincing evidence of the inefficiency and incompetence of the present wordless and worthless administration. Nothing but ill-luck and impending ruin has followed in the wake of their obnoxious policies, which have been launched with seemingly preconceived determination to effect the extinction of the country's resources and eventually her destruction. When in the general and subsequent bye-elections of 1919-20 Sir Michael Cashin and his able followers vaticinated the annihilation of Newfoundland under the Squires-Coaker regime as then made known to the country, and with the wisdom and sagacity that has characterized their public careers portrayed the precise conditions that now exist and explained the impossibility of carrying to a successful issue the conglomeration of reforms or rather catch-cries outlined in the exhaustive manifesto of Hon. R. A. Squires, they were denounced by the Squiresites for using unfair tactics, but conditions and hard cold facts have long since verified their predictions whether those Squiresites are willing to admit it or not.
Sir Michael not only on these occasions displayed that wisdom and sagacity that seems his peculiar possession, but demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt that ability, efficiency, sagacity and competence, in which the people of this country would do well to place their fullest confidence, and which is now needed, if she is to survive the present critical period and that which will surely confront her in the immediate future.
Yes, Cashin is the man of the hour, the people's man, a man in whom we can all confide. We need you Cashin. Your country needs you. Can you not devise some means whereby that present conglomeration who now control the destinies of our country may be ousted from power, if not then it is up to the people of this colony, whose trust they have betrayed to prevent them from pursuing any further a policy not only detrimental to the interests of the country, but which is sinking it in the quicksands of destruction.
To you voters of the West Coast, who in all good faith and sincerity recorded in the general and bye-elections of 1919-20, your decision in favour of the present administration I would ask a question, don't you think your representatives have deceived you? Look around you at the present chaotic conditions, industrial depression, financial stagnation, the persistent wanton extravagance that is still going on and your already overburdened country shouldering the colossal debt of $50,000,000. They visit the legislature and witness those men, who in trumpet tones pledged their determination to justify the confidence you placed in them when arraigned for the management of the country's affairs, sitting mute and dumb, a tacit admission of their guilt, and then in all fairness and sincerity answer the above question.
Yes they have deceived us all, but there is still hope. Sometime ago an article appeared in the Telegram under the signature of Mr. Spurrell, under the heading, "Let the Voters Protest." Yes, let them protest, but not by pan, but by public demonstration. The time has arrived for the people of this country to arise in their numbers and record in no uncertain accents their condemnation of this wasting of public funds that is bringing ruin and famine on this country which is now, headed for the rocks but beyond lies the serene bosom that rests on the limitless sea of prosperity in the capable hands of Sir Michael Cashin and his able crew she can yet weather the point. Will she do it; will she ride triumphant those turbulent billows and reach ere long the harbor of prosperity it is yours to decide.
Sincerely yours,
THOS BRADBURY

11,340 Miles Flight.

When Lord Desborough presided a few days ago at a lunch given in the Connaught Rooms by the Imperial Air Fleet Committee to Captain Sir Ross M. Smith and Flight-Lieut. Sir Keith Smith, in commemoration of their 11,340 miles flight from England to Australia—they did it in 135 flying hours—Sir Ross mentioned that all the arrangements for the flight were made in the space of three weeks.

The lesson of the achievement, to his mind, was that it was far more dangerous to cross the street than to fly in these days, and that Australia was the finest country for flying in, both from a climatic and a commercial point of view.

Wonderful Mechanics.

His brother, Sir Keith Smith, modestly attributed the success of the venture to the two mechanics, who, he said, were often frozen stiff and frequently subjected to great strain, but yet invariably took their coats off and attended to the engines before thinking of themselves.

Among those assembled to do the airman honour was Lieut. Malik, who was the first Indian to fly and who was wounded in aerial combat over the lines in France. Commander Maitland of the R-33, was also there, as was Lord Morris, who made a most telling speech, in the course of which he pointed out that last year Germany had started twenty new air services for commercial transport—a warning note.—Daily Mirror.

Brotherhood Lecture.

A mass meeting of men will be held in the auditorium of Gower Street Church on Sunday afternoon next. Rev. I. W. Williamson of Toronto, who is here in the interest of the Brotherhood movement, will deliver an address. An interesting programme is being prepared and it is expected that every man of Gower Street congregation will avail of this opportunity to hear Mr. Williamson explain the work of the organization.

House of Assembly.

APRIL 13.
SIR MICHAEL CASHIN'S SPEECH.

The House met at 2 p.m.

After the presenting of petitions and after notices of question had been given by several members, Sir M. P. Cashin rose to continue his speech on the Address in Reply. Before doing so, however, he drew attention to the questions asked by Messrs. Targett, Jones and Sampson. With reference to that re the insolvent estate of Thos. Smythe, Sir Michael said he was Finance Minister at the time Smythe owed bonds to the Customs. He found Smythe's name behind and he collected the bonds, making Smythe insolvent. Smythe's building was taken over to pay for the $17000 bonds and it is now worth much more. Poor Mr. Targett! Another question was asked by a one-time schoolmaster. He would answer it and it was not likely to bring a blush to his face. He had nothing to dread. Those who asked these questions were merely the fools of others.

Sir Michael then proceeded with his speech on the Address in Reply. He first referred to the Railway. When the House opened last year the Minister of Finance asked the Premier to explain a loan bill he was bringing in connection with the Railway. Why did he do this? Because he refused to bring it in himself. The railway was not kept up to the mark. He did not expect to be saddled with it, however, not two weeks after the House closed.

The railway now in the possession of the Government had been discussed by the Government and they had intended to take it over before the House closed. Why was not the House consulted. He was not surprised to find the Premier mixed up in it, but he was to find the Minister of Justice in it. He read correspondence tabled in reply to a question of his which threw a great deal of light on the subject. Continuing Sir Michael said the taking over of the railway was a matter of sufficient importance to warrant the opening of the House. Why then was it not opened? Was this Responsible Government? All this important work, including the building of freight sheds at St. John's and Port aux Basques was done less than two weeks after the House closed. The railway will be a millstone around the necks of the people of this country for years to come and yet an important matter was not mentioned in the Speech from the Throne. Rolling stock taken over was to be charged to the R.N. Co. with interest at 6% per annum well knowing that that Company was insolvent. That rolling stock should have been manufactured here. It could be done and done well. Men are now walking the streets with nothing to do who could have done it. Was this in keeping with the Premier's manifesto? And today they had a Loan Bill on the statute books which they were afraid to put on the market. How was the Reid Company going to be charged with this rolling stock when that company was insolvent. The Reid Newfoundland Company were clear to-day and stand clear as far as any railway liability is concerned. They have their power, forest lands, street railway, etc., still. The Government came in and gave the Reids a clean sheet after denouncing them in scathing terms. The arrangement between the Reids and the Government stated that the Government would be responsible for all liabilities over $100,000. The Minister of Justice and Marine and Fisheries and the Premier were responsible for this arrangement. He was surprised that the Governor permitted this to be done. The Government spent the surplus left by the late Government, on the railroad, and now when they get Reids to take it back when the year is up? How could they? Reids haven't the money to take it back! The Government was now 2 1/2 millions worse off than they were last year and the railway was still in their hands in no better condition. They could not claim any of the assets of the Reid Co. They could not touch the Dock, the Electric Light Plant, the Street Railway, their lands, their mines or their other property. No, all they could have was their rusty railroad. How were they going to get the Reids to take it back? They couldn't, bar it off and they had to run it at any cost. How were they going to do it with the surplus gone and the earning power gone? The Government could not pursue their old tactics of settling the difficulty outside the House. He expressed great surprise at the Minister of Justice being mixed up in the Railway affair. He had thought the Hon. Minister was a stronger man than he had turned out to be. Here they were now, with a railway on their hands and not one cent of money to pay for it. On the 30th June next the Government would not be able to pay the interest on the loan due if they paid their other bills. The cute investors were now selling their Newfoundland debentures at a loss. Here were the Government in a pitiful state. He pitied the leaders. He did not mind those who did not know any better. They were to-day bankrupt. The Bank Crash was a Christmas Day compared to present conditions. To-day they owed $50,000,000 while the year of the crash only $10,000,000 was owed. The interest alone now was 2 1/2 millions of dollars. When the crash came it was the Water Street merchant who went, now it would be the fishermen too! Would the Premier tell the story of what he left behind

Mrs. William Hutchinson, who Suffered for Years, Tells How She Was Benefited by Dodd's Kidney Pills

(Bass River Point, N.B., April 13th.—Special.)—I can't speak too highly of Dodd's Kidney Pills. So says Mrs. William Hutchinson, a highly respected resident here. Nor is Mrs. Hutchinson slow to give the reason why she praises the old reliable Canadian kidney remedy.

"I had a sore back for years and could not get anything to help me," she states. "Some one advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I took fourteen boxes and I can say with pleasure I am benefited. I never feel my back now and I do all my own work."

Women all over Canada use and praise Dodd's Kidney Pills. If you don't know the reason why, ask your neighbors about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The Final Rites.

FUNERAL OF ANTHONY McGRATH.

A Telegram reporter was yesterday privileged to meet Sergeant Campbell of the U.S. Army, who accompanied the body of Pte. Anthony McGrath, late A.E.F., to St. John's as a representative of the U.S. Government, and who also went with the corpse as far as Placentia. Sergt. Campbell told our representative that there was a splendid turnout of the people of Placentia to do honour to the first of Newfoundland's heroic dead to be returned to native soil. The arrangements were very complete and a number of returned soldiers, many of whom joined the train en route to Placentia, took charge of the proceedings. Sergt. Collins of the Royal Nfld. Regt. being at their head. The body was taken across the Gut on a motor boat and was then conveyed to the cemetery at Patrick's Cove. The Star of the Sea and the three Placentia societies, and nearly all the people of Placentia participated in the ceremonies in that place. Sergt. Campbell said that already the bodies of 28,000 American soldiers had been repatriated from France and that by Oct. 1st of the present year, 12 or 13 thousand more will have been brought back. Only when at the request of parents are the bodies returned. Sergt. Campbell is a splendid specimen of the American soldier. For 2 1/2 years before America entered the war he was in the regulars and upon the outbreak of hostilities he received a commission in the Flying Corps, in which branch of the service he continued until the Armistice, when he reverted to the rank of sergeant in the regulars again. This was his first visit to St. John's and he hopes it will not be his last. During his short stay here he has made many friends, who will all be sorry to have him go. He leaves for home by Sunday's express.

Eye-glass Insurance.

Eye-glasses are a most fragile possession, yet the people of Newfoundland are wearing well over $100,000 worth of lenses without protection against breakage. Why not insure yours to-day? You will feel glad instead of miserable when you break a lens. Try it. H. B. Thomson, Opt.D., C.D., Optometrist and Optician, 338 Duckworth Street, near Beck's Cove, City.

Notorious Irish Landowner.

A member of the ancient and distinguished Norman-Irish family of de Burgh, the Marquis of Clanricarde died in London in his 84th year on April 13, 1916. He was born on December 15, 1832, the second son of the first Marquis, a new creation, who was British Ambassador in St. Petersburg, and Lord Privy Seal; his mother being the daughter of Geo. Canning, Prime Minister in 1827. In his early days he was in the diplomatic service, and was a poor man until he inherited some £200,000 from his uncle, Earl Canning, the first Viceroy of India. On the death of his brother, Lord Dunkelin, he became heir to the marquise and succeeded him as Liberal member for Galway. It was Lord Dunkelin who moved the amendment to Gladstone's Reform Bill in 1867, which led to the victory of the Adullamites and gave Disraeli his chance to "dish the Whigs." The late peer retired from Parliament in 1871 as a protest against Gladstone's Irish land legislation. Succeeding his father in 1874, Lord Clanricarde inherited estates in County Galway to the extent of 50,000 acres, and it was said of him that he never set foot on the property except when he attended his father's funeral, and was in Ireland himself only once afterwards. As a landlord Lord Clanricarde was the most notorious in Ireland. His estates, almost through the whole course of his occupation, were the scenes of evictions, turmoil and bloodshed. One of his agents and several of his employees were assassinated, and it required a whole army of occupation to protect the settlers whom he introduced. He never made any attempt at a compromise. Ultimately, legislation, especially aimed at him, was introduced into Parliament, with a view to the compulsory acquisition and division of his estates. BLEEDING GUMS.
Do your gums bleed? Do you suffer from Pyorrhea? Have you abscesses on your teeth? Listen! Pus pockets form at the roots of these teeth and poison the whole system by the discharge of virulent germs. Many headaches are due to this gradual poisoning; joint troubles, such as rheumatism, have been traced to this source; heart affections, often serious, follow this so-called "rheumatism." Good teeth are priceless, but a tooth with a pus pocket at its root is almost as vicious as a cancer. Pyorrhea is not painful, usually, and one is apt to let it go unnoticed. Watch for these bleeding gums, they are your warning.

The St. John's Octette.

It is anticipated that the concert by the St. John's Octette, which takes place in the College Hall on St. George's night will attract a very large audience. The Octette is composed of young men prominent in musical circles and the personnel, as follows, is sufficient to show that a treat is in store for music lovers.

- 1st Tenor—Messrs. Karl Trapnell and Will Herder.
 - 2nd Tenor—Messrs. Arthur Williams and Harold Foster.
 - 1st Bass—Messrs. Fred Rugles and Ernest Fox.
 - 2nd Bass—Messrs. W. Lloyd Woods and W. A. Tucker.
 - Conductor—Mr. Gordon Christian, L.R.A.M.
- The death of good concerted singing has been keenly felt for years past, and it is to be hoped that this one sincere effort to supply the demand, is only a forerunner of many more concerts of a like nature.

THOMAS SINNOTT, KILBRIDE.

There passed away, last evening, at Kilbride, after an illness of short duration, a most estimable young man of the parish, in the person of Thomas Sinnott, youngest son of Alice and the late William Sinnott. At the beginning of the year deceased contracted a severe cold, which later developed to pleuro-pneumonia, and in spite of medical skill, the loving care of mother and sisters and friends, yesterday evening, fortified with the rites of Holy Church and peacefully resigned, passed to his reward. The deceased was a general favorite as he possessed a bright, cheerful disposition and a kindness of heart, which endeared him to all. In the home circle he will be greatly missed, and he leaves to mourn a mother, step-father, 2 brothers, 5 sisters, 2 step-brothers, 3 step-sisters, one of whom is a religious of St. Mary's Academy, Little Rock, Ark., to all of whom the Telegram extends its sympathy.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

FIRST THE DEBT, THEN THE GIFT

It's much more fun, isn't it, to make a gift than to pay a debt.

One gets gratitude for making gifts, and we do all love gratitude—some of us, in fact, are really greedy in our appetite for it.

But when you come right down to it, making gifts doesn't take the place of paying debts, does it? And yet how often one finds people who seem to feel that it does!

Here is the sort of thing I mean. I know a girl who considers herself, and is generally considered, very generous. She is a young business woman getting an excellent salary and she makes her mother and father very beautiful presents on birthdays and on Christmas, and she has twice taken her mother on lovely vacation trips.

Is She Generous?

I always admired this girl until it happened to find out a certain fact. Although her salary is as large as that which her father receives and on which he runs the pleasant home in which she has the largest, pleasant room, she does not pay a cent toward the expenses of that home! Why not? Well, I don't know. I imagine that she wasn't getting very much money when she started and that her father didn't like to have her pay board. But in the meantime her salary has gone up until it must practically equal his, and the expenses of the home have, of course, grown much larger.

Better at Giving Than Paying.

A friend of mine, left a widow with two small children, has begun to do sewing for several families in my neighborhood. I heard one of the women for whom she works, telling how she had given her some of her children's clothes, which were outgrown rather than outworn, and which I thought must mean a great deal to her. Yet when I asked her whom she liked the best of the women she worked for, she did not name this one. I found out the reason afterwards. The woman gave her the pretty clothes, but she also had a way of frequently letting her do an extra hour's work, and then forgetting to pay for it. And the seamstress, on account of the gifts, could not complain. In other words, she was generous but not just. She was better at making gifts than paying debts.

First the foundation, then the house—first the debt, then the gift. It is the only way to build if you want to build right.

Every home-made article you buy means a day's work for a NEWFOUNDLAND workman.

To Test the Will.

Two men were arguing in their club. One, a fellow of ineffable conceit, was boring everybody with boasting of his will, maintaining with much violence that his will was stronger than that of anybody's present. "You are wrong here," said one of the gentlemen, "and I will prove it. Go and stand in that corner, and I will have you out of it before I have commanded you the second time." The smart one stood in the corner and the quiet one said: "Come out of that corner. The other grinned and shook his head. The quiet man sat down and looked at him steadily. Five minutes passed and then the smart man said with a sneer: "Don't you think you'd better give it up? I don't feel any influence at all, and I can't stand here all the evening." "Oh, as to that," replied the quiet man, "there's no hurry. I am perfectly comfortable. You recollect, that there's no time limit; you are simply to come out before I ask you twice. And as I don't intend to ask you again until a week from to-day in order to give your strong will a fair and vigorous trial, we might as well take it easily." The man with the iron resolution sneaked out of the corner and the incident was declared closed.

A Wonder of Wonders

HOW THE TELEPHONE FIRST STARTED THE WORLD.

How Dom Pedro, emperor of Brazil, spoke the word that brought respectful consideration to the telephone, the unknown device of an obscure teacher, when shown for the first time at the Philadelphia Exposition of 1876, is told in Power Plant Engineering, Chicago, by F. H. Sweet.

The Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia opened its doors exactly two months after the telephone had learned to talk.

Mr. Sweet goes on to say: "Bell had the intention of going to the Centennial himself. He was too poor. For his three or four years of inventing he had received nothing as yet—nothing but his patent.

"But one Friday afternoon, toward the end of June, his sweetheart, Mabel Hubbard, was taking the train for the Centennial; and he went to the depot to say good-bye. Here Miss Hubbard learned for the first time that Bell was not to go. She coaxed and pleaded without effect. Then as the train was starting, leaving Bell on the platform, the affectionate young girl could no longer control her feelings and was overcome by a passion of tears. At this the susceptible Bell, without ticket or baggage, dashed after the moving train and sprang aboard.

"As it happened, his impromptu trip to the Centennial proved to be one of the most timely acts of his life. On the following Sunday afternoon the judges were to make a special tour of inspection, and Mr. Hubbard, after much trouble, had obtained a promise that they would spend a few minutes examining Bell's telephone. By this time it had been on exhibition for more than six weeks without attracting the serious attention of anybody.

"When Sunday afternoon arrived Bell was at his little table, nervous, yet confident. But hour after hour went by, and the judges did not arrive. They had many wonders to examine. First was the electric light, and the first grain binder, and the musical telegraph of Elisha Gray, and the marvellous exhibit of printing photographs shown by the Western Union Company.

By the time they came to Bell's table, every man in the party was hot, tired and hungry. One took up a telephone receiver, looked at it blankly, and put it down again. He did not even place it to his ear. Another judge made a slighting remark which raised a laugh at Bell's expense—such an incident as would make a chapter in "The Arabian Nights' Entertainments."

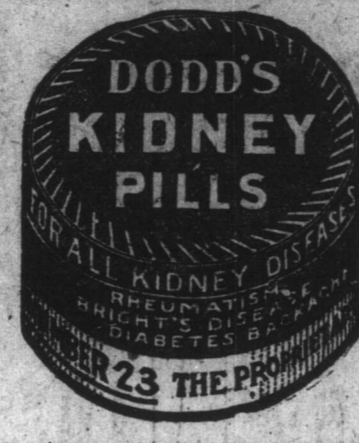

"Accompanied by his wife, the Empress Theresa, and by a bevy of courtiers, the Emperor of Brazil, Dom Pedro de Alcantara, walked into the room, advanced with both hands outstretched to the bewildered Bell and exclaimed, "Prof. Bell, I am delighted to see you again."

The judges at once forgot the heat and the fatigue and the hunger. Who was this young inventor, with the pale complexion and the black eyes, that he should be the friend of the emperor? For this moment even Bell himself had forgotten that Dom Pedro had once visited Bell's class of deaf-mutes at Boston University.

"A wire had been strung from one end of the room to the other, and while Bell went to the transmitter, Dom Pedro took up the receiver and placed it to his ear. It was a moment of tense expectancy. The emperor with a dramatic gesture, raised his head from the receiver and exclaimed with a look of amazement: "My God—it talks!"

"Next came to the receiver the oldest scientist in the group, the venerable Joseph Henry, whose encouragement to Bell had been so timely. One of the bystanders said nobody could forget the look of awe that came into his face as he heard the iron disc talking with a human voice.

"Then came William Thomson, later known as Lord Kelvin. It was fitting that he should have been there; for he was the foremost electrical scientist at that time in the world and had been engineer for the first Atlantic cable. He listened, then had his wife placed at the other end of the wire, to be sure, and learned what even he had not known before, that a solid metallic body could turn up from the air all the countless varieties of vibration produced by speech, and that these vibrations could be carried along a wire and reproduced exactly by a second metallic body. He nodded his head solemnly as he rose from the receiver. "It does speak," he said emphatically. "It is the most wonderful thing I have seen in America."

"Henry and Thomson, the great masters of electrical magic, as judges, gave Bell a certificate of award. Mr. Bell has achieved a result of transcendental scientific interest," wrote William Thompson. "I heard it speak distinctly several sentences. I was astonished and delighted. It is the greatest marvel hitherto achieved by the electric telegraph."

"Thus it happened that the crude little instrument that had been tacked into an out-of-the-way corner became the star of the Centennial—the wonder of wonders."

THE WISE PHYSICIAN.

I had a lot of pimples upon my face, my life was full of care, and I took yards and simples and bitters by the jug. My blood was out of order, my liver was full of care, and I was near the border of bottomless despair. And many a learned physician prescribed their capsules gray; alas, alas, conditions grew punier every day. And then I sought a healer who just had come to town, and many a boasting speliater proclaimed his wide renown. Not silly, trifling question was by this doctor sprung, concerning my digestion, my liver or my lungs. He said, "You're always fussing with kinks, who lives next door; you two are roundly cursing each other, ever more. Unless you live serenely your kinks I cannot cure; so long you've acted meanly it's made your blood impure. For giving way to passion gives rise to many ills, and you, in angry fashion, keep kicking o'er the thrills. Go home and quit expounding the riot act to Jinks, and health and peace abounding will soon remove your kinks." His counsel, wisely given, I took, and saved my life, and from my head were driven all thoughts of hate and strife; and now glad smiles and dimples are strung around my map, where once unseemly pimples were prone to overlap.

Names and Phrases.

In discussing the origin of names from occupations an interesting point crops up. A man might have been a cooper and his son a weaver, why was the family known as coopers and not weavers? Just at what point did the appellation crystallize into a name? Careful study has failed to clear up this point.

In older days there was a merchant who would buy his stores in the cheapest market, load them into a wagon and drive about the country selling where he could. He was known as a chapman and the modern name is derived from that word. As the merchant's chief stock in trade was a jovial personality the word chap has long meant a jolly fellow.

Another important merchant was the man who did your buying for you. In those days there were no mail-order houses nor was there such a thing as running into town to do your shopping. So there was evolved a professional shopper who made it his business to buy what you needed. He was known as a packer, packere, or pakeman and from these words the modern names resembling them have sprung.

Hunting with a falcon was the chief sport of mediæval England and those who trained the birds or handled them were known as falconers from which is derived our modern falconer with its variations.

The man who spells his name with a "y" and a "d" is not the bombastic Smith that many suppose, the name originally spelled in this manner. Gold and silver smiths, of course, were men who worked in those metals; brownsmith was a man who worked in brown; a greensmith worked in lead. The work name Nasmith is thought to be derived from nail-smith.

Parnell's Widow.

If we rightly remember Charles Stewart Parnell, one of the greatest popular leaders who ever appeared in the United Kingdom, had just recently secured his legal triumph against the "Times" in 1890 when the tragedy of his life loomed up, the tragedy which destroyed him and Ireland's hopes. Accusations against him were made by Captain O'Shea, a divorce suit followed and the thunderbolt fell. Not many days ago the "woman in the case" passed away "unwept, unhonored and unsung." It seems that for years there had been a guilty acquaintance between Parnell and Mrs. O'Shea, apparently unsuspected by anyone, but an unexpected return home of the husband resulted in the discovery of the guilt. When the undefended divorce was granted, Parnell and the woman married, and in spite of Mr. Gladstone's declaration, the Irish Leader made a fight to retain the leadership but only a small body would follow him, and within a year he was in his grave. His widow passed into obscurity and only emerged from thence a few years ago to publish a book of autobiography in which she gave the details of the celebrated liaison which still further blackened the dead and revealed herself in a most unfavorable light. In fact it is doubtful if any parallel to this book has ever been published, at least by a woman. Parnell's death, of course, dashed the hopes for early Home Rule and threw matters back to the place they stood fifty years before. In 1893, two years after Parnell's death, Mr. Gladstone put his second bill through the House of Commons only to have it thrown out by an immense majority in the Lords. The next bill was passed in 1914 by Mr. Asquith after the teeth of the Lords had been drawn by the Veto Act of 1911.—Acadian Recorder.

According to a report from Bruenn, a most important discovery was made near Prarau, Moravia, of a famous cave of the stone age estimated to be eighty thousand years old. The cave contained 20 skeletons of the family of a mammoth aunter and near by the remains of more than one thousand mammoths and many thousands of mammoth teeth carefully sorted by the hunter. Some forty thousand utensils of various materials were found by a number of which were well made, showing a considerable degree of culture.

THE REWARD.
I'm glad I lived the winter through.
I'm glad that I am here to see
The green returning to the tree,
The blue skies bending overhead,
The tulips nodding where I tread,
To hear the robins "howdy do!"
And whistle back to them, as though
I'd never known a touch of snow.

I'm glad I lived the winter through.
I'm glad I had the strength to bear
The cold, gray days with all their care,
And skies would wear their fairest
blue,
For here is springtime at the door,
With all the joys worth living for.

Winter is like a time of care,
The days of doubt are cold and long,
We falter when we should be strong,
Yet if we keep the faith, some day
The trouble clouds will pass away
And life her prettiest garb will wear,
And we shall say when skies grow
blue,
We're glad we've lived our trouble through.

Poultry Association Notes.

Through an oversight the result of the March meeting has not been reported. An attempt to boost poultry raising in an effort to supply our own needs was hinted at during the evening and a first step in that direction was to give ladies an opportunity to become members of the Association. It was thought that with the new spirit and vigor that ladies could bring, a new interest and rivalry in poultry raising would occur and that the feature of the next exhibition would be the part women will supply that a fair proportion of the prizes will be taken home by the now prospective members. Admission fee to the Association is but two dollars for the year, afterwards one dollar is the subscription fee annually. Ladies wishing to become members will communicate with the Secretary, Mr. Stan White, or any other member of the Association would appreciate the honor of proposing a lady membership.

The feature of the meeting was an address on Poultry raising given by an enthusiastic breeder and exhibitor, Mr. W. R. Butler. His lengthy address was teeming with information—hand information—acquired over experience of 10 years. During that time he has been winner of many cups and ribbons. An interesting bit of his poultry talk was his description of the miniature poultry yard at the back of his home on Leslie Street, in which he keeps birds enough to give him a half dozen eggs per day. Butler's many practical hints were real helpful and much appreciated by the members present who are looking forward to hearing from him again.

The next speaker gave a short address on extension of the poultry business in Newfoundland. He began pointing out that poultry culture in extensive lines began in France in 1893 and 100 years later was followed in England. It was next taken up by America at Kingston, Rhode Island, 1894. That was the real beginning. America. It was found, however, to be successful on an enormous scale, was necessary to know your hen on the egg up in every way; its habits, nests, health necessities, feed and varieties of early market poultry. The United States Government undertook to first learn to know the hen and when research in that direction was sufficiently complete it started a propaganda to boost the poultry business which has now attained a value of many millions of dollars. The speaker also pointed out that Canada had her provinces were doing in this line. He next told the Association that whilst they were doing good work in their small way, the position attained was really the work of only a very few members and that if any of these dropped out the Association and the prospect of improvement would be poor.

The importation of poultry and eggs last year amounted to $145,345.00. The speaker invited criticism of his remarks and asked for suggestions in his effort to further boost the poultry work. A number of speakers followed and as the time was getting late, the Chairman asked the speaker on "Boosting Poultry" to again address the Association at next meeting which took place on Monday night last in the Board of Trade Rooms. The meeting was most enthusiastic and the speaker gave a very good hearing. He gave further information as to how the poultry business was boosted in other countries and made suggestions as to how greater interest could be developed here and invited support and suggestions from the members. A considerable discussion followed of the utmost interest to poultry men with the result that a publicity and a propaganda committee was appointed which will meet at an early date. The meeting adjourned at 11 p.m.

Obituary.

MICHAEL MAHONEY, JR.
There passed peacefully away after a long and lingering illness, at his home in St. Brigid's, on Easter Tuesday morning, the soul of Michael Mahoney, Jr. in the 29th year of his age, leaving a father, mother, four brothers, and one sister, to mourn the loss of a dutiful son and affectionate brother. One brother served in the Great War with the Canadian Red Cross, and on his way home, after the armistice was signed, met with a unfortunate accident in a railway collision in France, whereby both his feet had to be amputated. He is still in hospital in Canada. Mikey, as he was familiarly known, suffered much, but always bore his cross without a murmur, and with resignation to God's Will, and in spite of all his sufferings remained bright and cheerful until the end.

Now the laborer's task is done,
Now his work is o'er;
We hope to meet again
On that Eternal Shore.
To the sorrowing family the writer offers his heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of sorrow. May his soul rest in peace.

Huntley Refloated.

AND IS BEING TOWED TO PORT.

The four-masted auxiliary schooner Huntley, which was reported in yesterday's Telegram as having struck Petty Harbor Motion, on Tuesday, in a dense fog, refloated yesterday and is now being towed to port by the tug Ingraham. The Huntley left Turkey Island, B.W.L., on March 17th, and was making a good trip when she met with disaster. When making the coast the vessel encountered thick fog and for the past ten days Capt. King has been running on dead reckoning, being unable to get the sun, and did not know he was so near the land till his vessel struck. The Huntley's engines were running at the time and on being reversed the vessel refloated and an examination being made it was found that she was seriously damaged and began to settle by the head. The crew immediately made preparations for leaving the sinking vessel and the ship's boats were launched and the men put whatever belongings they could save into them and started to row for the land. At 4 p.m. the Huntley sank, and owing to the fog the men were unable to get their bearings and it was 7 p.m. before they finally reached the shore, landing at Jay Bulls. The crew remained there till early yesterday morning, when they left for St. John's in the ship's motor boat, arriving here at 1 p.m. The tug Ingraham was dispatched to the scene of the wreck yesterday morning, and meeting the Huntley's motor boat near Cape Spear, Capt. King transferred to the tug and proceeded to Petty Harbor. At 7 p.m. yesterday Messrs. Teesler & Co. received a message from Petty Har. stating the Huntley was again afloat, and that the Ingraham had the ship in tow and was taking her to port. The Huntley was then on her beam ends. Cape Spear and Maddox Cove also reported the vessel as being afloat and the Ingraham should reach here with her early to-day. The vessel's salt cargo has evidently been washed out of the hull, causing her to come to the surface. The Huntley is practically a new vessel, built three years ago and was amongst the best of our local fleet. The ship is managed by Messrs. Teesler & Co. and is partly covered by insurance.

An Incident of the "Titanic" Disaster.

Of all the recitals of personal adventure in the "Titanic" shipping disaster on April 14, 1912, that of Colonel Gracie, of the United States Army, who jumped from the topmost deck of the "Titanic" when she sank and was sucked down with her, is the most extraordinary. As the ship was sinking the people were driven to the topmost deck. Colonel Gracie found himself alone after the wave which swept the liner just before the final plunge. By great good fortune he had managed to grasp the brass railing, and he hung on with might and main but when the ship went down he was forced to let go. He was swirled round and round for what seemed to be an interminable time, but eventually came to the surface unhurt, and managed to seize a wooden grating that was floating near by. When he recovered his breath he discovered a large canvas and cork raft which had floated up, and saw a man struggling towards it from some wreckage to which he had clung. The two men then began the work of rescuing those who had jumped into the sea, and were foundering in the waters, when dawn broke. Thirty of them were collected on the raft, which sank with their weight till they stood knee deep in water. Men were still swimming round, and as one died on the raft and the body was dropped on-board, another was taken on the raft in his place. They stood back to back, packed in columns two deep, for the longest and most terrible hours they had ever spent, listening to the shrieks of the drowning victims round them. Even when it was whispered on the raft that a steamer was approaching, those whose faces were turned away from it, dared not turn round to look for fear they would disturb the balance. Those who passed through that perilous night said that the sea seemed to be strewn with dead bodies with lifebelts round them. It was the most terrible shipwreck of modern times.

Anglo-American Telegraph Company.

Effective commencing April 9, deferred Cable Service is reinstated to Great Britain and Ireland, and the principal countries in Europe, Africa, Asia, Dutch East Indies, Australasia (rate for Australasia is that via Eastern and Indo only), Argentine, Bolivia, Chile, Paraguay, Peru (except Wireless Stations), Uruguay and Brazil (except Acre District and Amazon River stations). The deferred service will be, on the usual basis of plain language and deferment in favor of full rate messages and the carrying of a prefix LCO, LCD or LCF as the case may be, in all cases including that of Great Britain and Ireland exactly one half the regular or full rate to country of destination.
This valuable service at one half normal rates has not been available since September 1918, when it was necessarily suspended because of the congested condition of the cable system throughout the world. The Anglo-American Telegraph Company and the Western Union have taken advantage of the first opportunity since the war to reinstate this service.
