German Communication Lines Are Harassed By the Allies

WHAT WAR MEANS TO THOSE WHO DON'T FIGHT---WOMEN AND BABIES ON BATTLE LINE

War Correspondent Phillips Everywhere Comes Upon the Hellish Destruction of Homes---Sees British Attack Germans on Marne.

GUNNER DESCRIBES A CHARGE OVER PAVEMENT OF BODIES

Harry Payne Burton, Henry J. Phillips, and other war correspondents will send to The London Advertiser regularly during the war stories written after the great battles. The first, written by Mr. Burton, appeared last night, and was widely commented on because of the graphic descriptions it contained. Mr. Phillips, who was given a pass for twenty-four hours on the battlefield, today writes his first letter.

BY HENRY J. PHILLIPS.

(Special War Correspondence of The Advertiser.)

Paris, Sept. 26.—(By Mail.)—It isn't the fighting man that my heart goes out to in this war. I've seen so many dead and wounded men and so much misery and pain that my senses are dulled to others' suffering. Anyway, it's fit for fat on the firing line. The soldier gives as much as he gets.

But it's the awful, awful destruction of homes, the wasting of poor people's all, the constant, ever recurring, sight of ruined cottages, or starving children, of ragged, hungry, weather-beaten women caught through no fault of their own in the frightful maelstrom that brings the horror of this war home to me.

I left Paris on a bicycle for the front. The trail of the retreating Teuton was the path of a cyclone. Huge trees were broken and some uprooted. Every farmhouse was roofless, some were burning. Roads and fields were dotted with clothing and arms and household goods, and the pretty landscape was pitted and slashed in long, brown lines by the trenches of fighting men.

Describes British Attack.

Dusk was gathering fast when about four miles outside La Ferté-sous-Journe the sound of cannon, which I had heard intently all day, became more clearly audible. The Marne runs through the little town which lies on either side of the stream in a valley. As I reached the outskirts a weird spectacle broke my gaze. It was a perfect picture of war, in all its horror, in all its majesty, in all its picturesqueness. From the hills to the right the British artillery was shelling the retreating Germans on the other side of the river. The shells were bursting with jets of flame that broke orange in the gathering darkness; a couple of houses, wreathed in flame, burned fiercely, the light reflected in the peaceful waters of the Marne which ran past two bridges blown up and shattered.

When the sounds of firing had died away I quietly slipped down into the town. Down by the river the British engineers were putting the finishing touches to a pontoon bridge—a bridge they finished, all complete, in the finishing two hours. The troops were already preparing to cross. So swiftly does the British army move that when I arose with dawn the next morning I found that troops had melted away in the night.

But I'm getting ahead of my story. Before night fell I found a place to sleep in a deserted manor house, which I saw from the street. Windows and doors were open, but the place was as silent as the grave. I walked into the courtyard and saw no one. Then I entered the house and understood. The beautiful old manor which looked so warm and peaceful had been deserted by its owners and had been ruthlessly pillaged by the German troops.

I Thought It Was Blood, But It Was Soup.

The dining-room table was heaped with the wreckage of a drunken meal. There were empty wine bottles everywhere, and across the table and in the dishes there was lying a great crimson splash that looked like blood, but proved to be the outpoured contents of a tureen of beetroot soup. Every drop of sideboard and cupboard lay on the floor, where its contents had been turned out in a search for the same liquid. I passed from room to room, and everywhere found the same litter.

It seemed that not a single wardrobe or press in the house had not been rifled. The beds were overturned, the telephone instrument was smashed, and even a pile of gramophone records had been trodden under the heel.

Early in the morning as I prepared to resume my journey I found an old peasant, the first of the returning villagers who had been driven from their homes a week ago. With the pride of a professional guide, the old man led me around to places where the fighting had been fiercest, and so it happened that we were together when the rest of the villagers straggled back home in a timid group. They saw my guide and thus it was that this German, but unimpressed peasant became the multiplicity of fate, standing there by the roadside and telling the people what they had to bear.

RUSSIAN VICTORY WOULD HELP ALLIES IN FRANCE

Impending Great Battle On Czar's Frontier Sure To Have Important Effect On Great French Struggle, Whichever Side Wins.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Oct. 6.—(By Mail.)—So far as London is concerned, for the past twelve hours news has been contraband of war. When the embargo is lifted, the public expects tidings of great moment, and there is a distinct tendency of optimism as to the nature of the revelations.

The French ministry of war, in explaining the necessity for the official communications being so strictly controlled, states that it is useless to be more explicit if the battles in the valleys of the Aisne and the Somme are not finished. The authorities know that the conflict will be tedious and prolonged before a decisive result is obtained.

Even the small relief afforded by the news of great activity in the east, sent out yesterday, has ceased today, and the iron inclosure of censorship has spread to the region where, throughout the war, news of the military operations have been more accessible than in any other theatre of the war.

May Be Climax.

Victory for one side or the other along the Russian front is of supreme importance, and the tremendous battle impending there may mark the climax of the war.

The military experts are beginning to appreciate the fact that the attacks now being made on either flank of the west, an army are not strictly turning movements, which depend for their effectiveness on speed and surprise. Little evidence of either has been shown on

No Front Beyond Dukla.

No battle front extends beyond Dukla Pass, but small mobile Russian forces are harrying the plains of Hungary. The longest continuous Russian line extends from Dukla Pass to a point almost on the Vistula River, a short distance from Warsaw. This is composed of the army which swept over Galicia, and is now the instrument of the projected invasion of Silesia.

On the other hand, if the Russians are the victims of a severe reverse, some of the veteran German corps will be released for service in the west, and the Germans may pierce the numerically inferior allied line. Which ever side can extend its line furthest without weakening its front, ought, according to the experts, to win the battle of the Aisne. Hence the crucial importance of the expected battle on the Russian border.

The battle line along the Russian border is not continuous, but the intervals separating the various armies are comparatively small gaps, and the whole territory along the frontier from Tilsit on the northeast border of East Prussia, to Dukla Pass, in the Carpathians, bristles with arms.

VIENNA CLAIMING RUSSIAN DEFEAT

Says They Were Beaten at Uzsok Pass and Also Forced Back Towards Vistula.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Oct. 6.—(By Mail.)—An official statement issued today at Vienna says that the situation in Russian Poland and Galicia is favorable, according to a Reuter dispatch from the Austrian capital by way of Amsterdam. "The combined German and Austrian armies," it is officially announced, "have forced the enemy from Opatow and Kilmontow toward the Vistula River. The battles with the Russians who entered Hungary have not yet been definitely concluded, but the Russians have been repulsed at a point to the northwest of Muramowskice, and at Tarzkoec. German troops participated in the fighting."

BATTLES NOT DECIDED.

London, Oct. 6.—(By Mail.)—According to a message from Budapest, says the Reuter correspondent at Amsterdam, the battles with the Russians who entered Hungary have not yet been definitely concluded, but the Russians have been repulsed at a point to the northwest of Muramowskice, and at Tarzkoec. German troops participated in the fighting."

Between Poland and Akmos, the Hungarian dispatch says, Russians again attempted to break through the allied German and Austrian lines, but were forced to retreat. The Austrian and German troops hotly pursued the Russians and captured many prisoners.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS WANTED PRIVILEGE

But Conference Decides Ministers May Still Nominate Superintendents.

[Canadian Press.]

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 5.—A proposal to empower the executive of an Epworth League to nominate its own superintendent provoked lengthy discussion at the Methodist General Conference today, but it was finally voted to allow the minister to retain his privilege.

Rev. Dr. Salem Bland, Winnipeg, wanted field secretaries given opportunities to take post graduate courses in pedagogy and psychology. This was voted down.

The proposal to make Rev. Dr. Carman, general superintendent emeritus, an ex-officio member of all standing committees was endorsed. Little support was given to a motion reducing the minimum age of delegates from 25 to 21 years.

Once a year probationers for the ministry are asked whether they use snuff, tobacco or intoxicating liquors. The discipline committee expected. The discipline committee reported in favor of dropping this question, but a close vote resulted in the recommendation being defeated, so the question will be asked from year to year.

NEW YORK LAWYER TAKES FATAL DROP

New York, Oct. 6.—Philip K. Walcott, junior member of the law firm of Hawkins, Delafield & Longfellow, jumped or fell to death today from a window of the firm's office on the fourteenth floor of a downtown skyscraper.

The Mothers of Men!

By Joaquin Miller.

The bravest battle that ever was fought!

Shall I tell you where and when?

On the maps of the world you will find it not—

'Tis fought by the mothers of men.

Nay, not with cannon or battle shot,

With sword or nobler pen!

Nay, not with eloquent words or thought

From mouths of wonderful men,

But deep in the walled-up woman's heart—

Of woman that would not yield.

But bravely, silently, bore her part—

Lo, there is that battlefield!

No marshaling troop, no bivouac song,

No banner to gleam and wave;

But, oh! their battles, they last

From babyhood to the grave,

Yet faithful still as a bridge of stars,

She fights in her walled-up town—

Fights on and on in endless wars,

Then, silent, unseen, goes down,

Oh, ye with banners and battle shot,

And soldiers to shout and praise,

I tell you the kindest victories fought

Were fought in those silent ways,

Oh, spotless woman in a world of shame,

With splendid and silent scorn

Go back to God as white as you came—

The kindest warrior born!

SAYS CANADA COULD RAISE TEN CONTINGENTS

Col. Hughes Asserts Others Would Come More Quickly Than First.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Oct. 6.—"If there were need Canada could raise ten such contingents as that now aloft," declared Col. Sam Hughes, who is leaving Ottawa for a few days in the woods. "The second expeditionary force would be more easily raised than the first, and the third would be more quickly and easily raised than either of the first two."

So far the plans for further enlistment have not been perfected. The French-Canadian brigade will be authorized for enlistment and the military officers of the Province of Quebec will be left to enlist the four thousand men.

SLIGHT ADVANCE BY BRITISH AND FRENCH

Wing Which Gave Ground Is Now Progressing—Masses of German Cavalry Reported in Environs of Lille—Enemy Repulsed.

[Canadian Press.]

Paris, Oct. 6.—(By Mail.)—The following official communication was given out in Paris this afternoon: "On our left wing, the front is extending more and more widely. Very important masses of German cavalry have been reported in the environs of Lille, coming from forces of the enemy which are making a movement in the region to the north of the line between Tourcoing, in the department of Nord, seven miles northeast of Lille, and Arras, nine miles northwest of Lille."

"In the vicinity of Arras and on the right bank of the River Somme, the situation shows little change. Between the Somme and the Oise there have been alternate advances and withdrawals. Near Lassigny the enemy undertook an important attack, which, however, failed."

"On the right bank of the Aisne, north of Soissons, we have with the co-operation of the British army, made a slight advance. We have also made some progress in the vicinity of Berry-au-Barre."

"There is nothing to report from the rest of the front."

"In Belgium, the Belgian forces defending Antwerp have occupied strongly the line between the River Rupel and the River Nethe; against this line the attacks of the Germans have failed."

hard-fought combat, throughout which given positions were taken and retaken and taken again many times.

Raids on Communications. That the allies, for the moment, possess greater mobility than do their foes, seems to be indicated by the news that several days ago, and it probably will so continue until Sir John French, the commander of the British expeditionary forces, puts his hand in motion again.

No Further Light. The reticence of the Paris official communications last night is even more marked than customary. It furnished no inkling of what had happened after the Germans "had forced the French to yield ground at certain points," on the all-important western wing.

It is argued here that these intermittent variations are inevitable, and not necessarily important in such a

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

Harmless to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread. The water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is a difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is harmless, and is made from the acids of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are extremely anxious to overcome the uric acid disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and cause no bad effects whatever.
Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

Two Russian Armies Are Proceeding Toward Allenstein in East Prussia—One From the West and One From the South.

[Canadian Press.]
ROME (Via Paris), Oct. 5.—11:20 p.m.—The Russian Embassy here tonight made public an official communication received from the Russian headquarters staff, saying:

"The defeat of the Germans is complete. Their retreat is changing into a rout that is so disorderly and precipitate that they are forced to abandon everything.
"Two Russian armies are proceeding, one from the west and another from the south, toward Allenstein (in East Prussia, 50 miles southeast of Elbing).
"The German losses have not yet been officially ascertained, but it is estimated that they had 70,000 men disabled."

VICTORY IS OF GREATEST IMPORTANCE TO RUSSIANS

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The defeat of the German army, which invaded Russia from East Prussia, appears from Russian accounts to have been even more decisive than previously stated. According to the Russian Ambassador at Rome, the Germans, who he says were completely defeated and routed, have suffered a loss of 70,000 men, and have been forced to abandon every gun.
The Russians are now moving forward with the object of again invading East Prussia. This victory, if it is as complete as reported, is of the greatest importance to the Russians, as it will prevent the Germans from undertaking any operations from land and sea, which would have compelled Russia to turn at least a part of its attention in this direction.

Chief of German Staff Reported To Be Fired

LONDON, Oct. 5.—News reached here tonight that Lieut.-General Helmuth von Moltke has been superseded by General Voigts-Rhetz as chief of the German General Staff.
General von Moltke is a nephew of the great strategist of that name who engineered the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, and died in 1891. At the funeral in that year, the Kaiser told Major von Moltke, as he then was, that he would be promoted to the rank of personal aide de camp. He was promoted to be major-general in 1899, and appointed commander of the first infantry brigade of the Guards at Potsdam, and he became Lieut.-general in 1902.
On January 1, 1906, General von Moltke assumed the office of chief of the German General Staff.
He succeeded Count Schlieffen.

It was common knowledge at that time that von Moltke did not consider himself qualified for so high an honor, and strove hard to avoid it, even declining the office on two occasions, but the imperial will was not to be thwarted.
General von Moltke has the reputation of being a serious, hard working soldier, as tactician, and silent as his more illustrious namesake, and a man who has done perhaps more to bring the German name to the fighting pitch than any other of his colleagues.

Little Known of Successor.
Of General Voigts-Rhetz, who succeeds General von Moltke, very little can be gathered even from German reference books. His name is not even mentioned in "Wer ist's." His father, however, was a great soldier, who was born in 1809 and rose to high rank in the ministry of war. He commanded a division in 1870-71 and afterward was appointed Governor-General of Hanover. He died in 1877 and had an infantry regiment named after him.

Thus the new chief of staff may be described as a dark horse, and it remains to be seen whether he has inherited his father's ability, and whether he is a better man than the one he has succeeded.

Means Serious Panic.
The military expert of the Standard, commenting on the removal of Gen. von Moltke, says:

"The removal of Gen. von Moltke is a serious panic. It means a serious panic. It means a serious panic."

ALLIES ADVANCE IN A VIGOROUS MOVE

Encounter Strong Resistance, However, on the Western Wing.

STILL WORKING TO NORTH

Invaders Able to Reach Points by Shorter Marches.

[Canadian Press.]
FROM THE BATTLE FRONT, via Paris, Oct. 5.—11:13 p.m.—All the allied armies, after having permitted their adversaries, as they thought, to exhaust themselves by continued attacks, today took a most vigorous offensive. The British and French, however, encountered such a strong resistance that their most advanced detachments on the western wing were compelled to halt back.
Only at this part of the long battle line did the opposing troops actually come into close contact.

Many picturesque villages, around which hundreds of thousands of men occupy positions, have suffered severely in the recent fighting, and probably will suffer still more before the struggle for supremacy is over.

Allies Bending Eastward.
The country where the chief fighting is going on is flat and under cultivation. In many places it is boggy and there are scattered small villages. The allied armies are continually extending toward the north and bending eastward toward the Belgian frontier and are thus consuming the Germans, in order to prevent the crumbling up of their main army, to move large forces from their centre and so keep pace with the allies, whose position menaces the invaders along the whole line. The allies' plan, it is thought, may compel the Germans to release the pressure on the Belgians.

French Move Swiftly.
The rapidity with which the French change positions is remarkable. Two entire divisions of infantry marched nearly thirty miles Saturday and twenty-eight miles Sunday. The Germans, however, by means of their aviators who are continually flitting over the lines despite numerous casualties, discovered the movements and brought up reinforcements to meet them. When the Germans occupy the inside of the circle, they are able to reach an appointed spot with much shorter marches.

It was said that enabled them to force the advance guards of the allies to cede a small amount of ground until further assistance came.
At one point on the allies' front, a French regiment after a three days' spell in the trenches, on being ordered to the rear for a rest, sent a petition through their colonel, to the commanding general, asking permission to remain until the German position facing them was taken.

This was granted, and the men advanced, and although they met with such terrific fire from the machine guns that an advance of 500 yards took eight hours, they captured the position and a number of prisoners. They themselves suffered severely.

Daring French Raid.
French cavalry executed a daring raid back of the German lines, where they blew up a railroad engine and camped before their presence was discovered.

British lancers and French troopers performed a brilliant exploit at another point. On Sunday afternoon the Imperial Guard and their artillery ammunition train by a long dashing ride, they cut off the supplies, destroying them so that the German troops were rendered temporarily useless.

General Jean Rousseau, of the French cavalry, died today of wounds.

Spies Are Audacious.
Audacious espionage carried on by the Germans has caused the staff of the Allies to deal severely with all strangers found within the lines. When the curious Irishmen who were arrested yesterday had proved their identity to the satisfaction of the officers they were asked to go to the headquarters building where an automobile was drawn up with two officers, apparently French, occupying the front seat. Behind them was a man in civilian dress. "This is the reason for our severity. These five men are German spies who were captured near the firing lines."

Continuing, the dispatch says that the Emperor wished to subordinate sound strategy to a desire to attack England, but Gen. von Moltke preferred to postpone the latter action, as it would have no effect upon the immediate situation.

The Emperor, adds the dispatch, wished to detach a large number of ships and aeroplanes to attack England, but Gen. von Moltke declared that all available aircraft were needed in Europe.

TO HAVE RITUAL IN METHODIST HYMNAL

Apostles' Creed and Certain Services Favored For Inclusion.

[Canadian Press.]
OTTAWA, Oct. 5.—For the first time in the history of the Methodist Church in Canada, some ritual will be embodied in the new hymn book for the church. The general conference decided on this afternoon.

The ritual will include the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments, the Apostles' Creed, the questions and answers of the Reception Service, and the General Confession of the service of the Lord's Supper.

The conference plans to conclude its business tomorrow, and will sit until midnight if necessary.
Hymn-Book Report.
The report of the hymn-book committee provided considerable debate. One of the first items to cause discussion was the recommendation that "amen" be sung only at the end of certain or suitable hymns. Some of the delegates favored singing "amen" at the close of all hymns.

Rev. Dr. Salem Bland, Winnipeg, pointed out that some hymns are in the nature of a warning. The committee's desire prevailed.

The conference favored embodying in the new hymn-book the Lord's Prayer, the Apostles' Creed, the Ten Commandments, the questions and answers of the Reception Service, the General Confession of the service of the Lord's Supper. This is a new departure. There is no ritual in the old hymn-books.

There was a feeling amongst some of the delegates that the committee had, in selecting hymns for the new book, omitted to put in some of the best old tunes.

Wants the Old Favorites.
Rev. Dr. Bland suggested an appendix for the new volume in which some of the old favorites thrown out by the committee be placed. "Some of the old tunes have been taken out of us since childhood," said Dr. Bland.

W. S. Dugan, of Stratford, Ont., said he had a sense of sympathy for Dr. Bland's suggestion, but he did not favor an appendix. It would be better, Mr. Dugan held, to put the old

TENNIS COURTS FOR GERMANS

Explanation of How Germans Prepared For Siege of Namur.

FOUNDATIONS PREPARED
Long Before War Broke Out Everything Was in Readiness.

[Canadian Press.]
New York, Oct. 6.—A London Standard dispatch from Ostend to the Tribune says: "What I am convinced is a true explanation of the amazing swift subjugation of Namur by the Germans, and afterward of Maubeuge, has been given me by a resident of Lille, who arrived here, this evening, from Antwerp. The story offers so simple an explanation that I believe it will be found in due time fully confirmed by local evidence which cannot be obliterated."

"Everyone knows that the great German 42-centimetre howitzers require a concrete base, which has to be constructed and laboriously constructed. A certain German baron has occupied for some years a chateau five miles from Namur. Last spring he made a new tennis court on the ground. German workmen were employed, and a deep concrete foundation was laid to preclude any movement of the court. The presence of the concrete beneath, and especially the rails, which were supported by those few persons who saw them to be simply conveniences for bringing up the concrete, naturally had no importance attached to them by those who played tennis this summer on the courts."

Ready For Howitzers.
"When the Germans made their attack on Namur, giant howitzers, which can only move at the rate of two miles an hour, drawn by 32 horses for each one, were placed in position on the rails, and firmly stationed on the concrete, which was exposed and cleared in a few hours by the removal of the asphalt. The tennis court's position gave a clear and exactly measured way to the front of Namur, which were smashed up in two days."

Same at Maubeuge.
"At Maubeuge similar plans were made. Some forest land, five miles away, was sold two years ago for building purposes to a firm now believed to be agents of the Krupp works. It was built in the same way for the factory, for which the space was covered with a deep layer of concrete and provided with rails. The Germans used this in the same way for their guns. It is suspected that similar concrete beds were prepared before the war by German agents around Antwerp, but the Germans do not appear to have found them accessible yet, or the Belgians forestalled them and rendered the concrete beds useless. A workshop near Schooneveld was last week used by the Germans 'Not to be turned.'"

"It was built with German materials and German labor. When the Belgians returned to it they found it contained a complete plant and materials for making pontoon bridges."

ASK FOR CLOTHING
Three Little Chaps Appeal to Charity Organization.

Three little fellows, aged twelve, eleven and nine years, walked into the office of the Charity Organization Society yesterday afternoon with a note from their mother asking if they could be taken care of. The mother, who is a widow and works hard in one of the city's factories from early morning until 6 o'clock at night, and even so cannot earn sufficient to support her family as well as feed them, and they are far indeed from being properly clothed for school.

This year the society's funds are so low that it cannot afford to fit out the children as it has in former years, and so is making this request for shoes and clothing to be sent to the office, city hall, for such families.

The little fellows mentioned came to this country from England with their parents a few years ago, and their father died a few months after their arrival here. They are very loyal Britishers and are sure that England is going to win in the present war.

In response to yesterday's appeal in the Advertiser for clothing the society today received several large boxes of new winter caps for boys of all sizes from the Fraser Cap Company.

REFUSED POSITIONS
"Britisher" Complains of Treatment Accorded Returning Volunteers.

A man who signs himself, "A Britisher in London for 25 Years," has written a letter to Inspector Joseph Sanders of the Children's Aid Society calling attention to what he terms poor treatment of soldiers who have returned from Valcartier and are refused positions they left to go to the front. He says it was through no fault of theirs that these men were turned down at Valcartier and he, as an unemployed man of labor and a loyal citizen, believes that either the charity organization society or the Borden Government ought to do something for these men.

Inspector Sanders would like to know the author of the letter and he stated that many persons who have sent him anonymous letters in the past few days could be assured that the utmost secrecy and confidence if they will bring their complaints to him personally.

It is stated that the head office at Montreal has decided to cut off this office and shift the work to the local superintendents.

The men who held the positions of trainmasters will be given the positions they formerly held previous to their promotions. The majority of them are ex-conductors, and they will receive their old runs, it is said. No reason can be learned for the change.

MOST HEARTENING NEWS OF ANTWERP

Attack Slackening, Forces
Probably Having Left For France—Churchill in City?

[Canadian Press.]
Bordeaux, Oct. 6.—News described as "most encouraging" has been received here today from Antwerp. It is said that the German attacks on this place seem to be slackening somewhat in intensity.

The German troops reported in the official announcement of this afternoon to be near Lille, in the Department of Nord, indicate, in the opinion of French observers, that Germany has decided to draw off forces from Antwerp to relieve the German right wing in France, which is hard pressed by the allies.

It has been announced here by a credible authority that Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, is now in Antwerp, consulting with the Belgian general staff.

MURPHY'S MAXIMS
Musketry Instructor Lays Down Rules for Riflemen.

Captain T. J. Murphy, the new musketry instructor for the Seventh Fusiliers, lays down for the guidance of the men he is teaching to shoot certain hard and fast rules which have been termed rather aptly "Murphy's maxims."

In the first place, Captain Murphy is emphatic that, to become a good marksman, a man must be temperate, patient, persevering, determined and able to make a quick decision. And the most essential of all these virtues, he maintains, is temperance.

Late hours, smoking and drinking are detrimental to good shooting, he says. A man who does not get enough sleep, who drinks or smokes to excess, cannot hope to become a marksman. On the other hand, Captain Murphy believes that rifle shooting is conducive to right living since the discipline of it induces a man to practice those habits which will make for efficiency in his shooting.

Not only that, but the sport itself, which makes directly for physical fitness. It trains the eye, steadies the nerves, induces deep breathing, concentrates the mind and drives away dull care.

Also, Captain Murphy points out, trains the mind and muscles to act together. When a man becomes expert, he learns to release the charge almost subconsciously just at the psychological moment when the sights are in alignment with the target. Unless the muscles obey the mind's telegraphed message the result cannot be satisfactory.

"COMING POLITICIAN"
Shelter Youngster Conjures Up Fatal Shooting Out of Pure Imagination.

Crown Attorney McKillop asked Inspector Sanders of the Children's Aid Society yesterday to investigate a shooting affray at the Children's Shelter, in which a boy was shot. When Inspector Sanders ran down this report he found that the youngster, a "chick boy" had come over to the shelter and flourished a revolver, finally shooting and killing one of the boys.

The story was entirely without foundation, and the youngster in question has already earned the distinction of being dubbed "a coming politician."

The ten-year-old boy who broke out of the shelter a few weeks ago, said he was located by the authorities, who have him under surveillance.

EXPLAINS SLOWNESS
Returned Londoner Says Misunderstanding Caused British Recruiting to Slacken.

An explanation of why recruiting in Britain has lately following the outbreak of the war, was somewhat slow, a fact which has caused some comment in different quarters, was given today by a returned Londoner, who, he said, who has just returned from a tour of Europe and the British Isles.

At first, he points out, posters were issued calling for recruits for "Kitchen" and "Barracks" and this was the first step. The second step was to have a man almost reached within two or three days people ceased to come forward so rapidly because they believed that no more than 100,000 would be accepted. When it became known, however, that every man available was needed the rush commenced again and within a very short time 500,000 had been accepted.

Mr. Omond was in Germany two weeks before war was declared, but although he saw great activity in military circles, he did not attach any significance to it. He was in England when the war broke out and he proceeded to Scotland and was in Glasgow when hostilities were commenced and sailed from there for Montreal.

The passage across the Atlantic was quite uneventful and was distinguished from passage in peace times only by the curtaining of the portholes at night. Even this precaution was discontinued when the vessel was within a day or two of the Newfoundland coast.

WANT FIRE PROTECTION
Annexed District Residents Claim City Has Not Given Them Square Deal.

Residents of the annexed district of East London are preparing a petition, to be presented to the council shortly, asking for better fire protection and for the reconstruction of a number of the roads.

Saturday night's fire on Bridges street, in the residents east of Eglinton street, that they sadly lacked fire protection. The fire brigade had to lay hose from Eglinton street, 2,100 feet away, before they could get water on the blaze. The fire in that part of the city was in such shape that some of the fire apparatus became mired in the sand and was useless.

A prominent East End citizen stated today that the citizens would ask the council that action be taken as soon as possible.

MIRROR BROKEN IN MIX-UP.—In the course of an alleged mix-up in a large plate-glass mirror was broken. The names of the two young men, whom the waiter claimed were responsible for the damage, were taken by the restaurant, and a charge against them will probably be laid by the restaurant.

Mr. Mitchell is expected to be around in a few days.

BIG OPENING DANCE.—The Palace Academy was closed Monday evening, when Messrs. Day and McLaughlin gave their opening dance of the season. Over 400 guests were present and all enjoyed a splendid program. The floor was in excellent condition and the academy orchestra rendered a fine selection of popular airs. The next dance will be held next Monday, Thanksgiving night.

COAT AWITS OWNER.—There is a serviceable coat waiting at police headquarters for someone to claim. When James McCarthy was arrested last night he was wearing the garment, which, police say, they have every reason to believe is not his. The coat is a brownish mixture of wool and of the heavy utility type. No definite charge can be laid against McCarthy until an owner for the coat is found.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MEETING.—The board of education meets this afternoon to take up department details and hear reports of committees that have been looking after playgrounds and the city and after the completion of the work of remodeling the Collegiate School construction work is being rapidly completed, and progress on the two new schools, Boyle Memorial and Tecumseh, is proceeding satisfactorily.

PLANNING FOR INITIATION.—Plans are already being made for the time-honored initiation of freshmen at the Western University Medical College. This year the freshman class is almost double the sophomore class in numbers, and a live resistance on the part of the "freshies" is to be expected.

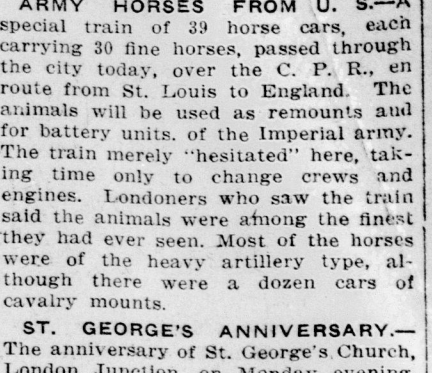

Arrangements for the university field day of athletic sports are not yet under way, but the big annual event is being discussed by the students.

WORKING ON INCENDIARY FIRE CASE.—The police learned today that a young man answering the description of those seen running away from the Lockhurst property on Bridges street Saturday evening a few minutes before the fire was discovered were sent to board an east bound freight train by Grand Trunk yardmen. So far no arrests have been made, but the police are working on the case which may result in the arrest of some East End youths who are said to have threatened Lockhurst with trouble.

MACHINE GUN FOR BATTERY.—There is a Maxim machine gun at the barracks in perfect good condition, according to a statement at militia headquarters today, and it is said the Sixth Field Battery would like to use it. Permission will probably be given to the battery for this purpose. A machine gun will be issued to the Seventh Regiment for some time, as all available guns of this type, exceeding a dozen in number, are being hurried to the front.

Victoria Hospital With Broken Collarbone.

Mrs. Andrew Gray, of Alvinston, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident near Lambeth, Saturday evening, was reported at Victoria Hospital today to be in a very critical condition.

Mrs. Gray, with her husband and two sons, was motoring along the Longwood Road when in some way the car became unmanageable, running into the ditch. Mrs. Gray had her collarbone broken, and suffered a number of other injuries about the head and shoulders. The others were badly shaken up, but suffered no serious injuries.

Dr. Rice, of Delaware, was summoned to secure another car, brought Mrs. Gray to Victoria Hospital, where she received medical attention.

WAITING FOR LUMBER
City Engineer Says This Is the Reason for Dangerous Bridge Floors.

The jokester who said "water is the stuff they put under bridges," evidently never lived near some of London's bridges, where the residents are wondering what it is the city puts over the bridges.

City Engineer Ashplant said today that he had been waiting three months for the city to take advantage of the short cut to fix up the Ridout street bridge. A new sidewalk on the north side of York street bridge will be laid as soon as will be in charge of the project. The Victoria and Oxford street bridges will also receive a new flooring this year; the flooring of these two bridges is in the dangerous state of disrepair. Other bridges needing repairs will have to wait until next year.

The Wharncliffe road bridge was opened to pedestrians this morning, and a large plate-glass mirror was broken. General traffic will have access to the bridge in a few more days.

STRAY MEXICAN BULLET WOUNDS U. S. PRIVATE

[Canadian Press.]
Washington, Oct. 6.—Brigadier-General Bliss, commander of the American troops on the Mexican border, expressed the opinion in a dispatch today that Gov. Maytorena's assault on Gen. Benjamin Hill, the Carranza leader in Sonora, would not occur within a week, though Maytorena's forces are east, south and west of the border.

Bliss added that Col. Guilfoyle, the United States commander opposite Naco, has the situation well in hand, and that warning has been given to the Mexican factions not to endanger American life and property by their fire. He confirmed reports of the wounding of a private of the Tenth Cavalry by a stray Mexican bullet last Sunday, but said the soldier was not seriously injured.

NO CONFIRMATION OF VON MOLTKE REMOVAL
[Special to The Advertiser.]

London, Oct. 6.—No confirmation has come from any German source of the reported removal by Emperor William of Gen. Von Moltke from the post of chief of the German general staff, and his succession by Major-General Von Voigts-Rhetz. This story was received in London last Saturday, according to Gen. Von Voigts-Rhetz, according to an official announcement from Berlin last Saturday, was recently appointed quartermaster-general of the German army in place of Gen. Von Stein, who had been given command of an army corps.

NEUTRALITY FAVORED.
[Canadian Press.]

Washington, Oct. 6.—Portugal's course in regard to the war will in no way affect Spanish neutrality, according to statements made today at the Spanish embassy here. A popular canvass made throughout Spain by one of the leading newspapers, it was said, had shown that practically the entire country favored neutrality.

GERMAN CULTURE.
IN the last reported speech of the German Emperor, made a few days ago, he encourages his people with the assurance that German culture must be successful. We hear a great deal about this culture. Even English-speaking papers frequently refer to it, and wonder how a people so highly cultured could be rushed into such a brutal war, and could be guilty of such atrocities as have marked the course of the German army. This is nothing, however, to the language used by German professors, scholars and apologists. We just sometimes about the calm self-conceit of the Englishman, and the spread-eagles of the American. But for monumental egotism the German professor surpasses everybody. Germany, he tells us, is not only the most cultured nation, but it is the sole defender of culture against the barbarism of Russia, the commercialism of England, and the frivolous immorality of France. Should Germany be defeated civilization would receive such a reverse that it would take generations for humanity to recover the lost ground.

"Culture" is a word which in its widest meaning embraces all the elements of the highest civilization, the development of intellect, morals, ethics, religion. What reason have we for considering the German people our superiors in culture? In science, both theoretical and applied, they are not the equals, much less the superiors of their French and English colleagues; in the arts they are excelled by the people of other nations in every department except that of music. In the inventive faculty they are not equal to the Americans or the English. Their religion is the result of a dull and formal theology. In general literature they have no names of world-wide renown, as have the English, the French, the Americans, or the Russians. In biology and sanitation, even Japan is superior.

The educational system of Germany is eminently practical, and deserves special praise for the thoroughness with which it accomplishes its purpose. Though how far a system which seeks rather to impart knowledge than stimulate intellect, which ties up a people to implicit obedience to the man in uniform, whether civil or military; how far such a system is conducive to the highest degree of culture may be a question. In morals, the German, in his individual capacity, is the equal of any. He is domestic, peace-loving, and kind; though in manners he is certainly not any better than his neighbors. But when he ceases to be an individual, and becomes part of a military machine, he knows nothing of either morals or manners. The machine to which he belongs is conscienceless, heartless, without pity or remorse, without honor, without truth, and without scruple, with the only redeeming quality that it may be without fear.

The fact is that the military system of Germany has neutralized all that is good in the German character and has dwarfed its capabilities for advancement among the leaders of civilization. To German scholars and scientists the world owes much; though not more than it owes to those of other nations. If the intellectual and moral powers of any one nation were to be destroyed, humanity could better spare that of Germany than that of England, or France, or the United States. Posing as the apostle and guardian of culture is but the exhibition of a selfish egotism that is inconsistent with the highest civilization, and incompatible with true culture. The defeat of Germany will do no injury to humanity; it will not retard, but advance, civilization and culture if it destroys the militarism that beclouds the intellect, lowers all moral and ethical standards, debases human nature, exalts force over conscience, and matter over mind; tends inevitably to retrogression rather than to progress. For the time being the war we hear about German culture the better.

NO PEACE FOR MILITARISM.
ONE of the ministers in this city declared impressively on Sunday night that one delusion, at least, has been dispelled by the war, the idea that peace can be secured by armaments. The rivalry in armaments, always for the sake of peace, of course, has brought about the most awful war of history.

The fact is that the people of continental countries had come to about the last gasp in hearing the burden of armed peace. In Germany a levy on capital had been made. In Austria, even financiers were hoping that war would come, if only to put an end to the ruinous rumors of war.

The constant pay, pay, pay, may have half-maddened both governments and people, to the point where a jump over the precipice into Armageddon seemed at least a way out, however desperate. Could anything be worse than the armed peace? Might not victory in the war bring the German people to an unchallenged sway over a disarmed world that armaments would be less "necessary" or at any rate paid for by the vanquished?

When blooded by unexpected obstacles in their path to sudden success, the German officials and soldiers resorted to the most ruthless methods of winning the war. Expecting either triumph or annihilation, they have set at naught the ordinary rules of humanity. The only peace they head for is that of continued armaments, which are little better than war, or that of destruction and death. As was said of the ancient Romans, they make desolation and call it peace. But even if they could win, the military machine by which they would try to browbeat the whole world, even though maintained by tribute, would never make a peace that they could enjoy. Downtrodden peoples may groan, but the tyrant is the one that never can have peace or repose, no matter how heavy a club he may wield. Uneasy lies the head that wears a spiked helmet and earns the hatred of the world.

But with the victory of the allies, we must hope to see an end to these "peace-making" armaments. They should be replaced by an international police, to which all the leading nations may contribute their quota. Not rival armaments, but a concert of the powers maintaining merely a world general disarmament, must secure our peace, and safeguard the world from such another catastrophe in the future.

A COLONIAL NAVY.
But Australia is tending no hand in the North Sea. She is not relieving the strain at the vital point—A Conservative paper.

Perhaps Australia is "not relieving the strain in the North Sea," for we believe the home navy quite capable of taking care of any "strain," but if the newspaper making the statement will cable the admiralty it will discover that Australia's Dreadnought, manned and maintained by Australia, has been in the North Sea, or the adjacent waters, since the outbreak of hostilities.

Regarding non-political remarks regarding the Australian navy, having been the cause of the above quotation, it may be well to reassert that Australia has done great work in her own side of the world with her cruisers, which are also manned and maintained by Australia. Only by means of the Australian cruisers were several British flags put up in place of German flags; for instance, Samoa and the Bismarck Archipelago. In the taking of the latter place the New Zealanders also had a hand.

Our contemporary has misgivings as to the ability of our two-power standard North Sea fleet to handle the situation. Well, without the Australian navy it would have to diminish its numbers and send more cruisers to the South Seas, and it would have more North Sea strength today if others had carried out the same program of Australia. Australia has not had to have its shores guarded by the units that would strengthen the North Sea fleet. This country would have been able to render greater aid than Australia had not a program that was well under way being kicked into oblivion in the game of political football.

THE TRUE VIEWPOINT.
IT is often very difficult to get the true viewpoint in the ordinary affairs of life and to the extent that we fail in obtaining the true viewpoint is our judgment apt to be incorrect. If it is difficult in the ordinary affairs of life, how much more difficult is it in national and international affairs? The first requisite is to ascertain the facts.

Take questions of party politics and we find the average man sinking his individual judgment in that of his leader. Whatever stand the leader takes he follows. So it is in international affairs. When war was declared every German, according to law, reached either for his sword or rifle, and exchanged his civilian clothes for the uniform of the soldier. In Great Britain there is no law compelling it, but without asking why, at the call of the bugle hundreds of thousands volunteered to follow the flag.

Do any who are not within the inner circle know the facts? The remark was once made to a minister of the Government: "A man should be in parliament to understand public questions." The minister replied: "Unless he is a member of the Government he knows nothing about it." There is a large measure of truth in this statement, and with how much greater force it applies to international complications.

What then caused the war? What is the true viewpoint? That the assassination of the crown prince of Austria-Hungary really caused the war is very unlikely. The dark shadows of the war have been seen by many people for some years, and regarded by them as inevitable. Germany has been amassing a mighty army and endeavoring to build a navy in keeping with its army. Its object was to become the greatest power on sea and land. Great Britain was as great as any other two nations on the sea and on land her possessions are to be found in every quarter of the globe. The navy was necessary to her life. Great Britain could not be sure of her possessions if she became a second-rate power on the sea. So long as her relative strength was maintained Great Britain was willing to call a halt in shipbuilding for the navy, but Germany would not. Germany had a right to refuse or comply and Great Britain had a right to keep on building two to Germany's one.

The cause first given for the war was soon lost sight of. Germany's ambitions needed, ports and ocean fronts and to attain these Germany trampled on all laws human and divine in Belgium. So long as Alsace and Lorraine remained part of Germany by force France and Germany would remain enemies. There was an old, deep-rooted wrong in France's mind to be avenged. It was not difficult to again start a war in which they could fight their battles over again. Here, too, England joins the allies. England had agreed to protect the neutrality of Belgium. The strange part of it is that the course taken through Belgium by Germany appears to have been known by all the other countries. Added to this is the claim that England was the country Germany really wished to destroy. Germany therefore puts the Austrians against the Serbians, which causes Russia to take the field, calls up its old quarrel with France and to save time makes war on Belgium because it is in the way. And yet its heart's greatest desire was none of these but Great Britain. It did not intend to strike the other nations with Great Britain thrown in. It thought Great Britain had its hands full. Neither did it count on the attitude since taken by Italy. It felt equal to Russia and France with Austria and Italy as its allies, and after humiliating these countries England would stand alone. Germany's plans failed. Great Britain stood with Belgium, and its first act was to seal up the German navy. The operations on land were on a scale never before known. Germany finds its army not invincible. It cannot achieve impossibilities. Its navy is unequal to the British. Time and England's money will wear down any strength Germany has. The allies will ultimately win.

There remains one consideration. Why did Germany desire the destruction of Great Britain? It was not that the peoples disliked each other. They did not. It was because Great Britain had the power at sea Germany wanted to have. It stood in the way of the ambitions of the war lords. The peoples of themselves would never have gone to war. The system of militarism is directly responsible for the war. The Kaiser is steeped in that system and he and it must go.

GERMAN MORALS.
GERMANY is a country on the make. Her publicists, professors, and low-bred press have for years preached that the moral code of the world is the code established by nations who have made their pile, so to speak, in the interest of those who have, against those who want more; that this code, therefore, may and should be violated by Germany if she is to reach her destiny. Tear up contracts, therefore, be ruthless, put everything after "military necessity."

But now that such tactics have stirred up a combination against the wolf, he raises a whine, and puts on a theological gown, to say that he suffers for his virtue. He poses as a paragon of those very virtues of moral order, decency and convention which his professors have been pooh-poohing to wars. The thing looks pretty hollow.

THE CAUSE OF THE WAR.
WE have placed the blame on the Kaiser and, behind him, on militarism. He stands for the maintenance of that crime against humanity. It may not be wasted time to look further back. A quarter of a century ago Germany would not have caused this war. Since then it has been constant preparation for "the day." And war? Germany has been growing in population and has become a manufacturing centre. A large business was carried on between Germany and America, including Canada, and that business was constantly increasing. The best of feeling existed between these countries, and when we heard the rumblings of possible war we were slow to believe it even possible. The German, as we know him, was not a military man. Merchants who regularly visited Germany to purchase their wares felt they obtained full value for their money, one saying, "When I bought goods in Germany I have felt ashamed of the price I paid. I have been sorry that the poor people who made them, received so little for their goods."

The German nation wanted room to expand. The country was becoming overcrowded. To a greater or less degree every country in Europe was suffering for the same cause. In America we know little or nothing of it; in most parts of Canada less than nothing. The problem in Germany to find room for its people and their expansion is reversed in Canada. The problem here is to find people for the room. No people are more welcome in Canada than the Germans. In one generation they become Canadians.

The Japanese war with Russia was largely due to the fact that Japan was overcrowded. The Japanese wanted room to live. England, Ireland and Scotland are all overcrowded, and the same may be said of all European countries. Andrew Carnegie said that militarism rather than the Kaiser was the cause of the war, and there may be much truth in the qualification. Militarism must go to save humanity. The Kaiser as its representative and chief exponent must go too.

It is in times like these that we realize the blessing the discovery of America was to the whole world. There is still room for millions more, both in the United States and Canada. The descendants of all those who may come to this continent from Europe, in consequence of the war, will be glad that their fathers left the land of their birth and found a new home across the ocean. Millions live and die in all these lands without any chance to improve their condition in life. They live and die in poverty without ever having had a chance to escape it.

If the Kaiser has any defence it is that the increasing population of Germany made it necessary to obtain more room to live. This would not justify the murder of the Belgians but it is his only excuse. If the Kaiser knew North America or that part of it called the United States and Canada he would gladly send his people there to find new homes. He would join with Great Britain and the United States in an agreement to refer all matters in dispute to "Doctors strongly recommend apples!"—News Item.

When highly-placed and most important persons set fashions for the average man to follow. And doctors, wiser as the age progresses, refrain prescribing what we hate to swallow. The world assumes a brighter face. We do our work with better grace. And after all life does not seem so hollow.

The apple tho' has caused a lot of bother. Since Adam in his eagerness to grasp With secrets hidden from the ken of mortals Was weak enough to taste of wisdom's apple. Of course you know what happened then— The feast did not enlarge his ken. Or things at all—hence every church and chapel!

And Newton having seen a ripe one falling. Deduced the subtle law of gravitation. For which and ever since youth has been giving Him other names than those of approbation. So there again its value fails. Since ever and anon it calls Forth feelings much akin to aggravation!

Before his day how'er playful Eris Flung out the golden apple of contention Among Minerva, Venus and fair Juno. And promised her who got it long retention Of youthful looks, but here again Results, of course, were very plain— Much hate and other ills I need not mention.

In spite of all the wrangling and the havoc This luscious fruit has wrought, still I think rippin' Are prospects from the doctors' point hygienic And fashion's too—no I shall go on scrippin' The trees within the orchard here. Until each one of fruit is clear. And every morning wolf a juicy pippin!

HEARST AS PREMIER

Comments of Toronto Press

[Toronto World, Conservative.]
"This is a great day for the Liberal party in Ontario. The Conservatives . . . have deliberately thrown away their advantage, disgusted their members . . . by submitting to the dictation of outside agencies and failing to insist upon a caucus for the choice of a new leader."

"Ottawa sent down word what it wanted and the thing was put through in approved Kaiser fashion. This overthrow of popular Government methods, this infringement of the rights of the members of the Legislature, this sweeping aside of all the honorable principles of Government, for which Sir James Whitney established a tradition in the province, can only mean the decadence and ultimate break-up of the Conservative party."

"There are more than rumors that Mr. Cochrane wishes to have Ontario Government business harmonize with the designs of the Ottawa Government. It is stated that he intends to find a putty man who can be moulded to the wishes of the Federal Government."

[Toronto Telegram, Conservative.]
"If it were given to the people of Ontario to choose Sir James Whitney's successor, there is no doubt, whatever that they would declare by an overwhelming majority in favor of Sir Adam Beck."

"Whether Hon. Frank Cochrane is busy himself here as Czar, or only a courier from the Czar, his gratuitous advice should not be allowed to count in favor of one candidate or against another. Surely the members of the Ontario Legislature are big enough to preserve their autonomy and resist meddling from Ottawa. Particularly is Hon. Frank Cochrane not the man to act as a king-maker in this province."

"If Cochrane had his way, the Conservative Government in Ontario would be a hindrance to a help to the hydro-electric policy."

"Unless the Conservative party wishes to throw away all the advantages of an era of public service, it will not tolerate hold-at-corner methods, but will demand as its new leader a man in arbitration and by so doing confer a blessing on all mankind. Instead he has to take the blame for the most ferocious and deadly war in the whole history of the world."

If the rulers of the world could see the poor people of all nations as Lloyd George, Asquith and other British rulers do, as President Wilson, ex-President Taft and other American rulers do, and felt the honest need to help them there would be no more war. The brotherhood of man would be a realized fact.

EDITORIAL NOTES.
When the censorship does loosen up, it will have a smasher in the way of news.

Apparently the new Premier of Ontario has been well re-heard by Mr. Cochrane.

Sam, the world regards you as a wonder, says the Toronto World. And Sam regards the world as his oyster.

Australia's cruisers have been so effective that she has been able to loan her great Dreadnought to the Motherland.

If, as the Hamilton Herald ventures, it will be Rhine and not the Alane the Canadian will contest, it means bloodier war than has been done.

whose hands the future of Sir Adam Beck's work will be absolutely safe."

[Toronto News, Conservative.]
"Sir James Whitney always regarded the Conservative party of Ontario as part of a national organization. . . . Indeed, the 'Whitney tradition' sanctions and requires intimate association with Mr. Borden and his colleagues."

[Toronto Globe.]
"That interference (from Ottawa) is not from Sir Robert Borden. It is Hon. Frank Cochrane in Ontario, as it is Hon. Robert Rogers in Manitoba. In both cases it is for the lowest ends of organized machine politics. Under such domination from Ottawa, Sir Adam Beck knows what to expect. . . . In a Hearst Government under the Cochrane domination the Beck policy has been aroused at the thought of a world war, the event has more than justified expectation. We were too confident that this thing could never be, and yet it has come, and now we stand aside and watch the orgy of blood. We argue and quarrel and lay the blame now on this and again on that. We sentimentalize and we scold, and yet, we a nation of 100,000,000 are helpless to stay the hands that slay so many lives as unconcernedly as though they were dealing in scrap. It seems to me gruesome to think that this thing can continue day for day with all the devilish ingenuity of the developed modern mind and that it threatens to bridge the weary months with its millions of losses in lives and money."

Sunday has been set aside by proclamation of the President of the United States as a day of prayer and supplication, to petition Almighty God to "restore once more that concord among men and nations, without which there can be neither happiness nor true friendship, nor any wholesome fruit of toil or thought in the world."

Whatever the feelings of horror that were aroused at the thought of a world war, the event has more than justified expectation. We were too confident that this thing could never be, and yet it has come, and now we stand aside and watch the orgy of blood. We argue and quarrel and lay the blame now on this and again on that. We sentimentalize and we scold, and yet, we a nation of 100,000,000 are helpless to stay the hands that slay so many lives as unconcernedly as though they were dealing in scrap. It seems to me gruesome to think that this thing can continue day for day with all the devilish ingenuity of the developed modern mind and that it threatens to bridge the weary months with its millions of losses in lives and money."

Often I am so oppressed with the horror of it all, so utterly tired of stories of barbarity, atrocity, cruelty and death, that I shudder when I take up the morning paper. War places a heavy hand upon the heart—a heavy weight upon the mind. We can but pray that in some miraculous manner peace will come, and that with the passing of the blood-red harvest moon we can go back to our everyday toil without the spirit of great calamity hanging over our heads. It was, indeed, a whimsical fate that reserved this greatest of all wars for our twentieth century.

Women Pay Greatest Price.
If our prayers for peace are heard, a great burden will be lifted from the women in Europe. After all, they pay the greatest price. We men sacrifice so recklessly the life they create with so much loving care and desperate suffering for each soldier who bleeds his life away prematurely, some woman has gone down into the valley of death, to give him that life from which humanity has received so little return. The human body has been reared at a cost of suffering, expense and experience. It is an investment of civilization resting on years of development. It embodies the results of centuries of knowledge and the maddest spendthrift squanders his patrimony. It is difficult for a man whose point of view is towards the waste from the point of view of a woman.

Says Olive Schreiner in The Century: "There is, perhaps, no woman, whether she have borne children or be merely potentially a child-bearer, who could look down upon a battlefield covered with slain, but the thought would arise in her: 'So many mothers' sons! So many young bodies brought into the world to lie there! So many months of weariness and pain while bones and muscles were shaped within! So many hours of anguish and struggle, but no death might be! So many baby mouths drawing life at women's breasts—all this, that men might lie with glazed eyeballs and swollen faces and fixed, blue, unclosed mouths.' This, that an acre might be manured with human flesh, that next year's grass, or poppies, or karoo bushes may spring up greater and redder, where they have lain, or that the sand of a plain may have a glint of white bones. And we cry, 'without an inextinguishable cause, this must not be.' No woman who is a woman says of a human body, 'it's nothing.'"

Women Would End War.
I confess to a belief that woman should have a direct voice in the control of affairs. The producer should have a say in the thing he or she produces. Woman produces human life and war destroys it. If woman had a larger voice in the counsel of nations there would be no shillabhoob, no war slogan, no dream of necessity of empire which could lead her into the sacrifice of that life of which she, and she alone, knows the real cost. We need not urge women to pray for peace. Their souls cry out in anguish at the thought of war. It is rather to us men that the proclamation of our President is issued. This war arouses in us such great emotions that we are inclined to overlook the voice of humanity. So in a spirit of meekness let us pray not only for peace, but also to this end that He forgive us our sins, our ignorance of His holy will, our selfishness and many errors, and lead us in the paths of obedience to places of vision and to thoughts and counsels that purge and make wise."

RENEWED VIGOR IN OLD AGE
This Letter Brings a Message of Cheer to the Aged—Results of Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

New, rich blood is what is most needed in the declining years to keep up energy and vitality. That Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a wonderful help in maintaining good health and prolonging life is attested by the writer of this letter.

Mr. Stephen J. Leard, North Tryon, N.C., writes: "At seventy-five years of age my heart gave out and became very irregular and weak in action and would palpitate. My nerves also became weak, and I could do nothing but lie in bed in a languishing condition, losing strength and weight. In that condition I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and am cured. Had I not obtained this treatment I would now be in the box with the roof over my nose. At eighty-one I have an energy which means go, and I am writing this letter so that old people like myself may prolong their health and strength by using this great medicine." 50c a box, 6 for $2.50. For sale by all dealers.

[Toronto News, Conservative.]
"Sir James Whitney always regarded the Conservative party of Ontario as part of a national organization. . . . Indeed, the 'Whitney tradition' sanctions and requires intimate association with Mr. Borden and his colleagues."

[Toronto Globe.]
"That interference (from Ottawa) is not from Sir Robert Borden. It is Hon. Frank Cochrane in Ontario, as it is Hon. Robert Rogers in Manitoba. In both cases it is for the lowest ends of organized machine politics. Under such domination from Ottawa, Sir Adam Beck knows what to expect. . . . In a Hearst Government under the Cochrane domination the Beck policy has been aroused at the thought of a world war, the event has more than justified expectation. We were too confident that this thing could never be, and yet it has come, and now we stand aside and watch the orgy of blood. We argue and quarrel and lay the blame now on this and again on that. We sentimentalize and we scold, and yet, we a nation of 100,000,000 are helpless to stay the hands that slay so many lives as unconcernedly as though they were dealing in scrap. It seems to me gruesome to think that this thing can continue day for day with all the devilish ingenuity of the developed modern mind and that it threatens to bridge the weary months with its millions of losses in lives and money."

Sunday has been set aside by proclamation of the President of the United States as a day of prayer and supplication, to petition Almighty God to "restore once more that concord among men and nations, without which there can be neither happiness nor true friendship, nor any wholesome fruit of toil or thought in the world."

Whatever the feelings of horror that were aroused at the thought of a world war, the event has more than justified expectation. We were too confident that this thing could never be, and yet it has come, and now we stand aside and watch the orgy of blood. We argue and quarrel and lay the blame now on this and again on that. We sentimentalize and we scold, and yet, we a nation of 100,000,000 are helpless to stay the hands that slay so many lives as unconcernedly as though they were dealing in scrap. It seems to me gruesome to think that this thing can continue day for day with all the devilish ingenuity of the developed modern mind and that it threatens to bridge the weary months with its millions of losses in lives and money."

Often I am so oppressed with the horror of it all, so utterly tired of stories of barbarity, atrocity, cruelty and death, that I shudder when I take up the morning paper. War places a heavy hand upon the heart—a heavy weight upon the mind. We can but pray that in some miraculous manner peace will come, and that with the passing of the blood-red harvest moon we can go back to our everyday toil without the spirit of great calamity hanging over our heads. It was, indeed, a whimsical fate that reserved this greatest of all wars for our twentieth century.

Women Pay Greatest Price.
If our prayers for peace are heard, a great burden will be lifted from the women in Europe. After all, they pay the greatest price. We men sacrifice so recklessly the life they create with so much loving care and desperate suffering for each soldier who bleeds his life away prematurely, some woman has gone down into the valley of death, to give him that life from which humanity has received so little return. The human body has been reared at a cost of suffering, expense and experience. It is an investment of civilization resting on years of development. It embodies the results of centuries of knowledge and the maddest spendthrift squanders his patrimony. It is difficult for a man whose point of view is towards the waste from the point of view of a woman.

Says Olive Schreiner in The Century: "There is, perhaps, no woman, whether she have borne children or be merely potentially a child-bearer, who could look down upon a battlefield covered with slain, but the thought would arise in her: 'So many mothers' sons! So many young bodies brought into the world to lie there! So many months of weariness and pain while bones and muscles were shaped within! So many hours of anguish and struggle, but no death might be! So many baby mouths drawing life at women's breasts—all this, that men might lie with glazed eyeballs and swollen faces and fixed, blue, unclosed mouths.' This, that an acre might be manured with human flesh, that next year's grass, or poppies, or karoo bushes may spring up greater and redder, where they have lain, or that the sand of a plain may have a glint of white bones. And we cry, 'without an inextinguishable cause, this must not be.' No woman who is a woman says of a human body, 'it's nothing.'"

Women Would End War.
I confess to a belief that woman should have a direct voice in the control of affairs. The producer should have a say in the thing he or she produces. Woman produces human life and war destroys it. If woman had a larger voice in the counsel of nations there would be no shillabhoob, no war slogan, no dream of necessity of empire which could lead her into the sacrifice of that life of which she, and she alone, knows the real cost. We need not urge women to pray for peace. Their souls cry out in anguish at the thought of war. It is rather to us men that the proclamation of our President is issued. This war arouses in us such great emotions that we are inclined to overlook the voice of humanity. So in a spirit of meekness let us pray not only for peace, but also to this end that He forgive us our sins, our ignorance of His holy will, our selfishness and many errors, and lead us in the paths of obedience to places of vision and to thoughts and counsels that purge and make wise."

Keep the Kiddies Well Dressed on Small Allowance.

[BY CAROLINE COE.]

Children must go to school, even though half the world is at war, and they must be neatly dressed, even though "mother's" allowance is cut down and the buying power of money greatly reduced.

Under these circumstances "mother" very wisely looks over the clothes left from last year to see if there isn't something that can be remodeled into pinafore, waists or little skirts for the children's school wear.

It is very easy to make a little Oliver Twist costume out of old material. The top of an old navy blue skirt that is ragged about the bottom can be made to do duty for the skirt, and the simple, little, white or gingham waists can easily be fashioned from old blouse waists.

The "style" of these dresses is in the short, double-breasted waist to the skirt. The skirt is buttoned.

The children were dressed in this fashion in the time that Dickens wrote his immortal stories. Consequently they are dubbed Oliver Twist.

THE PINAFORE.

These little dresses may be made from "big sisters" discarded gowns. They are made in a kind of pinafore style, with a long waist belted about the hips. They are made with very large sleeve holes and a deep point in front and back. This is worn over a white gimp which allows the wearing out of all the half-worn shirt waists.

An old black serge skirt with a white blouse and bright red tie would make "Little Miss" eight-year-old look as though she had a new dress straight from the best child's dressmaker in town.

USING OLD MATERIALS.

Two half-worn wash dresses may be made into one pretty, little frock for a schoolgirl by combining part of an old gingham gown with another of white. The illustration shows the quilt way in which the gingham is used.

This way also makes the dress keep clean longer.

Letters to Canadian Women in War Time
The Patriotic Woman's Best Giving Is Employment.

Let us figure out how much work we have to give this winter. Remember that the giving of employment is twice blessed. It furnishes work and money, and it does not harm the person who accepts it. Can you afford to pay someone to do your mending? This is a better way of giving than giving ten cents or a quarter to someone who asks at your door. Can you afford to employ a needlewoman? Those who have been enjoying women to sew in their houses should continue to employ them. It was not an extravagance, but an economy, in peace. You can depend on it that the woman who sews in your house will do good, economical work for you today. It is understood by every worker this year that last year's dresses will be remodelled, and that last winter's hats will be mended over. Remember, that to everyone you owe a duty to keep them still employed, if possible.

A word with regard to the firms where you have given your custom. One would particularly ask thoughtfulness on the part of women customers to the businesses which are managed by women, where only women are employed, and whose customers are women only. One would advise conferences between the woman manager and the business customers. "Are you going to be able to keep all your girls busy?" "Yes, if my customers continue to give me their custom as in past years." "Of course, none of us can afford extravagance this year. I myself had not intended to get anything new. What I have will do." "But, madam, if all my customers are like you, my girls can have no work."

The good business-woman will meet her customers part way. A milliner of very good standing told the whole story when she says that she has had to make less expensive hats this year. She knew that her customers would not buy at last year's prices. She told her girl-employees that they would have to be prepared to spend a great deal of their time in rettriming. This is a good example of the patriotic Canadian woman.

First, help to establish the labor bureau. Then, remember to help supply the labor bureau with work. Send in yourself your own name, who need mending or sewing, sweeping or washing, extra cleaning, someone to come in to mind the hall and telephone on your maid's day out, someone to come in and look after the children, a couple of evenings a week. It does not take a clever, capable, house-manager long to think of work which needs to be done. If you can afford it, and almost everyone can afford to help, pay a woman who needs employment to do some extra work for you.

The Canadian woman has a genius for organization, and this is a time when organization tells. Whatever gathering of women you belong to, see that they also send in their names to the labor bureau, promising so many hours of work a week, or once in two weeks or once a month. Now is the time to show what your organization is worth. Help to organize the women of your church to give work to those who need employment. If you and your friends belong to a bridge club, canvass them for work. Turn your prizes into money for charity if you like. The best charity is the domestic work that you can give to some woman who has to work for bread.

All we need in Canada is for patriotic women to give their hearts to this employment question. This is such an easy country to live in, so rich, so free, so happy, so full of work and chances, so remote from devastating cannon, that all we need to do is for each woman to see that she does something towards helping others, and the difficulties of this time will be ended as far as employment goes. Then, the best charity is the domestic work that you can give to some woman who has to work for bread.

Head of the Table.

Dear Miss Grey: Having read with interest your column for some time, I have at last ventured a few inquiries, the answers of which have puzzled me: Which is the head of the table, the place where the meat is placed, or where the tea is served?

2. Where might articles of clothing be sent to be distributed amongst the poor of the city?

3. What will take paint off glass?

4. What do you think of my writing?

5. Hoping to see the answers soon, I am yours truly, BESSY.

Ans. 1. Where the host sits is termed the "head" of the table.

2. The Salvation Army barracks on Clarence street, or the City Mission, Richmond street, near King.

3. Dissolve common washing soda in hot water, and apply it with a brush, let soak a while, repeating if necessary, then wash with clear water.

4. It is passably good.

A Lover's Quarrel.

Dear Miss Grey.—Here I am again to trouble you.

1. I was to have been married and my friend died. Since then I have gone with another young man. Last spring he asked me to be his wife but he has never given me a ring yet. He lives some distance and the last time he was to see me he asked me to stop wearing my other engagement ring and I refused to do so and then he said he would never get me one unless I did. Am I right or wrong? He has forbidden me going with anyone else and if he gives me up for that can I sue him for breach of promise. Do you think he loves me?

2. If wetting the hair at night and then braiding to make it crimp next day is it harmful?

3. What do you think of my writing? Wishing you every success, I am, TRIXITY ANN.

Ans.—1. Don't you think the trouble is a little bit of temper on both sides? and somehow, I must confess, my may be a trifle narrow-minded for him to wish you to give up wearing the other man's ring, yet it is only natural to put aside all tokens of your former engagement. The average man, with his inborn, masculine conceit (of which he is proud), would certainly deem the sensible thing to do as he wishes. If you care for him as a prospective wife should, you will not desire to "keep company" with any one else. Then you will not be anxious that he within his breast which causes him to "forbid" anything. Bless us, if you are starting out so uncomfortably now, with distrust and "forbiddings" I fear your future does not promise well. There should be nothing but blissing and cooing at this stage of the love game.

2. I do not think so.

3. It is good.

A Helpful Letter.

Dear Miss Grey.—This is the first time I have visited the mail box, but am an interested reader of the Woman's Column, as I find many helpful suggestions. I noticed "Morning Glory" asked for the recipe of corn salad, and some time ago one of the readers asked for the recipe of raspberry cake. As I did not see it printed I am sending both.

What do you think of my writing? Wishing your column every success, I remain, DEWDROP NO. 2.

IS NOW READY

From the conflicting, contradictory and necessarily inaccurate cables reports of battles, campaigns and grand strategy, the reader can turn with confidence to this picturesque narrative of the progress of war drawn from authorities which have stood the test of time and positive verification.

Colored Illustrations

The illustrations, both in color and in half-tone, are from photographs gathered from battlefields, besieged cities, ravaged provinces, blockaded ports, menaced forts and armed camps. They will exceed in number, in beauty and graphic portrayal of actual war scenes any collection of pictures ever gathered for such a work. Every part will contain magnificent color plates produced by the latest and most expensive processes—veritable works of art.

The running narrative of the war itself, the account of the military and naval operations by which the fighting nations of Europe undertake to balance their long accounts, are told with accuracy and impartiality, and in the lucid and entertaining style which the author has shown in his other successful historical writings.

How to Get It for One Cent a Day—Including Sundays

To show that you are a reader of this paper, present ONE coupon, with the extra fee, which barely covers the cost of production, including packing, express from factory, checking, clerk hire, and other NECESSARY EXPENSE items, amounting to only (each part) 15 cents.

ORDERS BY MAIL include THREE CENTS EXTRA for each part, to cover the cost of postage and mailing.

This complete story of the war now engaging all Europe and overflying into both Asia and Africa will be absolutely indispensable to all who wish to keep informed accurately of the facts of this historic and epoch-making conflict.

THE LOCAL MARKET

Today's market was a small one. There were very few housewives on hand, the grocers doing most of the buying. There was no change in the price of vegetables. Potatoes were firm at 10c to 12c a bag. The demand for hay is brisk once more. Today the price advanced 50c a ton, the top price now being $14.50. Oats have taken a slight drop again, selling at $1.40 to $1.50 per cwt. Live hogs are still on the toboggan. The prevailing price is now $8 per cwt. Very few are being offered on the London market at present, but as the prices in Toronto have slumped, the prices here have slumped accordingly. The demand for butchers' meats is poor. There is a fine supply. The prices, however, remain firm.

CITY WILL VOTE ON WARD SYSTEM

Also Abolition of Controllers Council Goes After the Short-Weight Bakers.

SIR ADAM GIVES FLAGPOLE

Deficit of Nearly $1,000 in Municipal Expenses of Annexed Territory.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.
Voted to submit to the voters the question of reverting to the old ward system of government and the abolition of the board of control.

Adopted a resolution asking Inspector J. W. McCallum to enforce the Ontario bread act compelling the bakers to sell 24-ounce loaves.

Accepted a gift of a 75-foot flag pole from Sir Adam Beck.

Passed local improvement bylaws totaling more than $13,000.

The council last night decided to get after the bakers who sell short-weight bread, and a resolution was adopted requesting Inspector Mc-Callum to enforce the Ontario bread act, which permits confiscation and fixes a penalty of $5 for loaves under 24 ounces.

R. Y. Stinchcombe, John M.
Parsons and William Hayman presented two petitions signed by nearly 1,300 residents, asking the council to submit to the voters the question of repealing the bylaw which created the board of control, and reverting to the old ward system of government.

The council was unanimously advised in both instances, although if the people vote for them it will not be until 1916 that they will become effective.

Fire Destroyed Petitions.

Mr. Parsons, speaking in support of the petitions, declared four other petitions were lost in the Masonic Temple fire, all of which was sufficient to show a sentiment among the voters for a return to the old system of government. He had received many telephone calls, he said, in the past few days, inquiring the petitions, and he believed the people ought to get the opportunity to vote again on both questions. It was said that the question was why there is on three times in the past five years.

Mr. Stinchcombe said: "A large number of people want to go back to the old system. I don't know any city that has the complicated government we have today. The best men don't want to serve in office any more. In the last election they had to go out in the highways and ways and drag in men to qualify for office. In the old days there was always a rivalry in the ward elections. All we ask is that you submit it to the people. The number of men who govern the city is half the number who govern the Provincial legislature. That is why there is so much see-sawing around."

Mr. Hayman said many more would have signed the petitions, but there was not time to circulate them.
Resolutions were offered by Ald.
Wilson to submit both questions to the people, and they were carried unanimously.

Board of Control Censured.

The board of control was again
censured for side-tracking communications addressed to the council. When Ald. McDonald called for a letter Mr. Parsons had written in which short-weight bread violations in the city were instanced. The letter had been referred to Inspector J.
W. McCallum.

Aldermen McDonald, Wilson, Tan-cock, Haney, Merryfield and Gwalchmai, the latter being himself a baker, were agreed that something should be done to enforce the Ontario act, which fixes the 24-ounce loaf as the standard weight. Mayor Graham and Controller Moore said it was practically impossible to enforce the law, while Ald. Gwalchmai said a 24-ounce loaf would have to sell for 7 cents. Mayor Graham said it was up to Inspector McCallum to do as he saw fit in the matter.

A resolution was finally adopted requesting Mr. McCallum to enforce the law.

Mr. Parsons said it was up to the city to drive out the short-weight bakers, and this could be done if the inspector would seize all the bread under weight and confiscate it. Replying to Ald. Gwalchmai, who said 7 cents would have to be charged, he said the people would take care of the price.

Ald. Wilson Offers Varnish.
Mayor Graham announced that Sir Adam Beck, in purchasing horses for the 75-foot pole which would make a suitable flag staff for the city, and he offered it as a gift. In accepting the pole, Ald. Wilson said he would furnish the material necessary to varnish it, and Ald. Tancock declared he would supply any iron needed to install it. Both offers were accepted.

The total municipal expenses in the annexed territory, as announced by the mayor, amounted to $12,230, compared to taxes of $16,263. The waterworks department, he said, spent $26,000 in the annexed districts.
The tender of McKay, McKay &
Webster for the construction of a bridge on St. and street, was accepted, being the lowest. The amount is $1,430. This is the second time tenders were called for. The tenders were opened during the afternoon by a joint committee of the board of control and county council.

Bylaws Passed.

The following local improvement
bylaws were passed:

cement walk on west Maitland street
from Cheapside street to Victoria
street; a cement walk on south Ar-
dara street from 334 feet east of

ASKING FOR $450 Playgrounds Committee Would Spend That On Improvements.

If recommendations which go to the board of education today and which were adopted yesterday by the playgrounds committee are approved every public school in London will have a skating rink and facilities for playing football, basketball and other outdoor sports.

A committee of the Mothers' Clubs consisting of Mrs. Irwin, Mrs. Harry White and Mrs. Joseph Johnston concurred in the report of the playgrounds committee after all the questions had been thoroughly discussed.

The committee asks for $450 so that the small as well as the large school can be equipped with a fair amount of apparatus for games. It is recommended to the board that play be under the supervision of the principal of each school without extra compensation.

Sprinkle a Little Po Theoline (procure-

AFRAID SHE WAS DYING

Suffered Terribly Until She Took "Fruit-a-lives."

St. Jean De Matha, Jan. 27, 1914.
"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been cured by 'Fruit-a-lives.' I suffered so much that I would not dare eat, for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago
I received samples of 'Fruit-a-lives.'
I did not wish to try them for I had little confidence in them, but, seeing my husband's anxiety, I decided to do so and at once I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was cured. While sick,
I lost several pounds, but after taking 'Fruit-a-lives,' I quickly regained what I had lost. Now I eat, sleep and dear well—in a word, I am completely cured, thanks to 'Fruit-a-lives.'"

LEGAL QUERIES

SUBSCRIBER—There are a number of dogs in our village that are allowed to run on the streets, and are in the habit of snapping and growling at people and sometimes biting. The case of a dog biting a person on the street—is the owner supposed to kill the dog, and who is responsible for the doctor's bill?
ANS.—No, unless ordered to do so by the proper authority; he is liable for the doctor's bill.
Is there any law to prevent dogs from running on the street? If so, who is the proper person to look after this matter?
ANS.—Usually municipalities have bylaw regulating this, and the police look after the matter.

TEA OR COFFEE Hurt You?

No need to get mad now, tear up the paper, or shout "nonsense, good tea or coffee never hurt anyone."
You know better than that,
for you can feel all around you folks who are the worse for their slugging.
Think over a few tea or coffee drinking friends and casually inquire if they are entirely and perfectly well. What is the answer?
If it hurts others isn't it just possible—?
Catch the drift, don't you?

It's a Poor Bargain

to swap health and a clear, businesslike head for a few cups of tea or coffee each day.

A Sure Personal Test

will locate the exact cause of your steady destruction of health, if that cause be tea or coffee. It's worth knowing the plain, sober fact before organic heart trouble or other disease sets in, which perhaps cannot be cured.

The test is pleasant, accurate and satisfying—

Quit both tea and coffee absolutely for ten days and in their place use POSTUM.

Postum now comes in two forms. Regular Postum must be boiled. Instant Postum—soluble form made in the cup instantly.
To authorize the construction of a
cement walk on west Maitland street
from Cheapside street to Victoria
street; a cement walk on south Ar-
dara street from 334 feet east of Ridout street to 311 feet east; a cement walk on north Ardara Place from 37 1/2 feet east of Ridout street to 223 feet east; a cement walk on north Rattle street from Adelaide street to Wolseley avenue; a cement walk on Victoria street from Richmond street to Wellington street; a cement walk on Wharfside road from the Ridgeway to the Wharfside road bridge; a cement walk on the Wharfside road bridge to the end of the existing walk; a cement walk on the east Wharfside road from the Wharfside road bridge to the Ridgeway; a cement walk on west Wharfside road bridge from Byron avenue to Cove road; to prohibit the use of traction engines on certain highways; to provide for a grant of $10,000 to the London and Grand Patriotic Fund Association.

You Have the Answer--

CARLING'S HEIGHTS CAPTURED BY NIGHT

Companies E, F and G, of Seventh, Rout H Company Defenders.

SIGNALLERS TAKE PART

Flash Messages to Headquarters in Seventh Regiment Manoeuvres.

Carling's Heights was captured last night.

Under cover of an inky darkness several hundred men in serviceable khaki uniforms slipped across the rolling high land, and taking the "enemy" by surprise, routed them, and took the field with colors flying.

The attacking force was under the command of Major Gordon Ingram and comprised Seventh Regiment Companies E, F, and G. The defenders of the heights were H Company, under Capt.
Andrews.

The enemy was stationed on the extreme north of the heights at Oxford street. Its position was ascertained by flashing signal lamps, their relayed flash messages from the outposts to "headquarters."

The attacking army commenced its operations from the bottom of the hill on the extreme southwest of the heights. To this point the unit advanced in company column. Then a halt was made and the signalers got busy.

Signalling Corps Assistants.
A corps of signalers, with the outposts, flashed the messages to a receiving station on the brow of the hill from where they were relayed to the "camp" in the hollow. Finally a message arrived that the enemy had been located on the extreme northeast.

Quick, sharp orders rang out, and
the regiments were detailed off in skirmish order. They advanced section by section, one at a time, taking advantage of every ridge and furrow on the
big field that offered the slightest covering to hide the advance.

To an observer on the hill, the scene was an intensely interesting one. Silhouetted against the sky-line, at intervals, black forms could be seen running forward fifty paces, then stopping to the ground, that seemed swallow them up. It was difficult at times to realize that several hundred men were manoeuvring on the heights.
Often not a man was visible.

Quick, sharp orders rang out, and
the regiments were detailed off in skirmish order. They advanced section by
section, one at a time, taking advantage of every ridge and furrow on the
big field that offered the slightest covering to hide the advance.

The work of the signal corps was warmly praised by officers after the manoeuvres had been completed. Only through their work the sections were kept together without a confusion of orders.

Plans Carry Well.
Major Ingram and his field staff at all times kept the sections in hand and no slip occurred to mar the advance.

The attacking army advanced in skirmish order, within a few hundred yards of the enemy when the order was given to charge. From over two hundred lusty throats rose a shout that could be heard for blocks, and many uninitiated citizens wondered if the tack was indeed on in earnest. The regiments marched to and forth from the heights, making the whole a stiff workout for one evening. Major Ingram was much pleased with the showing made by the troops.

The remainder of the Seventh paraded at the armories, and wound up with a route march to the armories, from where they accompanied the victors and vanquished back to the armories. Captain Brown was in charge of this division.

BLACKBIRD-AEROPLANES

Explanation of Those "Airsips" Seen in London.

East Londoners are getting up early these mornings to watch the migrations of thousands of blackbirds that seem to be congregating in this vicinity for their annual long flight to the south and warmer climes.

Old residents, who have noticed the birds gather before, say that there seem to be thousands more than usual this year. Every morning they circle about in large flocks, and the shape of their massed formation, together with the noise they make in flight, sounds much like an aeroplane. Some people believe this noise has been mistaken for an airship in the code of the evening
when the lights are low.

DRAGGED MINISTER FROM TRAIN WHEELS

Woman's Brave Act Saves Man Who Lay in a Fit.

[Canadian Press.]
NIAGARA FALLS, Oct. 5.—Mrs.
P. O. Rogers today saved the Rev.
Wm. Kirkpatrick, a returned Baptist minister, from death under the wheels of a Michigan Central passenger train.
The woman, seeing Mr. Kirkpatrick on the track in an epileptic fit, rushed home near the crossing and dragged him away just as the train passed. The engine struck the aged man a glancing blow, but he was not seriously injured.

Mr. Kirkpatrick is past 65 years of age.
