Guillet, conservative M.P. for West Northumberland. opened here this afternoon, Mr. Justice Cameron presiding. The petitioner is Mr. H. Snelgrove, president of the Liberal club of Cobourg. The official return gave respondent Guillet a majority of five over his Liberal opponent, Wm. Kerr, Q.C. The petition makes sixty charges of corrupt acts, chiefly by agents. This afternoon the court was engaged in hearing the evidence relative of two of the charges, the first being that Mr. R. R. Pringle, president of the conservative association for the riding, made a bet with one Parker, a lukewarm the election. Parker did not vote and afterwards claimed the stakes, which he duly received. The second case gone into was that one Thos. Heenan, an agent of the respondent, did induce Raphael Beau-varis to vote for the respondent and bribed him to do so. The evidence taken showed that Beauvaris received $2 from Heenan at the polling beath and that remarks that Beauvaris received $2 from Heenan at the polling booth and that some weeks afterwards an envelope was handed him by a waitress in a Warkworth hotel containing $50 in bills. The waitress swore that she had been given this by Heenan with instructions to give it to Beauvaris. This case had not been concluded when the court rose, Messrs. Jas. Bethune, Q.C., and Wm. the general crowd, may go far to bring start the talk of hard times, falling prices, and no markets for commodities, and the thing seems to take like wildfire. Every passes it on to his neighbor, generally with exaggerations. Suppose that a depression does exist to a certain extent, it is sure to be magnified far beyond its real dimensions and a mountain is made out of a molehill. And to a great extent all this is done through the force of mere wind-of what the Chinamen calls "talkee, talkee." Now, it does happen all too frequently that we have the reality of commercial depression, and that from bona fide material causes. But perhaps it happens still more frequently that we are frightened with its mere semblance, with something that is of the imagination mostly, and without any real material basis to rest upon. It does seem as if we were passing through such an experience now. Trade is dull, to be sure, but not because people do not want commodities, or are without means to buy them. It is dull for the reason chiefly that there is such an everlasting talk about falling prices and no sales that people are afraid to buy anything. To people who keep track of prices, each in the department of trade with which he is most familiar, it must appear that we are certainly down already to the bottom figures with the exception of articles of food.

The price of these latter by retail will keep up, no matter should the price to the farmer or the original producer go down to zero. As regards manufactured articles, however, people seem to think that they should be obtained at sacrifice prices, or at less than cost. There is reason for believing that mere talk has much to do with bringing about this state of

To put it briefly, there is far too much "bear talk" current about manufacturing and commercial business generally. There is slackness in our factories just now, though not in all branches, by any means; but what slackness there is has been enormously exaggerated. Some specific statements made as to factories stopped and hands discharged have already been met ness there is but no panic, or proper cause for one. While people are holding off from buying, the real needs of the country are merely postponed, and must soon compel buyers to come into the market. Just now the bears of manufactures and commerce appear to be having their day; let us hope that it will be but a short one. In the meantime the "talkee, talkee" of commercial wreckers should not too much alarm

A Test for Both. A Farmer up in Bruce writes us as fol-

Your editorial of the 2d instant on farmers not willing to pay men all the year round, is wrong if they could be got for reasonable wages, but when they have to pay such figures for help it is no wonder that they do not employ men all the year round. If workingmen would take $10 or $13 per month and board, they need not apply to be sent to jail; they would get all the work they want, with good board and comfortable homes; but when the hired help expect all the crops that are grown the crops that are grown tages, and the farmer to give them their boards time that more labor e country. There is no into the bargain, it is time that more labor was imported into the country. There is no necessity of soup kitchens or charity to able men and boys if they will only come out to the country and work for reasonable wages, but they would sooner starve in town on one meal a day than go out and earn an honest living; 200 or 300 men could get work in every county in Ontario at a fair wage if they were willing to accept it. Such farmers cannot afford to pay from $81 to $25 per month and board for hired men, and as the case stands now the hired man is the boss, and the farmer the servant. If wages do not come down to reason the farmers will have to combine and import labor, or else give up farming.

We have heard something like this be

We have heard something like this before, and doubt not that it is more or less founded on facts. It seems a great pity that we should have able-bodied men asking to be sent to jail for the winter, when, as our correspondent affirms, there are farmers who would gladly employ them at reasonable wages. Let us suggest a test for both parties. Suppose we had in the city, in connection with our combined charities, a farmers' labor bureau, the business of which should be to bring together farmers seeking help, and men who find themselves in the city without work, if the latter really wanted work, and if farmers were found willing to take them for the winter, much good would be done; and a dollar a head should be more than nor sow might make himself useful feeding cattle and doing "chores" round the place during the winter. The managers of our city charities might consider whether there be anything in the suggestion of a farmers' labor bureau, for the winter only, when applicants for relief are crowding in upon them. The immigration agents will manage that business during the summer. And it

Two bankers from Amsterdam, Holland, are at present on a visit to Canada for tho purpose of enquiring into the prospects of the Canadian Pacific railway. It is said that Mr. Bossebain, of Messrs. A. Bossebain & Co. of Amsterdam, expressed a favorable opinion of what he had seen. It is reported that the enhanced price of Canadian Pacific stock in London and in Amsterdam was owing to the Amsterdam bankers increasing their holdings. On all which we will make just this remark, that as shareholders in what is, or ought to be, our national railway, the Dutch of old Amsterdam are greatly to be preferred to the Goulds and Vanderbilts of New York.

There is hope for the plasterers in th reflection that out of 21 strikes in New York city last year, eleven were successful and two partially so, while four are still in pro gress, and only four failed. The men in volved in the successful and partially suc essful strikes numbered 32,025, while the nsuccessful men only aggregated 3,840.

SIR: Seeing a letter signed Publico in your columns allow me to say a few words on the sad accident which happened last week. The Globe and the little Telegram are full of condemnation, not knowing the real facts of the case. Conductor Barber was doing two men's work on this train. His brother-in-law told me that he has been complaining some time about the double work. No wonder men make mis-gine being ten minutes late. If this dummy and the passengers had started at the right time, none of the bolt works employes would have met the fate they have. Is poor Barber to blame for this? Of course the accident would have occurred, but not so many lives would have bee sacrificed. I hope the daily papers in To-ronto will not condemn until matters are horoughly sifted. Toronto, Jan. 7, 1884. More Lessons From the Accident.

To the Editor of the World. SIR: The letter signed Care in your columns reminds me that the fatal train had no tender to the engine. Had there been this regular attendant of all ordinary trains, the fatal results might have been with very specific contradictions. Dull- less disastrous. Cattle trains are run with engine and tender. But then mechanics and laborers are apparently of not so much value in the eyes of railway companies as cattle, and hence the suburban train, carwith a dummy engine and no tender Another point—punctuality. Had the fatal train started on time it would have been ten minutes earlier, and that ten minutes would have landed the men at the olt works. There would have been a col lision between the works and Mimico; but the men who were killed would not have CAUTION. Toronto, Jan. 7, '84.

To the Editor of The World. SIR: Red skies are not peculiar to the antipodes, and it is doubtful if the displays spoken of equal some I had the pleasure of witnessing this winter northwest of Lake Superior. On waking one morning just before the first appearance of dawn, the whole eastern sky was bright and fiery vermillion red—a scene that baffles description, or even imagination. My first impression was that the aniversal confiagration had begun. No doubt the sombre solitude of the place conduced to the idea. Ten or fifteen degrees below zero, however, soon dispelled it. Subsequently the same phenomenon occurre degrees the same phenomenon occurre degrees the same phenomenon occurred several times are supplied to the same phenomenon occurred several times are supplied to the same phenomenon occurred the same phenomenon occurr nenon occurre d several times, one in the evening. The morning displays, however, were much the finest and most intense. No doubt the remarkable clearess, purity and rarity of the atmosphere up there accounts for the phenomenal coloring of the skies, as the auroral and other heavenly displays are at times equally phenomenal. The glory and sublimity of the heavens up there are only equalled by the unparalelled North Shore scenery. Toronto, Jan. 4, 1884. H.

A Lynx-Hied Reporter.

From the Peterboro Examiner. The lynx, catamount or wild cat, is be coming rare, but an enterprising employe of the Examiner the other day secured one. Mr. T. G. Wilson, the canvassing agent of the Examiner, while on his rounds on the fourth line of Dummer, left his horse and proceeded on foot, "across lots," to a farm house. On his return, with the instinctive desire of a printer to have a "stick" in hand, or from the habit of "geting up clubs," he picked up a bludgeon and carried it with him. His shortest course lay through a swamp, where there was a trail. Suddenly he came across a lynx, crouched for a leap, and at the moment the brute looked the size of a Christa dollar a head should be more than enough to pay the expenses. That would surely be better and more economical than boarding in jail men accused of no crime save poverty and inability to get work to do.

Of course farmers could not be expected to pay more than very moderate wages, besides board, to men, the greater number of whom would probably be totally unactive. Suddenly he came across a lynx, crouched for a leap, and at the moment the brute looked the size of a Christment the brute looked the size of a Christment the printer, acting promptly, brought him a blow across the neck that stunned him, and he afterwards dispatched him outright. The animal measures about four feet from sout to the termination of his rather brief caudal extension. The skin is now in the taxidermist's hands. The lynx-hide reporter is no longer a myth.

thing unusually brilliant, but the jangle of the music may popularise the opera. The plot is similar to that of the Princess, Mr. Gilbert's play, which owes its origin to Tennyson's poem, and which was played at the Olympic theatre, London. The pro-logue opens with the exterior of King Hilderband's palace, and there is the usual opening chorus. Prince Hilarion has chosen the Princess Ida for his bride, and expects her arrival in charge of King chosen the Princess Ida for his bride, and expects her arrival in charge of King Gama. But the king appears without her, alleging as a reason for his failure that the princess is shut up in a ladies' castle, to which no man may enter. Hilarion, Cyril and Florian engage to capture the princess, and go disguised in female apparel to Castle Adamant. They are admitted to the castle, but their sex is discovered, and the princess, horrified, falls into a stream in the castle gardens. Halarion rescues her, but he and his companions are condemned to death and are about to be executed when King Hilderbrand besieges the castle. After a severe struggle it is captured, and the ladies succumb to the victors, Princess Ida giving her hand to Princess Ida giving her hand to Simultaneously with the announcement that Lord Falmouth intends to retire from the turf comes the statement that the czar of Russia will send a racing stud to England. When one goes out another comes in. Racing is too firmly established to be damaged materially and lastingly by the detection of one man, even though that one man be the most enthusiastic and honorable devote of his time. That Lord Falmouth's retirement will be a great misfortune to the English race course, no one will gainsay, but in the ordinary course of events he was bound to take his leave of a sport that has known him so long. Others equally as great and equally as generous and enterprising have gone before, but the turf has recovered the shock. Lord Falmouth's retirement t vill run the same course as every other momentary sensation.

These poisons keep the internal lining membrane of the nose in a constant state of irritation, ever ready for the deposit of the seeds of these germs, which spread up the nostrils and down the fauces or back of the throat, causing ulceration of the throat, up the eustachian tubes, causing deafness, burrowing in the vocal cords, causing deafness, burrowing in the state of the bronchial tubes, ending in pulmonary consumption and death.

Many attempts have been made to discover a cure for this distressing disease by the use of inhalants and other ingenious devices, but none of these treatments can do a particle of good until the parasites are either destroyed or removed from the mucous tissue.

Some time since a well known physician of forty years' standing, after much experimenting, succeeded in discovering the necessary combination of ingredients which never falls in absolutely and permanently eradicating this horrible disease, whether standing for one year or forty years. Those who may be suffering from the above disease should, without delay, communicate with the business managers, Messers, A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King street west, Toronto, and get full particulars and treatise free by enclosing stamp.

Investigate the Grand Trunk System. From the Montreal Star.

It will be very proper matter for enquiry by the jury whether the Grand Trunk system of running trains is as perfect as it can be made or not. The Grand Trunk has had three collisions quite re-cently. The first was caused by a train dispatcher forgetting that he had ordered a train to cross the Victoria bridge; the second was caused by a driver forget-ting a regulation of the company which requires the drivers of trains with the requires the drivers of trains with the right of way at a crossing to allow five minutes for possible difference in watches. The third apparently is caused by a conductor forgetting that a certain train is a "regular" train. It is very human after all to forget and there is as a railway servant. much human nature in a railway servant as in another man. By these three acci dents alone we see on what a slender chain our safety depends when traveling by railway. A train despatcher forgets; the result is a collision! A train despatcher forgets; the result is a collision! An engine driver forgets the result is again a collision! An engine driver conductor forgets: the result is oncemore a collision! Train dispatcher, engine driver and conductor after all are only men, and hourly hundreds of lives depend upon their not forgetting something. Is this the safest system that can be devised for running railway trains? A chain which has so many weak links is not much to depend upon. It will be a wicked thing, if this disaster is allowed to pass out of our the disaster is allowed to pass out of our the result is again a collision! If the government and the press of Canada were a little more independent of railway influence, it would not necessitate such a tragedy to compel a rigorous investigation. For all practical purposes the Lacadie accident, unattended as it was with loss of life, should have been as instructive and suggestive as the Toronto calamity. But the government apparently is indifferent and a large section of the press worse than indifferent, protesting against investigating the causes of these accidents, "there was only one life lost." This trifling with human life is abominable,

A Perplexity in English Law.

The newest phase of the Weldon divorce ease has directed attention to a phase of the law of marriage in this country, and to which one would like to hear something from the bishops who so vehemently opposed the deceased wife's sister bill on the score of immorality. It is the law of England that either husband or wife may sue for what is called restitution of conjugal rights. If either desert the other without reasonable cause, the court will order the delinquent to resume his or her relations with the inspect to the way. relations with the innocent party. Mrs. Weldon actually obtained from the divorce court a decree of this sort. Mr. Weldon obeyed it to the extent of providing his wife with a house, of which he pays the control with two convents whose wages he wife with a house, of which he pays the rent, with two servants whose wages he pays, and with an allowance of $2500 a year in addition. And that is why I am rather curious to hear what the bishops may have to say about the matter. The bishops are often interesting, but as they have a pretty good share of worldly wisdom in addition to their spiritual fervor, it is probable enough that they will not seize upon this opportunity of extolling the beauty of the canon law.

Society (Incorporated) is one of the most prosperous institutions in Canada. It provides a death benefit from $500 to $2000 and half of that amount in case of permanent disability. It also pays an endowment in ten years. Its membership is composed principally of business and professional men and their wives. All claims are promptly adjusted. Ladies admitted on equal terms with gentlemen. The cost of carrying a $2000 benefit for the last twelve months was only $6.80. Terms and by-laws can be had on application. Agents wanted where there are none appointed. Great inducements given to live men. Head office 30 Adelaide street east, Toronto. Notice Is Hereby Given that application will be made at the next session of the Parliament of Canada for an act to incorporate, authorize and empower a company having its head office at Toronto, to be styled "The International Telegraph and Telephone Company," to construct and work telegraph and telephone lines throughout the Dominion of Canada or the waters thereof, with all necessary powers to buy, lease or amalgamate with any other telegraph or telephone company or companies, and all other us-al clauses and privileges necessary for a company with such objects and purposes.

Dated 13th December, 1883.

HENRY J. SCOTT,
Solicitor for the applicants.

GRATEFUL-COMFORTING. EPPS' COCO

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradully built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."
