TEN HOURS IN AIR WITHOUT POWER WILL YET BE POSSIBLE

That is View of Orville Wright But Machines Must Be Larger and Stronger

Kitty Hawk, N. C., Nov. 10.—"There is no reason why an aeroplane cannot stay for ten hours without power as well as ten minutes and one second," said Orville Wright, the aeronaut.

Mr. Wright talked at length concerning his experiments and his ideas of flying machines, while making further tests with a motorless biplane which has given him such splendid results.

"When I say that there is no reason why a man cannot keep an aeroplane in the air for ten hours without power," continued Mr. Wright, "I do not wish to be put in the position of having my remark interpreted to mean that it can be done at once. It will mean a craft must be built larger and of stronger materials than we have at present at hand.

By this I mean a craft must be built larger and of stronger materials than we have at present at hand. It is true we could build the biplane stronger, but it will be expensive.

Mr. Wright talked at length concerning his experiments and his ideas of flying machines, while making further tests with a motorless biplane which has given him such splendid results.

SIR JOHN MILBANKE HAS OPTION ON THE MIRAMICHI MILL

Agents Inspect Pulp and Paper Factory and Seem Well Pleased—Report to England and Decision by Cable

(Special to Times) Chatham, N. B., Nov. 10.—Carl Riddon, of the Riddon paper mills in Ontario, and Charles Read of Ottawa, interested in several large pulp and paper manufacturing, arrived in town yesterday morning and proceeded at once to the Miramichi pulp mill, which they inspected.

Mr. Dick has been having no stone turned to get the mill in operation again, and is much pleased with the prospects at the present time. The report has to go to England before Sir John Milbanke's action in the matter can be known.

(Special to Times) Toronto, Ont., Nov. 10.—Alfred Jarvis, an Englishman, who engineered the whirlwind wedding and bought houses, autos and diamonds, was arrested last night at Webwood, and will be brought back to St. John for trial.

The young woman whom he married after a week's courtship still believes in him. Rev. J. D. Morrow, to whom he gave a bad check, does not.

STOLEN FLOWERS FROM BESIDE THE COFFIN

Montreal, Nov. 10.—While the widow was temporarily absent from the house, the "meanest thief" yesterday afternoon, entered the death chamber of H. Gagnon, killed on Saturday in a scuffle in the C. P. R. sheds, and stole the big wreath of flowers that had been sent by Gagnon's fellow employees.

PLANNED TALK TO HIS EMPLOYEES

No Troops When the Governor-General Makes Visit to Toronto

No Proper Uniforms, is the Reason Given and Arms and Accoutrements Have Been Turned in for Inspection

Toronto, Nov. 10.—Toronto will be obliged to welcome the Duke and Duchess of Connaught without the aid of the militia. This became known yesterday when the reception plans were being discussed by the civic legislation and reception committee.

It had been proposed to have the military line both sides of Yonge street from North Toronto station to the city hall, in honor of the coming of the commander in chief, but the military authorities decline to call on the men because they have not proper clothes to wear.

Mayor Geary vetoed a suggestion that outside regiments be called in.

THE EMPIRE

Sometimes in Canada, and particularly when we have an election on our hands, partisan politics causes some of our people to form alarmist views regarding the larger questions of Imperial outlook and policy.

Turning to Imperial matters, Mr. Asquith referred to the illustrious world-wide concourse which celebrated the coronation of foreign countries then witnessed in Westminster Abbey as impressive a demonstration as the annals of nations can afford of the unity of a great state, of the continuity of its history, of the assimilating and incorporating force which hold together a world-wide empire by ties of loyalty and liberty.

By a happy coincidence, he continued, "the year of the coronation was marked by the first meeting of the imperial conference. For the first time representatives of the great dominions were admitted to full confidence regarding the ends and methods of our foreign policy and to vote together the strategic aspects of the empire."

"We were able to come to a complete agreement concerning the reciprocal parts we were to take in its naval and military defence. The proceedings of the conference were marked by a significant advance in the policy of co-operation without centralization, which is growingly recognized to be the best safeguard of our imperial union and strength."

The United Kingdom has pressing upon it several delicate and even disturbing questions of domestic politics, but that has become almost its normal condition, and, while there is a troubled period ahead, leading groups in both parties will succeed in reaching reasonable conclusions regarding all of the graver problems. Meantime, Mr. Asquith's authoritative assurances as to the larger relations of the Empire must be received with the utmost satisfaction.

His tribute to Mr. Balfour, whom he describes as "the most distinguished member of the greatest deliberative assembly in the world," is a happily turned phrase, which gives voice at once to admiration and a ruling sense of justice.

HIGH SCHOOL FRATERNITIES

Mr. Payson Smith, superintendent of Schools for the State of Maine, calls upon high school principals and others to unite for the stamping out of fraternities and secret associations among the boys. The experience of the past, which has led many children to regard teachers as the natural enemy of youth, will be strengthened when the war begins on these modern boys' clubs.

If the imitation of college manners were no further than the founding of a club with mysterious titles and rites, with Druidic ceremonies and strange oaths, the high-school child might be humored in the performance. But it never stops there. It goes forward to extravaganzas which are injurious to the children and the school. The boys attempt to travel in all the beaten ways of men. They have their club-rooms, their smokers, their theatre parties, and in some cases when teachers try to enforce discipline against those "monkey-shines," the parents pay for lawyers to define and defend the rights of the boy.

Parents and teachers will have to cooperate to bring about the results desired. "Prosecution" merely strengthens juvenile resistance, and shrewd principals are converting the desire for secret societies into organizations for study with membership dependent on character and application. The American educators are taking the whole matter as seriously that they are about to convert comedy into a serious problem.

PRESENCE OF MIND

Dean Stanley used to tell of a curate who gloried in his presence of mind, and was fond of giving the following as an illustration of that quality. "A friend invited me to go out with him on the water. The sky was threatening, and I declined. At length he succeeded in persuading me, and we embarked. A small came on the boat lurched, and my friend fell overboard. Twice he sank, and twice he rose to the surface. He placed his hands on the prow and endeavored to climb in. There was great apprehension held he should upset the boat. Providentially, I had brought my umbrella with me. I had the presence of mind to strike him two or three hard blows over the knuckles. He let go his hold and sank. The boat righted itself and we were saved."

A less sombre and more agreeable example of presence of mind is furnished by a young reprober, who, pitching his voice so that the old gentleman would be sure to hear, said: "Father, let me have a hundred dollars." "Eh?" said the parent, inclining his ear. "Let me have two hundred dollars?" "Eh?" said the lad to the man who so deaf that he would not hear. "I heard you quite distinctly the first time, my son, quite distinctly," was the answer. Archbishop Whately is said to have thanked God, on his deathbed, that he had given a penny to indiscriminate charity. Before he indulged in this morbid self-congratulation, he was accosted once by a Dublin beggar whom he waved off with the words: "Go away, go away; I never give to anyone in the street," and received the instantaneous rejoinder, "Then where will your reverence have me wait on you?"

Another incident concerns an Irish workman whose landlady was collecting her rent. He pleaded long and unsuccessfully for an abatement, and exclaimed as he handed over his money, "Well, my lady, all I can say is that if I had my time over again it's not a tenant farmer I'd be. I'd follow one of the learned professions." The proprietress gently replied that even in the learned professions there were losses as well as gains, and perhaps he would have found professional life as precarious as farming. "Ah, my lady, how can that be?" replied the farmer. "If you're a lawyer—win or lose, you're paid. If you're a doctor—kill or cure, you're paid. If you're a priest—heaven or hell, you're paid."

ENDS LIFE WITH BULLET

Englishman in Hotel Astor Evidently Felt he Had Reached the End of the Contest

New York, Nov. 9.—A man who had travelled from Canada to Egypt, from Tokio to London, as the stickers on his luggage bore witness, but of whom nothing was known at the Hotel Astor, where he had been living, save that he had registered as "Maurice Stuart, San Francisco," and looked like an Englishman, was found dead with a bullet in his heart in his room on the fourth floor of the Astor. He had shot himself some hours before they broke into the room.

At studied leisure Maurice Stuart, if that was his real name, had removed from his effects and destroyed every mark or bit of writing or printed matter that would give evidence of his identity. Two marks only were left, one the label of a hatter in Los Angeles, and the other of a tailor's firm in London that stood out over numerous stickers and labels on his luggage that traced his zig-zag wanderings about the world, and it is believed that he did not overlook these bits of evidence, but regarded them as valueless. There evidently had been a long debate in the man's mind, before he decided that he should kill himself and leave the world to guess about his identity and the reason for his act. The shot from his revolver, fired from a steady hand and with sure aim, set the stage for a play of speculation on romance and mystery that would cause this man, not more than thirty-five years old, stalwart, and in robust health, and with every mark of good birth and easy walk in life, to elect to end his career in such a fashion.

There is hardly any question that Stuart was at the end of the immediate resources. He had only $2.00 in money, hardly enough to buy dinner, but his bill at the hotel had been paid. It was seemingly a question with him of whether at his age he should start and work his way up where manhood alone would count, or take the easier way by a quick shot, a spasm of pain, and what lies beyond the grave.

A pair of new overalls and a new hammer were in his trunk on top of evening clothes, walking suits, walking sticks, and shoes.

"STUCK" THE WALDORF

At the complaint of the Hotel Waldorf, New York, a youth describing himself as Alfred Attwater of Pittsfield, Mass., was arraigned the other day in a New York court. The issue between Attwater and the hotel management is a board bill.

The hotel people say that Attwater appeared there a few days ago with an engaging smile and a suit case. They also say that he was elegant in his tastes, and had fresh flowers sent to his room every morning and indulged in theatre tickets and taxicabs "on the house."

By Thursday, it is alleged, the young man was in the hotel's debt to the extent of $1810. A bill was sent to him but he ignored it.

Detective Smith took him to the West Thirtieth street police station, where he confided to Lieut. Nolan that he had come from Pittsfield, where he had been a grocery clerk, to get a better job. His money gave out while he was hunting for work. "I had to live some place, so I went to the Waldorf," the prisoner is said to have bitterly remarked. He was locked up.

THE FAITH OF A LITTLE CHILD

In his night gown clad, with his wee feet bare, He knelt in the clear moonlight And slowly and earnestly said his pray'r, Though keen was the frost that night.

And the moonbeams kissed with a tender grace The dear little kneeling form; 'Twas a picture for master hand to trace; Till nurse like a threatening storm.

Reentered the room—"prayers never yet said." She forthwith began to scold—"Such a night as this! quick, get into bed. No doubt you'll be chilled with cold."

But the child looked at her with sweet surprise—"Why, nurse, you are so odd! Don't you know (here tears filled his big eyes) 'I've just been talking with God'?"

"And I can't get cold 'cause He keeps me warm, I thought nurse, dear, you knew That He holds the lambs so's they get no harm, And I'm His little lamb, too."

God give us the faith of that little child, The love that will keep warm When the world is cold, when life-storms grow wild, To feel Thy encircling arm. Withorn. Jeannie Donnan.

The famous Father Healy, travelling on an English railway, once found himself opposite to a sour-looking individual, who after making some remark on the weather, proclaimed himself an atheist. The priest merely nodded his head, and then seemed absorbed in his book. The atheist, however, went on having an argument, and he proceeded to set forth his opinions, using expressions bordering on coarseness. Finally Father Healy looked up. "You, sir, as an atheist, believe in nothing?" he asked quietly. "I only believe what I can understand," replied the other. "It comes to the same thing!" said the priest blandly.

DROPS TITLE; IS MR. F. C. BURG

Brother of Emperor - Breaks From Royalty for Love of Girl

MEET AT BALL

Emperor of Austria Has Settled $8,000 a Year Upon Them—Not the Only One of His Family to Map Out His Own Career

(Times Special Correspondence.)

Vienna, Oct. 26.—When it was announced some time ago that the brother of Austria's future emperor was going to throw away his title for love of a girl with no title, it was understood that the romantic pair were waiting for the consent of Uncle Franz Joseph, the present emperor, who had indignantly refused when he first heard the plan. But it can be stated without danger of contradiction that they are already married, and that the emperor's belated benediction was a diplomatic swallowing of a fact that couldn't be altered.

The archduke has decided to call himself Ferdinand Charles Burg, and he and his wife will live quietly in Switzerland.

Ferdinand Karl, who is forty-three years old, made the acquaintance of Fraulein Ginter, a professor's daughter, who is 38 years of age, at a ball in Prague, where he was stationed on military duty. He fell in love with her at once and desired to renounce his royal rank there and then, but he was dissuaded by the old emperor and his brother. His love for the professor's pretty daughter remained unchanged, however, and he lost all interest in his duties. He resigned from the army and retired to his Tyrolean castle. A few months ago he re-opened the subject with the emperor and gained his consent, which was given at last with good will and was accompanied by a settlement of the pair of $8,000 a year.

Members of the Hapsburg house always have been noted for their unconventionality in matrimonial affairs. The old emperor himself has lived for years on affectionate terms with a woman who once was a famous actress. His only son, Archduke Rudolph, shot himself over a love affair and his widow, now Countess Louisa, contracted a marriage with a Hungarian count.

The story of Archduke Johann Salvator, who married Minnie Stueler, an actress, renounced his rank, and sailed away in a trading ship which he bought, never to be heard of again, is known to all the world. The recent heir to the throne, Franz Ferdinand, is married morganatically and his children are out of the line of succession to the throne.

In the Tuscan branch of the family there is the case of the ex-Crown Prince of Saxony who ran away from his husband and married Signor Teselli, a musician, and whose memoirs have just been published. Her brother, Archduke Leopold, renounced his rights to marry an actress and assumed the name of Leopold Walling.

Adjourned for Witnesses

Frederick, Nov. 9.—The preliminary hearing at Burton today in the case of John Amos Hudlin, colored, charged with the destruction of a hay press and wagon, the property of another, was adjourned until Monday morning next in order to procure additional witnesses. The property alleged to have been destroyed by Hudlin, consisted of a hay press and wagon which are said to have been burned by the accused. Four witnesses were examined this morning but nothing was brought out. Hudlin was arrested last week by Deputy Sheriff Winter of Fredericton. A charge of resisting arrest in this instance was dropped out of the case. Hudlin was fined during the summer for $700 for the value of property which he is alleged to have taken from the estate of the late James Hudlin. Hudlin resisted and it is said afterward burned the property of Currie. He was also said Hudlin threatened Currie with a gun but evidence to that effect was not sufficient to permit of a charge being made. DR. SHEARER TALKS ON CITY PROBLEMS

In Winnipeg, Points to Experience of Older Cities—The Housing Matter (Winnipeg Tribune)

The efforts of the Presbyterian church and particularly the Board of Social Service and Evangelism, to grapple with the several problems of the modern city, was again the subject of Rev. Dr. Shearer who last night occupied the pulpit of St. Paul's Presbyterian church. "As far as its resources permitted," he stated, "the church had endeavored to send the missionaries of the gospel out on the mountains and prairies wherever men went homeless or away from their families. This, however, it had not done as enthusiastically, as thoroughly, nor as effectively as it ought to have done. They were reading now the stationmaster's leadership of men like the late Dr. Robertson in this respect, whose reports were submitted from year to year. "A stage had now been reached in the development of the country not only in the east, but in the west, in the central west, the far and farthest west, where cities were springing up almost overnight and where population was assuming great proportions. This presented to the church its greatest, most difficult and most perplexing problem, the problem of the city. As these cities became settled up the tendency was for those who could to move to more desirable districts. But in the heart of the city land becoming increasingly expensive and population increasingly dense, the buildings became higher and higher where people were living to the limit of their revenue. This condition indicated the evils that flourished in the soil of the slums, and the most perplexing, the most serious problem in municipal life, in church life, or in national life. Where, thus, there was the greatest need for the gospel of the Nazarene was the church, he asked, marching away from it. He mentioned a district in New York which, when the population had increased more than 200,000, eighty-seven Protestant churches had moved out, resulting in the destruction of a home of vicious humanity. The influence that lifted men up was decreasing and those that dragged them down increasing. What had happened in New York was rapidly coming to Toronto and Montreal. What had happened in Chicago was happening in Winnipeg. What had happened in San Francisco was coming to Vancouver.

With the experience of the past to guide them, the people of this country would be more guilty than those of older cities if they did not profit by that experience.

HER REPLY.

"We were going along at a awful speed!" said a motorist, who was relating a strange experience with a dog and its mistress. "I didn't see the dog, but I heard his 'Kiki,' so I ordered the chauffeur to stop. Going back, we found an irate lady standing over her dead dog, one of the ugliest dogs you ever saw. She met us with a tirade of abuse, telling us in no uncertain manner what she thought of us and motorists in general, and finishing up by calling us the murderers of her dog. It was then that I thought I would pacify her. 'Madam,' I said, 'I will replace your dog.' 'Sir,' she said, in a freezing tone, 'you fatter yourself!'"

AFTER 29 YEARS PRISONER IN BELGIUM IS RELEASED AFTER BEING BEHIND DOORS SINCE 1882

Brussels, Nov. 10.—Leon Peltzer, who in 1882 was sentenced to imprisonment for life for the murder of M. Bernays, an Antwerp lawyer, has been pardoned by the minister of justice after a record detention in Louvain prison. Peltzer's brother, who was also convicted of having been concerned in the murder, had produced a quarter of a century ago. Peltzer, who has been ordered to depart from Belgium immediately, left for Cologne, where he met his mother, who is ninety-two years old.

On January 25, 1882, M. Bernays was found shot in a house in Brussels, the attention of the police being directed thither by the receipt of a letter signed "Vaughan," in which the writer said the lawyer had called on him, and in a discussion on the collection of firearms, he had produced a pistol for M. Bernays' inspection, and had accidentally killed him. Peltzer and his brother, both in the same position, were subsequently arrested, the former in Cologne. One of the Peltzers spent some time in America.

E. S. Hennigar His Leg Broken

Friends of E. S. Hennigar, past grand worthy patriarch of the S. of E. in New Brunswick, will regret to hear that he was the victim of a serious accident yesterday afternoon. Mr. Hennigar, some men employed repairing the chimney on Miss Annie Nixon's house, 131 Queen street, and was standing close to the chimney when suddenly the bricks close to the roof crumbled away and the chimney toppled over, striking Mr. Hennigar's left leg below the knee and knocking him down. He was released by the men and at once removed to his home, 25 Orange street, where Dr. W. V. White and Dr. L. A. MacAlpine found the bones broken in two places.

They advised his removal to the hospital and after this was done the bones were set with the patient under the influence of ether.

When he recovered his condition had improved and he rested easily during the night. Mr. Hennigar is a very well known throughout the province and the news of the accident will be received with sincere regret. His friends hope that he will show rapid improvement.

RUSSIAN ART A SURPRISE TO EUROPE

Exhibits Startle Critics Who Thought Czar's Land Was 'Coming On'

ROME EXHIBITION

"The Only Crown up Pictures for Grown up People"—Show Confined Entirely to the Work of Living Artists—Monk Who Became Painter

Copyright, 1911, in the United States by Curtis Brown. All British rights reserved.

Rome, Oct. 29.—In the Russian fine arts pavilion at the exhibition in Rome I overheard the beginning of a quarrel between two critics. One had made the state observation that Russia is coming to the fore in the art world, whereupon the other critic, after denying that "Russia is coming," unexpectedly added that "it is about time Russia is recognized as the only nation producing grown up art for grown up people."

The statement was a bold one. It served, however, as the first slide in the lantern, and I next saw a picture of the people who for the last ten years have been patting Russia on the head and exclaiming: "Why, how you've grown!" This attitude toward Russian genius in general is typical of the feeble appreciation of the Russian language itself is so difficult that rarely meet a Russian traveling abroad who cannot speak four or five languages fluently. We admit that he is clever, and then damn his cleverness by saying the Russian language is so difficult that there are other languages "come easier afterward."

A beautiful fallacy! Now, if English was as difficult as Russian, would there be more English and Kaiser's German than other languages? In that case we would claim it was all we could do to master our own language without learning others. The point is, we are ready to recognize the superiority of individual languages, but we are not national; then we discount it or minimize it with unconscious patriotism.

On other hands, the Russian committee, in its attempt to make the exhibition a success, has selected the work of all deceased men. Wonderful, one of the greatest artists Russia has produced, who died last year, is represented, as are Levitan and Borisov-Musatov, who died not long ago. Another painter, C. Kryzinski, who committed suicide only last April, is unrepresented. This artist, owing to the poetical quality of his work, had great success until he was accused last spring of cribbing his compositions from other painters. Though the crime is a common one among artists, he promptly hanged himself after the accusation.

The work of those artists represented not only has a strength, but a freshness that is particularly absent in the French exhibit. On entering the French pavilion you feel as if you were in a large, stuffy railway station that you have been in many times before. There are the same faces and the same strains for effect and the same few "snappy bits."

And the American pavilion! While wandering through the exhibition grounds an American architect, now studying at the Beaux Arts in Rome, stopped me to ask if I had seen the "babies" yet. As I had not, he led me to a building that looked like a comfortable dry nursery, before which, in the front yard, were several small statues standing like well-behaved children, scarcely seen and not heard. It was the American pavilion.

"Why," I asked, "should this represent America?" "It is because we are still a young nation."

"Not at all," he assured me. "It is because the time, money and energy of the nation has been more in producing one perfect thing—the American woman. She represents us abroad. That is why the government would not feel called upon to erect a decent building here."

The Russian pavilion is an imposing example of what is called imperial architecture in Russia, a style evolved during the

NOT PLEASED AT TERMS OF SETTLEMENT

Kaiser's Sons Show Dissatisfaction Over Morocco Business

Berlin, Nov. 9.—Imperial Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg vigorously defended the Franco-German Moroccan agreement in a fifteen minute speech in the Reichstag. The German government, he said, had obtained all it set out to obtain. He denied having retreated from the original German position, and added that in any event Morocco was not worth fighting for.

The crown prince and many notable listeners to the chancellor's speech, there was a noticeable lack of enthusiasm among them and no doubt exists that the country generally is much dissatisfied with Germany's bargain. It is more than likely, his explanation having evidently failed to give satisfaction, that the chancellor and Foreign Minister Kiderlin-Waechter will ultimately be forced to resign.

Several statements, it is reported, exist between the Kaiser and his sons as a result of the decision. The latter are said to have been very angry at the decision, and to have expressed their disapproval to their father against the Moroccan agreement. Whatever his own views, it is understood, the Kaiser is not prepared to undertake to give him advice, and if they are not satisfied with the agreement, they must acquiesce in it.

Crowded Galleries.

The galleries of the Reichstag were crowded when the chancellor rose to speak. He began by taking up the reports that the dispatch of the German gunboat Panther to Agadir was a "piece of paper out of the sky" and that Germany planned to acquire territory in southern Morocco.

Before sending the warship to Agadir, Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg said he had proposed that France and Germany should negotiate for the purpose of reaching a basis for the recognition of France's sovereignty in Morocco, the economic and colonial position. France, however, ever, avoided positive proposals, and the gunboat Panther then was necessary, and the acquisition of Morocco. The despatch of the gunboat Panther then was necessary, and the acquisition of Morocco.

Germany Has No Need to Threaten.

Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg discussed the resignation of the secretary of state for the colonies, Dr. Lindqvist, who had refused to appear in the Reichstag in defense of the Morocco-Congo agreement, and then passed to the acquisition of Morocco, maintaining that German preparations were sufficient to meet any emergency.

Of the older masters, Ila Repin, a professor of the Academy of St. Petersburg, is obviously the most talented. Like Repin, he is a great portrait painter; but, unlike Repin, he doesn't know how to paint a landscape. He is a portrait painter probably the greatest of the many portraits of the author that have been painted. "I am not a landscape painter," he said. "I am a portrait painter." He has a wide reputation as the enemy of all young artists who wish to exploit any originality.

At New Afon, a monastery in the Caucasus, there were several years ago a monk who showed some talent for painting. He was persecuted by Vladimir, the president of the St. Petersburg Academy, to give up his life as a religious painter. He became an artist. Since then Philip Malaiavin has become one of the greatest Russian painters. His portrait of an Old Woman is a masterpiece. Another portrait of a Russian, and Malaiavin is the three artists of Russian impossible to identify with any more than to call them by their names.

The first group of artists that should be mentioned is called the Travelers. Fifty years ago a number of men formed a society for the purpose of exhibiting their canvases throughout Russia. It was the first attempt at organizing shows in different cities, and they became known as the Travelers. They were, furthermore, the first to break away from classical traditions by painting realistic subjects. Customers still are possessed with the idea of fifty years ago and continue to paint painted photographs of interiors with fits on the wall and the stiches in the ceiling plainly visible. The pictures painted by these obsolete men are an interesting contrast to those painted by the younger generation. Konstantin Makovskiy is now the president of the Travelers. His younger comrades claim that they find "too much smile" in his scenes of gay peasant life. Many years ago Makovskiy married one of the most beautiful women of St. Petersburg, who has since been of great assistance in his work. His son, a poet and art critic, is called the Apollo, in which periodical may be found favorable criticisms of the Travelers' shows.

One of the most interesting groups of Russian artists is that known as the Retrospectivists. A short time ago an admiration was awakened for the queer old Russian buildings and their pictorial possibilities. When one thinks of the respect which early architecture commands in other countries it is surprising to find the same sentiment in Russia still in its infancy. Georg Lukomski is probably the most talented of these Retrospectivists. His feeling for composition and decoration combined with his crisp architectural style give his canvases an inevitable quality unsurpassed by the other men working on the same lines. Lukomski, furthermore, has only exhibited two years; he is 26, still studying in the Academy, and is also a journalist on the Apollon. Roerich is another Retrospectivist who paints towns as they might have been during the days

GIRL KIDNAPPED

Returning from Mass., is Seized by Brigands—Reward of $2,000 Offered

Turin, Nov. 10.—Signorina Laura Abbate, the 20-year-old daughter of a wealthy merchant at Palermo, has been kidnapped by brigands in broad daylight in one of the main thoroughfares of the Sicilian capital. While returning home from mass in the company of her aunt the girl was seized by a powerful ruffian who had several accomplices, and was bundled into a cab which was waiting. The aunt and most of the bystanders were dumfounded, and two eyewitnesses who sought to rescue the victim were beaten off with knotted whips by a couple of coaches.

The police managed to get the affair under control, but the kidnappers have not been traced. They offer $2,000 reward to anyone giving information that may lead to the discovery of the girl's whereabouts.

ASK MORE MONEY FOR CARRYING MAILS

Case Presented to Railway Commission in Ottawa by Railways

The most important application to come up at Monday's session of the Railway Commission in Ottawa was the consideration of the question of remuneration to be paid railway companies for carrying the Canadian mails. The original contracts with the railways were nearly all made years ago, that of the C. P. R. being executed in 1885 and with the Grand Trunk Railway much earlier. Since then, the railways claim the increase in mail has been one of about 800 per cent, while the train service has increased 400 per cent. Their remuneration, they consider, should increase along the same scale.

When the case was called P. H. Gibbons, of the justice department, rose for a postponement until January 23, which was granted.

One of the Most Important Questions to Consider in the Search for Happiness and Health. The burning question to you is, "Are you getting out of life all the pleasure and health you are entitled to?"

No matter whether every organ and member of your body is in a sound state of health and strength, if your stomach is in any way disordered, you are not going to be "yourself."

The world wants to smile and be cheerful, and unless you are cheerful and smile, at least, occasionally, you will have few friends, fewer opportunities, no success and you will go down in defeat—defeated by dyspepsia and a bad stomach.

Government Head Gives Clear Exposition of Great Britain's Foreign Policy, Basing Speech on Moroccan Agreement—Explores Recent Strike in England

London, Nov. 9.—A new lord mayor of London, Sir Thomas Hoar Crosby, M. D., was inducted into office today and at the lord mayor's banquet tonight Premier Asquith made his fourth successive speech in honor of such an occasion.

The prime minister gave a clear exposition of Great Britain's foreign policy. The Moroccan agreement was the topic, and he furnished a special opportunity, the premier's remarks coming opportunely as a reply to the speech of the imperial German chancellor in the Reichstag today.

Turning to internal matters, Mr. Asquith referred to the ill-fated world-wide conference which celebrated the coronation of King George V. He said that the representatives of foreign countries then witnessed in Westminster Abbey an impressive demonstration as the annals of nations can afford.

By a happy coincidence," he continued, "the year of the coronation was marked by the first meeting of the imperial conference. For the first time representatives of the great dominions were admitted into full confidence regarding the ends and means of our foreign policy and surveyed together the strategic aspects of the empire."

REV. A. D. REID OF SAULT STE. MARIE IS CHOICE OF CHURCH

St. David's Congregation Votes to Extend Call to Him—An Interesting Meeting

The congregation of St. David's Presbyterian church here last evening elected a unanimous call to Rev. Andrew D. Reid, of Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.).

The suggestion was made that Dr. Reid should be invited to preach at the next meeting of the general assembly which will be held at Sault Ste. Marie on Nov. 15th and 16th.

At a meeting subsequently held, the chairman, Father Corcoran, announced that he had received a letter from Shaw Trenchard, agent for Lord Clarendon, stating that Lord Clarendon had intimated through him to the Congested District Board that he was prepared to receive and consider a reasonable offer for his property.

Everybody in England and Ireland knew that Home Rule was coming. Those who were opposed to home rule had staked their last hope on disunion among Irish Nationalists themselves.

NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY LECTURE COURSE OPENED

The ladies of St. John have a treat in store for them if all the lectures provided by the ladies' association of the Natural History Society are as delightful as the opening lecture yesterday. It was fitting, Mrs. E. R. Scovil said, that the course on famous cathedrals should be devoted to the cathedral of Rochester.

Recent Labor Troubles

"At home during the year there had been a succession of troubles between labor and capital which in some cases has led to a resort to the barbarous methods of industrial and violent warfare."

Looking ahead, he said, there was much to arouse anxiety. China was in the throes of revolution. It would be rash and improper to hazard an opinion on the outcome, but he was glad to say that so far as foreigners and British subjects were concerned there seemed no reason to apprehend immediate danger.

Italian-Turkish War

"Nearer home the peace of Europe is unhappily disturbed by the war between Italy and Turkey in regard to which we have declared and intend to pursue a policy of strict neutrality. Many have strongly desired that we should make an effort at mediation. Some were more anxious than the government, if the opportunity arose. (Loud cheers.)"

BOY AND 12 HORSES BURN

Guy Nelson, Aged Fourteen Victim in Disastrous Fire Outbreak in Woodstock

(Special to Times.) Woodstock, N. B., Nov. 10.—Guy Nelson, a colored boy, lost his life in a fire which destroyed a large wooden block in Connel street early this morning and which was under control about half-past three. The fire started in Johnston's stable, about one o'clock, and before the department arrived, the building was a mass of flames. There were twelve horses and several wagons and sleighs and a coach in the stable, and everything was destroyed. It was in this part of the building that Nelson perished in the flames. He was living with his sister, Mrs. Wis. He was probably suffocated before help arrived. He was fourteen years of age, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Nelson. The building was occupied by J. N. Tompkins, hotel; H. E. Burt, storeroom; Geo. Johnston, livery stable; J. A. McElae, farm machinery; International Harvester Company and R. S. Corbett, engineering supplies.

The fire was stopped at the west by the hotel of Neil McKinnon, and to the east by the Cole brick block, occupied by Hamilton Bros. and Clark & Johnston, and a school room up stairs. The buildings on the northern side of the street were saved by keeping water on them continuously. This spot was considered for many years as a fire trap dreaded by the firemen. R. H. Corbett, who conducted a bicycle repairing shop, lost his entire stock, and the International Harvester Co's warehouse had a large stock of farm machinery on hand. There was no time to save anything, but there was probably ample insurance. Geo. Johnston was quite badly burned above the face and hands in trying to save a valuable stallion. Following is the insurance carried: Geo. Johnston, $1,000 on building in Phoenix; Miss Jessie McDonald, $1,000 on building in Springfield; William Fish, $2,000 on building in Western; Mrs. J. L. Tompkins, $800 with New York Underwriters; C. I. Churchill, $300 in New York Underwriters; George Johnston $1,000 on stallion in General Animal Insurance Co.; H. E. Burt, $1,000 in Atlas.

Inquiry for Information About Man Supposed to Have Been Born Here The registrar of births has received an inquiry from Chillingley, Sussex, England, from a sister of the late Frederick Craik-shank, asking for a certificate of the registration of his birth. He has lately died in Persia, leaving a large estate, which is now being claimed by the heirs and the certificate is required in connection with the settlement of the estate.
