CHAPTER XXIX.

"Sorry!" he said. "I'd like to dance all the time with you."

"Never mind," she said, then, with averted eyes, she added: "You will be able to dance with Irene, Royce."

"Oh, yes," he replied, fastening his sleeve-link. "We are not husband and wife, you know."

"No," she said in a low voice. "Royce!"

"Well?" he responded, looking up quickly, for there was a touch of anxiety in her tone.

"You will keep near me as much as you can to-night? That will not be a breach of etiquette, will it?"

"Of course I will," he replied. "I shall have to trot about a great deal, but I will be with you as much as I can, though it strikes me rather forcibly that you will not be lonely."

Madge blushed faintly.

"If all the world were round me, and you were absent, I should feel lonely, Jack."

"She called him Jack now and again in moments like the present, when her great love for him revealed itself."

"Are you ready, Madge, dear?"

"I am going down to the ball-room to see if everything is right," said Irene. Then she stopped and uttered

"The Least Noise or Excitement Made Me Tremble," says Mrs. Beauclerk

Never before in the world's history have there been so many cases of nervous collapse, with "jumpy" nerves, accompanied by fits of depression, as since the Great War. This condition applies not only to men and women but to children. These run-down conditions affect every part of the human system, bringing indigestion, headaches, weakness, insomnia, anemia and finally, if not checked, that most insidious and dreaded disease, consumption. To protect the system, there is only one thing to do, tone and build up the body with Carnot. Carnot helped Mrs. Beauclerk. She says:

"I don't know how to express my gratitude to you for all that Carnot has done for me. I was terribly depressed. I had no appetite. The least exertion tired me. I couldn't sleep. The slightest noise or excitement made me tremble. My nerves were 'jumpy.' I was losing weight. Finally I consulted my doctor and he told me that I was completely run down and I needed a tonic. The best tonic for your case," said he, "is Carnot. I took Carnot for a month and I feel so well today that it is hard to realize that six weeks ago I was in such poor health." Mrs. Fra. Beauclerk, Riviere du Loup, P. Q., Canada. Carnot is sold by all good druggists everywhere.

"Then you must stay away from it," said Madge, fervently. "If I were a man—" she stopped suddenly, for the countess had entered from a doorway behind them. She was dressed in her favorite gray satin, and wore the family diamonds and priceless family lace. She looked at the two girls critically.

"You have both very pretty dresses," she said. "Yours is well chosen, Irene—and yours, too, Madge," she added.

Madge colored with pleasure. "I am glad you like it, madame," she said.

Her modesty seemed to touch the countess.

"No one could help liking it," she said. "It suits you remarkably well. Come to me." Madge came forward, and the countess slightly altered the arrangement of the diamond wreath in her hair. "That is better," she said. "You wear your diamonds well, child."

Moved by a sudden impulse, Madge took her hand and kissed it.

A faint color rose to the countess's face.

"I am well paid for my compliment," she said, and moved away.

"Have I offended her?" said Madge. Irene shook her head, her eyes were moist.

"No, no; how sweetly you did it, dear! Why, a heart of stone could not have resisted it. I should have fang my arms around your neck, and crushed her lace, and perhaps annoyed her, but you did just the right thing."

Madge sighed with relief.

"For the first time," she said.

They spoke almost in whispers, for footmen in fine new livery were passing in and out. Irene drew Madge to one of the windows, moved the curtain aside, and showed her the drive. It was lined with brilliantly lighted lamps, and grooms stood in a cluster ready to receive the carriages.

"It's like a scene in 'The Arabian Nights,'" said Madge, dreamily.

A voice muttering what sounded like "oaths made them start, and instinctively they looked at each other before they came out from the curtains which had concealed them."

"It was Seymour. He was pacing up and down with a letter in his hand, his face lined with care and trouble. He started slightly as he saw them; then his face cleared, and crushing the letter in his pocket, he came forward, bowing with exaggerated reverence."

"Venus and Helen of Troy," he said. "I salute you! You look as if you had both just floated down from Olympus. Irene, dear, I want you to give me the first dance."

She seemed to shrink a little.

"Oh, ask Madge!" she said.

He smiled at them eagerly.

"Madge will, perhaps, spare me one. I know it is too much to ask, but I want you to give me the first, dear."

"Very well," she said, her coldness contrasting markedly with his affectionate ardor.

He took the ball programme and wrote his name, not only for the first, but for two others. Irene seemed about to remonstrate, but she said nothing, and he wrote his name for one on Madge's card.

"I dare not ask for more," he said; "for every man in the room will want to dance with the Lady of the Poppies."

His compliments always made Madge feel as if she wanted to get out of sound of his voice, and she turned away from him with intense gravity.

"Hark!" said Irene. "There are the first carriages."

The countess went and took her place beside the door ready to receive her guests, the famous London band filed into the gallery and began to tune up their instruments, the rattle and roll of the heavy chariot, in which county people delight to make their state visits, were heard more distinctly in the drive, joined to the voices of the grooms calling to one another, the richly appointed footman moved to and fro, ushering in the guests whose names were hatched on from the stately steward, who stood at the foot of the magnificent staircase, to his fellow, standing like a statue at the top.

THE MILLENIUM.

If we'd all promptly pay a y debt, the merchant D. A. B. V. might, happily, say "I'll cut the price of onion sets, of prunes and succotash and hay; my patrons have a e n passing slow in paying for the goods they bought; but now they pay up what they owe, and prices will be badly shot." If we'd all promptly pay our debts, a lot of trouble his we'd eschew; unwise the voter who forgets to pay his bills when they are due. Man's credit is a precious thing that should be kept without a stain; if flakes of rust upon it cling, the owner is not safe or sane. To every man there comes a day when he goes to purchase hay, how feels he, if merchants laugh? "You did not keep your credit bright, when you had hogsties, rick on rick," the merchants say to that poor wight, "and now you cannot buy on tick. A hundred delegates like you ran up accounts and never paid, dodged all their bills and thereby threw their wrenches in the mills of trade." We careful boys who pay our bills upon the balmy first of May, pay also for the Jacks and Jills who buy and buy and do not pay. The merchant princes charge enough to cover all the dead bills due, and so high prices are the staff-and will be till the journey's through. I buy my pups and other pets, the robbes prices make me weep; if all men would but pay their debts, I'd buy my duck-shunds twice as cheap.

Queen Alexandra Gives up Reading

CONDITION CAUSED BY NERVOUS AFFLICTION NOT REGARDED SERIOUS.

LONDON, May 2.—(Special Cable)—Eye trouble has forced the Dowager Queen Alexandra, mother of King George, to give up reading, according to the Daily Graphic to-day, quoting "a high authority."

The journal makes refutation of recent alarming reports as to her Majesty's health. It states that she may be described as "very fragile," but her condition is not alarming and she has lately displayed much of her former vivacity with regard to the possibility of the King's winning his first Derby next month.

The Graphic adds that the present affliction is largely a nervous ailment and that her medical and other attendants "will be greatly pleased when next Tuesday is passed, since it marks the fourteenth anniversary of the death of King Edward—always a very sad day with her Majesty."

SHOPKEEPERS

The surest way to annoy a customer is to ask her to buy some other Soap, when she wants Sunlight Soap.

When a woman asks for Sunlight Soap, it shows that she is an intelligent woman, who wants value for her money.

When you ask such a woman to buy some other soap, it shows that you consider she doesn't know what she wants.

When you tell a sensible woman that some other soap is as good as Sunlight, she knows you are not telling the whole truth.

Naturally when she knows you are trying to fool her, she has a poor opinion of your judgment and veracity.

You cannot fool any woman regarding Sunlight Soap. Every woman knows Sunlight Soap to be purest and best.

This is why selling Sunlight Soap is the easiest thing any shopkeeper has to do. Every wise shopkeeper knows this.

Every now and then shopkeepers are asked to buy soap,—said to be as good as Sunlight Soap.

Eventually such soap has to be sold at a loss, and the loss is always made by the shopkeeper. The soap agent gets his money, the shopkeeper is the goat.

When next you are asked to buy such a soap, ask the agent,—"Will it sell as well as Sunlight Soap?"

Soap which won't sell as well as Sunlight Soap isn't as good as Sunlight, it won't pay for its keep.

Don't let any slick soap agent load you up with soap which will stick to your shelves and lose money on you.

STICK TO SUNLIGHT AND YOU WON'T BE STUCK.

Have you tried Small Sunlight Soap? A case contains 200 handy cakes. Small Sunlight retails for 5 cents per cake.

BEAVER BOARD

Beaver Board is better than plaster for walls and ceilings, because Beaver Board cannot crack, nor fall.

About seven dollars worth of Beaver Board will cover the ceiling of your dining room or parlor.

Beaver Board is better than pitch pine or v jointed boards, because Beaver Board shows no seams.

When your ceilings are done with Beaver Board, no dust can come down on your furniture.

Beaver Board is water-proofed and sized, ready for the application of paint or calcimine.

To get genuine Beaver Board, look for the board with the Red Beaver Brand on the border.

Beaver Board may be had 48 inches wide and in lengths of 7, 8, 9, 10, and 12 feet. Beaver Board costs only 5 cents per square foot.

Beaver Board is best for bungalows and best for bath rooms.

Beaver Board is cheap enough for your kitchen and artistic enough for your parlor.

SOVIET PRISONERS RELEASED.

BERLIN, May 10. All members of the Russian Government arrested in the recent war by police at the headquarters of the delegation here, have been released according to the Yessicho Bureau.

IMMIGRATION RESTRICTION RE-MOVED.

WASHINGTON, May 10. The Immigration Bill, as it has been officially agreed to in the Conference Committee of the two Houses, contains a provision under which any person born in the Dominion of Canada, and his wife or minor children, returning him, or following him, to enter the United States without restriction.

OVERCOME IN TUNNEL.

PITTSBURG, May 10. Scores of persons were overcome by automobile exhaust fumes in the Liberty Tunnels through the South Hills here to-day. Increased traffic in the tunnels as a consequence of the strike of 320 street car motor-men and conductors, caused the tubes to become choked up with gas. First aid crews of the United States Bureau of Mines and the city Fire Department were rushed to the scene. The women have asked for an increase of 50 cents an hour to 75 and 77 cents an hour.

ALBERTA LIQUOR ACT ENFORCED.

EDMONTON, May 10. The Alberta Liquor Act goes into force to-day. Liquor Commissioner J. J. Dinning last night announced that arrangements have been completed for the opening of vendors' stores at Edmonton and Calgary, and it is the intention that these two cities be the first to be opened. Other stores will be opened in larger towns and throughout the Province.

PRESIDENT'S REQUEST REFUSED.

WASHINGTON, May 10. By a vote of 191 to 172 the House yesterday refused to approve of the proposed exclusion provision of the Immigration Bill inserted by the Senate and Senate Conference, at the request of President Coolidge.

THE STEEL SITUATION.

NEW YORK, May 11. Detailed orders of the United States Steel Corporation of April 30, totalled 1,000,000 tons, decreases of 574,800 tons compared with the previous month.

A JAPANESE DISASTER.

TOYKO, May 11. Twenty persons are believed to have perished as a result of capsizing of a motor boat Kinamaru, near Keen, Formosa. One hundred persons, including passengers and crew, were on board.

PREMIERS MEET, MAY 15TH.

PARIS, May 11. At the request of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, Great Britain Premier Lloyd George has consented to advance the date of his coming visit to Checoslovakia for discussion of the reparations question, from May 20 to May 15. This will allow more time may be for conversations between the two Premiers.

MOTOR TRAGEDY.

LILLE, Belgium, May 11. An automobile, in which three Americans were riding, collided with a French car on the Lille-Cassel Road, killing four French women in the rammage and seriously injuring two Americans.

AMERICAN AVIATORS AT ATTU ISLAND.

CORDOVA, Alaska, May 10. Three United States army aviators, attempting to encircle the Globe, landed safely at Attu Island, at nine o'clock last night, Pacific Coast time, after a journey of 530 miles, according to a wireless message to-day.

CO-OPERATION SUGGESTED.

LONDON, May 10. Assertion made in a public address at Liverpool by Winston Churchill, calling for co-operation between Conservatives and Liberals, has met with prompt and friendly response from two big Conservatives, Stanley Baldwin and Ronald McNeill, who was Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs in the Baldwin Cabinet.

PORTUGUESE FLIERS WITHDRAW.

SIMLA, British India, May 10. It is reported that Portuguese aviators, Lieut. Paes and Be'roe, have abandoned their flight from Lisbon to Macao, China, in consequence of an accident in Jodhpur, which put their machine out of commission.

INCOME TAX REDUCED.

WASHINGTON, May 11. Tax Reduction Bill was passed on Saturday by the Senate. It provides for a 25 per cent. cut in income taxes payable this year, and permanent revision downward of practically every Federal tax.

U.S. RUGBY TEAM SWAMP RU-MANIA.

COLOMBES OLYMPIC STADIUM, France, May 11.—The United States rugby team to-day defeated Rumania in the second match of the Olympic rugby competition, thereby winning the right to meet France in the finals next Sunday. Score was 37 to 0.

MAJOR MARTIN SAFE.

CORDOVA, Alaska, May 11. Major Frederick Martin and mechanic, Sergt. Alva D. Harvey, who have been missing since April 30, when they left Chignik, were heard from this morning. The plane was completely wrecked in striking a mountain near Port Moller, an hour and a half after leaving Chignik. Neither aviator was hurt.

Catalina Notes

The exigencies of a fisherman's life demand all his time during the summer months, and so in May month, in most of our outports, we bid farewell to Lodge meetings and close down until November. It was naturally fitting that Caribou Lodge, No. 74, S.U.F., should have a social evening ere terminating the spring's work. Consequently on Tuesday night, May 6th, quite a gay party assembled in the Lodge rooms. An impromptu concert followed by tea, games and dance gave to all present a most delightful evening. We feel assured that these social amenities of Caribou Lodge during 1924 have not been without good effect, and we have no doubt but that our Autumn opening will be the signal for the influx of many new and additional members. "Floreat Caribou."

On Saturday, May 3rd, Messrs. A. Lodge and A. E. Reid, manager and bookkeeper respectively of the business of P. Templeman at Catalina, severed their connections with that firm. Mr. S. W. Miffin has been appointed to take the office vacated by Mr. Lodge. Mr. Miffin has been with the firm now for more than twenty years, seventeen of which have been the position of foreman of the shop, the position of his business experience, the new manager has always taken a big part in the social life of the community, in which connection it is sufficient to state that he is Past Master of the L.O.A., Past President of the C.E.A.A., Past Master of the D.G. Lodge, No. 2, S.U.F., and W. Master of Caribou Lodge, No. 74 at the present time. It is but due recognition of his merit that the management of the business which he knows so intimately, should have devolved upon his shoulders, and we bespeak for the firm continued commercial success under the new regime. Mr. J. W. Clouser has been promoted as foreman of the shop department. Sincere congratulations to both on their promotions.

We note the carpenters are busy remodeling the cottage belonging to Mr. P. Ryan. It is the intention of Mr. Ryan to convert same into a larger and first-class residence.

Mrs. R. House, who had been making a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Harvey, in St. John's, arrived home by S.S. Susu on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Brushett, who had been spending the winter in the capital, arrived home a few days ago.—COR.

London Letter

(By PHANTON HOUSE for the Canadian Press.)

LONDON, April 24.—More people were present at the opening of the British Empire Exhibition by the King on April 23 than at any previous State function. Thousands of visitors from the provinces contrived to make their Easter holiday in London elastic enough to cover the opening of the Exhibition, Easter Monday was the first great public holiday of the year. Large numbers of business houses closed from Thursday night until Tuesday morning, giving their employees a clear four days' vacation.

PICTURESQUE SERVICE IN ABBEY

On April 17 the Ancient Maundy Thursday service was held in Westminster Abbey, when 59 old men and 59 old women received substantial gifts from the Lord High Almoner, representing the King. This service is a relic of the custom, established in the fourth century, that on the Thursday before Easter the King (and other people in high places) should ceremonially wash the feet of the poor. The number of poor people was determined by the King's age, and after the ceremony gifts of money, food and clothes were distributed. In and after Queen Elizabeth's time, the feet of the old folk were very thoroughly cleaned beforehand with hot water and sweet herbs. James II. was the last English Sovereign to observe the custom; William III. delegated the washing to his Almoner, and even the royal almoners did not continue it after 1754.

Nowadays a procession is formed in the Abbey nave, consisting of the Lord High Almoner, the clergy of the Abbey and a party of yeomen of the Guard, one of whom carries on his head an immense alms-dish, laden with the red and white purses containing the "Maundy Money." The 59 pennies (one for each of the King's years) are given in newly-minted silver, the silver penny, twopenny and fourpenny pieces are only coined for this purpose, and do not circulate. Instead of the ancient gifts of clothes and food, the old people receive money—about 425 each for the man and 222 each for the women.

LONDON'S UNDERGROUND MAZE.

Londoners have discovered an absolutely new amusement. At Chislet-hurst, about 12 miles from town, are some famous caves where chalk and flints have been mined for centuries. This underground labyrinth has several miles of passages, which have only now been completely mapped, the work being done by an amateur working in his spare time. Visitors are now being taken by guides to the remotest caves, given lanterns, and invited to find their way back to the open air. One signs one's name in a book, and if one does not reappear within a specified time, a rescue party

THE LOST FRIEND.

How many times people cherish a grievance which, if they would air it instead of cherishing it, would simply vanish in thin air.

Who among us hasn't lost some friend without knowing the reason why? And who hasn't wondered and puzzled and said, "If I only knew what the matter was." Perhaps here really was a reason, something which we have done, or some change in point of view that made our friend no longer care for our friendship. But it is equally possible that the thing that is keeping us apart is just some misunderstanding which, if he or she would bring out and tell us about it, we could dissipate in a moment.

Lost For Four Years.

I once lost a friend this way. She was lost for years. We had been the best of friends and then one of those inexplicable coldnesses arose. I tried at first to think it was my imagination but I soon was convinced it wasn't. Being foolish, I did not come out and ask her the reason why. And she, being foolish, did not tell me. And I, being proud (and, like all foolish young people, proud of my pride) soon stiffened up, myself, and proved I could be just as cold as she was.

It was four years afterwards that I found my lost friend by accident. It seems that she had sent me a message by a child which the child had delivered in such a twisted way that the answer I sent seemed the acme of rudeness. Something brought the grievance she had been cherishing to light, and we saw how foolish the whole thing was.

They Never Got The Chance. Sometimes, of course, the explanation never does come to light. A woman told me the other day of some young friends whom they had greatly enjoyed one season and looked forward to seeing the next year at their summer place. But next year the former friends never came near them and did not speak when they met on the street. "We never knew what the trouble was," she said sadly. "We think it was a misunderstanding about a bill we paid for them. We could explain if we got a chance. But we never got the chance."

Just Make The Chance. The older I grow, the more I believe in making the chance, if the friendship seems to you worth the effort.

Moreover, I believe in making it, whichever side of the chance you are on. If you think you have a grievance against anyone, don't just stiffen up and hold it against them without giving them a chance to explain. Bring it out into the open and maybe it can be explained.

And if you think someone else has a grievance against you, challenge him with that fact. Get it out of him. Maybe it has no grounds at all. And maybe there is something in it. But by each presenting to the other his point of view, you can straighten matters out.

Real friends are too valuable to lose without a struggle to keep them.

Furness Liner Digby in Port

The Furness Liner Digby, Captain Westgarth, arrived from Boston via Halifax at 1 p.m. yesterday. Fine weather prevailed throughout the entire voyage with the exception of a little fog which was encountered off this coast. The ship brought a part cargo, several bags of mail and the following passengers:—

From Boston—Mrs. A. F. Baker, F. W. Bradshaw, Hon. W. J. Ellis, T. J. Freeman, Miss B. Gose, J. Hollett, Miss M. Jones, A. L. Madden, Mrs. S. Norman, Mrs. T. J. Nurse, Captain M. G. Power, Mrs. P. Shaw, T. Tucker.

Sagona Reports

Capt. Tavernor of the S.S. Sagona, forwarded a message to the Railway Management last night, to the effect that the ship had reached Battle Harbour on the first trip on the Humbermouth-Battle Harbour route. The message reads as follows:—"Left Battle Harbour 1 p.m. (inward), made all ports of call. Considerable heavy loose ice from Bonne Esperance to Cape Charles off shore. Icebergs very thick from Point Riche, north. Weather fine."

STAFFORD'S
Sarsaparilla
Blood Purifier

Skin Diseases, Anemia, Lack of Blood, Paleness, Impure Blood, Lack of Ambition and Vigor, Debility, Weakness, Tired Feeling, Boils, Pimples, etc.

THERE is no Remedy of more universal application than a genuine true-and-tried Blood Purifier and Blood Builder. A medicinal preparation that will truly purify, revitalize and renew the blood, restores hope and pleasure, ambition and happiness, vigor and vitality. It is of inestimable value not only as a strengthener of the system, fortifying it against invasion of disease, but also as a cure for Chronic Diseases which depend upon an impoverished condition of the blood. Diseases of the nature are usually caused by impurities in the blood deposited through the inactivity of the Liver and Kidneys.

These secretions if not removed from the circulation, gradually form poisons which deteriorate the condition of the blood and allow other diseases to obtain a more ready entrance to the system. In the effort of nature to throw off these impurities, frequently pimples, boils, carbuncles, etc., appear, and it is wise to respond promptly to the Warning of Nature.

THIS SARSAPARILLA
is a genuine preparation scientifically prepared from the best and purest remedies for the purifying and rebuilding of the blood. It should be taken every spring, as at this season the blood is more apt to become impure and impoverished. Keep your blood in perfect condition and you will be prepared to fight life's battles with greater success.

One Bottle of this Blood Purifier is all that you will need to take to produce results.

The People Will be True to Their Principles

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—Saturday night's mass meeting of the Independent electors of St. John's East and West in the Casino Theatre proves once more that public opinion is not dead as many had supposed. As a rule the people are quick to act when any national calamity threatens us, or when our dearly bought liberties are in danger. All they were waiting for was a leader and we now have a good man and true in the person of Mr. W. S. Munroe. Mr. Munroe will have a Herculean task to perform in cleaning up the moral filth left behind by the Squires-Coaker regime and in raising the standard of public morality to where it once was in the days of Whiteway and Bond, but he will have the hearty co-operation and assistance of every honest man in the country to strengthen his hands. The people are sick of public waste and corruption and are crying out everywhere against it. Most of the men who have lately been sworn in as members of the new government are the very ones who by their silence tacitly allowed dishonest and corrupt to go on under Squires and Coaker. Through indifference or fear of their political bosses they failed to do their duty to their country. Morally every one of them should be held responsible for the shocking state of affairs disclosed by the Walker report and should never again be elected to the House of Assembly. In a few short weeks the people will be called upon to elect good men and true to rule them for the next four years. The issue should be placed clearly before them. It is apparent to every person that the strictest economy will have to be practiced if this country is to become fit to live in and retain its independence as Britain's oldest Colony. We have men in this country taking thousands of dollars out of the revenue without giving up anything of adequate value in return. For the present I will take two instances. Why should the people of this country be paying Sir Patrick McGrath and Dr. Modell thousands of dollars annually? What is the nature of their work which calls for such heavy expenditures during these very trying times? Cannot we dispense with their services? Both are educated men and if they, not being producers, cannot honestly earn their bread in this country, let them clear out of it. It would be better for Newfoundland if all such men left it rather than see the fishermen of the country and in reality keep up its revenues. The people are now awake to them and will stand four square behind Mr. Munroe for a better government, a better standard of public morality and a general clean-up.
Yours truly,
VOTER.
St. John's, May 12th.

"Java Head" at the Majestic

The lovers of the silent drama will be indebted to Mr. Cameron Geddes late vocalist at the Majestic Theatre for his recommendation of the celebrated feature "Java Head" which will be screened at the Majestic to-night. Critics all the world over vote this American-Chinese soul stirring drama as one of the best of the three greatest pictures produced since the beginning of the motion picture industry, censors have acclaimed it greater than "The Shiek." The caste is the most expensive and powerful employed in one production and no less than three famous stars including Letrice Joy and Albert Escocot are given principal parts. "Java Head" is the story for which the Evening Post and later the novel of the same name was read by millions winning instant fortune for Joseph Hergeshimer the author. It would be unfair to reveal the plot at this particular time as it would to a certain extent take away the intense which spectators must necessarily enjoy from the commencement to the finish. Patrons are invited to read the Majestic advertisement in another column, giving the programme of Misses McShane and Habel, two capable performers, who delighted large audiences last week. Their singing and violin offerings will more than please in so far that they are reproducing an entire act which won for them unstinted praise during their long standing engagement with the Keith Circuit Theatres. Misses McShane and Habel enjoy a place with the Keith people that only in view of the success of Cameron Geddes were they invited to the Majestic, which Theatre is the only one in Newfoundland supplied directly by this large influential theatrical corporation. With "Java Head" as the feature, and the programme as announced by the artists, a big night is assured concert lovers as well as admirers of the screen.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

May 10th.—The greatest news to-day of an Opposition Party to be formed, as I did say in my journal of yesterday, and a meeting to-night to choose a leader. So the greatest excitement all the day, and the oddest rumours circulated. But indeed, while all do wish for W. Munroe to lead the new party, much uncertainty of his coming, and not until lunch time does he make his decision. The names of the new ministers given out to-day; but what is most extraordinary, no less than three of them, to wit, W. Cave, A. Barnes, and Dr. Forbes, from the District of Bonavista, and is, indeed, a sign that Sir W. Coaker has still an interest in politics. Dr. Modell to be of the Cabal also, and like to lead the Upper House for the Government. If they be elected, of which there is now much doubt. At night, to the Casino playhouse, there to see W. Munroe named as leader of the Opposition, and the greatest crowd there that ever I did see in any building at the one time. Mr. F. W. Ayre presiding, Mr. W. Peters proposes Mr. Munroe, and Mr. Brown, the Attorney, that was last year a Squires' man in Placentia, seconds the resolution which is carried beyond all reason for doubting. So Mr. Munroe being sent for, he makes a pretty discourse, albeit methinks it would be to his advantage did he lay more emphasis upon his important points. All the people pleased with him and cheer mightily. So Mr. Higgins speaks and promises his support to Munroe, and after him Mr. Russell, Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Green. So the meeting ends amid further cheers for the new leader. So home, with Povey, in his motor coach, and to stay while to discourse with him. So to bed.
May 11th (Lord's Day)—Lay long, being a fine day but cold, my wife going to church in my stead, which is a thing I would have her do always, but the wretch do now say she will have me go with her every second Sunday. The news of the election mighty scarce, but it is certain how the new party will make a stiff fight of it, and indeed, have the most of their men placed in each district. My wife hanging at me to-day to have our motor coach out, albeit I doubt if it will go, being mildewed with age, almost, but I did promise her to see what may be done about it. Home and reading all the evening in the book of his travels which My Lord Marquess Curzon did write, mighty interesting.

Concert and Dance AT THE SANATORIUM.

To-night a concert and dance will be held in the hall adjoining the Sanatorium, Topsal Road, by the Dominion Executive of the G.W.V.A. Besides the patients, the soldiers who are patients, at Sudbury Hospital, will also attend. Those who are taking part are Messrs. Lawrence, Colton (2), Young, Wallace, Trappell and Holmes; and Misses Redstone and Tucker. Misses Panchionette, Pleasants and Mr. Reilly, of the "Star"; and Misses McShane and Habel, of the "Majestic" have also kindly agreed to assist in the entertainment. The Dominion President of the G.W.V.A., Lt.-Col. T. Nangle, C.F., will preside, and Mr. Gordon Christian will be the accompanist.

Fragrant and Lasting

The odor used in Three Flowers face powder is both fragrant and lasting. Most ladies like THREE FLOWERS for its beautiful odor alone, but this is not by any means the only virtue this high class cosmetic possesses for it contains also the very choicest and most carefully selected ingredients, and its shade and texture are unequalled. In Three Flowers face powder you get the results of the greatest beauty experts most careful tests, for this powder has been produced only after long and searching experiments to discover the perfect powder formula. Most druggist and department stores can show you Three Flowers.

PRESCRIPTIONS.
The most important part of any drug store business is prescriptions. When your doctor writes a prescription he knows what the results should be. Your doctor's orders, and your health depend on the quality of the ingredients used, as well as the accuracy with which your prescription is compounded. We can supply both ingredients and accuracy in dispensing and we guarantee to give you just what the doctor orders.

CRASHING ICE IN THE YUKON CAUSES LICENSE DAMAGE.
 DAWSON CITY, May 12. The largest floe of a big ice jam down the Yukon River Saturday crashed into the docks, leaving a mass of jagged ice. The huge platform of the White Pass was opened by the force of the impact, the engine house and the crane toppling over. Ice nearly cut most of the piles down under the terminal station. The Yukon Mine Railway and the building now hangs perilously in the air. The Selkirk are big ice jams as far as they can see.

COLOGNE FAIR OPENED.
 COLOGNE, Germany, May 12. Colongne Fair, which may become the most important of all in Germany, opened yesterday by President Ebert who was accompanied by Minister Marx, foreign minister, and ministers of Commerce, Posts, Finance and Home Affairs. Prominent public men from western Germany were in attendance. President Ebert in a speech adopted a friendly attitude. He said that his remarks were that Ruhr and the Rhine always must remain German. At the conclusion of the President's address the entire assembly sang Deutschland Uber Alles which is prohibited throughout occupied territory.

PERE MARQUETTE.

Common Stock Sells at New High Record—Humors of Ford Buying Not Credited.

News Bureau, May 5th, 1924.

Boston—Selling at 48 Pete Marquette Railway common stock established the highest price on record. June at the time it was put on a limited basis of 4% it sold as high as 64%. From that time up to the resumption of activity it had risen to a narrow price range.

There is at least a possibility of a dividend increase to 5% and there may be discussion of the matter at the June meeting, opinion is held by certain interests close to the property that nothing will be done in that direction at this time. Earnings running at the rate of 10% on the stock, however, a large dividend disbursement would be warranted.

The Interstate Commerce Commission tentative consolidation plan for the Pere Marquette and four other small roads of the Michigan Peninsula, as an independent group—consists of the peculiar geographical location of these roads occupy a position somewhat analogous to that of the Canadian roads which serve in a similar capacity. It is doubtful, however, if such a lineup would coincide with the ideas of some of the stockholders in the Pere Marquette.

There have been rumors to the effect that Henry Ford is seeking consolidation of the Pere Marquette, but this is not very seriously in well-informed circles. It has not been Mr. Ford's policy in the past to acquire properties through the stock market. He has bought the Ford Creek Coal and purchased the assets outright.

Buyers look upon present prices as cheap in view of comparisons that can be made either with pre-war or post-war conditions. What the consumer fears is an insane policy of surplus production.

Exports of copper from New York alone in April were over 48,000,000 pounds.

West Coast Fishery

According to a report of the Sub-collector of the winter fishery in the district of Burgeo and LaPoile from Burgeo Island to Petites totals 9,500 qtls. up to the end of April. 80 dorles and skiffs are operating, herring bait is fairly plentiful. During the month of April fish was plentiful with the exception of the last week when there was a falling off. The prospects for the month of May, the report says look good. So far no one has begun at the lobster fishery.

TRAINING FOR FOOTBALL.

An Expert Soccer Player. The expert soccer player will make you work on your feet, and the great thing about it is that it is a game of the wind and limbs, it is that the player can do it practically when he likes. Especially when he is playing, he will work during the week and will have the opportunity for ball practice. The expert will give you a long time even in the winter weather. Another thing is to get your secretary or to arrange a meeting place for the week, at an hour when the team are at liberty and for a five mile walk at a good pace. This will do you good at the end of the week, especially if you are at home and have a hot bath. You must get through some work if you want to win your think there is any need for diet himself. It stands to reason that nobody is likely to have so much intelligence as to take a heavy meal at a short time before a match. On the day you are to play have a good breakfast, and a light meal at the end of the week. A couple of hours before the time of the match, get your stomach feeling hungry and eliminate any food that is not good for the stomach. It is within my province to give my views on smoking. I think the juveniles of to-day are smoking a good bit more than they did twenty years ago. It is for the young footballer, the senior players as well as the young players, to ask himself to what extent smoking will affect his play and the performances of his team. I merely advise the young players to smoke as little as possible. Cigarettes altogether on the day of the match, and the day before. Do that, and even if you smoke you will have fulfilled your duty due to yourself and your team. There is nothing worse than a player puffing a cigar on the field before the eyes of the spectators.

LAWN TENNIS.

Exponent of the Game. Lawn tennis has become universal. The most cosmopolitan of all ball games in the past it was looked down upon as the "old woman's pastime," and its name was shunned by all. My greatest punishment at school was to be ordered to play lawn tennis instead of reading that time at rugger or cricket according to the season—and now things have changed. Lawn tennis is now a game, and a very popular one at that, especially if played rigorously. It requires more stamina than rugger, because one has to be fit enough to play not for one and a half hours, say, twice a week, but for that period for several times a day, and for six days a week when one is competing in tournaments. Besides needing stamina, a lawn tennis player requires skill and brains. The beauty of the game is that the older a player gets the more he is able to bring his brains and experience into use. Before dealing with the game itself I would like to point out a disgrace—as it was considered in my school days—to be seen carrying a tennis racket. At the schools in the United States, lawn tennis has become a religion. Quickness of the eye is developed, and it also brings into play nearly every muscle in the body, making the player supple and firm. Freedom of wrist and lightness of foot are thereby maintained.

B.I.S. ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

Arranging For Season's Activities.

Immediately after Last Mass yesterday the members of the B.I.S. Athletic Association held a meeting in the Club Rooms for the purpose of outlining the season's activities and electing officers for the coming season. By popular acclaim, Mr. W. J. Higgins was appointed Honorary President and balloting for the offices of Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Treasurer and Secretary was commenced and resulted as follows:—

Chairman—Mr. W. B. Skinner.
Vice Chairman—Mr. E. J. Phelan.
Treasurer—Mr. Allan Doyle.
Secretary—Mr. C. I. Merner.
Mr. J. P. Crotty acted as Chairman. It was announced that Mr. J. M. Tobin would be putting a B.I.S. rowing crew on the pond for the Regatta and the announcement was received with hearty applause. It is expected that the crew will make a good showing as there is some splendid material in the Society's ranks. A proposal to hold a dance for the purpose of augmenting the Association's funds was heartily received and was carried unanimously. Mr. E. J. Phelan was appointed Convenor of the football meeting to be held Tuesday night when the officers of the team, including League Delegates, will be elected. There being no further business the meeting adjourned until next Sunday. JUNIOR FOOTBALLERS MEET. Very Little Business Done. The meeting of the Junior Football

Shipment of Granite

FOR NEW WAR MEMORIAL ARRIVES.

The S.S. Alconda arrived from England 1 p.m. Saturday, with a shipment of granite for the Newfoundland War Memorial. The ship berthed at Messrs. Harvey & Company's premises, when the work of discharging began almost immediately. A number of "longshoremen" volunteered to unload the material and bring it to the site of the Memorial. By 2 p.m. everything was in readiness, and with the assistance of motor trucks, kindly loaned by City Council Road Commission, Colonial Cordage Co. and A. E. Hickman, including single and double teams belonging to C. F. Lester, the work was carried on without a hitch. The 357 pieces, which constituted 90 tons of granite, had been safely removed to King's Beach by 7 p.m.

Concert on Board

COLLECTION REALIZED HANDSOME SUM.

While the Digby was on her way from Halifax to this port, a concert was held on Saturday night, which proved very enjoyable. Hon. W. J. Ellis presided and was supported by Mr. F. W. Bradshaw. The programme for the evening was under the direction of J. E. Whiteford, the ship's pianist, and rendered as follows:—Song, T. F. Davis; Recitation, Mrs. A. F. Baker; Song, Mr. Tylon; Humorous Song, Mr. O. Pritchard; Song, Dr. Cashin; "Nothing at all," Miss E. S. Fleet; Song, Mr. Clouston, Mr. Lydon, Humorous Song; Mr. Pritchard, Chairman's remarks. Following the concert a collection was taken up by Mr. Bradshaw, which netted $35.00, which will be devoted to the Permanent Marine Distasters' Fund, and the balance to the Liverpool Seamen's Orphan Institution. After the serving of refreshments, the affair concluded with an enjoyable dance.

Don't Say— "Just a Sore Throat"

IN a few days, you know, "just a sore throat" may be something much more serious. For science has proved that the throat is not only the first spot reached by infectious germs, but also forms the ideal soil for them to multiply on.

Throat protection, therefore, means germ destruction and is a duty that you owe your health. It is easily achieved by the regular use of Formamint—the germ-killing throat tablet.

Formamint (which is endorsed by over 5,000 American physicians) is the scientific way of disinfecting the mouth and the throat. Handy to have with you—pleasing in taste—it frees an efficient germicide that mixes with the saliva and so reaches where gargles cannot go.

And a tablet taken occasionally during the day, not only brings grateful and immediate relief from "sore throat"—but affords protection against even more distressing ailments that so often follow infection of the throat linings. At all druggists.

JEWETT
A Thrifty Six Built by Puigo

An Economical Motor Car

SOME of the records made by Jewett drivers in the small amount of petrol and oil used are truly astounding.

However, it is not only economical on petrol and oil, but also on spares and repair charges, as it is infrequent that one needs to concern oneself in regard to repairs. The Jewett engineers have so constructed the Jewett motor car as to need little or no concern outside of the ordinary care that one gives a running machine. This is an advantage that the Jewett has over other cars in its class.

Jewett drivers are enthusiastic. They get years of service from the Jewett. This is what the firm of Jewett claims for their motor car and what 110,000 drivers know.

JEWETT SPECIFICATIONS:

Engine—6 cylinder, 3 1/2 x 5 1/2, lubricated by high pressure oiling to main and connecting rod bearings; two unit electrical starting and lighting, thermally controlled automatic spark advance; Paige-Timken axles; extra heavy 6 inch "I" beam steel frame; improved type four speed transmission; dry plate clutch; special alloy steel springs, 36" in front, 54" in rear; all steel universal joints; cross-feed chain lubrication.

Special models furnished at slight extra cost with additional equipment: Special R—finest blue finish with upholstery to match; spare cord tyre, tube and protector; L—wipers front and rear; nickel radiator and motor; trunk and trunk rack (except on two-seater); automatic windshield wiper and rear view mirror; rear stop signal; sun visor; parking light on cow; Disc seat or wire wheels optional on all models at slight extra cost.

New Revelations at Pompeii

Astonishing discoveries continue to reward the labors of archaeologists at Pompeii, where, as we are told, "a city has been born again, bringing joy to the soul and culture to the intellect—a city that holds for us an unknown world." Little by little that unknown world is disclosing itself, sometimes in "intimate" detail. According to Mr. Guido Calza, the archaeologist, when recently excavating the remains of a house in the so-called "Street of Abundance," found "the dining-room is still intact, with couches around the center tables, on which are a fruit-bowl, a brazier, and other articles in place ready for use." Mr. Calza writes in Art and Archaeology:

"In another place, the whole atrium has been preserved with stairs leading to the upper rooms, and the wardrobe still in its place. The front door has been so faithfully cast in the ashes that we can see the long, heavy chain that unbared it, and the bell that summoned the janitor. "And one is astonished, on crossing the threshold of such a house, to find so much fresco and stucco decoration in the ordinary home of a little provincial city, so much exquisite artistic feeling in composing and distributing graceful scenes and figures on the pavements, walls and ceilings. "The decorative frieze in white stucco on a blue background, shown here, has been recomposed from a thousand scraps found in excavating, and is, indeed, worthy of remark as a conspicuous example of minor Roman art. It represents a Prætor who has stepped down from his chariot, bringing gifts to Achilles in his tent and imploring him to restore the body of Hector, whom Achilles had killed in battle, and cruelly dragged about the field. There are mosaics, as well as stucco, in this House of Achilles, and also some fragments of beads with ivory feet."

As Mr. Calza remarks, "In truth, the smile of art lies upon these beautiful Pompeian ruins, and animates them." He describes a Pompeian garden: "A jet of water spouts out from a marble mask beneath a little shrine with red and white stuccoed columns, filling a basin that has frescos on the inside; and, above the basin, is a charming genre group in colors—a little Eros holding up a mask, and supplying other water-jets, that keep this fountain, painted with large figures and curly scenes, cool and noisy. Yet this is not enough; for the imprint left in the ashes shows the design, even of the pergola over the fish-pond, and the casts have reproduced the forms and interlacings of these lattices, adorned by grapes and vines clambering over the yellow and blue marble groups, against the green of the fields and the white marble of the fountains. The whole garden of this lovely residence has come back to life, just as it was two thousand years ago, with its alleys and arcades of streets, with the palings of its pergolas, and with its rippling brooks and noisy little fountains."

Women Police
NEW YORK, May 2.—(Canadian Press)—For a few hours of a certain April day there was a new officer in charge of traffic at 42nd St. and Lexington Avenue: "A slim, bronzed figure in high boots, a dark blue coat reaching to the knees and a trim, gold-braided cap, on the chest was worn the Order of the British Empire." This was Commandant Mary S. Allen, head of the London Police-women. Speaking of the latter to a reporter, she said that the 20 London policewomen differ from those of American cities, in that they are always uniformed conspicuously. The sight of a woman police officer prevents many crimes, and prevention of crime, she says, rather than the capture of offenders, is the chief purpose of the women. They began their work during the war, when they watched over the young women and soldiers who flocked through the great railroad stations. Since then their work has grown to taking charge of women prisoners, collecting testimony from women, protecting girls who are strangers in the city, taking charge of lost children and runaway girls, inspecting places of amusement and patrolling parks. In addition, Commandant Allen visited the occupied area of Germany and established six British women there to assist the police.

Shareholders Pay Home Bank Claims
DOUBLE LIABILITY PAYMENTS OF ALMOST $200,000 RECEIVED TO DATE.
TORONTO, May 2.—Something over $50,000 was received at the Home Bank to-day from those who must pay the double liability. This brings the amount paid on this account up to nearly $200,000, or about 90 per cent of the total to be paid. There are 1,686 shareholders and of these only about 235 have paid up, or partially paid. The Depositors' Committee of the Home Bank has a meeting to-day and decided to go down in a body and besiege the House of Commons. They will be reinforced, it is understood, by many representatives of municipal and political organizations in their efforts to secure relief from the Government for the depositors of the bank.

Beavers as Builders
Few people realize the value of the beaver as an aid to irrigation. A plan has already been developed and put into operation in Colorado whereby beavers are taken from one section of the State where they are plentiful, and transported to other sections where their services are more essential, the animals being trapped in high wire nets placed on the dams.

Just Folks.
By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE KNDLIER WORLD
When the fish begin to bite
And the stream begins to run,
And the clouds are fleecy white
In the glory of the sun,
Then another world than ours
Seems to beckon me away,
Where the birds and trees and flowers
Live and laugh and sing and pray.
This old world wherein we dwell
And go toiling through the years,
Has so much of pain to tell
With its oft repeated tears,
And so much of care and grief,
That another world was made
For the weary soul's relief.
Filled with sunshine and with shade.

There the people are the trees,
And the butterflies a-wing,
And the birds that sweetly sing;
And some drowsy afternoon
One may hear out there alone,
If his soul is but in tune,
Language sweeter than his own.
They will have no shame to tell
As he lies out there and dreams,
They have nothing they would sell
And they'll talk no sordid schemes,
But the marvel of the clod.
They will everywhere display:
Down the avenues of God
They will lead his soul away.
And it's I who soon shall pass
Out of city street and wall,
To lie full length upon the grass—
For I've heard the summer call,
And the soul of me shall stray,
While I fish with rod and line,
To be happy for a day
In a kinder world than mine.

An Unknown Ivory Mine

Why are ivory billiard balls so expensive? The answer is that the supply of ivory, a natural growth depending mainly upon the tusks of elephants, is exceedingly limited. Nevertheless, if some wanderer through the illimitable forests of Central Africa, probably in the vicinity of that inland sea of fresh water called Lake Victoria Nyanza, could stumble upon a certain "pit" and communicate his discovery to the world, the value of this commodity would drop to the merest fraction of its present worth.

Seeing that in Africa there are tens of thousands of wild elephants, one would imagine that travelers like Stanley and Cameron would have recorded coming upon the carcass of a dead beast. Yet they never did, nor has any other African explorer come upon an elephant which has died in its tracks from natural causes. What becomes of all the elephants that die? It is said that somewhere in the million square miles that constitute the African continent is a mighty pit, with precipitous sides, which contains the bones, and therefore the tusks, of countless thousands of elephants.

How did they come there? It is said, further, that wherever an African elephant may be, when it feels the approach of death it leaves the herd and "treks" unerringly to the death-pit. It may travel days and even weeks, and when it arrives at the edge of the pit it leaps to its death. How much ivory lies there? Who will discover it?

Landlord and Tenant Disputes
MONTREAL, May 12.—(Can. Press) Two cases recently before the courts deal with the various aspects of landlords and tenants, which should be of interest to other women. Suppose, for instance, one rented a flat, found it hard to pay the rent, and decided to take in washing? Mrs. J. E. Lambert tried the experiment on a large scale. She installed a washing and ironing machine, and in the basement set up eight tubs. A woman was hired to do the washing. Mrs. Lambert's husband, who is a builder, placed an auto truck at her disposal, and sufficient business was secured to ensure continuous work five days in the week. The landlord brought an action against Lambert, the tenant, complaining that he had changed the destination of the premises. He asked damages in the sum of $300. The Superior Court held that the defendant had not set up a laundry because her enterprise was essentially of a private nature, according to the terms of her advertisement. Mr. Justice Letourneau, in revising this decision, said

Pirate's Visit to St John's.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

It is always contended that there is no greater field for the novelist or the writer of historical romances than the coast of Newfoundland. At various times pirates have visited our shores and destroyed our property and carried away our sailors and fishermen. It is only necessary to take one example—that of the pirate Peter Easton. His exploits are recorded on various occasions but there were others of which little is known. We know from the accounts of the treasure hunters that buried treasure has been discovered in various parts of our island at Mosquito (now Conception Bay), Conception Bay, and elsewhere. It was a boy of the generation now past, devoted to certain adventures, who first buried treasure. It was to be found, and in the hands of the treasure hunters it was discovered with a map, on which the exact spot in which the treasure was to be found was given as to how to proceed. Details of the treasure were to be found in the middle grave (there

...writings, taken from the records, which are extremely interesting to the people of Newfoundland, as many of the incidents related have connection with the vanished past of our own country. So it is with his remarks on the pirates of Nova Scotia in former years, and amongst those worthies figures prominently the pirate chief Ned Low. The writer states: The history of the pirates on the Nova Scotian coast in the far-off days is a very interesting one. I will now relate something about them. It was a beautiful June day in the year 1722.

a fleet of fishing vessels lay at anchor in the harbor now known as Shelburne. It was Sunday, and the crew was their wonted calm. From the banks to spend the Sabbath in quietude and rest from labor. There were fifteen vessels in all at anchor between Sandy Point and Menut's Island. There was no settlement at that period at Port Medway, as it was afterwards called. As the crew sat idle on the decks of the fishing schooners, a brigantine sailed in among them. A boat was lowered from the brigantine, and four men jumped into it and rowed alongside the fishing vessels, one after another, as though to make a friendly visit to enquire the news. When on deck the four men drew cutlasses and pistols from under their clothes, and, cursing and swearing demanded instant surrender. Taken by surprise, the fishermen, of course submitted, and by this means all the vessels in the harbor were captured and afterwards plundered. Among them was a newly built schooner, the "Mary" of eighty tons, owned by Joseph Dollibon, of Marplehead; clean and a good sailing. Ned Low, the pirate captain, liked her so well, he decided to appropriate her for his own use, so he renamed her "Pancy" and the guns, stores, and men were transferred from the brigantine. The fishermen from the different vessels were put on board the brigantine, and Captain Plucher was ordered to make for Boston. Meanwhile, Low found a number of likely men from among the fishermen, including Philip Ashton, Nicholas Merritt, Joseph Labbie, Lawrence Fibernk, and two others of Marplehead, and five men belonging to the Isle of Shoals.

...his career early as a petty thief and gambler among the boys of his neighborhood, and later to have spent much time among the hangers-on about the House of Commons, which was near his home. Strong, fearless, he was always ready to attack any one who might catch him cheating or attempting to relieve him of his ill-gotten gains. It is said that one of his brothers, at the age of seven, was carried on the back of a porter in crowded streets, where he would snatch off hats and wigs, and conceal them in his basket—a profitable occupation for his family; it seems, and as he grew too large for the basket's trick he became a pickpocket and petty thief, and, in time, a house-breaker. According to the Newgate Calendar, he ended his days on a scaffold at Tyburn, in company with others of his type.

Ned Low was more fortunate for when old enough he went to sea with a brother, and during the next three or four years visited many of the larger seaports, at last reaching Boston in New England, where his fancy was caught by the pretty face of Eliza Marble, a girl of a good family, and after a time they were married. Ned, meanwhile, having found regular work as a ship-rigger. His wife became a member of the Second Church in 1718, and a son and a daughter were baptized there. The couple had a daughter Elizabeth, born in the winter of 1718 and shortly after the young mother died, no doubt to the great sorrow of Low, for in his character, were a love for his young daughter, (his son having died in infancy), and his refusal to force married men to join his pirate crew. Low became a pirate in Honduras Bay, leading twelve shipmates to mutiny, and attempting the life of the captain of the vessel. His life from thence was an argyle of crime and cruelty. At the island of Grand Caymans in the West Indies, he joined forces with captain George Lowther, another noted pirate.

Such is the account given of the adventures of the noted pirate Low on the coast of Newfoundland, and very little, if any, reference is made to his career in our histories; and we have to thank the talented and versatile correspondent of the Acadia Recorder for the above interesting information, which, I am sure, will be perused by the readers of the Telegram at home and abroad.

Carnation Milk

What the Red and White Label Means to the Modern Housewife

It means real economy. Carnation keeps—none is wasted. It serves every need for milk. In place of cream for coffee, cereals or fruits, use it just as it comes from the can. For cooking, simply add water as desired. For tea use one part Carnation, three parts water.

It means wonderful convenience! Get it with your groceries. Store it in your pantry. It is always ready, always sweet and pure—always the same dependable quality.

Carnation is just pure fresh milk, evaporated to double richness, kept safe by sterilization. It bears a label the housewife can trust.

Order several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans from your grocer. Test it, critically, yourself.

The Carnation Recipe Book is a splendid collection of 100 tested recipes. A copy of this Recipe Book is ready for you. Write for it today. It's FREE.

PREPARING.—2½ cups water, 1½ cups Carnation Milk, ¼ cup rice, 2 cups sheep, sugar. Wash rice, mix ingredients, and pour into greased dish. Bake two and one-half hours in a very slow oven, or twenty minutes the first hour of baking to prevent rice from scorching.

On Tuesday afternoon, June 19th, 1722, Low and his company sailed from Port Roseway, bound for Newfoundland coast, and arrived at the mouth (Narrows) of St. John's harbor in a fog which lifted somewhat, disclosing a ship riding at anchor within the harbor. She looked to Low like a fish-trader, and he determined to attempt her capture by stratagem. All of his men were ordered below, save six or seven, to make a show of being a fisherman, and he sailed boldly into the harbor, intending to run alongside the ship, and bring her off. Before having gone far, however, a small fishing boat was met coming out, which halted them, asking from what port they had come? Low answered, "From Barbados, loaded with rum and sugar," and then asked the fishermen what large ship that was in the harbor. "Imagine his chagrin when they replied that it was the 'Solemy' man-of-war. He immediately put about and escaped before the suspicious fishermen could alarm the town.

At Carbonar, a small harbor, about fifteen leagues further north, Low was more successful, for going on shore and meeting little opposition, he plundered the place and buried all the houses. The next day he sailed for the Grand Banks, where he took seven or eight vessels, including a French banker of nearly 400 tons, armed with two guns. Considerable rigging and ammunition were secured, and a number of fishermen were forced. Late in the day he had an encounter with two sloops from Canoe, bound for Annapolis Royal, loaded with provisions for the garrison, and having soldiers on board. Low's schooner was the better sailer, and coming up began the attack. The soldiers belonged to the famous 40th regiment, and at once replied, and gave no warm a reception that Low sheered off, and a fog coming on they escaped into Annapolis, after being chased by Low for two days and a night.

A brief sketch of Low's life is very interesting, more especially as he figured in the stirring events which took place on the coast of Newfoundland in those days. It is stated that there was living in Boston, Mass., in the year 1719, a young man by the name of Low. He was a ship-rigger by trade, and as shipbuilding in Boston was brisk about that time, Low's services were in demand. He was born in Westminster, London, and such meagre biographical information as is now available shows that as a boy he ran wild in the streets of his native parish. He seems to have be-

Canadian Failures in April

A relatively favorable exhibit is made by the Canadian failure statistics for April, the number of defaults being the smallest for that month since 1921 and the indebtedness the lightest since 1920. Numbering 136, the commercial failures reported to R. G. Dun & Co. compare with 258 in April, last year, 232 in 1922 and 131 in 1921, while the liabilities of $4,175,109 are from about $750,000 to $850,000 below the amounts for the same period of the three immediately preceding years. In April, 1920, when the number of Canadian defaults was only 75, the indebtedness was less than $1,600,000. Fewer failures occurred last month than in April, 1923, in manufacturing, trading, and other commercial lines, while only in the class designated as "other commercial" was there an increase in the liabilities.

"Emancipated" Women in New Zealand

A fish-tied to a string and let down into the live stream of a volcanic fissure, may represent cookery reduced to its lowest terms; and the native women of New Zealand are said to find it a great help in their light house-keeping. It may have been that the native women of the English colony set a good example to the women from England, who now form most of the population, speculates Frank G. Carpenter, the travel writer, in his newest volume, "Australia, New Zealand, and some Island of the South Seas." At any rate, New Zealand women, it appears, hold the records in most matters that pertain to feminine emancipation. New Zealand was the first country in the world to give women the vote, and the Dominion claims the distinction of having the first woman mayor. The women were granted the suffrage as far back as 1882, without the militant tactics that distinguished their struggle in England, or the long, hard campaign of education which was engineered here. Even though few of them seem interested in woman suffrage, a greater proportion of them vote in New Zealand than vote in this country, reports Mr. Carpenter, and "one reason for this is a law making compulsory for people to vote or lose their privileges." Any person who does not appear at the polls in New Zealand must give a good reason for his absence, or he may find himself disfranchised in the next election.

There is no woman's party in New Zealand, as there is here, and, reports Mr. Carpenter: "It is often said that the women's vote has not had a distinct influence except in matters of infant welfare, maternity care, and the regulation of the liquor traffic. I put the question to a New Zealand woman, asking her: 'What has woman suffrage done for New Zealand?'" "I will tell you one thing it has done," she quickly replied. "It has closed 25 per cent. of all the saloons for good, and it has closed all of them after six o'clock in the evening. In some parts of New Zealand there is absolute prohibition by local option. One town I have especially in mind was noted for its drunkenness and disorder. It is now one of the quietest and most respectable of communities. It has cut down its police force, and for want of other use its jail has been made the headquarters of the Salvation Army."

Prohibition is a live issue in New Zealand, and some of the people believe the country will get bone-dry. To get a license to sell liquor a man must show that he provides also food and lodging, so that all the saloon-keepers here really run hotels. Liquor may be sold only between the hours of seven in the morning and six in the evening, and one does not see drunken men staggering home at all times of night.

It used to be that in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred women served the liquor at the hotels. The prettier the barmaid the greater was her custom and the higher were her wages. But this has been changed by a law forbidding the renewal of barmaids' licenses. Nowadays, if one does come across a woman behind the bar in a public house, she is far from being the pretty, captivating barmaid of romance. More than likely she is the elderly widow of a hotel-keeper unable to support herself in any other line of business and so allowed to continue in this one during her lifetime.

So far not so many girls in New Zealand go out to work for their living as with us. Before the World War few daughters of well-to-do homes thought of such a thing. But when the Dominion sent 41 per cent. of her men to the front, their places had to some extent to be taken by girls and women. Even the banks, which are most conservative, opened their doors to girl clerks. Some of the women workers, having had a taste of independence, like to work, and there is growing up a class like our women stenographers, bank clerks, and journalists. Many of the young women have taken up nursing, getting their training in the hospitals, which are all operated by the Government or under government supervision. Those who were sent to Europe during the World War were nurses of at least ten years' hospital experience, and they stood exceptionally high among the Army nursing corps of the Allies.

The working women of New Zealand are like the men, well-protected by law as to their hours, wages, and conditions of employment, reports Mr. Carpenter. The Government Department of Labor is watchful of their interests and welfare, and has woman inspectors who visit the factories and other places of business where women and girls are employed, to see that the laws are obeyed. Also, by defining a factory as "any building, office, or place in which two or more persons are employed directly or indirectly in any handicraft," the New Zealand Government brings even the smallest establishments under the law, and thus protects women from sweatshop conditions. In offices and stores their hours of labor are fixed at forty-eight a week with an allowed overtime of not more than one hundre and twenty hours in a year, or three hours in any one day. In most of the manufacturing industries women work forty-four hours a week. The law requires that they shall be paid for overtime at the rate of time and a half. Minimum wages are fixed by law in practically all trades in which women are employed, including work in the stores. These minimum rates vary with the particular nature of the work and the worker's skill and experience.

The law also forbids the employment of any girls under fifteen years of age, and those under eighteen are not permitted to work for wages unless they have passed through the fourth standard, or grade, of the public schools. It is illegal to employ girls or "learners" in any trade without paying them wages while learning. In the past, some factories were found to be taking on inexperienced girls and paying them nothing, telling them that their services were not worth wages at the start, but that would be paid as soon as they were "experienced." At the end of a few weeks or months these employers would often dismiss the girls, saying they had not made good, and then bring in a fresh lot of them on the same terms. Employers are required to provide sanitary, well-lighted and ventilated workrooms equipped with fire-escapes.

The labor laws are by no means dead letters. Employers are fined for every transgression of them. I have just been looking over a list of cases illustrating this fact. One man who cut short the dinner hour of his girls paid ten dollars and costs, and another a restaurant owner, who kept his waitresses at work for eleven and a half hours in one day, had to pay a fine of thirty-six dollars, although one of the girls had three afternoons off that week.

Another restaurant man was fined seven and a half dollars and costs for employing his waitress fifty-two hours a week, and a third was fined for not allowing one of his woman workers an hour for her meals. In the town of Napier, a storekeeper employing women for more than forty-eight hours in each of two succeeding weeks was fined forty dollars. The government inspectors learned of a baker who kept his two daughters working all night. They arrested him and fined him five dollars for each girl, warning him that on the next offense the fine would be fifty dollars. The saleswomen in stores must have seats and must be allowed to use them. I have before me reports of cases of merchants who were fined for not furnishing such seats.

The Government also protects women from being worked at hours that will necessitate their going home late at night. One labor inspector reported that he found a factory in which a set of girls were put on from eight to ten in the morning and then taken off until one. They were worked from one until five, and again from seven to nine, making altogether eight hours. Another lot of girls worked from ten until twelve, from three until seven, and from nine until eleven. This arrangement did not require more than the legal time, but the officials thought it was bad for the girls to have to go home so late at night, and not have their regular time for rest.

The working day hotel helps, many of whom are women, is defined by law, and meals cannot be served outside the regular hours. If dinner is limited to the hours between six and eight, the traveller arriving at a hotel at eight-fifteen can not get anything to eat until breakfast, no matter how hungry he may be. Even a world-famous prima donna found she could not get dinner at an unusual hour at her hotel in Wellington. She was accustomed to postponing her dinner until after concerts, and asked to have it served at eleven o'clock. But the hotel manager refused. It would have meant keeping several servants after hours and paying them overtime, and he was unwilling to do so.

The women working in factories are not so well organized as the men, and even where they do the same work they do not, as a rule, get as much pay. Most of the women in the manufacturing industries are in the clothing, hatmaking, tailoring, printing, and shoe-making trades.

In New Zealand, it seems, there is no real servant class, such as our immigrant girls from Europe. Mr. Carpenter explains: "The native Maoris do not make good house workers and most of the Chinese are in business for themselves, running laundries, fruit shops, and gardens; though some are employed as cooks. The people who first came here from the British Isles were not of the lower classes. New Zealand was never a penal colony and men came voluntarily seeking better opportunities than those they had found in the old country. Some came for their health some followed the gold rush in the middle of the last century, and some were remittance men, members of the finest of the old British families. Moreover, many of the settlers acquired lands of their own, and the children of independent landholders do not care to go out as domestic servants. Therefore, domestic workers are scarce, and in the average New Zealand household the whole family shares in the work of the home. Every child has his duties, and, I may add, is generally paid for performing them. Nearly every ten-year-old has a savings account which grows with the money earned at home.

In the country it is almost impossible to get servants, and in the towns the young women prefer to work in the factories, notwithstanding the fact that when the matter of board is taken into consideration, wages there are often less than those of house servants.

Primitive Broadcasting

Interest has always attached to methods used throughout the ages for the broadcasting of news of importance.

Today, when wireless makes light of distance, a sort of miniature system is adopted by the Patagonians Indians of South America. They place two bamboo poles side by side on the ground, and two others on top transversely. Messages are tapped out in a Patagonian code, and are transmitted by the earth to the next receiving station.

In South Africa messages are signalled by means of drums made of bark, the tapping on which can be heard many miles away. It was by this method that the defeat of Sir Redvers Buller at Colenso was made known to natives sixty miles distant in the space of two hours.

In the old days a fire was generally used to give warning of a threatened invasion. From the coast to a certain distance inland bonfires were erected on every hilltop. These were lit by warning beacons as the coast burst into flame. So "from hill to hill the signal flew," and by this method the countryside was in arms, and preparations made to resist the invader.

Two Swedish engineers, Mr. Hans Lundberg and Mr. Harry Nathar, have invented an electrical instrument which will locate metallic ores

Listening for a Metal

Old legends tell of men who had the power to look down into the earth and see where gold and silver lay hidden.

We cannot do this yet, but something almost as wonderful is now possible: we can listen and hear the veins of precious metal.

under the ground and indicate their presence by making a sound that can be heard.

The prospector carries the instrument over the ground he is prospecting, and with telephone receivers fixed on his head, listens. When the instrument passes over a vein a sound is heard, and the prospector knows that what he seeks is somewhere beneath his feet.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR ACNES

Good-Bye to Silver Service

LONDON, May 11.—(Can. Press.)—In a somewhat regretful toodhya to the old, familiar household silver, the Times editorially says:—

Long though its other uses are likely to continue, silver is losing its former popularity as a material of ornament for the good reason that silver is no one to keep it when. Household silver is too costly to be employed, by any but the most fortunate, in polishing without end, the submissive daughters, willing to spend the greater part of their lives with plate-powder, brush, and chamols-leather now, like Lincoln in the play, "belongs to the ages." Though we dare not regret the polishers' emancipation it is, perhaps, pardonable before the last silver self-cellar is banished from the dinner tables of England, to look back upon the old display, and to remember its comfortable shining.

It stood, or now seems to have stood, for a condition of life that, having endured through many changes of fashion and form is now definitely departed; for vast families of a dozen or more who have disappeared with the tureen that fed them; for heroic swimmers whose ghosts now wink over the edge of a quart pot at those who slip bottled beer out of glasses; and for plain little maidens perched on "Trafalgar" chairs, who would have cried their eyes out if they had been required to drink from anything less magnificent than their own christening mugs.

With the decay of Victorian propriety, silver may have grown thinner, but its tradition was bravely maintained. The grand-daughters of the Trafalgar ladies liked their hair-brushes to glitter with the heads of Sir Joshua's angels; their prayer-books and hymn-books were bound in purple leather; they put up brackets between a couple of Japanese fans on which the heroes of South Africa were immortalized in silver statuettes; and their dressing tables were gay with a hundred trinkets that shone again every Wednesday, and perhaps every Saturday morning. Yet further progress of democracy carried silver into the humblest homes where attenuated vases, conspicuously half-marked, gave gentility to the wall-flower and distinction to the pot.

All this goes, or soon will be going. The kindly tureen, which by reason of its extreme weight, James had so much difficulty in carrying with appropriate nonchalance, has gone with James; his padded calves will support that burden no more. The vase, the statuette, and the filigree prayer-book have been thrown to the dealers. Even the rose-bowl, which in its rich flutings used to reflect the surrounding flush of mahogany and distort like a mocking glass, and the focus of our hungry ancestors, is withdrawn into tissue paper and dignified to have converse with stainless steel.

We are all turning to substitutes, and the uniformity of the silverware being gone, we reveal ourselves in our choice of them. James the Younger, in those houses which can still find a place for him, is busy with cut-glass, silver's most exquisite understudy. Others rely upon porcelain, of charming pieces of pseudo-majolica collected on their travels; others, of a more revolutionary temper, have at a bound gone back to the cottage—or at least, cottage tea-room—and provide food and flowers and water in delightfully simple receptacles, closely resembling a flowerpot.

Upstairs, in my lady's room, everything that was once bound in silver is now marvellously adorned with pink grapes and magenta pomegranates in satin. Everywhere the spell of silver is being lifted. No more shall candles, rather in flaming branches or oceans rather in a tarceen. We are grown at once practical and elegant with a new elegance. Henceforth, by electric light, we shall nibble an olive from an earthenware saucer and now and then visit a museum or university to see what a tankard was like.

Bernard Shaw's Rare Generosity

Desmond MacCarthy, in the New Statesman, writing of Bernard Shaw's new play, "Saint Joan," says:—

"The extraordinary intellectual merit of this play is the force and fairness with which the case of her opponents is put; the startling clarity with which each of them states it, and consequently our instantaneous recognition of its relation to the religious instinct. One of Mr. Shaw's most remarkable gifts has always been this rare generosity. It is odd, but he has never drawn a wicked character—plenty of characters who do wicked things, but not one wicked man. He has never believed in the devil, only in blindness, inertia and stupidity; faith so widely spread it seems a failure of common sense to distinguish particular people by special abhorrence."

A man can wear whiskers and still be a human being. But in our modern opinion, there is no hope for a certain gink her in St. John's who is so fond of his whiskers that he puts perfume on them.
