TWO OTHER VESSELS SINK WITH ALL ON BOARD

MARSEILLES, Feb. 12.—(Special cable to The Sunday World.)—Within sight of the spot where the wrecked steamer General Chanzy lies on a Majorca reef, where she went to disaster yesterday, sending 156 of the 157 persons she carried to their deaths...

MARSEILLES, Feb. 12.—The French Transatlantic Line states that no passengers embarked on the General Chanzy after the regular passenger list had been made up. According to this list, the only American on the steamer was a trip to America.

News of other wrecks were received to-day. The schooner Mathilde, from Dunkirk, which left Port de Bouc, France, Feb. 4, for St. Pierre Miquelon, with a miscellaneous cargo, was wrecked last Wednesday in the same vicinity as was the General Chanzy.

Marcellus to-day in great grief. Hundreds of relatives of those lost in the General Chanzy disaster crowded the pier through the night, braving the storm and crying frantically for the lost beyond all hope.

Women, crying pitifully for word of husbands, sons, brothers or sweethearts, stormed the offices of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique. Again and again some of the more desperate attempted to hurl themselves into the sea in paroxysms of grief.

The crowd was swelled to-day by panic-stricken enquirers for the safety of other ships in the path of the storm. By noon a solid mass of thousands clogged the water front, defying the police and demanding the news that did not come.

Reviving in the morning, he wandered about aimlessly most of the day, finally stumbling into the village of Ciudadela, thoroughly exhausted and almost demented.

BILL AND DAN HAVE FIRST CALL TO MAY 15

Two United States Railroads Trying to Head Them Off, But Option is Clear.

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 12.—(Special.)—The story of one of the biggest options for sale ever given in Canada, that respecting the Dunsmuir Coal properties on Vancouver Island, for eleven million, is one in which three transcontinental railways figure, two of them American and the third a Canadian corporation.

The scenes of action in connection with the deals for the sale of the enormous Dunsmuir coal lands and mine holdings figure on the map of North America from the Pacific to the Atlantic, in Victoria, Portland, San Francisco, St. Paul, Toronto and New York. Until May 15 William Mackenzie and D. D. Mann of Toronto, the Canadian Northern Railway are dominant factors in the situation.

SIR JAMES IS AN ARTIST ON THE ROPE

Tells Commercial Men Who Want Patent Fire Escapes He Can do Gymnastic Stunts With Fire Behind and Rope Before.

Inadequate fire escapes in rural hotels and the quality of the accommodation in general were the subjects brought to the notice of Sir James Whitney by a deputation of the Commercial Travelers' Association, which waited on him on Saturday afternoon. Hon. J. J. Foy, Hon. W. J. Hanna and Hon. Frank Cochrane were also present at the interview.

TO-MORROW IS ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.

Valentine's Day is declared by the encyclopaedias to be falling into disuse. This merely means that the men who compile encyclopaedias have abandoned the practice of sending Valentines.

But the genuine Valentine! What love and sweetness lingers around the memory of these missives! What a wretched wight is he who never sent, and what a forlorn maiden is she who never received one.

St. Valentine was an old bishop who lived about 1600 years ago, and nobody seems to know just why he got mixed up with the affairs of Cupid. It is supposed that his day became identified with the festival of Pan and Juno, just as Easter perpetuates the Feast of Eostre, the Saxon goddess. In Britain, where Valentine's Day is chiefly observed, the birds are declared to mate on this date, but this is not to be regarded as a scientific observation.

The historic valentine is Sam Weller's, which he sent to Mary, at Mr. Nupkin's, Ipswich. It began as all good Valentines should, with "Lovely creature."

"Tain't in poetry, is it?" interposed his father. "No, no," replied Sam. "Very glad to hear it," said Mr. Weller. "Poetry's unnatural; no man ever talked poetry 'cept a beadle on boxin' day, or Warren's blackin', or Rowland's oil, or some o' them low fellows; never you let yourself down to talk poetry, my boy."

EXPROPRIATION OUTLOOK GROWS BRIGHTER

Rural Members of the Legislature Understand Woes of Strapholder—Manager Orr's Raise of Salary.

With street railway expropriation to come before the Ontario legislature within two weeks or less, it cannot be said that traction problems are not being kept steadily in the foreground. What is more, the outlook for the passage of the city's bill is steadily growing brighter, and in so doing, a curious situation is developing.

An alderman, not one of the twenty who voted for expropriation, has been talking over the situation with local members of the legislature. These latter gentlemen, it seems have been cautiously exploring the minds of their colleagues from the outside ridings, and their careful proings have just about convinced them that these brethren from the towns and concession lines will vote to give Toronto the right to take over the street railway.

GLOVE MANUFACTURER WAS FOULY MURDERED

Italians Under Arrest as Suspects—Revenge Suggested as the Motive.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Charles Willschire, a wealthy glove manufacturer, was found murdered last night in the office of his factory on North Halstead-street. An employee who chanced to stop at the factory on his way home from a theatre found Mr. Willschire's body. The surroundings evidenced a terrific struggle.

Two Italians, whose names are withheld by the police, are under arrest as suspects. Some time ago Mr. Willschire caused the arrest of two Italians who are said to have sold him some stolen goods, and they served a three months' term each in the county jail.

Examination of Mr. Willschire's body showed that he had been stabbed thru the heart and almost disemboweled, while near his body was found a stiletto which the police believe are being sought by the police.

AMERICANS LOST

MARSEILLES, France, Feb. 12.—It is believed to-day that the only Americans aboard the ill-fated French steamer General Chanzy, that went down on the north coast of the island of Minorca on Wednesday, were Miss Elsie Henry, aged 28 years, address unknown; Leon Derenda, and possibly his partner, a man named Green. Derenda is said to have come from San Francisco.

Robbing the Blind

The man who thinks a cigar is better because it is "Imported," is hypnotized by the glamor of a name, and is blind to the fact that the Davis "NOBLEMEN" cigar is exactly the same thing at half the price.

The "NOBLEMEN" Cigar and the "Imported" are alike in respect of quality and workmanship, but the "Imported" cost twice as much as "NOBLEMEN."

It is obvious that the man who buys "blindly" is robbing himself of 50 per cent in value. Don't let prejudice take money from your pocket.

Open your eyes to the fact that the "NOBLEMEN" Cigar is purely Cuban—equal to the best Havanas. One trial of the "NOBLEMEN" Cigar will convince you that this assertion is very well founded.

"NOBLEMEN" size, 2 for a quarter. "PANETELA" size, 10c straight. "CONCHA FINA" size, 3 for 25c.

THE TORONTO WORLD

The E.M.F. Family Arrived In Toronto Yesterday

Did You See the Parade?

A choice consignment of the famous E.M.F. Motor Cars arrived in Toronto yesterday, and this important event in local motoring circles was marked by a MOTOR CAR PARADE, which event inspired automobile admirers, connoisseurs, owners and prospective owners with LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT when they saw the perfection of automobile architecture and strength in the E.M.F. Car.

After the motor car floats had been taken through the principal streets of the city an impromptu MOTOR CAR RECEPTION was held at the new and palatial home of the E.M.F. at the

Dodds-Massey Motor Car Salesrooms, 14-16 King St. East

The DODDS-MASSEY Salesrooms are as spacious as they are beautifully finished, yet the capacity of the Salesrooms was tested when the automobile admirers came by scores to get better acquainted at close range with the E.M.F. All were delighted with the modern features of the E.M.F. and declared the black-and-yellow flyer to be the last word in motor cars.

Mr. R. J. Dodds, the enterprising automobile man, who brought the E.M.F. to Toronto, was kept busy all afternoon responding in detail to the queries of the scores of admirers of the new car. Mr. Dodds is enthusiastic over the E.M.F. and welcomes visitors who may wish to examine the perfect product of motor car construction.

EXCEPTIONAL MOTOR CAR FACTS

Specifications

CYLINDERS—Bore, 4-inch; stroke, 4½-inch; compression—moderate. All experience has proven these cylinder dimensions to be nearly ideal for all kinds of service. They give a motor of moderate speed—which means long life.

VALVES—Are extra large—2.18 inch—made for special steel, drop forged. Stems and seats ground. Valve guides machined and pressed into place instead of being cast integr. l with cylinders—easily replaced when worn.

CRANK-SHAFT BEARINGS—Special babbitt ("White metal" alloy) in accordance with best modern practice. Camshaft bearings, phosphor-bronze.

PISTON PIN—Special case-hardened steel ground; drilled hollow to insure perfect lubrication. Pistons, connecting rods, crank-shafts and all reciprocating parts are mechanically balanced to eliminate vibration.

IGNITION—Double system, consisting of (a) magneto, (b) battery. The magneto is not an extra or "special equipment."

ENGINE GEARS—Cam-shaft and magneto gears all enclosed and separated from crank chamber. Gears lubricated by non-fluid grease—not cylinder oil.

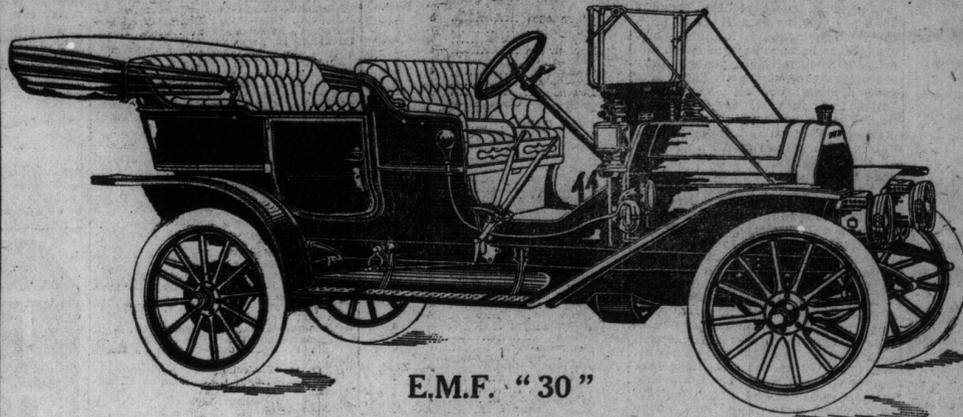

CARBURETOR—Improved simple float, single jet—our own design. Very flexible and economical. Carburetor is located on driver's side of motor, away from hot exhaust pipes and other parts—readily accessible.

CLUTCH—Improved expanding-ring type. Leather faced. Contained in fly-wheel with holes drilled for escape of oil obviates all liability of clutch slipping from this cause. Takes hold gently—and holds when engaged. Adjustment, accessible and easy.

SPEEDS—Three forward and reverse—direct on third.

STEERING GEAR—Irreversible, worm and sector made from special steel, case hardened. All bearing surfaces ground. Connection from steering arm, at right, to left knuckle arm, obviates all tendency to "crankiness" on rough roads.

WHEELS—Artillery type. Large spokes—12. Spokes and feloes first-grade second-growth hickory.

E.M.F. "30"

At the Head of the Parade

The big black car with the yellow gear was built to be at the head of every parade—it lead the procession on Saturday—and it leads the parade in the motor world every day. A perfect car for a moderate price is the answer.

The sliding gear transmission is now recognized as superior to any other known. The operating system is very nearly ideal.

The brake system is the best known. The steering gear is of the worm and sector type, identical in design, material and construction with what you'll find in cars of $4000 to $5000—simplest as well as best.

THE ADAMS FURNITURE COMPANY, LIMITED, CITY HALL SQUARE

WILL REASSURE THE BUSINESS INTERESTS

President Taft Does Not Propose to Prosecute the Trusts That Abide by the Law.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—There is reason to believe that the speech to be delivered by President Taft to-night before the New York Republican Club will be of such a nature as to reassure business men that the good trusts have nothing to fear.

It is apparent that the president would not have regarded it as necessary to reiterate his ideas with respect to capitalist combinations if recent developments had not convinced him that in spite of all he had said, business interests and a good many people who are in favor of war on trusts, do not understand the purposes of his administration.

Prominent men, recent visitors at the White House, have suggested that he desist from any purpose to engage in a crusade against combinations of capital and industry, and the president gathered from what he heard from these visitors that they were not aware of his true position, and decided, it was said to-day, to make known his views in language so clear that they would not be subject to further misunderstanding.

Combinations Inevitable.

The president has said repeatedly that no thinking man could fall to recognize that great combinations of capital were inevitable in the present day. He has explained that he never intended that his administration would attempt to destroy or injure all concerns which represented business consolidation or begin any wholesale prosecution of corporations of magnitude merely because they were organizations of that character. The president's position, which he is expected to amplify in his speech in New York, was illustrated in his message of Jan. 7. In that message he said:

"It is possible for the owners of a business of manufacturing and selling useful articles of merchandise so to conduct their business as not to violate the prohibitions of the anti-trust law, and yet to secure to themselves the benefit of the economies of management and of production due to the concentration under one control of large capital and many plants. If they use no other inducement than the constant low price of their product and its good quality to attract custom, and their business is a profitable one, they violate no law. If their actual competitive capital invested, the prospect of new investments of capital by others in such a profitable business is sufficiently near and potential to restrain them in the prices at which they sell their products.

"But if they attempt by a use of their preponderating capital and by a sale of their goods temporarily at unduly low prices to drive out of business their competitors, or if they attempt by exclusive contracts with their patrons and threats of misleading except upon such contracts, or by other methods of a similar character, to use the largeness of their resources and the extent of their output compared with the total output as a means of compelling custom and frightening off competition, then they disclose a purpose to restrain trade and establish a monopoly and violate the act.

"The object of the anti-trust law was to suppress the abuses of business of the kind described."

Don't Encourage Hysteria.

There is simple reason for believing that the president has come to the conclusion that a state of political hysteria prevails in parts of the country where the idea is widespread that he should go after trusts hammer and tongs without regard to the consequences. That he has no sympathy with the propaganda for an indiscriminate crusade that might result in upsetting business conditions is obvious, and it is believed that in his forthcoming speech he will not hesitate to pay his respects to those whose anti-trust views are not tempered by reason or argued for the business prosperity of the country.

Janitor for Forty Years.

Robert Beare, for nearly 40 years janitor of Victoria College, died at his residence, 59 Charles-street, early Saturday morning. He was very popular with the students, who will especially miss his face at the annual "bob," which Mr. Beare was associated with ever since its inauguration some 35 years ago. He is survived by two children, a son and a daughter. The flag floated at half mast in Victoria College to-day.

SLANG IN THE PULPIT STARTED SENSATION

The World is Beginning to See Things in Different Light and Seeks the Truth.

SPOKANE, Wash., Feb. 9.—(Special)—"There was a time in the life of Job, when affliction," said he might have been justified in quoting that most popular of modern phrases, "Life is just one damn thing after another," said Rev. Dr. William J. Hindley, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church of Spokane, during an address delivered recently before over 500 people, who listened with rapt attention throughout. But when it assumed the proportions of a modern philosophy, adopted by the business world, and taken on the walls of thousands of homes and offices, it shows there is a reason, namely, the people want a broad religion. "The phrase is a libel on American citizenship and Christianity. Life is wrong when this becomes the motto of all kinds of people in all walks of life. To you who have it lying on your office desk or framed in your homes, I say, 'Tear it down, or play the part of the saviors of the teachings of Socrates, and

MONTREAL SNOWBOUND

Business Handicapped by Heavy Fall of the Beautiful.

MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—(Special)—With the prospect of one of the heaviest snowstorms of the season, pedestrians struggled down to business today or endured the discomfort of overcrowded street cars. At a little after midnight the snow first began to fall, but at dawn the landscape was blotted out by a whirling blanket of snow. At 8 o'clock this morning 24 inches had been registered at McGill Observatory, with the mercury standing at 14 degrees above zero.

TORONTO PARTIES INTERESTED

Report Purchase of Site for Big Hotel in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—A $650,000 real estate deal has just been announced here, by which the property at Peel and St. Catharine-streets, now occupied by the Sergieff departmental store, passes to the control of a syndicate composed of Montreal, Toronto and New York people.

It is believed an hotel scheme is behind the deal. The tenants will not have to move until the spring of 1912. The R. Simpson Co. of Toronto were the holders of the property.

BURIED UNDER COAL

One Killed and Five Injured by Coal Slide.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 12.—While loosening a small mountain of prepared coal which had become frozen in the storage yards of the Philadelphia & Reading Co. at Landingville, near here to-day, six workmen were buried by a sudden slide of 1000 tons, and one of their number, Samuel Blacoe, of Landingville, aged 35 years, was crushed to death. The other five were rescued, badly injured. Clinton Graef, a foreman, is the most seriously injured and may die.

Police Puzzled By Murder of Rich Widow

All Doors Locked and Ten Thousand Dollars Cash Intact—Crime Made to Appear Like Robbery.

NICE, Feb. 12.—The police are puzzled by a murder mystery. Mme. Durand, a widow of independent means, was found brutally done to death in her dining-room. All the doors were locked, the windows fastened and $10,000 in the same was intact.

by her hair, but the actual cause of death was strangulation. Robbery Not Motive. Robbery was not the motive for the crime, the attempts had evidently been made to make it appear so. On the floor was a jenny and a cold chisel. A safe in the room had been struck with the chisel, but the key remained in the lock, and the police commissary was able to open it without the least difficulty. Inside the safe was a sum of $10,000 in banknotes, gold and bonds. It may be that the murderer was disturbed, and fled before completing the robbery, but it has been established that the crime was committed at 3 o'clock on the previous evening. The victim was a very nervous woman. She never left her rooms at night time, and locked and bolted her door. As the windows were shut, and as there were no marks on the door showing that it had been broken open, the police authorities are at a loss to know how the murderer gained an entrance.

ADMIRALS FOR DOMINION MAY BE BORN THIS MONTH

Neptune the Sea-God Deified For February by Astrologists—Significance of Current Birthdays.

If the ancient astrologers and the Roman soothsayers are to be believed, February might be the best month in the year for the birthdays of future admirals and sailors of the wonderful new Canadian navy. The Romans dedicated February to the sea-god Neptune, and the more ancient astrologers of the Oriental lands placed it under the constellation of Aquarius. Possibly the spring freshets of Italy and Northern Africa gave the magi and Roman fortune-tellers physical and mental suggestion along watery lines. A portion of the month is also under the planetary influence of the Zodiacal sign Pisces, represented by two fishes.

February birthdays are particularly favorable in years when the month is under the influence of the sun, as this year, or a friendly ruling planet such as Venus and Jupiter.

The general characteristic of persons born in the early part of February if the planets were favorable are a special aptitude for the fine arts or employments requiring technical skill with usually a ready recognition by others of their remarkable ability. Long life and high positions, and ability as writers or public speakers are to be looked for.

If born in the latter part of February, and the planets were favorable, they will be the artisans of their own celebrity, and unless they allow a certain degree of restlessness to hamper their progress, attain celebrity in the realm of fine arts, sciences or literature. They will be inclined to be poetical, dreamy and mystical.

In their dealings with others they will usually be slow to confide in anyone. Some will be witty and somewhat sarcastic in their remarks. Many travels and plenty of money are prophesied for the boys born in the latter half of February. They will find it possible to secure the favor of people of lofty standing and are in line for good social positions.

The amethyst was accorded by the ancients as the February jewel of destiny. It symbolizes sincerity.

BIG BALL ROLLED TO KEEP DOWN NOISE OF SURLY

Over Half Ton of Liquor Captured in North in Two Weeks.

One of the chief obstacles which the provincial secretary's department have to fight against in the northern country is the "blind pig." In the past two weeks over half a ton of liquor has been seized by the officials while running the blockade in this way. Two distinct cases have come to hand in the last few days.

A constable at Matheson last week saw a suspicious-looking character driving a team drawing out in bags. The driver was stopped, and the load investigated. It was found that each bag contained three quart bottles of whiskey, and there were fifty bags in the load. The load was valued at $750, since whiskey sells in that locality at $5 a quart.

It is the custom of the Cobalt police to investigate all baggage carried by suspicious-looking persons. Some days ago a fellow was coming along one of the streets of Cobalt with two suit cases. The would-be traveler was stopped by the officer, who shook the cases and listened for the customary gurgling sound made by the liquid in the bottles. No such sound resulted, but the suspicions of the officer were realized when he opened the suit cases and found that each contained a dozen and a half bottles of the forbidden beverage, which the owner would have valued at about $180. The gurgling sound was concealed by a ball which had been enclosed in a metal box and packed in the centre of each case, with straw in this manner the gurgling sound was drowned out.

DEATH OF BUSINESS MAN. MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—(Special.)—Mr. Daniel Hatton, of the well-known firm of fish dealers, styled the D. Hatton Co. of Bonsecours-street, died at the Western Hospital this morning of heart failure. Mr. Hatton had been taken suddenly ill at his residence, 367 St. Denis-street, and died soon after admittance.

Mr. McShane Better. MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—(Special.)—Harbor Master James McShane, who has been in hospital with pneumonia, is rapidly recovering.

A report that Philippe H. Roy, former president of the Banque St. Jean, is dying in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, is denied by the prison officials.

BARBARIC SCENES AT PUBLIC EXECUTION

Rope Breaks and Meslem Priests Kick Man's Prostrate Body.
TEHERAN, Feb. 12.—Barbarous scenes were witnessed at the execution the other day of the reactionary Moraker-el-Saltaneh, a friend of the ex-shah. The execution took place before about 5000 people. The prisoner was brought to the place and a rope was passed round his neck and over a pole. Men hauled the rope and the victim was lifted from the ground. But the rope gave way, and the prisoner fell to the ground again. Mujahids (Moslem priests) who were standing by ill-treated the prisoner and kicked him. While he lay on his back, one of them struck him on the head with the butt-end of a rifle. A new rope was brought, and the prisoner was again hauled up. The knot being passed under his chin, could not effect immediate strangulation. The prisoner clasped the rope with both hands and feet, and tried to relieve in this way the pressure on his throat. 20 or 30 minutes passed before he expired, while the spectators obviously enjoyed the barbaric scene and clapped their hands as he struggled with the rope.

Romance of the Turf At the Winter Tracks

Forty-Dollar Jonah Horse Wins Five Straight—Peculiar Triple Upset—Some Anti-Racing Illusions—Bright Prospects For the Grand Circuit—Outlook in Canada and New York State.

The sky appears to be clearing for the Canadian thoroughbred racing interests. The report is current from Ottawa that the special committee on the Miller bill has been convinced that the legislation involved would in its present form be ineffectual for the ends sought by its promoters and be too disastrous to be enforced without a more searching investigation. Some Ottawa authorities believe that the committee will ask for further time than is available during the present parliamentary session before being required to report a final opinion on the evidence submitted. Indeed, it is uncertain when the taking of testimony itself will be concluded, as some of the chief witnesses in favor of the bill have yet to be examined. The committee will resume its sittings at Ottawa next Wednesday.

FATE OF THE FOUR-YEAR-OLDS.

Amusing Public Utterances by a Gentleman, Who Said He Knew.

In addressing a recent meeting at the Toronto Humane Society, a popular city clergyman essayed to give his fellow members some light on the Canadian racing situation. His address was decidedly interesting. Thoroughbred horse racing, he said, was well worthy to be termed the sport of kings. For hundreds of years the British sovereigns had lent it the approval of their presence and no more inspiring sight could be imagined than the final supreme struggle of rival horses to win the race. He objected, however, to the horse race because the thoroughbred was cast-off in a heartless fashion if in its two-year season it did not possess winning qualities. Seventy-five per cent. of the two-year-olds, he declared, were sold to an unfortunate fate thru being auctioned for racing, while most of the other twenty-five per cent. were auctioned off for all kinds of hard unsuitable service after their fourth season in training. The peculiar line of reasoning appeared to appeal quite strongly to the members of the Humane Society, but where the gentleman procured his statistics was a mystery. It was obvious, however, that the charges are not qualified for profitable service on the race track, but they have well-known uses. Regarding the good racing material, its lasting qualities, instead of terminating abruptly the fourth year, are much more extending. This is established by a glance at the records for the present month. For example: Convent Bell, b.m., by St. Anthonis—St. Modred, 4 yrs., owned by W. M. Cain, won, for the second time in succession, at one and a sixteenth miles at Oakland in 1:02 2-5. Eminola, b.m., by Aloha—Eminence, 4 yrs., owned by M. G. J. Engelking, won at 5 furlongs, at Tampa in 1:04. Harting, b.m., by Hermance—Satan, 4 yrs., owned by L. Kelley, won at 7 furlongs, at Tampa, in 1:02. Doctor Mack, b.h., by Samovar—Cincher, 7 yrs., owned by W. Hayes, won at 5 1-2 furlongs, at Juarez, in 1:05. Niblick, ch. g., St. Gatien—Braw, 3 yrs., owned by B. A. Taylor, won at 1 mile, at Juarez, in 1:44 4-5. E. M. Fry, b. g., by Tain—Caroline Hamilton, 5 yrs., owned by H. G. Bedwell, and ridden by Jockey George, won at 5 furlongs, at Oakland, in 1:12 1-4. Closterless, ch. m., by Carlton—Grace—Claire II, 7 yrs., owned by W. C. Capps, won at 5 furlongs, at Tampa in 1:02 2-5, breaking the former track record.

German Band Masters Laid Out in Long Row

SUSPICION THAT ALL WERE MURDERED

Indian Prince Advertising in Berlin Papers For Bandmaster But Has Had No Replies.

DECLARES IT IS NO JOKE

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—A chauffeur and a bandmaster, who have just returned from India, tell a weird story. The chauffeur, who is advertising in the Berlin papers for a bandmaster for his native land. But it is believed he has had no replies. And the reason is distinctly gruesome. His highness started his band with a German bandmaster 20 years ago. He recently also started a motor car—and a chauffeur. When the chauffeur arrived in the rajah's capital, he was informed that a new German bandmaster was coming from Bombay the next morning. That evening the chauffeur, walking in the compound of the rajah's palace, saw a row of tombstones, all exactly alike. The next morning the German bandmaster arrived, and asked the chauffeur how he liked the place. "I started yesterday, and I'm and your coming, too." "Not me; nein nicht—nein nicht!" "Vy, his highness 'e pay me dree 'undred rupee month. Nein nicht, mein vrendt; I stay here it will suite me all right." But the chauffeur took him for a quiet walk in the compound. Suddenly the bandmaster stooped and turned pale. He was in front of the tombs of his seven German bandmasters who had been his predecessors. By the main train that night the bandmaster and the chauffeur left for Bombay. The death is not always caused by the climate in native India.

RACING DATE SCHEDULES.

Canadian Program Outlined—King's Plate Prospects.

The announcements of the Canadian racing dates for the spring, summer, and autumn meetings may be somewhat delayed by the fact that a number of the leading officials of the Canadian Racing Associations have been called to give evidence before the special committee at Ottawa. Racing, however, will open at the Woodbine in the third week in May, and Montreal Hamilton, Fort Erie and Windsor will probably be the order of the schedule. The New York season will open at Aqueduct on April 15 and close at the same track on Nov. 15.

DOINGS AT JACKSONVILLE.

Woodbine Horses Prominent at the Moneroff Park Race Track.

J. Hewitt's three-year-old Pulka, a former Woodbine winner, has broken the Jacksonville mile and a quarter record, winning in nice shape with Jockey Davenport up at 10 to 1 in the last time for that track of 2:02 3-5.

The two-year-old, Isabel Classic, owned by H. T. Shaw, is a new one that has made good, breaking the three and a half furlongs record in 41 1-5, ridden by Jockey Butwell.

Prominent among the horses that are running consistently at Jacksonville this winter is the three-year-old, High Range. This colt, owned by R. Angarola, recently scored his fourth consecutive victory, taking three-fifths of the former track record for one and a sixteenth miles, doing it in 1:46, with Jockey Butwell up, and at the good price of seven to one.

J. McLaughlin's Arondack is being prepared for the $5000 Florida Special. Milton B. a three-year-old gelding, by Claude-Ville Marie, is likely to be seen at the Woodbine. He was not thought a good enough prospect for the track, and was set as a juvenile to drawing a cart. Since his graduation, Milton B. has been a frequent winner.

BRIGHTON BEACH RESTORED.

Metropolitan Circuit Renews Date to Track Which Fell by the Way.

The reappearance of Brighton Beach on the New York schedule for 1910 is significant of the revival of confidence in the future of racing on the Metropolitan Circuit despite the repressive policy of Governor Hughes. Alvin O'R, and Belmont, who, beginning with last year, established a large racing stable of American horses in England, under the care of Trainer A. J. Joyner, was more successful during the 1909 season than any other of the American owners who shipped their horses abroad.

Parvick, which has run several disappointing races this winter, was dispatched to England last summer. She started only once in that country and finished unplaced.

AT THE WESTERN TRACKS.

Oakland Meeting Extended for Two Months.

The Oakland meeting which opened as an experiment for sixty days was due to close on Saturday Feb. 12. Oral speculation has been sufficiently popular for the meeting to be extended to April 8, with a prospect of a further extension.

The California Derby will be run on Feb. 22. It is expected to be the most classic event of the season on the Pacific Coast.

FAST TIME AT JUAREZ.

Former Cheap Selling Pacer Makes New Track Record at Mexico.

The six furlong record at Juarez has again been broken, this time by a six-year-old, Sevenfull, ridden by J. Garner, running the distance in 1:11 2-5. Subsequently H. G. Bedwell bid her up from $200 to $1500; but the owner bid her in. Sevenfull had frequently been entered to be sold for as low as $200.

J. R. Wainwright's five-year-old, Spooner, also ridden by Jockey Garner, is the new holder of the 1 1-5 miles record, doing it in 1:52 2-5.

Jarome R. Beagles has a good one in his two-year-old filly, Esma, by Dick Wells—Remember Me II, which won at three and a half furlongs at Juarez in the remarkable time of :46 2-5. This is within two-fifths of a second of the best American time for the distance.

HARNESS HORSE FUTURITY.

Fifteen Thousand Dollar Grand Circuit Stake For Two-Year-Olds.

United States harness horsemen have begun 1910 with preparations for a record year. Grand Rapids, Michigan, will hold a meeting, for which stakes of $5000 are to be arranged beginning on July 15. The Horsemans' Futurity Stake, for foals of 1907, with a guaranteed value of $15,000 will be trotted for at the Detroit Grand Circuit meeting during the first week in August.

Western Canadian horsemen are not only showing their sternness by their protests against what they regard as injudicious attempts at hurtful legislation, but equally so by their enterprising purchases. One instance is afforded by the recent visit of two such British Columbia horsemen as J. D. Chappell and J. J. Campbell of Vancouver, who took back with them

To Mr. Cane's objection that people slide down the ropes and hurt themselves, the premier retorted: "Did you ever see a rope when you were a boy? You don't have to slide up do you? There is no more necessity for you to slide down it."

Mr. Cane assured the premier that they were not there to advocate any particular model of fire-escape. They wanted to emphasize the necessity of an escape.

To the enquiry whether local option hotels were compelled to have fire-escapes, Sir James said: "We can force anyone who caters to the public to put them in."

E. Fielding of Toronto, treasurer of the travellers' association, declared that local license inspectors were "absolutely useless" in their getting proper accommodation in local option municipalities. They were either in business there, or had some axe to grind.

"The result of what you are saying," said the premier, "is that we might as well dismiss all our license inspectors."

"The inspectors are more likely to be negligent of their duty, to be influenced where there are liquor licenses than where there is local option. The interests at stake are greater."

Mr. Fielding admitted that many of the local option towns were supplying extraordinarily good accommodation, but many of the rural hotels were otherwise. He paid a high tribute to Inspector of Hotels Snider, but thought a special effort and a special inspection was necessary. He suggested that, owing to the difficulty of making local option hotels pay, municipalities be allowed to remit taxes to men who were willing to supply the accommodation required.

Hon. W. J. Hanna suggested that a couple of the members had bills to permit the municipalities to give a bonus.

Mr. Fielding thought this was along the right lines.

"If you know much about rural municipalities, you ought to know," said the premier, "that the council that would dare to do that would have only one year's term of office. If I were a rich man, I would be willing to give you $1000 for every municipality that would take advantage of such an act. There wouldn't be any."

Mr. Fielding thought the government should assist the municipalities.

ASQUITH GIVES NO HINT OF WHAT COURSE WILL BE

Liberals Appear to Be United, and All Speculation Comes From Opposition.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(Special Cable).—The most significant thing in the political situation is the close-mouth of the government. Mr. Asquith has not given out a single hint; not a single member has given a hint as to the program to be developed next week. The ministers have met, they have evidently decided on something; they appear to be united. Where they stand with the King is not known; other than this, that the unprejudiced man knows that the King will be with his first minister. No one knows what the reorganization of the government will be. In the meantime the Unionist newspapers and the opposition are busy framing up all kinds of hazards as in front of the administration.

THE SUPREME ISSUE.

The issue in the budget is not the liquor tax; it is the new departure in regard to land taxation—the most radical proposition ever presented in England. It proposes to take much of the land owners; and especially it proposes to take a share for the state of the unearned increment in land values—that value added to land, not by the owner but by the community. If the community either by concentration of population, by some industry, by public policy, greatly enhances the value of a piece of the land then the community should at least get a percentage of this rise, whether the action of the community be accidental or designed. Lloyd-George does not propose to take much at present, but he gets in the principle, and once started it can never be abandoned. To aid in this new land tax the budget provides for a valuation and description as to size and location of every piece of land and the name of every owner of such land in the three kingdoms. The result of this law will be to equalize and tax, and to gradually bring about a widespread redistribution of land ownership. This is the supreme issue of the budget. And if it carries it is by jumping up this tax heretofore that Lloyd-George hopes to get the immense additional sums required for the increased naval defence budget. The tariff reformers would get this money by customs taxes. In other words the rich land owners, who are largely for a greater navy, are trying to put the burden on the consumer of goods that could be taxed; the Liberals would put it on the land.

CALL OUT THE STREET NAMES.

Several complaints have been received at the World's office of conductors failing to call out the names of streets. This is a simple matter, and should be remedied at once, as nothing is more annoying to a passenger than to be carried some distance beyond his destination. The conductor will oblige by calling out the street names clearly, slowly and distinctly.

Seeking Delivery of Shares. Benjamin Gero of Manistique, Mich., and The Dreadnought Mines, Limited, of Ottawa, were served with a writ today by the Rothchild Cobalt Co., Ltd., of Halleybury, who seek the delivery of 20,000 shares of stock in the plaintiff company. An injunction is also asked to restrain Gero from disposing of the said stock or selling it to the defendant company.

An interim injunction was granted by Mr. Justice Brinton directly the writ was issued.

CHARCOT FOUND NEW LAND TO SOUTH

Antarctic Expedition Was a Success From a Scientific Point of View.

PUNTA ARENAS, Feb. 12.—The French Antarctic expedition appears to have been a success from a scientific viewpoint. Dr. Charcot, the commander, is here, having arrived on the steamer Pourquois. "Pas. New land was discovered far south, the coast lines surveyed and earlier maps made complete.

west, and discovered 120 miles of new land to the west and south of Alexander Island.

Alexander Island, or, as it is sometimes called, Alexander Land, is a small island in the South Atlantic Ocean, about latitude 49 degrees south, longitude 75 degrees west, and is considered to be a part of the so-called Antarctic continent. It was discovered by Bellingshausen in 1821.

The season was comparatively mild, but bad enough to cause considerable sickness in the party. Numerous interesting excursions were made among the glaciers.

WESTERN FARMERS IN NATIONAL ASSOCIATION

Turgeon Says Elevator Commission Will Be Appointed Very Soon.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Feb. 12.—(Special).—After the close of the final session of the grain-growers' conference yesterday afternoon an executive meeting was held with the representatives from Manitoba, Alberta and the Dominion Grange, and in accordance with the resolution passed during the convention, Daniel McCuaig of the Manitoba grain-growers was elected president and E. C. Drury was elected secretary of the National Council of Agriculture of the Dominion.

There will be in addition to these officers representatives from each of the three western farmers' organizations and the Dominion Grange, probably five from each.

This National Council rounds out the eastern and western farmers' societies into one national organization, covering the whole Dominion, and will doubtless prove in its results to have been the most important work of the 1910 Saskatchewan growers' convention.

WHO WILL BE DELEGATES TO THE BIG CONVENTION?

Trouble Brewing Between the Regular and Independent Conservative Associations.

There may be friction when it comes to selecting delegates to the Dominion Conservative convention to be held at Ottawa next summer. And when the matter is being arranged the status of the East Toronto Conservative Association will have to be settled once and for all.

The trouble is even now brewing, the whorl being declared by one of the said independents to be about as follows:

Every riding in the Dominion will be entitled to twenty delegates to the convention. This was the decision of the meeting of party managers, which met recently at Ottawa.

It turns out, however, that there is only one strictly riding association in the City of Toronto, and that is the East Toronto Independent Association, which nominated and elected Joseph Russell over the nominee of the straight party convention, A. E. Kemp, ex-M.P. Since going to Ottawa Mr. Russell has been accepted by the party there; he attends the party caucus and in every respect one of themselves.

Not the Same Brotherly Love. But here in Toronto there is not the same brotherly love exhibited. The party leaders have cold-shouldered Mr. Russell, and the effort to combine all the ward associations has not extended to East Toronto.

More than that, the straight party men have no riding associations, the nomination conventions being composed of representatives of the ward associations. These are under the direct management of the executive, which will soon get busy arranging conventions for the selection of delegates to the big pow-wow in Ottawa. The ward riding boundaries not being the same, the delegates will have to be chosen as far as can be by population, several ward associations having representatives on each of the ridings delegations.

The East Toronto Independent Association will undoubtedly select their own delegates to the convention, but as the "straights" will pick the twenty delegates to the convention there will be trouble unless the Ottawa leaders can find a way out.

Judge Madden of Nanawau has finally decided that local option in Ernestown Township has been sustained by a majority of 13 instead of 9.

"If the Porcupine shows up even 25 per cent, as well as depth as on the surface, it will prove the greatest gold mining camp in the world." This is the opinion of Frank L. Mapes, who arrived in Toronto yesterday from an inspection of the new gold district. Mr. Mapes says that splendid finds of new veins are of almost daily occurrence, and that thousands of men are stripping and exploring leads. He looks to see the whole district a great live of industry in the spring.

Arrested for Fraud. WINGHAM, Feb. 12.—Provincial Constable Vannorman last night arrested John Hailer, alias Otto Weber, who is suspected to hail from Waterloo County. When searched by Chief Vannorman he had in his possession bills of sale and land deals in Winnipeg and Cleveland of recent date.

JOHN CHARLTON IS DEAD
HAD AN ACTIVE CAREER

Advocate of Reciprocity With the U. S. and Author of Many Social Reforms.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral of the late Hon. John Charlton will take place at Lynedoch on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

DEATH. Feb. 12.—(Special.)—Hon. John Charlton died at his home in Lynedoch last night at 9.45.

John Charlton in his active day and generation was possibly the most prominent and typical Presbyterian layman in the whole Dominion. Known throughout Canada as the stalwart champion of far-reaching moral reforms, a familiar figure on the platform in the advocacy of principles with which his name became identified, and as one of the most influential members of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, many thousands will learn of his demise with deep feelings of a personal loss. Mr. Charlton succumbed to a lingering illness, which removed him from active public life six years ago. His death took place at his residence, The Oaks, Lynedoch, Ont.

In an autobiographical sketch of his career, written just after his retirement from the Dominion Parliament, Mrs. Charlton wrote: "I am the eldest son of Adam Charlton, from Newcastle-on-Tyne, England. I was born at Garbuttville, N. Y., on Feb. 3, 1829. I attended the common and high schools of that district and also had the advantage of some special reading. "I studied medicine for a time, but recoiled at the dissecting-room. "I read law also, and intended to be a lawyer, but circumstances forbade. Came to Canada.

"My parents removed to Canada with their family in 1849 and settled near Ayr, Ont. I worked on my father's farm until 1853, when I engaged with a partner, in carrying on a general store at Lynedoch, which has since been my home.

"Storekeeping led to grain-buying and lumbering. These were the days of magnificent prices in this district, and I took part in the removal of timber to market, and the opening up of what is now one of the finest farming sections on the continent. Working either for myself or for employers, I took part in every phase of lumbering, from making and rafting the logs and sawing lumber to dealing in the market. On the removal of the pine from this section I extended my operations to Michigan and Northern Ontario, where, by myself and with different partners, I have for years been actively engaged in lumbering.

"I was elected township councillor of Charlotteville in 1856 and 1857, after which I declined re-election. In the Dominion election of 1872 I was returned to the house of commons as the representative of North Norfolk. That position I continued to fill until 1894. In the last general election in which I took part—that of 1900—I was returned by acclamation. I was made chairman of the royal commission to investigate the mining resources of Ontario in 1888. In 1898 I was appointed a member of the joint high commission to arrange a settlement of matters in dispute between Canada and the United States.

Self-Educated.

"As a youth I was instrumental in organizing literary and debating societies in places where I lived. I was one of the founders of a circulating library in Ayr. My first experience in public speaking was in the delivery of lectures which I had prepared as a useful exercise in the course of my self-education in literature. From this I went on to the delivery of carefully written addresses on living but non-political questions. This move brought me into prominence and I was asked to speak at political meetings. From that time on I have usually spoken, not from manuscript, but from notes after careful preparation.

"I have been for many years a contributor to newspapers and magazines and numerous articles of mine have appeared in the leading periodicals of America and Great Britain.

"My father's house was a place where religion was both preached and practised, and my religious associations have always been with the Presbyterian Church. I have been a delegate to many of the councils of the church, including the General Assembly, and also to the Pan-Presbyterian Council in Toronto.

"I was one of the founders of the Dominion Lord's Day Alliance. "My name will be remembered by the Charlton Act. I have been the author of several statutes, but this act is the only one of great importance. I was driven to take up this question only by the strongest sense of public duty, and I succeeded—let the Charlton Act speak for itself.

"Mr. Charlton was not always in accord with the Liberal party. He advised an increase in duties in 1876 to provide for deficiency in revenue and to satisfy the protectionist element of the Liberal party. He voted against his party leader, and with the Macdonald Government on the Riel question, and was one of the "Noble Thirteen" who supported Col. O'Brien's resolution in opposition to the Jesuit Estates Bill. He was the father of the Charlton Act, and took up the subject of the better observance of the Lord's Day. His bill for the latter purpose passed the commons in 1904, but then failed to command a majority in the senate.

"The late Mr. Charlton was an ardent advocate of reciprocity with the United States, and a defender of provincial autonomy. In November, 1854, Mr. Charlton married Ella, daughter of the late George Gray, of Charlotteville, who predeceased him in December, 1905. He married again about three years ago. He had no family.

"The announcement of his death came unexpectedly to his brother, Hon. W. A. Charlton of this city Saturday morning. He immediately left for Lynedoch.

ONLY ONE $15 SUIT

We Introduced the Made-to-Order Fifteen Dollar Suit—Others May Imitate Us But None Can Equal the Value We Give

Have you noticed that the tailoring advertisements in the Toronto papers to-day consist chiefly of a large plate of "$15" and some reading matter telling you that this price is really all anyone should ask for a suit of clothes or an overcoat?

It wasn't that way two years ago. About that time, we came to town with our mill-to-man proposition. Before that every one of these tailors was getting from twenty-five to forty dollars for the clothes they sold you. There was competition and lots of it in that day, and these tailors did not amass any great wealth either, even at twenty-five to forty dollars a suit. THE QUESTION NATURALLY ARISES—CAN THESE TAILORS NOW SELL YOU A SUIT FOR FIFTEEN DOLLARS WITHOUT DEALING AS WE DO WITH THE MILLS? WE ARE PREPARED TO PROVE THAT THEY CANNOT; THAT IT ISN'T POSSIBLE FOR THEM TO DUPLICATE THE VALUE WE GIVE YOU—WITH US THERE IS ABSOLUTELY ONLY ONE PROFIT.

Now we do not sell cheap cloth, everything in the showrooms is the very best the looms of old Scotland can turn out and is thoroughly guaranteed every way. FACTS COMING OUT

Montreal Civic Employees Under the Limelight.

MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—(Special.)—A series of sensations are looked for. The heads of several of the departments at the city hall have completed the reports which they have been asked by the board of control to make relative to each individual member of the staff over which they are in command.

It was ascertained to-day that the present batch of reports differ in many respects from those which have in former years emanated from these sources, inasmuch as the heads of departments, unbridled by aldermanic influence, have given a true and conscientious appreciation of each and every employe under their jurisdiction. These reports, when made public, will cause a sensation in civic circles, as many employes who heretofore have had good reports made concerning them have been handled without gloves.

A Delightful Week-End Resort. Niagara Falls at this time of the year, with the mighty cataract fast bound in winter's grasp, marvelously beautiful in its garb of ice and snow, is one of the most attractive places for a week-end visit imaginable. The hotels on the Canadian side are most easily reached from Victoria Park Station, which is the stopping place for all Canadian Pacific trains. There are four trains from Toronto at 7.50 a.m., 9.30 a.m., 5.20 p.m., and 7.10 p.m. Service from the Falls is equally convenient.

PROF. GOLDWIN SMITH

Had Bad Night and Condition Caused Attendees Grave Anxiety.

The condition of Prof. Goldwin Smith was regarded with increased anxiety late on Saturday afternoon. This was in consequence of the fact that he had had a bad night, and there were no indications of progress. The hope that the bones in the injured limb would have begun to knit have been disappointed. Owing to Dr. Smith's extreme age this would naturally be slow, but the time was becoming unusually prolonged. The attendants, however, expressed the view that there might not be cause for immediate alarm.

GET CERTIFICATE BACK.

OWEN SOUND, Feb. 12.—Capt. Alex. Brown, who was in charge of the C. P. R. steamship Albatross when that steamer met with disaster at Flower Pot Island last fall, has been reinstated by the government, and his certificate will be returned to him on April 1. There was much criticism of the action of the investigating board. Capt. Brown is one of the ablest pilots on the great lakes.

NOTES OF INTEREST.

An English ethnologist has discovered that deaf-mutes are frequently able to understand the signs used instead of words by many savage tribes. Thus in Berlin he found that deaf-mute children understood, without previous instruction, the signs employed according to Sir Richard Burton; by the Arapahoe Indians for such words as mother, sister, yes, no, truth, lie, food, thinking, seeing, trade, day.

DUKE OF WESTMINSTER LOVES A NOTED DANCER

Miss Miller Often Seen in Company of the Duke—Duchess Displeased.

(Special Cable to The Sunday World.) LONDON, Feb. 12.—A romance in which the Duke of Westminster and Miss Merle Miller, who is a prominent dancer in "Our Miss Giggles," were the principals, has just come to light. Miss Miller, who is the wife of Lionel Monckton, has been out of the case a great deal of late, and has been frequently seen in the company of the duke.

It is well-known that the relations between the duke and duchess, who was Miss Constance Edwina West, a daughter of Mrs. George Cornwallis West, have been exceedingly strained for some time, but now it is understood that a divorce suit which was contemplated, and which would have involved the duke, has been amicably settled. This reconciliation, it is said, has been effected by the King, who dearly loves to play the part of reconciler. The duchess is now in the south of France, where it is understood the duke will soon join her.

POULTRY IN CHINA

Hens Plenty and Eggs Cheap—The Hankow Duck Ranches.

Perhaps there is no country in the world where there are so many domestic fowls as in China, and yet there are no poultry farms where chickens are reared in quantities. Almost every family in the towns and villages, as well as in the country, keeps a few hens. Many of the birds are of medium size, laying small eggs, but some breeds, such as the Hual fowls and the Lanshans, are large and their eggs are almost if not quite as large as those of the Brahams or Plymouth Rocks. It is not uncommon to find hens in the markets weighing as much as 8 pounds each.

Chickens are hatched in crude incubators. When the chicks are a few days old they are carried around in baskets and sold for about twice the market price of eggs. When large enough to forage for themselves, they are allowed to roam over the fields to pick up what feed they can find. At night they are fed a little paddy or cooked rice left from the meals. Hens' eggs are produced and sold in large quantities at certain seasons. Many are exported annually to Japan. They are usually so cheap that few of the Chinese are so poor as to be deprived of having some on their tables on special occasions. A few years ago the price throught the year at the open ports of the Yangtze River averaged 4 to 5 "cash" each, or 4 cents Mexican currency (equal at that time to 2 cents United States money) per dozen. With the abolition of the old copper cash and the substitution of "10-cash pieces" for cents for the same price of everything has advanced. Eggs are now sold at 12 to 15 cents Mexican currency per dozen, equivalent at the present rate of exchange to 5 to 6 2-3 cents United States money. The flavor of Chinese eggs does not differ materially from that of the eggs in the United States.

Ducks are reared in immense numbers, particularly in the low-lying districts around Hankow. There are many persons who have what may be appropriately called duck ranches. The eggs are hatched artificially and the ducks are so fed and handled as to become extremely tame. They are taken to their feeding ground in the marshes and herded like flocks of sheep—one man looking after several hundred. At night they are driven back to the enclosures. There are literally millions of ducks in the district about Hankow, and they produce enormous quantities of eggs throughout the year. They are inexpensive to keep, because they find most of their food on the feeding grounds. When they are brought home at night, they are fed a little salt fish, and this, in part, to the eggs a peculiar flavor, which is much prized by the Chinese.—Vice-Consul-General Dorsy, Shanghai.

Toronto Veterans Who Fought in Fenian Raid

History of Association Which Had Its Origin in Exciting Days Following Close of American Civil War.

Nearly 44 years have elapsed since the Fenian raids stirred the scattered Canadian provinces from border to border, and caused feelings of excitement and anxiety which can be only faintly realized by the people of our present generation. It was a period of grave peril to Canada, which might have ended in the severance of this important colony from British dominion, but, happily, this was prevented by the prompt action taken by the government of the day, and by the ready response made by the Canadian volunteers when called upon to protect our shores from a ruthless invader.

Civil War Had Just Ended.

The American civil war had just terminated, and over a million of men, who had seen nearly four years of hard service in the fiercest and bloodiest conflict ever known in history, were thrown upon their own resources, without occupation or employment. While the majority of these soldiers quickly resumed their old business or farming pursuits, yet there remained a vast number of turbulent and restless spirits who were ready and willing to embark in any filibustering expedition that might present itself. These men were all trained and seasoned veterans of both the Union and Confederate armies—soldiers who were inured to the hardships and privations of many campaigns and fierce battles, and thousands of them readily enrolled themselves under the Fenian banners in anticipation of a year being inaugurated against the British nation, with the invasion of Canada as the first step.

The defence of our Canadian frontier depended mainly upon the volunteer militia force of the provinces, and to their patriotism and gallantry in springing to arms when their services were urgently needed to defend their native land may be ascribed the glory of frustrating the attempts of the Fenian invaders to establish themselves on Canadian soil.

It may be truthfully asserted that the political destiny of our present grand Dominion was determined during the first week of June, 1866, for had it not been for the unflinching courage and firmness of purpose which was evinced by our Canadian volunteers in the battles of Ridgeway and

Fort Erie, and the constant vigilance maintained by their comrades at other exposed points along our frontier at that time, an alien flag might be floating over our broad Dominion to-day. Peculiar political complications existed during that eventful period, which placed Canada in great jeopardy. The popular feeling of the people of the United States was not very friendly to Great Britain, and the spirit of war still inflamed their passions. The Fenian brotherhood had laid deep plans for the capture of Canada, and were openly encouraged and assisted by many men in high places in the neighboring republic. They had a plentiful supply of arms and ammunition to carry out their campaign, and a strong army of desperate men mustered, who knew how to use them. All that was necessary was for the Fenians to obtain a foothold in Canada, and the rest would be easy. Support and assistance were pledged to the Fenian leaders, and everything looked rosy enough for them. But, happily for Canada, the plot was nipped in the bud, yet not before some of our best Canadian blood was shed on the field of battle, and the invaders had been given such a hot reception that they were ignominiously hurled from our shores. The history of the Fenian raids forms an important part of the records of Canada, which, unfortunately, is not familiar to the people of to-day. Yet to the survivors of those events vivid memories still cling, and the silver-headed veterans who, as youths, went forth to do battle for their country in those times of peril deserve all the credit and honor that a grateful country can give them.

Toronto Veterans Organize.

The Toronto Veterans of 1866 Association (which was incorporated in 1897) is an organization of ex-volunteers who took part in the defence of Canada in those strenuous times, and they have done much to promote and keep brightly burning the spirit of patriotism and love of country which animates the heart of every true Canadian. This feeling was fully demonstrated at the annual meeting of the association, which was held in the Armouries on Wednesday evening last, when about 200 veterans gathered to elect their officers for the ensuing year and renew their old-time friendships. Letters were read from absent comrades who are now resident in foreign lands—many in the United States, others in Honolulu, Chili, Cuba, Great Britain and other countries—all breathing the same spirit of loyalty and devotion to Canada that prompted them to go to the front in defence of their

was given the Canadian veterans of the Boer war, namely a grant of land in the Northwest. At this interview the Fenian raid veterans were kindly received by the premier, who stated that their petition would receive due consideration, and the matter will probably be dealt with at this session. There is no valid reason why the men who saved Canada in 1866, and made it possible that the Dominion government has now millions of acres of land to give away to foreigners, should not get their rightful portion of the heritage they protected in days of peril, and the people of Canada to-day will no doubt be in hearty accord with such a tangible recognition of their services.

Still Young in Spirit.

While many of these veterans are well up in years, still a majority are able and willing to settle on these lands. Again, the majority of them have stalwart sons and sons-in-law who would be glad to locate on the lands that the government might grant their sires. And what better class of settlers can be found than our native-born Canadians? They are equal to any emergency, always self-reliant and capable, and will manfully do their part in working out the destiny of his rising young nation.

WILLIAM GIBSON, Financial Secretary of the Toronto Veterans of 66 Association, a member of the Queen's Own Rifles, in the battle of Ridgeway on June 2, 1866.

Proposed New North Toronto Liberal Conservative Club

This building is proposed to be erected about the N. E. Corner of Yonge and Wellesley Sts. The location is considered a very desirable one in as much as it is not only convenient for Club purposes but is considered very advantageous in its location for the letting of apartments.

The proposition is to erect a building that will not only answer the requirements of the North Toronto Conservative Club Association, but one that will be so planned in its construction that as well as giving accommodation for the Club, the greater portion of the building will be available for renting purposes, thus, the remuneration from the building will make it self-supporting.

The location is about the centre of the North Toronto District, therefore it will be conveniently located for the members of the Club and the position one that will be very desirable for those seeking to rent apartments.

One of the considerations in erecting the building is to make it convenient for bachelor apartments. The advantage of this will be seen when it is remembered that there is a large number of the Members of Parliament, students, and others who come to the City every year, seeking just such apartments, therefore the building will readily lend itself to the convenience of those who wish to rent bachelor apartments.

The building will be situated on one of the leading thoroughfares, which leads direct to the Parliament Buildings.

In planning this building every consideration has been given to make the apartments the best appointed and the most convenient in the city.

In erecting the building under the auspices of the North Toronto Conservative Association it is not the intention that this association, as a Club, will place itself under obligation in the matter of expense in running the building, as the intention is to let all the different apartments, stores, restaurant, etc., to tenants and the Club will only be responsible for the running of their own apartment.

The following are some of the features that the different flats will contain:

BASEMENT.—The Basement will contain a large Billiard Room, with 16 tables (sixteen), three (3) Bowling Alleys, Barber Shop, Store Room, Etc.

FIRST FLOOR.—The first floor will be laid out to contain Banking Office, a large Restaurant and 5 stores, also there will be a Main Entrance to the Public Hall and Club on the Second floor, off Yonge Street, and a private entrance for the renting apartments off Wellesley Street, with elevator and staircase accommodation. This floor will also contain Kitchen and Serving Rooms, etc., in connection with the Restaurant.

SECOND FLOOR.—Second floor to contain a Public Hall to seat about 500 people, Supper Room, and Ladies' and Gentlemen's Retirement Rooms, Coat Rooms, Committee Rooms, Lavatories, etc. It is the intention to have the Hall so constructed that the Supper Room will open into same, so that, if required, it will increase the space of the Public Hall. The Hall is fitted up with stage, Dressing Rooms, etc.

MEZZANINE OR THIRD FLOOR—CLUB APARTMENTS.—The Mezzanine floor, immediately above the second floor, will contain the Club rooms proper and comprise Reading and Billiard Rooms, Committee and Card Room, Lunch Room, Serving Room, Reception Room, Coat Room, Lavatory, etc.

4TH, 5TH, 6TH, AND 7TH FLOORS.—These four flats have been planned to contain on each floor, 20 rooms, in all 80 rooms, and will be laid out in apartments, so the rooms can be rented singly or in suites or two or more apartments. Each apartment or room is so constructed that the front portion of the room will form a sitting room with an alcove off same for the bed space. Each apartment will be provided with a Bathroom and a large Clothes Closet. Each room will be well lighted from the outside of the building. There will be no dark or badly lighted rooms in the building. The apartments are fitted up in the very best possible way with every convenience and large staircases, and each flat will be reached by elevators independently from the traffic of the stairs and elevators so that when a tenant reaches his flat his apartments will be shut off from the noise of the building.

ROOF GARDEN.—The building is designed with a Roof Garden and possibly the first building that has been constructed with this idea in connection with an apartment building. The intention is to have the roof garden formed in such a way that it will be a recreation place for the tenants of the different apartments. It will be laid out with pergolas and plotted out with walks, shrubs and flower beds. Also it is the intention that the Roof Garden will be constructed with two (2) observation Dining Rooms, enclosed with glass partitions, one to be reserved for the use of the tenants, and the other for the public. This will give the tenants the option of either dining in the Restaurant on the ground floor, or in the observation Dining Room on the roof.

All arrangements have been made for proper Janitor's Apartments, Heating Appliances, abundance of Lavatory accommodation throughout the different portions of the building, also Fire Escapes, etc.

EXTERIOR.—The building is to be constructed fire proof and has been designed in modern classic architecture; it will be seven (7) stories in height, the three (3) first stories will be constructed of stone with plain substantial line mouldings. The upper four stories will be brick, emphasized with pilasters and ornamented cornices, the Roof Garden or the top flat of the Building will be emphasized on the outside at one end of the building with the pergola timbered roofs and the other end by the enclosed Dining Rooms with tiled roof and projecting bays.

The design of the building is plain in character and attractive in appearance, so that the purpose for which it is intended will be characteristic of the building. While no expense is being spared to make this building complete in all its appointments, there will be no unnecessary elaboration.

best conflict ever known in history, were thrown upon their own resources, without occupation or employment. While the majority of these soldiers quickly resumed their old business or farming pursuits, yet there remained a vast number of turbulent and restless spirits who were ready and willing to embark in any filibustering expedition that might present itself. These men were all trained and seasoned veterans of both the Union and Confederate armies—soldiers who were inured to the hardships and privations of many campaigns and fierce battles, and thousands of them readily enrolled themselves under the Fenian banners in anticipation of a year being inaugurated against the British nation, with the invasion of Canada as the first step.

It may be truthfully asserted that the political destiny of our present grand Dominion was determined during the first week of June, 1866, for had it not been for the unflinching courage and firmness of purpose which was evinced by our Canadian volunteers in the battles of Ridgeway and native land in 1866 and 1870, and halting with satisfaction the great progress that is being made in developing the resources of our promising Dominion.

The patron of the association is Field Marshal Garnet S. Wolesley (who saw active service on the Niagara frontier in the battle of Ridgeway, Mr. Wheeler is Col. J. M. Gibson, lieutenant-governor of Ontario, another veteran of the Fenian raids.

The active president is Alex. E. Wheeler, a native of Toronto, who, when a boy of 17, went to the front as a private of No. 6 Company, Queen's Own Rifles, and was actively engaged in the battle of Ridgeway. Mr. Wheeler is a well-known business man of the city, who enjoys the confidence and esteem of the whole community, while among his veteran comrades he is revered.

William Gibson, the financial secretary, is a power in himself in promoting the interests of the association. He has held that office for 14 years, and his efforts the present successful organization is mainly due. Mr. Gibson was also in the ranks of the Queen's Own at Ridgeway, and nobly did his part in that engagement.

The recording secretary, John H. Noverre, was a member of No. 5 Co., Q.O.R., and also participated in the battle of Ridgeway, being in the advance line of skirmishers who received the first volley of musketry from the Fenians, and who maintained the sharp-shooting with their Spencer rifles until their last cartridge was expended.

To recount the deeds and experiences of the other officers and members of the association would take more space than is possible for this issue, but will provide material for another interesting story at a future date.

A short time since deputations from the Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, St. Catharines, Hamilton and other veterans' associations had an interview with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other members of the Dominion cabinet, for the purpose of making a request that the surviving veterans of the Fenian raids of 1866 and 1870 should receive the same consideration that

CHINA IS SUPPLYING PORKERS TO ENGLAND

Pigs Are the Well-Known China-Poland Breed, and Much Sought After.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—China has become a factor in providing England with foodstuffs. The steamship Graf Muraviev, from Woosung, at the mouth of the Yangtze Kiang, arrived at this port the other day with 3647 Chinese pigs and several thousand head of Manchurian poultry, all of which quickly gravitated down Billingsgate market way.

"Oh, yes, the Chinese pig trade now may be considered as fully established," said the manager of the Union Cold Storage Company. "There are constant consignments on the way to this country. The pigs are of the well-known China-Poland breed, such as were imported into Denmark and which have found great favor in the United States. As a rule they are too large to be sold in the ordinary way in joints for the table, so they are used chiefly for making bacon."

The same steamship broke all records by bringing in approximately one hundred Siberian salmon. This fish, however, so it is held, can never compete seriously with fresh native salmon, except when the latter are very scarce, and it is held not to compare in quality with the Canadian salmon.

"Speaking of fish and things," remarked the head of one of the largest firms at Billingsgate, "you can't always tell what is in a name. You might think that the formation of a small trust was a mere imaginary assertion of a comic paper. But Switzerland isn't very slow, after all, and a 'small trust' has been formed in Solesmes, covering the entire canton, and embracing about thirty-six small 'farmers,' whose business has doubled within the last three years."

"Negotiations are under way, too, to extend the trust to the cantons of Neuchâtel and Vaud. During the last year Solesmes alone exported to Paris 200,000, and to the value of $10,000, and at that they were unable to supply the demands of other sections of France. The demand in the London market, too, is growing constantly. In Switzerland small snails cost about twelve cents a dozen wholesale, but the trust proposes to advance the price. It will take steps over there, by concerted action, to prevent the 'farmers' from 'harvesting' crops too early, thus preventing deterioration of price and quality."

Rats gnawed thru a lead water pipe in the Newcombe Road Co., London, and caused a bad flood.

The latest statement is that the Allan of Montreal intend to build two 20-knot steamers.

LIVELY PRESS AGENT BOOSTED THEATRE

Fred Irwin Dates His First Grey Hairs From the Day He Engaged a Hustler.

"Way back when the world was young," says Fred Irwin, "when I was trying my hand at running a theatre of my own, I thought I'd get a live one, an extremely live one, to look after advertisements and presswork. Some one who must have saved up old emittes told me that a certain circus agent was available, and described him as the hustlingest mortal that ever pennaed a line. I engaged him, and told him to spread himself on the details of the ads for the coming Sunday. I left that subject, too, entirely in his hands, and anticipated a real feast of pleasure when I glanced over his ads while naving my Sunday breakfast coffee.

"Some fast, all right. As I now remember, here was about how one of the ads ran:

"The Only Show in Town."
"Whoop, Brothers, Whoop."
"The Elephant is Now Here."
"And Our Competitors Look Like Humpty-Faced Hyenas."
"Come Early, Boys, and Get Under the Canvas."
"Talk About Tights—We Have Them. With the Real Ritzy-Dizzys Inside Them."
"Talk About Googoo Eyes—Oh, You Langulshing Kilds!"
"Leave Your Wives Home, Boys—if You Bring Them to This Show They'll Never Let You Out of the House Again!"
"Oh, You Lumtum Babies! Oh, You Fluffy Spangles!"
"Prices 20c, 30c, 50c. Pie for Sale in the Gallery and Rocks to Crack It With."
"I haven't many grey hairs, but the few I have made their appearance on that particular day."

FATHER KNOWS ABOUT THEODORE'S ENGAGEMENT

Former President of United States
Cabled That Son is Going to Be Married.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, African Teddy, Jr., shot. Dan Cupid, notorious highwayman, suspected. Wound thru heart. Apparently cannot recover. Rush blessings. "Yes, I've cabled my father," said Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., last evening. "but he hasn't got the message yet. Of course we shan't be married till he gets home from Africa, but it's true we're going to be married all right." He was standing in the doorway of Mrs. Henry Addison Alexander's house, No. 42 West Forty-seventh-street, and a chorus of appreciative laughter from the dining room followed his words. He blushed, but went on bravely. "Oh, I never thought they'd make so much fuss about this. I didn't think they'd try to make a romance out of this." "But it's a romance, isn't it?" asked the reporter. "You're to marry Miss Eleanor Alexander, aren't you?" A Romance, of Course. "Yes, of course. But I can't talk about where we met and all that. Just say that I have known Miss Alexander for a good many years." (Another gale of laughter from within). "Is this the dinner party given for the announcement?" "Oh, don't say anything about that." (More laughter and the ringing of the telephone bell.) A sweet voice was heard in brief conversation over the phone. Then Miss Eleanor Butler Alexander, a vision of beauty, appeared in the hall. "Ted," she cried, "they've got my picture." "Of course," said Ted, "that doesn't matter." "But they say it's an old picture," pouted the lovely bride-to-be, "and not very good looking. I suppose, if they're going to have a picture in the paper, they might as well have a good one." "That's so, too," said Ted. And away Miss Eleanor flew, to return in a minute with albums and framed photos. The young people sat down side by side on the stairs and began to sort out the desirable from the undesirable ones.

"You're still working in the carpet factory up at Hartford?" asked the reporter. "Yes," said Mr. Roosevelt. "I'm learning the business, you know." "Going to live in Hartford after you're married?" "Well, I don't want to say. You know, that's a big concern, and they have offices in several places besides Hartford." "Would you tell where you met Miss Alexander?" (Again the unseen chorus). "No, can't." "Where did you live when you came down to New York on visits?" "No. 638 Madison-avenue."

"Not a very long walk from here?" "No—but just say I've known Miss Alexander for a good many years. Mother knows all about it—and so does Alice." Review of Deaths in England. THE TERRIBLE TALES OF KAPTIN KIDDO

The

(Copyright, 1910, by The North American Company.)

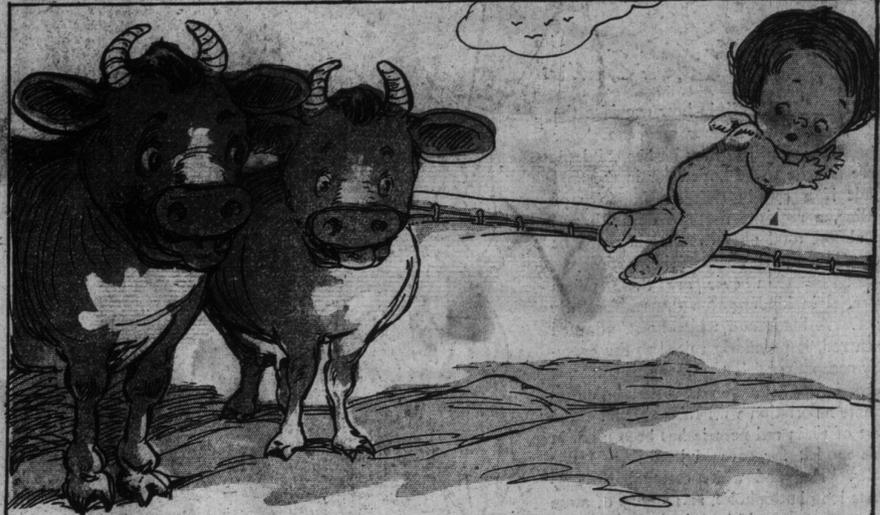

I wanted to buy a valentine for Gwendylin 'Vangeline May,' at's my beastes' girl, an' I buyed a n'orful bu-ful one, wif lace an' gold an' little boys dressed up in wings, orful bu-ful, an' I see'd lots o' poor, ugly little girls what didn't have no valumtimes at all. So I—er—I putted on a pair o' golden wings, an' I tooked a lot o' valumtimes an' I flewed aroun' ever' wher' an' gived 'em all some, an' I played 'at I was a sure-nuff Cupid.

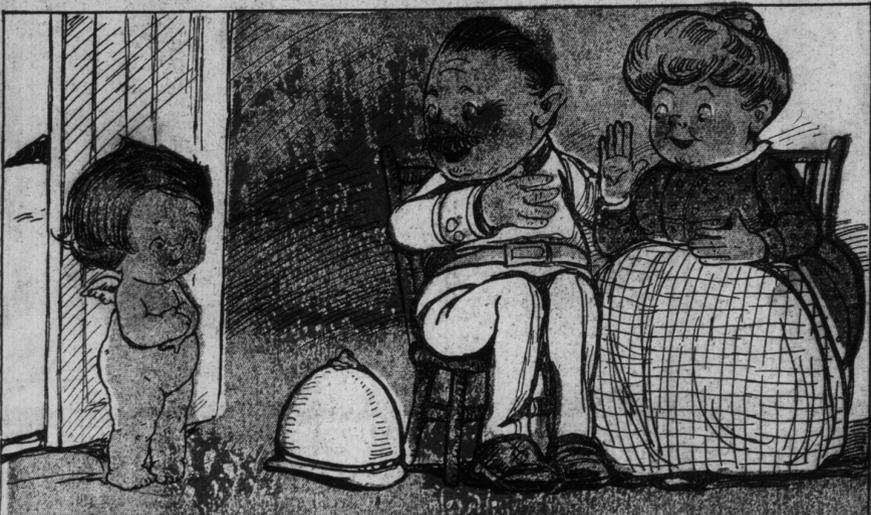

An' I 'joyed flyin' 'round so much an' somebody was shootin' pidgins, an' he fought 'at I was a pidgin, an' he shooted at me but he missed me. I guess, an' some other buddy was a-ridin' in a n'airship, an'—an' I sed, "Hi ther!" I sed. An' they stopped an' I gotted a-board, an' they sed, "Why! See who's here!" An' I sed, "How-dy do, Folkses," I sed, "Here's Cupid!" (What-che-know-'bout-'at?)

An' ther' was a gemplum an' a n'orful pretty lady on the airship. They was orful nice to me, an' laffed, an' when I 'menced to 'shivvie,' 'cause it was orful cold up ther', they gived me a shawl an'—an' some candy, an' 'en they forgetted all 'bout me an' jus' talked to themselves, an' they mus' bin bruvvers, 'cause they was kissin' each other, an' I gotted tired o' it ther', an'—an' I found a para—a parasol, an' I opened it, an' I scaped.

'En I flyed down 'long ther' wif my parasol. An' it was orful fun. 'Course I wasn't scared 'cause I had my wingses too, an' I stopped in a field, an' ther' was a whole lot o' cowses eatin' snow, an' they sed, "Moo-oo-oo. Here's Cupid!" An' I thinked maybe those cows might bite me, an' I sed, "You go 'way ther' naughty fink." An' 'en the cowses all laffed like annyfin', an' I didn't like 'em annyways, an' I—er—I—flyed away from ther'.

'En I—er—I wanted to a-house an' I wented into the back door an' ther' was a cook lady wif a plaid apron, an'—an' a P'liceman was ther' too, an' they mus' bin bruvvers too, 'cause he was givin' her a kiss. An' they didn't notice me at all. An' I sed, "Ahem! Good Mornin', Misses Cook Lady," I sed. "Happy Valumtimes Day," I sed, an' they jumped like annyfin', an' sed, "Shure, an' be jabers, here's Cupid."

'En the Cook Lady gived me some cookies an' 'en I wented home to get dressed, an' ther' was a splendiferous lot o' valumtimes for me, 'bout seventy or tenty hunderd, or six, an' bu-fulest picksters, an' one o' um sed, "Won't you be my Valumtime. My hart is thine, from neck to hem. Oh, you Kiddo, 'cause you're mine. Ain't this a good Valumtime? G. V. M." P. S.—"Har! Har! What-che-know-'bout-'at?" I fink G. V. M. means "Gwendylin 'Vangeline May," don't you?

Simple Lines for Childish Figures

Black Satin Ties & Blue Challis

IF MATTERS little how exquisite the material a mother may choose, or how beautiful may be her children, there is little to be hoped for in the final result if a certain childish simplicity of outline, a requisite neatness of finish and an almost total absence of elaboration be not adhered to throughout the wardrobe.

More than ever are these points essential in kindergarten dresses for little ones. A black and white linen, adorned with red, is peculiarly suited to the everyday occupations. The material is staple, is becoming to all alike and will stand an intimate association with the washtub. The best of plain red percale has been used, in this model, for covered buttons and side belts. Red and white cotton braid suggests long buttonholes, and a strip of more ornate cotton braid in red, black and white supplies a front and back decoration, extending over the shoulders beside the bretelles. The disposition of stripes in the little sleeve is a noticeable feature.

A sailor dress of blue linen suggests the regulation navy cut, although it is belted and box-pleated. There can be no more satisfying model than this from the child's viewpoint, from the mother's and from the teacher's. The tub dress on the small child has become, to the sensible teacher, "a thing of beauty and a joy forever."

Scallops on white pique are possible when a not-too-heavy quality has been chosen. All of the simple models cut over a normal pattern, and requiring a few scallops done by hand, may be made of either linen in its heavier weights or else pique. In these weighty qualities undue ornamentation is avoided, gathers are scant and pleats are none too close, but they are highly satisfactory for better occasions and sensible for school.

The pretty challis—blue with a white stripe—is a delicate little frock, not launderable, but quite cleanable. Its kilted skirt fastens beneath a folded girdle of black satin, and the same material, run through black embroidered eyelets, laces this side. Sleeves and bodice are tucked in an unusual way. The color and delicacy of the frock recommend it, even although it is not one of the beloved tub dresses.

And now the coats. Blue broadcloth with beaver collar and cuffs, suggests care but few of the prettiest garments may be worn carelessly. For rougher usage are those heavier tweeds and serges. The coat in question is for "very best," and with it ranks another, that of rose-colored bengaline decorated with buttons and fastened with a frog. Collar, lapel and cuffs are piped with bias silk, as is the belt, which appears only at the sides. Roses to match it in color make the black velvet hat more childish, and the pink facing and bow add color and elegance.

It is not an easy matter to provide successfully for little girls of varying age and outline, but present-day garments reach more nearly the ideals of the thoughtful than ever before.

Gossip of Ring, W on the (Special) LONDON. championship and is desired as a sportsperson's point of view...

Some of the things that go to the making of a champion are the love of the game, the ability of time to fight, but I do not believe in the middleweight...

Before 1849 the south furnished the chief gold fields of the country, but since that date the south has not been outclassed by California, by Colorado, by Nevada, and last but not least, by Alaska, says The Birmingham Age-Herald.

It is pretty plain that Alabama and all the rest of the south can get more gold out of the soil via the gold mine than it can dig out of its own mines proper. The climate and the soil can in that way be counted in as ready-made gold.

Echoes of European Sport

Gossip of Happenings in the Ring, Within the Ropes and on the Field.

By Trixie.

(Special to Sunday World.)

LONDON, Feb. 12.—New and good championship blood in the pugilistic world is desirable, and drastic measures should be adopted to discover it. European sporting writers are agreed on this point and the question of how to produce them is the all-absorbing topic.

Among the fighters, however, there is a lot of paper warfare, and the business itself is at a standstill. Freddie Welsh appeared in a very clever letter to the sporting press. Hackenschmidt and the same thing, and it is up to you to call upon to give up lucrative engagements, especially as I now understand that he has promised to meet Lewis if he can get a decent purse.

I am opposed to all these must-haves engagements, but I don't want to be prejudiced, and these so-called French sports should confine themselves to seeing fair play all over the world, and it should be their interest for the love of the game alone to get one or two gentlemen out of their corners who have hid there long enough.

It will be plenty of time to attack Thomas in a few months, if he does not box Lewis; but, as Thomas is the middleweight champion of England and in a class by himself at that, he would not be much better off even if he should beat Lewis. It might enhance his reputation, but it would not make him the champion of the world.

If Lewis beats Papke, Thomas could meet the winner for the middleweight championship. Ketchell cannot do the weight, and even if Langford can get down to the middleweight limit, he is not likely to get anyone to meet him if he is rough on Langford, but this seems to be the present state of affairs.

I may be accused of wandering away from the subject, but I only wish to prove that new blood is needed—not only over here, but everywhere. Many men would be ready to fight and make names for themselves, and they would be men who would fight more than once a year if they suddenly sprang into prominence and easily earned fame, because they would be forced to. We should not only fight more than once a year if they suddenly sprang into prominence and easily earned fame, because they would be forced to.

For some time after that contest, Hague went from bad to worse. Instead of going to work to remedy his weak points, he became a confirmed "sneaker," and a more grotesque figure than he presented when he took the ring for a friendly spar with J. W. Douglas, on the night of Mr. Bettinson's complimentary benefit.

For all the world as if Hague was going to slip back into the obscurity from which he sprang when the news circulated that he was going to America, under the guidance of Harry Marks and Freddy Welsh, there to gain the experience which he so sadly lacks, and at the same time to add himself into proper trim for whatever the game in its proper spirit and right light. It is new men and good men that are wanted.

In the older days, what use would they have for a champion who, under 30 years of age, was not fit to spar three rounds, and who, having beaten another 3rd-class man for the championship of England, was awarded a rest on his laurels for many months, ignoring challenges and not even looking for work?

It is really painful to think of it all, and it must gain enthusiasts as much to see those men evading fights as good men like Driscoll, Welsh, etc., trying to get fights, and being recognized as they probably would if they got a chance, champion of the world at their respective weights.

Whatever a man's nationality, whatever his color, if he is a good man and a willing man, let us uphold his cause whatever our ideas or prejudices may be. There are not too many of these men about, and until we can get new blood and good men let us stand by those with clean reputations who only wish to get fair play with a chance of that proud title—world's champion.

Wrestling, with one exception, has died out in this country, and we are none of us sorry. Swankers are seeking other fields, and the only wrestling we get is the annual tournament, held at the Alhambra, under A. F. Bettinson's supervision.

These tournaments are of real interest; they are open to the world, and everything is above board and suspicious. Apart from these patrons of sport, whose names alone are a safeguard against the usual interested parties, it is under the management of a capable man, who knows his business, knows his men and knows and understands the public, who only want the right thing.

I understand on excellent authority that the middleweight entry—early as it is—should prove a world's record one, and apart from the other weight classes, which are sure to be good, it will be worth traveling many hundreds of miles to see the middleweights alone. The weight question will crop up later.

British, American, Canadian and Norwegian devotees of baseball met at the Charterhouse the other day, when the National Baseball Association assembled to hear reports from club and league secretaries as to the prospects of the game in Britain for next summer. The reports were of a very encouraging nature, and the possibility of a British team visiting Norway was suggested.

The honorary secretaries of the National Baseball Association of Great Britain are A. A. Atkins and W. E. Bittan.

"Iron" Hague's forthcoming American trip is an experiment that will be watched with keenest interest by all who have the welfare of English boxing at heart. The big Mexborough miner represents all that is best in the way of heavyweight boxing in this country, but recent ring history has proved that our best is, after all, of very medium quality when compared with that of our greatistic rival, America.

More promising material it would be hard to find. Height, weight, power, youth and gameness are combined in the person of the Yorkshireman, but these qualities are practically useless unless they are associated with cleverness and experience, and there is a desire on the part of the boxer to take his engagements seriously.

Unfortunately for Hague, having won a few contests with ease, despite the fact that he was in no condition to take the ring, he sadly neglected his training when it would have been of the greatest value to him, with the result that he was hopelessly outclassed and ignominiously beaten by the black, Sam Langford, in May last.

The instigators of the disturbances were said to be Sun students who move in bodies thru the streets, seeking Shihs and Persian officials. The killed are reported to number about a hundred. The same telegrams tell of the cruel fate of a Persian leader who failed to give any names.

The inhabitants are well armed with Berdan rifles and revolvers of various patterns.

Howell—Do you think we shall ever have universal peace if it is one time, but that was before the north pole let itself be found.—Judge.

Rastus (apologetically)—Deed I doan make nuffin'. You fellows up here seem to be de only ones dat get any 'cunlary profit out of hauling me up.—Puck.

no cause to fear on his behalf. Opinions, however, are not so obliging in America as Hague found in his early days, and he will have to acquire the "one-for-nothing" method if he means to get on. One great thing in his favor will be his natural aptitude for the game. It is said of him in his native town that he would sooner have a fight than eat his dinner. If he is still tight on his mind he will not lack the opportunity where he is going.

Freddy Welsh's idea in going to America is, of course, to force Battalio to fight him, but I am afraid that the Yankee will execute a side-step by skipping off to Australia, and that Freddy will have his journey for nothing. Nelson has no objection to the idea, and his position in America, under the aegis of Mr. McIntosh, Nelson could make his own terms and select his own opponents, and should Welsh still follow him, he could fall longer than 20-rounds contests in the commonwealth to get him out of trouble. If Welsh ever succeeds in fight, and he will keep on dodging the issue until the public proclaims the man who does want to fight as the champion.

The annual meeting of the Thames Amateur Rowing Council was held the other day, and the following dates were arranged for regattas in 1910, in addition to Henley regatta, previously fixed at the meeting of the Henley committee.

Saturday, June 18, Walton Regatta; Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, July 5, 6 and 7, Henley rowing regatta; Saturday, July 9, Kingston-on-Thames regatta; Saturday, July 16, Molesey regatta; Saturday, July 23, Staines regatta; Monday, July 25, Metropolitan regatta (at Putney); Saturday, July 30, Goring and Stratley regatta; Monday, Aug. 1, Reading regatta; Saturday, Aug. 6, Marlow regatta.

The question of entries at regattas was considered, and it was agreed that entries should only be accepted from clubs affiliated to the Amateur Rowing Association or clubs composed of members of affiliated clubs. It was also resolved that the agreement should not apply to scullers. With reference to foreign entries, it was agreed that both entries for rowing and sculling races should be limited to members of clubs in membership with foreign associations having an agreement with the Amateur Rowing Association.

RELIGIOUS RIOTS IN CENTRAL ASIA OVER STUDENT MOVEMENT

Upwards of One Hundred Reported to Be Killed as Result of the Disturbances.

(Special Cable to The Sunday World.) ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 12.—Telegrams from New Bukhara, a small village in Central Asia, report serious collisions on religious grounds between Sunnis and Shihs. There have been several casualties on each side. Several Persian shops have been stormed and plundered.

The instigators of the disturbances were said to be Sun students who move in bodies thru the streets, seeking Shihs and Persian officials. The killed are reported to number about a hundred. The same telegrams tell of the cruel fate of a Persian leader who failed to give any names.

The inhabitants are well armed with Berdan rifles and revolvers of various patterns.

no cause to fear on his behalf. Opinions, however, are not so obliging in America as Hague found in his early days, and he will have to acquire the "one-for-nothing" method if he means to get on. One great thing in his favor will be his natural aptitude for the game. It is said of him in his native town that he would sooner have a fight than eat his dinner. If he is still tight on his mind he will not lack the opportunity where he is going.

Freddy Welsh's idea in going to America is, of course, to force Battalio to fight him, but I am afraid that the Yankee will execute a side-step by skipping off to Australia, and that Freddy will have his journey for nothing. Nelson has no objection to the idea, and his position in America, under the aegis of Mr. McIntosh, Nelson could make his own terms and select his own opponents, and should Welsh still follow him, he could fall longer than 20-rounds contests in the commonwealth to get him out of trouble. If Welsh ever succeeds in fight, and he will keep on dodging the issue until the public proclaims the man who does want to fight as the champion.

The annual meeting of the Thames Amateur Rowing Council was held the other day, and the following dates were arranged for regattas in 1910, in addition to Henley regatta, previously fixed at the meeting of the Henley committee.

Saturday, June 18, Walton Regatta; Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, July 5, 6 and 7, Henley rowing regatta; Saturday, July 9, Kingston-on-Thames regatta; Saturday, July 16, Molesey regatta; Saturday, July 23, Staines regatta; Monday, July 25, Metropolitan regatta (at Putney); Saturday, July 30, Goring and Stratley regatta; Monday, Aug. 1, Reading regatta; Saturday, Aug. 6, Marlow regatta.

The question of entries at regattas was considered, and it was agreed that entries should only be accepted from clubs affiliated to the Amateur Rowing Association or clubs composed of members of affiliated clubs. It was also resolved that the agreement should not apply to scullers. With reference to foreign entries, it was agreed that both entries for rowing and sculling races should be limited to members of clubs in membership with foreign associations having an agreement with the Amateur Rowing Association.

NO PEERS ATTAIN MAJORITY THIS YEAR

Tennyson's Heir Lionel Hullan, Son of Peer, to Become of Age.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—No peers come of age this year, and only five eldest sons of peers come of age. These are Lord Windsor, Lord Plymouth's heir, on Feb. 4; John de Blaquiere, Lord de Blaquiere's heir, on Aug. 1; George St. Vincent Harris, Lord Harris' heir, on Sept. 3; Lionel Hullan Tennyson, Lord Tennyson's heir, on Nov. 7, and James St. Vincent Broke Saumarez, Lord de Saumarez's heir, on Nov. 29.

In addition, two brothers of peers who are heirs-presumptive to the titles come of age. These are Lord Victor Paget, Lord Anglessea's brother, on May 17, and Lord Vernon's brother, Francis William Lawrence Venables-Vernon, on Nov. 6. The peers not yet of age are Lord Exmouth, Lord Petrie, Lord Congleton and Lord St. Leonards, who come of age next year; Lord Rodney in 1912; Lord Carbery in 1913; Lord Chester in 1915; Lord Bolingbroke in 1917; Lord Shannon in 1918; Lord Romilly in 1919; and the little Lord Donegal in 1924.

COFFEE ROASTING

Takes Many Years to Acquire Perfection in Roasting.

Most of the coffee as it comes from the South American plantations to-day is unclean. In the preparation for the roasting process the beans are sifted and blown with air pressure not less than eight or ten times, and nearly as much trash is taken out of some grades as there is real coffee. The broken beans are then separated and sold cheap, while the whole beans are blown with air and thoroly cleaned before being packed.

The roaster must superintend this work, for upon him devolves the final condition of the beans. He throws the beans into a big revolving metal tank and turns on the fire and the drum is turned by a belt. Slowly the beans begin to cook, giving forth a pleasant odor similar to the enjoyed not less than eight or ten times, and nearly as much trash is taken out of some grades as there is real coffee. The broken beans are then separated and sold cheap, while the whole beans are blown with air and thoroly cleaned before being packed.

"It took me fifteen years to learn just how long to roast the various grades of coffee," said a roaster the other day, "and when I say that I have earned my $35 a week I mean it. I've been told that men who are constantly tasting coffee will suffer more or less from it."

How to Get Rid of Catarrh

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way, and it Costs Nothing to Try.

Those who suffer from catarrh know its miseries. There is no need of this suffering. You can get rid of it by a simple, safe, inexpensive home treatment discovered by Dr. Blosser, who, for over thirty-five years, has been treating catarrh successfully.

His treating is unlike any other. It is not a spray, douche, salve, cream, or inhaler, but is a more direct and thorough treatment than any of these. It cleans out the head, nose, throat and lungs so that you can again breathe freely and sleep without that stopped-up feeling that all catarrh sufferers have. It heals the diseased membranes and makes a radical cure, so that you will not be constantly blowing your nose and spitting, and at the same time it does not poison the system and ruin the stomach, as internal medicines do.

If you want to test this treatment without cost, send your address to Dr. J. W. Blosser, 702 Walton Street, Atlanta, Ga., U. S. A., and he will send you by return mail, from his Canadian Distribution Depot, enough of the medicine to satisfy you that it is all he claims for it as a remedy for catarrh, catarrhal headaches, catarrhal deafness, asthma, bronchitis, colds and all catarrhal conditions. He will also send you free an illustrated booklet. Write him immediately.

NEW FIGURES IN HOUSE

back again. Bright, buoyant, emphatic, Lord Charles brings the atmosphere of the quarter-deck to Westminster. Where he has felt that his duty to his country has demanded it he has never failed to attack gallantly any of those in authority. He will have some plain things to say about the navy and will say them in a way which will probably not please his opponents, but will delight his friends.

The house has lost a witty and refreshing speaker in the defeat of Mr. Harold Cox, but it has gained one in the victory of Mr. Spencer Leigh Hughes, an entirely new member. Both are journalists. Mr. Hughes steps straight from the gallery on to the floor of the house. He is a clean-shaven, clear-voiced man, who makes his points deliberately. Once I heard the radical Mr. Hughes propose in a witty and graceful speech the toast of Mr. Balfour. The Unionist leader was delighted. He was unaware then that the orator was shortly to sit in the ranks of those opposed to him in the commons.

A man who is bound to take a prominent part in the house is Mr. Hayes Fisher, who returns to Westminster after an absence of four years. He is a colonial statesman who now represents one of the St. Pancras divisions. A bearded thickset man, with a forceful nature, he is used to be called "Fighting Joe" in Canada. A score of men on the Unionist benches will certainly be increased by his presence at Westminster.

Sir T. Barclay is a famous international lawyer who began his career with a smart piece of journalistic work, "Battles of Wit Are Expected."

It is already evident that the new session will see the striking personal between the two sides. The Unionists have gained enormously by the election. While the Liberals have secured one or two bright speakers, they have lost several who gave much interest to the last parliament. The Unionists, on the other hand, are reinforced by many sparkling personalities. Battles of wit will be frequent in the coming months. No longer will the Irishman be able to fly back their quick semi-humorous gibes without fear of a sharp back-bench retort. A score of men on the Unionist benches will be able to sting and scold interrupters and to carry the enemy's camp.

constituents of a number of traders and others who have chiefly a business eye and no special association otherwise with aeronautic affairs. We will hold our meetings on the dates determined.

"Secede from the international federation? We have no intention of doing so now, as we have obtained from the responsible authority what we desire. At the federation's meeting a number of Frenchmen who were not authorized rushed in and took part in the discussion. That was what led to the trouble. The voting was unsportsmanlike, because so many Frenchmen voted, whereas by courtesy only one delegate for each country should have recorded his vote."

"We surely will hold our meetings," said Mr. Wallace. "The French element seemed to want the whole year to themselves. The Commission Aerienne Mixte has no weight whatsoever. There is no friction with the federation direct. My difference was with the people who rushed into the room, talked constantly during the discussion and voted without authority."

Will Have Plenty of Aviators.

"One of our meetings will be held in the north and the other in the south of England. We will have aviators in plenty, have no fear on that point, even if the dates do clash with meetings that may be arranged on the continent."

Mr. Wallace holds that the days for fights for records will soon end, racing taking the part of such programs, with the contending aeroplanes painted different colors, in order that observers may readily distinguish the competitors. Englishmen are keen for the announced meetings, and aviation enthusiasts are appearing on every hand, frequently bringing with them new types of aerial craft.

Even the clergy are interested. Rev. Sidney Swan, vicar of Crosby, Westmoreland, expressed a fight at Alnrose racecourse, Liverpool, the other day with a machine of his own construction. A high wind prevailed, and when he was ascending a shifting breeze lifted the aeroplane, turned it over and down it came to the turf. The clergyman was thrown out, but not injured, but the machine was badly smashed. Nevertheless, he set to work the following day constructing another.

Lieut. F. Dunne's latest flying machine, which now is at Eastchurch, Isle of Sheppey, embodies some departures from the prevailing types. It is a biplane, but the planes, instead of being rectangular, are in their plan aspect crescent shaped, with round corners. The convex is the leading edge, as in a bird's wings. It is provided with no tail, elevator or rudder. All elevating and depressing movements are obtained by the manipulation of two ailerons, which are hinged, like those of the Farman machine, to the rear corners of the top plane. Turning to right or left is effected by raising and depressing these ailerons alternately, while lateral stability is obtained by the same means.

Objective Tone-Painting-- Its Nature and Artistic Dignity A Study in the Aesthetics of Music.

By DR. J. D. LOGAN

Objective tone-painting--before we begin the study of its nature and artistic dignity, let us note the catalogue of names for the same species of musical art. I take them from several different critical treatises and essays on descriptive music, initiative music, descriptive music, delineative music, realistic music, realistic descriptive music, musical realism, pictorial music, impressionistic music, natural imagery in music, musical fresco-painting, tone-poetry, the external world, emotional realism in music, external tone-painting, descriptive painting in tones, musical scene-painting, suggestive music, tonal impressionism, graphic music, and just newly coined, photographic music.

synonyms to signify a particular species of music--a species which may rise to the noble beauty and artistic dignity of the Beethoven's "Pastoral" Symphony, or descend to the level of the pretentious clap-trap of Sousa's so-called descriptive music.

The Best Term. Of the lot "Objective tone-painting" appeals to me as the best, because most comprehensive, epithet. For it emphasizes the distinction between pure formal music, which is beautiful in itself and the music which attempts by its tones to reproduce the external world, to fill the imagination with images both of SOUNDS and SOUNDS in nature, memories of these, and suggestions, and suggestions. Note, for example, Beethoven's very specific program for his "Pastoral" Symphony. He gave each part literary annotations in order to inform the listeners how to adjust their five senses to the various movements thus:

1. The cheerful sensations awakened by arrival in the country. 2. Scene by the brookside. 3. A merry-making of the country folk. 4. Thunder-storm in the distance. 5. Shepherds' song and peace after storm.

Objective tone-painting is, in all times, but as in section (2) and as in section (4) the composer attempts to awaken thru the tones mental images of two kinds--visual images of the scene by the brookside and auditory images of the thunder-storm, and the whole five sections are bound together psychologically by direct memories of past experiences of country life and suggestions of the "Pastoral" Symphony is, then, first, "tone-painting," and secondly, it is "objective tone-painting."

Its Nature. To understand the essential meaning of the term "objective tone-painting," all that is necessary is to distinguish it from "subjective tone-painting."

Interest of Motoring World Centres in Forthcoming Auto Show

St. Lawrence Market Exhibition Will Have Many New and Interesting Features.

It is already evident that the Toronto Motor Show which will open in the St. Lawrence Market on February 24 is going to be a record breaker in more ways than one. All the floor space has been taken up, and over forty different motor manufacturers will be represented. The whole central space of the building which last year was shared by autos and motor boats will this year be devoted to the autos alone.

A large number of cars, which have as yet been unknown to Toronto will be on exhibition, and in every case the manufacturers of these cars intend to establish a permanent agency here. A number of motor cycles will form a new and interesting feature among the exhibits. Interest in Canada, and this sport bids fair to attain here the popularity which it has reached in England.

That the auto is to be every man's utility is proved by the range of prices which the show offers. There will be cars running in value from the natty little runabout at $500 to the luxurious enclosed car in the neighborhood of $10,000. All these cars have different points which appeal to different men, and whatever price the prospective buyer is prepared to pay, he is sure to get good value for his money. The day of the fake automobile is over.

From a social standpoint the auto show promises to more than rival the horse show. The automobile is essentially the vehicle of fashionable people, and it is unlikely that Toronto will have seen a more representative gathering than that which will be in attendance on opening night of the auto show.

A great deal of money has been spent in decorating the market building, and not a trace of its original country character will be in evidence. The lighting is to be elaborate, and an orchestra will always be on hand. People from all over Canada and the United States are coming to attend the show, and the city dealers say that as most of their customers are waiting until the show to make their purchases for 1910 that all sales records in Toronto will be broken.

The growth of the automobile industry is the most wonderful thing in modern commercial history, and every business man, although he may not be interested in autos himself should make it a point to spend a couple of hours at the show.

E. M. WILCOX, Manager Motor Show of Canada.

New Maxwell Agency

Warburton Bros. to Handle Well-Known Car in Toronto.

The Maxwell car that covered 10,000 miles of road without stopping may be seen at 172-4 Victoria-street, Toronto, where the firm of Warburton Bros. have opened a garage. There they will have this car for sale. Reliability, durability and low cost of maintenance are the essentials which are guaranteed in the Maxwell. Although moderate in price, it embodies the features sought in high priced cars. Another favorable point is that the car is so readily run that the expense of a chauffeur is not necessary. Warburton Bros. will be pleased to demonstrate the qualities of this car, both in workmanship and in operation to any who are interested in motoring.

Future of Moderate-Priced Cars

Himself a manufacturer of moderate priced cars, naturally Benjamin Briscoe, president of the Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Company and also president of the Manufacturers' Contest Association, has the greatest faith in the future of this class of automobiles, which he declares is becoming more and more a factor in everyday life.

"The small runabout now used by physicians, business men, contractors, mail carriers and the like to almost the exclusion of the horse and buggy," declares Mr. Briscoe, who is in Chicago for the show. "In looking over the morning papers recently I noticed that President Taft stated that 'we are living in the automobile age.' This statement is an indication of the way the automobile has looked on by many people throughout the United States. If an example of high living is wanted, the automobile is called upon to furnish it. And yet is the automobile any more of a luxury than the other staples that now are looked upon as a necessary part of almost every family?"

"Why should a motor car be cited as the example of extravagance any more than should the piano? It is a fact to be deplored that the great mass of the people throughout the country have not kept pace with the developments of the motor car. Only a few years ago the perfected machine of to-day was in an experimental stage. At that time the impression grew that automobiles were expensive to own. This opinion still sticks in the minds of a great many people. We who are closest in touch with the automobile business know that designers have been steadily perfecting the automobile and have succeeded in building cars that cost surprisingly little to run.

"There are thousands of people who never seriously considered owning a car, not because they could not afford to buy one, but they thought they could not afford to keep one. This is the impression that exists to-day in the minds of a great many people, and it is just this impression that the automobile manufacturer has to combat.

"In going over some statistics recently I discovered that probably 700,000 two-passenger buggies were sold every year. Ultimately all of these horse drivers will come to the automobile because it is simpler, safer, and cheaper method of transportation. Still, if the people who now are using horses, not for pleasure but for business, realize the economical advantages of an automobile the combined output of all the runabout made in this country would not begin to supply the demand. We are building 30,000 twelve horse power two-passenger runabouts for 1910, and this number, added to what other manufacturers are building, will fall short of the demand.

"To-day is the day of the moderate priced car and the people are beginning to realize more and more the necessity of an automobile. If proof of this were needed it is only necessary to point to our western farms. Reliability, durability and low cost of maintenance are the essentials which are guaranteed in the Maxwell. Although moderate in price, it embodies the features sought in high priced cars. Another favorable point is that the car is so readily run that the expense of a chauffeur is not necessary. Warburton Bros. will be pleased to demonstrate the qualities of this car, both in workmanship and in operation to any who are interested in motoring.

AUTO CIRCULATES MONEY

$70,000,000 Spent on Up-Keep in New York State Last Year.

"Few people have any conception of the vast amount of money that is put into daily circulation thru the medium of the automobile," said Charles W. O'Rourke, eastern sales manager of the Jackson Automobile Company. "Take the State of New York alone, as far back as 1907 it was proven by a close inspection of the records that over $70,000,000 was spent for the year's upkeep of the 49,000 cars running in New York State. In 1908 it increased to $90,000,000, and the year that has just passed the figures have reached the stupendous aggregate of nearly $97,000,000.

"Add to these figures the number of automobiles in New England, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and those on the Pacific coast and you can readily see what a vast amount of ready cash the automobile keeps in daily circulation in this country and also the number of trades and occupations kept busy attending to its daily upkeep.

"The figures used in arriving at the conclusion given you are not at all enlarged and provisions have been made by subtracting from the list of registered cars all second-hand cars which have been registered twice and those of tourists passing thru the state, leaving in New York State 49,000 automobiles in daily use at an average expense of $1,800 a year for upkeep. This sum includes the salary of a chauffeur, garage, tires, repairs, gasoline and oil, and is admitted by all to be a good average estimate.

"The average, as stated, allows $1000 or chauffeur, $500 for garage, $200 for repairs, $150 for tires and $50 for gasoline and oil. Of course some chauffeurs receive more pay and others less, but in many cases the garage charges are such that the figures work out.

A Plain Business Proposition

Good roads are essentially a business proposition. This fact has been emphasized from time to time in the annual reports submitted to the Ontario Government by A. W. Campbell, former deputy minister of public works, and now deputy minister of railways.

They represent an investment that has been shown to bring handsome returns in the way of increased property values. When loan companies are asked to advance money on farm property, one of the considerations that weigh most heavily is the general condition of the roads in the vicinity of the property on which the loan is requested.

A farm which is approached by good roads will sell more readily than one in a neglected country. An impression has prevailed that railways have superseded country roads and that the latter are of little consequence. The former deputy minister of public works has pointed out that this impression is indefensible. Railways constitute a more advanced type of internal transportation; but their highest development depends upon the condition of the country roads in the districts thru which they pass. Good roads are not merely an index, but a means towards national greatness.

The farmers who do not pay taxes towards the construction of good roads do pay a tremendous toll of energy and time wasted traveling on imperfect highways. They pay a heavy toll in the depreciation of wagons and lighter vehicles, harness, and lack of convenience and comfort.

Good roads represent a tremendous advantage to the people of the farming communities of Canada. Over such roads a farmer can draw barely half the load possible over improved highways. The principle at the bottom is the same as that which impels twentieth century railroads to lay heavier steel, reduce grades, and put on heavier cars and more powerful locomotives.

It has been shown in districts where improved roads exist that the farmers are able to market fruit, dairy and garden products which could not be profitably delivered over bad roads. Bad roads spell waste, loss, delay and discomfort.

In St. John, New Brunswick, a good roads committee of the board of trade has been formed to take up the question, and The Evening Times of that city, in referring to the operations of this committee, quotes The Toronto World's argument in favor of the provincial good roads convention soon to be held.

The Time admits that the present conditions of the roads in Ontario are far in advance of New Brunswick, and republishes from The World arguments in favor of the higher standards which we are striving for in this province.

The appointment of a good roads committee of the board of trade in St. John indicates that the good roads gospel is spreading across the Dominion from ocean to ocean. It is without question the greatest single economic issue to-day before the provincial governments of Canada.

SOME USEFUL HINTS TO PROSPECTIVE BUYERS

Proper Action of Engine Under Load Is of Extreme Importance—Flexibility Also is a Great Factor.

Automobile buyers these days are learning that a car suitable for one purpose is not necessarily suitable for another, and types have been evolved with reference to many special uses.

Design and construction are standardized that the purchaser, unless he knows the materials and the record of the maker, is liable to be deceived. If the right choice is made he can get a car which, mile for mile, will cost no more than a horse. The knowing purchaser's choice rests on the question of carrying capacity, speed, convenience and taste in body style, supplemented by his mechanical knowledge of the car.

"Heavy duty" is a good idea to choose along the following lines: See that the car seats the number of passengers desired, and seats them comfortably. Look to see whether the car has sufficient power to carry its load at the required speed and that it picks up speed and is able to negotiate hills and gear without pounding or undue effort.

Quietness and lack of vibration are the first items in economy of upkeep. Note the flexibility in the range of speeds on the throttle without changing gears—how slowly it will run on high gear without the clutch slipping. Flexibility is most important, as by virtue of it gear changing is avoided and the car is enabled to cover a greater distance in a given time.

A good motor should be able to accelerate and pick up speed on high gear almost at a touch. A sluggish motor is dangerous, as there are often times when quick and immediate action is necessary. The engine should start at turn of the crank.

General appearance, comfort and duration are points that can easily be judged by the reputation of the maker. No matter how well upholstered the car may be, it is a poor car if it is not built to last. Last and not least is the care of the car after its purchase. Will the firm stand back of its product and give prompt and cheerful service when a repair part is needed?

"The traveling expert is a big factor also. No matter how well upholstered the car may be or how well it is cared for, adjustment and repairs are sure to be necessary occasionally. To protect the owner and to ensure the use of his car whenever he wants it, the E. R. Thomas Company has placed a corps of expert mechanics on the road, whose duty it is to call on each owner at regular intervals to inspect his car carefully, to make such adjustments as he may deem necessary and to give advice as to the running and maintenance of the car.

CLIMBING INTO CLOUDS

Automobile Conquers Mountain Roads in California.

San Jacinto Peak, 9500 feet high, has been topped by a motor car. C. B. Fuller drove a 1910 Oldsmobile to the crown of the high mountain, carrying five passengers and pushing thru deep snow for several miles of the trip. The road rises 6000 feet to the mile after passing the first long stretch where high-gear work can be done. It is over one of the most picturesque grades in Southern California. The entire valley, with Riverside, Redlands and San Bernardino dotted on the checkerboard expanse, can be seen as the car mounts toward the snow-capped peaks. Beds and a tent were carried by the party, and a night was spent near the snow line. The car reached the top of the hill and descended to a comfortable camping ground the same day.

Motor Notes

There are 2500 electricians in use in Chicago and fully 95 per cent. of these are driven by women.

The Overland production sheet is showing a steady gain every week. The present high water mark at the Toledo factories is 63 cars a day, while the low mark has not been below 50 for over a month. The Indianapolis factories are also producing from 25 to 34 cars every day.

One of the best things to clean lens mirrors is a mixture of equal parts alcohol and water. Denatured alcohol answers the purpose perfectly well. Pure alcohol evaporates so quickly that it leaves the greasy film pretty much as it was, whereas a 50 per cent. solution evaporates more slowly and gives time to wipe the glass clean.

The Thirtieth Annual Power Boat and Sportsmen's Show will be held in Buffalo, March 21 to 30 in Convention Hall. The decorations contemplate the conversion of the entire hall into a Japanese garden. D. H. Lewis is the manager.

Dealers must dispose of the grip. The mill is grinding out automobiles on a basis of, perhaps, 250,000 this year. There is a good automobile for every one of the possible purchasers in this vast assortment by virtue of proper selection, but in the absence of care in making the distribution there may be a number of misfits.

Reports from San Francisco indicate that the hay market of that city is being seriously affected thru the rapid increase in the number of automobiles, both of the pleasure and trucking classes. Livery stables and carriage companies claim to feel the passing of the horse, and one large carriage company was sold at auction because it could no longer make business pay.

In the future all automobiles owned by the city of Cleveland, Ohio, will be painted bright yellow with blue trimmings. It is expected that this striking and distinctive coloring will serve to give city cars a right of way, and, in addition, it may prevent unauthorized pleasure excursions and joy rides.

It is said there will be erected and made ready for use at the next Lake-wood, N. J., season an automobile racing course which will cost at least $50,000. The course will be 3 miles in length and complete in every particular.

Interviews with Lieutenant Shackleton, the British explorer, since his return from the south polar expedition, have revealed his strong belief in the advantages of motor transport for exploration work of this kind. The special car which he took with him did good service, and had the vehicle been of the sledge instead of the wheeled type it would have been used for the final stages of the journey over the soft snow of the barrier.

The new British antarctic expedition, in charge of Captain Scott, will be provided with motor sledges, but details of their construction are not yet available. Some unallant person has started a movement to prohibit women from operating motor vehicles in the downtown section of Milwaukee, but there seems to be little probability that the city fathers will pass any such measure.

As might be expected, the automobilists and many other citizens of the city are against the idea, declaring that a woman driver is safer than a man, as she will not take the chances a man will, is much more likely to observe the speed limit and is not reckless.

Not even the most experienced motor car salesman could make a list of all the matters that go to influence the buyer of a car in making his choice. However, there are some matters that almost every buyer is interested in and one of these is "How does this car rank in home territory?"

To the buyer this question serves to cover a mass of information. The man who lives at a distance from the city where a car is manufactured is concerned principally with how the car will stand up and how far the company and the dealer will go in backing it up. But the man living in or near the city where the car is made has a more intimate knowledge of conditions. In the great majority of cases he knows the officials of the manufacturing concern, knows the factory behind the car, its methods and the material it uses, and a number of other things, a knowledge of which could only be gained thru personal observation.

The sliding of the wheels which occurs before the momentum of the car is overcome is certain death to the tire, and the real crime of this waste of tire life is the fact that a large part of the hand braking could be avoided if drivers knew their business.

Controlling the speed of the car by the use of the throttle and the spark and bringing it to a stop by closing the throttle, disengaging the clutch and allowing the car to coast until it comes to a stop would mean a big yearly saving of tire cost. Other drivers have the pretty habit of letting the tires strike the curb. This rapidly wears out the shoe loosens the tread and allows dirt and water to work in and rot the fabric.

Driving in the car tracks is another practice that always proves detrimental to the life of the automobile tire. Among the many faults which can be laid to the door of overspeeding is the severity on the tires. The friction developed by the terrific pace heats the rim.

Overloading or improper inflating is the cause of rim cutting. No amount of inflation will prevent the fattening of a tire that is bearing too heavy a load. This breaks down the tire at its weakest point, where the flange engages the clutch.

"Are you familiar with Dickens' 'Christmas Carol'?" "Not exactly familiar with it," replied Mr. Grawcher. "But I heartily approve of it. One of the best things Dickens did was to invent a Christmas Carol that people could read aloud instead of trying to sing it."—Washington Evening Star.

More About Winter Motoring

We have had another big snow storm and a cold snap since our last automobile page was published, and again we have to remark that, notwithstanding the storm and the snow, Toronto remains an all-the-year-round automobile city. In the storm of Thursday, February 3rd, and the blowing snow, together with the cold spell of Sunday last, the big machines were still able to go about and make good wherever they wished to go. Another noticeable thing in the city was the way the big trucks, and especially the big Packard truck of the T. Eaton Company, rolled around the streets with enormous loads and over a lot of snow, not being delayed for an instant. The more one looks about him the more he is convinced that Toronto from now on will be an all-the-year-round motoring proposition, and if at any time there should be one or two, or at most half a dozen bad days in the year, the motor builders will find a way of providing a road and providing a machine that will negotiate it. The good roads proposition, therefore, not only assumes the idea of a good road for milder weather, but it means a good road thru the winter, and The World sees no reason now why motors should not be able to go every day in the year from Toronto to Buffalo, with a possible stop-off at the very most of three to six days in the winter.

When we get our high-class roads in Ontario we will find a means of rolling down the snow or something of that kind to let the machines thru if big storms should arise. In fact we have in mind now a roller driven by a motor that would operate at the rate of 10 miles an hour and leave a splendid track in its path; not only a splendid track for motor vehicles, but also the sleighs of farmers. In this way would the snow problem disappear.

Two men will buy a Russell this year for every one who bought a Russell last year.

Two Record-Breaking Models

RUSSELL "30" Fully Equipped $2,350

RUSSELL Seven-Passenger $2,760

IT is easy to say "the greatest value ever seen on the market," but we would rather PROVE it, and will. An automobile is not something to buy on "talk," but on demonstration.

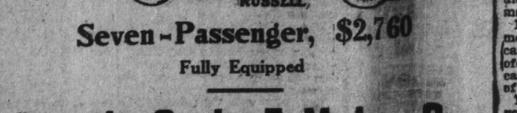

When you get up against buying a car you know how true this is, and when you get up against judging the RUSSELL "30" you will know how empty words can be in the face of the greater eloquence of the car itself.

Look at the material, look at the workmanship, look at the standard of construction, look at the power plant—a marvelously fine engine, look at the style and finish. Look at, and into, and through everything. Then judge.

These are two distinct models. RUSSELL "30" has a 30" wheel base—RUSSELL seven-passenger a 32" wheel base, and extra large wheels, 36 x 4" all around. Both have shaft drive, transmission—full floating type of rear axle, etc. They are identical in quality, though not in size.

The RUSSELL is made as good as we can make it, and the selling price is studied down to the quality limit.

Good Roads in Canada Soon to be a Reality

Convention Will be Held in Toronto to Consider Ways and Means of Improving Highways.

One of the most important conventions ever held in Toronto will convene from the 1st to the 3rd of March, for the purpose of perfecting a strong organization for the improvement of roads throughout the Dominion. The Good Roads Association of Ontario, which W. H. Pugsley of Richmond Hill is president, and Col. John I. Frewell of Whitby, secretary, will be in joint control of the convention with the Ontario Motor League.

It is desired to make this gathering similar to the one organized by the American Automobile Association of the United States. This latter has had a great success, over 2000 delegates having attended in Cleveland last year. Prominent Americans from all states that have made provisions for road improvements will be here, and expert testimony will be given by engineers who have made a study of the highway problem. Delegates from all organizations in Canada interested in good roads will be invited. Any decision reached by a convention of this kind will carry weight and some policy is sure to be adopted that will enable all the provinces to work on a common basis for better roads.

As a definite method of procedure will wait upon the government and upon the large business organizations for the purpose of securing co-operation. The Ontario Motor League has made a generous contribution and it is expected that aid from other quarters will be received.

Convention working for such a purpose as this should receive the hearty support of every business man, every horse and vehicle owner, and every farmer in Canada. Warden Foy of Anark, where 150,000 dollars has been spent on road improvement,

GOOD ROADS vs LARGE TIRES

In an editorial on "Good Roads and Good Wheels," The Saturday Evening Post, recently published the following:

"Tests made by the Missouri Experiment Station showed that with an inch-and-a-half tire the average pull per ton on earth roads was eighty-six pounds, and with the same tire on macadam roads it was seventy-one pounds; but on the same earth roads, with a six-inch tire, the average pull was only sixty-one pounds. By improving roads you save fifteen pounds of pull; by improving the tire you save twenty-five pounds."

In summing up the situation the "Post" adds:

"No extensive information on the subject is available; but we seem to remember meeting with more widened tires in the country than formerly. Probably the constant object-lesson of the automobile, with its big tires, has had some educational value in that direction."

W. J. Mead, general manager of the Olds Motor Works of Lansing, states that in his opinion this principle of large tires has been thoroughly recognized by the majority of motor car manufacturers. He further adds: "Whereas it is true that we formerly used small tires on our cars, to-day there is not an Oldsmobile leaving the factory with tires less than four-and-a-half inches in diameter."

states that the farms along the good roads have increased in value from $1000 to $2500 per farm. This alone proves that every cent spent on good roads in this country will come back a hundred fold to the pockets of the people.

Auto Show In Chicago Social and Commercial Success

Manufacturers Show Increasing Desire to Cater to Every-Day Man—Medium-priced Cars a Feature.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—The Windy City is agog with excitement over the Ninth Annual National Automobile Show which is the all-absorbing topic wherever groups gather in hotel lobbies and on the Michigan-avenue sidewalks on the right this proper. Manufacturers, agents, factory inspectors and employees of all ranks, dealers from all over the country, prospective buyers of all kinds, devotees of many of the motor cars and the always-hand-holding shopper swarm thru the different motor car rooms at the Coliseum and exhibit at the Coliseum.

The show is a success. It is on the job, and indications are that it will get a great response. The society who are in the show are a goodly number of the big show where an ideal opportunity is afforded for full dress parades and displays of fancy. Horsemen will in comparison.

strengthened. Some have been made larger and heavier. The rear axle forgings to the front are being one of the parts that has undergone radical changes on some cars. The matter of accessibility was the puzzling point. A feature noticed is the placing of roller or ballbearings after or before the pinion gear. This is to take care of the cantilever strains. Differential gears can be removed from many of the cars without disassembling the entire rear axle. Large valves are noticed on many engines. Some minor changes in timing arrangements and in the cam shafts are also noticed. By forcing lubrication from a reservoir in the bottom of the crank case is a method that is now generally employed.

No standard type has been reached, however, in respect to the clutch. Some use the dry disc and others the oiled disc clutch. Almost all of the leather-faced cone clutches have cork inserts. Transmissions remain almost the same. The general practice is to use the selective sliding type.

One striking feature is the showing that motor cars have been built for all kinds of weather, and the winter scenery outside the show can not bluff the exhibitors, as they can even better convince their visitors how well they have built machines to meet all requirements.

There are more closed and semi-closed cars shown than in previous shows.

NEW PEEPLESS CATALOG.

One of the handsomest of the 1910 catalogs is that put out by the Peerless Motor Car Co. of Cleveland, Ohio. The cars produced by this company have given such uniform satisfaction in the past that there are few real changes in the 1910 model. Some minor improvements, such as longer springs and a larger gasoline tank have, however, been made.

The Peerless line consists of four and six cylinder types made in limousine five and seven passenger touring cars, miniature tonneaus and roadsters.

NEW YORK RULES OF TRAFFIC ARE MODELS

They make Auto Driving Easier Than In Smaller Cities Say Autoists.

Good traffic regulations would prevent many unnecessary accidents which often occur thru carelessness or thoughtlessness on the part of the drivers of vehicles, particularly automobiles.

One would think that the crowded and congested condition of New York city would make driving very difficult, but it is no doubt a fact that one can drive with more ease and comfort in New York city than in Indianapolis.

In the first place, the officers are absolutely respected in the regulation of street traffic. A few of the rules which make it possible for one to drive in safety are as follows:

On an avenue or street divided by a vehicle curb, shall keep as near as right-hand curb as possible.

A vehicle meeting another shall pass on the right.

A vehicle overtaking another shall pass on the left side of the overtaken vehicle and not pull to the right until entirely clear of it.

On an avenue or street divided by a parkway, walk, sunkenway or viaduct, vehicles shall keep to the right of such division.

Turning Requires Care.

A vehicle turning into another street to the right shall turn the corner as near the right-hand curb as practicable.

A vehicle turning into another street to the left shall turn around the centre of intersection of the two streets.

No vehicle shall stop with its left side to the curb except on established cab, hack and truck stands.

No vehicle, unless in an emergency or to allow another vehicle or pedestrian to cross its path, shall stop in any public street or highway, except near the right hand curb thereof, and so as not to obstruct a crossing.

No vehicle shall back to make a turn in any street, if by so doing it interferes with other vehicles, but shall go around the block or to a street sufficiently wide to turn in without backing.

A few of the signals used by drivers to keep other drivers and pedestrians in touch with their movements are as follows:

In slowing up or stopping a signal shall be given to those behind by raising the whip or hand vertically.

In turning while in motion, or in starting to turn from a standstill a signal shall be given by raising the whip or hand, indicating with it the direction in which the turn is to be made.

Before backing ample warning shall be given, and while backing increasing vigilance must be exercised not to injure those behind.

No vehicle shall be used on any street or highway unless provided with lights and sounding signals.

Signals Help Drivers.

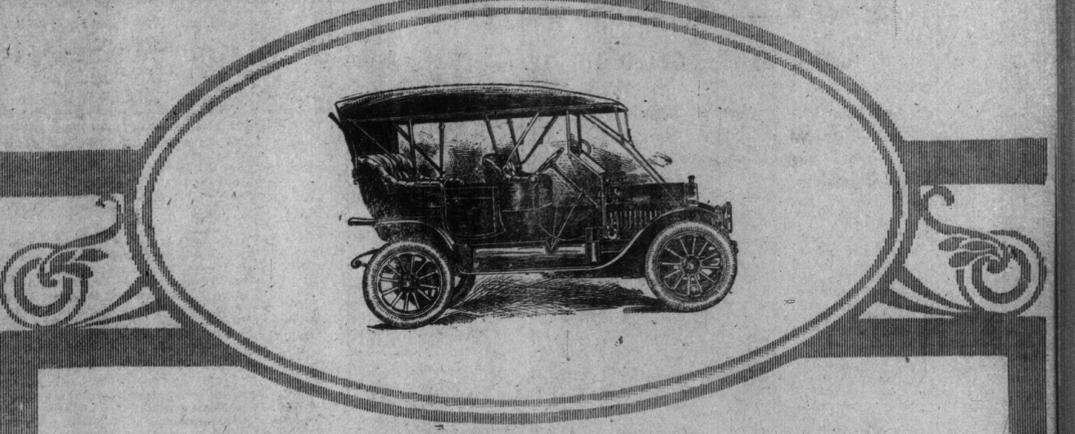

The signals as mentioned above are of the greatest benefit to drivers, as they can by this method, always tell what the driver in front of him intends to do. If he is planning to turn, the driver holds out his hand, vertically, to the right side which means that he intends to turn to the right. If he holds out his hand to the left side it means that he intends to turn to the left. By this method the driver behind knows how to keep out of his way. This rule is strictly carried out from the smallest boy to the oldest truck driver. In other words, this rule is so well understood by all persons using the highways of New York city that the signals are always given.

Another advantage is the sign boards posted along boulevards and all streets on which a great deal of driving is done, to the effect that all slow-going vehicles must keep to the curb. This enables automobiles and other fast-moving vehicles to keep in the middle of the street and thereby keep out of the way.

In Belgium, too.

LIEGE, Belgium, Feb. 8.—The River Meuse has overflowed its banks. More than 200 houses are under water at Fiemalle and Jemeppe, while the suburbs of Liege are inundated.

According to the United States census tables, based on the present growth the population of New York City will be 9,000,000 in 1930. Manhattan Island will then have 4,000,000.

ONTARIO MOTOR LEAGUE

Directors Appoint Committees For Ensuing Year.

The first meeting of the newly elected board of directors of the Ontario Motor League was held Wednesday, Paul J. Myler of Hamilton, first vice-president, presided in the absence of Wm. Stone, president, who is at present in Europe.

It was decided to hold the annual banquet on the evening of March 2 at the King Edward Hotel. This will be at the time of the automobile show, at which many of the members outside of Toronto will be present.

E. M. Wilcox, secretary and manager of the show, reported that arrangements for the show were being completed. Everything pointed to the show being the greatest success of the kind ever held in Canada. The entire centre spaces of the St. Lawrence Arena, where the show will be held, have been allotted to automobile exhibitors together with a considerable part of the space along the walls. About 40 different makes of automobiles will be exhibited. Several of them will be seen for the first time in Canada.

The plan for decorating provides for covering the entire building with decorative material—the color scheme will be red and white, with a liberal use of flags and emblems of the Ontario Motor League. The lighting effects will be brilliant. It was decided to hold a formal opening on Thursday evening, Feb. 24, at 8 o'clock.

The directors appointed committees for the ensuing year as follows: Membership—F. E. Mutton, chairman; Wm. Doble, vice-chairman; Fred. Powell, Morse Pellers, H. W. Beatty, R. E. Hamilton, G. M. McGregor, T. A. Russell, O. Hezzlewood and George H. Gooderham.

Good Roads—Oliver Hezzlewood, chairman; W. G. Tretthewey, vice-chairman; L. B. Howland, W. J. Douglas, Paul J. Myler, James Moodie, P. F. Miller, George S. Matthews.

J. Curry, W. T. Marlatt, Dr. Forbes Godfrey, M.L.A., W. L. Doran, Entertainment—Noel Marshall, chairman; A. E. Chatterton, vice-chairman; W. C. Bailey, F. Roden, J. C. Eaton, H. B. Wills.

Sign Committee—H. B. Wills, chairman; Morse Pellers, vice-chairman; Charles Robson, M. J. Overhill.

Good Roads Convention Committee—T. A. Russell, chairman; H. B. Wills, vice-chairman; Wm. Doble, W. G. Tretthewey, O. Hezzlewood, George S. Matthews.

E. M. Wilcox was reappointed secretary-treasurer.

NO SHOW THIS YEAR

French Motorists Kicking Themselves For Bad Judgment

PARIS, Feb. 12.—French motorists particularly manufacturers and traders are "kicking themselves" over their foolish move in withholding their great show this year; more especially is this so now since the late London show the best and most successful ever held in England, when in Olympia, 50 cars and classes, value £300,268 (ca. $1,501,340) were on view, the number exceeding the last Paris, December 1908, exhibition, when the total was the lowest for many years—575.

SHOWS BRING MONEY TO CITIES.

Ten million dollars, brought to Chicago last week by cash buyers of automobiles and hoarded in banks, hotels and club strong boxes, were exchanged for automobiles by Saturday night. There are 5000 cash buyers at the show and 100,000 people besides who would like to buy and are here to learn all they can about automobiles. Twice as many automobiles were sold direct to users as at any of the previous exhibitions.

NO WILDERNESS ROAMING

LONDON, Feb. 12.—George Mc. L. Brown, who has been appointed European manager of the Canadian Pacific railway, in succession to the late Mr. Arthur Baker, is a genial giant of 6 ft. 6 in. height, and generally made the boat ride heavy. His advance has been made. He now, at the age of forty-two, holds the most important post, outside Montreal, that his company has to offer.

AMERICA AS VIEWED BY THE BRITISH PRESS

London Papers Are Said to Print Misleading Information Regarding Things American.

The London newspapers, pursuing an ancient custom, continue to regale their readers with marvelous misstatements regarding things American, says The Baltimore Sun. One of the United organs, just come to hand, contains a long article in defense of the House of Lords, in the course of which the rights and customs of that chamber are compared to the constitutional prerogatives of the upper house of other nations. By this article it appears that each American senator is elected "by the parliament of his own state," which he must have been a member of.

WHAT CAUSES THE TAIL

Cause of Comet's Tail Mystery to Scientists.

The "three billion leagues of tail" of a comet puzzles the astronomers. Of the various theories that have been put forward to account for the repulsion of comets' tails, besides the electrical theories, probably the most popular ascribes the streaming away from the sun to the effect of light pressure. When radiation of any kind, such as the heat from a fire, falls on a surface it exerts a pressure on that surface tending to drive it back.

HEREDITARY HIGH CHIEF

Describing the system of government that has been maintained ever since the proclamation of the Protectorate, Mr. Mahaffy states that in islands where there is a hereditary high chief he is usually recognized, and he commonly sits president of the "Bowl" or island parliament. The next official of importance is the magistrate, who is usually chosen by the most influential native who serves as a councilor.

A Strange Custom of Alaska

Perhaps the most interesting archaeological discovery made on the northeast of Alaska has a relation to the present methods of personal decoration used by the natives of Alaska, the most significant feature of which is the wearing of lip-plates, or labrets, by the men. The present custom is that when a boy is 14 or 15 years of age holes are pierced in his lower lip, one below each corner of the mouth, and a small wooden plug is inserted to keep the hole from growing together, and month by month a bigger and bigger plug is used, till finally the openings are half an inch in diameter.

So What's the Use?

IN PARLIAMENT RESULT OF REMOVAL OF TARIFF ON FREE ART OF SOUTH SEA ISLANDS

Members Are Such Talkers As to Have Records Equal to Some of Our Canadian Politicians.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—In a Government report on a visit paid by Mr. Arthur Mahaffy, assistant for the high commissioner to the western Pacific, to the Gilbert and Ellice Islands, is an amusing description of an island parliament and an instructive note on the effect of civilization on the native.

In former days the Gilbert Islanders were a particularly quarrelsome race, and a state of war existed almost permanently upon most of the larger islands of the group. These conditions have now completely changed. The islands are kept in the most perfect order, trees are continually being planted, and reclaimed, and the wants of the natives are ministered to in every possible way.

GREEKS GATHER SPONGES

Man-Eating Sharks, Divers' Greatest Enemy. Greeks get the Florida sponges, these experienced foreigners, driven out by the natives, who are now immigrants bordering on that sea, have immigrated to Florida for the purpose of plying their vocation in American waters.

Talk Like Canadian Politicians

It is, I fancy, a rare thing for any of the "Gilt" members of the House of Commons to be so long-winded as the opinion of any European government officer. Such "European Hampdens" were not unknown in former years, and could generally be trusted to have good reasons for their views.

The Farmer's Fairy Story

At current prices wheat will bring to the farmer for the year $725,000,000, with $965,000,000 for hay, $400,000,000 for oats, $212,000,000 for corn, and $190,000,000 for tobacco. These stupendous figures cannot be grasped by the ordinary intelligence. While the golden production of the year was the greatest in all the country's history, it fell a few millions short of the value of the tobacco crop, and was immeasurably exceeded by that of wheat, cotton and corn crops.

"QUEERS" HIT AT BY VOTES SEEKERS

Votes Seekers Are Told Their Agitation is "Gravest Social and Political Peril of the Age."

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Dogs of war were unloosed at the regular luncheon at the City Club, No. 55 West Forty-fourth-street, when three hours were devoted to the discussion of "Woman Suffrage." Much to the discomfort of one hundred ardent advocates of equal suffrage, two of the speakers of the afternoon, Rev. Dr. Henry A. Stimson, of the Manhattan Congregational Church, and Rev. Dr. Andrew F. Underhill, of the Church of the Ascension, minced no words in their bitter denunciation of the suffragettes and the cause which they represent.

Greatest Social Peril

After displaying a sufficient amount of diplomatic tact to satisfy the audience to determine whether he was advocating or opposing the question, the Rev. Dr. Stimson caused a stir when he, with the greatest display of tact, gently termed the agitation for woman suffrage as "the gravest social and political peril of the age."

Leaves the Banquet Room

After scoring the legislators of South Carolina who enacted the law which prohibited the sale of liquor, she said she had two children from their mother to his father, United States Senator Benjamin Tillam, who was very bitter in his denunciation of the fact that thirty-three states have similar laws.

LOCAL TREATMENT FOR WOMEN'S DISORDERS

The health we enjoy depends very largely upon the blood circulates in our body. If we have perfect circulation we will have perfect health. There is a constant wearing out of the tissue in every part of the body. The performance of the body carries off the waste or dead matter, while the blood coming from the heart through the arteries brings the fresh new living matter to the dead parts. This constant wearing out and coming of the dead matter has to be replaced, and the new matter must be supplied to the body. This is done by the blood coming from the heart through the arteries. This constant wearing out and coming of the dead matter has to be replaced, and the new matter must be supplied to the body. This is done by the blood coming from the heart through the arteries.

THE CANUCK: Save the pieces, Samuel! I want a crack at him.

Somebody Must Go to Work

By Milo Hastings, In The New York American

The most significant fact of the industrial history of the past generation is the rush of men from production to distribution.

Any increase in the number of those engaged in distributive occupations, whether competitive or monopolistic, means a higher cost of living, whether measured in dollars of gold or dollars of toil. It is a matter of primary arithmetic.

Problem 1. One man's cost of living is $500, and one man can raise 1000 bushels of potatoes. If three men are raising potatoes and one man selling them, how many must potatoes bring a bushel to support the four men?

Problem 2. If a second man quits raising potatoes and moves to town to make his living selling potatoes, what will be the price of potatoes?

Solution: If one man can raise 1000 bushels of potatoes, two men can raise 2000 bushels. The cost of living for four men at $500 each is $2000; therefore to support the four men engaged in the potato industry, 2000 bushels of potatoes must bring $2000 or seventy-five cents per bushel.

The second problem is an American reality. We have called it a rush to the cities, but it is more than a rush to the cities, it is the rush from production to non-productive work, from wealth creation to wealth parasitism.

Not alone in agriculture, but in all fields of human effort, the number of wealth producers has grown proportionately fewer, while the bosses and bargainers, exchangers and fee takers have grown greater in numbers and greater still in wealth.

According to census figures, the same number of farmers that in 1870 fed 30,000,000 people, in 1900 fed 131,000,000. The parallel series of figures for viticulturists of corporations are 100, 125, 222, 336. On the same basis, the ratio of the ratio of lawyers to farmers in 1900 is 150, that of preachers 40, of doctors 111 and of undertakers 40.

But it is in the world of buying and selling that the most remarkable showing occurs. The proportion of clerks and bookkeepers increased from 10 to 197; commercial travellers from 10 to 650. Salesmen and saleswomen were confused with clerks before 1870 but in the ten-year period from 1870 to 1900, the number fed by each farm more than doubled. In this country of the increase in non-productive occupations, we must not overlook the fact that 465 of whom died in 1900 on the products of the same number of farms that fed a single hundred thirty years before.

That the foregoing figures do not signify a change from an agricultural to a manufacturing nation is proven when we compare agricultural with other productive industries.

From the ratio of 100 in 1870, the proportion of competitors to farmers in 1900 is 100 to 87, of blacksmiths to 84 of shoemakers to 65, of millers to 87. In these and many other products...

Germany to Enlarge Her Gun Factories. Krupp Ordnance Works to Be Expanded to Meet Increasing Demands of Business.

BELGRADE, Feb. 12.—(Special).—Considerable extensions are contemplated this year at the Krupp ordnance works. In order to adequately deal with the plentiful orders that are coming in, great additions to the artillery works will have to be built, and on completion of the new buildings some 1000 men additional will be employed.

Home Work and Store Work. Domestic Has Easy Time Compared to Clerk in Store.

One of two sisters, who had to work for their livelihood, writes to The New York Times, saying that for 12 years she was in domestic service while her sister was in a store, and now, summing their experiences, she says she has had more money, has better health and has had a nicer time in all these years than her sister. This sister compares her lot with the other: "Taking of what she paid for board and lodging, her car fare, food and clothes, she found she did not make quite as much as I. My room and sewing-room are clean, pretty and comfortable, well lighted and well heated. Her room in a boarding house was plain and badly ventilated, and no heat but a gas jet. I am well fed and well treated, and have my evenings to myself. My sister got very poor food, and often made a cup of coffee or tea for herself, to keep her strength up, but that is not fortifying."

occupations there is an actual decrease in the number of places each farm must fill, which simply means that the increase in efficiency in milling or shoemaking, had we started out to prove the increase of distributive occupations over productive ones by comparing carpenters with lawyers or shoemakers with commercial travellers, the figures would have been even more startling than those for agriculture.

That the farmer must each year grow food for a greater number of non-producers is clearly shown in the more recent statistics of the typically agricultural State of Kansas. In 1880 the population of Kansas was 1,470,000. Of this number 313,000 lived in towns of 1000 or more inhabitants. In 1903 the population of the state was 1,656,000, while the town population had grown to 529,000. This shows a decrease in the agricultural population of about 10 per cent. in the eighteen years. But Kansas crops since 1880, "smoothing the curves to eliminate irregularities of season, have shown increases in yields substantially as follows: corn, 40 per cent.; wheat, 50 per cent.; cattle, 15 per cent.; hogs, 30 per cent.; dairy and poultry products, 100 per cent.

The old settlers have retired and moved to the country towns. The farmers' sons have been educated away from the soil and have rushed to the cities for the soft snags, the steam-heated houses, the roller-top desks, the soft lights of the theatre. Those who have remained on the soil, a constantly decreasing proportion of our population, are enabled, by improved methods, to feed us with more dollars, they are charging more for the service than ever before, a fact very artfully used by those who would shift the blame for the present shortage of distribution. But it does not shift the blame, for the farmer, too, is a consumer, and pays taxes to the middlemen and monopolists, who multiply the prices of the products he must buy.

There is but one way to null the responsibility for the rise in the cost of living, and that is to consider the entire scheme at once and pick out not only those who live by monopoly and graft, but those whose work is unnecessary or duplicative, the roller-top desks, the former ratio of men who work in unstarved shirts to the everyday wearers of Sunday clothes has been maintained, the cost of living both in the city and on the farm have had dropped as efficiency of production rose.

When fewer shoemakers make more shoes for fewer farmers, and fewer farmers raise more food for fewer shoemakers, why should cost of living rise? Reasons and fact find but one answer—somebody has quit work and is living off a titled nobility of non-producers limited by a law of primogeniture, we have let lead down the bars, their elders hope, their Jenny, woman, in youthful bloom, love sparkling in her eyes. Comes home, perhaps to show a brow new grown, Or deponer her win-win penny-few, To help her parents dear, if they in hardship.

Belgrade, Feb. 12.—Prince George of Serbia, the ex-Crown Prince, has again attracted attention by his behavior towards M. Alimpcis, Prefect of Police. Some months ago Prince George, meeting M. Alimpcis in the corridor of the palace, insulted him. M. Alimpcis asked the government to relieve him of his post, but was begged to remain.

Recently, at a court ball, Prince George, observing M. Alimpcis, insulted him grossly in a loud voice, causing general consternation among all present.

The prefect immediately left the palace, and the next day demanded his release from his post, at the same time charging the prince with insult.

The cabinet met on last Tuesday night specially to discuss this, and decided to keep the prefect in his position, and to compel the prince to accept it for some time. This decision was reported to the king, who approved it, and Prince George will now be made to leave Serbia.

Switzerland's Forest Area. Law Provides That Forests Shall Not Be Diminished.

The actual forest area of Switzerland comprises 2,305,508 acres, 21.48 per cent. of the entire surface of the country, 77,004 of which belong to the state and 2,228,504 to cantons, communities, municipalities and private corporations, says The Maine Woods.

Seven hundred and eighty-one acres of the state forest are set aside as a nursery. From January 1 in 1908 over 22,000,000 young trees were taken and transplanted in the various forests.

The law provides that the forest all forests shall be maintained in a fairly dense condition. Even in private forests close cutting of clearing is strictly forbidden, especially in exposed places, without the consent of the federal authorities, and then only in small areas and when prompt re-forestation is guaranteed. Trees for cutting are carefully selected by forestry experts.

Spruce is the most important tree in the Swiss forests, and then in order of their importance come the white fir, beech, larch, pine, cypress and a few other varieties.

"Back to the Land"

Budgets, tariffs, prosecutions of illegal combines and food strikes will never end the troublesome problem of the cost of living.

The cause of "increased cost of living" is due to the fact that the rate of land production is not keeping pace with the rate of consumption. The population of the United States, for instance, has increased 25 per cent. in the last ten years and the following is the per cent. of increase in the quantity of food-stuffs during the same period:—Corn, 20; wheat, 20; oats, 15; barley, 100; rye, 15; buckwheat, 0; sheep, 40; cattle, 2; horses, 1; butter, 35; cheese, 0; milk, 350. The production of foodstuffs has not kept pace with the increase in population. The same ratio cannot be applied to Canada because we have a vast west that is being filled up but it is true that in the older provinces the movement of young people is from the farm to the town and city. Leaving the farm means a lessening of production. Consumption remains the same.

"Back to the land" is a term that should mean more than an empty slogan. If all the arable land in Great Britain, Canada and the United States were constantly tilled and made productive the food question would effect its own salvation.

Young men and young women who deem the farm home too humble, read that classic of Bobbie Burns—"The Cotter's Saturday Night" and then say a burning "Back to the land" is empty. If they had a Burns to-day to glorify the farm and its toilers we would hear less of the plaint regarding the increased cost of living. Next Sunday another poem from one of Britain's greatest bards will be quoted.

The Cotter's Saturday Night

My lord, my honour'd, much respected friend! No necessary bard his homage pays: With honest pride I scorn each selfish end, My dearest need a friend's esteem and praise.

The short'ning winter-day is near a close: The milny baits retreating frae the plough; The scorching trains o' craws to their repose: The toll-worn cotter frae his labor goes, To collect his spades, his mattocks, and his hoe, Hoping the morn in ease and rest to spend, And weary o'er the moor, his course does nameward bend.

At length his lonely cot appears in view, Beneath the shelter of aged trees; The evening wee-things, toddler, stocher, through, To meet their Dad, w' flichterin' noise an' glee. His wee bit ingie, blinkin bonnie, His clean heart-stang, his thrifty wife's smile, The leaping infant prattling on his knee, Does a' his weary laigh and care bestow.

When fewer shoemakers make more shoes for fewer farmers, and fewer farmers raise more food for fewer shoemakers, why should cost of living rise? Reasons and fact find but one answer—somebody has quit work and is living off a titled nobility of non-producers limited by a law of primogeniture, we have let lead down the bars, their elders hope, their Jenny, woman, in youthful bloom, love sparkling in her eyes.

When the Christian volume is the theme, How joyous blood for guilty man was shed: How He who bore in Heaven the second name, Had on earth whereon to lay His head: How His first followers and servants, In such society, yet still more dear, Were in the sun a mighty angel stand, And heard great Babylon's doom pronounced by Heaven's command.

When kneeling down to Heaven's Eternal King, The saint, the father, and the husband prays: Hope springs exulting on triumphant wing, That thus they all shall meet in future days: There ever bask in uncreated rays, No more to sigh, or shed the bitter tear, Together hymning their Creator's praise, In such society, yet still more dear, While circling time moves round in an eternal sphere.

When the pomp of method and of art, When men display to congregation wide Devotion's every grace, except the heart, The power, incensed, the pages will be desert, The pompous strain, the sacerdotal stole; Nay, hark! well pleased, the language of the soul; And His Book of Life the inmates poor enrol.

Then homeward all take off their several way: The youngling cottagers retire to rest; The parent-pair their secret homage pay, And offer up to Heaven the warm request, That He who stills the raven's clamor, And decks the lily fair in flowerly pride, Would, in the way His widow feed, His orphan, and for their little ones provide; But chiefly in their hearts with grace divine preside.

From scenes like these old Scotia's grand dear spine, That makes her loved at home, revered abroad; Finest and lords are but the breath of kings; An honest man's the noblest work of God; And certes, in fair virtue's heavenly road, The cottage lasses' palm far behind; Disgusting off the wretch of human kind, Studied in arts of hell, in wickedness refined.

O Scotia! my dear, my native soil! For whom my warmest wish to Heaven be sent: Long may thy hardy sons of rustic toil Be blest with health, and peace, and sweet content! And O may Heaven their simple lives prevent From luxury's contagion, weak and vile; Then, howe'er crowns and coronets be rent, A virtuous populace may rise the while, And stem a wall of fire around their much-loved isle.

O Thou! who poured the patriotic tide That steamed thro' Wallace's undaunted heart, Who dares to nobly stem tyrannic pride, Or nobly die—the second glorious part, (The patriot's God, peculiarly Thou art His friend, inspirer, guardian, and reward!) O never, never, Scotia's realm desert: But fill the patriot, and the patriot bard, In bright succession, raise her ornament and guard!

STRANGE PATIENT WHO IS BECOMING BRITTLE FROM AMAZING MALADY

Muscles Are Turning Into Bone and His Case Offers Study For Doctors.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(Special).—One of the strangest patients ever seen in the London Hospital arrived the other day from Swainsthorpe, Norfolk, where for two years he had been an inmate of the local infirmary, suffering from the extraordinary malady, myositis ossificans, or the turning of muscle into bone. He is known as the "brittle man." His name is Alverpool-street Station created intense interest.

When the train drew up at the platform the door of a reserved compartment was opened and the nurse who had been the brittle man's constant attendant appeared at it. He stood rigid as a mummy where the nurse had placed him, lifting him from his reclining position to his feet. "Upstanding" she calls it. There he stood, patiently awaiting the men from the special ambulance which had been sent from the hospital to meet him. It was an anxious moment. A fall upon the platform would have shattered the bones of the brittle man, just as if they had been thin glass. Raising him, first under the armpits and then taking hold of his feet, two men bore him with infinite care to the ambulance, which stood close by the carriage door.

All the way up in the train Rushbrook had relieved the tedium of the journey by smoking his beloved long-stemmed pipe and by reading the papers. Now he smiled at the throng-like first comment upon London was "Cold, very cold." But Rushbrook takes a cheerful view of life. The nurse bent down and shook the only hand the brittle man can move with any freedom. "Good-by," she said. "Good-by, nurse," answered the brittle man. Then he was conveyed with great care to the hospital, where he is being treated with all the most modern developments of medical science.

Case Without Precedent. An examination by the house doctors showed that almost all the surface muscles of Rushbrook's body have turned into bone. The only parts of movement are the upper part of the left arm and the lower jaw. "Such a case was previously unheard of," said one of the hospital doctors. "There have been cases," he added, "where parts of the body have been affected in this way, but the muscles turned into bone. Mental shock will occasionally produce the same effect in other parts. But this is the first case of the kind that has been reported in the world. There is no known cure, but for studying the disease. The process is understood, but we cannot explain the cause."

Ship's Donkeyman Worked Upon Swindle. Could Cause His Arm to Swell at Will—Played on Sympathies of the Public.

(Special Cable to The Sunday World) LONDON, Feb. 12.—A Turkish seaman, whose arm mysteriously swelled in the hospital, was charged at Greenwich the other day, with obtaining a small amount of money by fraud.

He was Abdul Maghed, a ship's donkeyman, and said his age was thirty-one. He apparently represented that he had poisoned his finger during the employment, and went into the Seaman's Hospital and while there obtained aid from the Shipping Federation.

His arm was swollen, presumably from the poisoned finger. When the arm was put into plaster of Paris, the swelling went down, but when the plaster was taken off the swelling came on again. This continued for some time, and puzzled everyone in the hospital.

The hospital doctors were puzzled. They finally learned, however, that Maghed used two small rubber bands, placed them over the arm, and by means of the circulation and caused the swelling of the arm. The plaster prevented the use of bands and hence the reduction of the swelling. Maghed was held for trial, without bail.

Theatre in Mid-Ocean. "The Climax" to Be Presented on Board of Mauretania.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(Special).—At last the seagoing theatre is a fact. When Charles Froham announced some time ago that plays at sea would be his next theatrical innovation, some said it would be a long time before plays on the trans-atlantic circuit would be practical, but Mr. Froham has arranged to inaugurate the custom this week on board the Mauretania on Friday, February 11, when the liner will be two days out from New York and in the general vicinity of mid-ocean. There will be a fixed charge for seats, and the proceeds will go to the seaman's fund.

What Women are Doing for the Advancement of Civilization—The Suffrage News.

Signs of the growing interest in woman's suffrage multiply. The New York World has offered to let Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont edit a department of two pages on this question in The Sunday World, and The Brooklyn Times announces that it will devote a daily column to the subject, and invites correspondence pro and con.

Last month a number of capable English women, having decided to leave the old land in order to better their condition, chose to go to Australia rather than Canada, giving as their reason the Australian experience would be recognized as citizens. It might be well for Canadian statesmen, ambitious for a last great empire, to take note of this. We many need capable women, and even now there is a scarcity of women in our Northwest. To show how strongly Australia approves the woman's suffrage, the most modern national parliament of federated Australia have just endorsed unanimously the following resolution: "That this house testifies to the fact that, after 16 years' experience of woman suffrage in various parts of Australia, and nine years' experience in the commonwealth, the reform has justified the hopes of its supporters and fulfilled all the fears and prophecies of disaster voiced by its opponents."

Also that, as foreseen by its advocates, its effects have been (a) to gradually educate women to a sense of their responsibility in public affairs; (b) to give more prominence to social and domestic legislation. Like-wise that the Australian experience con- firmed the idea that to adopt woman suffrage is simply to apply to the political sphere that principle of government that secures the best results in the domestic sphere—the mutual cooperation of men and women for the individual and general welfare.

Miss Vida Goldstein writes: "This resolution was received with cheers of approval in both houses. There is not one anti-suffrage member in either Chamber nowadays. Most of those who were formerly our opponents are now quite ready to be reminded of the fact."

In a delightful letter Mrs. Snowden says: "Ever since my return home we have been in the throes of a general election, and have been working like navvies. Our constituency in Blackburn, Lancashire, has elected me a member of parliament. My election took place ten days ago, and my husband was sent back to parliament with a majority of 290—more than double the majority of last election. Since our own ended we have helped many others. The elections will end this week, and the new parliament will be opened on the 14th of February. There will be a majority over the Tories about 100. Of course the lords will have to accept the budget. Then an attempt will be made to throw out the bill, and it is possible that another election will have to be gone thru in a few months. It will be dreadful if this happens. We are all so merged the woman's suffrage question, as far as the constitutional suffragists were concerned, and Mrs. Snowden showed quite plainly, at Massey Hall, that while she was a strong suffragist, she thought—"but, O, you budget." On the other hand, the militant suffragists are for woman suffrage first, last and all the time.

If I did not honestly believe that woman suffrage would be a strong factor in rectifying many crimes against childhood and instrumental in doing away with the white slave traffic, I would not work another day for it. But being convinced that the majority of women are anxious that every child should have a fair running chance in this world, and that their anxiety would mean something when backed up by a vote, I am going to work for this reform till we get it.

The Probe and the Farmers. Tiller of Soil Blameless for High Prices of Foods.

The legislature refuses to prosecute the enquiry into the cause of the high prices of food on the ground that the farmers object. This is very singular. Why should the farmers object? Is it because they think the blame will finally be put upon them, if, in fact, there is blame anywhere existing?

The farmers are not fixing the prices of food. They take what society is willing to pay, and no more or less; and society's willingness is controlled by the movement of social forces quite independent and self-acting as the winds and the floods. If people gather in the city and clamor for mutton and lamb chops, the price of cattle and sheep is bound to go up, and it would be a curious sort of farmer who would stand in the way to prevent it.

So we don't think the probe would touch the farmer. He is A in the alphabet and the ultimate consumer is Z, and between them are many letters that might obstruct communication between them, so that if A said to Z a certain article would cost 10 cents, these other quantities would be added about and get together and make it 40 cents.

The husbands who have been chafing under martial restraint are not slow to take advantage of the new condition of affairs. They pack up their belongings and repair to the village inn. The women are at first inclined to feel that they have lost the battle and must go on living the rest of their lives alone. One of their number however, decides that the thing to do is to leave them alone until they've grown tired of living by themselves and return to their homes of their own accord. At the Majestic If you are troubled with dull care you will find a cure that never fails this week at the New Majestic Music Hall. A prescription is not necessary. The remedy is a "laughing tonic," which will be dispensed at every performance this week, commencing tomorrow afternoon, by the formidable Joe Welch, a retired Hebrew comedian, who will be the leading feature on one of the best variety bills ever produced in Toronto. Joe Welch will offer his latest "talkies" act, entitled "The Happiest Man on Terra Firma." Mr. Welch possesses a happy faculty of being able to make you laugh whether you want to or not; in fact he dispenses a line of patter and a select variety of new parodies that will be sure to keep the audience in continuous roars of laughter. Eddie Redway and Gertrude Lawrence will be in evidence in their new sketch, "The Bellboy and the Maid," a piece full of music and situations of a light and entertaining character that catches on with the audiences everywhere. Eddie Redway is the original "Gingerbread Man," and Miss Lawrence, a clever comedienne, serves as

SCENE FROM GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON'S "BEVERLY." AT THE GRAND THIS WEEK.

Among the Playhouses

Actors seem to have a pretty easy time of it, but, in reality, they are a hard-working lot. The average actor works a good deal harder than a clerk, stenographer or business man. Once enrolled in the big army of his profession, the first rule he learns is the rule of "keep going." This is because an actor cannot afford to stay still. Conditions of the stage make it necessary for him to work, not only hard and often—but all the time. He must work when he has an engagement and he must work to get an engagement, if he has none. He must keep abreast of the times by reading hundreds of plays—some of them hard enough to read—each season in order to pick for himself a suitable vehicle for his abilities. Actors must read plays, many plays, if they would pick out successes. The average person, not familiar with the stage, is under the impression that most of the reading of dramas is done by professional play-readers. But the enterprising manager, who wishes to select a new play, knows that no reader is better fitted to judge a play than the man who is likely to play it. Consequently more hard work for the actor. The work of an actor also involves the possibilities of failure and a disastrous result. In commercial life a man may buy stocks and bonds and sell them for something; an actor has but one chance. He must sell his product, which means he must please his audience. If he fails to do it on the start, he has no second opportunity. So he must work hard to meet what is expected of him. If he fails all his hard work is lost. There is no reward for his efforts. The actor has to attend daily rehearsals for weeks and sometimes for months before the play is put on. Rehearsals usually begin at ten o'clock in the morning and last until six o'clock in the evening with say thirty minutes for lunch. As the play is gradually whipped into shape the hours of rehearsal are lengthened, lasting sometimes all day, all night and far into the next morning. Actors sometimes play twice a day and rehearse once a day. If that does not spell hard work, then what does? One actor in speaking of the strenuous life of actors said: "Work, I should say we do work."

At the Princess

Everyone who delights in real comedy, played by a past-mistress of the art—and there are not very many who have achieved that rank—must see Miss Marie Tempest in "Penelope." Miss Tempest will begin a week's engagement at the Princess Theatre on Monday evening. It has been several years since Miss Tempest was last seen in Toronto, and even those who saw her then will have to make acquaintance all over again, for then she was an operatic star and now she is the foremost comedienne on the English-speaking stage. "Penelope," the play in which she is appearing this season, is by W. Somerset Maugham, one of the most popular playwrights in England at the present time. Several of Mr. Maugham's plays have already been presented in the United States, but as yet none of them has reached Toronto. Miss Tempest played "Penelope" in London, and Charles Frohman has brought over the entire English cast to support her here. In fact, "Penelope" will be seen at the Princess precisely as it was done in London—star, company, scenery and all. Penelope is a young wife who discovers that her husband is neglecting her for one of her friends, the wife of a naval officer, who, as she delights in declaiming in and out of season, is "bravely serving his country in a foreign land." Penelope proposes to get a divorce, but her father, a wise old party, counsels patience and advises her to throw her husband and his enamora together all she can. "You've petted him too much," says papa, in effect. "He's satiated. Wait. Let Ada (that's the other woman) begin to ask him whether he loves her as much as ever, and where he has been since the last saw him, see when she is going to see him again. Just wait. She's sure to do it, and then you'll have your husband back again—If you want him." Penelope does want her husband back again, and so she decides to take her crafty parent's advice. Of course, it works like a charm, and then, when hubby has been brought to his knees begging for forgiveness, papa has another bit of wholesome advice. "What's ever is worth having is worth winning," he says. It is evident that Penelope has profited by her experience, and when the curtain falls the audience departs with a comfortable feeling that there will be no more philandering for that husband. The role of Penelope, so rumor has it, was created especially for Miss Tempest, and so it affords her an opportunity of displaying her art to the best advantage. Miss Tempest will give a Wednesday as well as a Saturday matinee at the Princess.

At the Grand

The Grand Opera House is sure to be stormed by the admirers of George Barr McCutcheon when his "Beverly" is presented this week. The play has left a decidedly favorable impression wherever it has been presented and will undoubtedly repeat its success here. McCutcheon has a faculty possessed by no other living writer, of making the inhabitants of his mythical kingdoms seem real, and George Barr's dramatization preserves all the charm of the book. Briefly, the plot tells of a principality not known in geography, and the men and women who are its history makers, with an occasional American or two thrown in for good measure. Beverly Calhoun is an American girl who pays a visit to the Princess Yelive of Graustark, and mixes herself up in affairs of state with a truly feminine unconcern of the consequences. She liberates conspirators, becomes involved in a plot to seize the throne, and finally walks off with a handsome prince. In her wanderings she is accompanied by Aunt Fanny, a lady of color who has a rooted antipathy to Graustark and Graustarkians. The four settings of the play are said to be elaborate and the presenting company contains many members who have been seen in Toronto with the best productions. Among them are Justina Wayne, last here as Claudia in the "Prince Chap," Lawrence Ewart, late leading man with Walker Whiteside, Ted Clare, Mortimer, Martini, Lillian Allen Devere, Louisa S. Evans, Max F. Anderson, Hazel Harrow, Charles G. Perley, Richard Lyons, Edward F. Macklyn, L. W. Sweet and a dozen others. During the week previous to the opening on Wednesday and Saturday, an excellent foil for his eccentric humor. The Three Richardins, an English troupe, perform some wonderful and astounding feats on the Roman rings; in fact, they do some of the most thrilling things that vaudeville or the circus arena has ever presented. The famous Tambo Brothers have a tambourine spinning act which is new to vaudeville on this side of the Atlantic. These performers spin tambourines in a most approved manner, and at some stages have as many as ten spinning at once. This is a sensational act, and is considered a distinct novelty. Lillian Wright, the petite comedienne, who has scored repeatedly in musical comedy, and the Young Boys will make their debut before a Toronto audience in a brand new act, offering a refined diversion of song, dance and chatter that will certainly enchant those who like good singing and dancing. Besides a splendid selection of motion pictures, there will be four other big novelty vaudeville acts on a first-class bill.

At the Gayety

What is known as one of the very best and most up-to-date extravaganza companies on tour this season, also the greatest singing organizations ever heard in this theatre is the Rose Hill English Folly Company, which comes to the Gayety Theatre for the week, starting Monday Matinee. It is doubtful if a more attractive program will be seen at this popular house this season. The program is said to be far ahead of the ordinary, and ranks among the higher classes of burlesque and musical comedy attractions. The handsomely costumed and well trained chorus of twenty-four pretty and shapely young girls, assisted by a large male chorus, together with the very elaborate scenic and electrical effects, and the good clean cut comedy, entirely free from any suggestive words or actions, interspersed with lively, catchy musical

An East Indian Verdict.

In a case in one of our Indian courts a jury had before it evidence that could not be in any way shaken. When the concluding stage had been reached the following interchange of conversation took place between the judge and his colleagues in the administration of justice: "Gentlemen, are you ready to give your verdict?" "Yes." "What is your verdict?" "Our answer is, sir, that you can do as you like with the men that have confessed, but we acquit all the rest." "But is it possible that you have weighed the evidence?"

On Board a Cholera Ship

Actor Has Blood-Curdling Experience Aboard Tien Tsin Steamer.

Lawrence Ewart, the actor, had an experience a few years ago that he is not likely to forget.

"During a moment of temporary insanity," said Ewart, "I joined a company which was going to make a tour around the world. It was managed by a man named Cooper, and to hear him tell it, he had the wealth of Golconda. We started from San Francisco in December, 1903, touched at Honolulu, and went from there to Manila. We played a lot of melodramas, and the natives of Manila didn't seem to care for our brand of entertainment, so our audiences were largely benches. Finding Manila cold, we went to Shanghai, China. At the end of a week our manager disappeared, and we were left stranded. I had about enough money to take me home by the cheapest route, and the American consul advised me to take a steamer to Tien Tsin, and from there I could get a cargo boat for San Francisco. I never forget that steamer, the Hoi Hao, for the date I left Shanghai, Feb. 1, 1904. There were three other white travelers on the boat—all Englishmen—Newson, a civil engineer, on the way to the mines of Northern China; Dickinson, a merchant of Tien Tsin, and Beasley, an architect.

Sir Charles Wyndham

Knight Actor a Man of Nervous Temperament and Human Tendencies.

At first the idea of encountering a really and truly English Sir and endeavoring not to bore him tremendously was, to say the least, possible, breath-robbing in the extreme.

After hanging about the wings for a whole act, I finally got a peep at the goings-on on the stage, and, noticing particularly Sir Charles' elasticity of step and boyish prouettings, I was told that "Sir Charles" would see me for a few moments. I really was glad it was only for a few moments, for I was most tremendously tired keeping quiet so long—and, oh, you did have to keep quiet back there! The prompter was just about as nervous and fidgety as "Sir Charles" appeared on the stage, and, at the least, sound away down below or up in the drops, would leave his book and go hiking over to chastise the offending miscreant, then quietly paddle back to his place in the wings, to await the next offence. My head did look funny. But English law and order must be maintained at all costs.

Why I Left the Operatic Stage

Written For The Sunday World By Marie Tempest

(Canada has a special interest in Miss Tempest because many years ago her family—their name was Etherington—lived in Montreal, where there are many persons there who remember her when she used to sing in a church choir. She went back to London and when she returned to Canada came a great favorite. Her success as a singing actress was enormous on both sides of the Atlantic. She gave up the position she had gained, however, as she is going to make her first appearance here as a comedienne her own explanation of why she made the change in her life work will be timely.)

In America, had been especially well liked.

But the strain—the fearful nervous strain! I don't believe there is anything quite so bad in the world. In comedy you can hop in on one leg if the other is broken, and what's the difference? But in opera you must have a voice—strong and novel as the idea may sound—it's up to you, the opera singer, to convince the public not only that you have it but that you have it in good condition. And yet stand in the wings and you don't know whether it is going to ring true, whether it is husky or clear, whether you are going to make good or not, and the strain goes on night after night and night after night. Sometimes I have been ready to scream aloud in sheer hysterical pain.

If a man felt as afraid at the moment of facing the battlefield he would turn and run. I believe that the footlights have shone on more heroic people than the glare of war itself. In the press the next morning we all will be written by one who knows—the bodies crippled with pain and sickness, the aching heads, the tired brains, the exhausted willains and the harrowed, loathing, their virtuous words, who have obeyed the signal and gone on as if the applause of the ticket-holders and the lukewarm notices in the press the next morning were all they could possibly desire.

"I think I have been more lucky than some in being able to turn my talent in another direction, before it was too late and my dear friends had the right to say that I did it because I had to. I didn't have to, but I had common-sense and a certain presence, and it's good for me to hear as I frequently do, the "Oh, why did you leave opera?" instead of the slight ignoring of the subject, which is worse—a thousand times worse, than any hostile criticism. Extraordinary how eloquent that silence can be!

"World Is Against Us War Will Come Sure" Says German General

Will Arise From Conflict of Economic Interests and Britain Will Make That War He Declares.

GERMANY NEEDS NATIONAL PRIDE.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—General Kelm, the ex-president of the German Navy League, speaking at a navy league festival at Jena, deplored what he considered the decadence of German diplomacy since Bismarck's time, and said:

"The idea prevails, and the experience of Germans abroad seems to confirm it, that German diplomacy wants to go about the world in felt slippers. A more energetic tone must be adopted for the tone makes the music."
War Will Come Surely.

"Those who assert that there will be no wars in the future are ripe for the lunatic asylum; defeat in a future war would mean for us the end of Germany. For the whole world is against us. It is regrettable that those in authority fail to point out this danger."

"War will arise from the conflict of economic interests, and England's rivalry in the economic field, will make that war. I fear that our old superiority in the military domain no longer exists in its former measure."

Need National Pride.

"Not the strength of the army and navy alone will decide the victory; that will be decided by impudability—that is to say, the ethical and moral factors. We must and will regenerate the German people internally. Of all the people of Europe we possess the least national pride. We need national pride and national honor."

She Asks For Help, Then Raps Rescuer Over Head

France is Startled by Bogey Woman—Is Dressed in Black and Mystery Surrounds Her Remarkable Appearances.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—France is agitated by the misdeeds of a bogey woman. In the Loire and the Burgundy districts a woman dressed in black is found sitting on the roadside by carters or laborers trudging home at nightfall. She asks for a lift or for help. When assisted, however, she suddenly draws out a cudgel from under her gown with a heavy and hairy arm, and carters or laborers would be knocked on the head if they did not whip up or run.

Nobody knows whether she has any real existence. But a doctor, after a motoring adventure in the former country, is inclined to think she is quite real. He was driving in the dark when she stopped him and begged for a lift. He agreed, and she handed him a bag, which he took before he had time to assist her into the car, he saw a shrewy man's arm appear from under the cloak.

He remembered the mysterious woman, gave her one in the eye, which sent her flat in the road, and drove off at top speed with the bag. The latter, which he opened afterwards, was found to contain two loaded revolvers, a jemmy and a knife. This looked as if the mysterious woman was quite real and meant business.

So you may imagine how deathly was the stillness, without even a chorus girl peering around some corner of the wings. Well, when the dignity of the dressing-room informed me that "Sir Charles will see you now, miss," I thought, "Well, here goes. Anyhow, I'll have a chance of sitting down and hearing a real live voice."

But, such a delusion! "Sir Charles" was standing up before his mirror swallowing a glass of something which, from the pervading aroma, was once or twice removed from common Canadian war. And, anyway, York Springs does not come in black bottles.

The atmosphere, while not so frigid as out in the wings, was less torrid than the last time I visited that same place, when J. E. Dodson was the ruling star. "Sir Charles" was evidently resigned to an awful period of boredom—and I don't blame him—as he said, "I'm sorry I kept you waiting. Now, just along what lines would you like me to talk? I haven't very much time before the next act." He remained standing and evinced the same nervousness and superfluous energy that is noticeable in the part he plays. But, mercy me! I hadn't anything particular in the line of interrogation to hurl at him, as I didn't know I was to see him that night. So I just up and said I didn't know I was to experience this huge pleasure to-night, or something to that effect, and he hadn't had time to think much about it. That seemed to clear the way. He caught the implied compliment, and answered "hot shot." "Or trouble, which is it? That's the way most of our troubles come, isn't it? Not speculative; and pleasure, too, I suppose." He seemed to lapse into thoughtfulness when he said that, and looked very serious. The only thing I could think of was: "How is Miss Moore?"

He was at once metamorphosed. The bond of sympathy was formed, and very promptly answered: "Oh, she's in pretty bad shape. She's gone to Egypt. The doctors said it was the only cure for the rheumatic deposit in her arms. You don't know how I miss her. The public will not miss her so much, for this young woman plays the part admirably. But it is I who miss her back here, after the play and between the acts. Oh, no one knows what that means to me. But she will be back again in five or six weeks, the doctors say. I hope she is; I hope she is."

All the superficial skipping over trivialities had vanished. It was the husband who was speaking, not "Sir Charles Wyndham," knight and actor, standing on conventionalities. He lit a cigarette while standing there, and very politely, according to good London taste, invited me to join him. I wish now I had taken that cigarette as a souvenir.

"It's a foolish habit this smoking," he said. "We are no better off for it. It does not soothe the nerves, rather makes one more nervous I should say. One doesn't have to smoke. I didn't begin till I was 45."

The call-boy—I wonder if he is one of the 18 who travel in the company—came to the door then, and announced, in the voice of a ventriloquist's doll: "Third act." "Sir Charles" bowed his little bow and walked away again. "Sir Charles" turned to me and said: "Well, I'm sorry I have to go on now, and really, I'm glad you came." Well, I am glad I saw three of his natures—the actor, the husband and, lastly, as he took my hand between both his own, as I left him to that deathly stage, the father.

Margaret Bell.

It is a great thing, is it not? to leave a cherished remembrance when you step from one life to another—even when in this life you change from one role to another. I think it was the fear of failure and the parallel wish to grow old gracefully that made me decide to leave the operatic stage for the dramatic, not but what you can be an operatic singer and infuse a little dramatic action into your part, but I use the terms merely to distinguish my present career from the past.

One day I stopped short. I had made a success, really a satisfactory success in the operas I had attempted—"Miknon," "Martha," and "Manon"—and the light operas like "The Fencing Master," which I had appeared in France is Startled by Bogey Woman—Is Dressed in Black and Mystery Surrounds Her Remarkable Appearances.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—France is agitated by the misdeeds of a bogey woman. In the Loire and the Burgundy districts a woman dressed in black is found sitting on the roadside by carters or laborers trudging home at nightfall. She asks for a lift or for help. When assisted, however, she suddenly draws out a cudgel from under her gown with a heavy and hairy arm, and carters or laborers would be knocked on the head if they did not whip up or run.

Nobody knows whether she has any real existence. But a doctor, after a motoring adventure in the former country, is inclined to think she is quite real. He was driving in the dark when she stopped him and begged for a lift. He agreed, and she handed him a bag, which he took before he had time to assist her into the car, he saw a shrewy man's arm appear from under the cloak.

He remembered the mysterious woman, gave her one in the eye, which sent her flat in the road, and drove off at top speed with the bag. The latter, which he opened afterwards, was found to contain two loaded revolvers, a jemmy and a knife. This looked as if the mysterious woman was quite real and meant business.

"Checkers" Coming So Cheer Up!

Famous Racing Play-the Offering at the Grand Opera House Next Week.

Cheer up! "Checkers" is coming! It will be here at the Grand next week. "Checkers" is well and favorably known in every city in the land. It has been most successful during its five years on the boards and has come to be acknowledged one of America's biggest dramatic hits. "Checkers" is a fascinating racing comedy of a purely American type. It has crisp, fresh dialogue, splendid characterizations, rich humor and many dramatic moments. It entertains more generally than the average offering and pleases a larger clientele than almost any piece before the public. It is a wholesome, interesting and stirring entertainment and is always capably played by a company of more than ordinary players. "Checkers" played eighteen different engagements in New York City, seven in Philadelphia, six both in Chicago and St. Louis and three in San Francisco. Judging from this record, it certainly is entitled to the name of "A Genuine Success."

They go away sometimes for three or four weeks in the autumn during the mackerel fishing season, and I expect they get food enough at the fish-piercing station about a mile away. Sometimes they have brought young ones with them on their return, but the latter never get very tame and generally go full plumage.

New York theatre managers estimate that the nightly attendance at the city's places of amusement is 2600 more than it was a year ago.

The last statement of the interest-bearing debt of the United States makes the total $37,352,990, while the gross bonded indebtedness of New York City at its last statement was $5,990,115. The metropolis is carrying $5,000,000 greater debt than the nation.

Glint of Humor

Elsie Ferguson who is starring in Channing Pollock's successful comedy, "Such a Little Queen," recently, while playing an engagement in Philadelphia, was invited to visit a school-girl friend of hers who married, and is living in that city. Her friend has a bright, little child, a girl of five, who insisted on sitting at the luncheon table with her mother and Miss Ferguson. Upon Miss Ferguson politely declining to have a second helping of oysters en brochette, of which the little girl was particularly fond, she nervously remarked to the star: "I don't think you're an actress." "Why?" inquired Miss Ferguson. "Well, Uncle John who knows lots of actresses says they're always hungry."

DECLINE $25,000 OF YOUNG ROCKEFELLER

Preferred Money to Defray Expenses of White Slave Inquiry Not Accepted.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—So interested is Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in the inquiry into the traffic in women, which is the task of the grand jury of which he is foreman, that he offered to give $25,000 to defray the expenses of the investigation.

This proffer was made to District Attorney Whitman and to Judge O'Sullivan, of General Sessions Court, who intrusted Mr. Rockefeller and his fellow jurors with the investigation. Believing that no private fund should be drawn upon for the purpose of the investigation, both the judge and Mr. Whitman declined the offer, with thanks.

Frank Daniels, the enemy of serious faces, and America's champion laugh-producer, comes to the Royal Alexandra next week appearing in "The Belle of Brittany," an English musical comedy which made a decided hit at the Queen's Theatre, London, and which is duplicating in this country the success it achieved on the other side of the Atlantic. The action of the play takes place in Brittany in the eighteenth century. The first act shows an old mill, and the second represents the interior of the Chateau St. Gautier. Mr. Daniels has the role of an old marquis who mortgages his estate to the village miller. The mortgage is lost and the result of this predicament furnishes the groundwork of the plot with its many complications and wealth of fun-making possibilities. There are twenty-three musical numbers and in the supporting company are: Fred Rushworth, Herbert Neville, George Callahan, Joseph Bingham, Ernest Wood, Story Chipman, Homer Potts, Jack Laughlin, Martin Brown, Eliss Ryan, Daisy Dumont, Frances Kennedy, Clara Schroder, Hazel Troutmore, Helen Paine, Elsa Harris, Grace Campbell, Evelyn Arnold, Dorothy Perry, Josephine Brandell, Tracy Elbert, Camille Truesdale and Christine Neilson.

No city in the world has grown as rapidly as New York. Since 1861 it has added 17,300 persons to its population each year.

Dr. Wullner Coming

Dr. Ludwig Wullner's coming visit to Massey Hall Friday evening, February 13, is, undoubtedly, the crowning musical event of the season. The music-lovers of Toronto will give Dr. Wullner a warm welcome to their city at his first appearance here. The rendering of his songs are done as no other artist has ever accomplished.

The chiseled features of Dr. Wullner, his ascetic person, his devotional attitudes and the moods of profound introspection which seem ever to envelop him, make him a curious and fascinating object for contemplation. He diffuses an atmosphere of reverence and yet he possesses and exerts the faculty of command. Without the constant exercise of that faculty many of the effects he produces would evaporate in moon-struck attitudes. He has an extraordinary mastery of certain elements of craft in the art of acting, and, he employs them freely, it is with a taste and tact so perfect that the mechanism of his feats is utterly concealed. His rendition of Goethe's lovely

Get Married and Stay Married is the Advice Of Jacques Bertillon

Widowhood is a Dangerous State, He Declares—Mortality Among Widowers Greater Than Average Among Married Men.

HEALTHIER, QUIETER LIFE.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The matrimony treatment for people who wish to live long is recommended by Dr. Jacques Bertillon, a well-known French authority. He quotes statistics to confirm his view that marriage prolongs the life of both men and women. A married person, he says, has thrice as much chance of reaching a good age as a bachelor or spinster. He shows that the mortality among widowers is greater than the average among married men, so he recommends them to look out for a new partner—that is, if they are under sixty years old.

Dr. Bertillon explains that his father went thoroughly into this interesting question, and obtained statistics from other countries: Germany, Australia, Italy, Sweden, Holland, and Belgium, which completely support this opinion, while he himself has studied later ones in France.

Wife's Loss Great Misfortune.

So the advice to young men rung: "Marry; you will do well, even from a selfish standpoint. But watch carefully over your wife's health, as even from this egotistical point of view her loss will be a terrible misfortune, for your life depends in a great measure on her own.

To women he adds:

And to you, mademoiselle, I give the counsel to marry in your most selfish interest, as married women have less mortality than spinsters of the same age, at least after the age of twenty. But the difference is less for women than for men. The mortality among spinsters is much greater than among married women, but it is not twice as great, as in the case of men.

Widowhood Dangerous.

Widowhood also is a distinctly dangerous state. "Their death-rate," says Dr. Bertillon, "from twenty to twenty-five years of age is twice that of married women at the corresponding age." He adds that it is less dangerous for a woman to remain unmarried than for a man. The reason he gives is that they are staidier. It is, for the same reason he holds that matrimony conduces to longevity.

Married people lead a more regular life. They are more surrounded, and therefore more controlled, discreet, and this control may be, and it must be discreet if it is to be useful. Their physical life, like their moral life, is healthier, quieter, more natural. Other explanations may be assigned, but in my opinion they are not worth this one.

What Statistics Show.

Thus does Dr. Bertillon point the moral. In the French statistics of one year which he has selected, the deaths per 1000 men among bachelors between thirty-five and forty were nineteen, while those of married men were only eight. Between fifty-five and sixty the figure was forty-one for the former and twenty-three for the latter. With women at the same age the mortality was correspondingly twelve and eight between thirty-five and forty, and twenty-four and eighteen between fifty-five and sixty. The death-rate among widows and divorcees were respectively twelve and twenty-one per 1000 women.

COMET ALMOST EQUALS ONE MILLION EARTHS

Yet This Vast Wanderer Will Not Affect Terrestrial Path Says Prof. Frost.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—"Halley's comet, on which all eyes in the astronomical world are now centred, is about one million times as big as the earth. Yet, although the earth's gravity may change the orbit of the comet, the earth's path thru the sky will be unaffected by the approaching proximity of the two bodies."

This statement was made to-day by Professor Edwin B. Frost, director of the Yerks Observatory, at Williams Bay, Wis.

"In view of possible large perturbations arising from the close approach of the comet to Venus on May 1 and to the earth on May 13," he added, "meridian observations are especially desired during the period in which the comet is sufficiently bright for that purpose."

"What are these possible large perturbations?" Professor Frost was asked. "That on these dates," was the reply, "the comet will be near enough the planets mentioned to be affected by their attraction."

"Will that affect the orbit of the comet?" "It will not affect the orbit of Venus or of the earth, but it is likely to affect the comet's orbit. That is one reason why we want to get the meridian observations, which will show almost exactly these orbital changes."

"There will be an interesting spectacle by the way, on May 1, when the comet is near to Venus. The planet and the comet will be practically the same distance from the earth and every one will be able to see their relative size. The comet's bulk exceeds that of Venus about one million times. It is not solid matter, however, it is gaseous and its mass is comparatively slight. Therefore, its attraction will not affect the planets while the solid, heavy planets are likely to affect it a good deal. The earth and Venus are about the same size, so that the earth, too, is about one-millionth of the size of the comet."

Dr. Ludwig Wullner, who has been universally admitted to be the interpreter of lieder songs in a manner peculiar only to himself. He will be heard for the first time in Toronto at Massey Hall, Friday evening, February 13.

Fair "Co-eds" In Their Attractive Residence Rooms at Toronto University

Sometime ago The Sunday World published a page of photographs showing the young men of Toronto's seat of learning in their residence rooms. They attracted wide attention. The same value attaches to the above views. They show how the young ladies, in attendance at the university, live in Annesley Hall and in South Hall, ladies residence. As in all other universities the college spirit makes life jolly when exams. are not too close at hand. Haven of Toronto's Aged and Afflicted

The House of Providence ranks first among institutions of its kind in the Dominion. It was established in 1856 and its growth has kept pace with the needs of the city, and it has been a comfortable home for thousands of the poor without distinction of creed, nationality, who would otherwise be thrown on the charity of a cold world. It has also been a refuge for those afflicted with incurable diseases, those chronic maddles that grow worse from day to day, the loathsome cancer, the eating cancer, the consumptive, the treacherous heart disease, the fatal Bright's disease, etc. There are over 500 in the house at present; about half of these may be classified as incurable hospital patients. Of others, there are 30 blind, a number epileptics and the remainder between 80 and 100 years of age. The cost of maintenance last year for maintenance. The government gives two cents per day for each child, and of course the city will, when appealed to, act generously, as they always do when they are satisfied the money is well and economically spent. It is a very difficult and expensive charge caring for those infants, but the good citizens are full of love and pity for the deserted little ones, and the sisters assume the responsibility with great trust and confidence. There are an average of 100 children, which number speaks louder than words could for the public sympathy.

population. The facilities which have been afforded in the last five or six years have encouraged people to live further afield, and consequently to rely to a much greater extent on trains, trams and omnibuses. Few people now live within a walk of their business and if they do, they seldom walk. This is a point which might have been mentioned in the report.

Ten years ago people used to walk if they had only a short distance to go, but now they either take a taxicab or a motor bus, and excuse themselves

30 cents for each inmate; that, of course, including all the ordinary expenses. The government gives seven cents for each patient, and the city sends and a fraction. The remainder is chiefly contributions from the men, whose appreciation of the done is testified by their up-lifted generosity when called upon by the ladies who take charge of the picnic, and which means a deal to the poor. There are six large institutions in the city, but the House of Providence numbers more inmates than all the others together. The sisters who manage the institution receive no remuneration for their services except the hope of an eternal reward and the happiness afforded in relieving distressed, alleviating pain and giving afflicted souls to thoughts of love and mercy of God. The Infants' Home was built at an expense and self-sacrifice by the sisters of the House of Providence two years ago, to give more room for the pressing demands of the aged poor of the city. It is now a distinct institution, which rely on the providence of God.

The Traffic of London.
From the London Globe.
The report of the board of trade on London traffic brings out two facts especially. The first is that traveling is increasing much more rapidly than the population, and the second that once again the facilities for traveling are coming to a standstill. The fact that traveling is increasing in a higher ratio than the population is accounted for by the outward movement of the

by the saving of time thus effected. The outward movement of the population, and the habit of riding for the shortest distances have, between them, vitiated the electric motor-bus and the electric trolley, and the provision of facilities has now ceased to increase at anything like the rate of the last six years. Railway enterprise is almost at a standstill, and this is not surprising, considering the heavy rates and the unfair competition introduced

AUDIE ISN'T MARRIED YET.

Philadelphia Evening Times: Miss Adams is perhaps the most of the bachelor actresses. Just Miss Adams has never chosen to marry has been the cause of a great deal of worry to a great many people. She has been the subject of much paper discussion, and more gossip. Grundy has often had her eyes turned to this one and that, and every time you will hear that she is the star in a romance known to one or two of her most intimate friends, and they are too loyal to her to help spread it. And all this while Miss Adams goes merrily along her peaceful way, letting the public quarrel it out for there has been more than one heated discussion on this subject, and quite satisfied to let the rest of the world think what it may, so long as she can go on her own sweet way, unchecked by the reins of a husband. No one, of course, would even hint that Miss Adams couldn't have married if she wanted to. Such an idea would be preposterous. The stage has seldom known so popular an actress, and a list of her admirers here would make a city directory look emaciated.

The lawyer proceeded to examine the witness. "Pardon the question, Mrs. Chucksley," he said, "but your answer constitutes a part of the record. How old are you?" "Why, you ought to know, Mr. Sharpe," she answered; "my birthday is the same as yours, only I was born ten years later than you were." "Ah, yes, I remember. Well, it isn't important, anyhow. Go ahead, Mrs. Chucksley, and tell the jury what you know about the case."—Chicago Tribune.

Opinions of Prominent Fort William Citizens

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said this is the century for Canada. Port Arthur and Fort William are making the pace. Chicago grew to the gateway of the Western States. These two cities at the head of Lake Superior have a great Western Canada tributary.

The grain business of the West is bound to make Fort William a great city, and an investment in Victoria Park will be very remunerative.

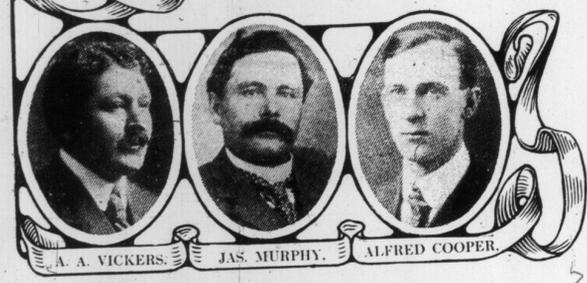

You cannot make any mistake buying Fort William property. It is sure to rise in value rapidly, and Victoria Park is the best investment in Fort William.

Victoria Park is very centrally located and is bound to increase rapidly in value. I have looked forward to the Victoria Park being one of the best residential properties in the City of Fort William, and anticipate a busy build-up season on the property this year.

Victoria Park is very centrally located and is bound to increase rapidly in value. The city is now built up to Victoria Park with substantial residences, and this property is among the best now being offered in the city for residential purposes.

Central property in Fort William is a good safe and profitable investment, and Victoria Park has both central business and residential property.

The Wiley additions (containing only 80 acres), adjoining Victoria Park, was bought seven years ago for $7,500. It is to-day assessed for $764,000.

Victoria Park is very central property, and at present prices will make a good profit for investors.

I have great faith in Fort William and Victoria Park. At present prices is cheap property and a good investment.

Victoria Park is situated right, where natural developments are crowding in upon it. At present prices purchasers will reap a handsome profit.

Victoria Park

DID you ever hear of a property that had such universal endorsement? It is the cream of Fort William investments. Get particulars and then get a few lots if you want to make some money.

I have lived in Fort William sixteen years and have doubled my money in a number of quick turnovers. The prospects are even better for future profits for inside property. Victoria Park is very centrally located.

In 1904 Fort William's population was four thousand five hundred, and on Nov. 1st, 1909, my carriers took a census, which showed it had a population of 22,000.

After twenty-two years' residence in Fort William, I have come to the conclusion that things never looked better for investors than at present, and Victoria Park looks good to me.

KEEP AWAY FROM THE STAGE.

Miss Justina Wayne, who is the Beverly Calhoun in George Barr McCutcheon's "Beverly" at the Grand this week, has played leading parts with Nat Goodwin, "The Prince Chap," "The Little Gray Lady," and numerous stock companies, so her views on stage matters ought to have some weight. "It seems as if every girl in the country wants to get on the stage," said Miss Wayne, "I suppose it is the natural vanity of our sex partly, and the desire to make a lot of money, easily. Of course there is lots of money on the stage, mostly stage money, but the girl on the outside doesn't know that. She reads about Maude Adams and Fritzi and don't realize that there is only on Maude and one Fritzi. "As our esteemed friend Chevalier says, 'It ain't all lavender.' The prizes of the stage are pitifully few, and the failures—just go down to New York at this present moment and look them over. Regiments of bright clever girls, good looking, well dressed, capable, and not one in a hundred has the slightest chance of employment outside next fall. Ninety companies closed in the last two weeks of December, and more are disbanding every day. The dramatic agents are besieged by actresses who are willing to work for any salary, but there is no work. Acting is not a fairy tale existence that so many picture, make no mistake about that. It is not the mere playing the parts, but the fatigue of constant travel, of bad hotels, of menial dressing rooms, and the uncertainty of employment. "And the bitterest thing of all is when age begins to creep on. It is not vanity that makes an actress want to keep young, but she wants to be a woman when she reaches middle age she finds it hard to secure work no matter how capable she is. I saw a little old woman on Broadway, New York, a few weeks ago. She was shabby, wrinkled and penniless, with not one friend in all that great city, and twenty years ago she was one of the most popular sou-

MEXICO TO SAVE FAMOUS TREE.

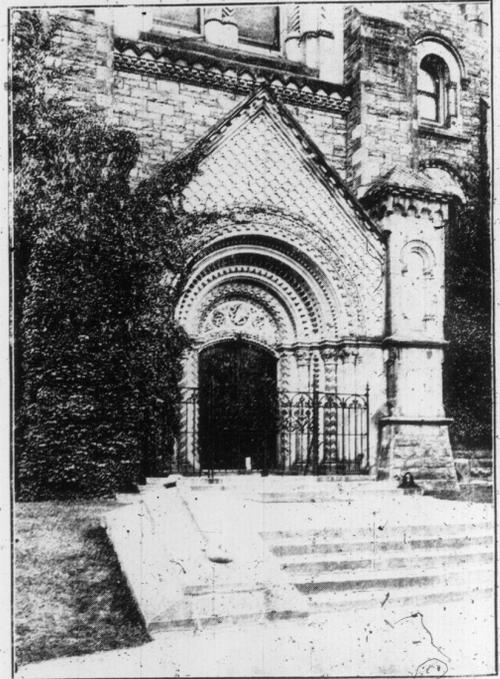

New York Herald: El Arbol de la Noche Triste, the old ahuehuate tree, under which Hernando Cortez, conqueror of Mexico, is said to have sat and wept on the night of his defeat by the Aztecs, will be saved from death in a novel manner. For some time the sentimentalists in Mexico have been at their wits' ends how to save the tree, which for some years has shown evidence of rapid decay. Many methods have been suggested, but all so far have failed to meet the approval of those interested. At one time it was proposed to cut the old tree down and plant one of the sprigs in its place. This plan was rejected on the ground that the young tree would merely usurp the proud position its parent occupies in the Mexican mind, and that for this reason it could never be El Arbol de la Noche Triste—the tree of the sorrowful night. Recently it was proposed to graft a healthy shoot of the old tree on its own root. This, however, would place in jeopardy the little vitality the old trunk has, and for this reason met also with general opposition. Things went as far as the appointment of a special commission of agricultural experts by the government. This body has discovered that the only way to save the tree now is to surround it by a small lake, and thus restore the ground on which the tree stands to its original condition. It must be borne in mind that the species of cedar to which the tree belongs is essentially a wet-ground product, and its name in Mexican, ahuehuate ("old man of the water") implies. In the days of Cortez the tree must have stood near the shore of Lake Texcoco. Since then the waters of this lake have steadily receded thru various causes, and for many years now the tree has stood on ground as dry as cinders. By surrounding the tree with water it is hoped new shoots will rise and that the tree will perpetuate itself without the interference of man. The trunk of El Arbol de la Noche Triste is little more than a shell, the core having decayed many years ago.

The Fun or the Farce. It is related that the manager of a theatre consented to hear in his room, a young man who had an unfortunate impediment in his speech read a short farce, the sole condition being that it should not occupy more time than it took to finish the cigar the manager had just lit. They both started, the one reading, the other smoking, but as the mild Havana gradually grew shorter the worse the young author spluttered. They finished together. Of course the question was immediately put, "What do you think of it?" "Well," replied the manager, "it's not a half bad idea. Father, mother, lover, daughter, all stuttering, will be novel!" The author, furious, exclaimed: "They don't stammer! It is only my misfortune." "Oh, then, the play isn't funny at all! Sorry that I can't accept it," returned the manager.
