That several of the large fire insurance companies have decided to refuse new business in London until the water question is settled was proven conclusively today, when one of the leading fire insurance agents in the city showed The Advertiser a copy of his instructions.

The inspector, whose name is signed to the document, distinctly states that the company wants no new business in the down-town sections, espe-

However, he does not confine himself merely to down-town, but further adds that no new business shall be accepted from the eastern section of the city, and little from West and South London districts. THE PRESCRIBED AREAS.

The complete section would be bounded roughly by ther iver on the west, Maple street on the north as far as Richmond; Queen's avenue east as far as the East End, and the eastern limits as far south as Chelsea Green, and then west along the river.

These leave but little of the city left, as the letter distinctly mentions that no business shall be received from South London or West London. In brief, practically no new business will be received from the city of

NOT THE ONLY ONE.

"I am not the only agent who has received these circulars," said the agent. "Practically every one of the other agents have received a similar letter, and it means that we will take very little new business for some time to come

"The inspector of the company I referred to has been in the city, and he has looked the situation over. He has been in East London, and he has been over the whole ground. He has come to the conclusion that the situation does not warrant his companies taking any chances. I understand that the inspectors of the other companies involved will also make a similar report.

NOT ENOUGH WATER. The chief complaint is that there is not enough water. All the water the city can get comes through an 18-inch main, which is manifestly not adequate for a city the size of London,

"Of course, the insurance men are committed to a high-pressure sys-That is the system they recognize, and there is no doubt that it is the best from their standpoint. However, the question is not settled, and until the city of London gets more water and increased pressure the companies will not take any great risks. Of course, these are my instructions, and I must follow them."

Several other agents were approached, and some admitted that they had instructions to take no more new business. Others said that they had definite instructions to reduce some lines, while others again denied that there was any move to cut down the risks.

SOME FIGURES

Statistics on the insurance situation in London are of interest in this connection, and it is well to note that during the ten years from 1897 to 1906, the amount of insurance has not increased $15,000. But during the decade there was considerable fluctuation.

In 1897 the total insurance amounted to $417,620. In 1906 the amount was

The highest point was reached in 1903, when the total was $713,000. Since then it has been decidedly reduced until now it is $430,000. There are no figures available for the present year, but the agent admits that the total insurance is not much greater than it was in 1906, if any

The total loss during the ten years from 1897 to 1906 was $823,742, or an average of 16 per cent of the insurance during that time.

The total loss in 1906 was $48,400, while last year it was about $40,000. This is about 10 per cent of the total amount of insurance, and is not anything of which the insurance companies should be so seriously afraid. misfortunes of some Canadian woolen Government to keep in touch with the manufacturers to German competition. Even upon the trifling German the success of his mission depends the imports of $813,694, duties of $371,674 appointment of similar commissioners Journals like the Free Press are too cowardly to face the question squaretion, not of German. These men demand an increase of the tariff direct ly aimed at Yorkshire, although British goods already have to climb over a 30 per cent tariff wall.

The situation is very disconcerting to the Imperial pose of the Conservative party in this country, and its professions of loyalty to the Chamberlain

One result is a ludicrous exhibition of shuffling and squirming on the part of the Conservative press. The Toronto News, for example, in one breath calls for an increase of the duties on British woolens, and in the next breath advocates the election of a Conservative Government, so that if tariff reform wins in Great Britain there will be an administration at Ottawa "thoroughly committed to the encouragement of imperial unity by means of reciprocal inter-imperial as we have seen, dodges the issue by an impudent resort to falsehood. The Galt Reporter frankly declares for higher woolen duties without any hypocritical pretence of Imperial sentiment. The Orangeville Sun. also staunchly Conservative, says the people want lower, not higher, duties. The low tariff sentiment prevails, ignore the matter. The Opposition leader seems to be afraid of it, as he has not expressed an opinion. If he realizes the inconsistency of his lip-loyalty to the project of inter-imperial preferences with the present clamor for the raising of barriers against British trade, he is more scrupulous than some of his followers.

TRIBUTE TO THE RAILWAY COM-

A significant tribute to the wisdom and courage of the present Dominion Government in undertaking the regulation of the railways of the country by means of a commission is paid by Mr. Wm. Whyte, second vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. In an article in the current number of Canada West, Mr. Whyte. who is his company's chief executive officer in the west, frankly acknowl- is a double assurance that public quesedges the success of the Dominion tions will be well ventilated. railway commission's work. The Government, he points out, while recognizing that additional transportation facllities were of vital importance, yet cient railway regulation was an absolute necessity to the development of the west, and instead of resorting to dilatory tactics, it met the situation face to face. The Government's policy of regulation was founded on the lines of justice, and the administration of the act in that spirit was calculated to earn the approval of all parties affectedy. It did not take the railroads the act was for the benefit of both the bow-legged at the same time. powers of the commission, which give it a unique character, are thus sum-

The powers of the railway commission under the railway act are infinitely greater and more clearly defined than are those of the interstate commerce commission under the interstate commerce act, and, in comparison, the latter seems ridiculously weak and ineffectual. The power of the railway commission within its jurisdiction over the railways in Canada is absolute, and its duties and powers are set forth in the rail-

The first requisite in playing the man, said the preacher, was manhood itself. Men must have a lofty conception of their possibilities, and of their powers. They must have a calling in which they take pride and which they fill out with the best that is in them. The lessons to be learned from the men who died at the post of duty were that they had a calling in which they felt pride and which they followed with the very best manhood that was in them.

The second requisite was culture. Men must be good at heart. A Good Chief.

"The men who followed their chief to death on Tuesday, must have realized that he was a good fellow," said Mr. Locke, "and as a result they were willing to follow him anywhere, even to the worst of deaths." The next requisite was courage Every man in order to play the man must be courageous. The men who question is answered by readers, who died last week exemplified the greatlace Florence Nightingale at the head of est courage. They were fearless in the list. died at their post of duty. The interests of others demanded that they take chances in the pursuit of their duty, and this they did, not reckoning the cost." Patriotic Men.

"London's men, of all the cities I have been in, knew how to be patriotic," said Mr. Locke. "Patriotism is painted on your sidewalks, your public institutions and your marvellous hospitality, which alone the visitor can comprehend. You have men who will sacrifice themselves for the good of their country and of their city.

"On Tuesday last they reckoned not of their clothes or their lives, but went willingly and gladly to serve. They were paid men, some of them, but always did more than they were paid for, and no amount of money can repay the sacrifice. Another volunteered and worked manfully and well, laying down his life for the cause of duty. It was patriotic. It was noble." Men to play the man must be religious, they must serve God. He is the mainspring of human endeavor. The interests of humanity are his interests, and he knows what is best

Sunday's sermons in the churches were marked by many feeling references to the disaster last week, which cost the lives of three brave men, and many sincere and heartfelt messages of sympathy were extended to the surviving relatives.

> Mexico City, Aug. 22. - Excitement was caused at police headquarters here yesterday by the receipt of a letter from Pittsburg, written ostensibly by a member of the "Black Hand," and threatening the life of Judge Juan Puerz de Leon. The envelope in which the missive was inclosed bore the printed inscription of a Pittsburg hotel. Judge de Leon was the magistrate who recently sent two American men to prison charged with robbing a bank messenger .- It is believed here that they are members of a dangerous criminal band, who worked in various capitals, and that the alleged "Black Hand" letter was from their confederates, who escaped and returned to Pittsburg. The police of Pittsburg will be asked to trace the sender.

WONDERFUL WORK OF COLLIE DOG

The Unique Exhibition of Canine Sagacity of English Agricultural Show.

London, Aug. 22.—Three short, sharp whistles from the Westmoreland shepherd on the hilltop and the longhaired sheep dog at his heels raced away down the slope to round up three stupid, staring sheep and drive them through many obstacles to a pen a quarter of a mile away in six minutes.

It was at the agricultural show at Petworth, on the Sussex uplands, that moreland had come to show their fellows on the South Downs how to thing but speak, and can do the work of two men in shepherding.

The twelve courses were run first through a confined gap with a line of hurdles, then along a narrow flagmarked track. This was the way the sheep had to be driven. Three sheep went to each dog, the shepherd being roped to a stake in the centre and of his home. An examination was controlling his dog by whistles of made of the remains, and from the different length and quick gestures of condition of the body it is believed the arms.

The result was marvellous. The dogs this morning and went out and hanged understood the language of whistles himself. sheep. A long whistle, down and stop. Two short whistles, drive straight. "One man," said this old shepherd, with two good dogs can manage two thousand sheep. They are better shepherds than men. I have known one of our sheep dogs rescue a sheep from a bog where no man would venture. We train our dogs from puppies, and in sixteen months they are usually good at work. They are specially bred, and show an instinct for shepherding from the first. They are the best dogs in the world." employes of the company C. P. R. officials say that a small number of strikers returned to work on Friday, and 100 mechanics were taken on. As to the strike interfering with the running company points out that since it started they have been able poarded at the meeting of the London average of 1,500 miles each, with 23,000 harvesters, to send cars west to handle the grain, and still to keep up with their ordinary passenger and freight business in such a manner that there have been practically no complaints.

In view of this it was stated at the P. R. headquarters today that there was little likelihood of any difficulty in handling the western grain when it start ed moving, as by that time the company would have completely recovered from any inconvenience which was caused by so many men going out in a body.

Bell Hardy, the leader of the C. P. R. strikers, announced at noon today that 60 brassworkers at the Angus shops had a crowd of them were around the union headquarters to confirm this statement.

PLUMBERS' PICNIC A BIG SUCCESS

Pleasant Time Spent at the Lakeside By a Large Crowd.

The annual picnic of the Plambers' and Steamfitters' Union, No. 289, was held at Port Stanley on Saturday. There was a large attendance of plumbers and their friends, and an excellent time was had by all. A baseball match between Plumbers and Carlings' Brewing Com-City and District pany was a most exciting event, and was won by the Brewers by the score

The Plumbers and Steamfitters also had a tug-of-war that caused no end of excitement. The Plumbers had the better pull and won after a hard strug-

Lloyd-George's Trip to Germany

Berlin, Aug. 22. - David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the British exchequer, who has been on the continent for some days past, continued his inquiries regarding social legislation today. He visited a number of insurance offices in Berlin and received specialists from the Government department of pension administration. He is to leave here for Hamburg tonight.

It now seems that the question of naval armaments has not been mentioned between Mr. Lloyd-George and the statesmen of Germany, and that the whole idea that Mr. Lloyd-George came to Germany on a special mission to discuss an agreement regarding the reduction of marine armaments as a sequence to the meeting of King Edward and Emperor William appears to be without foundation.

The chief was a man who figured very much in the newspapers, but there is not a newspaperman in London who will say that he ever sought notoriety in this manner. He was a public character in a position which threw him very much into the limelight, and he was given the credit he deserved, for newspapermen were in a position to judge him and know what was going on.

Chief Clark was a man who had the confidence of every council which ruled the city during the time he lived here. And more than that, he ex-Mayor Little, ex-Mayor Beck, ex-Mayor Campbell, ex-Mayor Judd, Col. tion. Gartshore, Philip Pocock, Hon. C. S. Hyman-in fact, of almost every pubpolitics.

He set rules for his men, and he never violated them himself. One was that the men must not smoke in uniform on the street. And no man in London ever saw the chief smoke a cigar or pipe on the streets.

He was not a temperance man, but he laid down the rule that the men must not enter a barroom while in uniform. And all the time he was in London he never set foot in a barroom, unless a fire had broken out in it.
