Prices for poultry are low in comparison with other years, and it is said they are likely to go lower. Dealers say that the outside demand is very poor this year. People are cutting down expenses all over the country. The use of poultry as food is regarded as a luxury, which indeed it was at the prices that prevailed for the past two or three years. WATFORD merchants are noted for the tasty way in which they use their windows for displaying their goods. A walk along Main street these days is an education in itself, to see the tasty way in which the merchants have arranged their wares so as to attract the attention of the passerby. The Guide-Advocate wishes it were possible to mention each one separately, but must content ourselves with a general reference to the matter. It is to be hoped that the merchants have a most successful Christmas trade.

TWO ENGLISH TOWNS BOMBARDED BY GERMAN GUNBOATS

LONDON, Dec. 16.—A German fleet made a sudden dash into the North Sea to-day, shelled Scarborough and Hartlepool, English coast towns, and engaged certain units of the British fleet.

Three German cruisers appeared off Scarborough at an early hour and began bombarding the town, and had no difficulty in dropping shells into the city. Panic seized the people and many of them fled from their homes.

The residents of Hartlepool were aroused from their sleep by the sound of heavy firing. In a few moments shells from German cruisers began dropping into the town. Fear took possession of the people and many abandoned their homes and fled inland.

The news threw the city of London into the greatest state of excitement. British flotillas have been engaged with the enemy at several points.

The cities bombarded are on the coast of Yorkshire and neither is fortified. Scarborough has a population of 40,000; Hartlepool, together with West Hartlepool, has a population of 90,000.

Two of the enemy's cruisers are reported sunk in the North Sea.

Great damage was done to property in Scarborough.

The squadron broke through the British lines in a fog, and escaped on being sighted.

Over thirty people were killed, but the damage done to property was not great.

Sir Adam Beck Will Buy Army Horses in Watford

The date of Sir Adam's visit will be advertised later, and no doubt there will be a good response as there are many suitable animals in this district.

Pills for Nervous Troubles—The stomach is the centre of the nervous system, and when the stomach suspends healthy action the result is manifest disturbances of the nerves. If allowed to persist, nervous debility, a dangerous ailment, may ensue. The first consideration is to restore the stomach to proper action, and there is no readier remedy for this than Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. Thousands can attest the virtue of these pills in curing nervous disorders.

OSTRICH IS POPULAR.

Many Uses Have Been Found For It This Season.

BLUE OSTRICH BOA.

Ostrich is to be one of the fashionable trimmings for hats. Likewise it will be used in the fall for many other decorative purposes. One of these ways is suggested by the illustration which shows a dainty little boa of blue ostrich with blue ribbon shaped ornaments and streamers at the ends. This little boa is secured by concealed snap fasteners.

The vogue of flounces is prettily illustrated in the gown pictured here which is a charming creation of voile with the skirt covered by three deep flounces, rose embroidered and bordered by bands of black velvet. It is a suitable gown for mademoiselle and may be duplicated in any one of a half dozen materials.

The bag shown above is fashioned of squares of cretonne. Two of the squares are lined with plain material and stitched together at the edges. Three of these sections are then fastened together by cutting out the centers, fastening them there and attaching a ribbon covered embroidery hoop to the top opening. Will You Help The Hospital for Sick Children, the Great Provincial Charity?

Dear Mr. Editor:—

Thanks for the privilege of appealing through your columns on behalf of the Hospital for Sick Children. The Hospital takes care of sick and deformed children, not only in Toronto, but in the Province, outside of the city. This coming year, of all the years in the Hospital's history, has a more serious outlook, as regards funds for maintenance, than any year that has passed its calendar.

So many calls are being made on the purses of the generous people of Toronto and Ontario, to help the soldiers of the Empire, that as I make my daily rounds through the wards of the Hospital, and see the suffering children in our cots and beds, the thought strikes me as to whether the people will as of old, with all the demands made upon them, answer our appeal and help to maintain the institution that is fighting in the never-ending battle with disease and death, in its endeavor to save the stricken little ones in the child-life of Ontario.

Last year there were 394 in-patients from 210 places outside of Toronto, and in the past twenty years there have been 7,000 from places in the Province other than Toronto.

It costs us $2.34 per patient per day for maintenance. The municipalities pay for patients $1 per patient per day; the Government allows 20 cents per patient per day; so, deducting $1.20 from $2.34, it leaves the Hospital with $1.14 to pay out of subscriptions and the Province.

The shortage last year ran to $18,000.

Since 1880 about 1,000 cases of club feet, bow legs and knock knees have been treated, and of these 900 had perfect correction. Nearly all these

Woman So Weak and Nervous Could Not Stand Her Children Near Her—Vinol Changed Everything for Her

Plant City, Fla.—"I wish I could tell everybody about Vinol. For nine years I was in bad health. I got so I could not sleep, and I could not stand it to have my children come near me. I could not even sew or do any heavy housework. I was simply tired all the time. I tried so many medicines I could not recall them all, but nothing did me any good. One day a friend asked me to try Vinol and said it was the best tonic she ever saw. I did so, and soon got the first good night's sleep I had had for a long time. Now I sleep well, my appetite is good, my nervousness is all gone and I am so strong and well I do all my housework and work in my flower garden without feeling tired or nervous. Vinol has made me a well and happy woman."

—Mrs. C. H. MILLER, Plant City, Fla.

Vinol contains the curative, healing principles of fresh cod livers (without oil) and tonic iron.

We ask every weak, run-down, nervous person in this vicinity to try Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to benefit.

AN ESCAPE IN ADVERTISING

How an Auto Was Sold

By GEORGE FREDERICK WILSON
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

When the price of automobiles became such that their purchase became common among men of means Harvey Williams bought a single seat runabout.

During the first year of possession he made almost constant use of the machine. Then the novelty of the thing wore off, and in the five following years he seldom rode in it. After that the modern and speedy touring car became the vogue. Harvey once more came under the spell of the automobile craze and quickly decided that he must have a touring car.

Rich as he was, he concluded that his was not the wealth to foster two motors. He was determined to sell the runabout.

So Harvey advertised it for sale and awaited a purchaser. He waited two weeks, and yet none came. The end of the third week brought a probable buyer.

"Now, what I want in a machine is speed," this individual began. "I can't afford the price of a new machine, but none the less I want speed in the secondhand affair I buy. What speed do you claim this runabout is capable of making?"

Harvey wavered between truth and a possible sale. If he gave his speed as fifteen miles an hour truth would triumph, but the opportunity of a sale would be lost.

"Well—er—you know our city ordinance is very strict as to speed, and I have never given the auto a trial on the country roads. But, say, it makes the city limit speed of ten miles very easily. Oh, yes, very easily!"

"Um! Then you don't know its exact speed?"

"It was guaranteed to make thirty miles easily in an hour," Harvey replied in a very weak tone of voice.

"Prove it and I'll take the auto off your hands," said the man. "You've got to show me."

"How can I prove it to you? Do you want to take a trial spin?"

"No. I haven't the time. Bring me absolute proof of its speed and I'll take the machine without further ado."

The three days following this conversation Harvey spent in vain attempts to hatch some scheme that would successfully deceive the probable purchaser. As mentioned before, the attempts were in vain, and on the night of the third day he gave up in despair.

On the morning of the fourth day he met a friend in the street, and the friend inquired about his success in disposing of the runabout. Harvey told him all.

"Why," exclaimed the friend, "I know the very man that can put this sale through to a successful finish. Robert Howardson is his name, and he is a specialist extraordinary in advertising. His office is in the Bearinger building."

Harvey found the office and the man. Into Howardson's sympathetic ears he poured his story.

"What price do you ask for the automobile, Mr. Williams?" Howardson inquired after hearing Harvey through.

"One thousand dollars."

"He is willing to pay this price for a secondhand automobile?"

"Perfectly willing. Says the old machines have the material in them;

they wear better."

"I am not qualified to pass judgment upon his assertion. Now, Mr. Williams, how much are you willing to pay me if I succeed in selling your runabout?"

"Mr. Howardson, my fighting blood is up. When I first decided to sell I was anxious to sell. Now I am determined to be rid of the thing. I will give you 50 per cent, or, to put it plainly, $500."

"I would consider myself a robber were I to accept this amount. If I succeed I will ask for $150. Is this satisfactory?"

"Indeed, yes."

"Very well. Now, can you spare a couple of hours tomorrow forenoon?"

"Good! Call for me here at 9 o'clock in your runabout."

Promptly at the hour designated Harvey drew up before the Bearinger building, and Howardson clambered into the seat beside him.

"What is the thing's absolute limit of speed, Mr. Williams?" Howardson inquired.

"It will make eighteen miles in an hour, but it is an awful strain on the engine."

"Take a given speed of eighteen miles per hour and a policeman to determine the speed, and his imagination will make it thirty miles. Now, when I say the word give it the limit!"

They rode throughout the business district for a half hour, and then, when the streets were thickest with traffic, Howardson gave the order, and Harvey pushed the lever to the last notch.

Up and down the main thoroughfares the machine sped, creating turmoil in its wake. Policemen shouted their warning, but the men heeded them not. Harvey would have liked very much to comply with the city speed ordinance, but Howardson urged against it.

Finally one policeman with the most interest, more at heart than any they had yet met with, ran out to intercept them, dodged in time to save himself, then ran on behind, secured the license number and jotted it down in his notebook.

It was then that Howardson advised less speed.

"Take your runabout home now, Mr. Williams, and keep both it and yourself under cover. Wicket a policeman calls to place you under arrest your wife must tell him that you are not at home. You will get a letter. Bring it to me before you take further action."

The policeman called at noon, and Mrs. Williams observed her husband's instructions.

The afternoon mail brought Williams a letter from the chief of police. With trembling fingers he tore open the envelope, read the letter through and then dressed for the street. A half hour later he stood before Howardson. Howardson smiled.

"Mr. Howardson," Harvey began, "how did you know that I would get a letter from the chief of police?"

"It is evident that you were never arrested before for speeding. They always follow this course when a prominent person is not found at home when the policeman calls. Let's read what it says."

It opened with the usual salutation and proceeded—

"You are under arrest for breaking the city ordinance relative to the speed of automobiles. I have in hand all necessary evidence to prove that you were in the automobile at the time and acting as chauffeur. You were going at a speed of not less than thirty miles per hour, and this, too, in the heart of the city's business district. You can avoid further trouble by remitting at once the amount of your fine, $25."

"Excellent, excellent," Howardson exclaimed in a tone of delight. "If he had not been so particular as to estimating the speed we would have been put to the necessity of demanding it of him. Call all the estimable gentlemen over the telephone and tell him that you will send the check by the next mail."

Williams did so.

"I have already notified the probable purchaser to call here, and if I mistake not this is he at the door."

The door opened, and the probable purchaser walked into the room. After a few moments of desultory conversation the chief's letter was handed to him, and he read it through.

"The noon edition of the News contains an account of this escapade," he remarked. "I'll take the runabout."

Williams had come to the office in the motor, and the purchaser, having written out a check to Harvey's order, took immediate possession of the machine.

"Mr. Howardson, you are indeed a specialist extraordinary in advertising!" Williams cried, holding out his hand when they were once more in Howardson's office.

"Thank you, Mr. Williams. Let me assure you that you need have no uneasiness regarding our little stratagem. Our friend will not dare speed above ten miles within the city and twelve in the country. I doubt if he has much relish for the paying of fines. However, should he ever have occasion to test the auto's speed and find it not above eighteen miles per hour you can truthfully say that you had always thought this speed was its limit until the chief of police informed you differently. Write a check for $25, payable to the order of the city, and I will type a letter to the chief to go with it."

This is the letter that fairly dumfounded the chief of police:

"Your communication received. I am unable to state at which I am the more surprised—your charge that I was speeding over the limit or the fact that the old auto would go over eight miles per hour, a fact of which I was heretofore doubtful. I have disposed of the auto, and as speed was the first and most essential requisite I was able to produce unimpeachable evidence that the machine possessed this quality. Thanking you for the unsolicited favor, I take great pleasure in handing you the inclosed check in full payment of my fine."

Harvey Williams put $2,500 with the money paid him for his runabout and purchased a machine that would do fifty miles an hour when pushed to its utmost. The first time he went out in it he was so delighted with its performance that he gave every other auto on the road his dust. Coming to a curve, he failed to slow up sufficiently, skidded down a bank, ruined his machine and was thrown into a muddy stream, thus getting his deserts for his dishonesty.

Mme. Bertha von Halbach, the Woman Behind the Guns.

MME. BERTHA KRUPP VON BOHLEN UND HALBACH.

A woman is, after all, dictator to the armed powers of Europe. She is Mme. Bertha Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, heiress of the great gunmaker, Friedrich Krupp, who left the bulk of his fortune and his great armament manufacturing plant at Essen, Germany, to his eldest daughter, Bertha. She owns the steel and gun works, with the shipyards at Kiel and the famous gun and armor works at Magedburg.

In 1906, when she was nineteen years old, she married Gustav von Bohlen und Halbach, who was sixteen years her senior and had a successful career as a diplomat. They have two sons and a daughter. There is American blood in the veins of Von Bohlen und Halbach, although he is a subject of the Kaiser. His father fought on the northern side in the civil war.

She not only is the richest woman in Germany, but she is perhaps the most powerful woman in the whole world. By her whim or will nations may be made or destroyed. If she chose to do so she could shut down the vast gun works and refuse to supply the munitions of war to some nation that must have them or cease to exist.

Her father had no son and educated his daughter, Bertha, to take his place. She has been trained in every detail of the business and takes personal charge of it.

It is said to be the war aspect of her work that interests her most. The manufacture of locomotives, steel girders and other products of her factories is all humdrum to her. The earliest toys of her childhood were absolutely perfect working models of every battleship and gun constructed at the factory.

She has made a careful study of every detail of battleship construction, the secrets of rapid firing guns and the composition of shrapnel, dynamite bombs and other death dealing ammunition.

THE POPULAR GIRL

The popular girl is not aggressive and does not wish to contradict and argue. She does not cause pain by a foolish or unguarded use of her tongue. If you invite her anywhere she always pays you the compliment of looking her best and being at her best. She makes the world a pleasant place for other people to dwell in by being pleasant herself. She does not want to take the front of the stage. Though if she has to do so she manages to take it prettily and without giving offense. She has equally nice manners for all and a touch of deference for age and experience. She is never bored; not because she does not meet with gray days, but because she has sunshine in her heart.

Good form

Dinner Calls.
 Those who have been invited to a dinner party, whether an acceptance or regret was sent, should call on the hostess within a couple of weeks. Eight o'clock in the evening is considered the proper time. The lady and her escort send in a card apiece for each lady in the house, while the man adds one of his own for each man in the family. On entering the lady does not remove her hat, but the man leaves his hat, topcoat and cane in the hall. The conversation should be impersonal, to talk of people is not in good taste, subjects of general interest should be discussed, and no reference should be made by the callers as to this being a "dinner call," rather leaving it to be implied that the hostess has made herself so charming and gracious that her personality prompts the courtesy. Those who call in such formal fashion have an opportunity to make themselves either very agreeable or the reverse, and as agreeable people are always in request it will be the very best form and the "proper thing" to keep the conversation to a point that when it is time to leave those receiving will be quite truthful in expressing the wish, "I hope you will soon come again," a thing that is often said without being meant. In the course of the call it is a pleasant way to say something nice about having enjoyed the delightful dinner so recently. A caller may say: "We were so delighted to meet Miss B. at your dinner lately. It gave me the opportunity to renew an old time acquaintance," or something of the sort, so giving the hostess to understand that her hospitality was thoroughly appreciated.

Business Manners.
 To the business woman the men in the office are men, of course, but with a difference—just the difference that the fact that she is working with them must make. She will not be the less polite or the less pleasant, but she will be a little more reserved. In the sanctuary of her own home she may rightly unbend, but in the arena of business she must keep her armor of dignity and discretion. At home she may choose her men associates. In business she cannot, and her colleagues as well as her employers are the gift of necessity, not of free will. She should remember that in an office her sex is, as it were, on trial, and by her behavior it stands or falls in the eyes of others. Even the pretty license allowed her in the social world because of her sex is not for her here. It would be as much out of place as a ball dress in a kitchen. Yet the ordinary courtesy that every man should pay to a girl she should expect, though if it is denied her she must not always insist upon it beyond the barest limits of decent behavior. In short, she must learn never to obtrude her sex upon others and never to forget it herself, and at first this is not easy. But in time she will find it quite natural to assume her little business manner.

Tango Prizes.
 Tea and coffee sets and services for feed drinks compose some of the more elaborate prizes for dancers. The odd looking little leather cases known as tango party boxes form another type of coveted prizes. Outside they are of alligator, morocco or snede in various dark tones, and they are lined with pale tinted satin or soft kid. They are finished in silver or gold, with key, lock and clasps to match the interior fittings of change purse, powder box, cologne bottle and mirror. These party boxes and other vanity cases and purses when used for dance prizes for women are paired with cigarette and match cases and silver mounted or gold knobbed sticks for the men, and when bracelet watches are given a man's watch and fob completes the reward for the winning couple.

Borrowed Books.
 To have a book that one has lent returned in a thumbed and dog-eared condition makes you "see red," more especially if you afterward find that it has been handed round among the friends of the borrower. It's such a cheek to lend a book belonging to another person! It is bad form to treat a book badly, no matter whether it is yours or not. Even with a library book don't turn down pages. It is so easy to mark one's place in some other way.

Serving Tea to Men.
 Afternoon tea is often very much enjoyed by men, and the arrival of half a dozen or more masculines gives pleasure to the ladies assembled. Men usually like tea very hot and rather strong. Many prefer sugar and cream to lemon, and these should be provided. Salted nuts, bonbons, mints and olives with the sandwiches may well make refreshments the better enjoyed.

Lace Tea Costies.
 There are attractive tea costies made of filet lace, mounted over silk and padded heavily under the silk. Pink is the color usually of the silk, but any desired color can be used to match the other fittings of the tea table.

Neutralizing a Shock.
 If you know that you are going to hear a loud sound it is well to open the mouth, as the shock will then be neutralized. Noises in the ears are most annoying and sometimes resist all treatment. They are often associated with deafness and should therefore receive due attention.

When Preparing Eggs for Cooking.
 Often when separating the white from the yolk of an egg the yolk becomes broken and falls into the white. Dip a cloth in warm water, wring it dry and touch the yolk with a corner of it, when the latter will adhere to the cloth and may easily be removed.

Asthma Can be Cured. Its suffering is as needless as it is terrible to endure. After its many years of relief of the most stubborn cures no sufferer can doubt the perfect effectiveness of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Comfort of body and peace of mind return with its use and nights of sound sleep come back for good. Ask your druggist; he can supply you.

Newspaper Laws

- 1.—A postmaster is required to give notice by letter. Returning the newspaper does not answer the law, when a subscriber does not take his newspaper out of the office and state the reason for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.
- 2.—If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrearages or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.
- 3.—Any person who takes a paper out of the post office, whether directed to his name or not, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the pay.
- 4.—If a subscriber orders his paper stopped and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.
- 5.—The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the postoffice or removing, leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

Hamilton, Dec. 15.—One of the most distressing cases of poverty discovered by charity workers came to light to-day, when a woman, lying ill on a bundle of straw, was found clasping her dead babe to her breast.
