UPPER CANADA COLLEGE, 1891--.

Preface

This War Book is published under resolution of the Upper Canada College Old Boys' Association passed at a special meeting, held on Saturday, November 22, 1919. The publication has been made possible by the generosity of a group of "Old Boys", chief among whom is the President of the Association, who will be long remembered in the history of the College for his many generous benefactions.

The Editor records with gratitude his indebtedness to the past and the present Principal of the College; successive Editors of the Upper Canada College Times, who, from the outbreak of the war to its close, chronicled the records of both living and deceased "Old Boys" who were on active service; Mrs. Beaumont, Secretary to the Principals, who bestowed truly pious care upon the roll of service; Professor G. Oswald Smith, Registrar of University College and Editor of the Roll of Service of the University of Toronto; Major Greenwood, Staff Adjutant of the Royal Military College, Kingston; and Col. Clyde Caldwell ('87-'92), of the Militia Department, Ottawa, all of whom have been most kind in giving information; Miss Isabel Hunter and Miss Violet Graham, who in succession have worked cheerfully and patiently, transcribed records, and written many letters in order to ensure accuracy and fulness of detail; and to certain "Old Boys", notably Messrs. H.P. Biggar ('84-'90), E.P. Brown ('92-'97), and B. H. Miller ('10-'15).

Mr. Maurice R. Kingsford, B.A., Corresponding Secretary of the Association, has given most generous assistance with the proof-reading and otherwise with seeing the War Book through the press.

Some "Old Boys" displayed a remarkable reluctance to send records and photographs, which can easily be understood in active men not given to parading their own merits. Happily, however, for the history of the College, the lack has been made good by fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, wives, and sweethearts, to all of whom thanks are again expressed. Wherever photographs are lacking or records are meagre, inability to get into touch with the "Old Boys" in question or their own refusal or neglect is the explanation.

Unfortunately, in a very few instances photographs were sent in without names. They have had to be reproduced accordingly, identification having proved to be impossible. In other cases the photographs arrived too late to be placed in their proper position.

Certain photographs have been received while the War Book has been in the press. Credit for these belongs largely to Mr. Allan Moore and Mr. Poupore, of Printers Guild, Limited, and Grip, Limited, respectively. The latter company has made the engravings. The T. Eaton Company copied those photographs which had to be returned to the owners.

For permission to use copyrighted photographs thanks are due to Messrs Elliott and Fry, London, Messrs. Lambert Weston and Son, Limited, Folkestone, Messrs. Maull and Fox, Limited, London, Mr. Swaine, London, and Vandyk, London.

The firms just mentioned are the only ones known to the Editor as owning the copyright in photographs. Lest, through ignorance, there may be others, he subjoins the names of all the photographers, whose work is represented in the War Book.

THE PREPARATORY SCHOOL, 1901--.

Introduction

If, in his principalship of twenty years' duration, Mr. Cockburn had done nothing else but erect in the Hall of Upper Canada College the boards containing the names of boys who had in some way distinguished themselves, his régime would have been worth while. The life of a school consists in very truth of the deeds and the achievements of the "Old Boys" over and above the doings of those who are yet in training. In the performances and the successes likewise of Masters, past and present, the College is vitally interested, for they too increase the sum total of its history.

Later Principals have added to the memorials in the Hall and in other parts of the College, the latest being the beautiful brass tablet containing the names of the "Old Boys" who died in the recent war or as a direct result of it. For this magnificent gift the College is indebted to the munificence of the late Mrs. Sweny, who, in presenting it, made it known that she was fulfilling not only her own desire but that of her husband, the late Col. George A. Sweny, for many years a Governor and a warm friend of the College.

To set down for the present generation and for posterity the record of the exploits of "Old Boys" in the years 1914 - 1918, is the object of this book. Of this both the living and the dead are worthy, for they staked their all for home and country and Empire and King. Even the most inconspicuous, the most obscure, and the least successful member of any of the expeditionary forces deserves to be commemorated for his effort to rise above himself and his self-made limitations.

"How 'Lizzie' Kelly Died", which appeared in the Toronto Sunday World when the war was still in progress, might probably have been written of many an "Old Boy". A faded photograph of the College was found to have bodied forth to him love of home and country, of purity and truth, of fidelity to trust and untarnished honour.

The real "Lizzie" is happily alive. It is true, however, that in Africa, where he served in a civilian capacity before the war, he kept himself clean and decent and useful all because of the faded photograph and everything associated with it in his mind. In the war, if conjectures as to his identity, which the editor did not feel at liberty to disclose, are not at fault, he bore himself as a man ought to do; and he had his reward.

Decorations, distinctions, and honours in any walk of life are distributed by the hand of Fortuna. Sometimes her attention is distracted from highly meritorious persons and sometimes they are so numerous that she has not gifts enough to go round. The main thing, after all, is the effort put forth and the consciousness that a man has done his utmost and his best to attain the common good, the security of the community and the welfare of the individual.

If one were able to choose the form of his reward, the choice would fall on the Military Medal or the Distinguished Conduct Medal. They presuppose the lusty hardihood of youth, ability to endure hardships of any or every sort, lowliness of mind, and willingness to serve in any capacity rather than forgo a share in the great adventure. That there were many "Old Boys" who displayed these qualities, may well swell the pride of all, as suggested by Mr. Auden in his address to the boys in Hall. Those of them who subsequently obtained commissions made all the better officers, doubtless, because of their earlier experiences. Doubtless also, their weight of responsibility made them long at times for the comparative freedom from care enjoyed by the non-commissioned officer or the private, so well described by Mr. N. S. Macdonnell, in writing to "The College Times."

Did space permit, most interesting details could be given of the exploits on land and sea and in the air which entitle the fortunate possessors of medals, ribbons, and crosses to wear them. In this present volume only lists can be given. Even so, mention must be omitted of General Service Ribbons and the like, for it is fairly certain that all which ought to be recorded have not been reported to the Editor.

Literally, the "Old Boys" flocked from the ends of the earth to join the Army or the Navy. From Herschel Island came a Royal North-West Mounted Policeman, S. Z. T. Wood; and from some place farther north came an explorer, J. R. Cox, who first heard of the war a year after its beginning. From South America came at least one railway-builder, a graduate of the Royal Military College. From Bermuda and the West Indies; from China and the Straits' Settlement; from India and Ceylon; from various parts of Africa; and from Australia they came. From the United States of America, before and after they entered the war, went "Old Boys", both citizens of that country and those who still adhered to the British allegiance. From Spain, France, Italy, and Germany they hastened, leaving their studies or their commercial pursuits. From the Home Land too "Old Boys" went, whether they had their domicile there or were only studying at one of the universities or spending a summer's holiday. From practically every province of the Dominion and from every walk of life they went into the Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery, the Army Service Corps, the Army Medical Corps, the Machine Gun Corps, the Forestry Corps, the Railway Corps, Transport by water and land, the Intelligence Service, the Pay Office, Head Quarters in Ottawa, London, and France, and, six of them only, to the Chaplain Service.

Signalling, Wireless Telegraphy, Flying, and, in the last year of the war, the Tank Service naturally appealed strongly to the younger "Old Boys", as did the Motor Boat Patrol, Mine Sweeping, and the like. Then there were the sailors and the soldiers by profession, who, when the war broke out, were ready to do service wherever British troops and British ships were stationed.

In every quarter of the globe where fighting was going on "Old Boys" were present—the Baltic, the North Sea, the English Channel, the Atlantic, the Mediterranean, Lemnos, and other islands of the sea, Belgium, France, Italy, Bulgaria, Russia, Roumania, Serbia, Thrace, the Dardanelles, Syria, Mesopotamia, Palestine, Arabia, Egypt, and other parts of Africa, India, Persia, Afghanistan, China, and Siberia. Some were fortunate enough to be allowed to serve on more than one front; and some had the satisfaction of taking part in the final march to Mons and of entering Germany with the Army of Occupation. Others were present at the surrender of the German ships at Scapa Flow.

Who was the first "Old Boy" to join up, it has been practically impossible to determine. Perhaps it was G. G. Blackstock or A. R. Stanley Clarke or W. E. Phillips, all of whom did so in August, 1914, in England. The late Col. C. N. Shanly claimed to have received the first appointment in the original Canadian Expeditionary Force.

In the famous retreat from Mons at least three "Old Boys", H. R. Hayter, the late C. G. G. Mackenzie, and E. J. W. Spread, took part. The third was for a time supposed to have been killed; the second actually was so, being the first "Old Boy" to fall in the war. To his parents came a personal message of sympathy from His Majesty the King.

M. M. Eberts was the first Flying Officer of the American Forces to meet his death. He was buried at West Point, N.Y., where he received his military training. There and elsewhere, as noted in his record, his name is perpetuated.

Few of the men who were assembled at Valcartier and encamped on Salisbury Plain reached France before the spring of 1915. R. C. Pepler, however, and possibly others, were there in December, 1914.

After Neuve Chapelle and Polygone Wood came the second battle of Ypres, known variously as Langemarck and St. Julien. There, with other Canadians, "Old Boys" had their chance. There some of them were gassed and some were killed; there some of them were, unhappily, taken prisoners. Belle Warde, Festubert, Hooge, St. Éloi, Givenchy, Ploegsteert, Neuve Église, Loos, Hulluch, Kemmel, and Dickebush employed them during the rest of that year and carried them into the next.

The great interest of 1916 centred, of course, in the Ypres Salient, the second battle of Amiens, the Somme, Courcellette, Passchendaele, and Belfort. In the records for this year recur Ploegsteert, Kemmel, Neuve Église, Hooge, Dickebush, and St. Éloi; and Messines, Thiepval, Hill 60, Observatory Ridge, Sanctuary Wood, Mount Sorel, Zillebeke, Lens, Bapaume-Pozières, Regina Trench, and Landriecières make their appearance.

In the attack upon the Hindenburg Line in the spring of 1917 there were "Old Boys", as also at the glorious victory, in April, at Vimy Ridge and at Passchendaele in the autumn and the early winter. Grenay, the Ancre, Fresnoy, Lens, Hill 70, St. Quentin, Arras, Ypres, and the first and second battles of Cambrai filled the year from January to December, mention being made by one and another of the men of Avion, Poelcappelle, Arleux, Bullecourt, St.Émile, the Triangle, La Coulotte, St. Pierre, Nieupoort, Loos, and Poperinghe.

The Great Retreat in the spring of 1918 with the "Big Push" in August, the last battle of Amiens, the Canal du Nord, St. Quentin, the Drocourt-Quéant line, Bourlon Wood, Cambrai, Monchy Étain, Chérissy, Somain, Cagnicourt, Valenciennes, and the final triumph at Mons they who took part in them will never forget. Officers signed the Golden Book at Mons and led their men on to Cologne and Bonn, where they kept Christmas. Then for many came demobilisation, though some were kept on duty in Germany and others went to one of the English or the Scottish Universities or to the "Khaki University" at Ripon.

In the peace conference at Versailles two "Old Boys", and Head Boys at that, took part.

They were H. G. Crocker and O. M. Biggar, who were respectively on the staff of the United States of America and of Canada. For some time before the signing of the Armistice Biggar had been Judge Advocate General for the Dominion and in charge of the administration of the Military Service Act.

Besides Crocker only one other civilian finds a place with the fighting men in this War Book. He is D. A. Keys, another Head Boy, who, when rejected for military service, offered himself for experimental work under the Admiralty. Similar work was done by yet another Head Boy, C. S. Wright, who before the war had distinguished himself in Antarctic exploration.

There were many Head Boys and Mason Medallists in the war, as well as cricket and football captains and captains of the Rifle Corps. In fact, there is scarcely a blank in the lists from 1895 onward. The Rifle Corps, "The College Times" noted, became very popular during the war and drills were regarded as anything but a bugbear. It is noteworthy too that most of the members of successive editorial boards of "The College Times" between 1914 and 1918 put on the uniform as soon as they attained the age of eighteen.

To hold the boys till they were of active service age was a difficult task for the Principal and Masters. Most of them, however, responded to the argument that they would only be burdensome and not useful, if they enlisted before the age of eighteen, especially when the argument was supported by two or three instances known to the boys themselves. In view of these facts they were the more content and eager to make themselves fit against the time when they might legally enlist. To patriotic funds of various descriptions they contributed most liberally; and they murmured little against the rationing that was compulsory upon all public eating-houses, a term which included the College.

That boys just out of College and "Old Boys" dating back to 1861 as their year of entry should be willing to risk life and health and prospects for King and Country and Empire and right, is a credit not to themselves and their people alone but also to their College and their Masters. Principals such as the present holder of the office, who himself went over seas, and his predecessors, Auden, Parkin, Dickson, Buchan, and Cockburn, not forgetting those of still earlier date, Stennett, Barron, McCaul, and Harris, have given the College a character which imparts itself, imperceptibly and unfailingly, to the successive generations of boys. In this moulding process the Principals have been helped by men like Scadding, Wedd, Brown, Thompson, Barrett, Sparling, and McHugh who were and are content to give their best years to their calling. More especially is this true of House Masters like Martland, Jackson, the Gordons, Leacock, Peacock, Somerville, Collinson, Guest, and Crake, whose precepts and example have been enforced by present and former Masters who went to the war. Among the latter were Mackenzie, Mills, Mowbray, Mallett, Delph, Dobson, Fotheringham, and the brothers Colley, not to mention some who are also "Old Boys".

Without boasting, it is a remarkable fact that from 1861 to 1869 every year but three has at least one representative on the service list. From 1869 to 1918 there is not a break, albeit they are separated the one from the other by all but half a century.

Considering that many of the "Old Boys" were far beyond military age when war was declared, it is a subject for favourable comment that fully one third of those living volunteered for active service, including, of course, those who were soldiers or sailors by profession. Some of them had seen service in the Fenian raids, the Riel Rebellions, the Expedition up the Nile, and the South African War.

Our professional soldiers, whether belonging to the American or the British Army or to the Canadian Permanent Forces were: †T. Benson, †Sir F. W. Benson, A. C. Caldwell, C. F. Constantine, E. A. Cruikshank, C. R. Cuthbert, G. W. Denison, S. J. A. Denison, T. F. Homer-Dixon, D. K. Edgar, †M. M. Eberts, G. R. Frith, †T. M. Graves, G. S. Hatton, H. R. Hayter, R. J. F. Hayter, C. R. Hodgins, F. F. Hunter, G. M. Hutton, †J. C. Law, †C. G. G. Mackenzie, H. C. Nanton, H. W. Niven, †A. V. S. Nordheimer, J. A. R. Robertson, C. A. Robertson, †C. N. Shanly, E. J. W. Spread, †E. R. Street, G. A. C. Taylor, H. C. Thacker, P. E. Thacker, W. G. Tyrrell, A. B. Wilkie, C. S. Wilkie, R. Wood, S. Z. T. Wood, F. G. Macculloch, E. R. Kirkpatrick, C. G. Carruthers, H. G. Reid, A. E. Grasett, R. B. Nordheimer, and †J. G. Burnham.

Our "Old Boys" belonging to the Navy at the commencement of the war were Commander H. E. Denison, Admiral John Denison, and Vice-Admiral C. E. Kingsmill.

As everyone knows, there were new regiments raised in Great Britain for the duration of the war, many of them taking their name from English counties. Those and the regular regiments reported by "Old Boys" as their units were the Argyll and Sutherlands, the 1st and 2nd Border Regts., the Bedfords, the 1st Cheshire, the Devons, 3rd Dorsets, the Dorset Reserve, the Durham Light Infantry, the Duke of Connaught's Own Lancers, the 5th Duke of Cornwall's, the Gordon Highlanders, the King's Own Scottish Borderers, the King's Shropshire Light Infantry, King Edward's Horse, the King's Own Loyal Lancasters, the King's Own Royal Rifles, the King's Royal Fusiliers, the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry, the King's African Rifles, the Leicesters, 28th Londons, the Lonsdale Border Regiment, the Manchesters, the North Staffordshires, the Prince of Wales' Leinster Regiment (the Royal Canadians), the 75th Punjabis, the 13th Rajputs, the Royal Dublin Fusiliers, the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, the Royal Irish Fusiliers, the Royal Fusiliers, the Royal Scots Fusiliers, the Royal East Surreys, the Royal Sussex, the Royal West Surreys, the Royal Warwicks, the Scots Guards, the Sherwood Foresters, the Somerset Light Infantry, the Sindh Rifles, the West Riding (Duke of Wellington), the Wiltshires, the Worcesters, the York and Lancaster, the Artillery, the Cavalry, the Engineers, the Royal Army Medical Corps, the Royal Flying Corps, the Royal Naval Air Service, and the Royal Air Force, into which the last two were amalgamated. Some served also in the Remounts Commission.

The late Sir F. W. Benson was the only survivor of the Fenian Raids, so far as is known, who was engaged in this war.

Veterans of the Riel Rebellion of 1884-1885 who were on active service between 1914 and 1918 were H. T. Brock, H. C. Nanton, and F. A. C. Redden.

Veterans of the South African War who were also in this war were E. B. Allan, †Sir F. W. Benson, †J. L. Biggar, C. A. Boone, A. C. Caldwell, F. L. Cosby, N. W. Cosby, T. G. Delamere, G. W. Denison, S. J. A. Denison, T. F. Homer-Dixon, C. A. Donaldson, G. R. Frith, H. R. Hayter, R. J. F. Hayter, †H. H. Jones, W. R. Kingsford, G. H. Kirkpatrick, W. C. Laidlaw, †J. C. Law, W. V. Law, J. K. G. Magee, T. W. B. Marling, F. P. Myles, H. C. Nanton, H. G. Reid, H. C. Thacker, P. E. Thacker, †E. R. Street, H. E. Tremayne.

So far as it has been possible to ascertain, the following were the Canadian Battalions in which "Old Boys" held commissions:—the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 29th, 30th, 32nd, 33rd, 35th, 36th, 37th, 38th, 40th, 42nd, 43rd, 44th, 45th, 46th, 48th, 49th, 50th, 51st, 52nd, 54th, 57th, 58th, 61st, 62nd, 70th, 71st, 72nd, 74th, 75th, 76th, 78th, 79th, 81st, 82nd, 83rd, 84th, 85th, 87th, 92nd, 93rd, 94th, 95th, 98th, 101st, 102nd, 109th, 110th, 113th, 116th, 119th, 120th, 122nd, 123rd, 124th, 125th, 126th, 127th, 128th, 134th, 138th, 139th, 142nd, 144th, 147th, 149th, 153rd, 154th, 156th, 160th, 161st, 162nd, 166th, 169th, 170th, 179th, 180th, 182nd, 183rd, 187th, 190th, 194th, 198th, 201st, 203rd, 204th, 205th, 208th, 211th, 213th, 215th, 216th, 220th, 221st, 225th, 227th, 228th, 230th, 234th, 242nd, 247th, 250th, 257th, 258th, 259th, 260th, the Eaton Machine Gun Battery, the Canadian Mounted Rifles, the Royal Canadian Dragoons, the P.P.C.L.I., the Alberta Dragoons, the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Strathcona Horse, the Fort Garry Horse, and Boyle's Horse.

They affiliated first with the following Battalions or Regiments of the Militia:—the Canadian Gordon Highlanders, the Cyclists Corps, the Duke of Connaught Rifles, the Essex Fusiliers, the Fort Garry Horse, the Governor-General's Body Guard, the Princess Louise Fusiliers, the Queen's Own Rifles, the 10th Royal Grenadiers, the Royal Canadian Rifles, the Wellington Rifles, the 1st Grenadier Guards of Canada, the 3rd Victoria Rifles (Montreal), the 5th Royal Highlanders of Canada (Montreal), the 2nd Dragoons, the 9th Mississauga Horse, the 6th Regiment of Rifles, the 12th Manitoba Dragoons, the 13th Regiment (Hamilton), the 7th Fusiliers, the 19th Alberta Dragoons, the 8th Royal Rifles of Quebec, the 25th Brantford Dragoons, the 11th Irish Fusiliers of Canada, the 31st Grey Rifles, the 35th Simcoe, the 36th Peel Rifles, the 12th York Rangers, the 41st Brockville, the 14th Prince of Wales' Own Rifles, the 42nd Lanark and Renfrew, the 15th Argyll Light Infantry, the 48th Highlanders, the 49th Edmonton, the 50th Alberta, the 16th, the 17th Duke of York Hussars, the 72nd Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, the 20th Halton Rifles, the 78th Greadiers (Winnipeg), the 24th Kent, the 88th Victoria, the 26th Middlesex Light Infantry, the 90th Winnipeg, the 27th Lambton, the 91st Canadian Highlanders (Hamilton), the 99th Manitoba Fusiliers, the 100th Winnipeg Grenadiers, the 101st Edmonton Dragoons, the 102nd British Columbia, the 28th Perth, the 32nd Bruce, the 34th Ontario, the 37th Haldimand, the 38th Dufferin Rifles, the 43rd Duke of Cornwall's Own Rifles, the 44th Lincoln and Welland, the 46th Durham, the 51st Sault Rifles, the 57th Peterboro Rangers, the 59th, the 60th Rifles of Canada, the 66th, the 73rd Northumberland, the 79th Cameron Highlanders of Canada, the 107th Kootenay, the 109th, the 121st British Columbia, the 187th Calgary.

They assembled at the following camps in Canada:—Armour Heights, Barriefield, Borden, Beamsville, Charlton Park, Exhibition Park, Toronto, Hughes, Manitoba, Leaside, Long Branch, Mohawk, Petawawa, Niagara, Sarcee, Sewell, and Valcartier; at the following in England:—Bexhill, Bordon, Bramshott, Calshott, Cambridge, Colchester, Crowborough, East Sandling, Hendon, Larkhill, Salisbury Plain, Seaford, Shorncliffe, St. Alban's, Upavon, Wilts, and Wellesley Camp; and at the following in the United States:—Everman, Texas, Forts Benjamin, Grant, Mayer, Lee, Newport, Perry, Rockford, Ill., Sandiego, Cal., and Fort Worth, Texas.

Instruction in Flying was given at Camp Lee, Fort Myer, San Diego, Texas, in the United States, and at Armour Heights, Beamsville, Leaside, Long Branch, and Camp Mohawk in Canada. Some "Old Boys" finished their training at Vendôme, in France.

At least three of the "Old Boys", H. G. Reid, J. K. G. McGee, and J. F. Dawson, served with the Australians. Several served with the Bermuda and the West Indian Contingents, and one with that from the Straits Settlement.

For further training not a few of them were at the University of Toronto, the Royal Military College, McGill University, and the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge.

Some "Old Boys" who were not judged to be fit for service over seas were officers in the Polish camp at Niagara. Some, having been returned from the front unfit for service, did recruiting duty in Canada and in the United States, in the latter case for both the A.E.F. and the B.E.F. Other returned "Old Boys" were engaged as Military Instructors in the American Colleges and Universities.

Civilian "Old Boys" who were too old to serve, or who, for other reasons, could not qualify, were active in Red Cross work, in raising patriotic funds, in recruiting men, and in administering the Military Service Act of 1917.

"Old Boys" in London were unwearied in their efforts to find the soldier "Old Boys", to give them welcome, and to make them feel at home. "Brass Hats" relaxed when they found that a youngster reporting for duty had played under the Blue and White, as they themselves had done in their teens, left a long way behind them.

Interned civilians of enemy origin were guarded at Kapuskasing by "Old Boys" and others. Military prisoners found lodgement, among other places, at Stanley Barracks, Toronto, and at Barriefield.

Our own prisoners of war were G. M. Alexander, A. M. Allan, †E. O. Bath, H. A. Barwick, H. S. Broughall, H. M. Brown, †C. C. Carr, †H. W. Cockshutt, †H. M. Corbold, R. Y. Cory, †C. W. Davison, †Charles Dennehy, A. C. Dean, J. H. Douglas, T. G. Drew-Brook, D. W. Elliott, †L. E. Gooderham, G. E. D. Greene, S. L. Henderson, F. V. Jones, A. J. E. Kirkpatrick, N. D. Mackay, †A. P. MacLean, V. A. Maclean, L. S. Morrison, W. A. deC. O'Grady, A. B. Raymond, A. K. Roberts, W. E. Robinson, W.C.B. Schreiber, A. Watson Sime, †J.F. Smith, D. D'E. Strickland, C. I. Van Nostrand, A. A. Harcourt - Vernon, and R. W. White. Their captivity in Germany was spent at Bischofswerda, Cassel, Hof Gusmar, Hanno-Munden, Holzminen, Heidelberg, Karlsruhe, Lahr, Mainz, Paderborn, Schwarmstadt, Stralsund, and Wessel. On being released or on making their escape, they found an asylum in Switzerland or in Holland.

Charles Dennehy appears to have received peculiarly inhuman treatment, as set out in an interview which was reproduced in "The College Times." Reading the account even at this late date makes the blood boil with indignation.

To give an adequate account of the Army Medical Corps would require the pen of a trained physician or of an accomplished surgeon. In looking over the records of service, one cannot but be impressed by the fact that large numbers of "Old Boys" turned their professional skill to good account in this service. Now that so many have returned safely to their homes, they are the better able to minister to the ills and the sufferings of their respective communities.

By many it will be recalled that the "Old Boys" in Canada, headed by the Chairman of the Board of Governors and the late R. S. Hudson, who was ever ready to help the College and every other good cause, subscribed to a fund for providing a U.C.C. ambulance, a picture of which is reproduced from "The College Times." Of this the late S. L. Crowther was the first driver.

The first "Old Boy" to be wounded is said to have been H. S. Hamilton. The first to be treated in the University's Hospital was Oswald G. Bruce.

There were many sons and grandsons of "Old Boys" in the war, and even some great-grandsons. In several cases both fathers and sons were on active service, viz: †J. L. Biggar and A. L. Biggar; E. W. H. Blake and E. M. H. and H. H. Blake; G. S. Kirkpatrick and G. Y. Kirkpatrick; P. W. H. McKeown and W. W. McKeown; W. A. Richardson and W. A. Richardson, Jr.; A. T. Thompson and A. R. Thompson.

The sons were: D. J. Armour, E. N. Armour, A. T. M. Armstrong, E. L. F. Arnoldi, F. F. Arnoldi, P. C. F. Arnoldi, J. M. Baldwin, G. B. Beatty, A. L. Biggar, L. H. Biggar, W. H. Biggar, H. C. The grandsons were †H.E. Bethune, J.A. Bethune, R. T. Bethune, W. D. Bethune, on both sides of the house, E.M. Blake, H.H. Blake, A.A. Bolté, †F. O. Bolté, †S. L. Crowther, †W. B. Crowther, E. B. Denison, †E. S. Denison, F. C. Denison, †G. T. Denison, Jr., G. C. Denison, G. W. Denison, H. E. Denison, W. W. Denison, J. V. Drynan, M. H. Esten, G. M. Garmany, J. B. C. Garmany, E. A. Greene, G. E. D. Greene, H.V.G. Greene, F. A. Hale, J. J. Hale, V. E. Henderson, W. D. Hudson, †E. M. Jarvis, Jr., D. G. Joy, †A. D. Kirkpatrick, G.D. Kirkpatrick, A.L. Law, †J. C. Law, W.V. Law, †G.L.B. Mackenzie, †J.A.N. Ormsby, G.Y. Ormsby, A.C. Ryerson, E.E. Ryerson, †G. C. Ryerson, W. A. Richardson, Jr., J. B. Robinson, A. R. Thompson, D. S. Thompson, A. A. Harcourt-Vernon, N.E. Walker, and †C.A. Wilson, on both sides of the house.

The greatgrandsons were †A. D. Kirkpatrick and G. D. Kirkpatrick, whose mother is a daughter of Col. George T. Denison, the great advocate of Imperial Federation and of preferential trade within the Empire.

The sons of Principals and Masters are K.F. Auden, D. T. Fraser, C. E. Ham, P. D. Ham, and W. G. Jackson.

The grandsons of Principals and Masters are G. C. Hamilton, H. S. Hamilton, R. H. Hamilton, G. M. Hutton, and J. G. McCaul.

As has happened in every war, notably the American Civil War, there have always been some "Old Boys" not fully accounted for when the Armistice or the Peace was signed. So in this war, one at least is still unofficially missing, R. H. Hamilton, grandson of the late English Master, Mr. Christopher Thompson. All trace of him vanished at the Main Dressing Station at the White Château, near Boves, and none has since been found in spite of diligent search.

Holy Ground and sacred places are more numerous now than they were before the war. Many a pilgrimage will be made to the shores of Suvla Bay and to many a spot in Palestine and France and Flanders, and even Germany, because an "Old Boy" was buried there. Such places are Allery, Saone-et-Loire, Bailleul, Beaumetz, Bellacourt, Boves, Bullecourt, Caix, Casel, Choque near Béthune, Dozinghem, le Havre, Hollebeke, Huigis, Lyssenthoek, Méricourt, and Roisel. In the Home Land too as well as in our beloved Canada, there are graves of "Old Boys" to venerate and care for.

For fathers and for mothers who gave their sons, in some cases their only sons, for wives who lost their husbands, and for children who have to grow up fatherless for the sake of the common weal, the deepest sympathy is felt. Yet, when the keenness of the sense of loss has been somewhat softened, its place will be, if it has not already been, taken by a feeling of pride and satisfaction that their loved ones were willing and ready to lay down their lives for all that they held dear.

For sons of "Old Boys" bereft of fathers by the war the Board of Governors has decreed that there shall be free education at Upper Canada College, in order to make up to them in some sort for their grievous loss. To this end also scholarships have been founded in memory of several "Old Boys" by their families. Thus the names of these "Old Boys" live on and they themselves still have and will have, as it were, their representatives in the College.

In conclusion, the thought expressed by the late Sir George Parkin at a U.C.C. dinner in London, must be ever cherished. What our "Old Boys" did was done also by "Old Boys" of T. C. S., Ridley, St. Andrew's, Highfield, Ashbury, Lake Lodge, St. Alban's, Appleby, Lakefield, the High Schools, and the Collegiate Institutes, as well as by "Old Boys" of other similar schools in all the provinces of the Dominion. There was one great fellowship of devotion and service and suffering and triumph.

Principal Auden's Address on the Outbreak of the War

Canada, our Country, is at war. What does that mean to Upper Canada College, and what are we, who pride ourselves justly on being the premier school of Canada, doing in the matter? The Honour Roll (printed in this issue*) of those "Old Boys" who have gone with the First Contingent or were already in the Imperial Services, shows as clearly as the sun in heaven what they have thought about this crisis of our Empire, this life and death struggle of our Country, and not only what they have thought but what they have done. Not carried away by the glamour and enthusiasm of military display, but soberly and of set purpose they have determined to fight their country's battles, to "do their bit for the Empire," earnest and unafraid. Why have they chosen the manifold changes and chances of battle and sudden death, when they might have stayed at home care-free and comfortable? They might have now been treading the primrose path of matinees and football matches, yet they have chosen the more stony path of trenches, long weeks of weary watching, of midnight agony. They have gone to the Front because they realised that their King and Country needed them, and because they had determined to give their life-blood—some of them have given it already—rather than see England reduced to a third-rate power and this fair land of Canada a "conscript appendage" of Germany, a subject province under the worst military despotism that the world has known. That is the only true way of looking at the stern realities that face us.

In this Roll of Honour there are two points worthy of special notice. Firstly, General Sir John French, in his despatches, mentioned three Canadian officers; of these, two were "Old Boys," Lieut. A. E. Grasett, Royal Engineers, and Lieut. E. J. W. Spread, of the Loyal North Lancashire Regiment. The other point is the very large number of "Old Boys" who are in the ranks, who, when they could not obtain commissions, decided to go in any humbler capacity rather than not go at all. It seems to me that a special meed of honour and respect is due to these.

So much for what our "Old Boys" are doing. What of ourselves? Duty is not always plain, but it is to-day. It is, I think, this—to face the facts seriously and earnestly, to compel ourselves, each and all of us, to think what this war really means; to see to it that we shall be physically fit and morally sound when the call comes to us. Military experts tell us it will be a long war; for three years at least. The Premier of Great Britain has said: "If we are to repair, as far as may be humanly possible, the innumerable wrongs inflicted on our Allies; if we are to avoid for ourselves the ills which they have suffered; if we are to maintain for our children all that we hold dear—honour, freedom, our very life as a nation—we must fight with the courage and endurance which won for us the struggles of the past. Every man, therefore, who is eligible, will ask his own conscience whether, in this emergency, it is not his duty to hold himself ready to enlist in the forces of the Crown.” Prominent Canadian statesmen, e.g., Mr. N. W. Rowell, have said that, if Canada is to do her share in the next years, we must recruit, equip, drill, and send out 300,000 men. If then there is anything in the theory of possibilities, the call will come to those who are now boys at U.C.C. Will they answer: “Here am I, send me”? I believe they will; I know they will.

One thing is certain (and there are very few things certain) about this most terrible of wars; if we win, and under Providence we shall win, it will be in the main the gentlemen of the Empire who have done it. Look at the facts of the recruiting records. Cambridge University with three-fifths of its members in active training for the Front, and almost one-half already at the Front. Look at the Public Schools Battalion and the Sportsman’s Battalion, with their thousands of men in training, and every one of the great Schools of England training five times a week. The war lays heavy responsibilities on the directing classes. Noblesse oblige; high position carries with it the obligation of service to mankind, and the higher the station and the more fortunate the position in life, the greater is the obligation. Upper Canada College, which has furnished more men, I believe, than any other school in Canada to serve the State in war and peace, is doing her part and doing it well. If it were not so, then we would be false to our upbringing, false to those ideals which have made our name great and for which “Old Boys” have lived and at the call of their country have died:

“For the glorious dead have striven,
They battled that we might be free;
We to that living cause are given,
We arm for men that are to be.”

Letter From Mr. Jackson*

In heart I shall indeed be with you; in body it is not possible.

Yes; as you say, I knew them all, boys and men.

We saw them go forth, full of bravery and patriotism, with smiling faces to meet a ruthless foe. There was no possibility of holding back then. Those for whom there was no commission to be found, joined the ranks; boys and masters fought side by side as private soldiers.

Our sons and brothers, they gave their lives that we might live. Their mortal bodies lie far away in foreign lands; but the splendour of their name will never fade; surely their spirits live with us here to-day.

We saw them leave in all the hope and pride of youth; and we who had to stay at home, watched the dear, brave lads depart with admiration and envy.

Then came the first sad tidings.

I shall never forget the morning when George greeted me with the news that Mackenzie had fallen. Mackenzie gone! The other day he was here among us. We remembered his familiar look, his whimsical ways . . . He was here but yesterday.

The first great sorrow had fallen upon the old College, to be followed, alas, by many another.

Our losses came ever thicker upon us. Hardly a day passed without adding another name--sometimes several--to the swelling total. The list of our dead grew, until at last we asked ourselves, who is left? Who is still to go?

Yet, now we must not mourn our glorified dead. The first pain and soreness of our loss are past. Let us think with pride on the grandeur of their sacrifice, on the noble triumph they have left for others.

We will not mourn them: they are where tears and sadness are no more. God loved them, our dead young heroes, and He has taken them to Himself.

Principal Grant's Address at the First Memorial Service

Low Sunday, April 7, 1918.

This is the first Sunday of our Spring Term, the first Sunday on which the College meets together after Easter. It is a time in all our land of life renewed; a time of the running of sap, of the song of the mating bird, of the springing of blade and bud; it is a time when the Easter message of resurrection is still in our hearts; and we meet to commemorate our dead.

No other time so fitting could be found. We are not met to lament over their death. We are met in high commemoration of their lives, and of their example. We are met to draw from their example and from their very presence with us this evening, strength and comfort for the work that is before us; met to consecrate our lives to the cause to which they gave the last full measure of devotion.

Dead! who calls them dead? Death hath no power over them any more. They are not dead, but immortal. From beyond the hills of death their voices ring clear and full. O Death, where is thy sting? O Grave, where is thy victory? We rather seem the dead, who wait behind. We wait here, subject to the dust and smear and manifold stains of mortality; but they have passed into a sure place, where Death cannot come near them any more.

“They shall not grow old, as we that are left grow old;
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.”

Death has been despised by many men for many causes. “Revenge triumphs overs Death,” says Lord Bacon, “love slights it; honour aspireth to it; grief flieth to it.” We honour them not only because they had no fear of death,—though that is much—but because they poured out the rich sweet wine of their lives, because they were willing to give up this tremulous warm life, with all that it holds of beautiful and of desirable, in no personal cause or quarrel, with no personal emotion, for that which was greater than themselves, for the cause of their country, of civilisation, of humanity. “Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, from henceforth; yea, sayeth the spirit; that they may rest from their labours, and their works do follow them”. Every man who sheds his blood in the cause of the Allies to-day does in very truth die in the Lord.

It is the danger of so long a war as this that men tend to lose sight of the cause for which it began. Men tend to fight for mere restlessness, or in mere Pagan resolve to win at all costs. Let us hold fast to the resolve; but let us hold it not merely in our own strength but because we are fighting in the good cause. And let us never forget that, as has been nobly said by a great Canadian, "the stars in their courses do not now fight for the good cause; but the good cause is its own star." As I read the bulletins of the swaying line of battle, of the fight for the ridges of Flanders, the words of an English poem are ever in my ears. King Alfred is in hiding at Athelney, a fugitive, beaten by the heathen. To him Our Lady appears in a vision and calls on him to lead his English in a last battle with the invader. "What message of cheer shall I give them?" asks the King. He is given no message of light and easy victory; but only "This, that the sky grows darker yet, and the sea rises higher". And in the faith of that great need he goes out to smite down the foe.

This was the faith of these our brothers. The sky is dark and the sea is high. The more need for men who can dare all in God's cause. The more need for men who love not their lives unto the death. They trusted in God, and unperplexed left the issue to Him.

And so it is that while we sorrow, and while every Master and boy joins in the grief of friends and relatives over their dear ones, our pride in them, our joy in them, is greater than our sorrow. Had it not been for this great privilege which has been given them, they would have been ours but for a season, and then departed; but now they live so long as the sun and the moon endure. Their deaths have made them deathless.

"Ours is a sad Eastertide and a woeful Spring,
But up at Heaven's gate all the Saints sing,
Glad of the great company returning to their King."

Let us not minimise what they left behind. Above all, let us not minimise the grief of those who sorrow for them. There is no man or woman here this evening but has an ache in his or her heart which time can never heal. But for all our grief, let us never think of them as of men who gave themselves with sorrow or with hesitation. They greeted the unseen with a cheer; they dared the great adventure of death with the glad smile of triumph. They left home and friends, mother or wife or sweetheart, and in some cases the dear, soft clinging hands of the little children, and set themselves to go forward as steadfastly as the great Captain of Salvation set himself to go to Jerusalem. I tell you that, if, as they started on their way, the Angel of Death in visible form had overshadowed them with his wings, and with flaming sword in hand bidden them to return, they would have gone forward. They knew that the road to victory might be the road to Calvary, and they trod it without repining. Theirs was the choice between, not a life of ease, but of service and of honour here, and a little grave amid the Flanders poppies; and they chose in the spirit of Sir Humphrey Gilbert when he said: "he is not worthy to live at all, that for fear or danger of death, shunneth his country's service and his own honour; seeing that death is inevitable and the fame of virtue immortal; wherefore in this behalf 'mutare vel timere sperno' — 'to change or to fear I disdain'".

This evening those of whom we think more particularly are those of our own College. Canada is a young country. For us the best is yet to be. When the cry rang out at Ypres. "Come on for Canada", of which I spoke at my installation into this office, it was a call to make glorious the future of Canada, not merely to be worthy of her past. Yet even before this war Canada had her traditions, and traditions not ignoble. And among the oldest and proudest of the institutions of this Country is Upper Canada College. Some of the senior boys in my classes have lately been set the task of composing an eulogy of U. C. C. and they know how true and how stately a panegyric may be written in her honour. They know how our founder barred the path to the despot, on the low hills not far from those against which a meaner despot dashes to-day. They know how blithely an "Old Boy" of U.C.C. rode in the Charge of the Light Brigade; and how another won the Victoria Cross for valour on the veldt of South Africa. Every one of these our dead had known the feeling which, as Arnold of Rugby said, "belongs to every member of an ancient and celebrated place of education; that ennobling feeling that he is born of an old and illustrious race."

The position of every instructor of youth is a noble one, and woe to the country that does not hold it in high honour; the greatest men upon this earth have been the great teachers, Socrates, Buddha, Christ. If aught endures in this transitory world of ours, it is the work of the teacher. We do well to teach the boys of Ontario the names of Strachan and Tassie and Ryerson. And of all the schools of the Province, none is so deeply and so nobly rooted in the life of Ontario as Upper Canada College. However much we may humble our poor selves, my colleagues and myself may rightly magnify our office; every boy and "Old Boy" of U.C.C. may stand proudly, not in his own strength, but in the consciousness of a noble line of ancestors. This is in fullest harmony with what I have said before in this Hall, and what I say again, that I know of no sin more hateful in the sight of God and man than the sin of the swelled head. If we are rightly proud of our traditions, we must be proud of them, not with the flaunting vanity of the peacock, not with the hissing arrogance of the gander, but with the deep pride of the Knight who was consecrate to service, the pride of boys and men who have a tradition which constrains them to lay their little all upon the altar of their country.

But, if this foundation has a long and noble tradition, if the pride of it swelled high in the breasts of those whom we commemorate, to those traditions they have immeasurably added. We must indeed, we shall indeed, commemorate them with pride. Until the war is over, we can frame no complete Honour Roll. The long roll of names is all too likely to grow longer yet. By the kindness of P. R. Wilson, one of our present boys, we have in the main corridor the names of many of them fitly engrossed. Mr. Robert Holmes, the senior member of the staff, is at present preparing a new and more complete Roll which will be presented later in the term. Funds have already been promised me with which, after the war, we may set up a still more stately roll on brass or marble. But the memorial on parchment or brass or marble is but a lifeless thing. Their fit memorial must be the College, the College of their dreams in visible form, a College whose boys and Masters walk with clear eyes, and live for God and for Canada in the light of the lives of these men.

It is a terrible task which they have laid upon us, these heroes who laughed in the face of Death in every field of earth and sea and sky. They have piled up for us a weight of glory not easily to be borne. What said the Apostle after his triumph-cry of victory over Death and the Grave, as he commemorated those of his flock who had died in the Lord? "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord". If by their deaths, they have placed this Canada of ours, this Upper Canada College of ours, on so high a pinnacle, what manner of men and women must we be to maintain the standard? what manner of masters and of boys must we be? what manner of man must I be? In our own strength the burden would be greater than we could bear. Let us strive to be worthy of it in the strength of our great Communion with our immortal dead.
