Dear Mr. Meredith:-

I am very sorry indeed not to have let you know before that Lady Currie and I regret very much being unable to accept your kind invitation to dine with you next Sunday night.

We appreciate very much your kindness in thinking of us.

Dear Sir Arthur:-

Not hearing definitely from you, I am in hopes that you and Lady Currie will dine with me on Sunday night to meet Sir Campbell and Lady Stuart at the Mount Royal Club at eight o'clock. I endeavoured to reach you by telephone and endeavoured to get your house to speak to Lady Currie, but was not successful. Kindly let me hear from you. A note dropped at the Mount Royal Club will reach me.

I am,

Yours very sincerely,

Dear Sir Arthur,

I send you herewith copy of the judgment in the case of Rex vs Smith, which kindly return after you have finished with it.

Referring to the conversation I had with you to-day in regard to the duties of auditors towards directors, you will find the information you want in your copy of the Bank Act on page 26. It is subsection 10 of section 56. It does not go quite as far as I thought, as they have only to report on any loans exceeding 1% of the paid up capital of the Bank which in their opinion are inadequately secured.

I am,

Yours very truly,

copy of the judgment in the case of Rex vs. Smith.

I have read it with interest and beg to return it herewith.

Dear Mr. Meredith,

I must write to correct a mistake that I made the other evening.

I was wrong in thinking that the average yield on our investments was over 4% last year. It was exactly 4%.

In these days I suppose we must regard ourselves as being fortunate to earn that much on an average.

It was a great pleasure to have a talk with you about University matters the other evening.

Yours sincerely,

My dear Sir Arthur

I was much touched
by your most kind letter & by you & Lady Currie's messages of sympathy.

We all feel William's loss terribly. The only bright spot in our sorrow is the remembrance of our friends - I appreciate & am grateful to you for your letter

SPRINGFIELD, MASS. December 14, 1925

Gen. Sir Arthur William Currie, Principal, McGill University, Montreal, Canada.

Dear Sir:-

Nearly eighty years have passed since the first unabridged Merriam-Webster Dictionary was issued (1847) by George and Charles Merriam of Springfield, Massachusetts. During these many years the Merriams have devoted practically all their time to publishing the dictionary. We know of no other house that has given its whole energy and means to a single publication nor one whose experience has been so closely concentrated.

Our files would be a veritable mine for the autograph collector for they include in their early records the names of Washington Irving, Horace Mann, Daniel Webster; later, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Dr. J. A. H. Murray, Professor A. H. Sayce, Sir Henry Irving, Rt. Hon. the Lord Curzon; and still later, Sir Gilbert Parker, W. D. Howells, W. L. Courtney, Edmund Gosse, Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, Most Rev. Chas. Hamilton, Most Rev. Paul Bruchesi, Mrs. Annie Howells Frechette, and a host of others -- all of whom have been unanimous in praise and appreciation of the superior merits of Webster.

To-day a new generation has brought new leaders, men and women, who are taking high places in the varied activities of education, business, science, art, religion, medicine, the law, etc., and they, too, know and use Webster's Dictionary, the New International. You probably make use constantly of the work. Do you consider that the latest edition is entitled to the same high approval as that bestowed on its predecessors and are you willing to tell us to what an extent the New International is a help in your daily work? If a copy of the latest edition containing the Addenda of New Words and the new Gazetteer, copyright 1924, with latest census figures, is not now in your private library, we shall be pleased to send a copy with our compliments and best wishes.

Awaiting with much interest your reply, we are Very truly yours,

Dear Sir Arthur:

I am sending you, under another cover, a new copy of the "History / Syllabus", of which we spoke last summer. Please don't forget to acknowledge it; but it may possibly amuse you, and be of some value to your History Department though I fancy they are familiar with the previous editions. Please present my homage to Lady Currie, and give my most cordial regards to my friends in Montreal. - We count on seeing you here soon.

Yours sincerely,

Cambridge, Mass.

My dear Professor Merriman,

I am sincerely grateful to you for sending me a copy of the History I. Syllabus, which I have noted with much interest, and I hope some value to myself.

I am afraid that I shall not get to Cambridge this autumn. It may interest you to know that I am likely leaving Montreal early in December on my way to India, where I shall represent Canada at the opening of the New Parliament Buildings at New Delhi. I shall return via the Pacific, so that will give me an excellent opportunity to learn at first hand something about conditions in India and the Orient generally.

You will also be interested to learn that I have asked your friend Adams to inaugurate the Graduates' Society Lectures, of which I spoke to you last summer.

Remember me kindly to Mrs. Merriman, and with most cordial good wishes,

I am,

Ever yours faithfully,

Dear Sir.

Having the honor to write you, I am to-day taking the opportunity of writing you, although I am unknown to you, the reason of my favor being to get an interview with you, I am a returned soldier, was with the 87th Bat. in France, and trying to get a position for my future. I have work at the Post-Office here in Montreal, at three different intervals, since last year, each time trying my best to give satisfaction, as I have nobody to help me. I thought by writing you, that you would help me, to secure a permanent position in the Post-Office, you can take information at the different departments at which I have been working, Newspaper and Letter, Dept. to prove you that I am telling you the truth, and that I have always try my best to give satisfaction as a returned soldier, I am a French Canadian and having my mother to look after, as it is about the only position I can fill now, I was at Boulton wood with the 87th at Cambrai.

Thanking you for any trouble I should give you, and trusting that you will take my demand in consideration.

I remain your's truly.
