He urged for-bearance upon the part of those who were dissatisfied, pointed out the care with which the tariff measure had been drawn up and assured the house that it would factorize negotiations for Russian and other treaties. The emperor," said the chancellor, "has approved the bill. It is the outcome of the requirements of German economic life, and is intended, while giving so far as possible equal consideration to all interests, to meet, above all, the wishes for increased protection manifested by the agriculturalists, the justice of which within the limits prescribed by due regard for the commonwealth, cannot be disputed.

"The measure, also, is intended to furnish a better weapon for future commercial treaty negotiations with other states."

The bill, therefore, is not a departure from the policy of tariff treaties."

The statement caused exclamations from the Leftists.

London, Dec. 1—The correspondent of the Times at Pretoria says that, in order to cope with the large number of Boers who keep in touch with General Louis Botha east of the line of blockhouses from Wilge River to Greylingstad, 12 British columns are operating between the Delagoa and Natal railways. In order effectually to clear this large area of Boers new lines of blockhouses are being built. In the Western Transvaal the columns under Methuen, Kekewich and Hicke are sweeping the country in conjunction with the Methuen, Kekewich and Hicke are sweeping the country in conjunction with the forces on the railway line and the constabulary posts. It seems, says the correspondent, that blockhouses are to form the chief factor in the pacification of the country. The new lines of blockhouses will soon entirely free the Pretoria-Johannesburg centre of the enemy. The concentration of the British columns south of the Delagoa railway has withdrawn the troops north of the line with the result that the Boers are back again in that neighborhood, where horse sickness and fever do not prevail, and food is plentiful. Fifteen Years in Dorchester Penitentiary.

Amherst, Nov. 29—(Special)—This morning John A. McCarthy, who was found guilty of the charge of manslaughter for killing Charles McAulay, at Pugwash, on October 31, was brought into court for sentence. T. S. Rogers, counsel for the prisoner, made a strong appeal before sentence was passed, calling attention to the circumstances connected with the sad affair, the previous good character of the prisoner as proved by the evidence of such men as Job H. Seaman, C. W. Hewson, M. D., P. L. McDonald and others who voluntarily took the stand to give evidence in his behalf; also that the prisoner, being a married man with four small children depending upon him, he pleaded for the elemency of the court in the sentence to be imposed.

His honor, addressing the prisoner, said that everything possible had been done in his case by counsel and friends. It was a matter of doubt whether the case should have been tried before him or in a higher court where the prisoner might have been indicted for murder. In this large county, his honor said, he had had only two cases of murder and five of manslaughter. He did not intend imposing as long a sentence as some of the prisoners he had for manslaughter. He had sympathy for the prisoner but as a judge he owed a duty
