TOWN COUNCIL

Three Meetings Held During the Past Week

TENDERS FOR VAULT

Settlement in the Duncan Case, amounting to $461 With Costs

A meeting of the town Council was held on Friday evening with the following in attendance: Mayor Murray, Couns Blair, Taylor, Vantour, Laughlin, Joudry, Blackhall, Ferguson, Taylor and Blair.

Communication from J. E. Miller asking that the town take over the piece of land granted by the late Jas Kelso to the town for a public highway.

Referred to Public Property and Street Com.

Coun Blackhall read a statement from Messrs McAlister & Mott re Duncan case.

This was laid over till next meeting to enable Finance Com to inquire into details of account.

Accounts of labor and supplies for the different departments were passed.

Council adjourned.

TUESDAY EVENING
Present—His Worship Mayor Murray, Couns Blair, Taylor, Vantour, Laughlin, Joudry, Blackhall, Ferguson.

A communication from Messrs J. M. Robinson & Sons, St John, asking for financial statement of the town, the bonded indebtedness etc., was referred to Fin. Com.

Coun Blackhall of the Finance Committee submitted report, recommending payment in re suits of R. L. Duncan and Jos Duncan against the town as follows:

R. L. Duncan
Amount Verdict $125.00
Taxed Cost 162.50

Joseph Duncan
Amount Verdict $20.00
Taxed Costs 153.50

Total of both cases 173.50
461.00

Report received and adopted.

Coun Taylor from the Water and Sewerage Com submitted the following report: Your committee under the authority of a resolution of the Town Council passed on the 8th day of May last past, have had a survey made of the land required for the extension and enlargement of the town reservoir and a plan of the same prepared, which plan is herewith submitted and which shows the exact area of land which in our opinion should be vested in the town for reservoir purposes, the same being 10.85 acres, exact membership, including the original reservoir acquired by arbitration from the Campbellton Water Supply Company. The additional land proposed to be acquired is at present the property of Robert L. Duncan and Joseph Duncan.

Your committee would therefore recommend that a committee be appointed to consult with the said Robert L. Duncan and Joseph Duncan, with a view of ascertaining at what terms their interests in the said lands can be secured to the town and report at the next meeting.

The report was adopted and Couns Taylor, Ferguson, Vantour and Miller a committee to deal with the matter.

Coun Joudry from Public Property and Streets Committee reported on following accounts recommending payments:

John Mair, rent pest house $10 00
M.G. Mann, bld'g pound 75 20
M.G. Mann, keg nails 2 60

Report adopted.

Coun Joudry from the P. & S. Streets Committee reported that he had received tenders for the proposed vault for the Town Council as follows:

Thos Dickie, $ 325
Jas C. Miller, 295
David Stewart, 295
M. G. Mann, 275

Coun Joudry said that the specification called for an 8 ft by 6 ft vault built of hard brick and would be put up in first class shape.

A lengthy discussion followed all of the Councillors agreeing that the price seemed rather high and favoring the idea that a fire-proof safe be procured.

On motion the P. & S. Committee were granted an extension of time to call for tenders for the fitting up of town offices and repairs to building.

Coun Joudry also reported recommending that the prayer of the petition, re the taking over of street near the Kelso property be not entertained. Carried.

Coun Laughlin from the Electric Light Com. reported on several small accounts amounting to $1248.79, recommending payment. Adopted.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

Evidence Submitted in the Wood
Case at New Mills.

New Mills, June 22: Inquest on death of Alex Wood commenced today. Dr Doherty, coroner, H F McLatchy representing the crown.

The following jury was empanelled:—Jas McMillan, (foreman) Wm Flann, Daniel Ferguson, Andrew Sliger, Wm Murphy, Wm Wood and Alex McCormack.

Coroner Doherty explained case to jury and read authority from Attorney General, for holding inquest at New Mills, for empanelling new jury and for dispensing with the viewing body of deceased.

Alex Jonas sworn—Live at New Mills, Parish of Colborne Rest. Co. Remember last Friday morning, 16th inst. Was around about 5.10 o'clock that morning.

Live on north side of I C Railway on bye road known as Murchie's bye road. Started from my home to go to work, came from Jas. Mercier's driving two cattle.

got half way up they stopped and I stopped. Cattle looked towards cattle guard and I then heard moaning. Went forward to see the cause. Saw a cap on bye road that is to the eastward of the culvert and about 4 feet from the track on the north side. (Cap produced by constable) That is the cap I saw. Went up to track and saw Alex Wood lying in the culvert on the north side. This culvert is immediately to the west of the crossing. His head was towards the east side of culvert and his feet towards the shore lying diagonally across the culvert, he was lying on his back, his head was lower than his feet, about fifteen inches. There was a large gin bottle in his pocket on the right side of his coat. He had his coat on. Deceased was still groaning. Did not touch him. Looked down the bye road and saw Jas Mercier coming. Told Jim to hurry up, and he said "I am coming as fast as I can". He came and I asked him if that was Alex Wood and he said "Yes". I said we had better move him. He said "No, we had better not touch him". I said "We had better move him, he is suffering a lot," so I jumped down in the culvert and took the bottle of gin out of his pocket and sat the bottle alongside the timbers of the culvert. I then took hold of Alex Woods by the two shoulders, and James Mercier came to help me and we carried him up on the grass about ten feet. I put him on his right side so he could breathe a little better. Jas Mercier stood at side of him. I started down to see Mercier's for Dr Ellis who was there. Dr Ellis came. I noticed a bruise among the hair on the left side of the head. Saw a cut about four inches long on the top of his head. Where his head lay there was about one drop of blood on a green leaf. A little blood on hair along.

Dear Sir:—

Some time ago I read with much interest the report of Mr. Wade and his fellow commissioners on the G. T. P. Survey. In the first place he fails to give us any idea of the cost of building a first class road through a country where it is only reasonably passed to get a fourth class road. You can get a good road anywhere if you can get money enough to do it—as to his knowledge of the country or locality through which it passes—We would suppose he knows about as much about farm land as I do about wireless telegraphy—hesays part is cleared—and part uncleared—if it runs through the centre of N. B., I know most of that locality—and with the exception of a few farms it would have been better for the country and the parties who cleared the land—if it never had been cleared—I would call the attention of the readers of the Telegraph to Mr Thos Hetherington's letters in that paper—he lives in the central part of N. B. and is qualified to know.

He stated that any amount of farms with a fairly good house and barn on them—partly cleared could be got for $250, I know that to be quite true—But what about the farm partly cleared with house and barn on it for 250. Would not any sensible man consider that he would be better off without it even if he got it for nothing. I could take my readers to places in N. B. to-day where the settlers 20 in number had got up as one man and left their homes—not able to sell one of them. Those farms are now growing up with trees that will not be of any use for two or three generations.

It will be remembered too—that the local government spent large sums of money in roads and bridges for their right in the same locality. I saw farms where the timber had been reserved sold for as much as $2000 or 3000 dollars—I ask is this not an object lesson for us—the question will be asked what was wrong with those farms the answer is—they were hilly and stony—so long as they worked it with a hoe they did not mind the stones—But when they came to use the plough they got tired trying to stone it. This same thing we find all through the centre and southern part of New Brunswick (See 4th Page)

Cuban Diarrhoea

U S soldiers who served in Cuba during the Spanish war know what this disease is, and that ordinary remedies have little more effect than so much water. Cuban Diarrhoea is almost as severe and dangerous as a mild attack of cholera. There is one remedy however, that can always be depended upon as will be seen by the following certificate from Mrs. Minnie Jacobs of Houston, Texas: "I hereby certify that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy cured my husband of a severe attack of Cuban diarrhoea which he brought home from Cuba. We had several doctors but they did him no good. One bottle of this remedy cured him, as our neighbors will testify. I thank God for so valuable a medicine." For sale by all druggists.

Women Obtain Mrs. Pinkham's Advice and Help.

She Has Guided Thousands to Health—How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Mrs. Fred Seydel.

above all, a woman who has had more experience in treating female ills than any living person.

Over one hundred thousand cases of female diseases come before Mrs. Pinkham every year, some personally, others by mail, and this has been going on for twenty years, day after day. Surely women are wise in seeking advice from a woman of such experience, especially when it is absolutely free.

Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence of women, and every testimonial letter published is done so with the written consent or request of the writer, in order that other sick women may be benefited as they have been.

Mrs. Fred Seydel, of 413 North 54th Street, West Philadelphia, Pa., writes: Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—“Over a year ago I wrote you a letter asking advice, as I had female ills and could not carry a child to maturity. I received your kind letter of instructions and followed your advice. I am not only a well woman in consequence, but have a beautiful baby girl. I wish every suffering woman in the land would write you for advice, as you have done so much for me.”

Just as surely as Mrs. Seydel was cured, will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure every woman suffering from any form of female ills.

No other medicine in all the world has such a record of cures of female troubles as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Therefore no prudent woman will accept any substitute which a druggist may offer.

If you are sick, write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free and always helpful.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

side side of big cut. I noticed no other marks or blood about him. He had all his clothes on. Spoke to him but he was unconscious and did nothing but moan. (Coat and vest shown to witness.) That is the coat and vest he had on. (Necktie and top shirt shown to witness.) Witness identified same. (Linder shown to witness.) I am unable to identify it. I first knew deceased about eight years ago and worked with him saving sleepers down at Prescott's. First met him at Wall's mill Benjamin River. He was sawing laths. Benjamin River is about 1/2 of a mile from New Mills. Have known him ever since. Do not know of him being away any length of time during those eight years. I know of him getting a girl into trouble. Girl was not a relation of mine. I know he did go away for a time then. The girl's name was Rosanna Gagnon.

Coroner—Do you know of him ever being in prison.

Witness—No I do not know how long he was away on this occasion. I worked with him last winter sawing sleepers at Mr. Prescott's mill. We were always good friends. Never had any quarrel or any words with him, nor do I know of any one else quarrelling with him. The last time I saw him before finding him in the culvert was on the Saturday before at New Mills station platform. Was talking with him. He was sober and had not been drinking. Was not aware that he had been around here on Thursday evening 15th inst until after I found him on Friday morning. Did not know of his calling at my sister's house the evening before his death. My sister's name is Alvina Jonas and she lives about 60 feet from me. I live about 150 yards from where I found deceased. I was playing ball below the station on Thursday evening until about 9.15. I then went home. Dr. Ellis went to Jas. Mercier's. I went to my own house, took a lunch and then went to bed. My wife and nine children live with me. Got up about 4.40 on Friday morning which is my usual time at this season of the year. Was not out of the house from the time I went in the evening before about 9.15 until about 5.10 on Friday morning. Heard no noise through the night. The wife of Ben Mercier was sick that night (Thursday). My wife was not out of the house during Thursday night after I arrived home. I meant that I do not know where she had been before I got home. None of my family were out of the house that night that I know of. I was present when Dr. Ellis looked at deceased. Saw no further wounds or marks of violence than I have already related. After the Dr. made examination I left and went to my work. It was 5.40 when I got to station which is about 250 yards from Bye road where I live. Left deceased where he was. I did think about taking him to my place but my wife was not very strong and she would half to look after him and that is why I did not take him there. I told Ben Mercier to make the seat out of the wagon and take him down to Prescott's boarding house. Mercier did not say he would do it but said he ought to be taken somewhere. I did not make any provision for taking care of him other than I have mentioned. (Bottle of gin shown.) That is the same bottle found in pocket of deceased.

Dr. Ellis. Did any one examine the contents of bottle? Is it water or gin. Contents examined and pronounced gin.

Witness drew diagram of culvert showing position of deceased.

Detective Skiffington—Did any one call at your house the night before.

Witness—No. The body was straight but feet were higher than head, hands were in easy position. Did not see any wound on his arm or shoulder. Shoulder was covered with ground. When I first saw him I thought he was killed by train. When I lifted him I saw no blood and thought he must have been carried there.

Did you notice anything else besides cap on side of track.

Witness—Yes I saw some vomitted matter at end of sleepers about 4 feet from where deceased was found.

Robert L. Ellis M.D. sworn—Reside at Jacquet River, Am a doctor of medicine. Have been practising there about three years. Remember morning of June 16th inst. I was called by Alex. Jonas that morning to see an injured person sometime between 5 and 6 o'clock. I slept at James Mercier's the previous night which is about 30 yards from railway crossing on the north side on the Murchie bye road. After being called I went up the crossing and found deceased lying near the culvert on West side. Alex. Jonas told me he had been train struck. I examined him roughly to see if he had any broken bones, but found none. Found bruise on left temple between forehead and hair about 1 or 1 1/2 inches long, partly on face partly in hair, about the middle temple region. Wound superficial merely an abrasion—did not penetrate skin. On right side of head extending from about one inch from ear in a line to other ear was a deep cut about 2 1/2 inches in length. Wound was probably produced by blunt instrument. Another small cut was present near vertex a little in front of the crown also in the hair probably caused by same instrument. Saw some bloody matter around his mouth and moustache. I found very little blood around the wounds none clotted and very little fresh except perhaps some clotted in moustache. He had all his clothes on. Do not know that coat was buttoned. From the nature of the wounds I would expect a good deal of blood. Wounds were fresh but were probably made some hours before as bleeding had almost ceased. I was shown the spot where body was found. Made examination and found only a few drops of blood. Would say that more blood had come from those wounds than I saw an evidence of. Wounds of that nature would bleed very profusely. Judging from the nature of the wounds, the head may have been washed after the blood had nearly ceased flowing. The hair was not then wet. Deceased was unconscious and remained so until death occurred. After making examination it was decided to send injured man to Campbellton Hospital and he was removed in the meantime to Prescott's boarding house till No 39 train arrived. I accompanied deceased from New Mills station to Campbellton. He died about five minutes before reaching Campbellton, about 12.15. Was instructed by Corner Doherty to hold Post Mortem and was assisted by Dr. Price of Campbellton. I did so. On inspection found the man to be spare, of medium height sandy moustache, brown hair, recently cut. Height 5 feet 8 in. Weight about 140 Age 30 years upwards. Clothing was removed consisting of coat, vest, inside shirt, outside shirt, pants, drawers, boots and socks, necktie; collar was attached to shirt. Besides wounds already described I found one or two abrasions on hip and another over and back of right shoulder, and also a small penetrating wound scarcely larger than the end of a slate pencil. Clean cut wound. From this a little blood was oozing. Wound made by round instrument. Black and blue around wound especially upwards. Wound a little below shoulder on right arm on external surface. Probed but would not be positive that probe was following track of my instrument. Found no bullet. Could not locate any bullet or other substance by probing or incising to the depth of two and half inches. The chest was then opened up and found no trace of a wound in the chest. About an ounce of blood was found in the right plural sack and from 1/2 pint to 1 pint in the left plural sack, together with some blood in the pericardial sack. I found no evidence of penetrating wounds. Internal hemorrhage was due in all probability to blow on chest which fractured second, third and fourth ribs near intercostal articulation. This was on side opposite to bullet wound. There was no perforating wound on the heart or lungs. Stomach was removed and opened. Found a small quantity of dark colored liquid. Did not detect any smell of spirituous liquor. Lining of stomach slightly inflamed reddened. There was no evidence of free blood in the abdominal cavity. In trying to determine the course of the wound on the shoulder an incision was made between the shoulder and the body in front partly severing the arm from the body, but although we found bruised blood we failed to locate any foreign body in the tissues. This incision was four or five inches from wound. Failed to find track of wound. On turning back the scalp we found evidences of bruises which did not show on the skin, there being extravasated blood in the tissues beneath the skin. Skull cap was removed. Found considerable free blood on surface and base of the brain. The quantity of blood at base of brain was probably the immediate cause of death by pressure. Found no fracture of skull.

Mr. McLatchy—How do you account for the internal flow of blood?

Witness—The blow on surface of head would cause it.

Mr. McLatchy—Did you find any other wound that would cause death?

Witness—Found no other injury that would be immediate cause of death. The blows on the chest might eventually have caused death. In my opinion the man was unconscious from the time he received the wounds on the head. I am not aware that the coat was removed from deceased from the time I first saw him until he died. I made no examination of clothing. Had never seen deceased to know him previous to 15th inst when called upon to attend him. Alex. Jonas the last witness and I were playing ball together on Thursday evening 15th inst near New Mills station. We left the grounds and walked as far as the Murchie bye-road. Can't say whether he went down the bye-road with me or not I went into the house of Jas. Murchie Sr. between 9.15 and 9.30. I stayed a few minutes and went with Ben Mercier and my horse and rig to look for fodder for the night. Mr. Windsor's store was closed. Mercier went to Jas. McMillan's. I left him at the station bye-road and went to Ry Station In about half an hour Ben Mercier came up from his house for me saying that I was wanted there. We walked down the track together and went in the house. We left the horse tied to a light fence feeding, and about 1/4 of an hour after going in the house this time I heard the horse backing away from the fence and I went out to attend to it. I saw no persons moving around and heard no noise and heard nothing through the night. I was not up after attending to the horse until called by Alex. Jonas.

Detective Skiffington—The wound could not be produced by a person standing in front of deceased.

Clean cut wound. From this a little blood was oozing. Wound made by round instrument. Black and blue around wound especially upwards. Wound a little below shoulder on right arm on external surface. Probed but would not be positive that probe was following track of my instrument. Found no bullet. Could not locate any bullet or other substance by probing or incising to the depth of two and half inches. The chest was then opened up and found no trace of a wound in the chest. About an ounce of blood was found in the right plural sack and from 1/2 pint to 1 pint in the left plural sack, together with some blood in the pericardial sack. I found no evidence of penetrating wounds. Internal hemorrhage was due in all probability to blow on chest which fractured second, third and fourth ribs near intercostal articulation. This was on side opposite to bullet wound. There was no perforating wound on the heart or lungs. Stomach was removed and opened. Found a small quantity of dark colored liquid. Did not detect any smell of spirituous liquor. Lining of stomach slightly inflamed reddened. There was no evidence of free blood in the abdominal cavity. In trying to determine the course of the wound on the shoulder an incision was made between the shoulder and the body in front partly severing the arm from the body, but although we found bruised blood we failed to locate any foreign body in the tissues. This incision was four or five inches from wound. Failed to find track of wound. On turning back the scalp we found evidences of bruises which did not show on the skin, there being extravasated blood in the tissues beneath the skin. Skull cap was removed. Found considerable free blood on surface and base of the brain. The quantity of blood at base of brain was probably the immediate cause of death by pressure. Found no fracture of skull.

Mr. McLatchy—How do you account for the internal flow of blood?

Witness—The blow on surface of head would cause it.

Mr. McLatchy—Did you find any other wound that would cause death?

Witness—Found no other injury that would be immediate cause of death. The blows on the chest might eventually have caused death. In my opinion the man was unconscious from the time he received the wounds on the head. I am not aware that the coat was removed from deceased from the time I first saw him until he died. I made no examination of clothing. Had never seen deceased to know him previous to 15th inst when called upon to attend him. Alex. Jonas the last witness and I were playing ball together on Thursday evening 15th inst near New Mills station. We left the grounds and walked as far as the Murchie bye-road. Can't say whether he went down the bye-road with me or not I went into the house of Jas. Murchie Sr. between 9.15 and 9.30. I stayed a few minutes and went with Ben Mercier and my horse and rig to look for fodder for the night. Mr. Windsor's store was closed. Mercier went to Jas. McMillan's. I left him at the station bye-road and went to Ry Station In about half an hour Ben Mercier came up from his house for me saying that I was wanted there. We walked down the track together and went in the house. We left the horse tied to a light fence feeding, and about 1/4 of an hour after going in the house this time I heard the horse backing away from the fence and I went out to attend to it. I saw no persons moving around and heard no noise and heard nothing through the night. I was not up after attending to the horse until called by Alex. Jonas.

Detective Skiffington—The wound could not be produced by a person standing in front of deceased.

The First Man to Sell Royal Household Flour

in the town of Westville N. S., was

GEO. E. MUNROE

He saw it advertised in the daily papers and he thought he would try a few barrels. He didn't get many at first, not more than thirty barrels, because he was not quite sure how the Westville people might like it. However, the flour came along and he tried it in his own house. Then he told a few friends that it was something first-class and they also tried it. It seemed that nearly every person who got a barrel recommended it to someone else until before very long the inquiry became general and other Westville merchants had to get it for their customers. To-day the most popular flour in Westville is undoubtedly almost ceased. I was shown the spot where body was found. Made examination and found only a few drops of blood. Would say that more blood had come from those wounds than I saw an evidence of. Wounds of that nature would bleed very profusely. Judging from the nature of the wounds, the head may have been washed after the blood had nearly ceased flowing. The hair was not then wet. Deceased was unconscious and remained so until death occurred. After making examination it was decided to send injured man to Campbellton Hospital and he was removed in the meantime to Prescott's boarding house till No 39 train arrived. I accompanied deceased from New Mills station to Campbellton. He died about five minutes before reaching Campbellton, about 12.15. Was instructed by Corner Doherty to hold Post Mortem and was assisted by Dr. Price of Campbellton. I did so. On inspection found the man to be spare, of medium height sandy moustache, brown hair, recently cut. Height 5 feet 8 in. Weight about 140 Age 30 years upwards. Clothing was removed consisting of coat, vest, inside shirt, outside shirt, pants, drawers, boots and socks, necktie; collar was attached to shirt. Besides wounds already described I found one or two abrasions on hip and another over and back of right shoulder, and also a small penetrating wound scarcely larger than the end of a slate pencil. FORTIFICATIONS.

They Play but a Secondary Role in the Defense of States.

A fortress spells immobility and dispersion. We should therefore look askance at it until proof is given that it has a definite purpose to fulfill in a reasoned scheme of strategy. We must not allow ourselves to be led away by the glamour surrounding a heroic defense. We must look to the end and leave paucities to poets. We must, in short, regard all fortification as an auxiliary and nothing more. A fortress, because it is a fortress and because it is ours, is not necessarily an advantage and may be the reverse. If we gain battles we gain the enemy's fortresses; if we lose them he gains

ours, whether they are in the interior or upon the sea. In each case the larger the garrison the greater the disaster. Fortresses, and, in fact, all fortifications, have never played anything but a secondary role in the defense of states, and no nation has ever yet been saved by them. They can as auxiliaries occasionally assist an army and they can aid naval capital, wisely invested and wisely used, to bear a dangerous interest, but they can never re-establish moral superiority when once it is lost nor create it by the virtue of attaching to its parapets if it does not exist. Over the portals of the fortress or harbor of refuge should be written in the largest and blackest of characters the words that Dante discovered over the gates of hell—"Military Corruption."

VALOR AND HEROISM.

Proof That the Real Heroism of Esta is in South America.

"Every country has its heroes, and it is refreshing to read something of the heroic in the history of the countries

south of us," said a thoughtful man.

"In a history of South America attention is called to a number of things which tend to show that the popular estimate of valor and heroism in that section of the world may not be altogether the correct one. It is related that once the Peruvian monitor Huascar fought against three Chilean ships.

"After both Admiral Grau and his flag lieutenant were killed Captain

Aguirre took command, was killed, and then succeeded by Captain Carvajal, who was put hors de combat by a shot.

The command devolved then on Lieutenant Rodriguez, who was killed; then on Lieutenant Palacios, who was disabled, and finally Lieutenant Garayon, with the ship on fire, three feet of water in the hold and with a loss of half

We have been asked several times if the investigation ordered by the town council some time ago in regard to the licenses to the circus people has been concluded, and we have to reply in the negative. We understand, however, that it is not the intention to let the matter drop and we hope such is the case. The Council would find itself in a rather unfavorable position if it failed to carry out one of its own resolutions.

Pedestrians on Water St. last night were obliged to turn out into the mud nearly opposite Events office or run the risk of a fall in trying to work a passage through the heaps of earth and stone that were left on the sidewalk by the workmen at six o'clock. It seems to us very unwise to leave the sidewalk in this condition at night. Of course a lantern was burning to mark the place but it hardly threw enough light on the subject. A little more judgment in the amount of sidewalk to be torn up towards the close of the day would leave things in a better condition for the night.

and Quebec. Now is it not time that our local governments would see to it—that competent men should first see if the land to be taken up is fit for farm use or should it be left to grow lumber? This I think is a very important matter and one that involves the future destiny of our country. The question is asked to-day, can we hold the present population or are we to decrease?—If we will look at the countries where the lumber is getting scarce we will at once see that there is a decrease. We find people in Campbellton to-day from all parts of the Maritime Provinces largely because we have almost an unbroken forest of lumber to the west of us—destroy that by fire or cutting end the consequence will be that more than the half will have to get out. My own opinion is—that 100 acres of good timber land—carefully cut will continue to support more people than the same amount cleared certain conditions excepted—I say that all along our bays and fertile rivers should be settled and is settled I may say. I am strongly of the opinion that all the land fit for cultivation in N. B. and a great deal that is not fit is already cultivated or has been cultivated—I can stand in any one place in the counties of Albert, Kings, Queens, Sunbury, York and count hundreds of acres of land that was once cleared—and is now growing up in small wood, and that too—where there is no railway and steam boat communication I came to the conclusion—until going through those places—that owing to the scattered nature of the inhabitants it would be a good idea for the local governments to buy out those people, which could be done at a small cost rather than to maintain roads and bridges for them.

The Bonaventure Phonograph in 1903 said in a speech at Ottawa that an Englishman or an Irishman or a Scotchman could go to the northwest and accomplish as much in 2 years as a Frenchman could in 20 years in the back woods of N. B. or Quebec. It is true—why, should he with many others advise the opening up of the hilly and sunny N. B. and P. Q.

If the west is so good, why not keep it for the expansion of our people—instead of spending millions of our money bringing emigrants into the country that cannot in any way be compared to our people—I often ask why all this hurry scurry and expense to get emigration into the country. Sir Wilfrid says the 19th century was the century for the U. S. A., but the 20th century will be the century for Canada—It was the 19th century that ruined the United States—they rushed their country to death by bringing in people from all parts of the earth—and their own people are leaving them now and seeking homes in Canada—not because Canada possesses any geographical advantages or climate, but rather the reverse. The fact is that people want room and will go where they can get it—If room is desirable why should we seek to pack our towns and country at a breakneck rate—Do we not find that the more people get into a town the harder it is to live in it. Many of the laboring class and others in Cton to-day tell me it is harder to live now than it was 15 or 20 years ago—and is it not the same everywhere, the more people you get together the more misery you have.

I believe the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof, and as long as men are law abiding they should be allowed to move to and from at their will. But I can't see that all are duty bound to have them from all ends of the earth. There is a mass of superstition, filth and ignorance flowing into our fair country, and if desperate efforts are not made to christianize it, it will roll back on and overwhelm us. But I have wandered from my subject. The commissioners say they can possibly get a saving in distance of 90 miles down through N. B. that I doubt you will see by the map that the northern horn of Maine extends well over to River du Loup in the province of Quebec, and anything like a straight line cannot be got on Canadian soil, but allowing they can save that distance, they can never in the future history of this country earn enough to pay one cent of the road capital. What is the history of our railroads today? Some say the more railroads we have the better. Now suppose we had six lines of railway down through the province. The I. C. R. has cost the large sum of seventy million dollars to build it last year. There was a deficit of a million dollars this year with the ocean Limited—on it will be much the same. Now if the first road, getting all the traffic, sunk a million dollars, what would the 2nd, third and fourth cost?

A man said to me the other day: 'the Ocean Limited was not put on because it was needed, nor to make money. It was put on to give employment, as business on the road was very slack. If that is so, and it looks very much like it, why not make our lines as long as possible? Put all the turns we can in them.'

In 1900 we were told from every political platform and every Liberal dress in the Maritime Provinces that Mr. Blair had redeemed the I. C. R. from a sinkhole for the people's money to a paying investment, and that the time of deficits were past. That was in a measure true. The last year Mr. Blair managed the I. C. R., although making large expenditures, had a surplus of one hundred and twenty-seven thousand. Last year it was run by every Tom, Dick and Harry. It made more debt in that year than it did in any ten years of its existence combined.

Now is it not reasonable to ask why the I. C. R. deficit should be so large last year? especially when it was managed by the people who said it was a crime to have a deficit. If it was considered wrong to have a deficit in the years gone by, is it not tenfold more so now, when we consider that since then the country has been put to millions of dollars of expense to put down a good railroad and equip it with engines that are capable of hauling three times as much load as they then did?

With the increasing traffic and the facilities for handling freight, there is today, there is no reason why the I. C. R. should not pay working expenses and a little to the credit of the country. We don't think this can be under the present management. The people of this country should demand that it should be taken out of the hands of the Political Machine, and managed by a commission of business men who would have no political axe to grind. If this is not done the I. C. R. will be taken out of the hands of the people. And it is quite possible that the ones that are now doing all they can to make it cost the country every cent they possibly can, will buy it. Then it will be run on business principles. It will not be run by a few subjects who, for the difference of four hours in time to Montreal, would put the country to hundreds of thousands of dollars expense. If any man's time is so very precious that four hours is going to be of such account let him do as the Goulds and Vanderbilts have done—hire a special.

I trust you will give space in your valuable paper to my already too long letter. Yours Truly,
JOHN DICKIE.

Just What Everybody should Do
Mr. J. T. Barber of Irwinville, Ga. always keeps a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand ready for instant use. Attacks of colic, cholera morbus and diarrhoea come on so suddenly that there is no time to hunt a doctor or go to the store for medicine. Mr. Barber says: "I have tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which is one of the best medicines I ever saw. I keep a bottle of it in my room as I have had several attacks of colic and it has proved to be the best medicine I ever used." Sold by all druggists.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

The evidence of Annie Doherty, wife of Frank, and of Mary Jerome revealed nothing new.

Elizabeth Girard sworn—Live at New Mills on Murchie byroad. I live with Arvine Jones, on the north side of I. C. Railway a short distance from the crossing. I knew Alex Woods. Have known him a number of years. Don't know my age. I remember Thursday night before Alex Woods was hurt. I was home that night. Mr. Boomer, my mother, myself and three children were at our house that Thursday evening. I mean by my mother, Arvine Jones. Boomer stayed all night at our house. Saw Alex Woods that night after I went to bed. Can't say what time it was. He came to our house. Mother was in bed when he came. He rapped first at the window, I was lying down in my bed just inside. He did not speak. He then went around to the back door. He rapped twice before my mother spoke. Mother went and opened a middle door between kitchen and porch. Alex was rapping at the outside porch door.

Adjourned until Tuesday, June 27th.

STILL MISSING

No Trace of Traveller who Disappeared some Time ago

The mystery in connection with the disappearance of A. Bourgeois, a traveller, has not been cleared up. A brother of the missing man was in town last week making enquiries in regard to the matter but he had to return home without any clue as to his whereabouts. It is not thought likely that he is anywhere in this vicinity now or something would have come to light before this.

Someway or other it always happens that the judicious advertising succeeds. Judicious means many things. Some people better never advertise. Managers who are not honest, whose advertisements mislead and whose shows disappoint, they had better let advertising alone.

The managers of Richards & Pringle's Famous Georgia Minstrels endeavor to advertise nothing but what they can show. They are in a class by themselves, being of only recognized negro minstrels that play the first class theaters and cannot afford to mislead their patrons.

Lone show people are careless in their statements. They become so accustomed to writing "Biggest," "Grandest," "Greatest," "Best" and "World's largest," that they can only think in superlatives. They mean to be honest, probably are. They are merely careless, and failure is the price of carelessness.

THOMPSON-BALLOU.

The Stoughton, Mass. Record of the 23rd inst. says:
 Wednesday, at 3 p. m. at the Ballu home on Pleasant street, the marriage was celebrated of Bertha Richmond Ballou to Arthur Curtis Thompson of Campbellton, N. B., Canada. The bride is the Grand daughter of the late Rev. M. B. Ballou of this town and daughter of Berthier Ballou. Miss Ballou is a young lady well known in town and warmly liked. She studied music for several years under one of the best professors of the day and is very accomplished in piano forte. Her friends wish her all good fortune which she surely deserves. Mr. Thompson is an employee of the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad and runs between Boston and New York. He has lived in Stoughton several years.

The marriage was a quiet one at the house, only the immediate family being present. Rev L O Williams performed the ceremony.
 The couple left Wednesday night for New Brunswick, where they will be the guests of their parents for several weeks. After their return they will reside at 18, Pleasant Street.

If Your Liver is Wrong You are Wrong all Over

A torpid, inactive liver goes hand in hand with constipation. Such a chronic condition requires a systematic effort to overcome it and establish good health and perfect body drainage. Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills, containing the two essential elements to increase liver activity and muscular action go accurately to the sluggish liver and bowels, restoring them completely.

Suppose your bowels failed to move for a week or ten days. Don't you know you would be quickly prostrated? It is just the same, differing in degree, when your bowels do not move at least once a day. You know you soon become languid and tired, your blood gets thick and you feel mean and sick all over. You should have a full, healthy passage daily. Don't let serious conditions develop. Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills will drive bowel poison out of your system and establish regularity. They are purely vegetable, and cure in one night. We will send you a generous sample of these pills absolutely free, sealed and postpaid, that will convince you beyond doubt of their wonderful curative properties. Address, W. F. Smith Co., 26 St. James Street, Montreal, Canada.

The Gentleman From Indiana

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright, 1899, by Doubleday & McClure Co.
Copyright, 1902, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"You said, 'You are going?'"
"Yes," he answered quietly, "I am going."
"Then I will go with you."
"Thank you, Tom," said Harkless simply.

Meredith ran into his room, pressed an electric button and began to dive into his clothes with a panting rapidity. The colored man appeared in the doorway. "The car, Jim!" shouted his master. "We want it like lightning. Tell the cook to give Mr. Harkless his breakfast in a hurry. Set a cup of coffee on the table by the front door for me. Run! We've got to catch a train. That will be quicker than any cab," he explained to Harkless. "We'll break the ordinance against fast driving getting down there."

Ten minutes later the car swept away from the house at a gallop that pained the respectable neighborhood. The big horse plunged through the air, his ears laid flat toward his tail. The car careened sickeningly, and the face of the servant clutching at the rail in the rear was smeared with perspiration. To him it seemed they skirted the corners and dived simultaneously, and the speed of their going made a strong wind in their faces.

Harkless leaned forward. "Can you make it a little faster, Tom?" he said. "They dashed up to the station and the cries of people flying to the walls for safety. The two gentlemen leaped from the car, bore down upon the ticket office, stormed at the agent and ran madly at the gates, flourishing their passports. The official on duty eyed them wearily. "Been gone two minutes," he remarked with a peaceable yawn.

Harkless stamped his foot on the cement flags; then he stood stock still, gazing at the empty tracks. But Meredith turned to him, smiling. "Won't it keep?" he asked.

"Yes, it will keep," John answered. "Part of it may have to keep till election day, but some of it I will settle before night. And that," he cried between his teeth, "and that is the part of it in regard to young Fiske!"

"Oh, it's about H. Fiske, is it?"
"Yes, it is," H. Fiske.

"Well, we might as well go up and see what the doctor thinks of you; there's no train."
"I don't want to see a doctor again ever—so long as I live. I'm as well as anybody."

Tom burst out laughing and clapped his companion lightly on the shoulder. "You eyes dancing with pleasure. 'Upon my soul,' he cried, 'I believe you are. A miracle wrought by the witch wand of indignation! That's rather against tradition, isn't it? Well, let's take a drive.'"

"Meredith," said the other, turning to him gravely, "you may think me a fool if you will, and it's likely I am, but I don't leave this station except by train. I've only two days to work in, and every minute lessens our chances to beat McCune, and I have to begin by wasting time on a tussle with a traitor. There's another train at 11:55; I don't like any chances on missing that one."

"Well, well," laughed his friend, pushing him good humoredly toward a door by a red and white striped pillar. "We'll wait here if you like. But at least go in there and get a shave; it's a clean shop. You want to look your best if you are going down to fight H. Fiske."

"Take these, then, and you will understand," said Harkless, and he thrust his three telegrams of the morning into Tom's hand and disappeared into the barber shop. When he was gone Meredith went to the telegraph office in the station and sent a line over the wires to Helen: "Keep your delegation at home. Hey coming on the 11:55." Then he read the three telegrams Harkless had given him. They were all from Plattville.

"Sorry cannot oblige. Present incumbent tenacious. Delicate matter. No hope for K. H. But don't worry. Everything all right."
WARREN SMITH.

Harkless, if you have the strength to walk, come down before the convention. Get here by 10:45. Looks bad. "Come if it kills you."
K. H.

You instructed me with sole responsibility for all matters pertaining to Herald. Declared yourself mere spectator. Does this permit your interfering with my policy for the paper? Decline to consider my proposition. I relieve me of my duties without proper warning and allowance of time. Forced to disregard all suggestions as to policy, which by your own instructions, is entirely my affair and must be carried out as I direct.
H. FISKE.

CHAPTER XIV.
THE middle of the floor wandered down through the afternoon sunshine, stopping at every village and every country postoffice on the line. There was a passenger in the smoker who found the stops at these wayside hamlets interminable. He got up and paced the aisle now and then, and his companion reminded him that this was not certain to hasten the hour of their arrival at their destination. "I know that," answered he, "but I've got to beat McCune."

"By the way," observed Meredith, "you left your stick behind."
"You don't think I need a club to fight?"

Harkless, fully dressed, was standing in the middle of the floor when Tom choked. "Oh, no! I wasn't thinking of your giving H. Fiske a beating. I meant to lean on."

"I don't want it. I've got to walk lame all my life, but I'm not going to hobble on a stick."
Tom looked at him sadly for a moment. It was true, and the Crossroads might hug themselves in their cells over the thought. For the rest of his life John Harkless was to walk with just the limp they themselves would have had if, as in former days, their sentence had been to the ball and chain.

"Sit down, boy, sit down," said Meredith, and his friend obeyed. The window was open beside the two young men, and the breeze that blew in soothed like a balm, yet held a tinge and spice in it, a hint of walnuts and of coming frost. There was a newness in the atmosphere that day, a bright invigoration, that set the blood tingling. The hot months were to recede; autumn was routed. Autumn spoke to industry, told of the sowing of another harvest, of the tawny shock of the purple grape, of the red apple, and called upon people and laughter, breathing gaiety into men's hearts. The little stations hummed with bustle and noise, big farm wagons rattled off up the village streets and raced with "cut under" or omnibuses; people walked with quick steps; the baggage-masters called cheerily to the trunks, and the brakemen laughed goodbyes to rollicking girls. At times the train ran between shadowy groves, and delicate landscape vistas, framed in branches, opened, closed and succeeded each other, and then the travelers were carried beyond into the level open again and looked out to where the intensely blue September skies ran down to the low horizon, meeting the boundless aisles of corn. It takes a long time for the full beauty of the flat lands to reach a man's soul. Once there, nor hills, nor seas, nor growing fan leaves of palm shall suffice him. It is like the beauty in the word Indiana. It may be that there are people who do not consider Indiana a beautiful word, but let it ring true in your ears, and it has a richer sound than Valhalla.

At once the answer ran out of John Sprained Ankle, Stiff Neck, Lame Shoulder.

These are three common ailments for which Chamberlain's Pain Balm is especially valuable. If promptly applied it will save you time, money and suffering when troubled with any one of these ailments. For sale by all druggists.

Harkless. He was a hard man for anger to tarry with. And in place of it a strong sense of humor coming began to take possession of him. He was going home. "Back to Plattville, where I belong," he said to himself without bitterness, and it was the truth. Every man cometh to his own place in the end."

Yes, as one leaves a gay acquaintance of the playhouse lobby for some hard handed, tried old friend, so he would wave the outer world goodspeed and come back to the old ways of Carlow. What though the years were dusty, he had his friends and his memories and his old black briar pipe. He had a girl's picture that he should carry in his heart till his last day, and if his life was sadder it was infinitely richer for it. His winter friends would be not so lonely for her sake, and, losing her, he lost not everything, for he had had the rare blessing of having known her. And what man could wish to be healed of such a hurt? Far better to have had it than to trot a smug pace unscathed. He had been a duelist, a sluggard, weary of himself, unfit to fight, a failure in life and a failure in love. That was ended. He was tired of failing, and it was time to succeed for awhile. To accept the worst that fate can deal and to bring courage from it instead of despair—that is success, and it was the success that he would have. He would take fate by the neck. But had it done him unkindness? He looked out over the beautiful, "monotonous" landscape, and he answered heartily, "No." There was ignorance in man, but no unkindness. Were man utterly wise he were utterly kind. The Crossroads had not known better, that was all.

The unfolding aisles of corn swam pleasantly before his eyes. The earth hearkened to man's wants and answered. The element sun and summer rains hastened the fruition. Yonder stood the brown haystack, garnered to feed the industrious horse that had earned his meal. There was the straw thatched shelter for the cattle. How the orchard boughs bent with their burdens! The big red barns stood stored with the harvest, for this was Carlow country, and he was coming home.

They carried a byroad. An old man with a streaky gray chin beard was sitting on a sack of oats in a seatless waiting for the train to pass. Harkless seized his companion excitedly by the elbow. "Tommy," he cried, "it's Kim Fentress! Look! Did you see that old fellow?"

"That's a particularly uninteresting and uninteresting gentleman sitting on a bag," replied his friend.

"Why, that's old Kimball Fentress. He's going to town. He lives on the edge of the county."

"Can this be true?" said Meredith gravely.

"I wonder," said Harkless thoughtfully, "a fellow like that, it's wonder why he had them changed around."

"Who changed around?"
"The team. He always used to drive the bay on the near side and the sorrel on the off."

"And at present," rejoined Meredith, "I am to understand that he is driving the sorrel on the near side and the bay on the off?"

"That's it," returned the other. "He must have worked them like that for some time, because they didn't look uneasy. They're all right about the train, there's two. I've seen them stand with their heads almost against a fast freight. See there."

He pointed to a white frame farmhouse with green blinds. "That's Mr. Hibbard's. We're just outside of Beaver."

"Beaver? Elucidate Beaver, boy." "Beaver? Meredith, your information ends at home. What do you know of your own state if you are ignorant of Beaver? Beaver is that city of Carlow county next in importance and population to Plattville."

Tom put his head out of the window. "Fancy you are right," he said. "I already see five people there."

Meredith had observed the change in his companion's mood. He had watched him closely all day, looking for a return of his malady, but he came to the conclusion that in truth a miracle had been wrought, for the lethargy was gone and vigor seemed to increase in Harkless with every turn of the wheels that brought them nearer Plattville, and the nearer they drew to Plattville the higher the spirits of both the young men rose. Meredith knew what was happening there, and he began to be a little excited. As he had said, there were five people visible at Beaver, and he wondered where they lived, as the only building in sight was the station, and to satisfy his curiosity he walked out to the vestibule. The little station stood in the woods, and brown leaves whirled along the platform. One of the five people was an old lady, and she entered a rear car. The other four were men. One of them handed the conductor a telegram. Meredith heard the official say: "All right. Decorate ahead. I'll hold it five minutes."

The man sprang up the steps of the smoker and looked in. He turned to Meredith. "Do you know if that gentleman in the gray coat is Mr. Harkless? He's got his back this way, and I don't want to go inside. The air in a smoker always gives me a spell."

"Yes, that's Mr. Harkless."
The man jumped to the platform. "All right, boys," he said. "Rip her out!"

The doors of the freight room were thrown open, and a big bundle of colored stuffs was dragged out and hastily unfolded. One of the men ran to the farther end of the car with a strip of red, white and blue bunting and tacked it securely, while another fastened the other extremity to the railing of the steps by Meredith. The two companions of this pair performed the same operation with another strip on the other side of the car. They ran similar lines of bunting near the roof from end to end, so that except for the windows the sides of the car were completely covered by the national colors. Then they draped the vestibules with flags. It was all done in a trice. Meredith's heart was beating fast. "What's it all about?" he asked.

"Picnic down the line," answered the man in charge, removing a tack from his mouth. He motioned to the conductor, "Go ahead!"

The wheels began to move; the decorators remained on the station platform, letting the train pass them, but Meredith, craning his neck from the steps, saw that they jumped on the last car.

"What's the celebration?" asked Harkless when Meredith returned.

"Picnic down the line," said Meredith.

"Nipping weather for a picnic. A bit cool, don't you think? One of those fellows looked like a friend of mine, Homer Tibbs, or as Homer might look if he were in disgrace. He had his hat hung on his eyes, and he slouched like a thief in melodrama as he tacked up the bunting on this side of the car."

He continued to point out various familiar places, finally breaking out enthusiastically as they drew nearer the town: "Hello! Look there—beyond the grove yonder! See that house?"

"Yes, John."

"That's the Bowlders. You've got to know the Bowlders."

"I'd like to."

"The kindest people in the world. The Briscoe house we can't see because it's so shut in by trees, and, besides, it's a mile or so ahead of us. We'll go out there for supper tonight. Don't you like Briscoe? He's the best they make. We'll go uptown with Judd Bennett in the omnibus, and you'll know how a rapid fire machine gun sounds. I want to go straight to the Herald office," he finished, with a suddenly darkening brow.

"After all, there may be some explanation," Meredith suggested with a little hesitancy. "H. Fiske might turn out more honest than you think."

Harkless threw his head back and laughed. "Honest! A man in the pay of Rodney McCune! Well, we can let it wait till we get there. Listen! There's the whistle that means we're getting near home. Why, there's an oil well!"

"So it is."

"And another—three, five, seven—seven in sight at once! They tried it—three miles south and failed, but you can't fool Eph Watts, bless him! I want you to know Watts."

They ran by the outlying houses of the town amid a thousand desecrative exclamations from Harkless, who wished Meredith to meet every one in Carlow. But he came to a pause in the middle of a word. "Do you hear music?" he asked abruptly, "or is it only the rhythm of the ties?"

"It seems to me there's music in the air," answered his companion. "I've been fancying I heard it for a minute or so. There! No—yes. It's a band, isn't it?"

"No. What would a band—yes, it is!"

The train slowed up and stopped at a water tank 200 yards east of the station, and their uncertainty was at an end. From somewhere down the track came the detouring boom of a cannon. There was a crash of brass, and the travelers became sure of a band playing "Marching Through Georgia."

The Useful Shark.

The smiling shark may eat a man now and then—though scientists doubt it—but if he does man gets even. He makes thinned soup and jelly of the smiling shark's fins, extracts fine machinery oil from his liver, makes handsome leather of his skin, walking sticks from his backbone and many useful articles from his jawbones and teeth. Do you wonder that the shark takes a nip at a man's leg now and then?

The addresses in French and English were read by Jas J Melanson (County Warden), and Dr J C Meahan to which His Reverence responded in a few well chosen words expressing his appreciation and surprise also thanking his parishioners for their beautiful donation.

Two little girls becomingly attired in white for the occasion were Misses Margaret Meahan and Evelyn White who presented the purse and a magnificent bouquet of white roses and smilax.

Whooping Cough in Jamaica

Mr J Rilev Bennet, a chemist of Brown's Town, Jamaica, West India Islands, writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has proved itself to be the best remedy for whooping cough, which is prevalent in this end of the Globe. It has never failed to relieve in any case where I have recommended it; and grateful mothers, after using it, are daily thanking me for advising them." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

WEDDING BELLS.

MORTON-MOWAT

One of the prettiest church weddings ever witnessed in Campbellton took place yesterday evening at six o'clock in the Baptist church, the contracting parties being Mr Jas W. Morton, freight agent of the I. C. R. and Miss Alice B. Mowat, one of Campbellton's most popular young ladies.

At the appointed time the bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. Alex Mowat, and as they walked up the aisle the choir sang the hymn the Voice that Breathed o'er Eden. Miss Mattie Richards attended the bride, while little Doris Mowat and Freda Davison acted as flower girls, both nieces of the bride. The groom was ably supported by Dr B Sprout. The ceremony was performed by Rev J. W. Keirstead, the church being crowded by the friends of the contracting parties to witness the event.

The bride was becomingly attired in a suit of fawn broadcloth, elaborately trimmed with ruching, with hat to match, and carried a large bouquet of white roses and carnations. The bridesmaid wore grey broadcloth with catel shade trimmings and carried a bouquet of carnations.

The ushers were Messrs C. F. Clare, Max Moures, John Mowat and Wm Richards.

The church decorations were exceptionally pretty in evergreen, potted plants and ferns. There were two large arches trimmed with hemlock, one in the centre of the aisle and another in the front of the church under which the bridal couple stood during the ceremony. Suspended from the centre of the arch were two hearts linked together. We understand the decoration is the work of the choir of which the bride has been a valued and untiring member for a number of years.

The bride was the recipient of many costly and elegant presents.

Mr and Mrs Morton left on the Ocean Limited for Montreal and other Canadian cities on their honeymoon.

Events joins with a host of friends in wishing the newly married couple a happy journey through life.

On Tuesday, June 20th, at 5 p. m. a very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. Hiram Miller, Sunny Side, N. B. when his daughter Emeline, was united in marriage to Mr. Sumner R. Fowler, of Biddeford, Maine.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. M. McLeod, in the presence of over eighty guests, under an arch of green, erected for the occasion on the lawn. The bridesmaid was Miss Margaret J. Hodgins of Belledune, and the groomsmen, Mr. Robt. Miller, brother of the bride.

The wedding march was beautifully rendered by the bride's sister Miss Ella Miller.

The bride was given away by her father and looked beautiful in a dress of white muslin, trimmed with insertion and silk, and wore flowers in her hair.

The bridesmaid wore brown silk with trimmings of cream silk and overlace.

After the ceremony the guests repaired to the dining room where a sumptuous repast was served.

The presents were numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the bride was held.

The marriage took place Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. Shirley, Duke St., of their sister Miss Sarah A. Downie, daughter of the late J. S. Downie, to Ernest A. Stackhouse of Carleton. St. John. The house was decorated with potted and cut flowers.

The Rev. J. W. Keirstead, B. A. performed the ceremony. The bride was given away by her brother-in-law Mr. E. Shirley, and she was unattended. She was becomingly dressed in cream white, oriental lace and silk applique trimmings, bridal veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Only the near relatives and intimate friends of the bride were present. The groom is a brother of the Rev. J. P. Stackhouse of St. John city. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and valuable presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Stackhouse left on the Maritime Express for Carleton, St. John, where they will reside.
