SOUTH AFRICA LIKE CANADA HAS A SERIOUS ASIATIC PROBLEM ON HAND

Hindoos, of Whom There are Some Thousands in the Transvaal, Defy the Law---The Government May Have to Confess Failure in Dealing With Them.

JOHANNESBURG, Sept. 14.—Will the Transvaal have to build a new goal to accommodate ten thousand Asiatics? Or will the first law passed by the first elected Parliament be successfully defied by the Eastern peoples within her borders?

These are the questions South Africa is asking. The Transvaal's latest trouble arises in issue of the greatest importance. The Indians in the colony have armed themselves with the weapon of the English Nonconformists. They have become passive resisters. They sit down and stolidly refuse to obey the law. They are prepared to be sent to jail, or ruined in business, or deported. But they will not be registered by Act of Parliament. The deadlock is an awkward one. What the Asiatics in the Transvaal do today the Asiatics in Natal, or Australia, or British Columbia may do tomorrow. Worse still, the resistance to the law may have a bad effect upon the millions of colored people in the sub-continent. They may begin to say among themselves that the rule of the white man is not so very strong after all. And, lastly, the mere fact of this resistance may tend to fan the flame of anti-British feeling in India.

There are in the Transvaal some 12,000 Asiatics—exclusive of the Chinese mine coolies, who do not come within the new Act. It is declared by the administration that their numbers are being constantly added to by the influx of newcomers, who get in on the strength of false permits or without any permits at all.

It was resolved, therefore, to find out precisely who are entitled to reside in the Transvaal, and for this purpose there was passed the Asiatic Law Amendment Ordinance, which, although not assented to in the days of the nominated Legislature, was allowed by the Imperial authorities when passed by the self-governing colony. This law calls upon every Asiatic to apply for a registration certificate, and on the form asking for this certificate every Asiatic male over eight years of age must place his finger impressions. The Government decided to put the act in force district by district. They began with Pretoria, where the Asiatics were called upon to register between July 1 and July 31. Led by the British Indians, the Asiatics refused. They placed pickets outside the registration office, and the official appointed to receive the applications sat all day and every day waiting for Asiatics who did not come. Then it was decided to receive applications secretly at night at private houses. Forty Memos gave in, and it is believed another thirty or forty Indians applied. But in Pretoria alone 1,800 Asiatics defied the law, and assuming that the proportion is maintained in all the other districts there will eventually be over 10,000 Asiatics liable first to a fine of $500 or three months' imprisonment, then to the loss of their trading licenses, and finally deportation.

The Indians object to the principle of the act and also to its provisions. They declare it is a class legislation of the worst type. They say that if every

Gen. Drude and Admiral Philibert Heads of French Forces in Morocco

PARIS, Sept. 13.—General Piquart, Minister of War, received the following despatch from General Drude, commanding the French troops at Casablanca:

"I am pleased to notify you that, thanks to a land fog, we were able to surprise the Moroccan camp at Taddert, which was burned. The Moors were dispersed and fled to the hills, followed by the shells of our artillery

THE CIRCUS WAS DELAYED UNTIL AFTER EIGHT O'CLOCK

And the Street Parade Was Postponed—Train Met With a Mishap Near Petitcodiac Early This Morning

From early morning crowds of boys and men drifted towards the Gilbert Lane siding of the I. C. R. For once they were before the circus, which was due to arrive early in the morning but owing to a breakdown at Petitcodiac did not reach the city until shortly after eight o'clock. As soon as the long train was placed on the sidings the workmen were placed at their respective jobs and by nine o'clock the task of preparing the big show was well under way. The grounds chosen for the circus are situated just beyond the Marsh Bridge on the old Westmorland Road.

The large vans were unloaded from the flat cars by being sent down a run-way. The method of unloading these big vans was ingenious. An iron skid-way was placed in front of the car and down this the vans were sent. They were fastened in the rear with ropes which were in turn fastened to cleats on the side of the car. Even with all the precautions taken the vans sometimes got beyond the control of the workmen and shot swiftly over the ground in front only to be brought up short at a telegraph pole which was directly in front of the skid-way. A driver with eight horses then took the vans over to the show grounds.

The land was quickly measured for the placing of the tents and by eleven o'clock the canvas was nearly all spread. Owing to the delay in arriving in the city the parade was postponed until one o'clock.

LONGBOAT DISQUALIFIED BY METROPOLITAN ASS'N

Along With Other Athletes—The Charge Is That He Paid No Attention to Regulations.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Times today says:—Another international athletic disturbance is promised as the result of suspension of Longboat, the famous Indian runner, and Coley, the Canadian crack, by the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union. These men with Frank Nebrich, of the New York Athletic Club, who has also been placed under the ban, have taken it upon themselves to travel from the Dominion to the United States and vice versa whenever they pleased, and engage in races without permission of the Metropolitan Association, the governing body of athletes in the district where the offenses were committed. There is quite a specific rule in the code of the Amateur Athletic Union regarding this matter and the three men have deliberately suspended themselves.

Coley's offense was in competing in a match race recently with Nebrich at the Fort Erie race track in Canada. Nebrich went over the border without receiving a permit to engage in such a contest, and therefore became a disqualified athlete. By competing with Nebrich the Canadian also became disqualified.

Longboat's punishment comes as the result of having visited the Kenilworth track in Buffalo about three weeks ago and racing against three men. Longboat had no permit for the engagement, consequently he will not be able to run any more as an amateur athlete until his suspension has been removed, neither will the three men who competed against him.

CONVICT NEEDS A SEA VOYAGE

John G. Gaynor, Improved at Health Resort, Now Wants Salt Air.

INDIAN SPRINGS, Ga., Sept. 14.—Having greatly improved at this health resort, where he has been by grace of the government for several weeks, John G. Gaynor, who was convicted with Benjamin D. Green and Captain Oberlin M. Carter of defrauding the United States in the Savannah harbor contracts, has decided that a sea trip will completely restore his health, so he has asked the United States Circuit Court of appeals to allow him to take an ocean voyage.

Gaynor has been sentenced to five years' imprisonment and the Circuit Court has affirmed the sentence, but it will hear an application for a rehearing. Under the circumstances Gaynor's request for a sea trip is considered a little unusual. The privileges already accorded Gaynor have caused much comment, and should the government allow him to go on an ocean voyage there will be strong protest.

THE EXCEEDINGLY MODEST DEMANDS OF RAISULI

He Wants a Job, and Full Compensation for Losses Borne by All His Relatives.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Raisuli no longer asks for British or other protection in return for the release of Caid Sir Harry MacLean, the Englishman who has been his prisoner since early in July," says the Tangier correspondent of the Daily Mail.

"He is more ambitious, and is demanding that he be made Governor of the hill tribes inhabiting a great part of Northern Morocco. Furthermore he seeks compensation for a multitude of flocks and herds which he alleges have been taken from himself and his relations, insists that some of his former friends be put in chains and wants to be supplied with magazines, rifles and ammunition.

"Sir Harry MacLean," the correspondent continues, "is well. He now has his own tent and bed and his own servants."

The civil suit case of Klorsted vs. Humphreys, was again before Judge Ritchie this morning, when J. King Kelly for the plaintiff and A. W. Wilson for the defense were in argument.

NO NEED TO FEAR THE BUBONIC PLAGUE

San Francisco Board of Health Issues a Statement on the Prevalence of the Disease.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 15.—The following official announcement was made today concerning the bubonic plague which has been reported to the people of San Francisco:—Rumors of an alarming nature having reached the board of health in regard to the so-called bubonic plague, the president of the board, by its authority, hereby declares that there exists at the present no danger of the disease since the 21st day of May. Every precaution is taken by the federal authorities, in co-operation with the state and the city board of health to stamp out such of the disease as is here. It is well to bear in mind that bubonic plague seldom becomes epidemic except in the tropics.

QUEBEC BRIDGE BOSS FORESAW THE ACCIDENT

Wrote to His Brothers That a Big Smash Would Come—He Wanted to be Out of the Way But Was Killed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The World today says:—Swenson and Swenson, real estate dealers at Flushing, gave out yesterday a letter said to have been written by their brother Carl Swenson, a boss employed on the Quebec bridge which fell on August 26. Swenson's letter is dated the day before the disaster. He was killed. The letter reads:—"I doubt very much whether the bridge will ever be finished since the first and second panels of the bottom chord of the Cantilever, Quebec side are unsetting. I want to be in New York when she falls. If the bridge goes it will be the worst wreck that ever occurred. Don't show this to any one. This part is no fool'scher story."

TOKIO, Sept. 14.—In consequence of the recent widespread floods, thousands of peasants are destitute and starving. The rice famine extends over a wide area. The price of rice is higher than ever before in Japan.

WILL NOT TENDER FOR THE GOAL SUPPLY OF FLEET

Big Dealers Say They Have No Extra Supplies on Hand.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The situation with regard to the proposals issued by the bureau of equipment of the navy department for supplying coal for the battleship fleet on its voyage to the Pacific, says the Journal of Commerce, has assumed rather interesting shape here by the statements of several agents of the larger coal mining companies that they would not present bids.

Their reasons are that they have not the necessary quantity of coal on hand, aside from the quantity demanded by private contracts already entered into. The companies claim that they have no reserve stocks on hand amounting to anything and that the labor situation is such that they cannot increase their mining capacity. Hereofore the favorite steam coal for navy department use has been the Pennsylvania fields. This falling, the entire 25,000 tons would have to be purchased abroad. The coal, it was stated, can be obtained in England if it is necessary to go there, but the prices will undoubtedly be what might be classed as "fancy."

ONE LEGGED MEN WALK EIGHT HUNDRED MILES

Delegates of Union of Cripples Reach Paris to Interview the Premier.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—M. Roeln and Carlier, two one-legged men, arrived in Paris today, having walked all the way from Marseilles—800 miles. They are the leading spirits in the recently formed Union of Cripples, and have come to see M. Clemenceau and endeavor to obtain from him official recognition of the union.

A crowd of 400 cripples went outside the Vincennes Gate to meet them. There were cripples of every possible kind—there were men with one arm and with one leg; there were men and women with no arms and with no legs at all; there were blind men and women and paralytics, and every cripple of them all, except some half-dozen

BOY AVENGED DEATH OF MURDERED FATHER

When Slayer Was Released from Prison Dead Man's Son Shot Him and His Sister

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The World says:—Two weeks out of the Elmira Reformatory where he had spent fifteen months for the killing of Michael Marcontino, James Beslin, Brooklyn, was shot and instantly killed last night by Joseph Marcontino, son of the man he had stabbed to death more than a year ago. Rose Beslin, sister of the victim, also was shot by Marcontino as she sat with her brother on the stoop of their home.

Marcontino was captured after an exciting chase of nearly half a mile. About fifteen months ago Michael Marcontino went to the Beslins and demanded a month's rent, he being the landlord. The landlord and Beslin's father had a quarrel and Michael Marcontino made a move as if to draw a revolver. Young Beslin at once drew a knife and stabbed Marcontino to the heart.

Beslin had just returned from making his report to the Elmira representatives in this city, he being on parole under the new law, when Marcontino suddenly appeared and with the revolver pointed said: "This avenges my father," and fired.

The bullet plunged into Beslin's eye and he dropped headless at the feet of his sister. Marcontino fired again and the bullet ploughed through the girl's arm.

WHAT THE ST. JOHN ALDERMAN SHOULD DO

JOPLIN, Mo., Sept. 14.—Dynamite last night wrecked the press room and the composing news of the Joplin News-Herald, an afternoon Republican newspaper, which has been conducting a crusade against the methods of the city council and the police department. Every window in the building was broken, and a new press and six typesetting machines were destroyed. No one was in the building when the explosion occurred.

who were deaf and dumb, was cheering lustily.

M. Roeln and Carlier arrived with their sister, they looked wonderfully well after their long walk. They went to an hotel in the Rue de Grenelle, which is kept by one of their confreres—M. Doussineau, who lost both his legs in a railway accident, but is nevertheless proud of the agility with which he walks at table.

SPORTING MATTERS

GREAT INTEREST IN HARBOR RACE TODAY

Cotes and Ross are to be the Only Competitors—Race Will Start at 3:15. Great interest is being taken in the harbor championship race to be rowed this afternoon. The competitors are requested to be on hand at the starting point at three o'clock. The race will begin at 3:15. If the water is very rough it is likely that the scullers will not go over the course. The starter and referee will decide whether or not the weather conditions are suitable for the rowing of the race. The officials will be: Referee, Chief Clerk; starter, P. Clinch; judge at finish, H. Vroom; judge at turn, W. McShane. Last night the Neptunes knew nothing concerning the likelihood of boys being in the race, and it looks as if Cotes and Ross would be the only competitors.

SLIGHT BLAZE IN WEST END NICKEL

Roll of Films Caught Fire from Electric Wiring—Department Called Out. But Were Not Needed.

The West End Nickel, which is located in the old Carleton City Hall, was temporarily closed last evening as a result of a fire. The management, however, state that the usual programme will be put on tonight. The fire occurred at about 9 o'clock, the rolls of films in the machine operator's booth becoming ignited, presumably from the electric wires running to the machine. The films were composed of celluloid and blazed up quickly, scorching the walls of the booth. The operator, Charles Clark, at once stopped out and requested the spectators to leave the building to avoid any accidents. An alarm from box 114 called out the West Side fire department, but their services were not required, a few buckets of water putting out the blaze. There were about a hundred people present when the accident occurred. All danger was over in a couple of minutes.

A young man who came to Fairville from Fredericton about three months ago and opened a restaurant, went away recently leaving a number of people who are richer in experience but poorer in pocket for having met him. He did a good business and the restaurant was well managed, but he kept the profits for himself, and his creditors. The amount he owed are not large separately, but taken together they total quite a sum. His sudden departure is not without its romantic side. In Fairville he met a Fredericton girl who was here on a visit. A few days after their first meeting they were married. Since learning of the marriage the bride's father has been among those most anxious to meet the groom, but not to give him his blessing.

A freight car left the rails at Fairville last night about nine o'clock. The accident took place just as the car reached the main line after leaving the city at 12:05. The suburban which is due to reach the city at 10 was blocked, and was also the Boston. The latter train was delayed for an hour, reaching the city at 12:05. The suburban was somewhat later and the suburban en route to their homes were about two hours late in leaving.

FIRST CHURCH ORGAN USED A HUNDRED YEARS AGO

In Scotland — It Was Built by James Watt, the Famous Inventor — A Long Struggle Before Its Adoption, and Many Disputes Afterwards.

GLASGOW, Sept. 14.—The twenty-third of August, a little over one hundred years ago, was a Sunday, and on it in one of the city churches of Glasgow, occurred a notable event. For the first time in the history of any Presbyterian church in the country an organ was used in public worship. An innovation so daring had not long to wait for a stirring sequel. The two views at once in a ferment. But it was not the church courts which took action; it was an alert municipality. The lord provost instantly brought the matter before the town council, and the city fathers in their capacity as heritors rose in wrath and with unflinching voice called upon the ecclesiastical jurisdiction to exercise its authority, and for the sake of the peace of the community put an end to the evil thing.

The church which ventured on this bold step was St. Andrew's parish church. This steeple of all the city fanned stood then, as it stands still, in the midst of its own square. A century ago it was also in the centre of fashion and culture, and its congregation was largely drawn from the professional classes and the wealthy. The minister of the time was Dr. Whann Ritchie, a man of wide travel and scholarly accomplishments, and of such high reputation in the church that he had already sat in the moderator's seat of the general assembly. While he was undoubtedly the willing leader in the venture, it was not his step of introducing instrumental music without leave asked of any civil or ecclesiastical court, he was not the prime mover in the matter. He advised before the Presbytery that far more than thirty years a wish had been cherished by St. Andrew's church to have an organ erected and employed in public worship, and it was only after repeated proposals had been made to him by the leaders of the congregation that he gave his consent with the full approval of his mind. At the same time nothing but his unflinching faith and noble influence can explain the fact that, at a time when public opinion was quite unprepared to sanction so pronounced a departure from ancient usage, there was entire unanimity among his people; for never through all the protracted and bitter public controversy which ensued was there the slightest difference of opinion indicated among the members of this advanced congregation.

The exceptional attitude of St. Andrew's parish church to the question of the use of organs was doubtless to some extent determined by its intimate relations with its near Episcopal neighbor, St. Andrew's Episcopal church, the oldest church of the denomination in the city, had for over fifty years employed an organ in its services, and that account was locally known as the "Whistling Kirk." As specially became churches dedicated to the same patron saint, the two congregations were on the most friendly terms. It was John Ferguson, the Episcopal organist who, in the most neighborly fashion, came along from his own "list of whistles" and handled the instrument in the parish church on the memorable Sunday a hundred years ago.

The organ which inaugurated this new departure and created so great a stir was in itself a very unpretentious instrument, as thin an end of an organ wedge as could well have been employed. It was a small chamber organ of only two stops, but it was an interesting instrument, for it was the workmanship of James Watt, the Watt was a former member of the congregation, and made four small organs in his day, leaving the most beautiful one when he removed to Birmingham. The famous relic still exists, not in its original condition, but enlarged, and made more organ-like by the addition of glided pipes.

ARE SOME FORGOTTEN?

In these days of labor unions, wage increases, and reductions of hours of work, employers are apt to act unfairly, perhaps not always intentionally, towards those in their service who are least fortunate. So many demands are made, and it is at times so hard to comply with all the requests that merchants and others find it necessary to practice in other directions every possible economy. When, for instance, there are a sufficient number of employees in one occupation, to form a union, it is seldom difficult for them to secure practically all that they ask, unless, of course, the demands are beyond reason. The power of the union is the lever, and it is usually effective. But if only one or two men, no matter how capable and faithful they may be, are found in the service of any large establishment or corporation, performing work such as does not qualify them for membership in a union, their claims are sometimes overlooked. They are helpless, for there is little sense in one or two men going on strike or even attempting in a milder way to secure better remuneration. Their places could easily be filled, and while such treatment might not be entirely fair it would be natural enough on the part of the hard pressed employer. There are to be found today in many establishments young and perhaps unskilled employees drawing wages far higher than they really earn, but enjoying this benefit because the proprietors pay the union rate. It is an excellent thing that men have been able to band together for mutual assistance, and unionism moderately conducted has been and will continue to be of untold benefit to all classes. But in these same establishments there may be seen other men, experienced at their work, capable, and in every way satisfactory members of a union but who are unable to become members of a union have been passed by when favors were being given out. Such instances exist in St. John today. Competent employees are to be found who are now doing better work than they have ever done, who deserve treatment equal at least to that accorded their fellow employees, but who are not union men because no unions covering their occupation exist, and who are receiving no higher pay than was given them ten or fifteen years ago. They find that living has become far more costly; in some instances they can barely struggle along; they feel that they deserve higher pay, but who are less deserving any better treated, but they are unable to enforce any demands, and prefer accepting what is given rather than take the risk of losing their jobs. If employers would look around and see whether among their men any are to be found in such a position, there is no doubt that a good many hard workers could be made glad.

GRAND JURIES.

On opening the circuit court in Kings county on Tuesday Judge Landry found that there was no criminal business to be taken up, but that in spite of this a grand jury had been summoned. This frequently occurs, and the Judge made the suggestion that much inconvenience might be avoided if court officials and county sheriffs could be induced to exercise a little common sense. He advocated the plan of ascertaining whether the services of a grand jury would be required for the consideration of criminal cases, and if not, then the sheriff should not summon any men from their work. The condition criticized by Judge Landry arises very frequently in every county of the province and is the cause of much inconvenience. There are some judges who gladly hail the appearance of the grand jury, as they are afforded an opportunity to air, from the bench, their private views on matters often of purely personal interest. Grand juries have certain powers in connection with suggesting remedies for undesirable conditions found to exist in the various branches of the administration of justice. But in New Brunswick our courts and jails and other public institutions are not so this nature every few months. Juries need not be called together for this work alone, and really there is no reason why Judge Landry's suggestion should not be generally adopted throughout the province. Indeed the grand jury is fast approaching the end of its days, and will not be greatly missed when it finally disappears.

Lord Kitchener and the heads of the British War Office are again at odds, this time over the appointment of a general to command the troops at Quebec. Kitchener has, of course, his own ideas, and has chosen a man who by energy and ability is qualified for this important post. The Duke of Connaught, on the other hand, insists that the department shall be unrestricted in its course. As a result there is considerable wire pulling in favor of two or three officers who have depended so far for promotion on political influence rather than on their own merits. The vacancy occurs through the transfer of Lieut.-General Smith-Dorrien, who has been appointed to the command at Aldershot.

WISDOM.

The weather-man 'his map surveyed— And then a tny dot he made. He scanned the east—and made a second, And with a pencil sat and reckoned. He scanned the west, and with precision Performed a sum in long division. He conned a telegram—and drew With compass a circle true. He noted the barometer And read the anemometer. Athwart his chart, in curved designs, He traced some isothermal lines, And having fixed each "high" and "low," Well satisfied he rose to go. He clapped his hat upon his head; "Tomorrow, clear and dry," he said, But, ah, next day came on a rain Which poured and poured with might and main. And soaked the people as they ran— But not, egad! the weather-man. For he, the wisest sight in town, Had carried an umbrella down!

The talk around the table shifted to fish and fishing, with the usual consequences. "Well, gentlemen," said the man who was fortunate enough to tell the best story, "the best day's sport I ever had was off the coast of southern California. There were three of us in the boat, each of us had three lines out and we simply couldn't pull them in fast enough. "What kind of fish were biting?" asked an indulgent listener. "I don't know what the natives call them," said the fisherman, "but they were big enough to be lethystaruses."

"Maybe they were whales, Frank," suggested an ironical member. "Whales!" exclaimed Frank, with a look of disdain, "whales, indeed! Why, man, we were battling with whales!" It was at a theatre in Manchester. The King, aged and infirm, was blessed with two sons. He was pacing up and down the stage with a worried, troubled look, exclaiming aloud: "On which of these my sons shall I bestow the crown?" Immediately came a voice from the gallery: "Why not 'art a crown apiece, gov'nor?"

"Now, Patsy, if it should come to a real issue, which would you rather lose—your money or your life?" "Me loife, begorra. O'm savin' me money for me old age." THE LAST SWEET. When we reach the higher studies of foreign languages we are told to seek diligently to learn to think in the alien tongue, as well as to read and write it. That is, we are expected to catch the meaning of the strange words without any connection with English or English speech. From this one may come to appreciate the experience of a certain Porto Rican negro. He was asked, not very long after his arrival in the United States, if English was difficult for him. "Oh, no," he said. "I learn her ver' quick." "So you could understand it and talk it?" "Oh, yes, ver' good. But I have one trouble yer' long time. I speak good, an' I hear good, but I cannot dream in English. I always dream in Spanish. An' I feel ver' bad, an' I try so hard to dream English. An' one night I do. I dream English when I am asleep, an' I wake an' cry, an' I weep for joy. I am happy. I can now dream in English."—Youth's Companion.

DR. MAHER'S OFFICES.

No professional man in this country has ever shown the same energy in extending his business as has Dr. Maher, the North End dentist, and proprietor of the Boston Dental Parlors. Having recently opened choice apartments in the Aberdeen building, Halifax, and placing therein five skilled dentists, he has now in view a project whereby he will have an endless chain of offices throughout Canada and the United States. At Halifax his business has already assumed enormous proportions and his opening advertisement is generally spoken of as the finest one that ever graced a Halifax newspaper. Having introduced painless dentistry into Canada and lowering the rates for dental work throughout the province, his publicity generally has been the greatest. His suggestion to the St. John school board some years ago with regard to the examination of school children's teeth has been enforced in the city of Halifax with excellent results, and was one of the chief topics at the recent meeting of the Nova Scotia Dental Association. Dr. Maher will continue to give his personal attention to the St. John office which will remain his headquarters. Anyone requiring any dental work cannot better themselves in this country than by visiting the Boston Dental Parlors.

RESPECTED HIS SCRUPLES.

In the mathematics class one day at Williams College, Professor S., who was rarely made the subject of college jests, was excessively annoyed by some man "squawking" a small rubber bladder. The noise seemed to come from near a certain Jack Hollis, and after querying each of his neighbors and receiving a negative answer Professor S. said sternly: "Hollis, do you know who is making that unbearable noise?" "Hollis, who had been the guilty person all along, assumed an air of stoical bravery and said calmly, "I know, sir, but I prefer not to tell."

Professor S.'s angry face grew crimson, and with evident pleasure he replied: "I respect your scruples, Hollis. They do you credit and should shame the guilty man."

WAGES.

We all want higher wages. Blacksmiths, Minsters, Carpenters, Masons, Clerks, Sailors, Soldiers, Farmers, Railway men, every man and boy and woman and girl wants higher wages. What for? The answer would be no doubt, "It costs more to live than it did a few years ago. Rents are higher, everything that we eat costs more than it did. That is one reason why we want higher wages. Another reason is we want to build a home and lay up something for old age and sickness. If the business in which you are engaged can't pay you enough to live on higher wages, but there are larger numbers who want higher wages that they may work only half of the time and have more money to spend in drink."

Phaddeus HIS LAST RETORT.

The story is told of a well known Chicago criminal lawyer whose valuable services were retained by the wealthy relatives of a man accused of murder in a southwestern state. The case was a bad one, for the evidence was overwhelmingly against the accused. Despite this fact the lawyer, centred by the skillful exercise of every trick and maneuver known to the profession, to secure the disagreement of judge, jurors, appeals, etc., till at last the case was brought before the supreme court of the United States. One day in an interview between the prisoner and his counsel, the former asked, "In case the supreme court should decide against me, what will be my next move?" "To heaven, I hope," was the candid response of the lawyer.

ALL THE CLOCKS STOPPED WHEN THE WOMAN DIED

Remarkable Incident in Buda Pesth Which Has Excited Much Comment.

MILAN, Sept. 14.—A remarkable story is related in a telegram reaching the newspapers here from Buda Pesth. Three nights ago a young actor, named Viszary, who was fulfilling an engagement at the National Theatre in the Hungarian capital, suddenly awoke from sleep, and as he had to rise very early, he consulted his watch, only to discover that it had stopped at two o'clock. Fearing that he might be late for his appointment, he roused his housekeeper, and asked her the time, but learned that her watch had stopped also at two o'clock. Three other clocks placed in different rooms had also stopped at precisely the same hour. Viszary was much surprised at this strange simultaneous stopping of no fewer than five timepieces, and told several friends of the occurrence. Later on he learned that at two o'clock that morning his wife had died at an hotel in Venice, where she had been staying for several days. Her body was conveyed to Buda-Pesth, where the news of this strange coincidence made a profound impression.

Dr. Charles E. Birch, health officer of White Plains, when asked tonight by neighbors what action he would take in the matter, said that he did not believe that the body was in the house. In any event, he added, he believed that the family had the remains in an airtight casket. Stephen D. KEEP BODY OF SON IN HOME 2 WEEKS

Wealthy Woman Declines to Permit Removal of Coffin.

Death of Irving Ryan and Subsequent Events Give Rise to the Circulation of Reports.

WHITE PLAINS, Sept. 13.—In a light gray casket resting on a bank of roses the body of Irving Ryan, only son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Ryan, of No. 21 Grand street, has reclined for two weeks in the parlor of his parents' home in the most aristocratic residential section of White Plains. Becoming known today this fact was a surprise to friends and neighbors who believed that when the corpse was removed from the door ten days ago after funeral services the body had been conveyed to the cemetery in Dover Plains.

Various stories are being told to account for the unusual holding of the body. One, which is generally believed, is that the mother of the deceased, who was twenty-nine years old, refused to permit the burial of the remains and spends practically all her waking hours lingering over the casket, gazing at the face of her son, who the family asserts, "appears to be in a deep sleep."

Another story is that the parents believe the son to be in a trance. Relatives of the family tonight indignantly denied these reports, and others which were in circulation. They declared that the body is being held pending the completion of the family vault in Dover Plains Cemetery. Work in this they aver, is being pushed, but they would make no prediction as to the date of its completion.

Views of Health Officers.

Dr. Charles E. Birch, health officer of White Plains, when asked tonight by neighbors what action he would take in the matter, said that he did not believe that the body was in the house. DEEP GRIEF OF MOTHER.

Knowing the attachment Mrs. Ryan had for her son, neighbors readily believed the reports that she refused to be parted from the body of her son and that she was determined to keep it in the house indefinitely. She was greatly upset by his death, and was a picture of grief during the funeral services. Many friends and relatives attended the services and they were told that the body was to be sent to a receiving vault at Dover Plains. The corpse was taken from the door and neighbors assumed that the casket had been removed during the night.

SUPPLEMENT.

ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1907.

JOHN REDMOND INTERVIEWED ON THE IRISH SITUATION

He Sees No Reason Why the Party's Policy Should be Changed—The Sinn Fein and Its Influence With the Masses.

DUBLIN, Sept. 13.—An extraordinary story comes from Youghal, County Cork. A young man named O'Donnell, who had been an inmate in a charitable institution there, died a few days ago, and arrangements were made for his interment at Ferrypoint County Waterford. A coffin was ordered and forwarded to the institution. Next morning the relatives removed it to the young man's former residence, carrying it all the way on their shoulders. Remarks were frequent from the pall-bearers about the lightness of the coffin but, as the young man's illness was protracted, it was concluded that he had wasted away.

Some hours after the coffin had been deposited at his house a relative, who had not seen him for several years, expressed a desire to see his face. The desire was opposed, but, in face of a persistent request, the lid of the coffin was allowed to be unsecured. All attending the "wake" had gathered round to take a last view of the body, but to their astonishment a quantity of shavings was all that was to be seen. As soon as the parties recovered from their shock the empty coffin was taken back to Youghal, and in the institution from which it had been taken the corpse still lay. The funeral party then returned with the body.

Mr. John Redmond, in a letter to the town clerk of Westford Borough Council, thanking them for proposing to confer the honorary freedom of the borough on him, speaks of the relations between the Parliamentary party and Sinn Fein, saying: "The absurd pretence that the best way of forwarding the national cause is to withdraw the National representatives from Parliament—that is to say, to disfranchise Ireland, to throw away the weapon by the use of which all the victories of the past twenty-five years have been won for the freedom and prosperity of the people, to leave all outstanding Irish questions, only Home Rule, but education, finance, and land reform, to the exclusive management of the United Kingdom—this is a policy which has been condemned and repudiated in unmistakable fashion by Ireland. Its advocates have not dared to take the verdict of the people in any part of Ireland."

Later Mr. Redmond says: "It has been said that a new policy is needed, one that will lead to find out what (outside the discarded abstention policy) is meant by this cry. The only new policy I have, and which I have given to the Government to give us Home Rule by letters patent in the case of the Transvaal, a simple and simple-minded policy surely. But he strangely forgets that there is a small obstacle in the way in the shape of the Act of Union. There is, however, doubtless in some places confusion and doubt, no matter how engendered, and, for example, the position in North Westford. That position cannot remain as it is, Sir Thomas Esmond has repudiated and denounced the policy of the Irish party. He has been called upon by that party to fulfil his pledge by vacating his seat so as to allow the electors to decide the issue. He has not done so. He has now announced that he is willing to act with the party or to stand in the front. This won't do, is he or is he not a member of the Irish party, bound so long as he is a member of the party to accept the policy and decisions of the majority of his colleagues, and to sit, act, and vote with them? There is no such thing as a 'conditional' member of the party. Even for Sir T. Esmond such a select class inside the party cannot be created. If he is to be a member of the party he must be on an equality, and nothing more, with every member of it."

Mr. Redmond concludes with these significant words: "I have no doubt or misgivings about the future. The country. The cranks and cynics, the doubters, the well-recognized professional critics have all had their innings for the past few weeks. They will get their answer from every quarter of Ireland when the harvest is saved."

Mr. Wm. Redmond, M. P., has sent the following letter to the League branches in East Clare: "I trust that your branch will lose no time in affixing the central organization in Dublin. At this time when so much criticism is being directed against the Irish party it is the duty of the people to strengthen the national organization, because whatever the party may be will depend upon the branches of the U. I."

"I am exceedingly anxious that East Clare should be in no way backward, and I should appeal to you and other branches to come into line with the rest of the country and support the recognized organization of the people, the United Irish League."

"While it is true that we have not succeeded as we anticipated in winning, so far, a fair measure of Home Rule, it is only right to remember that we now enjoy the government of County Councils instead of the sway of the old Grand Jurors."

"I cannot understand the man who would attempt to deny that much has been achieved during the past twenty-five years. I consider that the Irish party are entitled to a fair measure of credit, but at the same time, I freely admit that everything that has been won, or will be won, rests entirely with the organization and the united people at home. Unfortunately at the present time, as far as I can see, the Irish people have no stronger weapon at their hand than a united and independent representation in Parliament. If there were a better way of achieving what we want, I should be delighted, but under existing circumstances, I truly believe that it is in the interest of all classes of Irishmen to maintain the Irish party as founded by Mr. Parnell, and I believe also that it is a duty of every Irishman to leave the House in the possession of the Irish representatives from the north of Ireland, and that they should be supported in their efforts to induce every interest which is dear to the Irish people."

"Ireland, by means of disorganized references to Home Rule. On the contrary, I am convinced that the maintenance of an independent action in Parliament and in the country will inevitably lead to the establishment of a single party, as it is the duty of the establishment of Land Reform and the whole question is one for the people. I am sure the Irish members have no greater desire than to represent the wishes of the electors. If the people believe that good is to be achieved by the maintenance of an Irish Party, that can only be effectively done by maintaining an organization in Ireland."

An attempt to publicly explain the Sinn Fein policy in Newry ended in a single failure. A public meeting for the purpose was convened by poster to be held at Margaret Square last Saturday night at 8.30 o'clock, and by that time a large crowd of people had assembled in that thoroughfare. Observations from members of the crowd plainly showed that they were not sympathizers with the movement, and, consequently, it was expected that the meeting would be a stormy one. About ten minutes after the appointed hour Joseph Smith and P. H. Boyd—two of the young men who constitute the local Sinn Fein branch—mounted a brake which was in waiting in the square and they were followed by O'Harrachain, of Dublin, Bulmer Hobson and Denis McCullagh, of Belfast. Deliberate cheers greeted the appearance of the small party of Sinn Feiners. Joseph Smith opened the proceedings by reading a letter of apology for non-attendance from P. A. Lamb, of Newry, who stated that he was, to a very large extent, in agreement with their policy, as he believed the country at the present time requires a much more forward and active policy than the one being pursued by the Irish Parliamentary Party. Bulmer Hobson then rose to address the meeting, but the interruptions of the crowd were such that it was impossible for him to get a hearing, and he was perforce obliged to resign his seat. Mr. Boyd rose, evidently for the purpose of appealing for quietness, but he had no sooner uttered the words "follow me," than he was howled down. Denis McCullagh, of Belfast, attempted to get in a word, but failed.

Mr. O'Harrachain next ventured to deliver an address, beginning in Irish, but he was similarly greeted, groans, hoots and derisive laughter being showered at him. During his observations a stone was thrown, and the reins attached to the horses connected with the brake were cut. It then looked as if matters were going to assume a serious aspect, but the Sinn Feiners at once moved off followed by the crowd. The entire proceedings were a fiasco.

THE PRESENT CONDITION OF THE CHURCH AND STATE DISPUTE IN FRANCE

Clergy and People are Gradually Settling Down to the New Order of Things—Recent Regulations Against Gambling Have Not Been Wholly Successful.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—For the present matters as between Church and State are in a condition of suspense. There will be no further movement until December, when the question of the leasing of the churches by the bishops will come under discussion. At present the churches are open, and the priests permitted to say mass; but it is entirely on sufferance. At any moment the Government could close the churches, and there is little doubt they would if they were not afraid to rouse the French people by such an extreme step to open revolt.

They have offered to lease them to the bishops, but on the understanding that the latter should keep them in order. Now, as under the Concordat, the minister of public worship was bound to keep them in proper order and repair, but failed for the past twenty-five years to do so, as the amount of money necessary to effect repairs on the huge churches of Paris, such as St. Sulpice, Notre Dame, and the Madeleine, and on the cathedrals of other towns, and to keep them fit for public service in the future, would be entirely beyond the means of the Church of France. They are Government property, and the bishops will not lease them unless they are put and kept in repair. The Government are, therefore, on the horns of a dilemma. They dare not close them entirely, and the prelates will not accept them under the conditions offered.

An attempt was made some time since to form associations of laymen to lease them on behalf of the church, but the bishops refused to sanction the project, and the Pope entirely condemned it. It would lead to many abuses. The priests would find their hands more tied in many cases than they are at present. Any layman, possibly a demagogue, getting himself elected on one of these committees could give infinite trouble. In other countries it has occasionally happened that a man well-meaning, but cranks, acting on a committee for the improvement of a school or church, has been able to give a good deal of trouble. Here they would not be well-meaning, and the bishops wisely refused to countenance these associations.

The French are a wealthy and generous people, and now that the clergy are left to look to them for support they will accord it freely. It will take some little time, because they have not been accustomed to priests voluntarily supported, as in Ireland; but they will come to learn their duties in that respect very soon, and will discharge them generously. At the present moment they contribute to the funds for the propagation of the faith more than all the rest of Europe put together. In the palmy days of the Church in France, before the revolution, they had three thousand foreign missionaries. They have now eighty-seven thousand. This statement is almost incredible, but it is true, and statistics bear it out.

The French have a character for being volatile and sincere and earnest about nothing (except in the dangerous times of war), and that is fairly correct. They certainly make no violent protestations of religion, but they are far from being an irreligious people. It is not quite easy for a stranger to understand this or to know the influences which sway them. For instance, in a street not far from where this letter is written, there is a family of great wealth, olden name and long descent. It is a street of palaces, and theirs is the finest mansion in it. There are three there, leaders of fashion in this city, and a leader of Parisian society is very much of the world, indeed. No one would describe to him very deep thoughts of religion. Yet there were seven children of that family in the church, and serving as missionaries in the east.

A new life is growing even in Paris. As a result, Cardinal Richelieu had to establish nineteen new palaces in this city. At some of the masses in the city churches, numerous and huge as they are, cannot accommodate the worshippers. So much has the religious spirit in Paris developed that one cure, a man of large private means, is erecting, in the Rue Malakoff, not far from the Paris church, a new one for the accommodation of his people.

Another governmental decree has been a perfect bazaar. This is M. Clemenceau's new regulation of gambling in France. It has proved a disaster for the casinos and French watering-places, and a wall has gone up that would melt a harder heart than that of M. Clemenceau. Vichy, Biarritz, Aix-les-Bains, Confréville, Trouville, Dieppe, Dinard, and a score of other fashionable resorts, have sent delegates to meet in congress in Paris, a sort of parliament of the petty chevaux. The present situation is a typical example of "aiming at the horizon and bringing down the goose." There is at Ostend a M. Marquet, the owner of the great gambling establishment in that Belgian watering-place. When the new law regulating associations in France was passed, M. Marquet was of the opinion that associations for gambling could be easily organized. As he is a multi-millionaire he promptly invaded French territory and dotted down gambling establishments in various centres. His most ambitious scheme was the erection of a magnificent casino in the frontier of Monaco, a few kilometres from the world-famous casino of Monte Carlo. This was not to the taste of the Société des Mairies de Mer (this is the harmless sounding name of the company owning gambling rooms), and they promptly began to use their influence, which is very great to get M. Marquet's project nipped in the bud. M. Edmond Blanc, the millionaire sportsman and member of the Chamber of Deputies, the president of the company, set all the machinery of which he disposes in motion. In twenty-four hours a decree of expulsion was issued against M. Marquet and his Belgian partners, and they were promptly conveyed across the frontier as "undesirable foreigners."

This was followed by M. Clemenceau's famous decree regulating gambling, which was destined to make establishments such as M. Marquet dreamed of impossible. But unfortunately they hit the hundreds of casinos in summer resorts at these petty chevaux are played at the public tables and in the private rooms. The Concorde, as far as the government was concerned, has too many advantages to be lightly thrown away. But the intrigueries of Merry del Val precipitated the catastrophe, and thanks to him, the anti-clerical movement in France made more progress in six months than it had in the sixty preceding years.

"Now he has declared the war in the Italian government and is trying to revive the tactics practiced when Pío Nono was Pope, when every French peasant was taught—and believed—that he was lying in chains in a dungeon of the Vatican, the victim of an ambitious government. Now the legend is being created that no pilgrim's life is safe in the Eternal City, and that they are liable to massacre at the hands of an anti-clerical mob, acting with the approval of the government. It must require a robust faith in its justice humane for a man in the position of the Cardinal Secretary of State to put such legends into cold type and sign them with his name. The recent conflict between the more liberal Catholics in Germany and the Index is also the work of Merry del Val, and is another attempt to put the clock back. When Pius X chose Merry del Val as his Secretary of State, there were many head-shakings, but no one really believed the Secretary would be so absolutely reactionary as he has shown himself. At first some of the more liberal minded Cardinals tried to exercise some influence over the trend of affairs, but their influence had little effect and they abandoned them. They have therefore contented themselves with looking on and waiting for the inevitable catastrophe. Some members of the Sacred College recently went to Cardinal Rampolla and asked him to use his influence, but he peremptorily refused. He sits in his retirement and watches the sea of difficulties with which the Vatican is struggling, rising day after day, but he knows better than to intervene. The Cardinal Secretary of State and his party are becoming so completely discredited that when they go they will go for good. They are being given "rope enough to hang themselves." It is a pity that this is the only policy to be followed, as the harm that is being done is immense. The head and front of the offending lies in the fact that the Pope knows nothing whatever about politics. He is a pious, well-meaning, good-hearted old man, who in matters of foreign policy is entirely under the influence of his entourage. Unfortunately for him, his entourage at the present moment consists of all that is reactionary at the Vatican."

CARDINAL MERRY DEL VAL IS LIKELY TO LOSE HIS JOB

The Papal Secretary of State is Not Regarded as a Brilliant Diplomat—Has Embittered Several Powers.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—According to a well posted correspondent at Rome, there is good reason for believing that there will shortly be some important changes at the Vatican, the chief being the retirement of Cardinal Merry del Val from the post of Cardinal Secretary of State. The writer says:

"Imagine that most of the Sacred Colleges and all the Chancelleries of Europe will give a sigh of relief when this is a fact accomplished, for Merry del Val has been a distinct failure as Secretary of State, and has got the Vatican at sixes and sevens with half the governments of Europe. His latest circular to the leading prelates in various countries announcing the postponement of the celebration of the Pope's fifth anniversary of his entrance into holy orders, is a monument of tactlessness. The reason given that the pilgrims' lives would not be safe in Rome, owing to the anti-clerical tendencies of the Italian government, is, of course, a gratuitous insult to the governments of Europe. What the Cardinal Secretary of State can expect to gain by coming into conflict with the governments of Europe is a mystery. If Cardinal Rampolla had remained in power, or had become Pope, I do not hesitate to say that the separation between Church and State would not have taken place in France. That it would have come in time is probably true—there was a strong movement in that direction—but it would have been carried out in a much less violent form. The Concordat, as far as the government was concerned, has too many advantages to be lightly thrown away. But the intrigueries of Merry del Val precipitated the catastrophe, and thanks to him, the anti-clerical movement in France made more progress in six months than it had in the sixty preceding years."

"Now he has declared the war in the Italian government and is trying to revive the tactics practiced when Pío Nono was Pope, when every French peasant was taught—and believed—that he was lying in chains in a dungeon of the Vatican, the victim of an ambitious government. Now the legend is being created that no pilgrim's life is safe in the Eternal City, and that they are liable to massacre at the hands of an anti-clerical mob, acting with the approval of the government. It must require a robust faith in its justice humane for a man in the position of the Cardinal Secretary of State to put such legends into cold type and sign them with his name. The recent conflict between the more liberal

SHANGHAI, Sept. 14.—The Emperor of China is making a desperate resolve to render Peking equal to the capitals of western civilization, for he has ordered a complete "Zoo." GENERAL DRUDE TOLD TO ATTACK

French Premier instructs Commander to Begin Decisive Engagement With the Tribesmen.

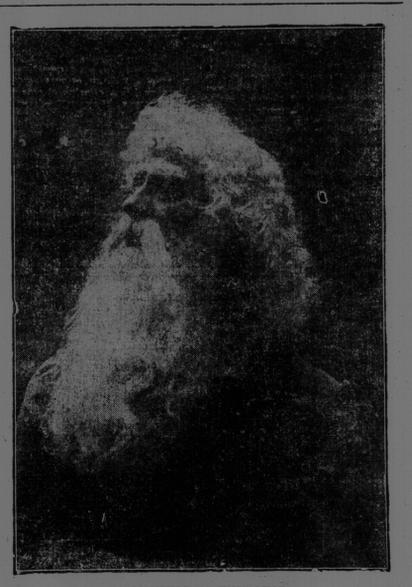

PARIS, Sept. 13.—M. Clemenceau announced that he has instructed General Drude, commander of the French expeditionary forces, to deliver a sharp and decisive attack upon the Arab tribesmen when, in his judgment, the occasion is opportune. At the same time the Premier requested the General to inform him by telegraph when he thought he would take the offensive. No answer has yet been received.

The Temps this evening in another editorial on Germany's reply to the French note assumes an optimistic tone, affirming that there is no occasion to be nervous on account of the German response, and adding: "We do not refer to guarantees for the future, but there is nothing disquieting at present in the German attitude from the diplomatic point of view. The main fact is that the doctrine of the provisional and ultimate measures which Spain and France may be called upon to take in Morocco."

The Patrie this evening adopts a very forcible tone in declaring that the German note "shows that our neighbors beyond the Rhine are far from being animated with the friendly intentions attributed to them at the beginning of the Moroccan trouble."

BOISE, Idaho, Sept. 13.—George A. Peterson, charged with conspiracy in the murder of Governor Steunberger, was taken to the hospital this afternoon in a critical condition and an operation will probably be necessary. There will be no further prosecution of the case at present.

MANTELL'S SPLENDID COMPANY

MR. MANTELL AS KING LEAR.

When Robert Mantell last acted in St. John, a year ago, his company, as well as the splendid manner in which he placed his revivals on the stage, were the subject of high praise by both players and the press. Many of the favorites of last season will return, the balance of the company, which is made up in about equal parts of English and American actors, has been recruited from experienced men and women of the best companies. Some of the names of those who will appear with Mr. Mantell next week are: Maria Booth Russell, Herbert Davies, Lucille Davis, Eugene Du Bois, Francis McGinn, Gordon Durby, Hamilton Mott, Alfred Galloway, Walter Campbell, Henry Keefe, James Ottway, Karl Garvis, George Stillwell, Jane Eastie, Eleanor Barrie and Oronout Wells. The plays will be, in the order named, "King Lear," "Macbeth," "The Merchant of Venice," "Hamlet," and "King Richard III."

NOVELTIES IN FASHION

AMONG the novelties in chamois skin are little butterfly bows to be worn with the embroidered linen collars. Also little string ties one-half inch wide, which tie in a small bow.

In the very newest neckwear, fagoting is applied in many different ways. Fagoted bands are much used to outline shaped collars of heavy Irish or cluny lace.

The elastic belt, imitating pompadour ribbon, is a novelty. The pink ones with flowers in dull pastel tints are particularly lovely, especially when worn with a gold buckle.

Petticoats are lovelier and more fluffy than ever before. Fine hand embroidery and masses of ruffles are the daintiest that can be worn with evening gowns.

There are very attractive tailored shirtwaists that are worn with a white tailored skirt, made with turn-down collar and turn-back cuffs, embroidered in a tiny design and scalloped on the edges.

The latest development in skeleton shoulder straps is two white stoles, one thrown over each shoulder and strapped together under the arms back and front. The stoles are heavily embroidered, and finished at the end with linen fringe.

The decided color of the moment is green instead of Natter or Copenhagen blue. Green in dark emerald, lettuce, spinach or onion peel shades are the most popular. Bluish-green is very fashionable for some gowns.

There is a new trimming for canvas, pique or other wash gowns of a solid color, which is formed of bands of small pasted-on cretonne. Some soft crowned hats are being made of this cretonne, and look very well with a costume so trimmed.

A real lace blouse is a noticeable feature in this season's fashions. These filmy chemisettes are worn with the tailored costumes, and white waist-belts, fastened with a broad oval or square gold buckle.

Not closely dotted, is tied in big fluffy bows, to be worn under the chin. Some of these are white with colored dots, and others are in the palest of pinks, lavenders and blues with matching dots.

The only trimming seen on some simple lingerie frocks is two or three inch tucks, bordered with bands of handkerchief linen in very pale shades of pink, blue, lavender or yellow. The belt and collar are also trimmed with the same color.

The cloche hat in old gold, pale pink, vieux blue, or willow green is extremely chic when trimmed with loops and bows of broad black taffeta ribbon. Some of the willow green hats are lined with black or white under the brim.

Some of the pretty lace and embroidered collars show touches of metallic threads, and on some narrow gold braid outlines a design. Others have an inch-wide band of gold braid heading the collar. Jeweled or jet slides with velvet ribbon run through are very fashionable.

There are two novelties in the English chamois glove. One, instead of buttoning, is clasped over from side to side on stitched bands, which are shaped to the wrist. Another is the elbow glove, turned up at the top to show a contrasting shade. This color must match the gown worn. These are not cuffs, but look as if the glove was just turned back.

In place of the lingerie hat that has been so popular, one now sees the wide-brimmed, low-crowned sailor. For morning wear the only trimming on these is a band of black ribbon.

Many other sailors with the brim wider in the back than in the front are trimmed with immense bows of taffeta ribbon right in front or in the back. These are particularly stylish, and one hat has been seen with the bow on the left side.

Real flower fans are the present fancy, and are carried by many bridesmaids at fashionable weddings. There must be a different fan for every gown and occasion nowadays. A tiny one to match the hat is correct for mornings spent in the park. An afternoon fan is elaborately made of silk or lace, embroidered with flowers. A tiny mother-of-pearl fan is made to fold, and just fits in a vanity bag.

A dainty and fashionable slipper for evening wear was made of pompadour taffeta ribbon in a rose pattern, and trimmed with a green jeweled button in the center of a tiny rosette of shell pink.

SCHOOL DRESSES FOR YOUNG GIRLS

FOR the young girls the jacket and skirt suits for school wear are made in two lengths, one a little longer and more shaped; that is to say, the coats range from twenty-two to twenty-nine inches in length, and are cut with a more fitted line in the back and sides than they were last season.

Most of the sleeves are made full length, without cuffs, finished with a couple of rows of stitching and bone buttons which match the suit in coloring.

Some of the suits are collarless, others have the notched or rolled collar on. They are frequently bound with braid, which is also used to bind the edges of the coat, and sometimes the skirt as well.

The use of braid is one of the new features of these school suits, and it is extremely popular.

Many of the entire dresses for young girls will be made to be worn with pretty, stiff turnover collars and dear little ties of vivid colorings.

A great many separate coats of serge and heavy tweed, made in three-quarter length, double and single-breasted, with partially fitted backs, will also be worn.

The designs illustrated are all new and easy to make, as they can be fashioned from a plain shirtwaist pattern with allowance made for the long shoulder lines.

The first is a dark blue serge, trimmed with tiny brass buttons. The belt is of dark blue leather, and fastened with a gilt buckle. Several adjustable yokes and long cuffs can be easily and inexpensively made by any clever girl of scraps of lace and lawn and batiste.

This model is also good in green, with silver buttons and a green belt. The skirt is a circular pattern, with box pleats back and front.

The second frock is of soft cashmere in the new shade of red, with tucked lawn or sheer linen yoke and sleeves. The buttons are in silk the same color as the dress; the girdle is also of silk.

The third is a smart model in brown, with hairlines of green. Buttons covered with the material.

Hand-tucked, batiste yoke and sleeves. Pleated skirt. Cravat of bright green.

The last frock is very good for remodeling a gown, and is also smart for a new frock. The skirt is of brown and white shepherd's plaid, with plain brown and gilt buttons as trimming. It is to be worn with shirtwaists.

It is also good worked out in a blue and green check material, with plain blue, and gilt or silk buttons in the same shade as trimmings.

The last frock is very good for remodeling a gown, and is also smart for a new frock. The skirt is of brown and white shepherd's plaid, with plain brown and gilt buttons as trimming. It is to be worn with shirtwaists.

It is also good worked out in a blue and green check material, with plain blue, and gilt or silk buttons in the same shade as trimmings.

FASHIONS FOR TINY TOTS

PARTICULAR attention must be given to the dress lengths for small children. It is a very easy matter to spoil the charm of a dear little frock by having the skirt an improper length. The correct length is just to the knee.

The widespread popularity of the one-piece box pattern for children continues unabated. There is, however, a general tendency to modify these by the use of yokes and applied trimmings.

No garment is more essential to a small girl's toilette than the gimpa with sleeves. She should, as a matter of fact, be supplied with at least three of these—one somewhat plain, for ordinary wear; another for semi-dress occasions, and the third of lace for extraordinary needs. With three such garments the mother will be relieved of much perplexity concerning her small daughter's wardrobe.

An old-fashioned sleeve adornment is now being revived and affords a very pretty finish to a child's dress. It is made of flexible bands of gold, and fastened with gold clasps.

All kinds of children's dresses are being developed with the Dutch neck. From the plain gingham to the elaborate lingerie the fashion is carried out in endless variety of treatment.

The useful roofer coats are no longer confined to boys' wear. They are shown for girls, developed in serge and cheviot, with velvet or collars made of the same material. They are fastened with flat pearl buttons.

A number of one-piece pinafores are being shown for children. In these the body and sleeves of the garment are all one piece, the only seam being under the arm. The pattern, which is unique, can be finished with a sash across the back.

The newest models in the boys' Russian blouses are made to slip over the head, and have square ends finishing the wide sailor collar.

Children's hosiery is now shown in all the shades. They are embroidered in many cases, and look pretty with low shoes or dancing slippers.

Girls' sailor suits in chambray, with striped, French sateen collar and cuffs, will be worn all winter. They are nearly always edged with three rows of white braid, silk tie, emblem on sleeve, and plaited skirt.

The new bonnets for the child from six months to two years are extremely attractive. They are white, sheer, fine goods, in daintily flowered design and in lace embroidery. Some of them are on the sun-bonnet order, and others of the Gutschen or Dutch style. The latter looks quite elaborate, but can easily be taken apart and washed.

To Finish Young Girl's Frock

A CHARMING way to finish the skirt of a white lace or net frock for a young girl is to turn a four or five inch hem, and through this run wide mesaline ribbon of the same width. In this way the lace is sufficiently weighted, and the gleam of the ribbon through the lace gives a prettier effect than if the solid bands of satin were used.

If the skirt is a gored model, this device will not be feasible, as the ribbons could scarcely be satisfactorily shaped.

But for a gathered skirt, or one finished with a straight flounce, it gives an admirable finish. If inch-deep crosswise tucks are used on the skirt, run these ribbons also with the satin ribbon of the same width.

Pompadour ribbon could be combined with white or pale pastel tinted nets.

Filet Laces

FILET LACES in all-over patterns and trimmings bands are in good style.

Some of the novelties in this line are very elaborately embroidered. Among the latest importations is a band of golden-brown filet, about six inches wide, darned with solid threads of gold, and filled with solid embroidery in gold and brown.

Gold and silver filet are the very newest expression in this direction. Bands of filet are embroidered in gris and gold filet in yellow, with a design of solidly embroidered shams-rocks.

A very open mesh filet, the band being at least a quarter of an inch apart, is worked with an exquisite mordore and gris embroidery and outlined with scallops in various sizes.

Among the motifs are triangles of black filet embroidery, acorns and crosses worked with gold and silver.

The Stout Figure and Thin Waist

THE stout woman who wears a waist of this material should always have a thin lawn or cambric lining, which must be tight-fitting, and boned like a close-fitting waist, and so keep the figure compact.

It need have no sleeves, while the neck can be cut round and low, and like the armholes, edged with narrow lace.

This style of a fitted underwaist will enable any fleshy woman to wear a thin blouse and not look sloppy.

Practical Petticoats

PRACTICAL petticoats are made of moreen this season, with a deep flounce trimmed with two set-on ruffles. These ruffles, already made, may be purchased at any of the department stores for about a dollar.

Silk-finished sateen and cambric petticoats are shown, made with a deep flounce. Two or three of these narrow set-on ruffles can be bought ready-made, and they are easily adjusted to the petticoat.

Mohair skirts, trimmed with silk flounces, are also serviceable as well as reasonable in price.

IN SELECTING YOUR FALL HAT

CHOOSING the fall hat is by no means the joke the comic papers would have us believe. In fact, to the majority of women it is the most important question of the wardrobe, for, as every one knows, the hat either makes or mars the entire toilet.

The last few years have required sober judgment and strong resolution in selecting a hat.

Fancy Broadcloths
FANCY broadcloth will be the favorite material for the three-piece costume.

And the big fabric novelty of the season is fancy broadcloth.

It comes in checks, in soft shades, in stripes and plaids. Plain light-weight broadcloth in very light colors will also be worn, and many of the new broadcloths come in all of the evening shades. These light-shaded broadcloths are all made up in tailored style.

Purple Continues Popular
PURPLE in all its varying tints continues triumphant among the colors.

Popular favor also extends to bright emerald, a pale salmon pink, soft and wedgewood blue.

Thus, for never before were novelties so eccentric. Take the tiny turban that is now in fashion. Worn by a girlish little figure with a slender face and delicate features and lots of fluffy hair, the effect is as winsome as possible.

But how seldom can this little maid be brought to think so!

She craves the enormously big hat of all 'ack in which she looks half buried, and which deprives her of the much-needed height.

The same perverse fate fills the woman with a figure like a barrel and a face like a pudding with a desire to don a decorated pill box.

It must be so, or why do we see such exhibitions every day of our lives?

While it is impossible to lay down any hard and fast rules in regard to the selection of a hat, a few general ones may be observed.

A tall woman may wear a large all-black hat, whether she be stout or thin; a short woman under the same conditions should flee for her life when such a hat tempts her.

A small hat will become a slender face unless the face is too long; but in choosing for a fat face the main point to remember is to take care that the sides of the hat extend beyond the cheeks.

The front and back effects are less important, because if the hat is slightly full at the waist, fastening is in the back.

A skirt of this sort may be worn with any lingerie waist, one, perhaps, which is partially worn, and could not be permissible without the bretelles.

Fad for Pure White Flowers
THERE is a fad for pure white flowers and foliage leaf, flower and stem all dead, frosty white.

Huge roses of this type are used on large hats of white tulle and felt, and are used, too, upon hats of palest pink.

When You Buy Winter Gowns

WHEN you buy your winter gown get good material, good workmanship, cutting down expenses of trimmings and fussy frills that are never necessary and seldom becoming.

The modern dress of woman is beautiful, convenient and artistic.

The errors are in the gross exaggeration of beautiful fashions and in combining grand ideas and cheap materials.

A plain dress, well made, is worth half a dozen elaborate ones badly cut and shabbily put together.

Soutache Smart
NO matter what the fabric, broadcloth, chiffon, voile or cheviot, soutache appears, and will continue to appear, in narrow and broad bands, shaped panels, or elaborate floral or conventional designs.

Instead of stitching it down flat, the newest way to apply it is to blindstitch it on the edge, giving it a more pronounced effect of incrustation.

A combination of the two methods, the outer part of the design having the soutache laid flat, the inner set on the edge, gives a striking effect.

DIRECTOR MURDOCK SAYS FOUR MILES OF NEW PIPE WILL BE NEEDED—ENGINEER HUNTER LAUGHS

There was a short meeting of the Water and Sewerage Board yesterday afternoon. The meeting was called for the purpose of having the members sign the assessment for this year. The amount of the assessment will be about the same as that of previous years—$105,000. Besides routine matters the board ordered $1,500 to be paid to McArthur and McVey to satisfy the demands of the company that supplied the wood stoves for the pipe.

Director Murdoch at a certain point in the meeting made the rather startling statement that four or five miles of pipe would have to be obtained to make repairs when the full pressure was put upon the pipe. Chairman Frink did not agree with the statement which was considerably at variance with the latest report of Engineer Hunter.

Those present at the meeting were: Ald. Frink, Ald. Baxter, Ald. Bullock, Ald. Lantim, Ald. Kelly, Ald. McArthur, Ald. Willet, Ald. McGowan, A. Sprague, Ald. Hamm, Director Murdoch and the common clerk.

The first important matter to come before the board was the request of the Wood Stave Company, that the city pay McArthur and McVey $1,500 of the money owed the contractors by the city. The city had no direct dealings with the company and consequently the payment for the staves had to be made through McArthur and McVey. The payment was ordered to be made. Twelve joints of pipe had been used up in replacing old pipe broken by the increased pressure. He thought that four or five miles of pipe had better be ordered, as it would be needed before the high pressure was all on.

Ald. Frink explained that the plans of the engineer had to be followed and the advice taken in the matter of the increased pressure.

After transacting other routine business, the meeting adjourned.

When asked last evening if he considered Mr. Murdoch's statement to be exaggerated, Engineer Hunter replied: "Well, slightly." He further said that the old pipe would be used under high pressure. From the reservoir to the water box they were already under the high pressure. According to Mr. Hunter there had been only one break in addition to those that happened early in the week. This break occurred at noon yesterday and is located in McDonald's field.

Men went to work repairing the break at once. It is expected that repairs will be completed by noon today.

UNDERTAKERS FORM A TRUST

Fayette County, Pa., is confronted by Combination of Capital.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 12—The undertakers of Fayette county, in which Uniontown is located, have formed a trust. The combination is aimed directly at the county, and heretofore no more paupers will be buried by the undertakers of Fayette county unless the price demanded by the trust is paid. The county commissioners are in an awful stew, because the county's paupers must be buried by undertakers who have their places of business in the county.

Heretofore the undertakers have received from the county $15 for burying an adult and $5 for burying a child. The undertakers combine now demand $20 for burying an adult and $12 for burying a child.

GENERAL BOOTH NOW ON HIS WAY TO CANADA

Veteran Head of Salvation Army Will Address Two Meetings at Opera House Next Sunday, and Speak at the Canadian Club Luncheon Monday Evening

His first meeting will be held in the Opera House on Saturday night. It will be of a semi-public nature, but principally for the soldiers of the Army. On Sunday morning at eleven o'clock the general will hold a public meeting in the Opera House, and in the afternoon he will lecture there at three o'clock. His subject will be The Secret of Success of the Salvation Army. Lieut. Governor Tweedie will occupy the chair at the lecture. On Monday evening General Booth will address the Canadian Club, on a subject to be announced later, and he will leave that evening on the 11:25 express for Halifax.

On his present tour General Booth will be accompanied by the following staff: Colonel Lewis, Brigadier Cox and Commissioner Nicol.

There will be a civic reception and address to General Booth at Halifax, and also at Moncton. There will be nothing of this nature in St. John, however, the Common Council having decided against it a couple of weeks ago, in the ground that it would create a precedent that might cause some awkwardness in the future.

Mayor Sears will meet the general personally and extend him a welcome to the city. His meetings will no doubt be attended by a very large number of citizens. General Booth is one of the most remarkable figures of the age, and his stirring eloquence and earnestness, and the magnetism of his presence, are sure to impress, if not convince every hearer.

TRAIN VICTIM

ST. JOHN BOY

James Allen of Clarence St. Run Over Yesterday

Was Stealing Ride With Chum and Fell Off—Body Will Come Today.

The body of James Allen of 29 Clarence street, who died yesterday at 1:30 p. m. in Bangor as a result of falling from a freight train near Bangor on the C. P. R., is expected to arrive in the city on the noon train. The body in all probability will be interred in the Church of England cemetery on Monday afternoon.

The dead boy, who was about seventeen years of age, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allen of 29 Clarence street. He is survived by two sisters and three brothers. One sister, Mrs. Appleby, is now living in Halifax, the other resides at home and is employed in the York cotton mill. One brother works in the same mill, another is employed at the Dufferin Hotel. The entire family is prostrated with grief at the sad accident, the mother being particularly affected.

The dead boy was of an adventurous disposition and often expressed the desire to get away from St. John and obtain employment in some other place. Just before leaving this city he was working on the bridge being built across the I. C. R. tracks at Wall street. On Saturday last young Allen left the city supposedly bound for the potato fields of Northern Maine. He was observed putting on extra clothing before starting out, but refused to give any explanation or to say where he was going. In fact, it was not until the following day that his father knew he had gone.

Walter Thomas, the boy who was with Allen when the latter was run over by the train, lived with his family on St. Patrick street. The family have recently come here from Moncton and the boy was employed in the tin mill. He was younger than Allen.

After informing the train crew that his chum had fallen from the train, Thomas is said to have taken to the woods, fearing detention by the authorities. He has not been located since. Thomas' father had no knowledge of the fate that had overtaken his son's companion until informed by a stranger last evening. Mr. Allen was standing on Brussels street talking over the accident with some friends. Mr. Thomas joined the group. On learning of the death of Allen he volunteered the information that his son had run away Saturday night. "What is your name?" he was asked by Mr. Allen. On the latter learning that it was Thomas, he said, "Then your boy was with mine, but wasn't hurt."

I.C.R. BERTH IS TO BE DREGGED

Dr. Pugsley Lays the Matter Before Mr. Butler

Arrangements for Dredging the Sand Point Berths Will Probably be Concluded Today.

The calculations of the city engineer regarding the dredging required at the old Sand Point berths were under consideration yesterday by the Minister of Public Works and the Common Council committee yesterday and it is probable that that arrangements will be concluded today to have Mr. Mayes enter upon the work at once at a price based upon the engineer's figures.

Action is also being taken to have the dredging at the Intercolonial pier, which was not completed last season, undertaken as soon as possible. Dr. Pugsley has laid the matter before the Deputy Minister of Railways, impressing upon him its urgency, and arrangements will undoubtedly be made at once so that the berth will be in condition to accommodate the steamers needing it this season.

Copies of the correspondence which was passed between Dr. Pugsley and the Deputy Minister of Railways regarding the provision of increased I. C. R. yard facilities here was sent yesterday to the secretary of the Board of Trade. The officials and members of that organization are greatly gratified at the energy with which the minister has taken hold of the matter and with the results which have attended his efforts.

VENETTA GOT HIS

DENHAM, Mass., Sept. 12—John Venetta of Canton was sentenced to two years in the house of correction by Judge Sanderson in the Norfolk superior court here today for assault with a dangerous weapon upon Anselmo Joseph of Canton, on July 4 last. The two men had a dispute over possession of a watch chain and Venetta shot Joseph in the arm and foot with a revolver.

AMUSEMENTS

Take in Nickel and Circus, Too.

This is circus day and those who want to spend an afternoon or evening of real, genuine fun, should not omit attending the Nickel, which is presenting a bill of five perfectly new moving pictures, two up-to-date illustrated songs, and a wealth of stereopticon slides picturing Lower Canadian places, as well as first class orchestral music. All this for five cents makes an entertainment of a high and wholesome quality unequalled in Canada. Visit to the city will make a decided mistake if they neglect taking in one of the Nickel's shows. Those who attend the Nickel in the afternoon will have a whole afternoon to see the moving picture show. The animated views now being shown are: "My Lady's Evening" (dramatic); "Cohen's Hard Luck" (very funny); "The Wait and the Statue" (pathetic); "An Unusual Father" (sensational); "A Physical Culture Show" (instructive). In the afternoon, Mr. Brown will sing "Won't You Come Over to Philie, Willie," and at night "Miss Felix will be heard in a charming new ballad, "Knead the Old Acorn Tree, Sweet Estelle." Don't miss the Nickel today. It's the best show of the month, and all for five cents.

Queen's Rollaway.

"Ladies' night" at the Queen's Rollaway last evening was as usual enjoyed by a large crowd of both spectators and skaters. Beginners should note that the best time to learn is in the afternoon. The crowds are not so large as in the evenings, and the instructors have much more time to give them. Band again tonight.

PLAINTIFF WON

In the Supreme Court yesterday morning an adjourned case from the Kings County Court was taken up before Judge Landry. The case is that of Melvin C. Harrison vs. William E. Newcomb. Harrison had been employed by Newcomb to dig a well. He claimed that he was to receive two dollars a day and board. The defendant claimed that Harrison was to play his own board. The amount in dispute was about fifty-five dollars.

At the conclusion of the evidence, counsel for both parties to the suit addressed the judge. His honor then gave judgment in favor of the plaintiff for $4.95, the amount claimed.

A. W. Baird for the plaintiff and D. Mullin, K. C., and E. S. Ritchie for the defendant.

Court adjourned sine die.

THOUGHT IT WAS A FIRE ALARM

Horse Formerly Used by Chief Kerr Taken by Boys While Standing on Dock Street—Found Later.

Henry Jacobson, of the firm of Jacobson & Selick is the owner of a large grey horse which formerly did duty in Chief Kerr's get-there-quick wagon. Considering the frequency with which it was formerly called upon to do sudden dashes, it was probably no great surprise to the horse to be unexpectedly summoned to do its utmost in the way of speed yesterday afternoon while standing quietly before the door of R. Ashkin's store on Dock street. Mr. Jacobson was inside the store and had left the horse and empty express wagon at the door. It is supposed that some embryo fire-chief seized the opportunity to gain some experience. There happened to be no fire at the moment, but the horse responded as in the old days when the general alarm struck in. The outfit was seen dashing out Pond street, and for several hours afterward its whereabouts was a mystery.

Mr. Jacobson was naturally much wrought up because of the occurrence, and immediately notified the police. A sharp lookout was kept, and at about ten o'clock the horse was found wandering about on Union street, and was placed in Short's stable.

FOOLISH WAGER MAY END IN MAN'S DEATH

Imprisoned at Own Request in Safe He Finds He Has Cut off all Rescue.

BERLIN, Sept. 14—In Preshaw yesterday, during the absence of their employer at luncheon, several young men, having nothing better to do, began making silly bets with one another. At last one of them made a wager that he would remain longer inside the office than any of his companions. This brilliant idea caught on, and one after another succeeded in the safe, remaining there until nearly suffocated for want of fresh air, while their friends outside counted the seconds of endurance.

man in the Transvaal were called upon to register, they would register as quickly as anyone. But when they are singled out by law, they refuse. They protest that a precedent would be created. They say that once the principle of special legislation is admitted in the Statute Book there is no guarantee that it will not be expanded and that they will be forced to live and trade in special locations, closed while the owners hasten to Pretoria to support the agitation.

The secondary objections are equally strong. They protest that the finger-impression system is humiliating and degrading, and classes them with criminals. They protest that the demand that they shall declare their mother's name is a result to their religious ideas for with many Indians it would be deemed a serious disgrace to utter the name of their mother.

The Transvaal public as a whole refuse to admit the arguments of the Asiatics. They declare they are willing to treat fairly all Eastern people who have the right to live in the Transvaal. But a certain number of Asiatics—mainly British Indians—were taken over by the country. They may be a burden. But when the burden is shared with other burdens, there is no wish to get rid of it forcibly. It is urged that the extent of the burden must be known. The Indians who are entitled to live in the colony must be identified. It is impossible to get on leaving persons indiscriminately to enter the colony. Prosecutions cannot be begun until the new act has been proclaimed all over the colony.

BOYS' SUITS, What do Most Mothers Demand?

The Chief Essential Is What?

What Does a Mother Demand first in selecting a Suit of Clothes for her Boy? Is it style she is after? Is it workmanship, cloth quality or color? Possibly any of these has a predominating influence with some parents, but the majority, when buying new clothes for the lusty, wee chaps, make quality and style the winning combination.

and the style and quality must be first-class. Even in the cheapest clothing for boys that distinguishing style and quality is present.

JEW JUNK DEALER

ACQUSED OF THEFT

Complaint That He Took Nine Bags of Junk Belonging to Another Man—

Maier Was Settled

Three drunks were fined the usual amount in the police court this morning, and a Jew named Dritz, who is member of the junk firm of Silverman and Dritz, had a narrow escape from being put on his trial for stealing nine bags of brass and lead to Novopolsky Gold- man and Company, of Picton, N. S. Dritz went to the warehouse and was told to take his bag of brass, while the warehouse man's back was turned. Dritz, it is claimed, took the three bags of brass and lead and left his rags. An hour later he was notified what had been done, and returned some tea lead, but kept 200 pounds of brass worth over $20.

In court this morning all the Jews concerned were present. Dritz talked a lot and said he did not know much about it, and his tongue was only quieted when he was told that if he wished he could hurry and get counsel to defend him on the charge of theft. Dritz was allowed however to have a consultation with the other concerned, Dritz deciding to pay the firm of Novopolsky Goldman and Co. $35 and take over the consignment of junk which he tampered with.

MOOSE HUNTING SEASON WILL OPEN ON MONDAY

This Year There Will be Even More Visiting Sportsmen Than Usual—How Moose Disappear From Civilization When Shooting Time Comes

The hunting season for big game opens next Monday. The 15th is really the first day of the open season, but that is Sunday, when of course no shooting is to be done. The season this year promises to be the most successful on record. It is expected that a larger number of sportsmen will go to the woods, and the increase in the number of English sportsmen is likely to be very marked. Hereafter by far the larger number of hunters came from the United States. While this is likely to continue to be so, more attention is being paid by English hunters to the advantages of New Brunswick as a sporting resort. It would seem that there is a good field here for some effective missionary work by the provincial government. Considerable attention has been paid to advertising the province in England as a resort for hunters of big game. The effect of this is being seen now in the increased numbers from the other side who have made bookings with guides, as well as in inquiries from others. A special advertising campaign of this nature, in England, would probably have the best results. The North Shore counties, being the principal stamping ground of the moose, the caribou and deer, will be, of course, the Mecca of the sportsmen. For the past month or two the different sections have been receiving inquiries, most of which have resulted in arrangements being made for them to accompany visitors of former years, returning on their annual trips, or in new bookings of hunters on their first trip to the province. Last year a moose was shot by an American sportsman on the Little South West Miramichi, with an antler spread of 67 1/2 inches, which is said to be the record. These antlers, however, were not perfectly formed, one side having one more point than the other. Most hunters prefer perfectly formed antlers as a trophy, even if they are not of extra wide spread. During the past summer close surveillance has been exercised by the game wardens, with the result that illegal slaughter has been reduced to a minimum. Nine sportsmen were secured for violations of the law, either for killing or having the meat in possession. A remarkable thing in connection with the opening of the season is how the moose retire from the fire of the International railway. During the open season they seem to delight in frequenting the railway track, and on such days a moose is always seen or thought they saw—twenty-one moose during a single run on the northern division. On the approach of the open season, however, the number of moose seen by trainmen grows smaller and beautifully less, until this week none have been reported at all. Presumably it would be a good plan to appoint the trainmen guides. It would keep them in practice telling moose stories any way.

NEWCASTLE, Sept. 14—A party composed of Abern and W. R. McPherson, Orlowood, Me., P. D. Leonard and S. N. Hulecky, New York; and W. C. Coleman, Louisville, Ky., left this week with Daniel Mitchell for the upper Miramichi hunting grounds. Among late arrivals of sportsmen are: I. F. Moore and O. L. Alexander of War Eagle, W. YEARS OF LITIGATION BROUGHT TO A CLOSE Demolished Buildings on Mill Street Have Been Sold—Are Now Undergoing Repairs.

The three Segee buildings on Mill street which were the scene of a destructive fire a short time ago, have all been sold. Alderman J. McGoldrick, W. A. Stepler and J. E. Hamilton having become the owners. These buildings were erected some years ago. It is said with the expectation that the railway would require the ground, but instead of their being a profitable investment they have been rather disappointing and have been in the courts for several years. All suits have now been withdrawn and the estate settled. Large crews of men are now making repairs and alterations on all three buildings. Alderman McGoldrick and Mr. Hamilton are not making extensive alterations. W. A. Stepler is removing the entire roof of his building, extending it in the rear and arranging for a public hall with a seating capacity of about three hundred. This will be fitted in a first class manner with steel ceilings and side walls and electric lighting. Many people think that there is a strong possibility that these properties may be required by the railway at no distant date.

This morning on the Market Square that city department store was sold by Auctioneer Frank Potts for $40 to Wm. Kearns. At Chubb's Corner at noon Auctioneer Latatum sold to J. M. Robinson, Jr., two shares of Bank of New Brunswick stock at $265 a share.

T. H. HALL, 57 King Street.

On Tuesday morning, the 17th, we cordially invite the ladies of St. John to our commencement of millinery styles for Autumn and Winter.

We take great pleasure in promising a more elaborate and more extensive collection of modish headwear than upon any former cool weather occasion.

Aside from the magnificent supply of Untrimmed Shapes, Materials, Floral Decorations, Wings, Feathers, Primes and Hat Jewellery, we will present for inspection and purchase, an authoritative group of pattern hats, purchased in the City of Paris by our personal representative.

These hats are products of the renowned houses of Madame Pouyanne, Madame Germaine Cartier, Lewis, Suzanne Blum, Mangin-Maurice, therefore we display our foreign models with the realization that we have genuine Paris creations, from which the ladies of St. John can take their ideas for fall and winter.

The approaching season will be marked with large and medium sized hats, displaying narrow rims in front, and a pronounced drooping tendency at the sides and back. Velvet, silk and ribbon in large, striking bows and exaggerated choux, as well as long trailing wings, rich flowing plumes and a lavish use of blossom will be seen.

The favorite shades are Leather Brown, Apollo Blues, Crocus Purples, Bronze Greens, Champagne and Old Pink, with of course, the staples in solid colors. Shot or shaded effects are in favor as well, and generally speaking, colors will not only be used in great variety on hats of all kinds, but will be striking and contrasting.

In bidding the ladies of St. John to our opening demonstration, we have no hesitancy in assuring them that prices will be moderate enough to meet the wishes of anyone, and with our imported goods, Gage hats from New York and Chicago, and highly stylish pieces from other centres, there will be enough of variety in style, quality and cost to assure satisfaction on every hand.
