St. Andrews, Thursday Morning, October 20.

Arrival of the Steamer Britannia at Halifax. Great Fire in Liverpool.

HALF A MILLIONS WORTH OF PROPERTY DESTROYED.

given it as his opinion, that it was either the work of an meendary, or that it had been caused by flakes of fire falling from an adjacent chimney.

The spot where it originated was surrounded by numerous wooden sheds, which, together with the vast quantities of inflammable matter contained in an adjacent building, used as an Oil and Varnish Manufactory, gave such an impetus to the progress of the devouring element as almost to set human efforts at defiance. The alarm was given throughout the town with the atmost dispatch and the Engines from the different Insurance departments repaired promptly to the spot The Sheds and Cooperage of Messirs. Taylor and Graham, which were also full of ignitable matter was next in flames, and such was the intensity of the heat—the rapidity of the flames and the bulk of the fire, that with M. engines in full play upon the burning buildings, and water thrown from buckets by persons stationed in the upper stories of the buildings, yet no visible effect was perceivable.

The fire raged throughout the whole day with little abatement, as it was not until some of the wooden houses were torn down, and the fire had burnt to open ground, or where houses were protected by wet blankets and carpets, that any hope was entertained of a limit being put to its ravages. The scene throughout the day and the following night, was one of both aublimity and terror. The immense height of the brick buildings belching forth fire and smooks gave no faint resemblence of a volcano in its might, while the falling of the tottering walls of buildings at intervals, might well be assimilated to the thunderings might resould from the near approach of the fire, might be seen like red hot piles of lava: The whole forming a scene as terrific as it was destructive.

The English Mail, arrived here last night, bringing Liverpool dates to the 4th and London to the 3d inst. The only news of importance is a dreadful and most destructive fire which occurred in Liverpool on the 22d September, the particulars of which we hasten to lay before our readers.

It spears on the morning of Friday the 22d ult a fire was discovered by the Police on duty, in the premises of Mr. Peniston, drysalter in Crompton-street, enquiry has been set on foot to discover its origin, which yet remains doubtful. Inspector Abraham has given it as his opinion, that it was either the work of an incendary, or that it had been caused by flakes of fire falling from an adjacent chimney.

prices of lava: The whole forming a scene as terrific as it was destructive.

The wind during the whole time blew a fresh breeze, which greatly accellerated the flames, and caused them to spread much farther than would have been the case had it been calm at the time.

From the accounts up to the sailing of the steamer, it appears from 18 to 20 persons had been discovered to have been killed and a great number wounded, in their attempts either to remove goods to a place of safety, or in assisting to extinguish the fire.

It is estimated that the loss in cotten amounts to 45,908 bales, and that there were in the ware houses 250 casks of tallow, 2209 barrels and 800 sacks of flour, 60 tons of cod
