CANADA.

Montreal, May 8.

The Special Council completed their first Session, of 15 days, last Saturday. During this time 25 Ordinances, we believe, some of them of considerable importance, have been passed. The titles of 21 of these we have already published. The four Ordinances, which are said to have passed on Saturday, we have not had an opportunity of seeing. One of them, as we reported yesterday, appropriates £5000 for the survey of Lake St. Peter, to ascertain the practicability of deepening the ship channel through it. Another is an Ordinance on the subject of bank suspension; very similar in its provisions, we are told, to the first Bank Suspension Law passed in Upper Canada. If so, it will rather aid the Banks in the process of resumption, than retard the process itself. A third Ordinance, it is said, grants a Provincial Character to the Bank of British North America.

We have devoted a considerable portion of our space to-day, to the publication of the more important of these Ordinances. Those which are mere continuations of existing acts it is unnecessary to publish in full. Two of the other Ordinances, we have already published. Though not the most amusing of a general newspaper material, the importance of a general knowledge of the laws under which we live, is such as to make their publication necessary.

Cap. I.—passed, April 23d.—declares all Ordinances to take effect from the date of their signature by the Governor, unless otherwise provided in the Ordinance itself.

Cap. II.—passed, April 23d.—suspends the Habeas Corpus Act to the 24th August; and has already appeared in our paper.

Cap. III.—passed, April 25.—continues till the 1st of May next, the following Provincial Act:

2d year of William IV. "An Act to create a fund for defraying the expense of providing medical assistance for sick emigrants, and of enabling indigent persons of that description to proceed to the place of their destination."

Cap. IV.—passed, April 26.—continues till the 1st November, 1842, the following Provincial Act:

11th year of Geo. IV. "An Act to establish Registry Offices in the counties of Drummond, Sherbrooke, Stanstead, Shefford and Missisquoi," in so far as the same is now unreppealed and in force.

1st year of Wm. IV. "An Act to amend an Act passed in the 11th year of the reign of His late Majesty, intitled, 'An Act to establish Registry Offices in the counties of Drummond, Sherbrooke, Stanstead, Shefford and Missisquoi,' and to extend the provisions of the said Act," save and except the second section.

The said second section is in the words following, "and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every person owning or claiming to own any landed or immovable property whatsoever, situate within any of the said counties of Drummond, Sherbrooke, Stanstead, Shefford, and Missisquoi, by virtue of an Act of the Queen's Majesty, or instrument in writing, executed before the passing of the Act herein cited and amended, except the Letters Patent of His Majesty, shall before the 1st day of May, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two, register the same in the Registry Office of the county in which such land or immovable property shall be situate, and every such legal instrument, which shall not be so registered, shall be utterly void and of no effect whatsoever against subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration."

4th year of Wm. IV. "An Act to extend the provisions of the Act to establish Registry Offices in the counties of Drummond, Sherbrooke, Stanstead, Shefford and Missisquoi, to lands held in free and common socage in the counties of Two Mountains and Acadie."

Cap. V.—passed, April 26.—continues till the 1st of May, 1839, the following Provincial Act:

3d year of Wm. IV. "An Act to regulate the exercise of certain rights of Lessors and Lessees."

Cap. VI.—passed, April 26.—continues till the 1st of November, 1842, the following Act:

6th year of Wm. IV. "An Act to provide for the recovery of wages due to Seamen of vessels belonging to, or registered in this Province."

Cap. VII.—passed, April 26.—appoints Commissioners to investigate claims of loyal inhabitants, for losses incurred in the rebellion; already published.

Cap. VIII.—passed, April 26.—continues till the 1st November, 1842, the following Act:

6th year of Wm. IV. "An Act for the Transportation of certain Offenders from this Province to England, to be thence again transported to New South Wales or Van Diemen's Land."

Cap. IX.—passed, April 26.—continues till November 1, 1842, the following Act:

3d year of Wm. IV. "An Act to suspend certain parts of an Act or Ordinance therein mentioned, and to consolidate and further to continue for a limited time the provisions of two other Acts therein mentioned, for more effectually ascertaining the damages on protested Bills of Exchange, and determining disputes relating thereto, in other respects.

We shall proceed with our summary and publication of the remaining Ordinances, to-morrow.—Morning Courier.

MONTREAL, M. 9.
 The whole number of Ordinances passed at the late Session of the Special Council, was as we now learn 26, and not as we stated yesterday 25; of these we have already from time to time given the titles of all that had been passed, to Friday last. The titles of the five remaining Ordinances, passed on Saturday, are as follows:

CAP. XXII.
 An Ordinance to provide for the better defence of this Province, and to regulate the Militia thereof.

CAP. XXIII.
 An Ordinance to authorize the Commissioners appointed under a certain Act of the Legislature of this Province therein mentioned, to borrow a further sum of money, to be applied to the improvement and enlargement of the Harbour of Montreal, and other purposes.

CAP. XXIV.
 An Ordinance to authorize the incorporation of a certain Bank in this Province, in suspension of the redemption of its notes in specie, for a limited time.

CAP. XXV.
 An Ordinance to enable the Proprietors or Shareholders of a Company, called Bank of British North America, to sue and be sued in the name of any one or more of its Local Directors or Managers for the time being, and for other purposes therein mentioned.

CAP. XXVI.
 An Ordinance to make provision for the Survey of the Lake St. Peter.

As it is desirable to complete the republication of the Ordinances in as few numbers as possible, we have devoted a good deal of space to this object, to-day. The substance of the fourteenth Ordinance, and the fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth Ordinances, will accordingly be found in other columns. The fourteenth was too long in its original form, to be republished in a newspaper without abridgement. We have endeavoured so to abridge it, as to preserve the whole sense of its enactments unaltered.

The thirteenth Ordinance merely continues certain expiring laws; and may therefore be epitomised more briefly.

Cap. XIII.—Passed April 25th continues till Nov. 1, 1843, the following Provincial Act:

3d Year of George IV. "An Act to erect certain Townships therein mentioned into an Inferior District, to be called the Inferior District of St. Francis, and to establish courts of Judicature therein."

11th Do. "An Act to continue further, for a limited time, a certain Act passed in the third year of His Majesty's reign, intitled 'An Act to erect certain Townships therein mentioned into an Inferior District of Saint Francis, to establish Courts of Judicature therein, and to make further provision for the due administration of Justice in the said Inferior District.'

2d Year of William IV. "An Act to make better provision, with regard to Appeals from the Provincial Court of the Inferior District of Saint Francis, to establish Courts therein, and to extend the benefits of the Trial by Jury, to the said Inferior District."

3d Year of William IV. "An Act further to continue, for a limited time, and to amend a certain Act therein mentioned, relating to the Inferior District of Saint Francis.—Morning Courier.

The following rather vague article is quoted in the St. John Courier, and credited to the London Morning Chronicle. We should like to see Messrs. Dixie and Simpson's narrative and scientific references. These Gentlemen possess very good Scotch names, but we remember the hoop, upon Sir Wm. Herschel too well, readily to yield our acquaintance to men unknown to fame for so simple a solution of one of those "res istants," which has engaged the attention of statesmen, geographers, mathematicians and merchants for so long a time, and which, in its pursuit, has "glowed the pilot to the wheel, the sailor to the shrouds?"

DISCOVERY OF THE NORTH WEST PASSAGE.—The question which has been a geographical problem for upwards of two centuries, the North West Passage round the continent of America is at length determined. The fact of the continent of America being circumscribed—the determination of the latitude of its northern extremity, in the attempt to ascertain which so many expeditions of discovery have been unsuccessful,—the knowledge that the great mountain ridge extending from Magellan Straits to the most northern part of the Asian continent, previously known, actually reaches the Arctic Sea; all these are highly interesting discoveries, and we are glad to see so many other valuable geographical discoveries, to commercial enterprise. The result appears to prove that even in boats, the north west passage is impracticable, since with all the great dunes and that can be given to Mr. Simpson and his brave companions, if they had not found the Equinox, and got their skin canoe, it is evident they never could have reached Cape Barrow; and many other similar expeditions might set out without one of them obtaining the same success. The discovery of the North West Passage, the Messrs. Deane and Simpson, two gentlemen employed by the Hudson's Bay Company.—Edin. Chron.

CIVIL APPOINTMENT.—William Boyd Kinneir, Esq. to be Judge and Commissioner of the Court of Vice Admiralty, in the room of the Hon. Neville Parker, appointed Master of the Rolls in the Court of Chancery.—Royal Gazette.

We understand that His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor has obtained the sanction of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, for the Port of Magaguadavic, to be made a Free Port for general purposes, under the Act 3 and 4 Wm. 4 c. 69.—Ibid.

THE OILY.

THE MECHANIC. Is there a man in society upon whom we look with esteem and admiration, it is the honest and industrious mechanic, who by his own unaided exertion has established for himself a respectable station in society; who commencing with poverty, by his skill and assiduity surmounted every obstacle, overcame every prejudice, and succeeded in establishing for himself a reputation, whose value is enhanced for those who come after him. And let it ever be borne in mind by the young mechanic just entering on the stage of active life, let it ever live at the foundation, and be the moving spring of all its efforts, that this situation he must strive to attain. It can be attained by all. Untrusting industry and a virtuous ambition, never fail of their reward. They never yet were exerted in vain, and never will be, while justice and equity are left in the human heart.

WHISPER TO A WIFE.—In the matrimonial character, gentle lady, no longer let your fancy wander to scenes of pleasure or dissipation. Let home be now the sole scene of your wishes, your thoughts, your plans, your exertions. Let home be now the stage on which, in the varied character of wife, of mother and of mistress, you strive to act and shine with splendour.

EDUCATION.—You will confer, says Epicure, the greatest benefit on your city, not by raising the roofs, but by exalting the souls of your fellow citizens, for it is better that souls should live in small habitations, than that ignorant men should burrow in great houses.

A FORTY PUN. Caleb Whiteford, of punning memory, once observing a young lady very earnestly at work knitting fudge, asked her what she was doing. "Knitting, sir," replied she. "Pray, Mr. Whiteford, can you knit?" "I can not madam," answered he.

A desire to please, is a commendable quality, but to please at the sacrifice of knowledge or virtue, is what can never be practised but by the vicious and abandoned.

FAIRNESS.—The noblest part of a friend said old Peitham, is an honest boldness in the notification of errors. He that tells me a fault, aiming at my good, I must think wise and faithful—wise in saying that which I see not; faithful in a plain admonishment, not tainted with flattery.

LIFE OF MAN. Man passes his life in reasoning on the past, in complaining of the present, and in trembling for the future.

A punning lawyer made allusion to the testimony of the "vegetable witness on the other side." "What do you mean," enquired his opponent, "by vegetable witness?" "Why I mean," was the reply, "the man with curly hair, reddish whiskers, and a turn-up nose."

HUMILITY.—Hail Humility! thou art the only virtue that was created by God himself—not by man—or by human institutions.—Thou art like light, which shows all other things in their fairest colours, itself invisible in heaven.

What are you thinking, my man?" said Lord Hill, as he approached a soldier who was leaning in a gloomy mood upon his firelock, while round him lay mangled thousands of French and English—it was a few hours after the battle of Salamanca had been won by the British. The soldier started, and after saluting his General, answered—"I was thinking, my Lord, how many widows and orphans I perhaps this day have made for one shilling."

The greatest men are men of simple manners. Persé, ceremony, show and profusion of compliments are the artifices of little minds, made use of to swell themselves into an appearance of consequence, which nature has denied them.

Thales, the Milesian, and one of the seven wise men of Greece, observed that of all things the finest was the world, the strongest was necessity, the quickest was space, the wisest was time, the quickest was thought, and the most common was hope.

WHY WIVES CAN MAKE NO WILL. Men dying make their wills—why cannot wives? Because wives have their wills during their lives. More hearts pine away in secret anguish for undividedness to those who should be their comforters, than for any other calamity in life.

WAR.—A major of militia, who had been recently elected, and who was not overburdened with brains, took it into his head on the morning of parade to go out and exercise a little by himself. The field selected for this purpose was his stoop. Placing himself in a military attitude, with his sword drawn, he exclaimed—Attention the whole Rear rank, three paces back. He immediately retreated three paces backwards, and tumbled into the cellar! His wife hearing the noise he occasioned in falling came running out and asked, "My dear, have you killed yourself?" "Go into the house woman," said the major, "what do you know about war?"

As the snow-drop comes amid snow and sleet, appearing as the herald of the rose, so religion comes amid the blight of affliction, to remind us of a perpetual summer, where the sun never retires behind a wintry cloud.

The Lady's Book for February, in an article on Female education, has the following, hit at mothers, addressing their bias in terms of affected endearment, viz.: "Poor baby wants to turn to its mummy, Tom Tarley and my mummy is a bull, that's a good tid."

The greatest and most enviable privilege which the rich enjoy over the poor is that which they enjoy the least—the privilege of making them happy.

An Ohio paper advertises for a good practical printer, who would take charge of the mechanical department of a printing office read proof, make selections, scribble a paragraph when necessary, rock the cradle, dig potatoes, cut wood, and go with the gals to singing school and neighboring quiltings.

THE WIFE. It is not unrequited that a wife mourns over the alienated affections of her husband, when she has made no effort herself to strengthen and increase his attachment. She thinks because he once loved her, he ought always to love her; and she neglects those attentions which first engaged his heart. Many a wife is thus the cause of her own neglect and sorrow. The woman deserves not a husband's love who will not greet him, who does not greet him with smiles as he returns from the labors of the day; who will not try to chain him to his home by the sweet enchantment of a cheerful heart. There is not one in a thousand so unfeeling as to withstand such an influence and break away from such a home.

"Alack-a-day!" cried an old lawyer, upon hearing of the loss of a sheep lost of grand-stones, "the rickles were dull before, but now I suppose they will be duller than ever."

NEGLECTING THE ANTECEDENT.—Some very whimsical instances of this occur continually, especially in the answers of witnesses, when given literally as they speak. In a late assault case, the prosecutor swore, "That he (the prisoner) struck him with a broom on his head 'till he broke the top of it." In narrating an incident some time since, it was stated that a poor old woman was run over by a cart aged sixty. So in a case of supposed poisoning, the had something in a blue paper in his hand, and saw him lean his head over the pot and put it in! Another of swallowing blue coin, "he snatch'd the ball-crown from the boy which he swallowed,"—which seems to mean the boy, not the money, but still the sentence is incorrect. An old fellow who many years sold combustible matches in Bishopsgate, had the following cry: "Buy a penny-worth of matches, of a poor old man made of foreign wood."

SINGULAR CUSTOMS.—There is a custom, proper to Sicily which I must not forget to mention. This is a right of purchase of a singular kind. If any man buy a estate, be it house, land, or vineyard, the neighbor of the purchaser, for the space of an entire year afterwards, may eject him by an advance of price. In vain would the first purchaser give more to the original owner. This singular law is generally evaded by a falsehood. The purchase money is stated, in the articles of agreement, at a higher sum than has been agreed upon in the presence of four witnesses. There is another no less singular law in Sicily, according to which any man can oblige his neighbor to sell his house, if he will pay him three times its value. The intention of this law was, the improvement of the towns. It was to encourage the possessors of large houses to purchase the humble abodes of the poor.

THE LIFE OF MAN.—The life of most men is like water, which reflects the sun's light in out one spot, while all the rest is dark; and if one little cloud comes over that spot, all is gloomy. But let thy life be like the diamond, which, by nature, reflects light from but one point, but is fashioned by art into a thousand new surfaces, so that there is no darkness in it.

THE HEART.—The heart may be compared to a garden, which, well cultivated, presents a continued succession of fruits, and flowers, to regale the soul and delight the eye; but, when neglected, producing a crop of the most noxious weeds; large and flourishing, because their growth is in proportion to the warmth and richness of the soil, from which they spring. Then let the ground be properly cultivated; let the mind of the young and lovely female be stored with useful knowledge, and the influence of woman, though undiminished in power, will be like "the diamond of the desert," sparkling and pure, whether surrounded by the sands of fickleness, forgotten and unknown, or pouring its refreshing streams through every avenue of the social and moral fabric.

QUEER. The comedian, being asked by a lady why it was said there were more women in the world than men, he replied, it is conformity with the arrangements of nature—we always see more of heaven than earth.

LEGISLATION.—Marquis Antonius, illustrates the subject of legislation, by observing that, "what is not for the interest of the whole swarm is not for the essential interest of a single bee."

Flour and Meal.—We have to notice the return of an annual demand for Western flour, which in the absence of adequate supplies has occasioned an advance of 12 1/2 a 25 cents per barrel, fully the latter on Canal Southern, of which the stock is unusually small, not exceeding probably 10,000 bushels...

THE ORONKO STEAMBOAT.—THE INCIDENTARY OF VICKSBURG KILLED.—Among the victims of this calamity one, by his own acknowledgment, justly merited his doom. He was a known blackleg, and in the extremity of agony in which he died, confessed himself to the incendiary who lighted the Pinkard House, with the intention of burning the city of Vicksburg!

Upwards of 45 sail have arrived during the week, and the vessels, generally speaking, are of large burthen. It is now some years since the inhabitants on this river witnessed, within so short a period, the arrival of so large a fleet.

Yarmouth, May 18.
From a dozen to a dozen and a half Yankee fishing craft have been making about our coast for some days. They have had a large number of nets set at the mouth of the Tuskat River, and have secured several hundred barrels of herring. Not satisfied with this, they have plundered the nets of the inhabitants. What is to be done? We are totally defenceless against the depredations of these marauders. A cutter should be stationed on the coast without delay.

It will be seen that the four ships of the line with the Gibraltar and Caldera Guard have arrived at Quebec. We regret to say that no accounts have yet been heard of the Pique which sailed with troops from Halifax on the 22nd April.

There has been another great riot in Philadelphia in consequence of a meeting convened promiscuously of white and black people, where the dangerous topic of abolitionism was discussed. The Pennsylvania Hall was attacked and in spite of the exertions of the Mayor, Sheriff, and police, the mob succeeded in demolishing the building and setting the inside on fire.

The usual quantity of "wise saws and modern instances" on the fickleness of the weather, having been liberally dealt out by the newspapers, and near, we may be allowed to cram a word or two into a corner on the nature of the peculiar season we now enjoy.

The month of April, throughout the North American continent, was fifteen degrees of mean temperature colder than the month of March. The weather would hence—infer the consequence of a warm, speedy summer, following close on the heels of a tardy spring, but this inference would be erroneous; and it would not require the astute labours of Daniel to prove that reasoning is vain on the constitution of the atmosphere, the permanently-elastic fluid of which is so liable to the most delicate impressions, the very nature of its aqueous and gaseous ingredients yielding to the slightest impulse caused by a change of temperature. Authentic records of the progress of the season are useful. In the reign of the last Henry "the Shepherd of Salisbury" chronicled the tides of the air, and in the reign of the last George, the weather was Tailor of Whitebarn invented Flora's dial. We have seen a circle of heaths so arranged as to indicate by the succession of their blossoming, the various months of the year; but the peculiar day of the month was never dreamt of, neither can the lunar changes, ennobled by Herschel, or the quintessential records of Humboldt help the mariner or the agriculturist to calculate on a precise instant, yet a general rule of conduct to meet the vicissitudes of season must be greatly subserved by an acquaintance with the results of the observations of those philosophers, or as Bishop Berkeley calls them, "mianie philosophers."

"The wisest man the world e'er saw," says, "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven," and he goes on to enumerate a series of difficulties that show the vanity of human travail. A time for this and a time for that—

BIOGRAPHY.
Interesting biographical sketch of TANNABILL, the poet, and of JESSIE MONTEITH, his "Flower of Dumblane."
The fair subject of this song was a bonnie lassie in Dumblane. Her family were of poor extraction, and Jessie herself was content with a peasant's lot. When Tannabill became acquainted with her she was in her "teens," a slight, dimple-cheeked happy lassie; her hair yellow coloured and luxuriant; her eyes large and full; overlying with the voluptuous languor which is so becoming in young blue eyes with yellow lashes. Tannabill was struck with her beauty, and as in all things he was enthusiastic, became forthwith her ardent worshipper. But her heart was not to be won. Young, thoughtless, and putting to know and see the world, she had her poor amorous "to do" with her mistress's eyebrows, while she recklessly rambled among the flowery meads of Dumblane, or at an evening sang her inspired verses to him with the most unassuming nonchalance. This was a two fold misery to the sensitive poet. A creature so sweetly elegant, so dear to him, so very lovely and innocent, and yet whimsical, so increased in insensibility as apparently neither to be conscious of the beauty of the verses trembling on her Juliet tongue, nor caring for the caresses of her lover. 'Twas too much, to mark all this, and feel it with the feelings of a poet, was the scene of misery. But the "Flower of Dumblane" was not that unfeeling, unimpassioned being which Tannabill pictured her. She was a creature of feeling, all imagination, although the bard had not that in his person or manners to engage her attention or to arrest her fancy. The young affections are not to be controlled. Love, all-mighty love, must be true, else it ceases to be love. Tannabill was plain in his person, and uncouth in his manners, and felt and expressed discontentment at the cruel disappointment which it had been his unhappy fate almost invariably to encounter. Jessie, on the contrary, looked upon the world as a brilliant spectacle yet to be seen and enjoyed,—as a vast Paradise full of the beauty of heaven and of earth, where men walked torn in the image of their Creator, invested with his attributes, and where woman trode proudly amidst the lovely creation, an angel venerated and adored. To express dissatisfaction under all these circumstances was to her mind the extravagance of a misanthrope, the madness of a real lover of misery, and a sufficient cause for her not to respect him. Both viewed the world through a false medium, and their deductions, although at variance, gave colour to their minds and accelerated their love. Jessie could not comprehend what appeared to her the folly of her suitor. She refused not his sickly sentimental stanzas, all womanhood ever did and do, she scorned a coming lover. The bard was driven to despair, and, summing up an ungodly energy of mind, departed, and left his adored to her youthful aberrations. Soon after this period the song of "Jessie, the flower of Dumblane," together with the music, was published; it became a public favourite; it was sung everywhere, in theatres and at parties, a world of praise was showered upon it from woman's flattering lips, men became mad to know the adored subject of the lay. In a short time it was discovered, Jessie Monteith, the pretty peasant of Dumblane, was the favoured one. From all quarters young men and bachelors flocked to see her, and her own sex were curious and critical. Many promising youths paid their addresses to her, and experienced the same reception as her first lover. Nevertheless at last poor Jessie became really enamoured. A rakish spark from Mid Lothian, adorned with education, being of polished manners, and confident in his wealth and superiority of rank gained her affections. She too greedily trusted in his unshaken professions. The ardour of first love overcame her better judgment, and, abandoning herself to her lover's passion, she made an imprudent escape from the protection of her parents, and soon found herself in elegant apartments, near the city of Edinburgh. The song of neglected Tannabill was to his Jessie both a glory and a curse; while it brought her into notice and enhanced her beauty, it laid the foundation of her final destruction. Popularity is a dangerous elevation, whether the object of it be a peasant or a prince; temptations crowd around it, and snares are laid on every hand. Who would be eminent, said a distinguished child of popularity, if they knew the peril, the madness, the distraction of mind to which the creature of the popular breath are exposed? When the poet heard of the fate of his beloved Jessie, his heart almost broke with mental agony, and, working himself into the enthusiastic frenzy of inspiration, poured forth a torrent of song more glowing and energetic than ever before; he burnt himself in his own fire, he burnt himself in his own fire, he burnt himself in his own fire. It is to be lamented that, in a fit of tongue, he afterwards destroyed those poetic records of his passion and repentment. Ere three years had revolved their triple circuit after Jessie left her father's home, she was a changed woman. Her former had forsaken her. She was destined to a splendid habitation. Her blue eyes looked pitiful on all things around her; the oval cheeks were indented by the hand of misery, and the face and person presented the picture of an unhappy, but amiable being. How changed was the figure clothed in silk, which moved on the banks of the Forth, from the happy, lively girl in Dumblane, dressed in the rustic garb of a peasant. But this is a subject too painful to dwell upon; let us hasten to the catastrophe. It was on an afternoon in July, a beautiful sunny afternoon, the air was calm and pure. The twin islands of the Forth, like vast emeralds set in a lake of silver, rose splendidly over the shining water, which now and then gurgled and splashed round their bases. Fresh air was spread forth like a map, her hundreds of island villages and cois tranquilly sleeping in the sunshine. The din of the artisan's hammers in Kirkaldy and Queensferry smote the still air; and Danleith's apertured inhabitants scattered forth their whitened webs beneath the moonlight sun. On the opposite shore, Leith disgorged her black smoke; which rolled slowly in volumes to the sea. Edinburgh Castle, like a mighty spirit from the "vasty deep," reared her grey bulwarks high in air; and Arthur's Seat rose hugely and darkly in the background. The chorusses of the fishermen like hyants to the great spirit of the waters, ascended over Newhaven; and down from Grangemouth, lightly booming o'er the tide, floated the tall bark. The world seemed steeped in happiness. But there was one, a wandering one, an outcast, wretched and despairing, amidst all this loveliness; her bosom was cold and dark, no ray could penetrate its depths; she was shivering not for her, nor did nature smile around but to inflict a more exquisite pang on the unfortunate. Her steps were broken and hurried. She now approached the water's edge, and then receded. No human creature was near to disturb her purpose,—all was quietness and privacy; but there was an eye from above who watched all. Jessie Monteith,—how mournfully sounds that name at this crisis! But Jessie sat herself down, and removing a shawl and bonnet from her person, and taking a string of pearls from her marble-kissed neck, and a gold ring which she seemed to treasure, from her taper finger, she cast up her streaming eyes, meekly imploring the forgiveness of Heaven on her, the cause of her shame and death. Scarce offering a prayer for herself, she breathed forth the names of her disconsolate parents, and ere the eye could follow her, she disappeared beneath the wave.

THE PLAYER ON THE HEART.
BY ROBERT HALL.
Neither are there any hearts so amiable and delicate that a cunning waker will not find therein many good affections; even as a master, from a poor and broken instrument, doth draw forth such sweet music.—Sir Thomas Brown.
I cannot wake the breathing flute,
The lyre and harp are dumb to me,
I cannot touch the lover's lute,
Nor rouse its speaking melody.
Mute, mute for me the jolly roll
That falls Cecilia's tongue to swell;
But there's a sympathy of soul,
And I can wake it passing well.
The sweetest child in Orpheus' train
Can better strike the Dorian quill;
But I can play upon the heart,
And touch its chords with magic skill.
A trusty boy has task forsook,
And indented in the vale doth grow,
I found him idle by the brook,
And warned him of his father's frown.
Oh, staid was his laughing eye—
He sat him down and wept the while;
I bent to cheer the sobbing boy,
And whispered of his mother's smile:
And lo! the sad and solemn clouds depart,
And lightly bounds he from the mill;
For I can play upon the heart,
And touch its chords with magic skill.
A soldier slept, in silence hushed—
I broke his dreams, and whispered "Fame"
Forth to the battle-field he rushed,
To write in blood a deathless name.
An infant, on its mother's breast,
He sought to slay in fury wild;
The madman's arm a word repressed—
A single name—the own dear child!
It woke his spirit's gentler part,
And Mercy spoke—the storm was still;
For I can play upon the heart,
And touch its chords with magic skill.
A dying man, with failing breath,
Abode his hour, I entered in,
And held before the eye of death
The long account of crime and sin.
Will glow the eye, in dark despair,
And pale waxed that pallid cheek;
I taught him then, with fervent prayer,
A Saviour's pardoning love to seek.
O, welcome now the deadly dart—
The Christian soul it could not kill!
So I can play upon the heart,
And touch its chords with magic skill.
I wooed a girl in her bowyer,
And lowly knelt, and proffered gold;
"Oh, would my purchase pomp and power—
A faithful heart can ne'er be sold."
I knelt me at her feet again,
And pleaded love and only love;
The heart that scorned a gilded chain,
Affection's lightest breath could move.
I saw the pitying tear drop start—
I felt her bosom's pulsing thrill;
Oh, I can play upon the heart,
And touch its chords with magic skill.
Preserve your conscience always soft and sensible. If but one sin force its way to that tender part of the soul, and dwell easy there, the road is paved for a thousand iniquities.
"Why Tom, my dear fellow, how old you look!" "Dare say, Bob, for the fact is, I never was so old before in all my life."
The first efforts at all great undertakings are generally weak. The earliest navigators kept in sight of the shore, distrusting their own powers.
THE TURNER FLY. A writer in the Leeds Journal, England, after trying various methods to prevent the ravages of this insect, ascertained by a loss that there was on every seed of the turnep a number of white flatish substances, 2, 3, 4 or 5 of these substances were on each seed, but some seeds without any on them. I made a pretty strong brine and soaked the seeds in it for 24 hours, then dried them thoroughly and sowed them. When the plants appeared not a single fly infested them. I tried this course again and again only three hours, and no insects appeared, and the plants came up well.

I now practice this with the seed of Cabbage, Turnep, and all the cured form plants with satisfactory success. Radish seed may thus be secured.
TO PERFUME CLOTHES. Take rose leaves dried in the shade, cloves beaten to a powder and mace scraped; mix them together, and put the composition into little bags and lay them among the clothes. This will doubtless prevent the ravages of the moth.
CURIOUS CHALLENGE. An Irish gentleman offers the following singular challenge to one gentleman of the sister kingdom. He proposes, that he, on his part should go into any market town of Meath on a fair without notice before hand, and there select one hundred Irishmen, natives of that country, and that the Englishman on his part should go into a market town in any part of England, also without notice, and choose two hundred Englishmen—that the parties so selected should meet on the Carragh of Kildare, on a day to be fixed, in August next, without weapons of any kind, and that they should make the following trial of strength and skill—That the two parties be drawn up in lines opposite each other, at a distance of 21 yards, that they close at a signal; that no blow shall be given, and the challenger undertakes for one thousand pounds or upwards, that the hundred Irishmen will throw the two hundred Englishmen on the ground, each man once thrown to be removed, and not to take further part in the contest. [Dublin paper]
"The Editor's Plantation!"—How queer this sounds to a poor devil of an editor at the East. If we could only say the editor's farm or the editor's potatoe patch—or the editor's house—cabin—but—shanty—anything with a roof to it—it would be a consolation,—but we can't, and the only real estate we own in the world has been hid from our view by a girl who has been spreading a towel over it to bleach.—Boston Morning Post.
An Anagram Maker.—Any person who will spend his time in anagrams ought to be made to work a garden all summer, with a bonfire to be tied over his shoulders. This would bring something out of him if it wasn't wit.—Ibid.

THE PLAYER ON THE HEART.
BY ROBERT HALL.
Neither are there any hearts so amiable and delicate that a cunning waker will not find therein many good affections; even as a master, from a poor and broken instrument, doth draw forth such sweet music.—Sir Thomas Brown.
I cannot wake the breathing flute,
The lyre and harp are dumb to me,
I cannot touch the lover's lute,
Nor rouse its speaking melody.
Mute, mute for me the jolly roll
That falls Cecilia's tongue to swell;
But there's a sympathy of soul,
And I can wake it passing well.
The sweetest child in Orpheus' train
Can better strike the Dorian quill;
But I can play upon the heart,
And touch its chords with magic skill.
A trusty boy has task forsook,
And indented in the vale doth grow,
I found him idle by the brook,
And warned him of his father's frown.
Oh, staid was his laughing eye—
He sat him down and wept the while;
I bent to cheer the sobbing boy,
And whispered of his mother's smile:

Miramichi May 22.
The Rev. Samuel Bacon, Rector of St. Paul's church, Chatham, has been presented with a Tea Service of Plate by his Parishioners, bearing the following inscription:—
"Presented to the Rev. Samuel Bacon, by his Parishioners, at Miramichi, as a testimony of respect for his zeal and ability as a Minister of the Gospel, and in grateful remembrance of his disinterested and exemplary conduct, in releasing the Mission of Annapolis Royal, (a much more lucrative and desirable situation) from his anxiety to promote the spiritual interests of his congregation."
The Gleaner publishes the Reverend Gentleman's reply, and bears witness to the propriety of this well merited compliment.
Total arrivals (square rigged vessels) at Miramichi, sixty-one.
GLOUCESTER MINES.—Mr. Stevens, the gentleman who has purchased the privilege of working the mines in this County, and who proceeded to Great Britain last fall, with several specimens of Ores which he had collected, arrived in the Queen, accompanied by a number of Miners, for the purpose of prosecuting his researches. They proceeded to Bathurst in the steamer Cape-Breton, on Sunday last. Mr. Stevens has been so far successful in the mother country, as to form a Company, with ample capital to work the Mines, should the ore, on further inspection, prove sufficiently rich and abundant. The specimen of copper, more especially, which he procured we understand, is unusually rich.—Gleaner.

QUEEN'S BIRTH DAY.—Thursday being the day appointed for the celebration of Her Majesty's Birth, was observed at the Government with due honors. His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor and Major General Commanding, attended the Parade of the Troops and Militia at 12 o'clock, when a Royal Salute and feu de joie were fired, followed by three cheers. The members of Her Majesty's Council, the Heads of Departments, and Principal Officers of the Government, and the Officers of the Garrison and commanding Officers of Militia Corps, were afterwards entertained at dinner at Government House, the health of Her Majesty was proposed by His Excellency in the following terms, and received with rapturous applause and three times three cheers.
"We are assembled for the purpose of celebrating the first anniversary, since Her Majesty's accession to the Throne, of the Birth of our youthful and gracious Queen, the object of our ardent loyalty and affection of her countless subjects; upon this occasion I will merely observe, that if the fervent prayers and aspirations, which are this day breathed for blessings upon Her beloved head, by those over whom she has been called by Providence to reign,—and by no portion of Her Majesty's subjects will they be offered with greater fervour and sincerity, than by the loyal inhabitants of this Province—be permitted to have any influence upon her destinies, thrive happy will those destinies be. Ladies and Gentlemen, I invite you to pledge me in a toast of "Health, long life and every earthly blessing, to our gracious and beloved Queen VICTORIA."
We understand, that the Ball which it was the intention of Lady HARVAY to have given upon the Birthday, is postponed to the 20th proximo, the day appointed for Her Majesty's Coronation.—Royal Gazette.
To extract the Essence of any Flower.—Take any flower you please, and bruise the leaves; then straiten them with an equal weight of common salt, in a glazed earthen vessel. When thus filled to the top, cover it well, and set it in the cellar. A month or more afterwards, strain off the essence, and dry a strong cloth by pressure. This essence may be purified by expunging it in bottles four or five weeks, in the sun and dew of the evening.

The "Times" of that Town says:— "I am altogether dissent from the position that the British Government will find it to their interest to discontinue the packets to Halifax and forward the despatches, mails, &c. for the Provinces, to New York."

But we can hardly think that such an arrangement would be satisfactory either at home or in the Colonies, when an independent establishment could surely be supported between Britain and the Provinces. At present the English packets to the West Indies sail from Falmouth to Barbados, where a steamer takes the mails to Jamaica and returns by St. Thomas's where she finds the packet ready to return to Falmouth.

The rather flippant note of "Mutius" who appears inclined to make a rumpus about the neglect of Her Majesty's birth day here, is easily answered. It was not known until the 15th day before the 17th, that that was to be observed in honour of the our lady the Queen, instead of the day of the month on which First was born; indeed we may say that scarcely a tithe of it was omitted altogether. Our exchange papers announce preparations are going forward to Provinces to celebrate Her Majesty's Coronation on the 26th inst. month. We trust the preparations will take a lead in making a more than a very general sentiment to do honour to the day. to be observed in honour of the nativity of our lady the Queen, instead of the 24th, the day of the month on which Victoria the First was born; indeed we may safely affirm that scarcely a tribe of the inhabitants knew anything about it, and it was not until the evening of the 17th that the Commandant received official directions to fire a feu de joie, which was done next day rather than it should be omitted altogether.

We have lately seen several notices of severe visitations, where the fall sweep of death has removed whole families. In Montgomery, Massachusetts, between the 2nd of November and the 20th of January following, six of the family of Mr. Kellogg dropped into the grave; leaving but one individual of the family behind. In Burnham, Maine, six of the offspring of Walter and Ester Edmonds died within the space of six months. Nov. 5, Sarah, aged 4 months; Nov. 8, Harriet, aged 8 years; Jan. 16, Walter, 15 years; Feb. 11, Ester, 18 years; March 30, Ezbon, 23 years; and April 6, Salona, aged 6 years. Recently we had the grief of recording the death of three of the children of Mr. Mionette, St. John; Jan. 19, Eliza, aged 14; March 27, Marianne, aged 19; and May 1, Joshua Maxwell, aged five years and a half.

The Duke of Bedford East Indianman was spoken homeward bound by Capt. Robertson of the Jamaica. The Duke of Bedford—As this nobleman's name has been much before the public in reference to the predictions of Royalty, we submit the following extract from the press: "JOHN ELPHINSTONE, Lord Elphinstone, (son of John Lord Elphinstone, by Janet Hayford, daughter of Cornelius Elliot, Esq., and widow of Sir John Gibson (Emichael, bart.); born 1807, succeeded his father 1813, a Captain in the Royal Horse Guards, and a Lord of the Bedchamber. Admiral the Hon. Charles Elphinstone Fleming of Cambernault, his uncle, who has issue, is presumptive heir."

Major General Sir JAMES McDONALD, who now commands the troops in Canada, is brother to the late McDonald of Glenora, and has been called from his command of the northern districts of Ireland to assume his present important station. His amity of disposition and conciliatory conduct drew from the warm-hearted inhabitants of Armagh and its vicinity the tribute of a piece of plate, value 200 guineas, which has been presented to this distinguished officer as a mark of their esteem and respect for his virtues.

The power of the spirit of genuine Scotch Song was largely shed over the heart and mind of TANNARILL the Weaver of Paisley. On our first page will be found a touching narrative extracted from the Edinburgh Observer, of the fate of Jessie Monteith, whose beauty inspired him with the purest sentiments of love, and drew forth many of these pathetic strains of poetry among which stands prominently his song of "the sun had gone down o'er the lolly bonnet and left the red clouds to preside o'er the scene."

As a striking indication of the difference of climate in regions generally laid down as nearly isothermal, we remark that the United States Gazette of the 26th ult. speaks of a Horse chestnut tree in Philadelphia being then in full blossom, whilst here the palmetto foliage of our most forward Horse Chestnuts is only beginning to unfold, and the embryo buds of its flowers to swell on their stalks.

How could you be so cruel, and thus to bewitcher, and spoil that little, Creamer by turning to a Pitcher. In witness whereof the Rev. Mr. Foster, Mr. Nicholas Lyan, to Miss Corneil Ann Lamb. Thus, in the short space of 15 days, have these bereaved parents been stricken by the hand of an insupportable but all-wise Providence. Truly they require consolation; not that species of sympathy which often usurps the place of deep feeling, but that to fortify which assuages sorrow and alleviates distress. "One eye on death, and one full fixed on Heaven, 'Becomes a mortal and immortal man." Heaven gives us friends to bless the present scene.
