A few days ago a fly flew into the ear of John Lord, who lives near Athens, Ga. He got the insect out almost immediately and thought no more about it. The next day he was awakened in the night by a violent itching in the ear. The itching soon became a pain, and that increased until he could not sleep. He consulted a doctor, who, with considerable difficulty, brought out eleven maggots, which had hatched from the egg laid by that fly during its brief stay in Mr. Lord's ear.

Not Fasting. A physician tells me that chewing gum is a habit which grows upon children, and which parents should not tolerate in children. "If it were not for chewing tobacco," I make no objection to the use of chewing gum, but it is a habit which should be discouraged in children. "A girl will do enough chewing gum to make a world of gum to mingle her food for a week. The habits of the jaw are made for the ordinary work of ordinary life, and they will stand any amount of chewing gum, but they will not stand any amount of chewing tobacco."

It is a very interesting showing that the bureau of mining statistics makes in its report of the production of metals in the United States for 1887. The total value of the output of our mines is set down at $358,000,940—figures which compare with values in other departments of production. It is interesting to estimate the amount of labor that went to the making of this enormous sum. The census of 1880 ranked the miners some 234,268 persons, not including 7,840 well operators, and not counting at all those engaged in the care of mining machinery. It would probably be safe to put at 300,000 the number of those who are now directly engaged in all departments of mining, and such a calculation may at least serve as a basis for determining the productive value of the army of laborers thus employed.—The Epoch.

How Senatorial Speeches Are Timed. President pro tem. Ingalls uses the fashionable time glass to measure the five minute speeches of the senators. When the senator begins the glass is started, and when the sand has all run out he is stopped promptly. The other day a senator who thought his five minutes were nearly up, told him that the glass was still running. "The chair is guided entirely by this glass," said Ingalls firmly, leading up the twin bulbs with the sand all over the lower one. As the president pro tem. is almost as absolute as a baseball umpire, nothing more was said. As Ingalls remarked afterward to another senator, "It is not a matter of trust the senate."—Philadelphia Record.

Gravestones Sitting for St. Peter. Almost every photographer's studio of any importance in the country has, at one time and another, been visited by some notable person, and there are not a few in the business who can tell very amusing stories about the whims of greatness when it sits for its picture. Politicians and members of the legislature are not, as a general thing, hard on the subject, but actors, ministers, literary people and artists are in bad favor with the lengths of the camera.—Chicago News.

Not Fasting. A physician tells me that chewing gum is a habit which grows upon children, and which parents should not tolerate in children. "If it were not for chewing tobacco," I make no objection to the use of chewing gum, but it is a habit which should be discouraged in children. "A girl will do enough chewing gum to make a world of gum to mingle her food for a week. The habits of the jaw are made for the ordinary work of ordinary life, and they will stand any amount of chewing gum, but they will not stand any amount of chewing tobacco."

It is a very interesting showing that the bureau of mining statistics makes in its report of the production of metals in the United States for 1887. The total value of the output of our mines is set down at $358,000,940—figures which compare with values in other departments of production. It is interesting to estimate the amount of labor that went to the making of this enormous sum. The census of 1880 ranked the miners some 234,268 persons, not including 7,840 well operators, and not counting at all those engaged in the care of mining machinery. It would probably be safe to put at 300,000 the number of those who are now directly engaged in all departments of mining, and such a calculation may at least serve as a basis for determining the productive value of the army of laborers thus employed.—The Epoch.

How Senatorial Speeches Are Timed. President pro tem. Ingalls uses the fashionable time glass to measure the five minute speeches of the senators. When the senator begins the glass is started, and when the sand has all run out he is stopped promptly. The other day a senator who thought his five minutes were nearly up, told him that the glass was still running. "The chair is guided entirely by this glass," said Ingalls firmly, leading up the twin bulbs with the sand all over the lower one. As the president pro tem. is almost as absolute as a baseball umpire, nothing more was said. As Ingalls remarked afterward to another senator, "It is not a matter of trust the senate."—Philadelphia Record.

Gravestones Sitting for St. Peter. Almost every photographer's studio of any importance in the country has, at one time and another, been visited by some notable person, and there are not a few in the business who can tell very amusing stories about the whims of greatness when it sits for its picture. Politicians and members of the legislature are not, as a general thing, hard on the subject, but actors, ministers, literary people and artists are in bad favor with the lengths of the camera.—Chicago News.

Juvenile Astronomical Lore. A young man home from college, wishing to improve his little knowledge with a view to his learning, pointed to a star and said, "See, do you see that little twinkling star? It is the planet Venus." "No, it isn't," said his father. "It is the planet Venus, and it is the planet Venus, and it is the planet Venus." "Then why don't you keep the rain?" was the triumphant rejoinder.—New York Evening World.
