After the Ball, The Mystery Solved at Last.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

When the Heart is Young.

The summer was a dream of happiness to Maud. At night she scarcely slept for joy; the days seemed to fly past on the wings of love and happiness.

Sir Fielding, relieved of his load of anxiety concerning the estate, was serenely happy in his library and the knowledge of his darling's gladness, and felt that his lines had fallen in pleasant places in the twilight of his departing days.

So shines the sun and murmur the gentle breezes in the calm before a storm.

In August Lord and Lady Crownbrilliant returned to the Retreat, and Chudleigh took up his quarters at the hall.

His appearance scarcely harmonized with the general aspect of happiness, for he was looking pale and worn, and what was worse, restless and unhappy.

Maurice Durant, who drove Maud over to the Retreat in a tiny little carriage drawn by a pair of pure Arabian ponies—his own gift—noticed the same expression on the beautiful face of Lady Crownbrilliant, and grew grave and silent, for his keen eyes read their secret at a glance.

CHAPTER XXXIV.
Giving Up the Struggle.

Tempted himself, turns tempter, too—
Prior.

"WHAT I s-say is this," stammered Lord Crownbrilliant, "poking his wingless in midair, and looking over at her ladyship with a stolid, would-be severe stare in his glass-framed eye. "I s-say that it's not b-becoming of the Countess of Crownbrilliant to interfere with s-such things."

The countess raised her eyebrows, and shot a cold, imperious glance from her dark eyes at his fair, foppish face.

"D-do you hear me?" he snapped, angered by her silence.

"I heard you," she said, simply.

"Then w-why d-don't you answer?"

"I have little or nothing to say. I obey, but cannot argue."

"Very unlike your s-sex usually," sneered his lordship, sticking his fork into the salmon viciously.

Then, after eating in a disagreeable, peevish sort of way that was particularly unpleasant to witness, he commenced again, in a mocking, sneering tone:

"F-flower shows!—w-wildcousins. W-what next? What on earth d-do the p-people want with flower shows? It's all deuced n-nonsense, and I won't have you mixing yourself up in it."

Still not a word—the eyes fixed upon the plate, the white-gloved hands toying with the carved-handle of the silver knife.

"I k-know where you get it from—it's one of C-Chichester's c-confounded, stupid notions. I—I tell you what it is, my lady, you're a deal too thick with—"

"My lord!" she said, at last, with flashing eyes and heaving bosom.

"D-don't shriek at me like that. I w-won't s-stand it," snapped Lord Crownbrilliant. "It's true, and you k-know it. He's always here. I'm

Women Once Invalids

Now in Good Health Through Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Say it is Household Necessity. Doctor Called it a Miracle.

All women ought to know the wonderful effects of taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound even on those who seem hopelessly ill. Here are three actual cases:

Harrisburg, Penn.—"When I was single I suffered a great deal from female weakness because my work compelled me to stand all day. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for that and was made stronger by its use. After I was married I took the Compound again for a female trouble and after three months I passed what the doctor called a growth. He said it was a miracle that it came away as one generally goes under the knife to have them removed. I never want to be without your Compound in the house."—Mrs. FRANK KNOBL, 1642 Fulton St., Harrisburg, Penn.

Hardly Able to Move.

Albert Lea, Minn.—"For about a year I had sharp pains across my back and hips and was hardly able to move around the house. My head would ache and I was dizzy and had no appetite. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, I am feeling stronger than for years. I have a little boy eight months old and am doing my work all alone. I would not be without your remedies in the house as there are none like them."—Mrs. F. E. YOST, 611 Water St., Albert Lea, Minn.

Three Doctors Gave Her Up.

Pittsburg, Penn.—"Your medicine has helped me wonderfully. When I was a girl 18 years old I was always sickly and delicate and suffered from irregularities. Three doctors gave me up and said I would go into consumption. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and with the third bottle began to feel better. I soon became regular and I got strong and shortly after I was married. Now I have two nice stout healthy children and am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. CLEMENTINA DURRING, 34 Gardner St., Troy Hill, Pittsburg, Penn.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice.—It will be confidential.

perfectly sick of seeing him. Besides, you ought to know your position better than to encourage another man who was known to have been sweet upon you."

The countess arose, white and majestic.

"You remind me of my position, my lord; give me leave to retire, or I may forget it, as you forget yours."

His lordship, delighted at the anger he had at last aroused, sipped his wine and grinned.

"My p-position. I can't vewly well forget it, not having had a vewly much worse, my lady. Now, you—"

But she had gone, her long, silken dress rustling behind her like a snake, and his lordship, with a cunning grin, refilled his glass.

"P'woud as she is, I'll bwing her under yet. As for C-Chichester, I'll stop his little game with a s-snap of my fingers."

Two hours later, Carlotta, Countess Crownbrilliant, saw from her dim corner at the window of her own room the stalwart figure of Chudleigh Chichester cantering his favorite mare up the carriage drive.

Her heart beat fast, and she arose, trembling.

If they met, with her husband in his present mood, what might not be the consequences?

She knew the weak, aggravating, childish peevishness of the man who owned her, and she knew also the quick, hot temper of the man who loved her, heated and strained to its extreme tension by that very love.

Ringling the bell with a quivering hand, she bade her maid show Mr. Chichester into the drawing-room.

and, hastily bathing her tear-swollen eyes, stole down the stairs.

The smile that always lighted up Chudleigh's face sprang to his eyes when she entered and held out her hand, but it gave place to a heavy frown as he murmured:

"Crying again? No denial, Carlotta; you cannot hide it. You forget I know every expression of your face as a priest knows his missal. What has happened? Has he—"

"Oh, Chudleigh, Chudleigh," she breathed, "let go my hand. You—you must not come here again—you must not. See—oh, heavens, do not look so! Oh, Chudleigh, Heaven forgive me—but—I love you so."

And the unhappy woman hid her face in her hands.

"Heaven forgive you, my darling!" he murmured. "How have you sinned, save in giving yourself to this—this man? And Heaven has forgiven you that long since. Oh, Carlotta, if—"

"Hush! What was that?" she cried, starting and clutching his arm, as a crash came from the dining-room.

"Is he there?" asked Chudleigh, in a whisper.

She nodded.

"Let us go to him—he may come here, and—"

Chudleigh opened the door, and followed her into the hall.

Entering the dining-room, they saw that his lordship had fallen asleep across the table, having knocked down and broken a couple of glasses in his descent.

Carlotta shuddered, and Chudleigh's face grew awful in its contempt.

It was too fearful, this looking helplessly on at the spectacle of the man who had married the woman he loved lying drunk across the dinner table.

"Come away," he whispered, turning to the door, with Carlotta on his arm.

But the rustle of her dress awoke his lordship, who started to his feet, and, with bloodshot eyes, stared drunkenly at Chudleigh.

"Hello, Ch-Chichester," he hiccupped, "you're here, again—hic—are you? I thought I told you," swerving around with half-closed eyes to the shrinking Carlotta. "I thought I—hic—told you that I w-wouldn't have my f-fine gentleman here again, eh? Then, what the d-dence does he do here? I'm the master of my own house, I'm your h-husband, I'm—"

Rambling away into a string of incoherencies, he fell into the chair again, sweeping a fresh lot of glass from the table with his helpless arm.

Chudleigh strode to the bell, his face white and his teeth clinched.

"Tell his lordship's valet to come here at once," he said to the servant, and, closing the door upon the drunken peer, he led the trembling Carlotta to the drawing-room. Then, as she sank upon a couch, he fell on his knees beside her, and, seizing her hand, said, in a hurried, tremulous whisper:

"My darling Carlotta, I cannot—you cannot—bear it longer. It would be cruel, it would be wicked to leave you in his power. Carlotta, we must fly—fly to some distant land. Oh, my darling, do not hesitate. To-morrow night I will have a post-chaise at the end of the lane; we will start from the Warrington Station, and reach Paris in a few hours. From Paris we will go to Italy—Italy—think, my darling. Oh, Carlotta, say yes. Stay! do not speak; place your hand in mine. Ah, you will come, away from suffering, darling. Leave all to me. Leave all to me, my own, my own!"

CHAPTER XXXV.
Twixt Right and Wrong.

Our wills and fates do so contrary run
That our devices still are overthrown.
Such an act makes marriage vows
As false as dicer's oaths.

So let him rest, his faults lie gently on him.
—Shakespeare.

THE following morning, Maurice Durant, on his way to the rectory, which an army of workmen were making habitable, met Chudleigh riding at full gallop in the direction of the hall, looking flurried and heated.

He pulled up as he saw Maurice, and said:

"Going to the rectory?"

"Yes. And you?" answered Maurice Durant, fixing him with his keen, dark eyes.

"To the hall," replied Chudleigh. "I have just come from Warrington, where I heard news that will necessitate my immediate return to town."

As he said it, his eyes dropped before Maurice's searching ones, and the keen observer, used to reading men's faces at a glance, saw that something was wrong.

"Indeed!" he said. "Some of your politics going wrong? Your party in danger?"

"N-no—that is, yes," said Chudleigh, with some little confusion.

Maurice walked up to the mare, and, patting it with his strong, white hand, said, significantly, looking straight up into the younger man's downcast eyes:

"Be careful, my friend; take the advice of one who has suffered severely from his own errors, and shun the first one."

Mother! Your Child is Cross, Feverish, From Constipation

If tongue is coated, breath bad, stomach sour, clean liver and bowels.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a teaspoonful to-day often saves a sick child to-morrow.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated, indigestible food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle. Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

THE DARDANELLES EXPEDITION
LONDON, March 8.—The Dardanelles expedition, as Great Britain was concerned, undertaken on the initiative of Winston Spencer Churchill, then Lord of the Admiralty, according to a majority report of the Committee appointed to inquire into the responsibility for the expedition, which issued to-day. The report blames the conclusions reached as follows: The question of attacking Dardanelles was—on the initiative of Mr. Churchill—brought under consideration of the War Council November 25th, 1914, as an alternative method of defeating Egypt. It was reasonably assumed that it was much as all authorities concerned were prima-facie in favour of a military, rather than a naval attack, as that an attack inland rather than the latter character of not other circumstances led to modification in the programme, communication from the Russian Government of Jan. 2nd introduced fresh elements into the case, and the British Government considered that something must be done in response to it; and in this connection the question of attacking the Dardanelles was again raised. The Secretary of State for War declared that there were no troops immediately available for operations in the east, and the staff was accepted by the War Council, which took no steps to satisfy the selves by reports of the committee to what troops were available then in the near future. Had that been done the Commissioners of the Dardanelles would have been ascertained that sufficient troops would be available for a joint military and naval operation at an earlier date than supposed. This matter was not adequately investigated by the War Council. The question before the War Council on Jan. 13 was whether any action of a kind should be taken by the fleet alone; the navy being held to be the only force available. The military arguments which were adduced to the War Council in favour of prompt and effective action, if such were practicable, were valid and of the highest importance, but the practicality of whatever action was proposed was of equal importance. Mr. Churchill appears to have advocated an attack on ships at once before the War Council.

THE DARDANELLES EXPEDITION.

LONDON, March 8. The Dardanelles expedition, as far as Great Britain was concerned, was undertaken on the initiative of Col. Winston Spencer Churchill, then First Lord of the Admiralty, according to a majority report of the Commission appointed to inquire into the responsibility for the expedition, which was issued to-day. The report summarizes the conclusions reached as follows: The question of attacking the Dardanelles was on the initiative of Mr. Churchill—brought under the consideration of the War Council on November 25th, 1914, as an ideal method of defending Egypt. It may be reasonably assumed that inasmuch as all authorities concerned were prima-facie in favor of a joint military, rather than a purely naval attack, such an attack if undertaken at all, would have been of the former, rather than the latter character had not other circumstances led to a modification in the programme. A communication from the Russian Government of Jan. 2nd introduced fresh elements into the case, and the British Government considered that something must be done in response to it; and in this connection the question of attacking the Dardanelles was again raised. The Secretary of State for war declared that there was no troops immediately available for operations in the east, and his statement was accepted by the War Council who took no steps to satisfy themselves by reports of the estimate as to what troops were available then or in the near future. Had that been done the Commissioners think it would have been ascertained that sufficient troops would be available for a joint military and naval operation at an earlier date than supposed. But this matter was not adequately investigated by the War Council, thus the question before the War Council on Jan. 13 was whether any action of any kind should be taken by the fleet alone; the navy being held to be the only force available. The political arguments which were adduced to the War Council in favor of prompt and effective action, if such were practicable, were valid and of the highest importance, but the practicability of whatever action was proposed was of equal importance. Mr. Churchill appears to have advocated an attack by ships at once before the War Council on a certain amount of half-hearted and hesitating expert opinion which favored a tentative or progressive scheme beginning with an attack upon the outposts. This attack, if successful, was to be followed by further operations against the main defences of the narrows. There does not appear to have been direct support or direct opposition from the responsible naval and military advisers, Lord Fisher and Sir James Wolfe Murray, as to the practicability of carrying on the operations as approved by the War Council, viz., to bombard the Gallipoli Peninsula and the Dardanelles with Constantinople as the objective. The First Sea Lord and Sir Arthur Wilson, who was the only naval adviser present at the War Council, expressed no dissent. Lord Kitchener, who occupied a commanding position at the time the decision was taken, was in favor of the project. Both Lord Fisher and Sir Arthur Wilson would have preferred a joint naval and military attack, but they did not express it to the War Council, and were not asked to express any opinion on the subject and offered no objection to the naval operations as they considered them experimental and such as could be discontinued if the first results obtained were not satisfactory. The Commissioners think that there was an obligation, first on the First Lord, secondly on the Premier, thirdly on one other member of the War Council to see that the views of the naval advisers were clearly put before the Council and that the naval advisers should have expressed their views to the Council, whether asked or not, if they considered the project which the Council was about to adopt was impracticable from a naval point of view. After reviewing the situation at length the committee expressed the opinion that the War Council should have had more frequent meetings, and adds, "We are of opinion that Lord Kitchener did not sufficiently avail himself of the services of his general staff with the result that more work was undertaken by him than it was possible for one man to do, and confusion and want of efficiency resulted." We are unable to concur in the view set forth by Lord Fisher that it was his duty, if he differed from the chief of his department, to maintain silence at the Council or to resign. We think that the adoption of any such principle generally would impair the efficiency of the public service. We think that although the main object was not attained, certain important political advantages upon the nature of which we have already dwelt were secured by the Dardanelles expedition. Whether those advantages were worth the loss of life and treasure involved is and must always remain a matter of opinion.

ALL ABOUT KOLB.

MEXICO CITY, March 8. Inquiry to-day concerning F. Kolb, whose arrest in Hoboken followed the finding of bombs and explosives in his room, revealed the fact that a man of that name arrived in Vera Cruz in 1914, when the constitutionalist army headed by General Carranza, made its headquarters there. According to General Juan Merigo, who commanded an artillery corps of the constitutionalist army, Kolb bore a passport signed by Count Von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador in Washington. He said he was a German reservist and had recently been in South America. General Merigo says the man claimed to be a machine gun operator and tried to join his corps, but permission for him to do so was refused. Later the man came to Mexico City and tried again to join the army, but without success. General Merigo says he believed Kolb then went north, probably to Tampico Oil Fields.

HAD CHRONIC INDIGESTION THOUGHT SHE WOULD DIE.

After Years of Suffering Attributes Cure to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Eating too much or using foods that do not agree are the usual causes of indigestion. The trouble usually begins not in the stomach, but in the liver, since it devolves on this organ to filter the excess waste matter from the system. Now, since Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the greatest of liver regulators, it naturally follows that they are unexcelled as a cure for chronic indigestion. With the liver, kidneys and bowels active the poisonous waste matter is quickly removed from the system and there is nothing to interfere with the natural and healthful working of the organs of digestion. In this way only can lasting cure be effected. Mrs. Rebecca Elliott, Magnetawan, Ont., writes:—"I feel it my duty to write you in regard to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I had gastritis of the stomach for three years, and could get nothing to stop it until I

COUNT ZEPPELIN DEAD.

LONDON, March 8. Count Zeppelin is dead, according to a telegram transmitted by Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent. The despatch says the Count died this forenoon at Charlottenburg, near Berlin, from inflammation of the lungs.

AMENDMENT TO SENATE RULES PASSED.

WASHINGTON, March 8. The amendment to the Senate rules, giving two-thirds of its members power to prevent filibusters and limit debate, was passed late to-day by the Senate.

WITHIN TWELVE MILES OF BAGDAD.

LONDON, March 8. British cavalry are now within 12 miles of Bagdad. This was made known to-day by Major General Maurice, Chief Director of military operations at the war office. He said the Turks made no defence at Ctesiphon. It had been believed the Turks might offer serious resistance when Ctesiphon was reached. This is a town about twenty miles below Bagdad. The British war office reports indicated that little opposition was offered by the Turks since the fall of Kut-el-Amara on Feb. 26th. The British have advanced nearly 100 miles in that time.

THE NATIONALISTS.

LONDON, March 8. A manifesto issued to-day by the Nationalists, says the Constitutional movement may yet be saved, but only by the active assistance of all level-headed Nationalists in Ireland, especially the millions of the Irish race in the Dominions and the United States. To them we appeal, says the manifesto, to promptly use all means in their power to induce the British can steamer Mongolia, which left here on Feb. 28th with a cargo and 200 sacks of mail, arrived at London on March 5. The mail was transferred from the steamer St. Louis, which was to have left here on Feb. 3rd. The Mongolia was the first American vessel to have left New York with mail since the German war zone declaration. The British steamer Cretic, of the White Star Line, which sailed Feb. 6th arrived safely at Naples on March 5th. She carried 97 passengers and mail for the Azores and Mediterranean ports. Two guns were mounted on the French line passenger steamer Rochambeau, which arrived here to-day from Bordeaux. It is the first ship to arrive here with guns forward since the war began. An officer said no submarines were sighted, and other than running through the danger zone with lights out, the passage was the same as would have been experienced in peacetime. The Minnesota, the largest merchant ship flying the American flag, arrived here to-day from San Francisco by way of the Panama Canal. She will be placed on the trans-Atlantic service. After a year trading in the Pacific she was purchased recently from the Great Northern Railway by the International Mercantile Marine.

Government to deal with Ireland in accordance with the principles for which they are fighting in Europe. We especially appeal to America in this connection with a view to the application to Ireland of the great principles so clearly and splendidly enunciated in President Wilson's address to the Senate. The manifesto contains a declaration that the attitude adopted by Premier Lloyd George in the course of yesterday's debate in the House of Commons shows an entire change of position on the Ulster question and Home Rule question generally, and is a breach of faith with the Irish party and Irish nation. The Nationalists decided to send the manifesto to President Wilson and the Premiers of the British Dominions. The Nationalists at their meeting passed a resolution declaring that the Irish party should remain in London in its full strength. It further was decided that the party, while retaining its attitude towards the war, and remaining firmly convinced of the justice of the cause of the Entente Allies, felt bound to oppose the Government by all means in its power. Andrew Bonar Law told the members in the Commons this afternoon that he saw no advantage in giving facilities for a resumption of the Irish debate.

GETTING BETTER.

WASHINGTON, March 8. President Wilson who is suffering from a cold, remained in bed to-day by order of his physician. No engagements were made by the President for to-day and he will rest as much as possible during the next few days. President Wilson who has been confined to his bed with a cold since yesterday morning, was somewhat improved to-night.

MARCHING ON BAGDAD.

LONDON, March 8. An official statement issued to-night says the British forces found Ctesiphon evacuated and that cavalry spent Tuesday night nine miles south of Bagdad. Telegraphing Tuesday midnight, General Maude reported little opposition had been encountered by our pursuing troops Tuesday, though high wind and sand-storm rendered marching arduous. A Turkish force which attempted to oppose our advance Monday, evacuated its positions and by Tuesday morning our cavalry passing Ctesiphon, which was found to be unoccupied, bivouacked for the night near Bawi, six miles southeast of Diahah, which is situated at the confluence of the Diahah River and the Tigris, 8 miles from the southern outskirts of Bagdad. During Monday and Tuesday 85 Turks and a Turkish gun were captured.

Household Notes.

Always lay grape juice bottles on their sides so that the cork is covered with liquid and kept expanded. When storing raisins, place them on a tin plate in a hot oven. The raisins split and the stones come out more easily.

Prunes hidden in a meringue and put into the oven until the meringue is brown, make a good dessert. Keep the bowl of lump sugar well covered; it is amazing how much dust is flying in a dining room.

Dip the almonds or peanuts in white of egg, instead of butter, before salting them. The white should be slightly beaten. Brown bread spread with cream cheese is good at afternoon tea. And, incidentally, crystallized ginger goes very well with it.

The game, which was fast and interesting all through, was played under Canadian rules, in three 20 minute periods. The Victorias won by 6 goals to 2.

Though lack of practice was apparent, the has-beens at times displayed their old time vigour and their rushes were very effective. They were beaten by combination play.

There was also a ladies' match between the Reds and Whites, the latter winning by 3 goals to 0.

Messrs. J. Tobin and E. Jerrett acted as referees, and Mr. J. M. McKenzie timekeeper.

The C. C. C. band was present during the evening and rendered lively and patriotic airs.

Flowers for Every Home.

By RUTH CAMERON.

In a unique Boston school, founded to teach the science of home-making, where the girls put their theories into practice in houses run by themselves, one of the tasks allotted is to manage this house on an allowance of fifty cents a week. The manage this in various ways. One girl bought bulbs. Fifty cents buys ten narcissus bulbs, these will fill two bowls with starry beauty and the blossoming lasts ten days. Decorating a House With Six Jonquills. Another girl whose term of office as the family florist came in Jonquil time, bought half a dozen jonquills twice a week. Four of these with the green blades that come with them were put in a flower holder submerged in a bowl of water, and made a beautiful decoration for the dark dining table. The other two were placed in one flower vase on the living room mantel. The cleverest scheme was devised by a girl who was acquainted with the woods in winter. Two weeks before her term of office she went out into the woods and came home with her arms full of what the other girls called "bare twigs." When her turn came to decorate she had two big bronze vases full of maples and wild quince and dogwood just breaking into blossom. She had put the bare twigs in water in the sunshine and they had blossomed. If You Cannot Spare Fifty Cents. Of course there are many homes where fifty cents cannot be spared for flowers, especially in these days.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

Domestic science is the art of dressing up a piece of the neck of an aged cow so that it will look fit to eat. For thousands of years food was prepared in a thoughtless and extravagant manner, resulting in lopsided digestions and bankrupt husbands. When the Thirteen Colonies were still in their infancy the rugged, willowy neck of the domestic cow was not considered good for anything except to make side saddles and hair trunks. Our ancestors could not be induced to eat one of these necks, as nobody knew how to break its proud and stubborn spirit; and as a result enough cow was wasted every year to supply all the Ladies' Aid society suppers between the north and south poles. Domestic science, however, has solved this problem to the satisfaction of every vegetarian. Young girls who are about to get married are now given a course in domestic science and are allowed to experiment in a wild, free manner upon the appetites of their husbands. As a rule, the domestic science wife does the buying for the home, and the husband acquiesces with which she will bring four square meals out of a soup bone in an awe-inspiring spectacle. If every prospective bride were required to pass a rigid examination in domestic science before being led up to the floral arch there would be more husbands with money in the bank and a shrinking sensation around the waist line. Domestic science, when it is working well, can take the humble, front-lawn dandelion and convert it into a six course dinner. Great quantities of polite and affectionate husbands are being fed some form of bran mash every day, and in time become too weak and emaciated to resist. It is a remarkable evidence of woman's innate superiority that so many domestic science teachers are able to eat the denatured High school doughnut and get fat on it. Domestic science has one advantage—it discourages the pernicious habit of overeating in a raucous and engrossed tone of voice.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

There are many children who are merely not rugged and who require only special care and nourishment and well selected exercise and a watchful guardian against over-exertion, cold and the train of ills that result from overeating of the wrong sorts of food. The mother of such a little one will do well to make a study of food values. She will discover the relative merits of carbohydrates and nitrogenous foods. She will find what sort of nourishment produces fat, what flesh and what bone and muscle. She will not give the pale, pasty child, who needs whole meat and milk, all the starchy bread and cake it demands, nor the thin, sallow child, who ought to have baked potatoes, bread and butter and a reasonable amount of sugar, the beefsteak and pickles it seems to crave.

A New Blood-Food
Has Been Discovered
That Works Wonders

SAID TO PUT NEW LIFE INTO PEOPLE THAT ARE RUNDOWN.

For years doctors have been searching for a combination that would enable them to inject into thin blood the elements it lacked. This can now be done, and any weak-blooded person can quickly be made strong and well. Already a small army of ailing people has proved the merit of taking after each meal with a sip or two of water, two chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets. This is easily done, and even one week's use of this wonderful blood-food will prove how nourishing and strengthening and flesh-building the treatment is. Just think of it—Ferozone supplies the entire nervous system, removes the blood, makes it rich and red—gives the sort of aid that's needed in throwing off weakness and languor. Tens of thousands enjoy the advantages of renewed health through Ferrozone;—if you will only use it, you'll surely grow strong too; its beneficial action is noticed even in a weak. You see it goes right to work, removes the causes of the trouble and then quickly makes a cure. For those who sleep poorly and have nervous apprehensions, Ferrozone is a boon; it is a specialist in such cases. Where there is paleness, poor appetite and languor, Ferrozone makes the patient feel like new in a few days. In tiredness, nerve exhaustion, spring fever and debility, the power of Ferrozone is known from coast to coast and universally used with grand results. Let Ferrozone build you up, let it win you back to robust health—it will do so quickly if you give it the chance. Sold by all dealers. 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50. Remember the name Ferrozone. Macaroni can be combined with so many different things to make good dishes for winter, and it is nourishing and inexpensive. ASK FOR MINARD'S LINIMENT AND TAKE NO OTHER.

Bank Fishery.

Ice Destroys Gear But Prospects Are Bright.

Sub-Collector Furneaux, of Rose Blanche, reports to the Board of Trade that the total catch of codfish from Rose Blanche to Hr. LeCou was 5,139 qts., with 1,000 for last week. Four boats, 50 dories and skiffs, and 27 bankers are fishing, and prospects are the best for the season. Frozen herring and squid are being used for bait. The schooners did extraordinarily well, some securing as high as 500 qts. Codfish was never known to be so plentiful by schooners on the banks as it was during the week, and if the weather had been favourable all would have secured more than they could handle. The skiffs did fairly well, too, but the harbour being filled with ice, was a great hindrance to the Rose Blanche boats, and many of them had to fish from LeCou, which is an open harbour. The above estimated catch is only that secured by the shore boats, as it would be impossible to give any correct total for the schrs.

The Council's Regular Meeting.

Mayor Gosling presided at last night's meeting of the City Council. A communication was read from the Colonial Secretary stating that the matter of the telephone system had been left over by the Government till after the war. The Government will be written in relation to the $4 tax on telephones, and the whole matter will be considered by the Council.

Mr. Patrick English, an employee of the Council for 40 years, was given the maximum weekly pension. The $15,000 loan from the Government to complete the new water system has been granted.

It was also decided that the extension of the tarvia pavement on Duckworth Street will be continued this spring.

Mr. Sparks, LeMarchant Road, will have to furnish plans showing the boundary lines of his property before he can make improvement as outlined in his communication.

Mr. C. H. Hutchings, writing on behalf of the Trustees of the General Protestant Cemetery, asked for compensation on an arbitration on the cost of building a retaining wall made necessary by the widening of Waterford Bridge Road. The matter was referred to the Solicitor.

Mr. W. H. Rennie will furnish the guarantee asked by the Council in relation to property on Rennie's Mill Road. Mrs. Sarah Pope's plan for extension to factory was approved. Mr. W. J. Ryan wrote that he was, with the exception of a few minor sections, in favor of the new plumbing regulations. The license fee for master plumbers was reduced to $5 per annum and the journeymen's fee from $1 to 50c. The right of persons who avail of the Council's loan of $80 under the Small Homes' Act was discussed and will be dealt with later.

Citizens' Committee Left Homeless.

The forty-ninth regular meeting of the Citizens' Committee was held under unusual circumstances last night. As usual the regular guard assembled at the Board of Trade Rooms to find that their regular quarters had been occupied by the Master Builders' Association and the Recruiting Committee. Some of the members suggested an open air meeting, but Chairman A. Soper very kindly offered the use of his firm's office at 31 New Gower St., which was accepted and forthwith the homeless committee proceeded thither.

After Mr. Soper's office had been turned upside down to accommodate his guests, the meeting opened at 8.25 o'clock, over a dozen members being present. The Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting which were approved. Section 374 in relation to the building of close or terrace houses was deferred till the next night of meeting, when the expert opinion of a master builder and an architect, both members of the committee, who were unavoidably absent, will be given. Sections 375 to 381 inclusive which also came under the housing and building regulations were passed with slight amendments. Section 375, wherein it is stated, "the council shall have power to prescribe the heights of all or any of the several flats of storeys of any building" was amended to read that in no case can the council interfere when the height of a ceiling is above the minimum, providing the height of the whole building is in accordance with the building regulations.

Touching on section 376 it was the opinion of the majority of the Committee that all dwelling houses should have ladders, and fire escapes on buildings where numbers congregate. The meeting adjourned at 10.30 till Thursday, March 15th.

In Milady's Boudoir.

For a woman who is troubled with a neck and throat that are not the aids to her beauty she wishes, I would advise the following exercises: Lie flat on your back on a couch or a bed with the head hanging far down over the side, then bring the head up and over until the chin touches the chest. Repeat until tired. This will develop the muscles along the front of the throat.

Next, lie face downward, with the head still hanging far over and bring backward and forward as far as possible. Be sure to do it vigorously and the full limit, until you can stretch the head up and back. Repeat until tired as before and you will develop the muscles along the back of the neck.

Again stand erect and twist the head first to one side and then to the other. Stretch as far in each direction as possible. Now take a reclining position and elevate the body so you will rest on your head and heels. Rest your hand on the floor to retain your balance. Then let the body sway from side to side, so that the greater part of its weight rests upon the sides of your neck. This will fill out the hollows in the sides of your neck.

Sit before a desk or table with your hands resting firmly in front of you. Lay your forehead on your two hands and press forward and downward with your head as vigorously as possible. Now turn slightly so that the right elbow is on the table. Rest the right side of the head on the palm of the right hand and press sideways and downward with the head. Do the same with the left side of the head and the left hand.

To reduce a double chin stretch the neck and chin as far forward as possible, then try to touch the chin with the chest. This must not be just downward toward the chest, but must be out, with a hard pull on the under side of the chin.

Healing Wounds
by Washing and by Mathematics.

By R. J. Bjurstedt, in the March Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Undoubtedly the most important medical discovery made during the war is that of Doctor Carrel, of the Rockefeller Institute, who, working at Compiègne—just behind the battle line in northern France—has perfected a method of sterilizing wounds, so efficacious that, of the hundreds of patients that have so far been treated by it, only one has died. And this one, it is interesting to know, did not succumb to the original shell wound in the back for which he was brought to the hospital, but to a violent attack of pneumonia induced by his exposing himself at an open window in the absence of his attendant.

To effect the complete sterilization of a wound Doctor Carrel came to the conclusion that it would be necessary to carry the antiseptic to all parts, rather than only to the surface, as has been the case with the practices hitherto followed. For this purpose an apparatus was perfected, consisting of a glass receptacle, of about 2-qt. capacity, to be suspended several feet above the bed on which the patient under treatment is lying, and a rubber tube to carry the solution to the wound. On reaching the wound this tube divides and subdivides—by means of glass joints and elbows—into smaller tubes, which are buried in the torn and lacerated flesh under treatment. The small tubes are closed at the ends and perforated at intervals of every half inch or so with small round holes, so that whenever the solution is allowed to enter them the slight pressure which it is under from the elevation of the receptacle above the bed forces it out into and through all parts of the wound. Any excess of the solution drains off—carrying with it the germs of infection, and is absorbed by bandages, which are changed every time the wound is flushed—usually about every two hours.

The decrease of the bacteria of infection in the most terrible wounds under treatment by this "flushing" method astonished even Doctor Carrel and his assistants until they came to take its continued success as a matter of course. The bacteria are simply killed and washed away, where, under other treatments, they were left to be taken up by the already vitiated blood. The new way reduces the infection and, of course, hastens healing. Legs and arms that no surgeon would ever have dreamed of treating by anything but amputation in the past, are not only healed in from one to three weeks, but healed so thoroughly as to retain all their former usefulness. Men that would have been cripples for life—if they had been saved at all—under the usual treatments have gone from the Compiègne hospital direct to their regiments, appearing shortly after on the firing line. Perhaps in no military hospital in Europe is the cooperation between clinic and laboratory so complete as in the "Ambulance Carrel." A "smear" for microscopic examination is taken once a day from every wound under treatment, and a careful record is kept of the decrease in the bacteria of infection. Should these fail to decrease, the microscopic reveals the fact even before it would have been noticeable through a retardation in the rate of healing, and means are at once taken to find what is wrong and apply the remedy. The very day that the laboratory reports that a wound is free of infection, a longer and complete "flush" is given it with the solution, and it is closed for good. No provision for "draining" is necessary, as suppuration is at end. It is even practicable—and apparently desirable—to close a bacteria-free wound over a knitting bone. Once the infection is gone, the bone appears to knit all the faster for having the flesh closed over it.

Your Boys and Girls.

Children, not up to par physically, between babyhood and seven years may have oatmeal, farina and hominy, mush, whole wheat or cornmeal bread or cold muffins, white bread if not too fresh served with butter and once a day with pure jam. They should consume plenty of fresh milk and ripe fruit. Stewed fruit, not too sweet, should be given at supper time, fresh fruit early in the day.

They may have beef, mutton, and poultry, roasted, broiled or boiled but never fried. Baked potatoes are excellent for little folks and peas, beans and asparagus are the best vegetables. Eggs, poached, scrambled or soft boiled or in omelets or custards, are rich in nourishment. Delicate children should never be given hot breads, fried doughnuts, gridle cakes, rich gravies, highly seasoned foods, pickles, heavy preserves, tea or coffee.

Have on your pantry shelf several cans of condensed milk, and if the milkman is snowed under you are not without milk.

Top Notch "Buddy" Boot

The Wonderful "Boot With The Muscles"

Uncle Sam granted a patent on the legs of this famous boot. It is the lightest, strongest and best-looking short boot ever made. The "muscles" greatly strengthen the leg and at the same time keep the weight down. No other boot on the market has this "muscle" leg.

TOP NOTCH RUBBER FOOTWEAR

The wonderful boot shown above is only one member of the Top Notch family of rubber footwear that is just what its name implies—top notch in every way. Top Notch rubbers and anoles are the best-fitting, the best-looking and longest-lasting goods you can buy. We sell them.
