Lord Cecil's Dilemma

The Picnic

Woodall Forest

CHAPTER XXVII

Captain Frederick was ever at her side, his dark eyes eloquent with something more than mere admiration, but the earl's daughter did not notice this; she felt so safe in the knowledge that she was an engaged woman, and all the world must know it. Long walks, long rides, by road and by water, visits to the theatre, and delightful tete-a-tetes. All these were very pleasant to Captain Frederick, and Gladys accepted his attentions because she liked him, he was so gentle, so kind; she liked him because he had been a friend of Sir Charles Eastings, and said many nice things of the man who was to her a king among his fellows.

So the days lengthened into weeks, and it was arranged that the Elwoods should return to the abbey with the earl's party, to spend Christmas and the holidays.

As yet no one cared to mention Lady Gladys' engagement to Lord Cecil Stanhope, and Lady Elwood was building some pretty castles in the air. Her son had acknowledged to her that he was over head and ears in love with Lady Gladys Howard, and her fondest dream in life was to see her idol happily married.

Where so sweet a wife as the Earl of Swinford's lovely daughter, whose purity of mind had never been tainted by the insidious teachings of the fashionable world. Her dearest wish was for her son to resign his commission in the army. She had a dread of war, for her own loved husband had been stricken in the flower of his manhood.

"I will speak to Lady Gladys," Captain Frederick told her, "before we get to England. I may not find an opportunity there. If she can care for me, then I will see the earl. If she cannot—Well, I shall be off to Egypt again to find something to do!"

He spoke almost fiercely, and a wild light came into his eyes.

"I love her so much, mother, that I can scarcely bear a refusal! I am almost afraid to put it to the touch," he went on. "Yet she is always kind to me; she always seems glad to welcome me; but there is something lacking—something that makes one think that she does not look upon me in the light of a lover."

"Faint heart never won fair lady," his mother smiled, hopefully. She could not think that Lady Gladys could help loving her handsome son, so brave, so debonair!

"My heart is not faint," he laughed, "but I think that it will be broken if she does not learn to love me!"

It was now nearly mid-December, and the earl had been growing thinner and more careworn daily. His hair was nearly white, and there was a drawn look about the mouth that was painful to see. Further complaints of his steward's harshness had reached him, until the rector of the parish had drawn his attention to Collins' glaring injustice and cruelty.

Within a day or so of this, the steward requested his lord to return to the abbey forthwith. If his desire was not obeyed, the result might be unpleasant!

This threat both angered and frightened my lord, and again he vowed that he would face the worst rather than be under the thumb of this unattractive scoundrel.

And while the earl was suffering in silence, and Lady Marcia was planning future dissipation, both at the abbey and in London, poor Gladys was dreading the return home, for to her it meant the unwelcome, the hateful attentions of Lord Stanhope.

She often found herself thinking of Sir Charles Hastings, wondering if the woman he had married had yet claimed him; and then she would murmur the fondest terms of endearment, and kiss the dear letters that he had written to her, for they were ever nearest her heart.

Captain Elwood came upon her unexpectedly a day or two before they were to leave Florence; he saw Gladys press fond kisses upon something attached to a ribbon about her neck, and his heart sank, he knew not why.

"I hope that I am not intruding," he said, gently. His face was flushed a little, and there was a tender light in his eyes.

Gladys smiled back at him, saying: "No, Captain Elwood. I am enjoying the Apennines by moonlight. Is not the scene entrancing!"

He took a seat near her, and for a few minutes they talked upon ordinary subjects, until Captain Frederick could repress himself no longer.

"Lady Gladys," he said, suddenly, "our pleasant talks and walks together will soon be dreams of the past."

There was something in his tones that startled her, and she glanced swiftly up at him. She saw that he was trembling with suppressed emotion—trembling with anxiety—and his handsome face had a look upon it that she had never seen there before.

"Yes, but the remembrance will always be pleasant to me," replied the girl.

"It makes me happy to hear you say this," he whispered; "it makes me very happy. It has been the happiest period of my life. I never knew before what happiness meant."

Gladys did not reply; she was too confused; she was pained, too, for it had dawned upon her that the young soldier loved her!

She attempted to rise, murmuring some excuse, but Captain Frederick suddenly seized one of her hands. He gazed at her with passionate, burning eyes, and cried:

"Oh, Lady Gladys, do not leave me yet. I have something to say to you. Surely you must see that I love you—love you dearer than life—dearer than all the world, besides—I—"

"Oh, Captain Elwood, I am so sorry," faltered Gladys, in real distress. "You must not say these things to me, indeed you must not."

He paused in utter bewilderment for a moment; then he dropped upon one knee before her and sobbed:

"Oh, Gladys, I love you! I love you!"

CHAPTER XXVIII

So that she might better enjoy the beauties of nature and of man's art, Gladys had not rung for lights, but had pushed back the curtains of the deep window, and the room was flooded with the soft beams of a full moon.

"The moon rose over the city—Over the quiet squares, And shone with a glow of pity—On crowded thoroughfares. It smiled on the silent river—With twin-divided streams, That seemed to fade and quiver—Into the land of dreams!"

The domes, the towers, the minarets of beautiful Florence were pale in its silvery light, and away, towering like misty giants, the mountains basked in the mysterious sheen of the moon and stars of the purple sky.

Neither Lady Gladys nor Captain Frederick ever forgot that evening in Florence. As he looked up at her, anguish in his eyes, frenzy in his tones, and cried, "Oh, Gladys, I love you; I love you!" her wondrous beauty was enhanced by the soft moon's beams, until she seemed almost ethereal.

She tried to speak, but her emotion was too great for words, and he continued:

"Do not say that there is no hope; do not look at me in that way! I have loved you, Lady Gladys, from the first moment I beheld you. I offer you no boyish love, but the fond, enduring affection of a man—a love that can never die—a love that encompasses me. Give me but a little hope, and I will wait. To plunge me into despair will be worse than death!"

"Captain Elwood!" gasped Gladys, at length, her eyes luminous with pity. "You must not say these things. You do not know—you do not know!"

"I will say them!" he went on, with fierce vehemence. "I love you, I worship you, and I am not ashamed of it. I am ready to wait for you for years, if need be—unless—unless you prefer some one else to me."

The anguish had returned to his appealing eyes, and Gladys could not resist a sob.

"Only whisper that I am not quite indifferent to you, Gladys," he said, hungrily. "Give me but one little spark of hope. I know that you are young, and it may be that I am taking unfair advantage of you."

U. S. PRESIDENT CONFERS WITH LABOR LEADERS.

Turkish Atrocities to be Investigated--Failure to hear Fog Whistle stranded "Canadian Commander"---Leonard Retains Light-Weight Honors.

PREPARED TENTATIVE PROPOSALS.

WASHINGTON, July 27. Tentative proposals for the settlement of the railroad shopmen's strike were up to-day after a series of conferences between President Harding and the Labour leaders, headed by J. M. Jewell of the Shopmen's Union. It is understood the suggested plan for settlement, the details of which were withheld, would be submitted later to the Executive of the Railroads.

COMMISSION WILL ENQUIRE.

WASHINGTON, July 27. Because of a technical state of war existing between the Allied powers and Turkey, the plan of the British, French, Italian and U.S.A. Governments to jointly investigate alleged Turkish atrocities in Anatolia has been abandoned and an inquiry is to be made instead by an International Commission.

FAILED TO HEAR SIREN.

MONTREAL, July 27. Failure of a Miquelon Lighthouse to operate its siren during a heavy fog, or conditions which prevented the siren from being heard, combined with unexpected strong current setting towards the land, were given as reasons for the grounding of C.G.M.M. Canadian Commander by the Captain and Chief Officer of the ship testifying before the Wreck Commission's report to-day. The grounding occurred July 23rd, in a bay near Platte Point, Little Miquelon Island. Capt. M. Maclean, Clarence Beavers, Chief Officer, and Howard Pierowey, boatsman, testified that the first time they heard the siren was four days after the ship had grounded.

FIELDING'S AXE.

CITTAWA, July 27. When re-organization of the new Department of Defence is completed nearly eight hundred will have been retired from the service. This number includes the Air Board, Naval Department and the Department of Militia and Defence, which are now merged under one head. Four hundred retired at the end of last fiscal year, three hundred since and one hundred yet to go. Abolition of these posts created a saving of $650,000.

AIRY CONFIDENCE.

LONDON, July 27. Replying to a question in the House of Commons, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, Lt.-Col. Chas. Amery said, that so far, the Admiralty knew of no airplanes in any navy capable of sinking a British warship by bomb or torpedo.

FRENCH NOVELIST DEAD.

PARIS, July 27. Jules Mary, novelist and dramatist, died here to-day, aged 71.

BOBROWINGS.

LONDON, July 27. Replying to a question in the House of Commons, Sir P. Lloyd Graeme, Assistant Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, said it had been computed that during the first six months of 1922 foreign Governments had borrowed only thirteen million pounds from Great Britain, while Governments within the empire had borrowed forty-one million pounds. Speaking of the Hague Conference Sir Lloyd Graeme said it had taken a long step forward along the pathway of Russian settlement. The next step, he said, rests with the Russian Government.

LEONARD HAS NARROW SHAVE.

JERSEY CITY, July 27. Benny Leonard, world's lightweight boxing champion, successfully defended the title against Lew Tendler of Philadelphia in a twelve round no-decision contest to-night, winning, in the opinion of the majority of the sport writers at the ringside, by a narrow shave in a great struggle. Tendler had the best of the early rounds.

Visiting American Orchestra at Nickel.

WILL PLAY FAMOUS SELECTIONS TO-NIGHT.

The management of the Nickel introduces to-night a visiting orchestra as an added attraction which will play selections from "Rigolette" and "Meadley of Irish Airs." This orchestra consists of noted musicians and it goes without saying that patrons of this popular house of amusement will enjoy the programme which will be rendered. The orchestra will play at both shows. The feature attraction is "Secret Service" featuring Robert Warwick, and is a most successful play of the American stage.

Every Woman Should Know

That cheap soaps and even some dear soaps will ruin her clothing, also good soap costs less than good clothing; therefore, when a woman buys cheap injurious soap, she loses more than she gains, because cheap injurious soap will rot her blouses, dresses, etc., and will also rot her husband's and children's clothes. Again cheap soap will hurt one's hands, will take the paint off doors and spoil linoleum. Every woman KNOWS that Sunlight Soap is the very best kind of Soap, it is so good and so pure that it won't hurt a baby's tender skin. Sunlight Soap is made with the purest materials procurable. Clothes washed with Sunlight Soap will outlast clothes washed with injurious Soap. Tell your washerwoman to use Sunlight Soap. It will be good for her hands, good for your clothes and for the long run will be best for your husband's pocket.—Jy 27, 1922

Obituary.

THOMAS J. ALLAN.

There passed peacefully away yesterday morning, shortly after 10 o'clock, a well known and respected citizen in the person of Thomas J. Allan, son of the late Samuel and Catherine Allan—a man always of a kindly and loving disposition—once a friend always a friend—true-hearted and always ready and eager to assist in any charitable object. Born in the West End 67 years ago, he carried on a business for the past forty years at his well known store, Water Street West. For the past 7 months he had been suffering from heart trouble and his passing was not unexpected. He had the great happiness of dying, fortified by the last rites of the Catholic Church, of which he was always a devout and staunch member. To mourn him he leaves a widow, two daughters, Margaret, wife of Mr. Arthur Knight, and Blanche, widow of the late John Connolly who lost his life in the Florizel disaster. His brothers Patrick and William preceded him within the past eighteen months. His hearty greetings and kindly smile will be greatly missed by his host of acquaintances, east and west. His funeral takes place to-morrow Saturday, at 2:30 p.m. from his late residence, Water Street West. May his soul rest in peace.—COM.

C.L.B. Camp Notes.

INSPECTION BY THE GOVERNOR.

His Excellency the Governor inspected the C.L.B. Camp, encamped at Topsail yesterday afternoon. Glorious weather conditions prevailed all day and added considerably to the success of the inspection. Lieut. Colonel Goodridge and Major Tait, M.C., came to camp for the occasion, and the other officers present were Capt. Jeffrey, Camp Commandant, Capt. House, Camp Adjutant, Major Lindsay, Capt. French, Lieutenants, Reeves, Reid, Motty, H. C. Hayward and A. B. Perlin. His Excellency drove over the road to camp and arrived shortly before 4 p.m. He was received by the Lieut.-Col. the Camp Commandant and other officers, and the National Anthem, played by the Band, greeted his arrival. The Battalion was drawn up in line on the parade ground for inspection, and after it had marched past in fours and column formations it was drawn up in review order and was addressed by His Excellency. Sir Charles expressed the great pleasure it gave him to be once more able to inspect the Brigade at camp. Last year he had feared that it would be his last inspection, but fortunately, he had remained long enough to be able to visit camp again. This year would be the last occasion on which he would inspect the C.L.B.C. He referred to the splendid work which the Brigade was doing, and he pointed out to the lads ways in which they could serve their country. He concluded an inspiring and eloquent address by bidding the Brigade goodbye. His Excellency then inspected the Hospital, Cook-House and other parts of the camp, and expressed himself as being very well satisfied with what he saw as the following report which he wrote in the Order Book which will show "I have just completed my inspection of the Battalion and a very careful inspection of the camp. I think I can honestly say that I have never seen the Battalion turn out better. It is a pleasure to have been called upon to inspect it and it is with regret that I feel I shall probably not do so again. In spite of the bad weather the camp did the greatest credit to the officers and men. I congratulate the Colonel commanding the unit, and the Commandant and Adjutant of the camp.

C. ALEXANDER HARRIS, Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

Following the inspection, tea was served in the Officers' Mess to His Excellency and other visitors who included Sir Joseph Outerbridge (a former colonel of the Brigade) and Lady Outerbridge, Mrs. C. E. A. Jeffrey and Dr. A. S. Tait. The Brigade is grateful to the ladies who so kindly served tea. They were Mrs. Tasker Cook, Mrs. I. F. Perlin and Mrs. W. H. Hynes. Before the Governor left camp, the C.O. presented the officers and warrant officers to him. Mr. Walter Crosbie of Bay Roberts was in camp during the afternoon and brought with him several pounds of candy, a present from Mrs. Crosbie, and this was distributed to the lads. Bananas, brought by Sir J. Outerbridge, were also distributed. The Camp was sorry to have to part with Capt. French and the Bay Roberts Company, which left last evening to return home by the shore train. Before they left camp, the Commandant addressed the lads and told them how pleased the Brigade was that they had had a Bay Roberts detachment with the main camp. They had done themselves great credit and he hoped to see them in even larger numbers at all future camps. Three cheers were then given with a will for the departing company. The Lieut. Colonel and other officers were entertained at supper by Dr. Burden at his residence, and a very enjoyable evening was passed. Dr. Burden has acted as visiting medical officer for many years, and his appointment as an honorary member of the Mess is a real appreciation of the splendid services he has rendered the Brigade. To-morrow is the last day of camp, and the Annual Camp Dance which will be held in the night is bound to be a great success. Camp will be struck on Saturday and after lunch the Battalion will march to town under Capt. House and Lieut. H. C. Hayward, thus bringing to an end the most successful camp, despite the bad weather, which the Brigade has ever had. The Brigade is very grateful to kind friends for substantial donations to camp funds.

Bodies Were Trawled.

Messrs. Benjamin Stanford, William Hynes, Edward Mott and James Power of North Battery were in the boat, which recovered the body of the late C. E. Duder from the waters of Ocean Pond on Wednesday morning. These men used a regular ballow and were the first to hook the bodies, but one of which they rose to the surface. That of Chesley Crocker was afterwards raised by a crew in another boat as already reported in the Telegram.

In Memoriam.

MASTER ELTON CLIFFORD COOK.

There will be general sympathy felt towards Mr. and Mrs. George J. Cook of the Walde Grove Farm.

White Hills, at the passing of their eldest son, Elton Clifford, who died Tuesday night last, Clifford, who was but twelve years old, was a bright lad and showed every indication had life being spared, of a brilliant manhood. He had been ill but a short time, which makes his so quickly passing all the more sad, as even up to a day or two previous to the end hopes were entertained by his parents that he might fully recover. As he was of a cheerful and kindly disposition the little fellow will be sadly missed by his friends, the school mates, whilst to his parents, the parting is indeed one that rends the two living hearts of father and mother who will miss this dear eldest son. May their sorrow be alleviated by that perfect resignation to and splendid dependence on the Divine Will of God which had marked this young life to be renewed in a brighter and happier world.—P.J.K. July 1922.

HIS DIARY.
July 27th.—A fine warm day, and such as we have not had this season. To Water Street and met with Hon. J. Anderson, with whom much discourse, and most of it about Scotland. I did also speak with Mr. Cowan and learned from him of the preparations which the Masons made for the funeral of their Grand Master. Anon to visit the camp at Topsail, and meet there Sir C. A. Harris, that is the Governor. He tells me that he goes abroad in August and on leave, but does not think he will return. And, indeed, he will, at his leaving, be missed by many, seeing how he did make many friends here. So to sup with Dr. Burden at his home, and divers there also. The evening a very pleasant one, and I very loath to leave.

Personal.
Miss Annie Cunningham, Divisional Supervising Nurse for the State Department of Health, Ohio, and Demonstrator in School Nursing for the Board of Education, Ohio, who is at present in the city on a visit to her sister Mrs. (Rev.) Nicholls, will lecture to Mothers at the Community Nurses' Room on Tuesday next.

Amongst the passengers from Halifax by S.S. Silvia yesterday was Sister Euphasia (Miss Mary Fanning.) Sister Euphasia left here forty years ago. Mr. W. F. Fanning is a brother.
Mr. J. P. Carey, Manager of the Furness Withy Company, together with his family left by the Sackem yesterday on a holiday trip.
Mr. H. S. Knight, B.A., son of Herbert E. Knight, Esq., Barrister, returned by S.S. Sackem. Mr. Knight was a Rhodes Scholar in 1917, and recently had the exceptional distinction of winning a first class in Jurisprudence in the Final Honor Schools. He is now completing his legal studies in London, after which it is hoped by his friends that he may practice in his native land.

Mr. Wm. Ryall, a successful Newfoundland, residing in New York, where he emigrated some 35 years ago returned yesterday on his annual visit to the home land. He is a guest of his brother Mr. Sam Ryall, Circular Road.

Vote of Sympathy.

Yesterday afternoon the unemployed met in Bannerman Park to hear the report of the Committee Messrs. H. Bennett, G. Steele, R. Jewer, who are negotiating to have further employment given. The business of the meeting however was deferred, and a note of sympathy over the recent tragedy at Great Freshwater Pond, was passed, and adjournment taken until this afternoon.

Anticipated.

He was full of zeal for the temperance cause, and was holding a series of lectures in a workmen's hall. But the audience were very unkind, and kept interrupting. So much so that at last he hired an ex-prizefighter to keep order. That night the orator contrasted the content of home life with the squallor of drunkenness.
"What is it we want when we return home from our daily toil?" he asked.
"What do we want to ease our burden, to gladden our hearts, to bring smiles to our faces and joyous songs to our lips?"
He paused for effect, and in the silence could be heard the voice of the deeper of the peace.
"What," he said, "the first bloke that says 'beer,' out he goes with a bang."

The relatives of Michael Hayse received word recently from Boston, acquainting them of the fact that he had been taken seriously ill. Mr. Hayse was not enjoying the best of health before he left to join his children in the U.S.A., and it was thought that the trip would be beneficial to him. His friends here regret to learn this news, and trust his condition is not so serious as anticipated.

British Prime Minister.

EULOGISES WORK OF FOUNDER OF METHODISM.

LONDON.—Premier Lloyd George, in a speech at a luncheon held recently at the Hotel Victoria here to inaugurate a scheme for the restoration of John Wesley Chapel and grave in City road, E.C., touched on the subject of Europe's distrust of Great Britain, and humorously said John Wesley was responsible for international misunderstandings. "There are such things as international misunderstandings," the Premier said, in a jocular manner, and amid laughter he followed this up by disclaiming responsibility therefore on the part of either himself or M. Poincare, Premier of France, and blaming it on the founder of Methodism.

"Shall I tell you why" continued Lloyd George. "You cannot get them to understand on the continent the motives that sent hundreds of thousands and millions of young men to face death and mutilation in the Great War. They are always seeking for material reasons. They say, ah, the commercial supremacy of England was challenged, her maritime strength was defied; she was in fear of her coast. None of these things. I attended many recruiting meetings, and there are many here who did the same thing, at the beginning of the war, and I know the appeal that was made to young men. At no recruiting meeting did I ever hear a sordid appeal made to any young man. The appeal was the most chivalrous appeal that has ever been made for young men to go into battle since the days when the knight and peasants of the Middle Ages went on a Crusade to rescue the Holy Sepulchre—to fight for the weak, to protect them against the ruthless strong, a righteous indignation against barbarity. You cannot get anyone on the Continent of Europe to realize that that was the appeal that moved Britain, and not a commercial one, not a material one, and I say the difference is—John Wesley."

GREATEST RELIGIOUS LEADER.

Elaborating the subject of the far-reaching influence of John Wesley, Lloyd George referred to him as "undoubtedly the greatest religious leader the Anglo-Saxon race ever produced and said "the movement of which he was the leader was probably the greatest religious movement of the past two hundred and fifty years at least." Continuing, he said: "It was a movement that gripped the soul of England. The result is that when a great appeal is made, either to England or to America, there is always a response, and it is due to the great religious revival of the eighteenth century. The same thing applies to peace. When you press the gospel of peace and say, 'let us have peace,' they say, 'What is England after? Trade? What is it? She is after something.'"

"The idea that she is preaching peace because it is the supreme message of her faith never enters their heads. That is why I say it is very often difficult to interpret the appeal which you can make to Britain and America to those who have not had the same training as the people who have been subject to the great influences of that religious revival. Wesley was a man of peace—not at any time price, though. He offered once to raise a company of volunteers to defend this country against invasion.

He asked for guns from the Tower. Just like an ordinary recruiting sergeant, he was a man of business, and he was going to see not merely that the volunteers were raised, but that they had rifles in their hands. Expressing pleasure at the movement to repair Wesley's tomb, Lloyd George recalled that Wesley had a great abhorrence of any absence, neatness or cleanliness. "You remember what he said to a Derbyshire girl who ran to the door as he was passing, and cried, 'God bless you, Mr. Wesley,' remarked Lloyd George. "Young woman," replied Wesley, "your blessing would be of no more value if your face and apron were cleaner." Premier Lloyd George said that while he was not a Methodist he came from a sect that owed more to the Methodist spirit by John Wesley than to other movement in the whole of history. It affected a complete reformation in Wales, he said, and the were felt to-day.

Dinner to Lord Morris.

PREMIER PREMIER ENTERTAINED BY FRIENDS.

The rate of taxation to-day is a heavy burden on the fishermen of the country and they are the principal producers of the main breadwinners in the community. This was one of the many important assurances made by Lord Morris in the course of an eloquent speech decorated with a profusion of beautiful flowers. After the toast of "Newfoundland" had been honoured, Sir Edgar Bowring proposed that "Our Guest."

PRaise FOR LORD MORRIS.

Sir Edgar warmly praised the services rendered by Lord Morris to his native land. He would never have been honoured as he was by the British Government if he had been thought unworthy. Lord Morris's warm love for his native land was emphasized, and the hope expressed that Newfoundland would see to it that his pride in her should be justified by placing him in the position of being justly proud of his country. In his efforts on our behalf it was up to us to back him. His career had not reached its zenith. Long years of usefulness and successful endeavour he felt sure lay ahead for the distinguished guest.

IN SERIOUS TIMES.

We live in serious times. Whilst we sit here the air is traversed through space with wireless messages from continents with details of strife in industrial, social and civic undertakings. Many of the great troubles of the world to-day are the result of the war—its natural aftermath—but a great deal is due to lack of discipline and duty on the part of citizens. Institutions as old as civilization itself are in the melting pot and every one appears to be a law unto himself. We live in the present and think nothing of the future. "Let us eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die." The whole idea of service is lost, and the ruling principle seems to be "Win no matter how." As I have said world conditions are largely the result of the war. Newfoundland, like other countries, has its trials and difficulties. We are apologetic to a manly man, but at the same time it is well to know just where we stand. An ostrich policy of burying our heads in the sand to avoid seeing what is coming is a poor policy for any country. It is always best to know the worst. A correct and early diagnosis of the patient may save his life. What we want most to-night is courage. Look not mournfully into the past, it comes not back again. Wisely improve the present; it is thine. Go forth to meet the shadowy future with a brave and stout heart. A realization of just where we stand would do a great deal of good. We want a united people and a united Legislature now more than ever. The war has increased our burdens of taxation, the interest on the public debt alone being probably increased by more than a million dollars annually. This burden itself cannot be reduced, but it may be that other services can, by a wise policy of economy and retrenchment, be operated cheaper without sacrificing efficiency. This can only be accomplished by a union of all parties, at least on these fiscal questions. On all other matters, party strife and party politics, we may agree to continue as in the past. If we could take a lesson from the good old days when Horatius held the bridge, when "None were found for party And all were for the State."

We would be getting near the point of launching out on a great wise public policy. We must be patriotic. We must put country first. Everyone must realize that they have to contribute their quota of help in our present difficulties. The rate of taxation to-day is a severe burden on the fishermen of the country and they are the principal producers of the main breadwinners in the community. We probably have in this country to-day 60,000 families, 55,000 of which live out of the fisheries, directly or indirectly. We must not therefore muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn. The duty of finding a way out of the difficulties rests with the public men of the country. I hope and believe they appreciate the responsibilities that now rest upon them. They can best accomplish the task of putting this country on an even keel by unity. No better monument could a public man erect to perpetuate his name than by bringing about in the interests of the country a unity of purpose. I know it is sometimes hard to forget party principles and personal animations, but in the end such a policy will bring its own reward.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

Mr. W. R. Howley ably proposed the toast of Newfoundland, which was replied to by Mr. C. E. Hunt in a delightfully humorous speech which was not lacking in wisdom for all its banter.

Hon. John Anderson proposed and Hon. W. J. Ellis, an ex-mayor, replied to the toast of city. In a brief, but exceedingly interesting speech, well flavoured with a fine wit, Mr. A. B. Morine, K.C., proposed the toast of "Trade and Commerce." He spoke of his long friendship with Lord Morris, although always opponents in public life. Only once had they been together, when the 1898 contract was the point of agreement. Sir Edward Morris had passed into the House of Lords, and he had passed out of the House of Assembly and he did not know which, under existing circumstances, was the greater honour.

Trade, when Lord Morris left here was at its apex, not due to him, maybe, but he was confident that had he remained, with his sane quantity of judgment would have prevented much of the evil that had since resulted. What was wanted to-day was not to forget the principles underlying party government, but to remember them. Party government was the safe and sane form, leaving the decision of policies to the country, and the duty of carrying these into effect to those whom the country honoured with its confidence. Mr. W. A. Munn responded in a well-reasoned and informative address.

The toast of the Chairman was proposed by Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C.,

Well-known Glove Manufacturer
Tells of His Remarkable Experience With Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

MR. HERBERT STREET COWAN, President and General Manager of the Craig-Cowan Co., Ltd., Glove Manufacturers, 154 Pearl St., Toronto, writes:

"About ten years ago, at the age of 77, I had a stroke, as a result of which I have been partially paralyzed ever since.

"For 70 years I lay in the house in a helpless condition in spite of all that six doctors could do to restore me. I also resorted to massage and electrical treatments, but without very much apparent benefit.

"About seven years ago I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and have used it at intervals ever since. It is only by using this restorative treatment that I have been able to attend to my large and growing business, and for this reason I feel that the least I can do is to recommend the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to others who suffer from nervous derangements.

"In fact, it has afforded me a great deal of pleasure to recommend the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to my friends, and to observe the way in which they have been benefited by its use. As a result of the large number of cases I have observed, as well as my own remarkable experience, I feel that I can speak with some authority."

ad, making only one condition—that there should be no pay attaching to the office and that you should be permitted to defray your own expenses. At home here we have own striking illustrations of your public spirited philanthropy and your record for work stands alone. You are a fortunate man in possessing the gift of knowing that it is a good thing to be your own executor.

Replying, Lord Morris said in part: I hope you all believe that I fully appreciate and assess the value of the compliment paid to me to-night in this public function tendered spontaneously by so many representatives of my fellow citizens. If it gives you one hundredth part of the pleasure and satisfaction it has given me, then indeed you must have had a very pleasant evening. You would one and all require to stand in my place to-night to understand and estimate just what my feelings are and how full I am of gratitude to you all for such a testimony of regard and confidence. I value to-night's demonstration not alone for its representative character, but for the spirit of good fellowship underlying the function. And what can I say? What words can I use to convey to you my thanks? Sincere and heartiest thanks are all that I can offer you. A great English poet has said that "a grateful heart by owing owes not, but still stands at once indebted and discharged." And so it will be with me. Paradoxical as it may seem, I shall always be in your debt although by my gratitude and thanks I have paid the debt to-night.

MEMORY A SOLACE.

I have been away from you now for nearly five years. The accidents of life ordained that in another land I should have to begin over again my toil and labour. Since leaving you I have had to work incessantly to build up a business all of which had been practically abandoned and lost by my long connection with public life in this country. All the difficulties and obstacles met with during those five years—the loneliness of great cities—the intelligent professional competition—the grind amongst strangers—are all forgotten to-night in the good fellowship which you have shown me. I feel like a boy coming home for the holidays. The memory of this evening will be to me a solace in worry and trials and an incentive to strive harder for your continued approval. And yet this evening's pleasure is not altogether without a suggestion of regret, that in the years that have passed, in the many opportunities I have had, I did not strive harder to deserve your esteem. If I could only have realized to-night's function, could have seen the faces of those who sit around this banquet hall, how much harder would I not have striven and worked.

COMPLIMENTS CHAIRMAN.

And you, Mr. Chairman, presiding at the head of this function to-night—to you I think I owe special thanks. In coming here you bring a weight and have lent a strength by your character and standing in the community which few could do. During the five years I have lived in England you have ever been a good loyal friend and I learned that not alone is blood thicker than water, but that Newfoundlanders abroad, no matter how they may differ at home, love and cherish that kinship and friendship, born through birth in the same country. I have had opportunities of daily studying the manner in which you performed the duties of your high office in London, the heart of the Empire. I have in many cases since residing there invoked for Newfoundlanders and others the services of you and your worthy Secretary and staff and have ever met a ready and willing response. I recall the many occasions when you and I have met at great feasts and banquets, Royal and civic functions; how proud I felt of the manner in which you lifted Newfoundland's interests on to the plane where other great portions of the Empire had already been raised by their representatives. I hope there is nothing in the disquieting rumour that you are about to vacate your high office as I know of no one who can bring to the duties of that position that ripe experience in a complete knowledge of the industrial, commercial, financial and economic conditions of Newfoundland. You possessed these qualifications in a high degree when you took office five years ago. You have since added to that equipment five years' daily dealings with Newfoundland's needs and requirements. But you possessed other qualifications than those I have mentioned. I well remember fifteen years ago when as Prime Minister I asked you to allow me to nominate you on the Dominions Royal Commission to make a tour of the Empire with a view of studying the raw materials, industries and development of these great estates, how you readily assented and replied to gracefully and feelingly. Sir Edgar read a message received from J. R. Bennett, Esq., who is on the West Coast, regretting his absence from town and extending cordial greetings to Lord Morris.

During the intervals songs were rendered by Messrs. John Barron, George Kearney, C. H. Hutton and Magistrate McCarthy.

THE GUESTS.

The guests were:—A. B. Morine, K.C., Hon. W. J. Ellis, Hon. Michael Morris, Hon. Dr. Campbell, W. A. Munn, Hon. M. G. Winter, Judge Morvie, J. C. Hopburn, David Baird, Hon. F. McNamara, Hon. R. Projects and Prospects.

According to promoters of companies for the exploitation of this country Newfoundland is a veritable El Dorado, and if only half the nice things—let alone all—these people say about us in their prospectus sheets are true, then indeed is the Colony on the high road to fortune, but whether before the millennium or afterwards is another story. Local students of affairs do not seem to agree on certain points, particularly on those relating to our chief industry—the fisheries. One expert will tell us that our production of fish, if properly cared for, should support over a million of population; another one says that our financial salvation and future depends upon the abolition of old methods in prosecuting the fisheries and likewise in the cure and make, and the adoption of the up-to-date system of sending all our sea produce abroad in a frozen state. Still another comes along and strongly urges that the fisheries be abandoned outright and all energies devoted to internal development, as that alone will determine the actual wealth and resources of the country, and pave the way toward perpetual prosperity. There is much to be said in favor of the latter proposition, provided that in encouraging foreign capital, to come into the country the birthright of the people of Newfoundland is not bartered away. Development is the way out to-day, but not at the cost of independence. Reasonable concessions should be made if necessary, in return for enterprise. Notwithstanding all that has been or will be said having regard to the potential value of our fisheries, it cannot be argued that there is not need of other sources of earning power. For the past few years, the fisheries have been altogether inadequate to support the quarter of a million people comprising the population of the Colony. Last year all the products taken from the ocean were not sufficient to supply the bare necessities of the population. And will not similar conditions prevail this year? Cold storage of fish is but an infant in swaddling clothes as it were. More years have yet to pass, ere this method of putting up fish will become general, if ever it does. With steady development of all the natural internal resources of Newfoundland, carried out by men who have faith in the hidden wealth of soil and forest and water, the colony will enter upon a new era. But care must be taken that we do not give all for nothing. The Telegram has ever been an exponent of the development of the interior under safeguarding conditions. It is so to-day, but will unfailingly protest and condemn any dickering or negotiatory transactions by which the colony stands to lose more than it will gain.

Investigating Oil Vitamines.

EXPERTS MAKING TESTS. Dr. S. S. Zilva of the Lister Institute of Preventive Medicine, London, and Mr. M. Graham of the Ministry of Fisheries who arrived here with the purpose of investigating the vitamine potency of codliver oil made a visit to Joseph's Fishery yesterday and were impressed with the methods employed, both in the handling of the fish and the manufacture of the oil. They intend to visit representative fishing grounds on the East Coast where the condition of fish will be examined, and samples will be immediately collected. These will be tested at the Lister Institute, University College, London and the Fisheries Laboratories and duly reported on. Preliminary samples of Newfoundland oils have already been examined and have been found to be very poor. It is anticipated that when this enquiry is complete favorable results will be obtained as regards the vitamine potency of our oils. On Monday investigators will have a short conference at the Board of Trade Rooms.

Fisticuff Bout.

POLICE ARREST CHAMPION. A replica of the Leonard-Tender championship bout with the gloves, as reported in to-day's Canadian Press Service, was staged on New Gower Street during dinner hour between two pugilists, each of whom were seeking an opportunity to administer the K.O. to his adversary. The bout, which attracted a large crowd, was opened at New Gower and ultimately flowed into Queen St., where the police created a diversion by arresting the champion, and depositing him in the town of a motor car conveniently at hand, drove him to the station, where it is hoped, his pugacious instincts will be curbed. The only difference between this and the championship battle was, that whereas the latter contestants fought with gloves, the local emulators used bare knuckles. The police did not render any decisions as to which of the pug won, although it may be accepted that he who received the attention and enjoyed a motor drive was probably getting the best of it, when his victory was interrupted.

West Indian Trade.

GOVERNMENT'S NEW EXPERIMENT. Undaunted by previous failures, the Government proposes to try a new experiment. This takes the form of a direct steamship service to the West Indies. The experiment has now been inserted in local and foreign papers asking for tenders for two suitable steamers to ply between St. John's Nfld., and the West Indies. The steamers are to be classed X 100 A1 at Lloyd's (Eng.), and to have a speed of at least 12 knots. They must have about 2000 tons dead-weight capacity, be fitted with all modern improvements, and have first class passenger accommodation for 30 persons. A prominent member of the Executive of the Telegram to-day that the question of a direct service between St. John's and several West Indian islands has been under the consideration of the Government for some months. At present, most of our fish shipped to the West Indies goes in wooden bottoms, and instead of there being a continuous supply on the market, there is a glut sometimes and none at other times. All fish at present is shipped from Newfoundland to the West Indies must go by way of Nova Scotia. There are many arguments in favor of this proposed direct service. It is generally believed that there is room for a great increase in our fish export trade with the West Indies. Last year the value of our exports there was $1,378,212 and this, it is thought, could be doubled. In the same way, our imports of sugar, molasses, and other goods could be increased, as bananas and other fruit, and all our molasses could be imported direct at a great saving in freight and intermediary profits. It is further suggested that sugar cane could be imported in the raw state and refined here. If the steamers can be obtained at a reasonable price the service will begin in October with one boat leaving for the West Indies every two weeks, and by October 1923, provided conditions warrant it, another steamer will be placed on the route and a tri-weekly service will be maintained. Under the proposed service steamers will call at Havana, Jamaica, Porto Rico, Martinique, Barbados, Trinidad and other islands in the West Indies, making one call each trip at the above ports. The service to be continuous throughout the whole year, and the contract to be for a term of 5 years to be computed from the date of commencement of the service. It is anticipated that Hon. W. F. Coaker has been to a great extent instrumental in having this experiment tried out.

Council Seeks Loan.

QUARTER OF MILLION FOR IMPROVEMENTS. The Municipal Council, it is understood, intends to approach the Government for the loan of $250,000, and a special meeting to discuss the matter was held this morning. The object of the loan is to secure funds to carry out very necessary improvements, what are being along the lines suggested in the platform of Mr. P. E. Outerbridge during the recent election. One of the outstanding requirements of the city is an extension of the water and sewage systems and it is means to this end that the Council is at the meeting that the improvements would reduce expenditure in other directions, so that the city would not entail any increase of taxation.

A RECORD CROWD.—Sunday next will be a busy day with the trains. Hundreds of people are going to Tor's Cove to attend Rev. Fr. Coady's Garden Party. Train leaves 2 sharp.

Dam Broken.

The recent flood following the heavy downpours of rain in the early part of the week, has broken down the wooden dam in the swimming pool at Bowring Park. Efforts are being made to repair it quickly as the pool is very popular and is used daily by many visitors from town.

Assault Case.

WIFE ACCUSES HUSBAND. The only case to occupy the attention of the magistrate this morning was an action for assault taken by a woman against her husband. Plaintiff claimed that her hubby had ill-treated her by kicking her in the stomach. Accused, who appeared to be a very docile man, even for a husband—vehemently denied the charge, and as it was a question of oath against oath, the case was dismissed.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

In view of the pleasant weather tonight every six weeks, and by October draw another record gate. The Stars and Guards should produce the most evenly matched bout for the season for both are playing very consistent ball but Old Man Jinx seems perched upon the brigade lads. The game will start at 7:30 with Mr. Hunt as referee.

LAST NIGHT'S BASEBALL.

When the Cubs sailed aboard the champs last night the third successive defeat for the Lions was announced, and the largest gathering of the fans for the season saw them being vanquished. With Walter Callahan absent the Cubs had things all their own way as Nuts Ellis and the grand old man of baseball, Bill Cooney, had nothing but a wind up. The result was that the young bears scored 3 runs in the first, following this up with a run in the fifth, sixth and seventh. Joe Murphy was on the mound for them and did most effective work, but his team mates played loosely, and the fourth with the result that the champs shoved one across. Messrs. Chesman and Thomas were umpires, with Messrs. Merner and Skinner in the score box.

Rose Genevieve of Monmouth, Halifax, arrived here to visit Slater Genevieve, the late Robert's daughter, Robert of the Supreme Court.

Cove Garden Party.

EVENT NEXT SUNDAY. Annual Garden Party at Tor's Cove... The train will leave St. John's at 2:00 p.m., and returning to Tor's Cove about 11:30 p.m. A special train is given to Tor's Cove the day of the party and take in the beautiful scenery and natural beauty of which Tor's Cove surrounds... the most charming scenery along the Southern Shore... Committee have done everything possible to insure success. There will be a large gathering from the city and nearby settlements along the shore with this hope, preparations have been made even on a larger scale than on preceding years. Those who were present last year and those who still retain happy memories of the visit, and year by year the increase in the outgoing-coming-seeking city throng; and no doubt for apart from material pleasure everyone knows that its object is a very laudable one.

The Parish is relatively small in its many ecclesiastical buildings to be kept in order and maintained in conjunction with the surrounding area, which needs constant attention and improvement. It is then easily understood that the pastor's appeal for outside aid in those past few years of financial depression; through unusual losses in the fisheries—and consequently great financial loss recently sustained by him; if those many fine buildings were to be preserved from decay, which is frequently a costly and equivalent to building anew as a responsibility well known.

Mr. Coody has for fourteen years been a solid and good work like many of the other priests in this country. His services in the parish have been of the highest quality and popularity in the parish.

WEEKLY MEETING.

The weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon Deputy Mayor Martin presided. Councillors Outerbridge, Vincombe, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present.

After minutes of the previous meeting were confirmed the following matters were dealt with. The Regatta Committee asked loan of seats for the public on Regatta Day. Request was acceded to.

Doctor T. Mitchell called attention to the annoyance caused the residents of Duckworth Street by the manner in which truck owners drive their horses and cars over the thoroughfare in the early hours of a morning, racing being indulged in. A copy of the communication will be forwarded the Inspector General.

H. Cranford wrote with regard to the condition of the Southside Road near St. Mary's Church. Attention was ordered given same. Messrs. Pike, LeDrew and McKay informed the Board of their willingness to pay their proportion towards cost of sewer extension. Alexander Street, they desiring to build in this locality.

This, with other matters will be given consideration at a special meeting at which ways and means for further extension of water and sewerage will be taken up.

Inspector General Hutchings stated it would not be advisable to allow Dominion Vulcanizing Company to install gasoline tank at their premises.

Messrs. J. A. Williams, Hayward Avenue, and J. Edwards, Circular Rd., wrote re sidewalks and drains in these streets. Road Inspector will give same attention.

A communication was read from Thos. Rotary Hears Stories.

UNIQUE CONTEST AT ABERDEEN.

LONDON.—A unique story-telling contest was held at Aberdeen recently between the Marquis of Aberdeen and Temair, a former Governor-General of Canada, and Sir James Taggart, a former Lord Provost of Aberdeen. The Marquis of Aberdeen and Temair had challenged the Rotary Club of the Scottish City, to set up the Clubs' best men against him in the competition, but he found one more than his match, as Sir James Taggart won by 69 votes to Lord Aberdeen 13. The story-telling competition was held at a luncheon of the Aberdeen Rotary Club. Sir James Taggart led off with a story about his opponent. Once, he said, when Lord Aberdeen was attending the assemblies in Edinburgh he was walking along High Street. A drunken man knocked up against him and was sharply rebuked by a policeman, who said: "Do you know that you have run into the Marquis of Aberdeen and Temair?"

"Good Lord," the man exclaimed, "am I as bad as that? Is there two of them?" Lord Aberdeen's first story was of a parish minister who was rebuking a shepherd for leaving his kirk and going to worship elsewhere. "You are a shepherd, Donald, and so am I," he said. "And you would not like to see any of your sheep going to pastures they did not belong to."

"Weel, sir," replied Donald, "I dinna ken that I would object, gin the grass (graze) wis better." One of Sir James Taggart's stories was about a case of whiskey that arrived at a country station for the minister. The porter telephoned: "There's a case for you." The minister, who expected a consignment of books, replied: "Let it lie till to-morrow."

Egyptians Used Incubators.

Although hot-air and hot-water incubators were not known in Europe until 1777, the Chinese and Egyptians practised artificial incubation over 2,000 years ago! The Egyptians incubated eggs in a very primitive fashion—but obtained excellent results. They built enormous ovens of semi-dried bricks, often covering an area of as much as 6,000 square feet. These same egg-ovens are still in use to-day, the craft having been handed down through the centuries from father to son. Through the centre of the egg-oven runs a passage which opens up on each side to huge circular vaults, in which the actual hatching is done. Fires are kept alight in each vault, and all surplus heat and smoke escape from a large hole in the roof.

It is not surprising to find that Egyptian fowls are non-sitting. The broody instinct has been bred out of them through the extensive use of the egg-ovens.

shell grows more brittle, so that when the time comes for the live chick to break forth it has no difficulty in doing so. The chicken has fortified itself for this task by eating up the yolk-sac of the egg. This accounts for the fact that a newly-hatched chick requires no food for at least twenty-four hours after birth.

The Meanest of the Lot.

"It is sad," said Mr. Closest, "how men some people are." "I went on a fishing trip with Brown and Simpson, and they were both familiar with my great reputation as an angler. Before starting, Brown suggested that the first to land a fish should pay for the dinners that night." "I readily agreed, and we began, and, do you know, both these fellows had a bite and were too mean to pull the fish up."

The Super Was Right.

Discussing some recent theatrical "frosts" the other day, Sir Squire Bancroft told a good story concerning King Arthur, an historical drama of which great things were expected, but which turned out to be a most ghastly failure. Irving was producing the play; the incidental music had been specially composed by Sir Arthur Sullivan at the zenith of his fame; and Sir Edward Burne-Jones, the most famous artist of his day and generation, had designed the scenery and the costumes. Nevertheless, the first-night performance was hostile, and a disgusted, per, coming out of the stage-door, the play was drawing to a close, turned on a prophecy which was too faithfully fulfilled. Gazing dejectedly at the playhouse, he muttered huskily:—"Sir Emery Irwin! Sir Arthur! Sir Edward Burne-Jones!—and Three bloomin' knights!—and about what I give it."

BULLDOGS AND WHIPPED CREAM

Do you know when to stop? There has been a great deal said in praise of the habit of sticking to a thing, of keeping on with what one has started to do no matter how great the odds or how much it takes out of you. The bull dog and his grip have been held to the skies, and the fact that sometimes the bull dog is a goop to dig on like that and deserves and the toe of somebody's boot for the best sight of it.

It's a good thing to know when to stop and it's a good thing to know when to let go. Obstinacy and Idiotcy. Perseverance is a fine quality when it is balanced by a sense of proportion. When it is not, it often becomes a blind of obstinacy and idiotcy. People who have this quality of perseverance in sticking to a purpose of make a fetish of it and worship it. They will spend hundreds of foot of mental or physical energy to attain an end that was worth perhaps a hundredth part of that effort when they boast about it. "never give up until I do what I started out to do" they will say proudly. "Everybody knows that's the kind of person I am."

It wouldn't whip. I know a woman who is like that. I know her one day trying to whip cream that wouldn't whip. She was evidently tired and she was getting into that stage of nervousness which makes so much trouble in households, but she wouldn't stop trying to whip that cream. "Why don't you have the cream whipped?" I asked. "Would Jimmy mind if I give it to you? You know I never whip up a thing once I start."

Making Rain For a Living.

Professional rain-makers would be well-advised to give Central Africa a wide berth. For one thing, the profession is overcrowded. People who profess to be able to bring down rain from the clouds are everywhere plentiful there. The Rev. John Roscoe tells us in his book, "The Soul of Central Africa." And this despite the fact that they have to face risks to which few other people would care to expose themselves.

When the fall falls to fall the rain-makers are sent for by the king and told to procure it. If enough falls within a reasonable time, well and good. If not, the men are placed in the burning sun, and bound, without head covering or clothing of any sort. Then the king's cook prepares a special dish, composed of the liver of a sheep, cooked in butter with as much salt as can be got into it. The natives adopt much the same attitude, too, with regard to their rulers. "Our kings," they say, "must be strong men, good fighters, able to lead us in battle." So when a king begins to show any sign of ill-health or feebleness he must commit suicide by taking poison, the fatal dose being prepared for him by the royal medicine men.

The Work He Wanted.

He walked into the Labour Exchange with a smile and a born-tired look. "Any vacancies for a man like me?" he asked as he approached himself comfortably alongside the counter. "What is your trade or profession?" "My trade or profession" he repeated, yawning. "I'm a programme seller."

"I see," said the clerk drily. "No, we have nothing in that line open just now."

"I'd take something else if it suited me and I thought I could do it properly, you know," he went on, making himself more comfortable on the counter.

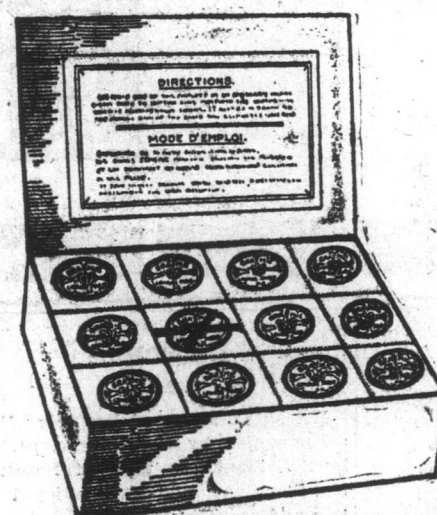

"As for instance?"

"Well," replied the weary one, "I wouldn't mind calling out the names of the stations on board an Atlantic liner, or something of that sort, don't you know?"

WHAT is my husband's name? "and it's not my name" it rings with me and I smile of her. "I'm a wife worker" she says, "and I'm always I'm giving when the day is over."
The boards need to be greased, and the paper, too. "The Lord be with you" she says, "the don't need strength to do the wife in all the be, and so I'm on the board" she says, "and the lawn is white."
I haven't much to say to the hearts of the youngsters here—they're not too young to be a wife's room which shows roots, leaks, and just you walk in and look at it."
I haven't a picture that was done by me, are mother's people frame, and mine: "after all," she says, "it's not what the wife and child count, and mine's earth."

The famous "scraps" of the Germans were taken from France through one of a series of treaties which were made after the B.C. when France and 1000 Germans, who were over the front lines stopped and promised to give the country again only sixty years ago. The French districts of 1000 Germans, however, these were not to be but six years later, when the border, again, was sworn never to be broken their peace and—when the made solemn promise France again and again and again when their solemn promise was broken under two thousand Perfect Strangers.

Charlie was cashier in the one bank in a little country town. He had been engaged to May Brown, but, alas! a rift came in the lute! His quarrelled.

"And please remember," said May, in tearfully haughty tones, as she handed back the ring, "that when we meet again we meet as perfect strangers."

A few days later the fair maid entered the bank to cash a cheque. Of course, Charlie was on duty. He took the slip of paper, eyed it back and front, and then, instead of counting out the money, handed back the cheque.

His time for revenge had come! "I'm sorry, madam," he said coldly, "but it is against the rules of the bank for the cashier to cash cheques for perfect strangers. You must please, find someone in the town to identify you!"

His Holiness

Pope Pius XI.

SOME GLIMPSES OF HIS PRIVATE LIFE.

LONDON (Canadian Press)—Some interesting particulars of the private life of Pope Pius XI. in the Vatican are given by the Milan correspondent of the Times. His Holiness has chosen from his private apartments seven rooms on the third floor, overlooking the Piazza San Pietro. These are furnished with extreme simplicity, there being no carpets, no curtains, and no sign of luxury in them. In the bedroom there is a brass bedstead, above which hangs a picture of The Madonna of the Good Counsel; a mahogany chest of drawers, a small writing desk, and a cabinet in which his Holiness keeps his private papers. In the Pope's study is a large writing table, with a crucifix standing upon it. No books or reviews are to be seen here. Generally his Holiness does his writing in the great library, on the second floor. After he has finished with reviews or books which he himself has taken from here into the private apartment, he brings them back himself to their places with the methodical of the librarian. He does not like to see anything on his writing table, and on every hand there is evidence of his love for tidiness and order.

SETTING A PRECEDENT.

The Pope lives entirely isolated, in his private apartments, where no guard is on duty either day or night. Nobody sleeps near him. He has three servants, who take turns daily in waiting upon him. However he is particularly looked after by an old woman, whose introduction into the Vatican broke a long tradition, and aroused no little criticism among the Pope's entourage. This woman, commonly called La Signora Linda, who is now over sixty years of age, has been for forty years the faithful maid and companion of the Pope's mother. She was an orphan, and Signora Ratti took her out of a convent when still a girl. When Signora Ratti died, Linda, being alone, re-entered a convent, but when Cardinal Ratti came to Milan as Archbishop of the diocese he recalled her and made her his house-keeper. A few months later the Archbishop was elected pope, and Linda was on the point of returning to the convent when a telegram arrived from Rome ordering her to go and live at the Vatican. The decision of Pius XI. met with the respectful resistance of the Cardinals. "A woman in the Vatican, Your Holiness," it was remarked to him; "none of your predecessors have ever done such a thing." "Well," was the reply, "we will set a precedent for our successors." Those who know of the affectionate attachment of Pius XI. to his family, and particularly the great devotion he always showed to his mother, were not surprised to hear that, in spite of tradition and opposition, he made good his will. The result is that Signora Linda lives now in the Vatican on the third floor of the wing looking towards Montemario. Her official title is Mistress of the Wardrobe, and every day she orders the Pope's extremely frugal meals.

When is a Man a Gentleman?

"A gentleman is a man who does nothing but walk from public-house to public-house!"

That was how a police court witness defined a "gentleman." There are hundreds of other definitions. Some people associate the word with birth and breeding—others with conduct. The word nowadays has so many meanings that one cannot find any simple definition.

In law, however, "gentleman" has a very clear meaning. "Gentlemen" were absolutely defined, a "gentleman" was someone lawfully entitled to use a coat-of-arms.

Then arms practically went out of use. Many people bore them who were not entitled to, and many who were entitled to use them didn't. So, about this time, we find Acts of Parliament occasionally "throwing in," as it were, some other definition of a "gentleman."

Followers of certain of the professions, as, for instance, a surgeon, a barrister, a solicitor, and so forth, became recognized as "gentlemen" in these Acts. And the term, "a gentleman by Acts of Parliament" came into use. There were, of course, certain snobbish people who disliked to see such people calling themselves "gentlemen," and the saying, "Act of Parliament gentleman" came to be used as a sneer.

Soon, however, the classes mingled, and nowadays the expression is never heard. Since, however, for very many years Parliament has had no occasion to say who should or who should not be considered a "gentleman," the old definition still stands in strict law. So that the vast majority of us are not gentlemen!

Annual Outing.

COCHRANE ST. SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Cochrane Street Sunday School held its annual outing at Mount Pearl yesterday. A special train containing the officers, teachers, scholars and parents numbering over four hundred and fifty, left the station at 11 a.m. The weather was all that could be desired, and the grounds on which the picnic was held looked superb, the green foliage and river added much to the attraction of the place. The usual sports were taken up with a vim. Tea was served at four o'clock, and all did ample justice to the good things provided by the Regal Bakery Co. During the afternoon the grounds were visited by several visitors, including the Rev. James Wilson, Hon. S. Milley, Messrs. F. G. Bradley, S. R. Penny and others. The special thanks of the Committee of Management are especially due to Hon. S. Milley, who acted as a veritable "Santa Claus," amusing the youngsters by running off a series of races, also to Mr. Bradley for his very valuable assistance. The officers and teachers worked like trojans to make the day enjoyable for all present. Return to town was made at 8.30, all having enjoyed a very happy and pleasant outing.

Baby Week.

Yesterday's Conference at the Community Nurses' Rooms was devoted to ear, eye, nose and throat ailments, and the gathering was the largest since the opening of the affair. Mrs. J. A. Clift was hostess and the Community Nurses were assisted by Lady Herwood, Mrs. N. J. Wadden and Mrs. (Dr.) V. P. Burke. Doctors Knight, Fallon and Smith were in attendance and gave considerable advice. The usual procedure of weighing and examining the babies was carried out and in a large number of cases necessary treatment was prescribed.

At night the Methodist Guards Band rendered a delightful concert in Bannerman Park. There was a very large attendance present and the gate contributions will be devoted to Child Welfare work.

Mothers and children living on the high levels will have their Conference from 2 to 6 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. R. B. Job will be hostess. It is expected that a very large attendance will be in evidence. A large number of cars have been offered for its expense to attend a great deal of pleasure to the mothers who attended the conference.

The Limit.

Mary Jane's master is a slightly eccentric bachelor. He has one most irritating habit. Instead of telling her what he wants done by word of mouth, he leaves on his desk, or on the kitchen-table, or anywhere else where she is likely to see it, a note curtly directing her to "Dust the dining-room," or "Turn out my cupboard," and so on.

The other day he bought some newspaper, with the usual die-sunk addresser, and ordered it to be sent home.

Mary Jane took it in, and the first thing that caught her eye was a note attached to the package. She read it open-eyed.

"Well," she said, "he's asked me to do a few things in his blessed notes, but this is the limit. I won't stand it no longer!"

For the next read: "Die Inside This Package."

Origin of Newmarket and Ascot.

Horse racing has been the favorite sport of British Sovereigns ever since Hugh the Great brought over some "running horses as a gift to Athelstan, whose daughter he came to woo. In the time of Richard the "Lion Heart," horse-racing had established itself firmly as a sport, highly popular not only with Kings, but with Lords and Commons, great nobles acting as jockeys in races, the guerdon of which was "forty pounds of red gold." Henry VIII, we are told, was as fond of horse-breeding as he was of matrimony. He imported the finest animals money could buy, and founded the Royal Paddock at Hampton Court. The Stuart Kings took the turf still more enthusiastically under their wings. Under the Merry Monarch horse-racing assumed a popularity and splendour it had never before approached. It is to him that Newmarket owes its splendid history; for it was him that rescued it from obscurity and made it the mecca of the world of rank and fashion. Never, in fact, has any sporting town so basked in the sunshine of royal favor as Newmarket in the rollicking days of Charles II, who, year after year, transported his court there, to "dance and feast and revel." William III, who was a patron of the turf running his horses at Newmarket, founding an academy for riding, and giving pieces of plate to be raced for in all parts of the kingdom. It was Queen Anne as whose bidding Ascot was cradled, and who offered the first plate of 100 guineas that was run for on the Ascot Course on July 28, 1711, and her last dying wish was to live long enough to learn the result of a race for which she had entered her favorite horse, "Star." King Edward VII, did more for the British turf than any other man in its long history. He had to wait a long time for his own success, but when at last the tide of fortune turned it began to flow rich royally. Florizel II, reaped a rich harvest of stakes for him in 1894 and 1895, and "Perseus" brought him laurels, such as few others have even won—winning the Derby, St. Leger, Ascot Cup, the Eclipse stakes, and three other classic races in succession, and putting $34,700 in stakes alone in his owners pocket. Success followed fast on these and, as was fitting, the turf crowned with all its chief laurels the King to whom it owed more than to any of his Royal predecessors.

Wellington's Season.

The battle of Talavera, fought on July 27 and 28, 1808, converted Sir Arthur Wellesley into Lord Wellington; but owing to the incapacity of the Spanish General, Cuesta, and the incompetence of the Spanish Government, it had no material influence on the Peninsula War. The French, nominally under Napoleon's brother, King Joseph, but really directed by Marshal Jourdan and Victor, were repulsed in all their attacks and ultimately retired from the Allied front; but Wellington was unable to follow them, and soon, being threatened by the junction of all the French armies in that part of Spain, he was compelled to retreat into Portugal, leaving many of his wounded in the hospitals in the care of the French. In the two days' fighting, the Allies had lost 6,268 killed, wounded and missing, the French 7,238 killed and wounded, 156 prisoners, and 17 guns. Nor had any tangible benefit accrued from so much bloodshed. The normal result however, was valuable to Wellington, for the battle established the truth, overshadowed by the miscarriage of many of the English Government's ill-considered expeditions, that the English infantry could contend successfully against Europe's best soldiers. It at once gave them confidence in their leader and in themselves, and taught their enemies to respect them. Also, the campaign taught Wellington just how much value was to be attached to Spanish promises and made him resolve never again to expose his army to dire peril by placing reliance upon them. "I have fished in many troubled waters," he said, "but Spanish trouble have overcome difficulties enough, as to those of Spain, I will have no more to do with them." Thenceforward he was not to be beguiled into hazardous adventures by flimsy words but kept his own counsel and took his own course.

Not Guilty.

A clergyman, taking occasional duty for a friend in one of the moorland churches of a remote part of England, was greatly scandalized on observing the old verger, who had been collecting the offertory, quietly abstract a half-crown before presenting the plate at the altar rails. After service he called the old man into the vestry, and told him with emotion that his crime had been discovered. The verger looked puzzled. Then a sudden light dawned on him. "Why, sir, you don't mean that gold half-crown of mine? Why, I've 'led off' with it the last fifteen years."
