Love a Conqueror

OR WEDDED AT LAST!

CHAPTER III.

Cruel to her! What mattered it to her? What mattered it to Gilbert Fairholme's long displeasure: his wife's unbroken silence and content? They mattered little to her now as she lay there, white and beautiful, drifting slowly away, across the sea of death, home. Never, even in the days of her beauty, when she had been the belle of every ball, and Miss Fairholme of Fairholme had been the reigning toast in the county, had she looked lovelier than now. She was as white as marble; even the parted lips through which her breath came so feebly were pallid; but the long lashes swept her cheeks in a heavy dark fringe and the rich dark hair in all its luxuriance streamed down upon the pillow, falling in silky waves over the crimson flannel of her wrapper and on her kneeling daughter's clasped hands.

It was night now, almost midnight, and the sounds of life and animation which had been unceasing during the three hours which Shirley had passed by the bedside were gradually dying away. Sometimes there were steps and voices in the passage without, which made the girl start and look anxiously at her mother but they did not disturb her rest. Then, as these gradually died away and ceased, the occasional shrill whistle of a train rose upon the silence of the night, making the girl's heart throb fast and her pulses quicken; but it did not reach the numbed senses of the dying woman. Ah, when Shirley's broken-hearted sobbing, "Mother, mother!" was unheeded, would any other sound pierce those dulled ears?

What could that story be, Shirley wondered to herself, as the night wore on—the story she was so anxious to tell, but for which she had not strength? It could not be a short story, or she would have told it; she would have found power enough for that. What did she mean by sin and shame and sorrow? There was no sin, no shame on that lovely marble face, only sorrow and suffering, and

Radway's Ready Relief

Frank Malt, 420 8th St., New York, writes: "My wife suddenly fell very sick with influenza. I called the doctor, but he failed to help her any. We have no time to lose. So I became very nervous and with Radway's Ready Relief and Pills, I gave her according to the directions, and she went back to work two days later."

GOLDS AND COUGHS

Apply the Relief to the throat and chest with the ordinary smart and rub. Give Radway's Pills in such doses as will freely pass the bowels. For a sudden cold take a couple of hot water. and there had been flowers on the bright little dinner table; and her mother had looked so lovely in her delicate dress and black lace bonnet that more than one had turned to admire her as she passed by, and she had laughed and blushed at her husband's smiling compliments, as if she had been a girl in her teens.

That day, too, in Brussels, a long golden summer day, when they had picnicked in the Bois de la Cambre and enjoyed its glorious trees and ovely verdure, and had watched from their seats by the lake the stars come out one by one over the deep blue sky, and had driven home down the long boulevards in a shabby little one-horse vehicle, of which Jack had made such fun! And that day in Venice, when Shirley got her first peep at the Queen of the Sea! How well she remembered her wonder and delight, and the beauties of Florence and the grandeur of Rome. Ah, how she remembered them all.

And that last terrible day when her father died! Could she ever forget that? Could she ever feel less pain than that memory than she did now when the hot tears rose thick and fast, and the red lips quivered with unexpressed pain? It was at a quaint little old seaport town on the coast of Brittany, and during the morning Shirley and Jack had wandered down the steep path at the end of the village which led to the beach. It was toward the end of the summer; the bathing season was over, and the fishing fleets were preparing to put to sea. The fishermen were busy with their boats, the women within doors were making active preparations for their husbands' departure. It was a cheerful, pleasant little place, and the sea was heaving and flashing in the sunshine and rolling up on the beach where the waves broke with a musical little ripple. Shirley and her brother had sat down on the side of the old boat which stood high and dry and had talked of England, and wondered why they knew so little of home, and had laughed and chattered with a sturdy old fisherman who was working away at his nets close by Shirley could remember his kind, weather-beaten face even then. The ad been so happy and light-hearted, so shadow of the coming trouble had fallen upon them; their father and mother were well. He had been out ketching during the morning, and had come home a little tired, and was resting on the sofa in their little sitting room—for they had been spending the summer at Port St. Pierre, and Shirley was burnt by the sun into a clear soft brown. And then she and Jack had run up the steep path with merry laughter and shouts, to the chalet on the edge of the cliff and Mrs. Ross had met them smiling too, but with upraised finger urging silence, because their father was asleep.

Yes, it had been a pleasant life, although to Sir Gilbert Fairholme it had seemed a strange and wandering existence. Rowland Ross was an artist, and he had not cared to have a settled home anywhere, but had followed his art; and wherever it led him he was content to go, and his wife had been content to follow. It had not been a very successful artistic career, for, although he had genius, he lacked perseverance, which is, after all, the key to success; but, as long as he made sufficient money to keep his wife and children in comfort he had not cared. Naturally a hopeful and happy dispositioned man, he was nearly always bright and cheerful, brave under disappointment, and always tender and loving to his own. The children's lives had been sunshine and cloudless; they had grown up with an intense love for all that was beautiful in nature and art, they had received every educational advantage—for abroad in those sunny foreign lands professors were obtained who, in England, would have asked the same number of pieces in gold or those they received in silver—and Shirley had such a beautiful voice that it was well that it should be highly cultivated, and she loved music.

Ah, those happy days! How they came back, one by one, bright and vivid, as if twenty-four hours had not elapsed since their evenings fell and their light faded to Shirley Ross, as she knelt in the silent room in the still night hours. That day in Paris, when, after spending some long happy hours at the Louvre, feasting their eyes on its beauties, they had gone and dined at a bright little restaurant in the Palais Royal, and had finished up the evening at the Theatre Francaise, where they had been charmed with Sardou's exquisite comedy Maitre Guirra—Shirley remembered that day so well; the chestnut trees were in flower and the sun was shining so cheerily down on the gay groups of bonnets and children in the gardens

Poor mother! It was the last time Shirley ever saw her face bright and smiling. An hour afterward she went softly into the little sitting room, and then came a quick terrified cry which brought Jack and Shirley quickly into the room. Their father was lying quietly upon the cushions, his eyes closed, his lips parted in a faint smile; but there was a strange, awful, indefinable look upon his face which, although they had never seen death, told them what it was. Their mother was bending over the sofa, and she turned her face to them with a pitiful look of entreaty.

"I cannot wake him," she said hurriedly; "and he is so cold. I think he has fainted."

She bent over him again, touching his hands with one of hers. Then her face changed; a terrible look of anguish came upon it, and, before Jack could go to her assistance, she had fallen in a swoon at their feet. Rowland Ross was dead.

That was three years ago now; but Shirley remembered it all as clearly as possible, as clearly as though it had happened yesterday.

Presently the door opened, and Jack came softly in, Shirley rose and went to meet him, and they kissed each other.

"There is no change," she said gently. "But I do not think she is suffering."

"She is not—not dead?" Jack faltered, as he glanced at the still face.

"Oh, no—oh, no!"

"Does Dr. Graham think she will recover consciousness?"

"Yes, he thinks so; and I hope so—oh, I hope so!" Shirley said earnestly.

"I should like her to know us again," Jack remarked, with forced composure.

"It is not only for that," Shirley said tremulously; "but there is something she wants to tell us—you and me. She is very anxious that we should know it."

"What can it be, Shirley?" said Jack wonderingly. "They never had any secrets from us."

"They have kept one, I think," the girl observed, in her tremulous, broken voice. "She seemed so anxious to tell me in the train from Paris; but I dared not let her. She was so weak. I did not want her to talk."

"What can it be?" Jack said again, with a long look at the quiet face.

"I cannot think. She said something about shame and temptation," Shirley replied, a faint color rising in her face.

"Shame touching our mother? That is absurd, Shirley!" the lad said, flushing to the roots of his curly hair.

"Not touching her, I trust, Jack, but touching something we ought to know," she whispered low. "I hope she may be able to tell us."

"Is she asleep?"

"No, she is in a stupor, I think." (To be Continued.)

The F. P. U. Convention

The Fifth Annual Convention of the Supreme Council of the F.P.U. was opened yesterday at 3.30 p.m. by President Coaker, who delivered an hour's address, reviewing the work of the year, the recent elections and offered suggestions as to the future resolutions dealing with:

- (1) Redistribution.
- (2) Municipal Boards.
- (3) The right of Union Members in the House of Assembly to administer the affairs of their District.
- (4) A protest against the further stuffing of the Legislative Council, which is to be forwarded to the Home Government by the Governor.
- (5) A protest against the appointment of Messrs. Morrison and Blandford to the Legislative Council.

Committees on the Address in Reply to the Opening Speech of the President, and Finance and Constitution were appointed, and an adjournment made at 6 p.m. About 150 delegates were present.

At 8 p.m. the consideration of certain resolutions was taken up, and those published elsewhere were adopted by a unanimous vote. The discussion of these resolutions occupied the time of the whole session which adjourned at 11, until this afternoon.

The session adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem.

All members of the F.P.U. in the city are invited to attend as visitors. Dec. 3rd, 1913.

MUNICIPAL BOARDS.

The following Resolutions were proposed by Mr. J. G. Stone:

WHEREAS the actual control and management of local affairs in this Colony outside the City of St. John's is exercised by boards and persons appointed by the Governor;

AND WHEREAS appointments are made in opposition districts on the nomination of defeated candidates, and local affairs of such districts are in reality conducted altogether by members of the minorities in such districts;

AND WHEREAS this practice tends to rewards and punishments for partisan reasons, and is therefore essentially corrupt;

AND WHEREAS the people at large have no direct control over those local matters which vitally affect their health and comfort;

AND WHEREAS the control of such matters ought to be free from partisanship, political influence and graft;

RESOLVED that the Government be requested to pass an act establishing Municipal Boards enabling the people to elect Boards to expend all local Special Local Funds, and the public Grants amounting to less than $1,000, and the per Capita Grant for public charities.

FURTHER RESOLVED that in all local matters not managed by Boards appointed under the said Act the elected representatives of the districts to the Assembly should be consulted by the Government, and that appointments and expenditures ought not to be made or advice of defeated candidates.

Passed unanimously.

W. F. COAKER,
President F.P.U.

Protest Against Continuance in Office of the Hon. D. Morrison and the Hon. S. Blandford.

Proposed by Mr. J. B. Wornell.

WHEREAS the Hon. Donald Morrison, Minister of Justice, and the Hon. Sydney D. Blandford, Minister of Agriculture, were defeated by large majorities in the late General Election, and now hold their offices without seats in the Assembly;

AND WHEREAS it is rumored that to enable these men to continue in office, it is the intention of the Government to obtain leave to enlarge the Legislative Council, and appoint the said persons to the additional seats;

BE IT RESOLVED.

- (1) That defeated office holders dismissed by their constituents should not be allowed to continue in office.
- (2) That offices vacated by reason of the people's decision should not be filled from a Council made up of men who are not representative of the people at large;
- (3) That important Executive Government offices should not be held by Flouting the Public.

In a most outrageous manner, it is generally believed he contemplates a complete defiance of public opinion by putting both defeated ministers in the Legislative Council. We have protested vigorously against this on many occasions since the result of the Bonavista elections were known. We protest against it being done in any way, either by a further increase in the Legislative Council or by the retirement of members from the Legislative Council to provide a vacancy for these men. There is a rumor, whether it is well founded or not we know not, that one member of the Legislative Council is to be given a big job, now held by an official who is to be pensioned, and the new appointee is to retire from the Legislative Council to create one of the vacancies. It is also said that Sir Edward Morris is applying to the Home Government for an increase in the membership of the Upper Chamber. Now whatever truth or lack of truth there may be in these rumors, there are some things certain. Sir Edward Morris is keeping these defeated ministers in office and has kept them in office the past month, when in usual course they would have retired. Further, Sir Edward Morris has not yet signified through his official organ, what he intends to do, and it is high time he was taking the public into his confidence.

There is still nothing done about the two defeated Ministers, Messrs. Morrison and Blandford. We looked through the Royal Gazette published last night and we find no reference either to new appointments to these offices or to bye-elections.

It is surely about time the Premier, Sir Edward Morris, was doing something. The fact that these two Ministers were defeated and discredited as the polls has not so far led him to take the usual course of accepting their resignation and appointing two other members of the House of Assembly to their places. He has not done this apparently because he fears the effects which would accrue from adopting the usual course. He fears that he may lose two seats. Moreover, he has not even taken a course, which is not usual here, but which is at times followed elsewhere, and that is to get two members to retire in order that the defeated Ministers might have an opportunity to try their political fortunes in other districts. This practice is objectionable, mainly on two grounds: a vote of want of confidence has been passed by constituents who know the defeated men best; and even when successful, it is putting one constituency against another, and is an effort to over-ride one constituency by another. But so far, neither cause has been adopted by Sir Edward Morris. Sir Edward is flouting the decision of an important constituency

Brutal Assault.

Last night, a ne'er-do-well, named Merry, well known in police circles, for all the trouble he gives, committed a brutal and dastardly assault on James Badcock, aged seventy years. Merry went on board the s.s. Adventure at Franklin's premises and became "too merry." He was ordered ashore by Mr. Badcock, the watchman, with the result that the latter was delivered a violent blow over the left eye and knocked senseless to the deck. The police were called and Merry arrested. He was tried before Judge Knight to-day and sent down for two months.

other than elected representatives of the people:

- (4) That the Legislative Council, for which in this Colony there is little justification at best, should not be made a place of refuge for defeated candidates.
- (5) That any scheme for escaping the full and free decision of the people at large on the filling of the offices in question, and on the manner, especially on the present Minister of Justice, will be bitterly resented by the people of Newfoundland.
- (6) That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to His Excellency the Governor for transmission to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

INCREASE IN LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

WHEREAS the membership of the Legislative Council has been increased since 1900 from fifteen to twenty-three;

AND WHEREAS it is rumored that another increase is contemplated, to provide places for two Ministers of the Crown, to be elected at the next General Election, and the number of members is out of all due proportion to the membership of the Assembly;

AND WHEREAS the membership of the Council is wholly unrepresentative of the fishermen of the Colony, and is composed entirely of capitalists and professional persons, the majority of whom have never served the people in any public capacity;

RESOLVED that we emphatically condemn the increases that have been made.

That we protest most earnestly against any further increase.

That any increase for the special purpose referred to will be regarded by the people at large as a calculated defiance of the will of the people expressed at the polls.

That the appointment of representatives of the "classes," especially of men who have no record of public service, and whose appointments are usually the reward of mere party loyalty, or in return for financial aid to party funds, is an outrage upon the people of the Colony, and a menace to the Government of the people by the people.

FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to His Excellency the Governor, with a request that as the Legislative Council cannot be enlarged without the consent of His Majesty's Government, a copy hereof may be transmitted to His Majesty through the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Carried unanimously.

LETTER FROM MR. GOSLING.
(Which we Re-publish.)

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—When the city of St. John's is under discussion it is not to be forgotten that it is one of the oldest settlements in the Western Hemisphere. It has only been a city for 25 years. It is not yet 100 years since it became lawful to build a habitation here. No building or erection of any sort was allowed to be fixed to the soil. As an instance of the attitude of the Admiralty Government towards would-be settlers, a petition is on file in which a man asked for permission to build a pig sty, undertaking to place it on rollers so that it could not be called a fixture. After Responsible Government was granted, and until 1888, St. John's was under the governance of the Board of Works, being in the same category as other settlements in the country. The needs of St. John's were consequently modified by reason of jealousy and competition for favours from the outlanders. While St. John's probably got the lion's share of the "givings out," undoubtedly the city did not get all that was required. It cannot be denied also that it was a habit of the wealthier classes not to look upon St. John's as a permanent habitation; and I remember that there was a great deal of opposition to the granting of a charter to St. John's in 1888. Property owners were afraid that they were going to be unduly taxed. To make the city a desirable place to live in, and thus to cause a demand for real estate, and appreciation of property values, did not seem to occur to them as a natural consequence of responsible government for the city. It is a remarkable thing also that until last year, when the Bowring's donated $50,000 to the city, no beguist had ever been made by a citizen for the improvement or adornment of the city, or for the welfare of its inhabitants.

Seeing that St. John's was built not only without plan or forethought, but in the face of opposition, and seeing the attitude of its principal citizens, one cannot be surprised to find it a very backward city.

Several changes have been made in the constitution of the Municipal Council, which it is unnecessary to trace, nor is there time to do more than touch upon some of the essential features, as they appear to me, of the Municipal Act.

The city is governed by a Mayor and six Councillors, elected "at large" by the ratepayers. Their powers are greatly circumscribed by the fact that they are unable to levy taxes or to borrow money, without the consent of the Legislature of the Colony, nor are they allowed to incur any indebtedness over and above the amount of the revenue estimated at the beginning of each year. It will thus be seen at the outset, that no matter how well intentioned and progressive the Municipal Council may be, they are unable to move hand or foot, beyond the limits which are prescribed for them.

The remuneration of the Municipal Council is limited to $1,500 per annum, of which the Mayor gets $600 and the six Councillors, we are there-fore paying the men to whom we entrust the management of the city, the meagre sum of $150 per annum! As might be expected we are getting exactly what we pay for. It has been said that Municipal Government is far more administrative than legislative and unfortunately we have no leisured class here upon whom we can call to perform the duty of governing the city as a labor of love; also it may be said that every man in the city who is worth employing has plenty to do, and no matter how well disposed has not time for altruistic work. Efficiency, which plans and performs, continuously and tirelessly, is worthy of his hire. Let us suppose for an instant that St. John's was a large public joint stock company in which we were all shareholders, would we offer $150 a year to the men we elected to manage it, and expect it to be properly conducted?

I do not mean to cast any reflection upon the present or former Municipal Councils, as I am of opinion that if the Councillors were paid such an amount as would enable them to devote themselves to the work of the city, they would perform their duties faithfully. We are also to be congratulated on one point in connection with our city government; we have not had to contend as have had so many cities in the U. S. and Canada, with corruption and dishonesty.

To put it tersely, therefore, the Municipal Council has no power of itself to make improvements, no money to pay for them, cannot levy taxes, and the Councillors are paid fifty cents a day. How can we expect a clean, healthy, well-governed city? I have stated the Councillors' stipend in terms of daily pay, because it seems to me that it is daily work that we want. We want men who will be on the job all the time, not to meet for a few hours a week, to discuss trivial matters of detail, and twit one another with endeavoring to catch votes.

It must be admitted nevertheless that we have many good men on the Municipal Council, and that the town is vastly improved from what it was 30 years ago. But still the city is dirty, the streets are bad, vibrating between mud and dust, there are numbers of occupied houses in St. John's which are unfit for human habitation, (the Health Officer, I understand, condemned 50 odd several years ago, but I think they are most of them still occupied), others, in which water and sewerage could be put are still without the necessaries and many of the streets have neither water mains nor sewerage pipes, the disposal of the garbage to the destruction of our pretty country lanes is disgraceful, an unauthorized, unregulated fishing village has been permitted to grow up in the city limits, and as a result of it all—our heavy death rate and shameful infant mortality. This forms a serious indictment, but will be considered moderate, I think. Besides it will be noted that I have only mentioned the evils crying for reform, and have said nothing of what might be done on the constructive side to make our city beautiful and pleasant to live in.

How far the Municipal Council, under the present system, is able to cope with the situation, I am not prepared to say. No doubt, by proper supervision and organization, some savings could be made in the expenditures, but I am of opinion that the sum would be comparatively unimportant.

It is perfectly clear to me that if we want a clean, healthy, well appointed city, we must be prepared to pay for it. The property value of St. John's is not far short of $20,000,000, the insured value being, I am told, about $25,000,000. While the total Municipal revenue is about $200,000 per annum, the taxes paid by the people, in the shape of water and sewerage rates and coal duties, amount to only $120,000 per annum, or say 40 cents per $100. Elsewhere the city taxes average from one to two per cent. The comparison is, however, not exact, because we are under no expense for either police or schools, which are generally included in municipal expenditure elsewhere, but allowing for these differences, our taxation is very light compared to other cities.

If it is granted that we are prepared to pay for the necessary civic improvements, we must next arrange for efficient administrators. For reasons given above, I think it utterly hopeless to expect efficiency under our present system, and in another letter I propose to describe a system of municipal government which has been adopted by hundreds of cities in the U. S. and Canada with very satisfactory results, and to discuss its applicability to our own needs.

Yours truly,
W. G. GOSLING.

Children Hate Oil Calomel and Pills

"California Syrup of Figs" best for tender stomach, liver, bowels—tastes delicious.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

The Grief Habit.

Oh, neighbour sad-hearted, with dolorous tongue, you probably started complaining when young; you learned how to grumble at grandmother's knees, and not how to bumble and buzz like the bees! The habit grew stronger as years made their race, and longer and longer you pulled out your face; and louder and louder you voiced your soul pains, till people said, "Chowder the man has for brains." For grief is a habit like clucking with fowls, like fear to a rabbit, like hooting to owls. When once you have got it, there's nothing will please; your spirit, dod rot it, is never at ease; you roar when it's raining, when heavens are blue; complaining, complaining, is all you can do. So, parents and grannies, keep tab on the kids, the Neds and the Nannies, the Susies and Sids, and when they're repining and fretful and cross, say, "There'll be no whining while I am the boss!" Just rise and command them to come from their perch, up-end them and hand them ten cents worth of birch.

The separate skirt contrasting with the jacket is a godsend to the woman who must be economical.

Mr. Stevens, M.P. for Vancouver, has returned from Ottawa, with the announcement that the Dominion Government is considering legislation to deal with Hindoo immigration to British Columbia. Stevens says that a radical measure will be presented next session.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 2.
President Huerta gave the people of the capital a thrill to-day by another of his periodical disappearances. For many hours no trace of him could be found, but he returned this afternoon to the National Palace, saying that he had been visiting his farm near by.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 2.
A provisional contract has been signed with manufacturers in Berlin and Vienna for the delivery of 50,000 mauser rifles and a million cartridges to the Mexican Federal government. It is stated that the final signatures of the contract will be given by agents in London.

VERA CRUZ, Dec. 2.
Four hundred infantry men embarked last night on the Mexican gun boat Zara Goza. Their destination is not revealed, but it is probable that they are bound for Tuxpam, in the vicinity of which the rebels appeared recently in increasing numbers. The remainder of the federal force recently concentrated here have to wait for transports, as the Zara Goza is the only vessel at present available for the purpose.

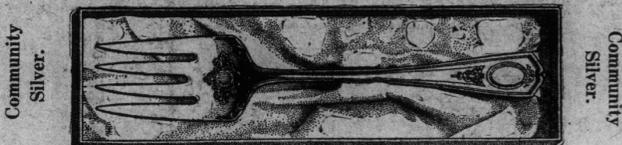

JUAREZ, Dec. 2.
Rather than endure starvation, the federal troops have evacuated Chihuahua City, which is now open for the possession of the rebels. Salvador Mercado, the military governor of the State, with 2,000 federal troops, had left for Ojinaja, on the border of the States. Generals Salazar and Orazco with more than 1,000 federals have retreated to the mountains. Hundreds of civilians, including women and children, also on the verge of starvation, started to walk to the United States border.

LONDON, Dec. 2.
Winston Churchill has now the distinction of being the first Cabinet Minister in the world to act as air pilot. During the greater part of a flight of an hour's duration at Eastchurch, he personally took control of the machine on Saturday morning. He had some final lessons to complete his experience, and after lunch, donning the leather jacket and airman's cap, he took his seat on a dual control biplane, with Captain William Lushington. When the machine reached the height of 500 feet Churchill took over the control. The wind was blowing steadily but strongly. The biplane took nearly half an hour to cover the ten miles which separate the Eastchurch flying grounds from Islegrain. The First Lord remained in control for over 40 minutes, flying to and from thirty-five to forty miles when Lushington took charge again and brought the machine to the earth. Eye-witnesses to the flight said the First Lord did splendidly. Earlier he made two separate flights as passenger, and inspected all the machines of the Aero Club flying grounds at Eastchurch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.
President Wilson read his first annual message to Congress to-day at a joint session of both branches. It was one of the briefest of its kind, only some 3,000 words, occupying less than half an hour in reading. The Mexican situation was dismissed with brief comment, reiterating the sentiments expressed in the special address to Congress on the same subject some time ago, expressing the belief that the Huerta Government was slowly crumbling, and that the States would probably not be obliged to alter the policy of waiting. No programme for Trust legislation was presented, further than "to prevent private monopoly more effectually than it has been prevented," and an announcement that the President would later address a special message to Congress dealing solely with that subject. Other principal features were the building of the Alaskan railways, which the President endorsed; need for concentration by the Senate in the pending Currency Bill, which he emphasized; the urgent necessity for Rural Credit legislation; self-government for Porto Rico and Hawaii; ultimate independence for the Philippines; a policy of "common council and conference" between the Government and the States on the conservation question; and the revision of the system of primary elections.

Towed to Port

The schooner Maggie Sullivan, Captain Cheator, was towed to port yesterday afternoon, by the D. F. Ingram from Bay Bulls, where she had harbored on Monday night. The little vessel had a rough experience, but being staunchly timbered and carefully navigated, she weathered it all without sustaining serious damage. She met the storm at Sugarloaf on Tuesday, and as a consequence was driven out to sea. When the gale moderated sufficiently she was able to make for the land, but when within twenty miles of land, the breeze sprung up anew and she was carried off 165 miles S.E. of Cape Spear, and while the storm lasted was badly tossed about. Cape Pine was sighted on Monday morning and she put into Bay Bulls that night. The crew are none the worse for their trying experience, but none of them would care to have a repetition of the same.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
The House for hours debated the Hensley resolution to commit the States to the Winston Churchill plan for an international year's holiday in naval construction. Last night the advocates of the project predicted the passage of the resolution in the House by Friday. The consideration of the matter will be resumed on Thursday. The advocates far outnumbering their opponents are prepared to continue the debate. The suspending naval construction for a year was first proposed in the British Parliament by the First Lord of the Admiralty and since has been commended by the leaders of all parties in the American Congress and by the President.

JUAREZ, To-day.
Seven generals of the Mexican regular army are ready to surrender. The backbone of the Huerta dictatorship in the North has been broken. A peace commission arrived at Juarez last night bearing the terms of surrender. The commission is headed by Odilon Hernandez, who came from Chihuahua, bearing a proclamation signed by General Morado, Huerta's military governor and commander of the federal forces in all the north. The proclamation stated the Huerta Government is bankrupt and unable to supply soldiers. The simultaneous evacuation of the federal strongholds in the north is believed by the rebels to be the result of concerted decision to abandon the whole of Northern Mexico. A peace proposal sent by General Morado to General Villa, rebel leader, through Federico Moya, Civil Governor of Chihuahua State appointed ad interim, came clear with it. The appeal is signed by all the foreign consuls at Chihuahua, calling upon Villa to give police protection to citizens of Chihuahua City.

General Morado's proclamation said: "Under circumstances which have existed in Chihuahua it has been deemed necessary for Federal troops to evacuate. I leave in charge Federico Moya, a person who is not identified with politics, who is therefore qualified to give full protection to foreigners. It is impossible to remain here longer. There is no money with which to pay the troops. Reports received from Villa Ahmada stated that hundreds of men, women and children are fleeing across the desert from Chihuahua to Ojinaga and other border points. Long wagons of train horses and burros, laden with household goods, followed by a scurrying horde of people on foot were seen. It appears as if almost the whole city, carrying its richest possessions, have been set in motion. They are struggling through a cloud dust to keep pace with the hurrying escort of Federal, according to rebel scouts.

Mr. A. O'Driscoll, of White Bay, and Mr. John Morry, of Ferrisburgh, two of the most prominent planters of Southern Shore are now in the city. Both of these gentlemen are blessed with a large proportion of this world's goods but are retiring and jewel headed business men. We are informed they are contemplating the shipment of fish to foreign markets next year.

Free England.

Some of the Things There Which Require a License.

There is a legend which speaks of England as being "a free country," but as a matter of fact there are a remarkable number of everyday things which you cannot do without having a license. Apparently people are expected to know the law of licenses by intuition, since ignorance is not accepted as an excuse for any one failing to take out a necessary license at the proper time and place.

A great many professional and tradespeople must have a license for the privilege of following their work. Bankers, for instance, are subject to a yearly tax of $150, while the annual license fees for a solicitor practicing in London (within a ten-mile radius of the general postoffice) are $45—though country solicitors are regarded as of lesser importance for their yearly license costs only $30. Barristers, too, require a yearly license costing $5 a year before they may accept a single brief—unless a man has compounded his fees.

Wine merchants and distillers, brewers and vinegar makers, all require a license before they can follow their various trade—in the case of the two former the cost is $50 a year, though from the latter traders only $5 is demanded.

No one who is not properly licensed can legally hold an auction sale—a little privilege which costs every auctioneer some $50 a year. While the person who tries to run a public house without previously obtaining the requisite license is courting trouble—the license for a publican, according to individual circumstances, may cost anything from $22.50 to $300.

Tobacco manufacturers, gold and silversmiths, horse agents, bailiffs, hawkers, restaurant keepers—all these and many other workers too numerous to mention singly have to have a proper license before the law of the land will allow them to ply their trade for profit. The yearly cost of the licenses varies considerably—anything from $1.25 to $150.

While no licensing fees are demanded from people who keep a score of female domestics, those who keep a solitary manservant are considered in a position to pay $2.75 a year for the luxury—beyond all wages, etc. of course.

You cannot even be buried without somebody previously obtaining a proper license authorizing the burial. Nor is it wise for anyone to get wed in England without having one of the seven varieties of licenses which make a marriage legal in that country—from a couple of shillings for a registrar's certificate to $150 for a "special license." To carry the matter further yet, the law will not recognize a person as being born unless notification of their birth is given without delay to the licensing registrar of the district.

The French Government Was Defeated.

Special to The Evening Telegram.

PARIS, To-day.
The Govt. of Premier Barthou was defeated by a vote of 290 to 265 in the Chamber of Deputies last evening on the question whether the new loan of $260,000,000 should be subject to taxation or immune like existing rents. Premier Barthou and M. Dumont, Minister of Finance, made eloquent appeals to the Chamber to respect the traditional immunity of rents. To tax rent they declared would mean a deadly blow to the financial prestige of France, but the opponents told on deaf ears. The sitting grew more uproarious and frequently the President rang his bell in a vain attempt to obtain order. The result of the vote was greeted with wild cheering by the members of the Opposition, while the Government forces appeared greatly depressed. The Opposition urged that to exempt the new rents to enable those investing exclusively in these was to invade unfairly the projected income tax. As soon as the vote placing the Government in a minority by 25 was read the Ministers left the Chamber in a body and proceeded to the Elysee Palace, where they handed their resignations to President Poincare.

Tango Ban Holds Good in Berlin.

Berlin, November 24.—Emperor William's edict forbidding German Army and Navy officers to dance the Tango and other steps while in uniform, has been taken to heart in diplomatic circles here, where the same rule has been introduced.

A hurried change was made in the programme for the dance to be held after the Thanksgiving Dinner of the American colony when it was learned that any members of the diplomatic corps present would be forced to withdraw should the Tango or Two Step be danced.

These were consequently eliminated from the programme, but will be permitted during the latter part of the evening after the officials have retired.

"Scott's Last Expedition"

Makes Thrilling Reading---"We Are Showing That Englishmen Can Still Die With Bold Spirit" --- Abandoned the Idea of Suicide--Very Near End, But Would Not Lose Their Good Cheer Even Then.

New York, Nov. 6.—The New York Times this morning publishes a long cable from London giving excerpts from a book which the whole world has been waiting for some time past.

Captain Scott's Last Expedition. Although the main features of the narrative told in Captain Scott's diary have already been told, this record, published in two volumes, contains details as thrilling, and passages as enthralling, as any given out at the time the death of Captain Scott and his heroic companions was first announced.

The first volume contains the full text of Captain Scott's diary, from the time the Terra Nova sailed in 1910 to the final entry made when death was very near in the storm-bound tent half buried by Antarctic snows.

The second volume includes the explanations given by Dr. Anderson why it was impossible for the relief expedition to start earlier on its search for Captain Scott and his men.

The closing entries in the diary are reproduced in facsimile, and constitute a remarkable proof of the iron nerve of the man who led the way to the South Pole and set an example for all time to come to quiet heroism and courage in the face of an appalling end. Though they were penned when he was very near his death, the words show no signs of tremor or of weakness.

Some characteristic passages from the diary, hitherto unpublished, are given as follows: "We are very near the end, but we have not, and won't lose our good cheer."

"We have had four days of storm in the tent, and nowhere is there food or fuel."

"We had intended to finish ourselves when things proved like this, but we have decided to die naturally in our tracks."

"We are showing that Englishmen still can die with a bold spirit, fighting to the end."

"It will be known we have accomplished our object of reaching the pole, and that we have done everything possible, even to sacrificing ourselves, in order to save our ill companions."

"I may not have proved a great explorer, but we have done the greatest march ever made and come very near to success."

These heroic words are part of a letter written a few days before the end of the long struggle made by Captain Scott and his companions.

Capt. Scott, next to the blizzards and the phenomenally low temperatures on the barrier, ascribed the disaster mainly to the astonishing failure of the strongest man in the party, Petty Officer Evans, a physical giant. A study of the diaries shows the course and causes of the failure.

The first reference, Jan. 17, 1912, to Evans' frozen hands, says this compelled premature camping. A week later Evans' nose was frozen and his fingers badly blistered. Scott wrote: "He is a good deal run down. He is very annoyed with himself, which is not a good sign."

On Jan. 29, 1912, he recorded: "Evans dislodged two fingernails. His hands are really bad, and to my surprise he shows signs of losing heart over it. He has not been cheerful since the accident."

There are several subsequent similar entries. On Feb. 17, Scott writes: "A very terrible day. Evans looked a little better after a good sleep. He declared, as he always did, that he was quite well, and started in his place in the traces, but half an hour later he worked his ski-shoes adrift and had to leave the sledge. The surface was awfully soft, recently fallen snow clogging the ski and runners at every step."

"After we had stopped an hour

Oates last thoughts were of his mother, but immediately before leaving he took pride in thinking that his regiment would be pleased at the bold way he met his death. We all hope to meet the end in a similar spirit, and assuredly the end is not far."

"A perusal of the diaries leaves no doubt that the discovery of Captain Amundsen's triumph depressed the entire party to such an extent that it must be reckoned as a part of cause of the disaster. A typical entry is: "The Norwegians forestalled us. It is a terrible disappointment. I am very sorry for my loyal companions. We must hasten home with all the speed we can compass. All the day dreams must go. It will be a wearisome return. Well, we must turn our back now on the goal of our ambition and must face our 800 miles of solid dragging—a desperate struggle. I wonder if we can do it."

"This is the first note of despondency. Thereafter they are fairly frequent. For nearly a month before the end the despondency is almost unrelieved. Although he kept the knowledge to himself, it seems evident that Captain Scott knew they were all doomed."

Dr. Atkinson's report concludes: "I bid a final farewell to the resting place of three heroes, there alone in their greatness. They will lie without change or bodily decay, with the most fitting tomb in the world above them."

In addition to his diary, when dying Captain Scott wrote letters to friends and relatives.

An extract from his last letter to his wife is: "Make our boy interested in natural history if you can. It is better than games. Keep him in the open air. Above all you must guard him against indolence. Make him a strenuous man. The great God has called me. Take comfort in that I die in peace with the world and myself, and not afraid."

Wilson, Bowers and I went for the sledges. Oates remained with him. When we returned he was practically unconscious. When we got him into the tent he was quite comatose and died quietly at 12.30 in the morning.

"On discussing the symptoms we think he began to get weaker just before we reached the Pole. The downward path was accelerated first by the shock of the frostbitten fingers, later by falls during the rough travelling on the glacier, and further by the loss of sleep. I think it certain that he must have injured his brain by the fall."

It was a terrible thing to lose a companion in this way, but calm reflection shows that there could not have been a better ending to the terrible anxiety of the last week. We were in a desperate pass with a sick comrade on our hands at such a distance from home."

Things are steadily going downhill, Oates' foot is worse. He has rare pluck. He must know he can never get through. He asked Wilson if he had a chance, Wilson had to say he did not know.

"As a point of fact, Oates has none. Apart from him, even if he went under now, I doubt whether we could get through. With great care we might have a dog's chance, but no more. The weather conditions are awful, and our gear gets steadily more icy and difficult to manage."

"At the same time poor Oates is the greatest hindrance, and keeps on waiting in the morning until we have breakfast, when the only wise policy is to be up and away at once. Poor chap, it is too pathetic to watch him. One cannot but try to cheer him up."

On March 11 Scott wrote: "We are very near the end one feels. What we or he will do, God only knows. We discussed the matter after breakfast. He is a brave fellow and understands the situation, but he practically asked for advice. Nothing could be said but to urge him to march as long as he could."

"One satisfactory result of the discussion was that I practically ordered Wilson to hand over the means to us of ending our troubles, so that any of us may know how to do so. Wilson had no choice between doing so with our ransacking his medical case."

"We have thirty opium tablets apiece, and Wilson is left with a tube of morphine."

This tragic decision was revoked, for in the last entry but one in the diary Scott wrote: "We must be near the end. I have decided it shall be natural. We shall march for the depot with or without our effect, and die in our tracks."

The diary says of Oates' end: "Oates last thoughts were of his mother, but immediately before leaving he took pride in thinking that his regiment would be pleased at the bold way he met his death. We all hope to meet the end in a similar spirit, and assuredly the end is not far."

Evans came up again, but very slowly. Half an hour later he dropped out again on the same plea, and asked Bowers to lend him a piece of string. I cautioned him to come on as quickly as he could. He answered cheerfully, as I thought. We had to push on and the remainder of us were forced to pull very hard and were sweating heavily.

"Seeing Evans a long way astern we camped for lunch. There was no alarm at first. Evans still not appearing we looked out and saw him still far off. By this time we were alarmed and started back on skis."

"I was the first to reach the poor man. I was shocked by his appearance. He was on his knees, his hands uncovered and frost bitten, a wild look in his eyes. I asked what was the matter. He replied with slow speech that he did not know; he thought he must have fainted."

"We got him on his feet, but after two or three steps he sank down again and showed every sign of complete collapse."

"Wilson, Bowers and I went for the sledges. Oates remained with him. When we returned he was practically unconscious. When we got him into the tent he was quite comatose and died quietly at 12.30 in the morning."

It was a terrible thing to lose a companion in this way, but calm reflection shows that there could not have been a better ending to the terrible anxiety of the last week. We were in a desperate pass with a sick comrade on our hands at such a distance from home."

Things are steadily going downhill, Oates' foot is worse. He has rare pluck. He must know he can never get through. He asked Wilson if he had a chance, Wilson had to say he did not know.

"As a point of fact, Oates has none. Apart from him, even if he went under now, I doubt whether we could get through. With great care we might have a dog's chance, but no more. The weather conditions are awful, and our gear gets steadily more icy and difficult to manage."

"At the same time poor Oates is the greatest hindrance, and keeps on waiting in the morning until we have breakfast, when the only wise policy is to be up and away at once. Poor chap, it is too pathetic to watch him. One cannot but try to cheer him up."

On March 11 Scott wrote: "We are very near the end one feels. What we or he will do, God only knows. We discussed the matter after breakfast. He is a brave fellow and understands the situation, but he practically asked for advice. Nothing could be said but to urge him to march as long as he could."

"One satisfactory result of the discussion was that I practically ordered Wilson to hand over the means to us of ending our troubles, so that any of us may know how to do so. Wilson had no choice between doing so with our ransacking his medical case."

"We have thirty opium tablets apiece, and Wilson is left with a tube of morphine."

This tragic decision was revoked, for in the last entry but one in the diary Scott wrote: "We must be near the end. I have decided it shall be natural. We shall march for the depot with or without our effect, and die in our tracks."

The diary says of Oates' end: "Oates last thoughts were of his mother, but immediately before leaving he took pride in thinking that his regiment would be pleased at the bold way he met his death. We all hope to meet the end in a similar spirit, and assuredly the end is not far."

"A perusal of the diaries leaves no doubt that the discovery of Captain Amundsen's triumph depressed the entire party to such an extent that it must be reckoned as a part of cause of the disaster. A typical entry is: "The Norwegians forestalled us. It is a terrible disappointment. I am very sorry for my loyal companions. We must hasten home with all the speed we can compass. All the day dreams must go. It will be a wearisome return. Well, we must turn our back now on the goal of our ambition and must face our 800 miles of solid dragging—a desperate struggle. I wonder if we can do it."

"This is the first note of despond-

ency. Thereafter they are fairly frequent. For nearly a month before the end the despondency is almost unrelieved. Although he kept the knowledge to himself, it seems evident that Captain Scott knew they were all doomed."

Dr. Atkinson's report concludes: "I bid a final farewell to the resting place of three heroes, there alone in their greatness. They will lie without change or bodily decay, with the most fitting tomb in the world above them."

In addition to his diary, when dying Captain Scott wrote letters to friends and relatives.

An extract from his last letter to his wife is: "Make our boy interested in natural history if you can. It is better than games. Keep him in the open air. Above all you must guard him against indolence. Make him a strenuous man. The great God has called me. Take comfort in that I die in peace with the world and myself, and not afraid."

Wilson, Bowers and I went for the sledges. Oates remained with him. When we returned he was practically unconscious. When we got him into the tent he was quite comatose and died quietly at 12.30 in the morning."

"On discussing the symptoms we think he began to get weaker just before we reached the Pole. The downward path was accelerated first by the shock of the frostbitten fingers, later by falls during the rough travelling on the glacier, and further by the loss of sleep. I think it certain that he must have injured his brain by the fall."

It was a terrible thing to lose a companion in this way, but calm reflection shows that there could not have been a better ending to the terrible anxiety of the last week. We were in a desperate pass with a sick comrade on our hands at such a distance from home."

Annual Meeting of S.U.F.

Last night in the British Hall, the S.U.F. held their annual meeting. There was a large attendance of members and much interest was manifested. The election of officers for the ensuing year was conducted by the Grand Chief Officer, and resulted as follows:

W.M.—Bro. Gardner.
Chief Officer—Bro. J. Coaker.
Second Officer—Bro. A. Whitten.
Quartermaster—Bro. Geo. Summers.
Purser—Bro. W. R. Smith.
Chaplain—Bro. A. Johnston.
Secy.—Bro. A. E. Withycombe.
Lookout—Bro. William Duffitt.

At the next meeting the committee will be appointed. A brief discussion took place on the annual spree which comes off in January. The meeting then adjourned.

One Dose Relieves A Cold—No Quinine

"Pape's Cold Compound" makes you feel fine at once—Don't stay stuffed-up! Take it now. Relief comes instantly.

A dose taken every two hours until three doses are taken will end gripe misery and break up a severe cold either in the head, chest, body or limbs.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffing! Ease your throbbing head! Nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine.

Injured on Board S.S. Kyle.

Rev. Mr. Andrews, who was a passenger on board the s.s. Kyle, on her last trip north, on his way to the Labrador coast, where he intended to do missionary work, met with an accident that will incapacitate him for a time. Mr. Andrews was seated in the smoking room of the steamer when a huge sea came on board, knocked him off his legs and dashed him against a table. As a result he was seriously hurt and suffered much pain. An examination showed that one of his knees was broken. He is now receiving the careful attention of Dr. Phillips, of the Grenfell Mission. The many friends of Rev. Mr. Andrews hope that the mishap will not impede his missionary labors for long.

Cured Diseases of the Kidneys

Once Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills were introduced into the family and their efficiency becomes known they are usually found too valuable to do without. For everyday ailments arising from liver and bowel disorders they bring relief promptly, and when complicated diseases of the kidneys and liver develop they often prove a successful cure after doctors have failed. As an illustration you may read the following, which was received a few days ago:

Mrs. John Wright, 53 McGee street, Toronto, Ont., states: "We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for ten years, and would not be without them. My husband suffered from kidney trouble, and after taking treatment from several doctors without receiving any benefit, tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which worked a complete cure. Since that time we have used them for all stomach and liver disorders."

Enlistment Story

FROM THE STATES.

Special to The Evening Telegram.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 2. The secret enlistment of volunteers for the Ulster army has been going on at Minneapolis for weeks. According to a local Ulster man, splendid officers now in the city are said to have come from Winnipeg, through the headquarters are at Minneapolis. They are said to be trying to enroll 5,000 Minneapolis men under a pledge to go to Ireland whenever the call is made and take up arms to help Ulster to resist Home Rule.

Queen Mother's Birthday

LONDON, Dec. 2.

King George provided a surprise for the Queen Mother, Alexandra, on the observance of her sixty-ninth birthday yesterday, by deploying 25,000 officers and men of the British Army, on a moving picture screen at Sandringham House. The pictures, taken under the authority of the War Office, delighted the King's mother, as well as Queen Mary and other members of the Royal Family who witnessed the private show.

Healthy and Unhealthy Lighting.

Gas, it may be said, vitiate the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not vitiate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:—

Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this, amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas in its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson B. Hurry.

He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Duffield, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.

I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days, was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which with the march of civilization, has its illumination changed from gas to electricity, the latter been employed with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Vivian B. Lewes, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—nov8,tt

Wedding Bells.

WHITEWAY-POMEROY.

Yesterday afternoon a pretty wedding took place at Brigus at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. George Pomeroy. The contracting parties were Dr. Charles Whiteway, of Musgrave Harbor, and Miss Ida Pomeroy. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. H. Maddock, assisted by the Rev. W. Grimes. The bride, who was charmingly dressed, was given away by her brother Mr. William Pomeroy, and attended by Miss Elsie Bartlett, who was also handsomely attired. The groom was supported by Dr. M. C. Roberts. Following the ceremony a reception was held, at which the health of the bride and groom was enthusiastically honored. Then the bridal party left by train for St. John's, and will take passage by the S. S. Sagona for Musgrave Harbor, their future home. The bride joins in the congratulations extended.

Stafford's Liniment.

Numerous testimonials have been received in reference to "Stafford's Liniment." Below we publish a few of them:—

"I have used almost two bottles of your Liniment and must say it is all you claim it to be."

"I have used your Liniment and have found it to be the best Liniment I ever used."

"We have used your Liniment in our home and find that it is as represented."

"I can highly recommend your Queen of Liniments. My mother has been an invalid for 2 years, she praised it more than any other remedy she ever used."

"We have used a great many bottles of your Liniment in our family, and selling dozens. We find it the best, and everyone uses it say the same."

The above Testimonials are the exact words copied from letters which we have in our possession, and can be seen by calling our Drug Store, Theatre Hill—dec11

Goodyear Glove RUBBERS!

A Billion Dollars Lost Each Year. Dry Feet Could Save The Most of it.

The International Congress on Tuberculosis that met in Washington last winter discussed the financial side of consumption as well as the medical aspect. Prof. Fisher, Professor of Political Economy at Yale, made the statement that tuberculosis cost the United States a billion dollars a year. He based his figures on the cost of doctors' fees, medicine, nurses, etc., and added the loss of earnings during the patient's period of sickness. He went into the question in great detail, and nobody disputed his figures.

A billion dollars every twelve months! That's a tremendous national loss, and all the doctors agree that this disease could soon be stamped out as effectively as yellow fever and cholera have been. There are four very simple things that will prevent consumption: Pure air, wholesome food, cleanliness and exercise. — THE BEST WAY TO AVOID COLDS, ESPECIALLY IN WINTER, IS TO KEEP THE FEET DRY.

There were 250,000 deaths from tuberculosis in the United States last year. Probably one-half of those unfortunate people would have been alive and well today if they had taken so small a precaution as putting on a pair of rubbers every time they went out into the rain or snow.

Obituary.

MRS. G. J. CARTER.
There passed away at her late residence on Rennie's Mill Road, yesterday afternoon, a prominent lady in the person of Mrs. G. J. Carter. The deceased lady was the youngest daughter of the late Alan Goodridge, the founder of the large firm so well known by the fishermen of Newfoundland. She had been in poor health for some time past, and death was not entirely unexpected. She was 58 years of age and her demise comes as a sudden blow to her husband, Mr. George J. Carter, and their six children, of whom the eldest is Mrs. Uphill, wife of the Rev. H. Uphill, Rector of St. Mary's. Mrs. Carter was an exemplary churchwoman, and was a familiar figure in all social and philanthropic circles. To the sorrowing relatives and many friends of the deceased, The Telegram offers sincere sympathy.

THE NICKEL THEATRE! MID-WEEK PROGRAMME!

A CRY FOR HELP—A most remarkable Biograph drama, the story illustrating in a beautiful manner the acme of success in a young physician's career and his great sorrow at losing his first charity patient. Many exciting scenes. A most interesting production.

MIKE'S BRAINSTORM—A very funny Circus Comedy Picture, during the progress of which is introduced one of Lockhart's famous trained animals.

A MAN AMONG MEN—A strong drama by the Selig Players. The title is enough.

A BIT OF BLUE RIBBON—A Vitagraph, illustrating horse-thievery in the "Wild and Woolly West." Some wonderful horse-back riding is seen in this "Picture of the Plains."

MUSICALS—Arthur Priestman Cameron in "Peculiar Songs," with Professor McCarthy at the Piano.

MRS. J. GALLIVAN.
There passed away on Monday a respected resident of Hoylestown in the person of Mrs. Gallivan, wife of Mr. J. Gallivan, cooper. Deceased had been ailing for quite a while. She was of a very quiet and unostentatious disposition. She is survived by a husband, two sons and three daughters, besides a large number of relatives and friends, to all of whom sincere sympathy is expressed.

MRS. DR. J. E. MULLONEY.
The death took place at Kentville on Sunday night at 9.30 o'clock, of Jeanie Louise, widow of the late Dr. J. E. Mulloney, of Kentville, aged 73 years. Mrs. Mulloney had been in her usual health until Wednesday noon when a shock of paralysis rendered her unconscious. She hardly rallied afterwards, except some slight signs of recognition, and passed peacefully away, the change being so gradual as to be hardly perceptible. She was a lady who presided over her home with much grace and kindly attention and will be much missed in Kentville, where she has resided nearly all her life. She was formerly Miss Bird, of Boston, and leaves three children, Dr. R. B. Mulloney, of Halifax, and Miss Laura and Fred who reside at home, she leaves one sister, Mrs. Doty, of Boston. The funeral service was held from the residence on Wednesday at 2.30 p.m., burial at St. Joseph's Cemetery.—Western Chronicle, Nov. 27.

Stowaways Brought Back

Two boys, one of tender years, who had decided to spend the winter months in a more southern clime than this and who made up their minds to take a cheap trip across the "herring pond," attempted to carry out their plans by stowing away in the schooner Dorothy Baird, which sailed yesterday for Pernambuco with a fish cargo. The vessel had just moved off from Baird's dock and was going down the harbor when it was discovered that the stowaways were on board. A boat came off from the shore, took off the lads and brought them to land.

S S Sagona Back

The S. S. Sagona Capt. Barbour, arrived from the Northward at 3.30 p.m. yesterday, after a stormy passage. She brought a large freight and 63 passengers, 32 in saloon and 31 second class. Several delegates from the F. P. U. Councils arrived by her to attend the Convention now taking place.

A Dry Joke.

The guard had told the passenger very frankly that he was not a walking encyclopaedia, neither was he a general information bureau. The passenger sought information elsewhere, but he remarked that he would get even with the guard. That evening his opportunity came.

The air was chilly as the train drew up at a sleepy country station. "Guard," whispered the passenger, as that official passed his window, "would you like to take a nip?" The guard glanced furtively up and down the platform, and seeing that the coast was clear, approached the carriage window. "I have no objection," he said confidently. "It's very kind of you, sir."

"Right you are," said the passenger, general information bureau. The passenger said this!—Weekly Scotsman.

HERRING CARGOES.—The schooner William Mathieson has left Bonne Bay for Gloucester with 1,300 barrels of herring, and the schooner Original left for the American port with 1,625 barrels of herring.

INFECTIOUS DISEASE.—Excepting the few cases of scarlet fever and typhoid at Bonaville, there is no infectious disease in the outports. The smallpox outbreak at English Harbor, Fortune Bay, is stamped out.

Xmas Novelties, Xmas Cards, Calendars, etc.

now on exhibition and for sale at Parson's Art Store.

These Calendars and Cards are, without exception the daintiest ever shown in St. John's, and are illustrated with a genuine photograph, not a photo-mechanical reproduction. The series comprise views of St. John's, pretty bits on the Humber River, magnificent scenes in Codroy Valley, a variety of new views in Bowring Park, and many others. A good variety of Newfoundland views finished in Sepia & Water Colour, framed and unframed, suitable for Xmas presents or to decorate your own home, can be seen at this store.

We have a splendid line of Silver Frames, Trinket Boxes, Silver Vases, Marmalade Jars, Cigarette Cases, etc., etc., per onally selected in London, which we are selling at prices that defy competition.

To every purchaser of one of our Hal marked Lockets or Pendants, we will supply a miniature in Monochrome free.

Be sure and see our windows to-night and remember that for Xmas Novelties and Gifts at reasonable prices,

PARSONS' ART STORE IS THE PLACE.

The New Wall and Ceiling Material

BEAVER BOARD

It takes the place of lath, plaster and wall-paper in every type of building, new or remodeled.

It builds a new room inside the old one; turns cellar or attic into comfortable rooms in an incredibly short time; makes old outbuildings serviceable, etc.

It costs less than lath and plaster, looks better and lasts longer.

Made entirely of selected woods, reduced to fibrous form and pressed into panels of many convenient sizes, with beautiful pebbled surface.

Adapted to durable and handsome decoration in tiling, stencil work, hand-painting, etc.

Quickly and easily put up full instructions in every bundle.
