WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER VIII. "Too Late!"

"You have not detained me at all," responded the squire, in his quiet, direct way. "I am an old man, and am delighted to meet with one so well informed, and, permit me to add, so good a talker as yourself. You must have seen a great deal of life, Mr. Faradeane."

A grave look seemed to settle for a moment on the handsome face, and the dark eyes grew momentarily sadder, and the squire instantly saw that he had touched a tender spot; but almost immediately the younger man replied, with a smile:

"Yes, more than most men of my years, sir."

"I am afraid you will find Hawkwold rather dull, and the inhabitants very old fogies; but we must do our best to amuse you. I don't know whether you care for fishing; if you do, I hope you will fog the river as often as you please. I am afraid to say how long it is since I threw a fly."

"Thank you," said Mr. Faradeane. "Yes, I am an angler."

"And in the autumn I can promise you some fair shooting. The keepers tell me that the birds are looking well. I hope you intend staying with us. We've a very good pack of foxhounds, and I know that you ride, for I have heard one of my grooms expatiating on the fine qualities of your horse."

"Thank you, again, sir," said Mr. Faradeane. "He is a fairish hunter, and a very good companion. Yes, I intend remaining for some time, I like Hawkwold. I have purchased The Dell, as you may have heard."

"Es," assented the squire, almost reddening angrily as he thought of the unwarranted suspicions Mr. Sparrow had given expression to about the newcomer.

"Yes," assented the squire, almost Mr. Faradeane, "and had intended playing the hermit, but—and the rare smile shone in his eyes for a moment—but your kindness has rendered that impossible."

"I should think so," returned the squire, with unusual heartiness. "You are not the stuff of which hermits are made, Mr. Faradeane, and I am only afraid we shall trespass on your good nature. Hawkwold does not get a novelty very often, and will, very properly, regard you as an acquisition. I understand my sister Amelia has already called you into assisting at one of her local enterprises. Take care! If you give an inch to one of these charitable ladies, they will take an ell!"

"It is a very small inch," said Harold Faradeane, simply. "I am only going to recite at some penny readings."

"And the next thing she will want you to do will be to take a tray at a tea-meeting," said the squire, with a laugh.

"Would that be very difficult?" inquired the younger man, with such quaint gravity that the squire burst into a laugh of keen appreciation.

It happened that Olivia was passing through the hall at the moment, and the sound of her father's laughter, which had become so rare of late, almost startled her.

"Who is in the drawing-room?" she asked of the butler.

"The squire, miss, and Mr. Faradeane, of The Dell," he replied.

Olivia stopped short with a sudden throb of her heart that sent the blood to her face, and she bent down and gathered the skirt of her habit—she had just come in from a gallop—to hide it.

"Mr. Faradeane, the new gentleman, miss," said the butler, and he moved toward the door as if to open it for her, but Olivia shook her head.

"No, I am not going in," she said, and went quickly upstairs. As she did so, she heard the squire say, in his most genial tone—the tone which indicated that he was peculiarly well pleased, "You must let me show you round the old place, Mr. Faradeane," and she paused and listened for the grave, musical voice replying in the affirmative; then, leaning over the old oak balustrade, looked down at them as they passed out, with a strange expression on her lovely face—an expression which it had never yet worn for any man she had seen!

The squire and Mr. Faradeane made their way round the grounds, and presently, as if unconsciously, the elder man linked his arm within that of the younger, an action very unusual with the squire, and one which indicated the favorable impression his visitor had made upon him.

"It is a very beautiful place," said Mr. Faradeane, when they had made the round of the flower gardens and lawns, and looked in at the great, walled garden, with its hundreds of peach and nectarine trees, and at the long length of green-houses in which the gardener grew the choice flowers which would, if he had entered them, have taken the first prize at all the local shows, "a very beautiful place; I think it would be sinful not to be proud of it, Mr. Vanley."

The squire looked at him with a nod of appreciation, then suddenly his face clouded, and he stifled a sigh.

"There is plenty of room for improvement," he said, as if to account for the sigh.

"There always is," said Faradeane. "Fortunately, no place is perfect—we should tire of it very soon if it were. Don't you think a plantation on that rise to the left of the lawn would be a good thing?"

The squire nodded.

"Yes," he said, moodily. "Yes; but it would cost—"

"He stopped and glanced at the handsome face quickly. "I'm afraid you think I must be very niggardly to grudge a few hundred for so evident an improvement; but—"

He paused; and Faradeane, with

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weakness? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read the print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitude more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to spare the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Notes: Another prominent physician who has given the above prescription to many of his patients, says: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are of the highest quality and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturer guarantees it as a strengthener of the eyes. It is used in many cases of eye trouble and is used at the very best time in many instances of cataracts. It can be obtained from any good drug store and is used at the very best time in almost every case."

the fact which seemed so easy when he chose to display it, said: "In these days no man has too much money."

"That is true," assented the squire, as if glad of the excuse so pleasantly offered. "Quite true; these are hard times for us landlords everywhere."

"Indeed they are," acquiesced Faradeane.

The squire looked at him.

"Are you one of the unfortunate army of landowners?" he inquired.

Faradeane paused for half a second, and he laughed.

"You forget that I am the landlord of The Dell, and quite half an acre of garden land! And that reminds me that I must be going. Thank you very much, Mr. Vanley."

The squire shook the strong, shapely hand warmly, and stood for a moment looking after the tall, patrician figure as it made its way with strong, easy stride across the grass; then he went back to the house with a grave, wistful face. Perhaps he was wishing that Heaven had given him such a son as a brother to his precious Olivia; or, perhaps he was thinking of the plantation and the hard times which made the expenditure of the "few hundred" not only difficult, but impossible.

Olivia was standing at the door, waiting for him.

"You have had a visitor, papa?" she said, quietly, and in the tone one uses when one has rehearsed a speech—almost too careless and indifferent.

"Yes, yes," he said, "Mr. Faradeane. He has just gone. I am sorry you were not in to see him."

"Was he worth seeing, then?" said Olivia, still too carelessly.

"He is one of the most cultivated men I have ever met," replied the squire, warmly and emphatically, "and when I think of the absurd nonsense old Sparrow talked the other day, I am inclined to call him an idiot. Mr. Faradeane is a gentleman every inch of him, and one of the most charming young men possible."

"I am very glad you like him, as he is so near a neighbor," she said.

"Yes, liking is the word. He has quite taken a hold on me. The reason for his coming and burying himself at The Dell may be a mystery, but it is no unworthy one; it is quite convincing of that. He talks admirably; not with the straining after-effect which is the great vice of the present day, but with the pleasant manner of a man who wants to hear you as well as himself. By the way, your aunt has caught him for that entertainment of hers on the twenty-ninth. Do you think he would dine with us?"

"Do I think?" replied Olivia, raising her dark brows with a smile. "You know more of Mr. Faradeane than I do, papa? What do you think?"

"I don't know," said the squire, thoughtfully. "I've an idea that he forced himself to call, and that he might decline. It isn't pride; no, that man couldn't foster so vulgar a sentiment; not pride, but a strange kind of reserve that crops up now and again in his manner and conversation. Strange! Perhaps it is some past trouble. Well, we can but ask him."

Olivia turned her head aside, and toyed with a branch of Virginia creeper.

"Very well, papa; any one else?"

"Oh! Oh, yes, if you like. Bartley Bradstone and Bertie. Bertie likes him, I'm sure; and Annie and Mary Penstone. As many as you like—no, don't make it a large party. I fancy he would prefer a very small one."

"You are more considerate of Mr. Faradeane's whims and fancies than you usually are of other people's, papa," she said, with a smile.

He looked at her as if the same idea had struck him.

"Am I? Well, I've taken a fancy to him, I suppose; at any rate, I should like to know more of him. Ask him, and see what he says."

Faradeane was sitting at his desk writing, when the next morning, a groom rode over with the invitation, and he took it and looked at the address, in Olivia's handwriting, for a good minute before opening the envelope. Then he read the short, formal note, and reread it; got up and lit a pipe, and paced up and down with the letter in his hand, a troubled, wistful expression on his face, an expression of hesitation, over which longing predominated.

"Too late!" he muttered; "too late to draw back now. I have passed the Rubicon, and yet—oh, fool! fool!"

Then he sat down and wrote a formal acceptance.

People did not refuse an invitation to dine at the Grange unless they were positively compelled, for the squire's dinners were as nearly perfect as they could be; and those who did not set their hearts on the dinner found the prospect of a couple of hours spent in the Grange drawing-room, with Olivia to talk to and perhaps to sing for them, equally irresistible; and all the guests the squire had named to Olivia came up to time on the twenty-ninth.

It was an early dinner, for the entertainment commenced at eight, and all but the squire, whom wild horses would not have drawn out of his house after dinner to an entertainment, were going to Aunt Amelia's concert.

Annie and Mary Penstone had driven over in the afternoon to snatch a very precious quiet hour with Olivia, and they were both on the tip-toe of feverish excitement and curiosity about the mysterious Mr. Faradeane.

"Is he so very strange, Oly dear?" asked Mary, eagerly, and in a hushed voice. "We hear such extraordinary stories—all invented, of course—but do tell us! What is he like? Of course, we know he is handsome. Annie says that he is the handsomest man she has ever seen; but that's nonsense while Lord Granville is here. What does he seem like? What does he talk about?"

"Papa could tell you better than I can," replied Olivia, smiling. "I have only spoken to him once or twice. He has a very pleasant voice and—but you heard him speak at the picnic."

"Oh, yes, wasn't that awful! I shall never forget the look of his eyes! If he had looked at me like that, so—so, not contemptuously quite, but so calmly and indifferently—I can't express it—as he looked at Mr. Bradstone, I should have gone through the ground!"

"Like one of the patent tube wells," said Olivia.

"Don't laugh at me, I mean what I say, dear," said Mary, pouting. "I'm sure I shall be afraid to speak to him, in case he would snub me. He looks as if he could be awfully severe."

"He is not, I assure you; a child could play with him," said Olivia.

"There you are, laughing again. It's all very well for you; of course, he'd be nice to you, everybody always is; nobody could be otherwise to such a dear, beautiful girl; but poor Annie and me—"

Of course, we know he is handsome. Annie says that he is the handsomest man she has ever seen; but that's nonsense while Lord Granville is here. What does he seem like? What does he talk about?"

"Papa could tell you better than I can," replied Olivia, smiling. "I have only spoken to him once or twice. He has a very pleasant voice and—but you heard him speak at the picnic."

"Oh, yes, wasn't that awful! I shall never forget the look of his eyes! If he had looked at me like that, so—so, not contemptuously quite, but so calmly and indifferently—I can't express it—as he looked at Mr. Bradstone, I should have gone through the ground!"

"Like one of the patent tube wells," said Olivia.

"Don't laugh at me, I mean what I say, dear," said Mary, pouting. "I'm sure I shall be afraid to speak to him, in case he would snub me. He looks as if he could be awfully severe."

"He is not, I assure you; a child could play with him," said Olivia.

"There you are, laughing again. It's all very well for you; of course, he'd be nice to you, everybody always is; nobody could be otherwise to such a dear, beautiful girl; but poor Annie and me—"

People did not refuse an invitation to dine at the Grange unless they were positively compelled, for the squire's dinners were as nearly perfect as they could be; and those who did not set their hearts on the dinner found the prospect of a couple of hours spent in the Grange drawing-room, with Olivia to talk to and perhaps to sing for them, equally irresistible; and all the guests the squire had named to Olivia came up to time on the twenty-ninth.

It was an early dinner, for the entertainment commenced at eight, and all but the squire, whom wild horses would not have drawn out of his house after dinner to an entertainment, were going to Aunt Amelia's concert.

Annie and Mary Penstone had driven over in the afternoon to snatch a very precious quiet hour with Olivia, and they were both on the tip-toe of feverish excitement and curiosity about the mysterious Mr. Faradeane.

"Is he so very strange, Oly dear?" asked Mary, eagerly, and in a hushed voice. "We hear such extraordinary stories—all invented, of course—but do tell us! What is he like? Of course, we know he is handsome. Annie says that he is the handsomest man she has ever seen; but that's nonsense while Lord Granville is here. What does he seem like? What does he talk about?"

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

OUR DEPARTED.

Two notable utterances within the past month have drawn attention to the consolation which is afforded to those who have been bereaved, by prayers for the Departed. Bishop Jones in his address at the opening of the Synod said "Belief in the Paradise of peace and progress gives the justification of that practice which many are feeling the need of—prayer for the departed." Archbishop Roche, in his sermon at the Requiem Mass also laid particular emphasis on this doctrine which has always been held by the Roman Catholic Church. It is a practice that surely must be a comfort. Most of us believe in the immortality of the soul, many of us believe in the possibility of communion with the departed, and many are grasping the idea of a progressive state after the end of this life. For if the end of life decides our destination—one place or the other, then it is manifest that Heaven will not contain many, for they must be Perfect to enter Perfection.

So that while some may consider prayer for the departed rank heresy, I think it is a beautiful illustration of that Christianity which gives us hope that man can be divine and all that is good in him is eternal. Christianity teaches us that we are more than clay, more than body, and that something more is the more important part of us. Then why should the mere dissolution of the body mean such separation of "soul"? The truth is that we have limited our powers to our physical forces and have not yet begun to realize ourselves. However that opens up another subject. I only wished to mention the praying for the departed, which opens up a comfort in addition to the one that we shall meet the departed some day, and also implies a certain communion with them which should be also a great source of comfort and consolation.

REVENUE FROM THE SICK.

Some one writing to the Family Herald and Weekly Star from Newfoundland asks "Is it right to build up a country with dying mortals? Strong men do not require medicines and so don't have to pay the duty on them." I don't know why he should write to the "Star" unless it happens to be the only paper he gets, for I expect there are many in the outports who never see a local paper. If this man is not well and has to use a lot of medicine, his complaint is natural and it must appear absurd to him that he should be taxed so much for that which is to make him well, for he feels no doubt that the country needs strong and healthy men and should try to make every man so.

 Taking taxation all round, there is no doubt that we are heavily taxed. When on most articles we have to pay at least forty per cent, it can easily be seen how little spending power a dollar has. The duty on medicine is high and under this comes of course the large assortment, good and bad, of patent medicines. Some are undoubtedly good, others very doubtful, but in many portions of our Island, where a Doctor's visit is rare, they become a household necessity.

The correspondent may have meant these or medicines put up by the druggists. The prices of the latter have unquestionably advanced considerably during recent years. Now we are glad to have reliable druggist shops where we can be reasonably sure of pure drugs, but at the same time I really question whether the profits are not somewhat out of the way sometimes. I don't think we have any real competition among our druggists. They have their union just as any other trade, and why not? The upholders of the present business system say that the consumer is really protected by the competition in trade. We may therefore conclude that when competition is eliminated, the consumer is no longer protected. Is it so in the Drug business? And is this desirable, when we consider the great worth and necessity of drug stores in their effect on the health of the community? Should it, for instance, deter anyone from seeking relief from a possibly serious sickness by reason of the high cost of medicine? It does not mean that one should be absolutely poor, to shrink from paying a dollar or so for a bottle of medicine. Even if we admit that strong, healthy men should fight their way through the world, yet I am not at all sure that these who are weak and unhealthy should be left alone to fight their way. Some day, in the golden age, we shall come to know the real purpose of industry and commerce, and we shall realize for one thing that the drug business was never intended to be the means of piling up wealth, but to be the healer of our sick and sore bodies. No one desires to be sick, and it ought to be one of the duties of government to see that every means of relief should be available to the sick at the very lowest cost. The correspondent of the Weekly Star wants the tariff adjusted in this matter. Perhaps the suggestion will meet the favourable consideration of the incoming Government?

WHERE IS THAT CENSOR?

I beg to call the attention of the Government to the urgent necessity of at once appointing a Moving Picture Censor, following the Act passed last winter.

Ever Feel "Dopy" After Meals?

At times we all feel dull and heavy. Just one thing to do—relax the bowels and cleanse the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Unclean matter is flushed out, the liver is toned, blood is purified, and at once you feel better. Good health and jovial spirits are quickly found in this celebrated medicine. Enormous benefits follow the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in every case; they are very mild, very prompt and guaranteed by the makers. Insist on getting Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box everywhere.

Belgium Not For Sale.

(From the Boston Herald.)
 The idea that an absurdity is necessarily a joke may account for the posters that have been posted on the walls of barracks occupied by the German troops in Ghent. These posters, says the Echo Belge, state that negotiations have been opened between the United States and Germany for the evacuation of Belgium, and that Germany is preparing to withdraw on payment of an indemnity of $10,000,000. We do not believe that this story was concocted by the German soldiers. For if it is a joke, the joke is on Germany, calling attention to a lost hope. Her hope of an indemnity is gone. It is no longer mentioned in the discussion of finance. And the payment of an indemnity as a purchase price, either by the United States or by the Allies, is utterly out of the question.
 Belgium is not for sale. Her soldiers are preparing for the recovery of her flooded fields with the aid of a great flanking movement by the British and French forces on their right. It will take time, but the fight will go on to the end. This declaration stands. The Allied and guaranteeing powers declare that, when the time comes the Belgian government will be invited to participate in the peace negotiations, and that they will not cease hostilities unless Belgium is reinstated in her political and economic independence, and largely indemnified for the wrongs she has suffered. Belgium is grateful for the American relief which alone has kept many of her people alive, but neither she nor America would ever think of the buying or selling of her birthright.

Pharaoh's Palace Found.

The museum of the University of Pennsylvania has just made public a report from Dr. Clarence S. Fisher, leader of the Eckley B. Coxe, Jr., expedition to Egypt, in which he tells of what appears to be the discovery that Meremphat had in his palace at Memphis an archaeological museum something like those of the present day. Meremphat was the son of Ramesses the Great, and by the way is identified as the Pharaoh of the oppression as described in the Book of Exodus. The palace was discovered early in the present year, the reporter said. It was large and elaborately decorated but at some time was destroyed by fire, traces of which are abundant. The palace was about 180 feet long and 100 feet wide and contained about 20 rooms.

The throne room was a magnificent chamber of about 60 by 40 feet. In describing this room, the museum announcement stated "It is probable that this throne room, if not the same one, is similar to the one in which Moses and Aaron confronted the Pharaoh demanding that the people of Israel be permitted to go. . . . The authorities of Egypt admit that a great discovery has been made."

In the throne room were found gold ornaments, scarabs, vessels for various purposes and vessels. The most interesting find, the report stated, was a collection of relics partly of the stone age and partly of the sixth dynasty (about 4,500 B.C.) which indicated that Meremphat was a collector or much like modern men or nations.

STANISLAU CAPTURED.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 11. Stanislaw, the important railway centre, southeast of Lemberg, the capital of Galicia, has been occupied by Russian troops. The capture of Stanislaw is announced in an official statement given out this evening. The troops of General Letchitsky captured Stanislaw on Thursday evening, and pursued the Austrians who retreated in the direction of Helicz. The Russians have also made important successes in the Sereth region. They compelled the Austro-Germans to retire from the fortified positions of Gliadka and Yorbilevsk and have occupied the town of Monasterzyska. The capture of Stanislaw has given the Russians another gateway through which they can march toward Lemberg. Like Brody, Stanislaw is an important railway centre. Railroads radiate from it in five directions. It is 87 miles southeast of Lemberg, and is situated between two forks of the Bystritza river, 10 miles south of the Dniester. Stanislaw was a manufacturing city and an agricultural centre before the war and had a population of 33,000.

ITALIAN ADVANCE.

ROME, Aug. 11. Italians have occupied the entire Dobers plateau, the War Office announces to-day. The Italians also have captured Rubbea and San Martino Det Carso. They have reached the line of the Vallon River, and the Austrians have retreated east of the town of Vallon.

ARTILLERY DUEL RENEWED.

LONDON, Aug. 11. A Reuter's correspondent at Salonika telegraphs that the artillery duel on the Balkan front has been renewed. A height has been captured by Anglo-French forces, Hill 227, south of Doiran.

SWEDISH LOSSES.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 11. A report from the War Insurance Commission as given by the Berlingske Tidende shows that during the war 91 Swedish ships have been destroyed or lost. Six of these were torpedoed, and twenty-eight sunk by mines. The number of persons who lost their lives is 212 and 8 injured. Material losses adjudicated before British prize courts amounted to 45,000,000 kroner. Those before the German prize courts 1,000,000.

STEAMERS SUNK.

LONDON, Aug. 11. Lloyd's Shipping Agency announces that the French sailing vessel Annette Marie, 117 tons, the French steamer Henri Elisa, 820 tons and the steamer captured additional German trenches near Maurepas, and the fortified quarry south of Hem Wood, according to a French official communication issued this evening.

STANISLAU EVACUATED.

VIENNA, Aug. 11. "We have evacuated Stanislaw without fighting," says an official statement issued from the General Headquarters to-day. The statement also admits the withdrawal of Austrian troops to new positions in Stanislaw and Monasterzyska regions owing to the Russian pressure.

FIGHTING IN EGYPT.

LONDON, Aug. 11. Fighting between British and Turkish forces in Egypt east of the Suez Canal was continued on August 9th and 10th, with no important success for either side, according to an official statement issued this evening. Turkish counter attacks caused the British cavalry to fall back, but the Turks later retired to their entrenchments the statement adds.

TREATMENT OF BRITISH PRISONERS.

LONDON, Aug. 11. The Central News says it learns on "undeniable authority" that the British prisoners from Kut-el-Amara have been subjected to considerable hardship by the Turks. The British soldiers have been distributed in small groups in the Angora region and are badly housed. They are also in need of warm clothing, and their food consists solely of bread and water.

EXPLOSION.

LONDON, Aug. 11. Twenty persons were killed, and 150 injured by the accidental explosion of a military powder magazine at Dudesst, near Bucharest, says a Reuter despatch from the Roumanian capital. The material damage is small, and the work of the powder plant continues.

GREEK STEAMER ON FIRE.

ATHENS, Aug. 11. The Greek steamer Eletheria, bound from Salonika to Yolo with a cargo of oil owned by an American company, and with 1,200 passengers, principally disbanded troops, caught on fire to-day off the Island of Skiatho. Forty persons were killed and many were injured. The captain of the Eletheria succeeded finally in beaching the vessel. The Island of Skiatho is one of the Northern Sporades group in the Aegean Sea.

THE SHACKLETON EXPEDITION.

LONDON, Aug. 11. The Antarctic relief ship Discovery which has been placed at the disposal of the British Admiralty for use in an effort to rescue the marooned men of Sir Ernest Shackleton's expedition at Elephant Island, sailed from Plymouth Sound last night for Port Stanley, Falkland Islands. Sir Ernest will embark on the Discovery at that port, and another effort to reach Elephant Island will be made.

Local Fishery.

Codfish were found in abundance on the local grounds yesterday. With a goodly supply of squid baiting some fine fares were secured. Yesterday's weather conditions were also ideal for "curing." The fishery on the whole in and around St. John's this summer has been a good average one, whilst a few of the most fortunate ones landed record voyages. A notable contrast to that at Flat Rock the fishery to date has been an absolute failure whereas at the neighbouring places, Torbay and Bauline, particularly the latter, the voyage has been a distinct success. However, with a plentiful bait supply and a good sign of cod there is yet ample time for the places that are slack to make up a "catch."

Terra Novas are Champions.

The Terra Novas are the football champions for this season, having defeated the St. Andrew's last evening on St. George's Field by four goals to one. There was a large gathering of spectators present and the game was a hard fought one, though the Terra Novas were the more powerful team. Their combination was fine and their rushes very effective, their shooting being notably accurate.
This is the first year of the Terra Novas in the League and on that account congratulations to the "youngsters" are doubly merited. The names of the winning team last night are: Walsh, goal; Hart, J. Sweeney, backs; Duggan, J. Jackson, E. Kavanaugh, halves; Duff, Evans, L. Kavanaugh, Stumm, E. Johnson, forwards.
Again we wish the victors for 1916 further success in the football arena.

LIEUT. VICTOR GORDON IN HOSPITAL.—Lieut. Victor Gordon, 1st King's Own Scottish Borderers, is in hospital at Catala, suffering from the effects of gas poisoning. His brother, Lieut. Bert Gordon, of the Gordon Highlanders, was killed in France. His sister, Mrs. Thorburn McNab, is anxiously awaiting further news of his condition. We trust the gallant young officer is not suffering severely from this dastardly form of injury and will soon be back in the line again.

"As If I Were Her Age."

Why, she insisted on my coming in and she showed me all over the house and made tea for me and talked to me just as if I were her age."

As I write that, it sounds to me like what a little girl might say if she were grown-up, too. But it isn't.

On the contrary, the speaker was an old lady. While calling on one of her own friends in the farther part of the town she had stopped at the nearby home of one of her grandchildren's newly-wed friends to leave a message.

She wasn't treated with the courtesy due her. And instead of being treated with the courtesy due her, she had been met with the warm friendliness that some natures are ever quick to give.

No long preachment on how much it means to the old to have the young folks not merely treat them courteously, but make friends with them, would have impressed me half so much as the sparkle in that old lady's eyes and the happy note in her voice as she told of her call.

She had evidently had a memorable afternoon. Some day I'm going to tell that warm-hearted girl how much she gave in thus opening her heart and home to her visitor.

Youth is so rich in life and spirits that it scarcely realizes how much it gives—or withholds.

They Like To Warm Their Hands. Youth is warmth and light and life.

Speaking of Beverages!

Here's to the friend of the thirsty! The best and most refreshing drink you can obtain is a good, honest, always-the-same Tea like HOMESTEAD.

It's mildly exhilarating, promotes digestion and has no after-clap of insomnia, headaches or nausea.

"There's a smile in every cup of Homestead."

C. P. EAGAN,

BUCKWORTH STREET & QUEEN'S ROAD.

RUTH CAMERON.

Older people love to warm their hands at the blaze. They cannot get the warmth into their blood as it used to be, but at least they can feel its glow and that is something. Another old lady in my own household spoke of a young girl who sometimes calls me up on the telephone. "I love to answer when she calls," she said, "we have the loveliest talks. She isn't a bit like the ones who just ask how I feel because they know they ought to."

Children's delight in being treated like their elders is amusing. The old folks' pleasure in being treated like young people is infinitely touching.

It makes one ashamed that one has not given far more of what is so little to give and so big to receive.

Your Boys and Girls.

Nearly all children have a tendency to suck their fingers. Try this method and see if it doesn't work out successfully. Buy one half yard of surgeon's plaster at a drug store. It comes on a spool about two inches wide; then cut a strip about one quarter inch wide, or wider if the child's fingers are broad, then cut this half yard strip in short lengths; then take one stick right over the top of fingers and cover the wall, then another strip and put right around the first strip and down to the knuckle. The surgeon's plaster will stick and be firm. Do this every night before the child goes to bed, for one month. She may try to suck the plaster at first. If so, put on another piece in the morning, making sure never to let the child's fingers be without the plaster.

French Steam Trawlers Not Operating

Owing to the French Government taking over the steam trawlers belonging to St. Pierre and operating on the Grand Banks, for Admiralty purposes, that branch of the fishery has been abandoned this year. A large number of the heavy tonnage schooners have also been requisitioned by the Government while others are employed in a more profitable business than fishing. At present the whole French fleet of bankers is about 90 vessels. Last year and in previous years the number would vary from 200 to 600 ships.

Poor Prospects.

The latest reports received by the Board of Trade are:—
Aug. 5th. From F. Cox, (Anchor Point to Eddy's Point.) The total catch is 6,204 qtls., with 35 for last week. Only 25 boats are fishing, and prospects are very poor.
Aug. 5th. From J. P. Williams, (Bay Bulls South Head to Long Point.) Prospects are poor, and no squid is obtainable. All the traps are being landed as the fishery is over for them. Twenty-five dories and skiffs and 22 motor boats are fishing. The catch is 7705 qtls., and for last week 295.

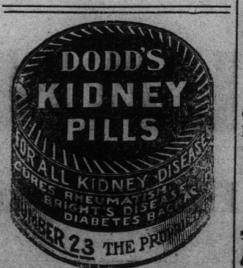

Aug. 5th. From R. Furneaux, (Rose Blanche to Harbor LeCoul.) No squid or other bait is obtainable, and prospects are poor. The catch to date is 13,050 qtls., and for last week 89.

TO-DAY'S Messages.

THE U. S. RAILWAY CRISIS.

NEW YORK, To-day. Whether the leaders of the 400,000 employees of the railroads of the country will make good their threat of a general strike unless the demand for an 8 hour day and time and a half for overtime is granted by the managers of 235 railroad systems, will probably be known to-morrow. The only hope of a peaceful settlement apparently rested to-night upon the possibility that the men might be induced to accept a new form of arbitration.

FINE RUSSIAN ACHIEVEMENTS.

LONDON, To-day. A further series of surprising successes by the armies of Generals Sakharoff and Letchitzky is announced to-day by the Russians. The most important of these successes is the capture of the important railway junction town of Stanislau, the capture and occupation of Monasterzyska and the seizure of important positions on the Zlota Lipa line. Coupled with these victories was the capture of more than thousands of prisoners, especially on the right bank of the Sereth, where the prisoners taken number 5,000.

The Germans appeared to regard the Kovel-Lemberg sector as the most critical on the eastern front. The appointment of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg to the chief command undoubtedly had the effect of temporarily stemming the Russian advance on the northern section of the line, but Field Marshal Von Hindenburg does not hold controlling command over the troops guarding the southern approaches to Lemberg, where General Letchitzky has taken Stanislau, being within striking distance of Halicz, and is rapidly completing his encirclement of the army of General Von Bothmer. The latter's forces have held obstinately to their positions since last winter and have kept them virtually intact. However, it cannot be long now before the fate of Lemberg is sealed. Military observers believe that the possession of Stanislau and Kolomea makes secure the Russian possession of Bukowina, and gives them a base for the invasion of Hungary. The fall of Halicz, which is also regarded as imminent, would interfere seriously with General Von Bothmer's communications, and would compel him to retire his army along the left bank of the Dniester toward Lemberg, between the Russian forces advancing from the direction of Tarnopol and Brody. The German official statement to-day admitted the regrouping of the Teutonic forces taking place in order to meet the new positions of the Russian armies. It is reported that in their perplexity over the situation on the Italian front, the German and Austrians again have brought troops from Galicia to the Isonzo front in a desperate effort to save the situation there, and Turkish troops have been sent to the Galician front to replace the Austrians.

Little Lectures by NURSE WINGARNIS. (Lecture No. 5)

Run-Down

When your system is undermined by worry or overwork — when your vitality is lowered — when you feel "any-how" — when your nerves are "on edge" — when the least exertion tires you — you are in a Run-Down condition. Your system is like a plant that is drooping for want of water. And just as water revives a drooping plant — so "Wingarnis" gives new life and new vitality to a "run-down" constitution. Because "Wingarnis" possesses a four-fold power. It is a Tonic, a Restorative, a Blood-maker and a Nerve Food — all in one. Therefore creates new strength, new blood, new nerve force and new vitality. The benefit begins from the first wine-glassful. You can feel it doing you good. Over 10,000 Doctors recommend "Wingarnis", especially to those who are Weak, Anemic, "Nervy" or Run-down.

LOOKING FOR MORE TROUBLE!

COPENHAGEN, To-day. A large German fleet of dreadnoughts, cruisers, destroyers and submarines came out of the Kiel Canal on Thursday, according to local newspapers. The fleet was sighted off Tranterup, steaming with great speed through the narrow waters of the Little Belt, which is between the Baltic Sea and the Cattegat.

DUKE OF WESTMINSTER ILL.

LONDON, To-day. It has been learned that the Duke of Westminster has been invalided home from Egypt and that he is now in a Paris hospital suffering from fever.

Police Court.

(Before Mr. Hutchings, K.C., J.P.) Three men summoned by the police for loose and disorderly conduct were each fined $2 or 7 days.

A case arising out of a hair-pulling contest was mutually settled in private. The parties concerned were an elderly woman of the Cove Road and her daughter-in-law. The latter had been summoned yesterday but refused to answer it and was arrested under warrant last evening. Both parties consented to live on more peaceable terms during these warring and strenuous times.

A laborer summoned for assaulting a deformed young man was fined $5 or 14 days.

A seaman, who deserted a vessel which sailed from here yesterday, was remanded to be dealt with on Monday.

The cook of the Nova Scotia schr. Archie Crowell sued the captain for his wages and got judgment.

SATURDAY, Aug. 12, 1916. The Keep Clean Hair Brush — the Brush with the Clean Face — is an attractive looking brush even in the cheaper grades. These brushes are made from pure bristles secured in waterproof cement, and have a solid wood back and a pure aluminum face. This brush is made to keep clean. You should see this series. We know of no brushes to excel them at the prices at which they are marked.

Train Notes.

Thursday's express reached Port aux Basques at 12.40 a.m. to-day. The incoming express reached town at 2.30 p.m. to-day.

The local from Carbonar reached town shortly after noon to-day.

The "Tropassey" train arrived on time this morning.

UNION MAN SHOT BY AUTO GUN.

Chicago, Aug. 3. — In a running attack in which autos figured, Richard J. Shields, business agent for Electrical Workers' Union, Local No. 134, was shot and probably fatally wounded last night. His wife, who was riding with him, had her hat shot off. Fifteen or twenty shots were fired from an auto containing five men, who closely pursued Shields and his wife. Shields, who figured in the recent conspiracy trials, and his wife, were driving in the northern part of the city when the attack was made. The identity of Shields' assailants has not been learned.

Tells How Brother Officer Met Death

Below we give an extract from a letter written by a Lieutenant in the Newfoundland Regiment to his sister in the city, telling of the manner in which 2nd Lieut. W. H. Grant met his death in the big drive of July 1st. — "Poor Bill! Grant was killed a few days ago; he was game and took it right. He died in a very few minutes. He said good-bye to — and asked him to write home for him. No one could have died better than "Billy."

It is further stated in the letter that the gallant young officer passed away in the arms of a brother officer in the same regiment. His last thoughts were for those at home, mentioning the names of several who in life were near and dear to him.

Coal and Flour Importations.

The coal importations to date from the beginning of this year are over sixty-five thousand tons or nearly double the amount landed here for the same period in 1915. The flour importations for the seven months and a half just ended are over a hundred and thirty thousand barrels or approximately twenty thousand barrels in excess of the amount brought into St. John's for the corresponding period last year.

Private Banker Murder Victim.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Henry Pontorno, former private banker, jeweller and steamship brokerage agent in the west Italian quarter, was murdered Tuesday on a country road near Benton Harbor, Michigan. It became known here to-day, it is believed by the authorities the murder was committed by two men who lost money when Pontorno's bank went out of business, after an alleged robbery in February a year ago.

More "Howlers."

In a general efficiency test conducted recently in a Baltimore school the following answers were given to a series of questions asked of students whose ages ranged from fourteen to eighteen years: "There were no Christians among the early Gauls; they were mostly lawyers. Every Day Is Bargain Day.

It is our intention to sell goods for less than similar merchandise may be bought elsewhere. Goods are all displayed on tables which makes selection very easy. You are free to browse around and make selections. The automatic plan of reducing Variety Goods after a certain time in stock—1/4 after 12 days; 1/2 after 18 days; 3/4 after 24 days—assures that at all times we are forced to give bargains, and you in turn must save money. Situated as we are in the West End, our rent, etc., is very much lower than a downtown store; all the money we save in this way is given to you in lower prices.

WE GIVE Travel COUPONS

We give you Travel Profit-sharing Coupons which can be redeemed at any time for merchandise, street car fares, free mileage on railroads or steamboats. An Innocent Victim.

The Original of Squeers Died of a Broken Heart. The grossest injury which Dickens ever inflicted on a fellow being was his too accurate portrait of an innocent man in his Squeers. That Yorkshire schoolmaster was, as a rule, cruel and wicked enough it is true, but the particular schoolmaster who was recognized and who recognized himself as the original Squeers seems to have been an exception to the rule.

Eat Grass, Locusts and Human Bodies.

Terrible Condition of Deported Armenians in the Deserts of Northern Arabia.—Trustworthy Evidence. Boston, Aug. 8.—Details of the desperate condition of deported Armenians in the deserts of Northern Arabia and the lower Euphrates Valley are contained in a cable despatch made public by the American committee for Armenian and Syrian relief last night. According to the despatch, trustworthy witnesses have seen famished Armenians "eating grass, herbs, and locusts and in desperation dead animals and human bodies are reported to have been eaten."

The despatch continues:—"Naturally the death rate from starvation and sickness is very high and increased by the brutal treatment of the authorities. With few exceptions no shelter of any kind is provided and the people coming from a cold climate are left under the scorching desert sun without food and water."

Fish, when prepared for frying, should be laid on a board and dredged with flour or meal mixed with salt; when one side is dry, dredge the other.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DYS-TEMPER.

SHORTAGE IN THE POLICE FORCE.

The police force is so seriously short of men that Sergeants and Head Constables are frequently compelled to do night duty. The shortage of men is due not so much to enlistments from the force, as suggested by a contemporary, as to the want of fresh applicants. This in turn is undoubtedly owing to the smallness of the wages, which are but a slight attraction to any able-bodied man. There is urgent need of a remedy in this particular if the constabulary is to be kept up to the degree of strength and efficiency it should attain.

BORN.

At Spencer Street, August 11th, 1916, to Mr. and Mrs. A. Penney, a baby girl.

MARRIED.

On the 8th inst., at George St. Parsonage, by the Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite, Roland C., eldest son of Mr. J. Goodyear, of Grand Falls, to Florence, daughter of Mr. Thomas Cornick, of the Light House Department.

DIED.

Killed in action somewhere in France, on July 1st, Maxwell T., son of Harry and Emma Jeans, aged 19 1/2 years, he leaves to mourn a father, mother, 5 sisters and two brothers. He was a member of the M. G. B.

Sober Newfoundland.

Newfoundland seems to loom larger on the map to-day than at any time in its history. By two widely different things, military prowess and liquor legislation, it attracts attention. On the first day of the British advance toward Bapaume the Newfoundlanders went right on to the third line of German trenches, and the general's words to the survivors were: "Newfoundlanders, I salute you individually. You have done better than the best." They were the sober boys of the singularly sober colony who went farthest on the opening day of the drive, and other parts of the British Empire are wishing that they could keep step with Newfoundland in its temperance march. The British liquor control board says that Scotland cannot — that prohibition there is impracticable; and probably the same will have to be said of England, though a vast number of business men, representing the greatest interests of the country, are petitioning Parliament to suspend the liquor traffic during the war.

But Britain's oldest colony has been for some forty years on the road to prohibition, taking each step with deliberation, and at the end of this year the course will be completed by the bringing into force of a full prohibition law. It forbids the importation, manufacture or sale of any intoxicant as a beverage, and it will doubtless be obeyed, because it has the support of public opinion. On both the island itself and the Labrador coast, which together constitute the colony, drunkenness is rare and crime is fractional, a murder eleven years ago being the one dark blot in recent annals. As one result of the war a giant and a pygmy, Russia and Newfoundland, join hands and take similar measures to guard against their strength being undermined by intemperance. But neither the French destruction of absinthe nor the Russian suppression of vodka is so sweeping as Newfoundland's total prohibition of intoxicants. It offers a lead that great nations may hesitate long to follow.—Editorial in Boston Herald, Aug. 4, '16.

Turned the Tables.

One Doctor Who Found a Way to Beat the Bill Collectors.

"Several years ago," said a New York physician, "there was a physician in this city, dead now, whose greater fame was as chemist, but he had a fine medical practice. Like a good many others who have money to pay their bills, the doctor was an extremely slow pay, and collectors had hard times getting to him. Invariably when one called the man on the door would ask if he wished to see the doctor professionally, and if the caller said he did not he was assured the doctor was not in.

"Finally one of them went at it right, and when the man on the door asked if he wished to see the doctor professionally he said he did and was politely passed into the waiting room. A dozen more patients were ahead of him, but he was inside at last and on his way to the doctor, and he waited patiently. When he reached the doctor and said he had come with a bill there was a great row at once, and the doctor indignantly berated him. However, being honest enough, he paid the bill.

"The collector didn't care so long as he got the money and straightway told how he had done it. Then another one tried and was successful, but no more were. The third collector got in with a bill for about $15, but he didn't get out with that amount. The doctor charged him $10 for his professional call and handed over the balance. One or two others were treated the same way on their professional visits, and the word soon got around among the collectors, with the result that their professional calls were abandoned, after which collections were made any way they could be made except that way."

Nerviline is guaranteed to quickly cure any pain or soreness in the joints, and is sold by druggists everywhere. Large size 50 cents; trial size, 25 cents.

Death of Nldr. in Australia.

(By J. C. H.)

There were feelings of profound sorrow and regret in the Survey Office, on New Year's Eve, upon the receipt of the sad news of the death of Douglas James Brown, which took place at St. Helen's Private Hospital on the previous night.

Mr. Brown was an esteemed member of the Survey Office staff, an unassuming cultured gentleman of wide attainments. Born at St. John's, Newfoundland, he was brought up and qualified by examination for the legal profession. Soon after the death of his father, and while still a youth with a craving for travel and an outdoor life, he visited the South American Republics, thence to Ireland, for a holiday. Many and amusing were the anecdotes told by him of that trip. He next visited the United States, where he was engaged for some time as an assistant engineer on a railroad in California. With his craving for travel not yet satisfied, he accepted an appointment as a mining engineer in New Zealand, subsequently joining the Survey Office staff at Nelson, where he held a good position for several years. In 1885 he accepted an appointment from the Queensland Government on the Survey Office staff, where he applied himself diligently to his duties, and where his work stands for all time as a monument to his sterling ability.

When Sir William MacGregor was Governor of New Guinea and the administration was connected with Queensland, the ability of the late Mr. Brown was conspicuously shown in the compilation from the data, largely astronomical, which Sir William supplied. Some fifteen years later it was my privilege to meet Sir William when, in his capacity as Governor of Queensland, he opened the fête in aid of the Hamilton School of Arts. He particularly asked for Mr. Brown, his position, etc., and paid a great tribute to his ability and greatly appreciated his services in connection with New Guinea, and alluded to the great services such men were rendering to the country and to the world generally.

It is a noteworthy fact that Mr. Brown was, from the day of his arrival, captivated with the beauty of our climate. He built a charming home at Hill End, on an elevation commanding a view of the river and the picturesque Taylor's Range and prominent peaks. Here he spent his spare time happily in the pursuit of two great hobbies, gardening and music. Mr. Brown was a man of letters, and from time to time contributed several articles to the "Public Service Journal."

Let us hope that when we by the effluxion of time come to shake off this mortal coil, each one of us shall leave behind an equal record for attention to duty, honesty of purpose, and unselfishness.

[The above is from the Brisbane "Echo," Australia. The late Mr. Brown was a brother of Mrs. C. S. Pinsent, of this city.—Ed.]

Household Notes.

Keep a little clump of mint and a few roots of horse-radish growing in some damp spot, then you will always have material for mint sauce and horse-radish seasoning.

Spray the rose bushes with soap suds once a week. This will keep them free from insects. After spraying the soapuds on, go back in about an hour and spray with clean water.

One delicious sandwich filling is chopped green peppers and pimientos with mayonnaise, and another is the yokes of hard-boiled eggs mixed with chopped ham and a dash of mustard.

Wash the floor mop in the following way: Put the mop in a pan of hot water in which has been put two table-spoonsful of lye. Let the mop remain in the water, where it will keep hot for three or four hours, then rinse it in two or three clean waters and put it in the sun to dry.

MIRAP'S LINIMENT LUMBER-MAN'S FRIEND.

A Marvel of the Workshops.

The French people have worked many wonders since the beginning of the war, but perhaps nothing, beyond the courage and tenacity of the French army, is more wonderful than the fashion in which industrial France has revolutionized itself in order to provide munitions for the troops in the field.

Figures are dry reading as a rule, but a Frenchman in the Nineteenth Century gives the public some figures that are by no means dry. First of all, the invasion of Northern France by the Germans meant, according to German industrial authorities, the capture of seventy per cent. of the French coal areas and of eighty-five per cent. of its iron country. This enormous loss had to be made up from mines in the south and west of France and by importation from Great Britain, Spain and Algiers. But notwithstanding this terrific handicap French plants at the end of 1916 were manufacturing ninety-eight times as many machine guns as at the beginning of August, 1914; 237 times as many rifles, twenty-five times more explosives, thirty-five times as many shells for field guns, and fifty-four times as many shells of larger calibre. Moreover, France was producing four and one-half times as much powder and twenty-five times as many field guns as two years earlier.

In short, although the German invaders still hold the bulk of the French coal and iron fields, manufacturing and industrial France has been able to perform the miracles here recorded. This is one more proof, and a sufficiently striking one, of the indomitable spirit, of France which has borne so brightly under the terrific shock of a war for which she was unprepared and during almost two years of which she had to stand on the defensive. To-day the lavish use of shells by the French army is showing what the workshops have done for the soldiers and for the cause. France which never lost heart even in the blackest hour, is now on fire with the certainty of victory. The French know that the fighting is not over, that it will be long yet, and fierce; but they know at the end of the road he both victory and security.—St. John Telegraph.

BEST VALUE OBTAINABLE IN TEA.

If the tea you are now getting is high in price and poor in quality, try our Teas. Ours are low in price and high in quality and have been causing a sensation lately, for we have been introducing a couple of broken Orange Pekoe Teas at 40c. and 45c. per lb., and our customers say they are equal to teas at 50c. and 60c. lb. The reason is we import direct from Ceylon in large quantities when the markets are low, and also we price our teas very moderately.

We beg to introduce to you a New Gramophone at only $5 ea

This is the make of a new company, viz., the Emerson Phonograph Co., and is having a tremendous sale in the United States and Canada. This machine is not equal to a $100.00 machine, but we would sooner listen to it than to some $25.00 machines. It will play most all well known makes of records, though the Emerson record is a smaller record. Prices for Emerson Records are: Single Facet, 20c. each; Double Facet, 40c. each. We anticipate a large demand for the Emerson Phonograph.

Ladies', Get a Vanity Box, Free.

Despite large price reductions, we give every lady making a purchase of $2.00 or more, of any class or classes of goods, a Vanity Box absolutely free, containing Mirror, Compressed Powder and Pad. We do this partly for the sake of the advertisement—they have our name on them. It pays to advertise, when your goods are up to the mark and your prices are down to the lowest level. You will always find this to be so with us, and now more especially.
